

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

Gough. Addis. Gen. Jop.
Gen. Jop.
4<sup>5</sup> 5.

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

THE TYNMOUTH RAILWAY BRIDGE ON THE GLIMMERS & NEWCASTLE RAILWAY.

Drawn & Engraved for the British & Foreign

A. Ashby del. & sculp.

THE
BRITISH GAZETTEER,

POLITICAL, COMMERCIAL, ECCLESIASTICAL, AND HISTORICAL;

SHOWING

THE DISTANCES OF EACH PLACE FROM LONDON AND DERBY—GENTLEMEN'S SEATS—POPULATIONS—INNS AND HOTELS—POSTAL ARRANGEMENTS—
BANKERS—MARKETS. FAIRS, &c.

ILLUSTRATED BY A FULL SET OF COUNTY MAPS,

WITH

All the Railways accurately laid down;

FORMING AT ONCE AN IRON ROAD-BOOK AND COUNTY ATLAS.

BY B. CLARKE, ESQ.,

AUTHOR OF AN ESSAY ON LANGUAGE, &c. &c.

VOLUME I.

A—C.

LONDON:

PUBLISHED (FOR THE PROPRIETORS) BY H. G. COLLINS, PATERNOSTER ROW.

1852.

STEREOTYPED AND PRINTED
BY WILLIAM MACKENZIE, 48 LONDON STREET, GLASGOW.

TO

GEORGE CARR GLYN, ESQ. M.P.

CHAIRMAN OF THE DIRECTION OF THE LONDON AND NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY, &c. &c.

This Work,

WHICH HAS FOR ONE OF ITS CHIEF OBJECTS THE MAKING KNOWN THE MEANS OF

ACCESS BY RAILWAY

TO EVERY CITY, TOWN, VILLAGE, AND HAMLET IN THE KINGDOM,

Is, by kind Permission, Dedicated,

AS A MARK OF RESPECT, MOST SINGULARLY APPROPRIATE,

TO ONE WHOSE TALENTS AND INFLUENCE HAVE SO POWERFULLY CONTRIBUTED

TO THE

GREAT NATIONAL ADVANTAGES

DERIVED FROM THE IMMENSE INCREASE IN THE FACILITY OF COMMUNICATION.

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS.

---

It is a very general remark, that "prefaces are never read." The Editor is not about to write one; but he is unwilling to lay before the Public this first Part of his Work, abruptly and without a few introductory remarks on the nature of the undertaking and the mode in which it is to be carried out.

It has been undertaken to supply a public want, very generally expressed, and which is daily increasing; for the great political and ecclesiastical changes which have taken place during the last twenty years, and the revolution which, during the last ten or twelve, has been effected in locomotion, and in the means of access to all parts, through the construction of Railroads, render essential for travellers at the present day, a Road Book to supply the place of that valuable work to the last generation, "Paterson's Roads." Moreover, the greatly extended postal accommodation, as well as the variations in the relative importance of places, caused by the revolution before mentioned, as also the springing up of new towns and villages at the sites of Railway Stations, demand the production of something more than a Road Book. Statistics and other useful information are required by the commercial man; nor is the account of gentlemen's seats of less value to him than it is to the traveller: while to every one the Historic record is of interest, whether it be the warning memorial of deeds of lawless violence and internal war, or the stimulating narrative of patriotic deeds, of active benevolence, or of the talent of a past or present generation. And this is obtained by combining with the Road Book a complete Gazetteer of every town and village in the kingdom. And, further, the great progress which has of late years been made in the Arts, enables us to elucidate the position of places, and the direction of the roads which lead to them, by introducing into the work Maps of the Counties on such a scale as to be of real practical efficiency: and the same reason enables us to illustrate the most important or interesting localities, with plates drawn and engraved by gentlemen of taste and artistic skill. This could not have been done formerly, as it is now, at a price within the reach of every one. The Maps are drawn from the highest authorities, and the Railways, being so important a feature, are, together with every Station, laid down to the time of going to press. Such an amount of statistical matter, as is contained in this work, was not collected without much trouble and perseverance. Great care has been taken that all the authorities consulted were the most trustworthy and most recent; and considerable exertion has been used to obtain original interesting information, and, at the same time, that nothing be introduced which is not authentic. Reference to the accompanying Part will best explain the form in which the information is given. However, there is one feature to which we request attention, namely, that while we give the recognized posting distances from London, we also give the length of the route which must now be taken to reach each place; because that is the space passed over, and for which fares are paid, and is therefore practically the correct distance. When the length of both routes is the same, it is not mentioned twice. We would also remark, that the distances from Derby are given, on account of that town being the great focus of Railway communication, as may be seen by a glance at the sketch of the great trunk lines which is on the cover of this Part.

Our assumption of the present probable population of each place is based on an average of the last three censuses; but it is still liable to fluctuation on account of the movements of masses of the population and their settlement in other localities, in consequence of the Railroad revolution before mentioned.

We refer to the accompanying Part to show how we have accomplished our task; and, anticipating the encouraging patronage which may fairly be solicited for a work in which so much various matter has to be compiled and arranged in order, we hope to give satisfaction to our patrons, and if we succeed in so doing, we are content.

EDITOR.

LONDON.

P R E F A C E.

---

FOR many years it has been felt that the condition of Britain has been undergoing great social alterations. Science has been greatly enlarged in its influence, and very active in its powers. The steam-engine was once the dread of all those who, unacquainted with the nicety with which it is regulated, always dreaded anything like contact with it. Now it is a common thing—common to all who desire to avail themselves of the advantages which it has provided for the many millions who daily avail themselves of the benefits which it insures.

From a myth, or a thought, it has in our day become a reality. The terror which it formerly inspired has ceased. Its heavings are now only construed as being significant of safety and enjoyment. We can now travel in one day, with ease, what used formerly to occupy four of laborious endurance. The intercourse between the several portions of the country has been reduced in expense, and increased in facility. With the old coach road system, accidents were continually occurring; and though they might seem to be but small in amount in every individual incident, they were fearfully large in the aggregate. Railways have altered all this. The accidents, when they do occur, may be fearful, but happily they are of rare occurrence; and the loss of life, and the injury to person and property, has been ten times less than that which was incurred by the old coaching system.

In fact, railways have altered the face of the whole of the social intercourse of Britain. To meet the want which the older books could not possibly supply, the BRITISH GAZETTEER has been compiled.

To collect the information necessary for such a skeleton as 'Bradshaw's Guide,' must involve an enormous amount of industry and outlay; but at the first glance it will appear, that to gather together all the various details for such a Work as this GAZETTEER, the time, care, labour, and expense incurred, must be almost infinitely greater. Besides, in this Work is simplified all that information which can only be obtained, in nine cases out of ten, by studious research.

The following is a resumé of the Contents of the Work, as specified in the covers of the Monthly Parts in which it was issued :—

THE FOLLOWING STATISTICS OF EACH PLACE ARE GIVEN :—

LOCATION and DESCRIPTION.—County, Division, or Hundred; Union.

DISTANCE from London, from Derby, from surrounding places.

ACCESS (means of) from London, from Derby.

POSTAL ARRANGEMENTS.—Where money orders paid, time of delivery and of Post closing.

HISTORICAL and LOCAL Information.—Under the latter is included—Manufactures or Produce, Gentlemen's Seats, together with any objects of interest connected with them, as Picture Galleries, &c.

Nature of CLERICAL APPOINTMENTS.—Rated Value; Present net Income; Patron; Incumbent; Date of Appointment; Extent in Acres; Number of Inhabitants; of Houses; Amount of Tithes; Commutation; Amount of Poor's Rates.

POLITICAL.—Polling Place; Assize Town; those which are Disfranchised or Reduced or Enlarged by Reform Bill; Number of Members; Number of Registered Voters; Amount of Assessed Property.

INNS and HOTELS.

BANKERS, and name of London Correspondents.

MARKETS. FAIRS. RACES.

LOCAL NEWSPAPERS.

The whole forming a COMPLETE RAILROAD COUNTY ATLAS and GAZETTEER; for, by the novel feature of giving the distance of each place not only from London, but also from Derby, the central spot of England, and the great focus of Railway conveyance, this will be an invaluable book of reference to all persons who have occasion for Statistical or Local Information.

The Proprietors and the Editor, with a deep sense of gratitude for the favours they have received, beg most respectfully to tender their best thanks to their Correspondents for the many kindnesses which they have experienced in their correction, from their local knowledge, of the several articles that have been laid before them.

The thousands of letters with which the Work has been honoured, in return for the numerous applications of the Proprietors, demand and hereby receive their warmest gratitude. The valuable communications of those correspondents have made the BRITISH GAZETTEER what it ought to be, the most perfect work of its kind in the language. Lambard, Leland, Tanner, Speed, and all the other older authors, have been carefully collated and interweaved in the several articles.

It was intended to have added the accounts of Scotland and Ireland, but such is the transition state of the country, especially of the latter part of the United Kingdom, that that design is for the present postponed.

To those who have been connected with him in the construction of the BRITISH GAZETTEER, for their readiness, co-operation, and assiduity, the Editor begs to tender his warmest acknowledgments.

Finally, the Proprietors and the Editor beg to state their deep sense of the obligation under which they lie to the Press, without the countenance of which, nothing will ever be widely known or rightly appreciated. They are happy to say that their Work has been well received in all parts of the country, and has already become the great focus of topographical information.

B. C.

LONDON, December, 1851.

THE BRITISH GAZETTEER

AND

TRAVELLING ROAD BOOK.

ABB

ABBAS-COMBE, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund. of Horethorne, union of Wincanton: distant from London 131½ miles (coach-road 109), 3¼ from Wincanton, 6 from Milborne Port, and 8 from Shaftesbury. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 25 miles: from Dorby, by rail. to Bath, 147, thence 25 miles. — London letters arrive at 9 a.m.; post closes 4 p.m.: money orders obtained at Wincanton. — The living (St. Mary) is a rectory in the archd. of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells; set at £9. 9s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £398: patron, Rev. T. Fox: pres. incumbent, Rev. T. Fox, 1820: contains 2,020 acres: 100 houses: in 1841, 461 inhabitants; probable number in 1849, 520: assd. value of property, £3,242: poor rates in 1837, £380. 7s. — S. 2¼ m. are Stalbridge Park, the seat of the Marquis of Anglesea; and 2¼ m. Venn House, the seat of J. Sewington Savery, Esq.

ABBAS-COMPTON, DORSET, See COMPTON-ABBAS.

ABBENHALL, GLOUCESTER. See ARINGHALL.

ABBERBURY (or ALBERBURY), SHROPSHIRE, a parish consisting of 9 townships: those of Crugion, Middleton, and Uppington, in the hund. of Cawrse, with that of Bausley, in the hund. of Deythur, are in Montgomery; and Alderbury, Benthall with Shrawardine, Eyton, Royton with Amaston, and Wollaston, are in the hund. of Ford, co. of Salop: it is in the union of Atcham: 161½ miles from London, 8 from Shrewsbury, and 3 from Melferley. — Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 35 miles: from Derby 90 miles, from which take rail. to Wolverhampton, 55½. — Money orders obtained at Shrewsbury: London letters delivd. 10 a.m. and 9½ p.m.; post closes 4 p.m. — This parish, which the Welsh call Llauvihangel-yu-Ghentyn, is intersected by the old Roman road. At Glyn, is the cottage of the celebrated old Parr, whose memory is preserved by the following inscription on a brass plate in Wollaston chapel: The old, old, very old man, Thomas Parr, was born at the Glyn, in the township of Wennington, within the chapelry of Great Wollaston and parish of Alber- bury, in the county of Salop, in 1483. He lived in the reigns of ten kings and queens of England, viz.: King Edward IV., King Edward V., King Richard III., King Henry VII., King Henry VIII., King Edward VI., Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, King James I., and Charles I.; he died in London (16 years after his presentation to king Charles) on the 13th November, 1635, and was buried in Westminster Abbey on the 15th of the same month, aged one hundred and fifty-two years and nine months. At the age of one hundred and five, he did penance in the church of Alberbury, for criminal connexion with Catharine Milton, by whom he had offspring. The castle was built in the reign of Henry II., by Warine, a sheriff of the county, and a great warrior against the Welsh, in the time of Henry I.: about a mile from it may be traced the remains of the "New Abbey," also founded by Warine, for the Black Monks of the order of Grandmorst, in Limosin; but it was suppressed by Henry VI., and, at the request of Henry Chichele, archbishop of Canterbury, was bestowed on All Souls' College, Oxford. — The living (St. Michael), a dischd. vicarage in the archd. of Salop, diocese of Hertford, is valued at £5. 10s.: pres. net income, £187: the patronage belongs to All Souls' College: pres. incumbent, R. W. Huntley, 1829: the portion of the parish in Shropshire contains 6,040 acres: 472 houses: popn. in 1841, 1,611: probable popn. 1849, 1,800: assd. prop. £12,562: poor rates in 1837, £319. — S. ½ m. are Brent Hall; 1½ m. Rowton Castle, the seat of Henry Lyster, Esq., whose ancestors have held the domain since the middle of the 15th century. One of them, Sir Thomas, was a devoted adherent of Charles I., and on the king visiting Shrewsbury, testified his loyalty in a very acceptable manner, by a large contribution of gold. While he was prisoner to the Republicans, Lady Lyster held Rowton Castle during a fortnight's siege, and made good terms. Another of them, R. Lyster, Esq., obtained notoriety by bearding Sir R. Walpole and the assembled Commons, on occasion of being treated with gross injustice. And when he was called on to apologize, Sir Robert verified the adage, "There is many a truth spoken in jest," by exclaiming, "Let him go, we have used him bad enough." And S. 2 m. Wattlesborough Hall.

ABB

ABBER-CWM-HIR, RADNOR, a chapelry to the village of Llanbister: distant from London 178 miles (coach road 172), from Rhayader 6, and from Knighton 15. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 65 miles: or by Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 70 miles: S.E. of Derby, 106 miles, by rail. through Birmingham. — Money orders issued at Rhayader: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2 p.m.; post closes 11 a.m. — The prefix, "Abber," is applied to places situated at the confluence of waters; either the union of two rivers, or the debouchure of a river into the sea. The chapel is called the Abbey-chapel: the ruins of the abbey are still visible, situated in a most lovely valley encompassed by hills, and watered by the Clowedoc, a tributary of the Ithon: it is considered to have been the only monastic establishment in Radnor: it is thus described by Leland in his Itinerary: — Come here an abbay of white monkes, stonduh betwixt II great hilles in Melennith, in a botom wher renneth a lile brooke. It is VII miles from Knighton. The first fundation was made by Cadwathelan ap Madok for LX monkes. No churh in Wales is seen of such length as the fundation of walles ther begon doth shew; bot the third part of this work was never finished. Al the houses was spoiled and defacid be Owen Glindour. The Cadwathelan mentioned is more correctly Cadwalon ab Madoc, and the date of the foundation is about 1143 A.D., at which time he was lord of the province. In Newton church, Montgomery, is a very elegant screen, separating the chancel from the nave, which, together with the antique font, is said to have been brought from this abbey. — The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Brecon, diocese of St. David's: valued at £4. 13s.: pres. net income, £148: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, E. Powell, 1839: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 550: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 620: poor rates in 1837, £260. — S. 2 m. is Coedvilan Hall.

ABBERFORD, YORKSHIRE. See ABERFORD.

ABBERLEY, WORCESTER, a parish and village in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Doddingtree, union of Martley: 144 miles from London (coach road 130), 10 from Worcester, 6 from Bewdley. — Nor. West. Rail. to Droitwich, thence 11 miles: S.W. of Derby, from which take rail. to Wolverhampton, 61, thence 11 miles. — Money orders granted at Worcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.; post closes 6 p.m. — Walsh, the poet, a correspondent of Addison's, lies in the parish church; he was born in 1663, at the manor-house, the seat of his ancestors, and died in 1708. Pope has handed down his name to posterity in the following quotation:

"Such late was Walsh, the muses' judge and friend,
Who justly knew to blame and to commend;
To fallings mild, but zealous for desert,
The clearest head, and the sincerest heart."

— The living (St. Michael) is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford, valued at £11. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £249: patron, Mrs. Moillett: pres. incumbent, F. Severne, 1828:

contains 2,398 acres: 115 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 559: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 660: ass<sup>d</sup>. amount of property, £3,078: poor rates, £250. — N. 1½ m. is Bower House; S. 1 m. are Abberley Lodge; and 2 m. Whitley Court. The latter, the seat of Lord Ward, is situated on an eminence below Woodbury Hill, in the midst of a richly-wooded domain, and commands a view of the valley of the Severn. The grounds are very tastefully laid out and ornamented. The parish church forms the private chapel of the house, being connected with it by a gallery, which is fitted up as the family pew: it is a chaste building, very splendidly decorated.

ABBERTON, ESSEX, a parish and village in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Winstree, union of Lexden and Winstree: 55½ miles from London (coach road 48), 4½ from Colchester, 12 from Witham. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Colchester, thence 4½ miles: S.E. of Derby, by rail. to London, 132 miles, thence to Colchester. — Money orders obtained at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m. and 3 p.m.; post closes 8½ p.m. and 9 a.m. — The living (St. Andrew) is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, set at £14. 7s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £289: patron, the Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. J. Holroyd, 1830: extent 1,030 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 248: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 300: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,267: poor rates in 1837, £190.

ABBERTON, WORCESTERSHIRE, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Pershore: 145 miles from London (coach road 111), 6 from Pershore, 10 from Worcester. — Nor. West. Rail. to Spetchley station, thence 6 miles: S.E. of Derby, by rail. through Birmingham, 73 miles. — Money orders issued at Pershore: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.; post closes 6 p.m. — It is on the banks of the Avon, and is noted for a valuable medicinal spring, which is much frequented. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £5. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £161: the patronage is in the hands of the Sheldon family: pres. incumbent, F. Bert, 1834: extent in acres, 1,050: houses, 17: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 81: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 100: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,407: poor rates in 1837, £68.

ABBERWICK, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Edlingham, northern division of Coquetdale ward: distant from London 341½ miles (coach road 310), from Alnwick 4, and 7 from Rothbury. — Nor. West. Rail., then Midl<sup>d</sup>. Co<sup>r</sup>. and Nor. Brit<sup>n</sup>. to Alnwick: N. of Derby, 209 miles distant, thence by Midl<sup>d</sup>. Co<sup>r</sup>. and Nor. Brit<sup>n</sup>. Rails. — Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m. and 2½ p.m.; post closes at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. — Houses, 26: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 146: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 170: poor rates, £45. — N. ½ m. is Bolton; 1 m. Shawdon Hall; 1½ m. Titlington; 2 m. Hulne Abbey; S. ½ m. Broom Park; 1 m., Lemmington Hall. Hulne Abbey was founded in the time of Henry III., by Fresburn, a Northumbrian, who went as a crusader to the Holy Land, and became a monk in the monastery on Mount Carmel; but, returning to England, he selected this spot for the site of an abbey, on account of its resemblance to Mount Carmel. The present mansion was built about 1760, by Lord Conway, and was considerably enlarged and beautified under the superintendence of Wyatt. The domain is extensive, and the timber on it majestic.

ABBOTS-ANNE, HANTS. a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Andover, but principally in that of Wherwell; Andover division and union: distant from London 66 miles, from Andover 2½, from Salisbury 16. —Sou. West. Rail. to Andover Road, thence 10 miles: S. of Derby, 192 miles distant, reached from that place by rail. to London, thence as above. —Money orders issued at Andover: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —It is an inconsiderable village, situated in a valley below the wild Downs, which in these parts cover the face of the country. —The living (St. Mary) is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Winchester: value, £42. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £645: patron, heirs of Sir J. Burroughs, knight: pres. incumbent, Hon<sup>ble</sup>. S. Best, 1831: acres, 3,100: houses, 100: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 619: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,700: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,157: poor rates in 1837, £408. —N. ½ m. is Amport Park, the seat of the Marquis of Winchester, who is premier Marquis of England, and fourteenth of Winchester: S. 1½ m. is Red Rice.

ABBOTS-BICKINGTON, (or BICKINGTON-ANDOVER,) DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Black Torrington: distant from London 222 miles (coach road 184), from Gt. Torrington 9, from Holsworthy 6. —Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 38 miles: S.W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Tiverton, &c., 246 miles. —Money orders issued at Gt. Torrington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes at noon. —It was originally a cell to Hartland Abbey, 13 miles distant. In the reign of Henry II., Geoffrey Dynant, lord of Hartland, established an abbey for regular canons, on a foundation which had been made for secular canons, by Githa, wife of Earl Godwin: he released the new establishment from a rent-charge to which the secular canons were liable, and endowed it with the tithes, the patronage of the church, and of several chapels; also, with the lands called "Bekaton," doubtless the name now corrupted to Bickington. Marble and other building stone is quarried in the vicinity. —The living (St. James) is a perpetual curacy, endowed from the great tithes, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Totness, diocese of Exeter: valued at £14: pres. net income, £93: patron, heirs of Lord Rolle: pres. incumbent, P. D. Foulkes, 1823: acres, 1,510: houses, 13: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 75: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 90: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £424: poor rates in 1837, £26.

ABBOTS-BROMLEY, STAFFORD. See BROMLEY-ABBOTS.

ABBOTSBURY, DORSET, a parish (formerly a market-town) in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Ugges-combe, union of Weymouth: distant from London 149 miles, from Dorchester 8, the same from both Weymouth and Bridport. —Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester: S.W. of Derby, by rail. to London, thence as described, 281 miles. —Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —It is about a mile from the sea, which, together with the culture of the potato, furnishes the inhabitants with their principal employment. The abbey is said to have been founded in the year 1026, by Orcus, steward to Canute. Edward the Confessor gifted it with all wrecks found on the shores of the district: this privilege was confirmed by Henry I., and others added. On the south side of the altar, in the parish church, used to stand a black marble coffin, said to contain the bones of the founder: in 1750, it was interred at about the spot where it had stood above ground. Coker mentions it in these words:—The bones of the founder Orc, enclosed in a daintie marble coffin, which I have often seen, were removed (from the monastery) to the parish church. About a mile S.W. from Abbotbury is a well-wooded decoy, where much wild fowl is taken: also, a swannery, formerly pertaining to the abbey, in which many hundred swans are kept; the numbers are said to have been as many as 7000 or 8000: there is an account of it in "Hutchins' Dorset." In the time of James I., a grant was made to Sir John Strangeways of two fairs and a market, to be holden on Thursdays, the market belonging to the abbots having for a long time been discontinued, and the same is now the case with the one granted to Sir John. —The living (St. Nicholas) is a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the diocese of Salisbury: valued at £10: pres. net income, £140: patron, Earl of Ilchester: pres. incumbent, J. Foster, 1832: acres, 4,050: houses, 172: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,005: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,150: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5: 24: poor rates in 1837, £376. —Inns, C., Ship, Commercial: and F. H., Swan. —N. 1 m. are Blackdown; and 1½ m. Bride Head House. Near the beach, Strangeway's Castle, the seat of the Earl of Ilchester, a Gothic residence, commanding a view of West Bay.

ABBOTS-CHARLTON, GLOUCESTER. See CHARLTON-ABBOTS.

ABBOTSHAM, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Shobbear, in the division of Gt. Torrington, union of Bideford: 204 miles from London (coach road 201), 2 from Bideford, 7 from Torrington, 10 from Barnstaple. —Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 39 miles: S.W. of Derby, by rail. through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 247 miles. —Money orders issued at Bideford: London letters arrive 11½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. —The place now called Henny Castle, is supposed to be the same with Kenwith or Cynvit Castle, mentioned by Gough as the scene of a stern encounter between Alfred and Hubba, a Danish chieftain, when the Danes lost their sacred banner, on which was embroidered a black raven, said to predict them victory by extending its wings, or defeat by hanging them as if lifeless: Hubba and 1200 of his followers were slain. —The living (St. Helen) is a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter: value, £16. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £159: patron, the Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Knight Bruce, 1844: acres, 2,090: houses, 75: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 414: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 500: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,481: poor rates in 1837, £106. —N. 1 m. are Rawleigh; 1½ m. Melville Hall; and 2 m. Tapley: S. ½ m. Dad-don Hall; 1 m. Portledge House, the seat of the Rev. T. Coffin Pine, who succeeded his elder brother in the estates, which have been in the family since the time of the conquest; 1½ m. Yeo Vale; 2 m. Annely; and 2 m. Orleigh Court, the seat of John

Lee Hanning Lee, Esq., who, in 1822, took by sign manual his mother's name.

ABBOTSDALE (High), YORK, N. RIDING, a township in the parish of Aysgarth, Wapentake of Hang West: 267 miles from London (coach road 251),  $1\frac{1}{2}$  from Hayes, 12 from Richmond. — Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, from which to Skipton is 105 miles, thence 30 miles. — Money orders issued at Hayes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 4 p.m.: post leaves 9 a.m. — In this township is the source of the river Ure, which flows down the beautiful valley of Wensleydale: it subsequently unites with several other streams, until it swells to the width of the Thames at London: it ultimately joins the Trent, and becomes the Humber. Its stream is very rapid, and there are some very beautiful waterfalls; among them is one called Hardraw force, 99 feet high, below which is a deep ravine, 350 yards in length, worn out of the rock by the action of the waters. — In 1841, taken jointly with the chapelry of Hardraw, and the hamlets of Cotterdale, Litherakew, Lunds, Sedbusk, and Simonstone, the extent in acres was 13,740: houses, 113: pop<sup>n</sup>. 700: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 890: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,047: poor rates in 1837, £166.

ABBOTSDALE (Low), YORKSHIRE, N. RIDING, a township in the same parish and Wapentake as High Abbotside, — which see for conveyance and postal arrangements. — Whitfield Gill, in which is the beautiful waterfall Whitfield-force, separates the two townships. By the stream are the much-admired ruins of Rievaulx Abbey, situated amidst scenery of the most lovely character. It was founded in 1131, in the reign of Henry I., by Sir Walter L'Espé, who allotted the spot to certain monks sent over by St. Bernard, abbot of Clareval. Pope Alexander III., in a bull dated 1160, gave this monastery very special privileges, which were confirmed and extended by Alexander IV. about 100 years afterwards. — Extent in acres, 4,360: houses, 40: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 200: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 250: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,294: poor rates in 1837, £188.

ABBOTS-ISLE, SOMERSET. See ISLE-ABBOTS.

ABBOTS-KERSWELL, DEVON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Haytor, union of Newton-Abbots: 244 miles from London (coach road 190), 2 from Newton-Abbots, 6 from Torquay. — Gt. West. Rail. to Newton-Abbots, thence 2 miles: S.W. of Derby by rail. through Birmingham and Bristol to Newton-Abbots, 229 miles. — Money orders issued at Newton-Abbots: London letters arrive 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — In this parish, a considerable quantity of clay is dug for the use of the Staffordshire potteries: there are also works for the manufacture of alum. Here was a cluniac priory, subordinate to the prior of Montacute, Somerset. The frequent recurrence of this word "Abbot" in the composition of the names of localities, together with the traces of ruin which in most cases accompany it, tell a twofold tale of misdirected zeal. Zeal, wasting labour and material, in constructing such massy edifices for the service of Him "who dwelleth not in temples made with hands." And again, zeal, misguided and mischievous, wantonly destroying commodious and beautiful places of assembly for the worship of the Most High. Sir W. Scott has admirably treated this subject in "Rob Roy," where he makes Andrew Fairservice comment on the conduct of the Glasgow "Trades," who had saved their church from being destroyed:—

It wasna for luve o' Paperie—na, na!—nane could ever say that o' the trades o' Glasgow. Sae they sune cam' to an agreement to tak' a' the idolatrous statues o' sants (sorrow be on them) out o' their nouks; and sae the bits o' stane idols were broken in pieces by scripture warrant, and flung into the Molendinar burn, and the auld kirk stood as crouse as a cat when the fleas are kaimed off her, and a'budy was alike pleased; and I hae heard wise folk say, that if the same had been done in ilka kirk in Scotland, the reform would just hae been as pure as it is e'en now, and we would hae mair Christian-like kirks: for I hae been sae lang in England that naething will driv'd out o' my head, that the dog-kennel at Obaldistone Hall is better than monie a house o' God in Scotland.

— The living (St. Mary) is a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Totness, diocese of Exeter: valued at £11. 1s. 3d.: pres. net income, £278: patron, the Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, G. P. G. Cosserat, 1847: acres, 1,670: houses, 93: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 433: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 500: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,902: poor rates in 1837, £160. — N. 1 m. is Hacombo, the seat of Sir Walter Palk Carew, Bart., a member of one of the oldest families in the kingdom, of which several direct branches exist among our landed gentry; 1 m. Agwell: S. 2 m. Compton Castle and Shipley House.

ABBOTS-LANGLEY, HERTFORDSHIRE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Cashio, liberty of St. Albans, union of Watford: 21 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 20), 5 from Hemel Hempstead, 4 from Watford. — Nor. West. Rail. to Watford, from both London and Derby: S. of the latter 118 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles. — Money orders issued at Hemel Hempstead: London letters arrive 10 a.m.: post closes 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. — The church stands on the brow of a hill overlooking the valley, along which a river flows from Hemel Hempstead to Watford: on this stream are some large paper-mills. This is a very beautiful valley, but the Nor. West. Rail., which now runs along it on a high embankment, has not improved its appearance as regards pictorial beauty, although it may be deemed an improvement by those who look with an utilitarian eye only. Abbots-Langley has a notoriety beyond that which it would have obtained from local importance, on account of being the birthplace of Nicholas Brakespeare, the only Englishman that ever filled St. Peter's chair. Whether this fact is a slur on the national want of talent, or a testimony to national incapacity for intrigue, is not our place to discuss. Nicholas was educated at St. Alban's Abbey, of which this was a dependency. — The living (St. Lawrence) is a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of St. Albans, diocese of London: valued at £15: pres. net income, £270: patron, Rev. R. Gee: incumbent, R. Gee, 1844: acres, 5,100: houses, 371: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 2,115: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 2,500: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £8,290: poor rates in 1837, £361. The pop<sup>n</sup>. at the census of 1801 was 1,205, which, in 1841, had increased to 2,115: this is far beyond the average, but the circumstance is attributable to the establishment of the paper-mills mentioned above. — N. 1 m. are Sirge Hill House; 2 m. Corner Hall: S. rather more than a mile, are Coldharbour, Cali-pers, and Langleybury, the seat of Edmund Fearnley Whittingstall, Esq., one of the Fearnleys of Yorkshire, who assumed the name of Whittingstall on coming to the property; about 2 m. are Chipperfield, Garston House, High Elms, and Russel Park. This part of the country is very thickly covered with gentlemen's parks and paddocks.

ABBOTS-LEIGH, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Portberry, union of Bedminster: 121 miles from London (coach road 116), 3 from Bristol, 3 from Bedminster. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol: S.W. of Derby, by rail. through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 134½ miles. — Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters arrive 8 a.m. and 4½ p.m.: post closes 8 a.m. and 10 p.m. — This place once belonged to the abbot of St. Augustine's, from which circumstance it derived its prefix name of "Abbots." After the battle of Worcester, Charles II. was concealed in the old manor-house, which has since been replaced by an elegant mansion, overlooking the Severn, called Leigh Court, the seat of W. Miles, Esq., M.P., at whose expense has just been rebuilt the parish church, which stands on an eminence commanding a view over his domain. The whole of the internal fittings had been destroyed by fire; but the tower and chancel being uninjured, the new structure has been designed to harmonize with them. The exterior of the new front of the edifice is of the red sandstone of the vicinity, with Bathstone dressings. The interior is very elegant: the roofs are open with traceried ribs and cusped braces. The tower is thrown into the church, and the east window shown through an arch, under which the font is placed; and stalls have been substituted for pews in the chancel. — The living (Holy Trinity) is a perpetual curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Bedminster, archd<sup>y</sup> of Bath, diocese of Bath and Wells: valued at £78: patron, the Prebendary of Bedminster and Redcliffe: pres. incumbent, M. R. Whish, 1806: acres, 2,150: houses, 44: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 366: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 425: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,170: poor rates in 1837, £115. — N. 1 m. are Leigh Court; 1½ m. Sneyd Park; 1½ m. Henley House; 2 m. Pen Park: S. 1½ m. Farland House.

ABBOTSLEY, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Toseland, St. Neot's union: 72½ miles from London (coach road 58), 4 from St. Neot's, 12 from Huntingdon. — East. Co<sup>y</sup> Rail. to Cambridge, thence 15 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, 63, thence 13 miles. S.E. of Derby, by rail. through Rugby to Bedford, 101½, thence 13 miles. — Money orders issued at St. Neot's: London letters arrive 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Margaret) is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, in the diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely: valued at £8. 17s.: pres. net income, £85: patronage in Baliol College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, H. Randolph, 1839: acres, 2,110: houses, 82: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 443: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 500: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,586: poor rates in 1837, £291. — N. 2 m. is Croxton Park: S. ½ m. Gransdown Park; and 1½ m. Wareley Park.

ABBOTS-MORTON, WORCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Blackenhurst, Alcester union: 148 miles from London (coach road 109), 6 from Alcester, 10 from Worcester.

— Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham, to Spetchley, thence 9 miles: S. of Derby, by rail. through Birmingham, 76½ miles. — Money orders issued at Alcester: London letters arrive 11½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living (St. Peter) is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester: valued at £8: pres. net income, £146: patron, G. J. A. Walker, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. Walker, 1839: acres, 1,420: houses, 52: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 234: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 250: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,563: poor rates in 1837, £75. — N. 1 m. is Ragley Hall: S. 1 m. Park Hall.

ABBOTS-NEWTON, DEVON. See NEWTON-ABBOTS.

ABBOTS-NORTON, WORCESTER. See NORTON-ABBOTS.

ABBOTS-STOKE, DORSET. See STOKE-ABBOTS.

ABBOTSTON, GLOUCESTER. See ANSON.

ABBOTSTONE, HAMPS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bountisborough, Winchester division, union of Alresford: 63½ miles from London, (coach road 55), 13 from New Alresford, 7 from Winchester. — Sou. West. Rail. to Andover road station, thence 7 miles. S. of Derby, from which by rail. through London, 195½ miles. — Money orders issued at New Alresford: London letters arrive 8½ a.m.; post closes, 7 p.m. — There are some ruins said to be the remains of a religious house once existing in this locality, and from which it probably derived its name; but there are no written records; it was, not unlikely, connected with Itchen Abbots, which lies to the south of it. — The living (St. Peter) is a rectory united to the vicarage of Itchin Stoke, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income (with Itchen Stoke), £375: patron, Lord Ashburton: pres. incumbent, R. C. Trench, 1845. — North is Grange Park, of which Sir H. Walpole makes mention as considering the mansion to be the finest work of Inigo Jones.

ABDASTON, STAFFORD, a parish and township in the northern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill, union of Newport: 155 miles from London, 4 from Eccleshall, 5 from Newport. — Nor. West. Rail. to Norton Bridge, thence 7 miles. W. of Derby, thence very circuitous by rail. through Tamworth to Stafford. — Money orders issued at Eccleshall: London letters arrive 9½ a.m.; post closes 7½ p.m. — About a mile N.W. on the borders of Shropshire is Blore Heath, the scene of a severe encounter during the York and Lancaster contest. By order of Margaret of Anjou, Lord Audley, with about 10,000 men, attempted to stop the Earl of Salisbury, who was marching towards Ludlow to join the Duke of York. The Lancastrians were defeated, and Lord Audley with many persons of distinction, slain, A.D. 1459. — The living (St. Margaret) is a perpetual curacy, a peculiar of the Bishop of Lichfield: pres. net income, £100: patron, Dean of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, J. H. Bright, 1841: including the townships of Bishop's Offlow, Flashbrook, with Batchacre and Tunstall, 5,330 acres: 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 625: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 700: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,819: poor rates in 1837, £315. — E. is Gilbert's Lea: S. is Batchacre Hall: W. is Goolstone Park.

ABDON, SALOP, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Munslow, union of Ludlow: 145 miles from London, (coach road 153), 9 from Ludlow, 11 from Bridgenorth. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 32 miles. W. of Derby, reached by rail. through Birmingham, &c. 73 miles. — Money orders issued at Bridgenorth: London letters arrive 9½ a.m.; post closes 4½ p.m. — S.E. lies Brown Clee Hill, one of the highest in Shropshire: it is of a very irregular form, 5 or 6 miles long, about 2 in width, and upwards of 1800 feet high: it consists of many strata, which dip towards the centre from all sides: the coal strata are not very thick, and are worked on a small scale by a class of poor colliers. — The living (St. Margaret) is a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford, valued at £3. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £147: patron, Hon. S. Herbert: pres. incumbent, W. S. Dear, 1829: contains 710 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 155: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 186: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £7,609: poor rates in 1847, £72. — W. 2 m. is Broomcroft Castle: E. 2 m. Burwarton Park, the seat of Viscount Boyle: S. 2 m. Stoke Park.

ABENBURY-FECHAN, FLINT, a township in that part of the parish which lies in Flint, union of Wrexham: 199½ miles from London, (coach road 187), 4 from Wrexham, 10 from Chester. — Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Gresford, thence 4 miles. W. of Derby, rail. through Tamworth and Chester to Gresford, &c. 116 miles. — Money orders issued at Wrexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.; post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 130: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 153: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £472: poor rates in 1837, £44. — N. 2 m. are Llay Castle and Llay House: S. 2 m. Brymbro Hall.

ABENBURY-VAWR, DENBIGH, a township in the same parish as Fechan, but in that portion which lies in Denbigh.

ABER, CARNARVON, a parish and village in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Uchaf, union of Bangor and Beaumaris: 242 miles from London, (coach road 240), 6 from Bangor, 15 from Carnarvon. — Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Aber station. W. of Derby, through Chester, 158½ miles. — Money orders issued at Bangor: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.; post closes 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. — This word "Aber," is the same as "Abber" mentioned under ABBER-CWM-HIR, and this village is locally called Aber Gwynnregyr, being situated at the mouth of that river, from which is a ferry to the Isle of Anglesea; but it is a very disagreeable transit, on account of the great distance of sand which is left at low water, and which the passenger has to walk over. About two miles distant is a very fine waterfall, at a spot where the glen is abruptly stopped by a precipice, down which the stream dashes, leaping from ledge to ledge, until, at a distance of 50 or 60 feet from the bottom, it comes down in one unbroken sheet. The appearance of the fall is said to resemble Staubbach in Switzerland. By the side of the stream is a mound on which are a few ruins of a castle, erected by Llewelyn the Great. At this castle, in 1229, Llewelyn put to death William de Breos, a mighty English baron, who was his prisoner, and who was detected in an intrigue with Joan, wife of Llewelyn, and sister of the English King Henry, being a natural daughter of his father

King John. It seems to be admitted that De Breos was put to death by Llewelyn; but the cause was, most probably, to avenge himself on De Breos, who was his son-in-law, for deserting him and joining his foe, the King of England. The story of the intrigue is not likely; for Joan, besides being the wife of his father-in-law, was an old woman at the time referred to. — The living is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Bangor, valued at £14 7s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £382: patron, Sir R. B. W. Bulkeley, Bart: pres. incumbent, R. Williams, 1829: contains 102 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 556: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 570: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,351: poor rates in 1837, £176.

ABERAERON, CARDIGAN, a small post town and port in the parish of Llan-ddewi-aber-arth, hun<sup>d</sup> of Ilar, and in the union to which it gives its name: 235 miles from London (coach road 218), 12½ from Lampeter, 16 from Aberystwith. — Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Spetchley, thence 96 miles. W. of Derby, by rail. to Spetchley, &c. 163½ miles. — Money orders issued at Aberystwith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.; post closes 4½ p.m. — The mouth of the Aeron forms a port for coasting vessels, which take the local produce to the London markets. It is well situated for fishing, but very little is carried on. Court leets are held here in May and October; and petty sessions for the lower division of Ilar. — Pres. incumbent, D. Evans, 1845. — An annual statute fair, Nov. 13. — W. 1 m. is Ciliell Park.

ABERARTH, CARDIGAN. See LLAN-DDEWI-ABER-ARTH.

*ABERAVON, GLAMORGAN, a borough and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Neath: 203 miles from London (coach road 192), 6 from Neath, 11 from Swansea. — Gt. West. Rail. to Berkeley, 112 miles, thence 3 miles to Purton passage, thence coach 62 miles. W. of Derby through Birmingham to Berkeley, &c. 174½ miles. — Money orders issued at Taibach: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3½ p.m.; post closes 9 a.m. — Situated at the mouth of the Avon, on the E. side of Swansea Bay, it is one of the Swansea district of boroughs, which conjointly send one member to parliament. Copper and tin ore are brought here from Cornwall to be smelted, for which purpose there are some extensive works in the neighbourhood, one especially at Taibach about ½ m. distant. There are also some tin-plate factories. The establishment of these works accounts for the great increase which has taken place in the population, which in 1801 was only 275. It has no charter for a market, but for many years one has been held. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, valued at £9. 4s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £154: patron, J. Richards, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. Morgan, 1845: contains 125 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1290: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1500: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £82: poor rates in 1837, £104: 1 member. — An annual fair on Nov. 12. — N. 3 m. is Baglan Hall.

ABERBAIDEN, BRECON, a hamlet in the parish of Llanelly: 144 miles from London (coach road 150), 5 from Abergavenny. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, 103½ miles, thence 40 miles: W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, thence 45 miles. Money orders issued at Abergavenny: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.; post closes 3¼ p.m. This is another of those Welsh ports which the events of the last forty years have peopled. In 1801, the number of inhabitants was only 608, and is now nearly 8000. The cause of this increase is the mineral wealth abounding in this part of the country, which has also occasioned the construction of a great many "mineral lines," that is, lines of railroad for the carriage of minerals. Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, returned with the parish, gross 7366, of which this place numbers about 2050: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,804.

ABERCWHILER, DENBIGH, a township in the parish of Bodfary: 214 miles from London (coach road 208), 3¼ from Abergavenny. Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Greenfield Abbey station, thence 10 miles. W. of Derby, rail. through Birmingham and Chester, 130 miles. Money orders issued at Abergavenny: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.; post closes 3¼ p.m. Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 600: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 650: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3588: poor rates in 1837, £403.

ABERCONWAY, CARNARVON, a parish, borough, and town in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Isaf, union of Conway: 233¼ miles from London (coach road 238), 15 from Llanwrst, 24 from Carnarvon. Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Conway station. W. of Derby: rail. through Tamworth and Chester, &c., 149 miles. Money orders issued at Conway: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m. and 2 p.m.; post closes 11 a.m. and 9½ p.m. Conway (for the prefix is always dropped) attracts the attention of the lover of "olden times," by the ruins of its beautiful and delightfully situated castle, built A.D. 1284, by order of Edward I.; it is said by the same architect who built that of Carnarvon. Situated on a rock washed by the estuary of the Conway, which gives name to the town, it was a very strong place according to the tactics of ancient warfare; but it has been a ruin since the time of King Charles, who gave it to a nobleman, by whom it was stripped of all its timber and lead, which he took to Ireland to repair his mansion in that country. The estuary used to be crossed by a ferry-boat; but for some years there has been a very elegant suspension-bridge, the chains of which on the town side are secured into the rock under the castle. The celebrated Tubular Bridge, through which the Chester and Holyhead Railroad crosses the Conway, and which is preliminary to the great Britannia Bridge over the Menai Straits, lies by the side of the suspension-bridge: like which, the north end abuts on a mole or embankment, while the other end passes under the south wall of the castle. There are two tubes: each 412 feet long, 14 feet wide, and its height is at the ends 22 feet, in the centre 25 feet, and weighs 1,300 tons. One end is secured into the masonry of the pier, while the other slides on a friction bed, to allow of expansion and contraction of the length of the tube, which is constructed of wrought-iron plates from ¼ inch to 1 inch thick, riveted together: the top and the bottom have a double set of plates secured together by cross plates, like joists between a floor and the ceiling below. It was constructed on a platform, a short distance from the piers which now carry it, and was floated to its place on six pontoons, each 100 feet long, 25 feet wide, and 10 feet deep: it was then raised to its resting-place by two powerful hydraulic machines, worked by high-pressure steam-engines. A species of muscle is found in this estuary, which furnishes small pearls: the pearl fishery was formerly considered important; it is carried on to a small extent, but is of very little moment. The living is a vicarage in the diocese of Bangor, valued at £7. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £121: patron, Sir D. Erskine: pres. incumbent, R. Morgan, 1838: contains 223 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,358: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,560: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,123: poor rates in 1837, £401: registered voters, 41: a contributory borough to Carnarvon. Market day, Friday. Fairs, March 26, clover; June 20, wool; first Friday after Sept. 4, honey; Oct. 16, and Nov. 15, butter. Bankers, branch of North and South Wales. C. Inns, Castle, and the Harp. F. Hotel, Mail Coach.

ABERDARE, GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Miskin, union of Merthyr-Tydvil, and includes the hamlets of Cefnpennar, Cromdare, Forehaman, and Llwydcod: 158 miles from London (coach road 183), 4 from Merthyr-Tydvil, 18 from Bridgend. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 55 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham, to Stonehouse, &c. 158½ miles. Money orders issued at Merthyr-Tydvil: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ p.m.; post closes 10 p.m. It is situated in a valley, at the confluence of the rivers Dare and Cynon. It has extensive iron-works, and is connected by a canal with the Merthyr and Cardiff navigation, and with the Neath canal by railroads. The church is one of those simple primitive "houses of prayer" which are met with in the Principality: indeed, in most hilly districts the ecclesiastical architecture partakes of the unpretending character of the natives. The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Llandaff, valued at £89: pres. net income, £260: patron, Marquis of Bute: pres. incumbent, J. Griffith, 1846: contains 809 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,471: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 7,000: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,370: poor rates in 1837, £784. Fairs, April 1 and 16, Aug. 10, Nov. 13, Dec. 7.

ABERDARON, CARNARVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Commitmaen, union of Pwllheli: 287 miles from London (coach road 258), 16 from Pwllheli, 5 from Bardsey Isle, 16 from Nevin. Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Bangor, thence 40 miles. W. of Derby: rail. through Tamworth and Chester to Bangor, &c., 203 miles. Money orders issued at Pwllheli: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1½ p.m. and 8½ p.m.; post closes 10 p.m. and 11½ a.m. It is situated on one of the numerous small inlets with which this part of the coast is indented. It is from this village that the traveller usually takes boat to visit the Isle of Bardsey, once famous as a "holy spot." A curious legend is recorded of it, viz., that the Almighty made a covenant with the founder, that the monks, so long as they continued to lead holy lives, should not be subject to death as other men, but that each should die in his turn, according to seniority; however, the legend goes on to record that God kept his covenant until the monks broke their part of the engagement, and then they became subject to the ordinary rules of mortality. This fable bears an instructive moral in "justifying the ways of God to man." The inhabitants are almost wholly employed in agriculture and fishing. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Bangor, is valued at £3. 9s. 4<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £82: patron, St. John's College, Cambridge: contains 268 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,500: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,700: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,720: poor rates in 1837, £575.

ABERDDAW (or ABERTHAW), GLAMORGAN, a hamlet and port in the parish of St. Athan: there is also another hamlet of the same name a little to the east: 168<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 179), 5 from Cowbridge, 10 from Bridgend. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse 103<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>, thence 65 miles: W. of Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Stonehouse, &c., 168<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles. Money orders issued at Cowbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon; post closes 11<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m. A little to the east is situated Ffnon Castle, the seat of Oliver Jones, Esq.

ABERDYFI, MERIONETH, a township in the parish of Penalt, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Estimaner: 206<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London, 9 from Aberystwith, 5 from Towyn. Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, thence 80 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c. 122<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles. Money orders issued at Machywlleth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 6 p.m.; post closes 10 p.m. A little coasting port on the north side of the Dwyff, one of the numerous estuaries on this coast. The petty sessions for the division are held here.

ABEREDOW, (or ABEREDWY), RADNOR, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Colwyn, union of Builth: 199 miles from London (coach road 169), 4 from Builth, 12 from Hay, 13 from Radnor. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 60 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Spetchley, thence 60 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Spetchley, &c. 127<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles. Money orders issued at Builth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.; post closes 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. This is one of the most beautiful localities in this beautiful region. The Edwy flows through a deep valley, and, a little distance below the village, falls into the charming Wye. Like almost every spot in Wales, it has its local interest from traditions of their nationality. The castle, of which a few ruins remain, belonged to Llewelyn ap Gruffydd, the last sovereign prince of Wales, who, after some time opposing, with varied success, Edward I., one of the most powerful and vigorous of England's kings, was killed by a spear-thrust, while, unarmed, he was directing the retreat of a body of his followers. The living, a rectory with that of Llanwareth, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Brecon, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £12. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £355: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, T. W. Russell, 1846: contains 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 345: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 390: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,201: poor rates in 1837, £304.

ABERERCH (or ABEREIRCH), CARNARVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Dinlaen, union of Pwllheli, near the mouth of the Erch, which discharges itself into Cardigan Bay: 277 miles from London (coach road 234), 3 from Pwllheli, 8 from Criccieth. Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Bangor, thence 30 miles. W. of Derby, through Tamworth and Chester, to Bangor, &c., 183 miles. Money orders issued at Pwllheli: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon and 7 p.m.: post closes 1 p.m. and 10 p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Bangor, having Penrhos chapelry annexed to it, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £96: patron, the Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, D. Pugh, 1841: contains 270 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,613: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,850: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,275: poor rates in 1837, £572.

ABERFFRAW, ISLAND OF ANGLESEA, a seaport and parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Maltraeth, and partly in that of Menai, union of Anglesea: 258<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 258), 19 from Bangor, 12 from Holyhead. Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Aberffraw. W. of Derby, through Tamworth and Chester, 174<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles. Money orders issued at Bangor: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2 p.m.: post closes 10 a.m. The bay of Ffraw and the mouth of the river form a harbour for coasters of about 40 tons: some considerable quantity of corn is thus sent to the markets. This was one of the three royal residences of Wales. It is mentioned by Rowlands, in "Mona Antiqua." He says, her (then) late Majesty (Queen Anne) held her three crowns, England, Scotland, and Wales, by virtue of her descent from inhabitants of Anglesea. That of Scotland, as a descendant of Walter Steward, who was born at Aberffraw: that of England, in right of descent from Margaret Tudor, who was paternally descended from Owen Tudor, of Penmynydd, in Anglesea: and the principality of Wales she inherited from Gwladus Ddu, who was born and bred in Anglesea, the only daughter and heir of Llewelyn ap Jerwirth, and wife of Sir Ralph Mortimer; which marriage brought the inheritance of the principality into the house of York. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Anglesea and diocese of Bangor, is valued at £20. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £888: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, H. W. Jones, 1815: contains 266 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,336: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,550: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,976: poor rates in 1837, £656. Cattle fairs are held here, March 7, Tuesday before Easter, Wednesday after Trinity, Aug. 5, and Dec. 11.

ABERFORD, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Skyrack, comprising the greater part of the township of Aberford, and those of Parlington and Sturton Grange: 213 miles from London (coach road 186), 7 from Tadcaster, 8 from Leeds. Nor. West. Rail. through Derby and Leeds to Aberford station, 81 miles. Money orders issued at Tadcaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon; post closes 2 p.m. It is a long straggling village, situated on the old Roman road, of which Tadcaster, called "Calcaria," was one of the stations. This name, "Calcaria," or "chalky," was very appropriate, for the line of country from Tadcaster to Aberford is a limestone rock. The parish is curiously divided: the west side of the street is in Aberford-cum-Parlington, and the east in Lotherton-cum-Aberford, while the north side of the river is Aberford entire. In this part of the parish are the remains of a Norman fortification, Castle Cary. — The living (St. Richard), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Craven, diocese of Ripon, is valued at £6. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £305: patron, Oriel College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, James Landon, 1805: contains 3,820 acres; 194 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,071: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,020: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,456: poor rates in 1837, £159. — Polling place for the West Riding. — Fairs for cattle, sheep, and pedlary, are held here on the last Mondays in April and May, the first Monday in Oct., Monday after Oct. 18, and Monday after Nov. 2. — N. 1 m. is Lead Hall; and Becca Hall, the seat of William Markham, Esq., a deputy lieutenant of the county. Mr. Markham is the grandson of Dr. Markham, Archbishop of York, who was the tutor of George IV. Becca was purchased by the father of the present proprietor, on his return from India, where he had been secretary to Warren Hastings. N. 2 m. Halewood Hall; S. 1 m. Parlington Park, the seat of the two daughters and co-heiresses of the late Oliver Gascoigne, Esq.; as is also Castle Oliver, Lincoln.

ABERGAVENTNY, MONMOUTHSHIRE, a parish and market town, partly in the upper, but chiefly in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of the same name: 138½ miles from London (coach road 145), 17 from Monmouth, 7 from Crickhowell. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 35 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c. 97½ miles. — Money orders issued from 10 till 4: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 5.10 p.m. Cross mail to Merthyr 20 m.; Newport 22 m.; penny-post to Pontypool. — It was a Roman station, called "Gobanium," of which its present name is a corruption: Aber, the mouth of Gobanios or Gavenny. A considerable quantity of wool is sold on the market days in June and July. The neighbouring mountains are rich in iron, and in the vicinity are some large iron-works; Blaenavon is one of the chief. The earldom of Abergavenny is one of the few titles which descend with the possession of a royal fortress: as Berkeley Castle, Arundel Castle. The custody of Abergavenny Castle has passed through several families; it now rests with the Nevilles. This fortress has been the scene of more treachery, villainy, and murder, than any stronghold in the kingdom, black as is the history of many of them. It has long been in ruins, for it is mentioned by Churchyard—

"Most goodly towers are bare and naked left,
That covered were with timber and good lead;
These towers yet stand, as straight as doth a shaft;
The walls thereof might serve for some good stead,
For sound and thicke, and wondrous high withal,
They are indeed, and likely not to fall;
Would God! therefore, the owner of the same,
Did stay them up for to increase his fame."

Of the four town gates, one only remains; it is called Tudor's gate, and was fitted with a portcullis. The prospect through this gate is one of the loveliest views in the kingdom. The lordship of the neighbouring hills rests with the keeper of the castle; but the earl has leased the land to the capitalists who work the mines. — The living (St. Mary) is a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, valued at £15. 3s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £451: patron, K. K. Tynte, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. Williams, 1840: contains 4,290 acres: 830 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,953: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,700: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £11,075: poor rates in 1837, £910. Polling-place for the county. — Market days, Tuesday and Saturday, principally for grain: Fairs, 3d Tuesday in March; May 14; June 24, wool; Tuesday before July 20, wool; Sept. 25, and Nov. 19, flannel. — Bankers: Baileys, Gratner, and Williams—draw on Masterman; Branch of Monmouthshire and Glamorgan-shire Banking Co.—draw on London Joint Stock. C. Inns, Angel, George: F. Hotel, Greyhound. — On the N. 2 m. is Arcadia House; E. 1 m. Hill House; S. 1½ m. Coldbrook House, the seat of Hanbury Williams, Esq. The great-grandfather of the present proprietor, Sir Charles Hanbury, bought the estate on coming into a property left him by his godfather, Williams, of Caerleon, when he assumed his name.

ABERGELEY, DENBIGHSHIRE, a seaport, market town, and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Idwalus, union of St. Asaph: 222 miles from London (coach road 224), 7 from St. Asaph, 17 from Holywell. — Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Abergeley station. N.W. of Derby, through Tamworth and Chester, to Abergeley station, 138 miles. — Money orders issued at St. Asaph: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m. and 11½ a.m.; post closes 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. — The petty sessions for the hun<sup>d</sup> are held here. The town is within half a mile of the sea, and is much frequented for bathing. Tradition asserts that the sea has overwhelmed some miles of land; and timber is washed up, perished by the action of the water, but retaining its original form. Off the shore, in Abergeley Bay, August 24, 1848, an awful catastrophe occurred in the burning of the "Ocean Monarch" emigrant ship, when, out of 320 passengers and crew, 178 lost their lives. A Brazilian steamer, which was out on a trial cruise, having on board a large party of foreigners of rank, saved a great number. The Prince Joinville especially distinguished himself by his exertions, as did also T. Littledale, Esq., commodore of the R.M.Y.C., who in his yacht saved 32 lives. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor, is valued at £12. 9s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbent, R. Jackson, 1794: contains 493 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,661: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,051: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £9,232: poor rates in 1837, £1,722. — Cattle fairs, well attended, are held here on Feb. 12, April 2, the day before Holy Thursday, June 18, Aug. 20, Oct. 9, and Dec. 6. — Bankers, Sub-branch of Nor. and Sou. Wales Bank, open on Saturdays only—draw on London and Westminster Bank. C. Inns, Bodlewiddan Arms, Harp: F. Hotel, Bee Inn.

ABERGORLECH, CARMARTHENSHIRE, a chapelry to the vicarage of Llanybyther: 186½ miles from London (coach road 209), 7 from Llandillo-Var, or Faur, 14 from Carmarthen. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 83 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Tewkesbury, 84½, thence 85 miles. — Money orders issued at Llandillo-Var: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2½ p.m.; post closes 9 a.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy, held together with the vicarage of Llanybyther, is valued at £60: pres. net income, £60: patron, Vicar of Llanybyther: pres. incumbent, David Jones, 1832: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, returned with the parish, gross number, 1120. — N.E. 2 miles is Edwinsford.

ABERGWAIN, PEMBROKE. See FISHGUARD.

ABERGWILLY, CARMARTHENSHIRE, a village and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Elvet, including the hamlets of Crug-Glass, Fyneu, Glann-Tywi, Hengil, and Ystym-Gwill: 196½ miles from London (coach road 214), 2 from Carmarthen, 15 from Llandilo-Var. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 93 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Tewkesbury, 84½, thence 93 miles. — Money orders obtained at Carmarthen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3½ p.m.; post closes 8 a.m. — The episcopal palace of St. David's diocese, is situated in low ground, on the banks of the Tywi. It was repaired some thirty years ago, by Lord G. Murray, who laid out the grounds. Near it is the church, which was made a collegiate by Dr. Beck, bishop of the diocese, 1287. Leland records its foundation:—The collegiate church of Llangadoc was translated to Abegwily, the canons being killed, or fleeing from it for viciating a maide. In 1531, Henry VIII. removed the institution to the site of the suppressed priory at Brecknock, the bishop of the diocese representing the inhabitants of that locality to be so disorderly and ignorant, that a religious community was required among them for their improvement. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Carmarthen, and diocese of St. David's, valued at £3. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, together with the P. C. of Llanvhangul-Uwchgilly, £150: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, Enoch Pugh, 1846: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,366: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,700: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,831: poor rates in 1837, £1,529. — Fairs for cattle, horses, and pedlary, are held on May 4, Oct. 2 and 27. — S. 1 m. Llangyuno; 1 m. further, Mount Pleasant.

ABERHAFESP or ABERHAVESP, MONTGOMERY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newtown, union of Newtown and Llanidloes: 178 miles from London (coach road 180), 3 from Newtown, 11 from Llanidloes. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 65 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham, 106½ miles. — Money orders issued at Newtown: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.; post closes 11½ a.m. — The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in agriculture; some find employment in quarrying, and a few in fishing. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph, valued at £9. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £245: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbent, R. J. Davies, 1827: contains 398 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 535: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 620: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,179: poor rates in 1837, £421. — N. 2 m. is Red House; S. 3½ m. Dolver Hall; E. 1 m. Aberhavesp Hall.

ABERLUNVEY, BRECKNOCKSHIRE, formerly a parish, but now a hamlet in the parish of Glasbury: 149 miles from London (coach road 160), 4 miles from Hay, 11 from Brecon. — Gr. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 46 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Spetchley, 67½, thence 50 miles. — Money orders issued at Hay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.; post closes 11½ p.m. — On an eminence in the vicinity, are entrenchments surrounding the site of a British camp. — Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 194: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 210: poor rates in 1837, £76. — W. 2 m. is Llanego House and Oakfield House; S. 1½ m. Glasbury Lodge.

ABERMAW, MERIONETH. See BARMOUTH.

ABERNANT, CARMARTHEN, a parish and township in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Elvet, union of Carmarthen, including the chapelry of Convil-in-Elvet: intersected by the river Cywyn: 203½ miles from London (coach road 222), 4 from Carmarthen, 10 from Llangharne. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 100 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, 94, thence 100 miles. — Money orders issued at Carmarthen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4 p.m.; post closes 7½ a.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's, valued at £7. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £131: patron, Duke of Leeds: pres. incumbent, David Lewis, 1787: contains 392 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,541: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,923: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,758: poor rates in 1837, £254.

ABERPERGWYM, GLAMORGANSHIRE, a chapelry to the vicarage of Cadoxton: 166½ miles from London (coach road 188), 10 from Neath, 20 from Brecon. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 63 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, 94½, thence 65 miles. — Money orders issued at Neath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2½ p.m.; post closes 9 a.m. — The Neath canal passes the outskirts of the town. — Pres. net income, together with Cadoxton-juxta-Neath vicarage, and the curacy of Cognant, £240: patron, C. H. Leigh, Esq.: pres. incumbent, D. H. Griffith, 1838: pop<sup>n</sup> returned with Cadoxton. — N. 1 m. is Aberpergwm House.

ABERPORTH, CARDIGANSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Troedryaur, union of Cardigan: 208 miles from London (coach road 235), 7 from Cardigan, 9 from Newcastle. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 105 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Wadborough station, &c., 177½ miles. — Money orders issued at Cardigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.; post closes 8 p.m. — It is a little fishing town, situated at the mouth of one of the numerous small streams which fall into the sea on this coast: none of them have the opportunity to swell to any importance, the hills in which they rise being so near to the sea. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cardigan, and diocese of St. David, valued at £5. 13s. 9d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Bishop of St. David's: contains 104 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 496: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 514: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £704: poor rates in 1837, £180.

ABER-RHIW, MONTGOMERY. See BERRIEW.

ABERYCHAN, MONMOUTH. See TREVETHIN.

ABERYSKIR (or ABERESCIR), BRECKNOCKSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Merthyr, union of Brecknock: 158½ miles from London (coach road 173), 4 from Brecknock, 16 from Llandovery. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 55 miles. W. of Derby, by rail. through Birmingham to Tewkesbury, 82½, thence 60 miles. — Money orders issued at Brecknock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3½ p.m.; post closes 2 p.m. — This is the site of the Roman station Banniura, built by Ostorius Scapula, the general who sent Caractacus to Rome. The ruins are still visible, called Gaer or Caer Bannau, near the confluence of the Usk and Yskir. It was once the capital of the county; but is said to have been destroyed by one of the Lords of Brecknock, to procure materials to build a castle. The family mansion, or "court," is now a farmhouse. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £3. 6s. 3d.: pres. net income, £136: patron, Rev. David Jones: pres. incumbent, David Jones, 1827: contains 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 117: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 132: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £934: poor rates in 1837, £4. 16s. — N. 2 m. is Fennoyre House; W. 2 m. Brynahir; S. 1½ m. Pennont House.

ABERYSTWITH, CARDIGANSHIRE, a market town, borough, seaport, and chapelry in the parish of Llanbadarn-Fawr, hun<sup>d</sup> of Gneur-Glynn: 210½ miles from London (coach road 208), 15 from Tregaron. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 97 miles, or Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 90 miles: W. of Derby to Birmingham, &c., 138½ miles. — Money orders are issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 4 p.m.; post closes 8½ a.m. A cross mail from Cheltenham. — The town is situated on the coast of Cardigan Bay, where it receives the waters of the Rheidol and the Ystwith. From the old charters, it appears to have been called Llanbadarn Gaewg; but there are documents of the time of Elizabeth in which it is called by its present name. It was at one time a walled town, and fragments of the defences are still to be seen. The castle, on a rock jutting into the sea, is a very picturesque ruin: it was built by Gilbert Strongbow, who, in pursuance of the policy of the Norman conquerors of England, had received from Henry I. license to possess all that he could take from one of the British chiefs who were so troublesome to them. It was the scene of bloodshed during the civil war. The trade of the town is principally exporting lead ore and pig lead; also oak bark, and the ordinary local produce. The town is resorted to for sea-bathing. The petty sessions of the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. are held here. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cardigan, diocese of St. David's, valued at £86. 2s.: pres. net income, £265: patron, Vicar of Llanbadarn-Fawr: pres. incumbent, John Hughes, 1827: contains 400 acres: 712 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,916: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,666: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,861: poor rates in 1837, £914. Registered voters, 357. One of the Cardigan contributory boroughs. — Market days, Mondays and Saturdays. Fairs, the Monday before Jan. 5, Palm-Monday, Whit-Monday, and the first Monday after Nov. 11. Races, August.

ABERYSTWITH, MONMOUTHSHIRE, a chapelry in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. and in the union of Abergavenny: 143½ miles from London (coach road 153), 7 from Abergavenny, 8 from Pontypool. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 40 miles: W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, 94, thence 42 miles. — Money orders issued at Abergavenny: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Less than fifty years since, this place was a small village: in 1801, the population was 805; in 1831, it was 5,992; in 1841, 11,272; and now probably numbers 11,922. This vast increase is owing to the opening out of the mineral wealth with which this part of the country teems. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff: pres. net income, £265: patron, Earl of Abergavenny: pres. incumbent, D. Rees, 1823: contains 10,930 acres: 1,008 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,463: poor rates in 1837, £580. — C. Inn, Talbot. C. Inns and F. Hotels, Bellevue Royal Hotel, Gogerddan Arms, and Lion Hotel.

ABINGER (formerly ABINGWORTH), SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Wotton, union of Dorking: 33 miles from London (coach road 27), 4 from Dorking, 10 from Guildford. — Sou. East. Rail. through Reigate to Wotton station, thence 2½ miles: S. of Derby, through Rugby to London, thence as described, 165 miles. — Money orders issued at Dorking: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m. and 3 p.m.: post closes 10 a.m. and 8½ p.m. — On the north, one mile distant, is Wotton House, for centuries the seat of the Evelyn family, one celebrated member of which, "John Evelyn," best known as the author of Sylva, died here in 1706, aged 86. He greatly advanced horticulture by his labours at Sayes Court, Deptford, which came into his possession by marriage. He bore arms in the royal cause, was a voluminous author, a great patron of the arts, one of the first fellows of the Royal Society, and held various official appointments. His memoirs, including the celebrated "Diary," were published in 1819. — The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, diocese of Winchester, is valued at £12. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £453: patron, W. J. Evelyn, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. M. Dawson: contains 9,780 acres: 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 920: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,060: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,152: poor rates in 1837, £499. — N. 1 m. is Wotton; 1½ m. the Rookery; N.W. 2 m. Abinger Hall, the seat of Lord Abinger; E. 2 m. Bury Hall, the seat of C. Barclay, Esq., and Tillingbourne Lodge; S. 1½ m. Parkhurst; 2 m. Tanhurst.

ABINGDON, BERKS, a borough and market town in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hormer, union of Berks: 60 miles from London (coach road 56), 6 from Oxford, 11 from Wallingford. — Gt. West. Rail. to Abingdon Road station, thence 4 miles: S. of Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, thence Gt. West. Rail. to Abingdon, 155 miles. — Money orders issued for the neighbouring districts: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m. and 9½ p.m.; post closes 9½ a.m. and 10 p.m. — There are various legends concerning the origin of this town, and diversities of opinion as to its former name; however, it appears to have received its present name about the year 700, when Kenwin gave to the abbey, which had been founded by his predecessor, a certain property, and decreed that it should be called "Abendun." It must have been a place of some importance, if Gough is correct, that several synods were held here; one as early as the middle of the eighth century. One writer (the author of the "Old Boke of Abedon," in the Cotton Library) says, in ancient times it was a famous city, goodly to behold, full of riches, encompassed with very fruitful fields, green meadows, spacious pastures, and flocks of cattle, abounding with milk. Here the king kept his court, and hither the people resorted, while consultations were depending about the greatest and most weighty affairs of the kingdom. In the reign of Alfred, the monastery (and most likely the town also) was destroyed by the Danes. Dunstan caused it to be rebuilt in the middle of the 10th century, at which time the celebrated Ælfric became a monk under the Abbot Athelwold: he was a son of the Earl of Kent, and became Archbishop of Canterbury; he drew up a Latin Saxon Vocabulary, which was published in 1659; composed a liturgy for the use of St. Alban's Abbey, of which he was abbot; and translated into Saxon the greater part of the Old Testament. The monks seem to have kept up their character in erudition; for William the Conqueror appointed them instructors of his youngest son Henry, whose cognomen, Beauclerc, would imply that he did credit to their instructions. In the 12th century, it became the sanctuary of the historian, Geoffrey of Monmouth, who gave up his bishopric of St. Asaph in consequence of its disturbed state. His chief work is "Chronicon sive Historia Britonum;" it is a collection of legendary tales concerning the early British monarchs. In 1416, the high road to Gloucester was turned to pass through the town, and the two bridges, Burford and Culham, were erected: Henry V. had the credit of them, but Geoffrey Barbour, a merchant, paid for them. Of this affair Hearne says,—The best artists that could be found were employed, and every man had a penny a day, which was the best wages and an extraordinary price in those times, when the best wheat was now and then sold for twelve pence a quarter. At the suppression, in the reign of Henry VIII., very grave charges of immorality were made against the abbot and monks; but, doubtless, this was done in most instances, to make out a better case for the seizure. In the early part of the 17th century, Thomas Godwin was master of the Foundation School at Abingdon: his works, "Romanae Historiae Anthologia," "Synopsis of Hebrew Antiquities," and a treatise on Jewish rites and ceremonies, are still held in great repute. In May, 1644, the Parliamentary forces under Waller, took possession of the town on the retreat of the King's troops; and in spite, on account of a repulse they had experienced, did considerable mischief, destroying, among other things, a very elegant cross, which stood in the market-place. The town hall and market is a very good specimen of a particular style of architecture, built of rough quarried stone. A considerable trade in malting is done here; and the farmers resort hither from many miles round for the purchase and sale of lambs. The living, (St. Helen's) is a vicarage, conjointly with the sinecure rectory of St. Nicholas, diocese of Oxon, added within the last three years. Of this latter church, Leland says,—It was of old tyme the chefe parochie church of Abingdon; but now the greatest resorte of all the towne is to St. Helen's. Valued at £29. 15s. 3d.: pres. net income, £225: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, N. Dodson, 1824: contains 3,500 acres: 1,206 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,530: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,289: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup>

£9,023: poor rates in 1837, £1,911. One member: registered voters, 323: polling-place for the county: October sessions alternately with Reading. Market days for corn, Monday and Friday. Fairs, 1st Monday in Lent, May 6, June 20, Aug. 5, Sept. 19, Dec. 11. Wool fair, 1st Monday in July; all the others are for cattle. Monday before old Michaelmas day is a pleasure and statute fair: all held in the principal streets of the town. Races, Sept. Bankers, County of Berks Union Bank; draw on Commercial Bank of London, Knapp & Co., or Williams, Deacon, & Co. C. Inns, New Inn, Queen's Arms, Lion. F. Hotels, Crown and Thistle. Quarter sessions are held here, and on every Tuesday, a petty sessions and a court of record for debts under £10. The county members are nominated at Reading, but elected at Abingdon. E. 1 m. is Nunsham Park; N. 2 m. Radley Hall, the seat of Sir J. B. Stonhouse, Bart., the thirteenth baronet; his ancestors have lived at Radley since the reign of Elizabeth: W. 1 m. Thapstead Lodge; 2 m. Sibney House, and Garford House.

ABINGHALL, Gloucester, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of St. Briavell, union of Westbury: 115½ miles from London (coach road 116), 6 from Newnham, 12 from Monmouth. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 12 miles: W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, 94 miles, thence 12 miles. Money orders issued at Newnham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. This place was formerly called Abbenhall, having been the residence of the abbots of Flaxley. The abbey lies about two miles to the south: it was built in the time of Stephen, and had peculiar privileges of cutting timber in the forest of Dean, for the purposes of iron smelting, which gave rise to the production of a class of iron goods of great celebrity. It is now the seat of Sir Martin Hyde Crawley Boevey, Bart. The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Hereford, but now in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £6. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £142: patron, Rev. J. Probyn: pres. incumbent, James Davies, 1837: contains 860 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 239: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 270: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,132: poor rates in 1837, £117. N. 2 m. is Huntley Court.

ABINGTON, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Spelhoe, union of Northampton; Lewis Loyd, Esq., lord of the manor: 70½ miles from London (coach road 67), 2 from Northampton, 9 from Wellingborough. Nor. West. Rail. to Northampton, thence 3 miles: W. of Derby, via Rugby, 77½ miles. Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m. and 3 p.m.: post closes 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £200: patron, J. H. Thursby, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. W. F. Thursby, 1847: contains 1,190 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 143: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 158: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,401: poor rates in 1837, £111. N. 1 m. is Abington Abbey, now converted into a private lunatic asylum; 2 m. Thorplands; 8. 1½ m. Delapre Abbey, which was originally a Cluniac nunnery, is the seat of E. Bouverie, Esq., a younger branch of the Radnor family; at the S.W. corner of its park stands the Queen's Cross, one of those exquisite structures which Edward I. erected to mark the spots at which the funeral procession of his wife Eleanor rested.

ABINGTON (GREAT), CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Chilford, union of Linton: 55 miles from London (coach road 50), 3 from Linton, 9 from Cambridge. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Little Abington, thence 2 miles: S.E. of Derby, through Peterborough and Cambridge to Little Abington, 171 miles. — Money orders issued at Linton: London letters delivered 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — One mile northward is Babraham Hall, where resided Horatio Palavicini, who was collector of the Pope's taxes; but, taking advantage of the death of Queen Mary, and the accession of Elizabeth, he retained the money, as appears by the following doggrel epitaph:

"Here lyes Horatio Palavarene,
Who robbed the Pope to aide the Queene.
He was a thief. A thief! thou lyeest:
For why? He robbed but Antichrist.
Him Deathe's besome swept from Ba'bram,
Into the bosome of ould Abraham:
But then came Hercules with his club,
And struck him down to Beelzebub."

— The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 16s. 3d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, T. Mortlock, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. Goodwin, 1845: contains 1,500 acres: 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 358: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 403: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,881: poor rates in 1837, £210. — Anciently, a market used to be held on Fridays. — S. 2 m. is Abington Park; 2½ m. Great Chesterfield Park.

ABINGTON (LITTLE), CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the same hund<sup>d</sup> and union: 54 miles from London (coach road 50), 3 from Linton, 9 from Cambridge. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Little Abington station, 53, thence 1 mile: S.E. of Derby, through Peterborough and Cambridge, to Little Abington, 170 miles. — Money orders issued at Linton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The following account is given of this place by Coles:—In this parish is an estate or two belonging to Clare Hall, Cambridge: one of which was given to that college by John of Bolton, on condition that every first Sunday in Lent a member of the college, who is in orders, performs divine service there, which is still observed. One of the fellows goes on that day, and preaches a sermon, for which the vicar is paid 6s. 8d. for the use of his pulpit; and the same sum is given to the poor, which is called 'Bolton's dole.' This is my native parish, and in the church and churchyard lie several of my relations. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 6s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £87: patron, T. Mortlock, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Haviland: contains 1,120 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 277: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 317: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,515: poor rates in 1837, £163.

ABINGTON-IN-THE-CLAY (or ABINGTON-PIGGOTS), CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Armington, union of Royston: 64 miles from London (coach road 42), 5 from Royston, 7 from Potton. — East Count. Rail. to Whittlesford, thence 13 miles: S.E. of Derby through Peterborough and Cambridge, to Whittlesford, &c., 171 miles. — Money orders issued at Royston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — This place is also called Abington-Pigotts, almost the whole of the property having been in the Pigott family from the time of William the Conqueror, who gave this and sixteen other manors to one of his followers of that name. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £16. 2s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £310: patron, R. G. F. Pigott, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Adams, D. D., 1808: contains 1,260 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 232: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 260: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,575: poor rates in 1837, £163. — S. W. 2 m. is Kneesworth House; S.E. 2 m. Steeple Morden Hall.

AB-KETTLEBY, LEICESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Framland, union of Melton-Mowbray, and containing the townships of Ab-Kettleby and Holwell: 108 miles from London, 3½ from Melton-Mowbray, 16 from Leicester. — Nor. West. Rail. to Melton-Mowbray, thence 3½ miles: S. of Derby, through Loughborough, Syston, to Melton-Mowbray, &c., 35 miles. — Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (St. James), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, valued at £15. 10s. 5d.: patron, Rev. T. Bingham: pres. incumbent, T. Bingham, 1827: contains 2,920 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 380: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 438: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,678: poor rates in 1837, £127. — S. 1 m. is Melton Lodge.

ABLINGTON, GLOUCESTER, a tithing in the parish of Bibury: 102 miles from London (coach road 85), 5½ from Fairford, 7 from Cirencester. — Gt. West. Rail. to Cirencester, thence 7 miles: W. of Derby, through Birmingham and Gloucester to Cirencester, 122½ miles. — Money orders issued at Fairford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.

ABNEY, DERBYSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Hope, hund<sup>d</sup> of High Peak: 175½ miles from London (coach road 164), 5 from Tideswell, 14 from Sheffield. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby and Chesterfield to Whittington, thence 16 miles: N.W. of Derby to Whittington, &c., 43½ miles. — Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — Contains 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 137: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 150: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £991.

ABRAM, LANCASHIRE, a township in the parish of Wigan, in the hund<sup>d</sup> of West Derby: 199 miles from London (coach road 197), 4 from Wigan, 9 from Bolton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe, Warrington, Newton, and Abram: N.W. of Derby, through Manchester to Leigh, 102, thence 5 miles. — Money orders issued at Wigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — A church has been built here within the last 15 years, to which has been appended a perpetual curacy, with a net income of £120: patron the Rector of Wigan: pres. incumbent, H. J. Gunning, 1833: contains 1,790 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 901: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,050: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,339. — N. 1 m. is Bickershaw Hall; S. 1½ m. Byrom Hall; E. 2 m. Atherton Hall; W. 1 m. Bryw Hall, and Abram Hall.

ABRIDGE, ESSEX, a hamlet in the parish of Lambourne: 18 miles from London (coach road 13),  $4\frac{1}{2}$  from Epping, 6 from Chigwell. — East. Co. Rail. to Romford, thence 6 miles: S. of Derby, through London, thence as above, 133 miles. — Money orders issued at Epping: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>.  $9\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Bishop's Hall, in Lambourne parish, about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  miles south of this hamlet, was the palace of the Bishop of Norwich, who, in the reign of Richard II., put down the insurrection known as "Kit's Rebellion." — Fair held June 2. — N. 2 m. is Hill Hall; E.  $1\frac{1}{2}$  m. Albyns, the seat of T. Neville Abdy, Esq.; W. 2 m. Rolls.

ABSON (ABSTON, or ABBOTSON), GLOUCESTER, a chapelry in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of Pucklechurch, union of Chipping-Sodbury, and includes the hamlets of Wick, Berdwick, Church-Eight, and Holybrook: 126 miles from London (coach road 107), 5 from Chipping-Sodbury, 8 from Bristol. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol and Mangotsfield, thence 3 miles: W. of Derby, through Birmingham and Gloucester to Mangotsfield, &c., 122 miles. — Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The manor of Abson formerly belonged to the Abbey of Glastonbury, but was afterwards annexed to the see of Bath and Wells. In this parish the cliffs are very precipitous, being upwards of 200 feet high, and from the variety of strata are interesting to the geologist. So much Roman earthenware is found in one part of the parish, that it is supposed to have been the site of a pottery. In an adjoining field, there stood some time since two stones, with a third lying beside them, supposed to have been a cromlech. Here is also an ancient camp, including within the vallum about 12 acres. Foghill was the theatre of a stern conflict between Sir Ralph Hopton and the Parliamentary troops in 1643, on which occasion, after twelve hours' fighting, the latter were defeated. — The living, a curacy united to the vicarage of Pucklechurch, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Wells: patron, Dean and Chapter of Wells: pres. incumbent, Thomas B. Coney, 1840: contains 2,170 acres: 159 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 794: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 905: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,219: poor rates in 1837, £283. — S. 2 m. are Foghill and Terry Park House; W.  $1\frac{1}{2}$  m. Siston Lodge; E. 1 m. Derham Park (500 acres area). It was the scene of a desperate battle between the Britons and Saxons A. D. 599.

ABTHORPE (with Foscote), NORTHAMPTON, a parish and village in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Towcester: 63 miles from London, 3 from Towcester, 15 from Banbury. — Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverton, thence 10 miles: S. of Derby, through Rugby to Roade, 50, thence 8 miles. — Money orders issued at Towcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>.  $8\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes  $5\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. — Foscote is united with this, making a parish, which is endowed with £400 private benefaction and £400 royal bounty, in the patronage of S. Blencowe, Esq. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £60: pres. net income, £184: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, T. Coldwell, 1832: contains 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 449: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,327: poor rates in 1837, £349. — S. about 2 m. are Silverstone Hall and Sholebrook Hall.

ABURY, WILTS. See AVEBURY.

ABY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the Marsh division of Calceworth, hun<sup>d</sup>. parts of Lindsey, union of Louth: 145 miles from London (coach road 142), 9 from Louth, 2 from Alford. — Nor. West. Rail. or East. Co. Rail. to Alford, thence 2 miles: S. of Derby, through Peterborough and Alford, &c., 70 miles. — Money orders issued at Alford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes  $2\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, united in 1762 to the rectory of Belleau, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 3s. 6d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Lord Willoughby d'Eresby: pres. incumbent, W. J. P. Burrell: contains 1560 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841 (including the hamlet of Greenfield), 312: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 357: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,184: poor rates in 1837, £174.

ACASTER-MALBIS (or OVER-ACASTER), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish including a township of the same name, partly in the wapentake of Ouse and Derwent, East Riding, York, and partly in the ainsty of the city of York, union of York: 224 miles from London (coach road 190), 4 from York, 8 from Selby. — Nor. West. Rail. or East. Co. Rail. to York, thence 4 miles: N. of Derby, through York, 92 miles. — Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes  $4\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. — The town derives the second part of its name from the Mellisse family, which, from the time of the conquest, flourished here for several centuries. In the windows of the chancel of the church are some curious figures in stained glass. — The living (Holy Trinity), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £5. 6s. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: pres. net income, £56: patron, F. Lawley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Robert Ellis, 1829: contains 4,500 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 322: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 367: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,476: poor rates in 1837, £135.

ACASTER-SELBY (or NETHER-ACASTER), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township on the river Ouse, in that part of the parish of Stillingfleet which lies within the ainsty of York: 225 miles from London (coach road 190), 5 from York, 7 from Selby. — Nor. West. Rail. or East. Co. Rail. to York, thence 5 miles: N. of Derby, through York, &c., 93 miles. — Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>.  $10\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes  $3\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. — This place in ancient time belonged to the Abbot of Selby, whence its name. The navigable river Ouse passes the town, and also the Northern and Eastern Railways. To the west lies Nun Appleton, which was once a religious institution; but after the appropriation of the lands of those societies, it descended to Lord Fairfax, who built a mansion on the site; it afterwards passed into the hands of a merchant of Leeds, whose descendant, Sir W. M. S. Milner, Bart., now holds it. — Contains 1,360 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 310: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,017: poor rates in 1837, £175.

ACCONBURY (or ACORNBURY), HEREFORD, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wormelow, union of Hereford: 133 miles from London (coach road 130), 4 from Hereford, 9 from Ross. — Great West. Rail. to Stonchouse, thence 30 miles: S. of Derby, through Birmingham to Tewkesbury, 82, thence 28 miles. — Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The estate, on which is the nunnery, now a farm house, belongs to Guy's Hospital. In Gough's Sepulchral Monuments, are engravings of some stone coffins preserved in the Nun's chapel. The nunnery was founded in the reign of King John, by Margery, wife of Walter de Lacy, who gave her for that purpose the forest of Acornbury. On the summit of the hill may be traced a large square camp. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Hereford, and a peculiar of that see, is valued at £6. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £258: patron, Guy's Hospital: pres. incumbent, H. Hampton: contains 1,470 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 158: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 173: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,058: poor rates in 1837, £45. — W. 2½ m. is Allensmore House, the seat of Burnham Pateshall, Esq.; E. 1½ m. Hom Park.

ACCRINGTON (NEW), LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Whalley, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Blackburn, union of Haslingden: 209 miles from London (coach road 224), 4 from Blackburn, 5 from Haslingden. — Nor. West. Rail. to Manchester, Bury, and New Accrington: W. of Derby, through Manchester to New Accrington, 107 miles. — Money orders issued at Blackburn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — Within the last few years this place has risen into considerable importance on account of its position in the cotton manufacturing districts. The increase of the population, in consequence, has been great. In 1801 the number of inhabitants was only 2000, in 1831 it was 4160, and in 1841 nearly double that number. — Contains 2,480 acres: 861 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,908: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 8,000: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,097: poor rates in 1837, £599.

ACCRINGTON (OLD), LANCASTER, a parochial chapelry usually including New Accrington under one general denomination of Accrington: 212 miles from London (coach road 208), 6 from Blackburn, 4 from Haslingden. — Nor. West. Rail. to Manchester, Bury, and Old Accrington: W. of Derby, through Manchester to Old Accrington, 110 miles. — Money orders issued at Blackburn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — This town is principally inhabited by persons occupied in the various cotton works in the vicinity. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Cheshire, is valued at £15, but returned to parliament at £128: pres. net income, £158: patron, Hulme's trustees: pres. incumbent, J. Hopwood, 1817: 740 acres: 252 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,811: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,511: poor rates in 1837, £170. — N. 1 m. is Accrington House, the seat of Jonathan Peel, Esq.; 2 m. Dunk Park; S. ½ m. Hymnborn House.

ACHURCH, NORTHAMPTON. See THORPE-ACHURCH.

ACKLAM (EAST), EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish including a township of the same name, and another called Barthorpe-Leavening, partly in the liberty of St. Peter's, partly in the west division of Langbaugh liberty, but chiefly in the wapentake of Buckrose, union of Malton: 237 miles from London (coach road 210), 6 from New Malton, 14 from York. — Nor. West. Rail. through York to Barton le Willows station, thence 5 miles: N. of Derby, through York, &c., 105 miles. — Money orders issued at New Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — The view from Acklam Wold is one of the finest in the East Riding: this is a fine sporting country. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, a peculiar of the dean and chapter of York, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £108: patron, Chancellor of York: contains 4,130 acres, 173 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 845: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 960: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,440: poor rates in 1837, £110. — N.E. 1 m. is Aldrow House: 1 m. farther, Birdsall.

ACKLAM (WEST), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the liberty of Langbaugh, where the road from Stokesly branches to Stockton and to Newport: 282 miles from London (coach road 244), 5 from Yarm, 3 from Stockton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Darlington and Middlesborough, thence 3 miles. N. of Derby to Darlington, &c., 150 miles. — Money orders issued at Yarm: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The extended line of the Stockton and Darlington Railway passes through this parish. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Cleveland, and diocese of York, valued at £5: pres. net income, £44: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, Isaac Benson, 1824: contains 1,160 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 97: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 112: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,469: poor rates in 1837, £53. — S. 1 m. is Acklam Hall: E. 1½ m. Ormsby Hall; 2 m. Normanby Hall.

ACKLINGTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Warkworth: 329 miles from London (coach road 300), 8 from Alnwick, 13 from Morpeth. — Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, York, Morpeth, and Acklington: N. of Derby, through York, &c., 197 miles. — Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.; box closes 12½ p.m. — In this vicinity there is abundance of coal. North of the village, beyond the River Coquet, which flows past Warkworth, is Guisance, the seat of a nunnery annexed to Alnwick Abbey, by Edward I. East of which is Brinkburn Priory, beautifully situated on the bank of the river, at the foot of rising ground covered with wood: a little below it, besides other remains, are traces of a bridge, where the Roman road crossed the stream. — Contains 1,160 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 330: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 375: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £146: poor rates in 1837, £97. — E. lies Tegston Park.

ACKLINGTON-PARK, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township adjoining the above, in the same parish. — W. lie Acton House and Felton Park, where the Northumbrian barons did homage to Alexander of Scotland, 1215; for which King John cruelly punished the whole neighbourhood. — Contains 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 115: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 132: poor rates in 1837, £37.

ACKWORTH, WEST RIDING, YORKSHIRE, a parish and township in the upper division of Osgoldcross wapentake, nominally divided into Upper and Lower Ackworth: 202 miles from London (coach road 174), 3 from Pontefract, 5 from Wakefield. — Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Wakefield, and Snydale station, thence 2½ miles: N. of Derby, through Wakefield, &c., 70 miles. Money orders issued at Pontefract: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. South of the village is the celebrated school which was formerly in connection with the Foundling Hospital, and was assisted by a parliamentary grant. In 1777, it was sold, together with 85 acres of land, when it was bought by the Society of Friends, who formed it into a school for the education of children in their religious opinions. This is considered one of the most healthy localities in the kingdom. The living (St. Cuthbert), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £22. 1s. 0½d.: pres. net income, £403: patron, the Crown, as Duke of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, J. Kenworthy, 1844: contains 2,270 acres: 263 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,828: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,098: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,686: poor rates in 1837, £559. N. 1 m. is Ackworth Park; E. 1 m. Houndhill Hall; 2 m. Stapleton Park; W. 2 m. Nostell Park.

ACLE, NORFOLK, a large parish and village in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of S. Walsham, union of Blofield: 140 miles from London (coach road 127), 11 from Norwich, 9 from Yarmouth. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Norwich and Brundell, thence 10 miles: S.E. of Derby, through Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 218 miles. Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m. and 4½ p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. Acle, or Oclea, as it is locally called, is a village midway between Yarmouth and Norwich, having to the east extensive marshes, wherein are several small lakes or collections of water from the overflowing of the neighbouring rivers and marshes, called "broads," on which the Norwich and Yarmouth people delight to meet in what they call water-frolics, being a collection of gaily-dressed-out boats for sailing-matches and other aquatic amusements. The village stands on a rising ground on the edge of the marshes, and is visible all the way from Norwich to Yarmouth. The living (St. Edmund), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £605: patron and lord of the manor, Lord Calthorpe: pres. incumbent, William Spooner, archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, 1824: contains 4,300 acres: 159 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 864: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 960: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,073: poor rates in 1837, £266. Market days, Thursdays. A fair is held here on Midsummer day for cattle, and on old Michaelmas day a sessions is held for hiring servants. Queen's Head Inn and Hotel. W. 2 m. are Burlington Hall and Burlington House; 2½ m. Blofield Hall, the seat of J. Hustler, Esq.

ACOMB (or AKEHAM), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the ainsty of the city of York, comprising the townships of Acomb and Knapton: 221 miles from London (coach road 201), 2 from York, 10 from Wetherby. Nor. West. Rail. to York, thence 2 miles: N. of Derby, to York, &c., 89 miles. Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The Great North of England Railway intersects this parish. Here are the mounds called Siver's Hills, or Severus' Hills, raised by the army of Severus on the spot where his body was consumed, it having been brought from York for that purpose. On his death-bed, he made one of those true observations, of which many are recorded of different great men in the heathen world. After giving his two sons very sound advice, and cautioning them that their security and happiness lay in seeking each other's good, he told them, "Cherish the soldiery, and you may despise the rest of mankind: I found the republic disturbed, but I leave it firm and tranquil." Then, turning to his attendants, he said, in allusion to his rise from obscurity, "I have been all, and what am I now the better for it." His remains were sent to Rome in an urn of porphyry. The living (St. Stephen), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, and a peculiar of the dean and chapter of York, is valued at £3. 9s. 2d.: pres. net income, £109: patron, T. Tireman: pres. incumbent, Isaac Spencer, 1836: contains 7,330 acres: 186 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 880: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,015: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,930: poor rates in 1837, £244. E. lie Aydon Castle, Close House, and Beaufront.

ACOMB (EAST), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bywell St. Peter: 318 miles from London (coach road 275), 3 from Corbridge, 11 from Hexham. Nor. West. Rail. to York, Gateshead, and Stocksfield station, thence 1 mile: N. of Derby, through York, &c., 189 miles. Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. Contains 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 45: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 49: poor rates in 1837, £9. N. ½ m. is Newton Hall; S. 1 m. Styford House; S.E. 2 m. Prudhoe Castle.

ACOMB (WEST), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of St. John Lee: 313 miles from London (coach road 275), 4 from Corbridge, 3 from Hexham. Nor. West. Rail. to York, thence to Gateshead and Acomb West, or Hexham station: N. of Derby, through York, &c., 181 miles. Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. Situated in the coal districts, it is bounded on the south by the Tyne, and intersected by the Newcastle and Carlisle Railway. Poor rates in 1837, £57.

ACORNBURY. See ACCONBURY.

ACRISE, KENT, a parish, partly in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Folkestone and partly in that of Loninborough, lathe of Shepway, union of Elham: 81½ miles from London (coach road 67) 2 from Elham, 4 from Folkstone, 8 from Dover. Sou. East. Rail. to Reigate and Westernhanger station, thence 6½ miles: S. of Derby, to London 132, and as above. Money orders issued at Elham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living (St. Martin), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £171: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, C. Chapman, 1845: contains 1,170 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 207: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 238: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,026: poor rates in 1837, £110.

ACTON, CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Weaverham: 180 miles from London (coach road 177), 4 from Northwich, 15 from Chester. Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, Crewe, and Acton station: W. of Derby, through Crewe to Acton station, 96 miles. Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 a.m. There are several places of this name, which is by some writers derived from "ac," an oak, and "tun," a town; and supposed to imply that the locality so named was thickly clad with oaks. — Contains 1,300 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 350: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 395: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,847: poor rates in 1837, £132.

ACTON, CHESHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Nantwich, comprising the townships of Acton, Aston-juxta-Mondrum, Austerson, Bad-dington, Brindley, Burland, Cholmondstone, Cool-Pilate, Eddleston, Faddiley, Hinnull, Hurleston, Newhall, Poole, Stoke, and Worleston: 162½ miles from London (coach road 166), 2 from Nantwich, 9 from Taporley. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham and Crewe, thence 5 miles: W. of Derby, through Crewe, &c., 78½ miles. — Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — This part of Cheshire, and all the vale of the Wever, consists of fine grass land, which, not having been broken up for ages, forms the rich pasture which produces the famous cheese. The old church was used as a prison after the celebrated battle of Nantwich, when Lord Byron was defeated by Fairfax; and among other officers of distinction who fell into the hands of the Parliamentarians was Monk, who afterwards took so prominent a part in effecting the restoration of King Charles II. Dorfold Hall, which lies to the south-west of the town, was built in the early part of the 17th century, and is a fine specimen of the architecture of the time: it was the scene of a great deal of strife during the civil wars. The great hall is left unmodernized, and contains some rich plaster ornaments. — The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Chester, is valued at £19. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £627: patron, J. Tollemache, Esq.: pres. incumbent, F. Storr, 1846: contains 7,200 acres: 710 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,134: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,154: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £25,288.

ACTON, MIDDLESEX, a village and parish in the Kensington division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Ossulstone, union of Middlesex, and includes the hamlets of East Acton and Friar's Place: 6½ miles from London (coach road 5), 8 from Harrow, 3 from Brentford. — Gt. West. Rail. to Ealing, thence 1 mile: S. of Derby, to London, 132, and as above. — Money orders issued at Turnham Green: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m., 1 p.m., and 4 p.m.: post closes 8 a.m., 12½ p.m., 3 p.m., and 7 p.m. — The village consists of one long narrow street, situated on a rising ground, and is well supplied with water. The only historical interest connected with it is, that it was the head-quarters of the Earls of Warwick and Essex before the battle of Brentford; and that, on Cromwell's return from "the crowning mercy," as he called the battle, of Worcester, he was here met by a splendid cortege from London, consisting of the officers of state and those of the city. The recorder read a very eulogistic address, and the procession accompanied the victor to the metropolis. Berrymead priory is now a gentleman's residence. In the middle of the last century, it was a very fashionable resort for the waters of the mineral spring, at a place called Old Oak Common, towards Wormwood Scrubs; but it is no longer resorted to. On this side of the village are the Goldsmiths' almshouses, erected in 1811. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Middlesex, diocese of London, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £968: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, W. Antrobus, 1797: contains 2,260 acres: 426 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,665: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,063: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £11,321: poor rates in 1837, £1,161. — Fairs, Holy Thursday, a pleasure fair. — N.E. is Fordhook House; and in the vicinity are many gentlemen's houses.

ACTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a joint township with Old Felton, in that part of the parish of Felton which is in the east division of Coquetdale ward: 323 miles from London (coach road 300), 8 from Alnwick, 10 from Morpeth. — Nor. West. Rail. to York, Newcastle, and Aclington station, thence 2 miles: N. of Derby, through York, &c., 191 miles. — Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — Contains 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, with the hamlet of Old Felton, 136: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 152: poor rates in 1837, £58.

ACTON, WEST RIDING, YORKSHIRE, a township in the parish of Featherstone: 200 miles from London (coach road 178), 3½ from Pontefract, 10 from Wakefield. — Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Rotherham, and Snydale station, thence 1 mile: N. of Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 68 miles. — Money orders issued at Pontefract: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Contains 1,090 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 93: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 109: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,199: poor rates in 1837, £89.

ACTON (or AXETON), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Babergh, union of Sudbury: 59½ miles from London (coach road 60), 2½ from Lavenham, 5 from Sudbury. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Chelmsford and Mark's Tey station, thence 13 miles: S.E. of Derby, through London, and as above, 191½ miles. — Money orders issued at Sudbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Sudbury, diocese of Ely, is valued at £9. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £255: patron, Earl Howe: pres. incumbent, Lawrence Ottley, 1837: contains 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 555: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 638: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,035: poor rates in 1837, £467. — Fair on July 6. — W. is Acton Place, formerly belonging to the Jennens family, the last of whom died here in 1791, at a very great age. N.W. is Melford Hall, the seat of Sir Hyde Parker, Bart.

ACTON-BEAUCHAMP, WORCESTER, a parish in the Worcester division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Dodding-tree, union of Bromyard: 152 miles from London (coach road 122), 4 from Bromyard, 11 from Worcester. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, Droitwich, and Spetchley station, thence 13 miles; or Gt. West. Rail. to Cheltenham and Wadborough station, thence 15 miles: S.W. of Derby, through Birmingham, &c. 81 miles. — Money orders issued at Bromyard: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living (St. Giles), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £320: patron, Mrs. Cowpland: pres. incumbent, W. Cowpland, 1828: contains 1,600 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 217: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 249: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,615: poor rates in 1837, £217. — N. 2 m. is Whitehouse, the seat of W. S. Wood, Esq.; E. 2 m. Kingshill Lodge.

ACTON-BURNELL, SHROPSHIRE, a parish and township in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Conover, union of Atcham; and includes the chapelries of Acton-Pigott, and Ruckley with Langley: 152 miles from London (coach road 155), 7 miles from Shrewsbury, 7 from Wenlock. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham and Wolverhampton, thence 25 miles: S.W. of Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 80 miles. — Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The castle was rebuilt by Robert Burnell, Bishop of Bath and Wells, who, in 1292, was sent to Scotland to demand that the Scots should admit the right of his master to dominion over their kingdom. In 1283, Edward I. held a parliament here, which is memorable for having pardoned many of the Welsh nobles who had taken up arms: also for passing the celebrated "Acton-Burnell Statute," called statutum de mercatoribus. It had special reference to the merchants of London, York, and Bristol: it declared what constituted a statute merchant, when a debtor should be imprisoned, and under what circumstances sureties should be compelled to pay. The remains of the castle show it to have been a square building, with a tower at each corner, the walls very thick and much ornamented. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £6. 10s.: pres. net. income, £350: patron, Sir E. J. Smythe: pres. incumbent, E. H. Wainwright, 1837: contains 2,650 acres: 61 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 394: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 453: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,824: poor rates in 1837, £179. — N. 2 m. is Pitchton Hall; S. 2 m. Frodesley Lodge.

ACTON-GRANGE, CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Runcorn: 179 miles from London (coach road 183), 4 from Warrington, 10 from Northwich. — Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe, and Acton-Grange station: W. of Derby, through Crewe, &c., 95 miles. — Money orders issued at Warrington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The Mersey and Irwell Canal passes through the parish, and so does the Bridgewater Canal. — Contains 780 acres: 24 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,826: poor rates in 1837, £148. — S.E. 1 m. is Norton Park; S.W. 2 m. Appleton Hall, the seat of T. Lyon, Esq.: S. 2 m. Daresbury Hall.

ACTON-ILGAR, GLOUCESTER, a tithing in that part of the parish of Iron-Acton which is in the lower division of the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Grumbold's Ash. — For particulars as to distance, &c., see ACTON-TURVILLE.

ACTON-IRON, GLOUCESTER. See IRON-ACTON.

ACTON-PIGOTT, SALOP, a chapelry in the parish of Acton-Burnell, hund<sup>d</sup>. of Conover, which see for distance, &c. — Money orders issued at Much-Wenlock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The chapel is desecrated: pop<sup>n</sup>. returned with parish.

ACTON-REYNOLD, SALOP, a township in the parish of Shawbury: 157½ miles from London (coach road 158), 8 from Shrewsbury, 12 from Drayton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby and Stafford, thence 25 miles: W. of Derby, through Tamworth, Stafford, &c., 74 miles. — Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Contains 690

acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 203: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 230: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,442. — S. 1½ m. is Hardwicke Grange; 2 m. Shawbury Park.

ACTON-ROUND, SALOP, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Stottesden, union of Bridgenorth: 146 miles from London (coach road 145,) 6 from Bridgenorth, 17 from Ludlow. — Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 20 miles: W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 75 miles. — Money orders issued at Bridgenorth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, diocese of Hereford, is valued in the parliamentary returns at £59: pres. net income, £85: patron, Sir F. R. E. Acton: pres. incumbent, B. Howell, 1838: contains 3,040 acres: 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 180: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 207: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,110: poor rates in 1837, £81. — E. 2 m. is Aldenham Hall.

ACTON-SCOTT, SALOP, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Munslow, union of Church-Stretton, near a branch of the Teme: 153 miles from London (coach road 155), 4 from Church-Stretton, 10 from Ludlow. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 40 miles: W. of Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 81 miles. — Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The living (St. Margaret), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, diocese of Hereford, is valued at £5. 10s.: pres. net income, £238: patron, F. W. Pendarves, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Walter Corbett, 1833: contains 930 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 204: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 235: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,397: poor rates in 1837, £125. — N. ½ m. is Acton-Scott Hall.

ACTON-TRUSSELL, STAFFORD, a township and parochial chapelry in the parish of Baswick: 130½ miles from London (coach road 131), 3 from Penkridge, 4 from Stafford. — Nor. West. Rail. (via Trent valley) to Rugely, thence 7 miles: W. of Derby, through Tamworth to Rugely, &c., 47 miles. — Money orders issued at Penkridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The Stafford and Worcestershire Canal and the river Trent pass through this township. — The living, (St. James), a perpetual curacy, united with that of Bednall, and a peculiar of the dean of Lichfield, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £234: patron, Hulme's trustees: pres. incumbent, M. Davis, 1841: contains 1,400 acres: 108 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 574: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 660: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,698: poor rates in 1837, £155. — S. 1 m. is Teddesley Hall.

ACTON-TURVILLE, GLOUCESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Tormarton, lower division of the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Grumbold's Ash: 103½ miles from London (coach road 102), 5 from Sudbury, 12 from Chippenham. — Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 10 miles. S. of Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, and Yate, 121, thence 7½ miles. — A stone building in the centre of the town, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, was formerly used as a sanctuary. — The living (St. Mary), a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is subordinate to the rectory of Tormarton—(which see.) Contains 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 276: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 316: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,264: poor rates in 1837, £61. — E. 2 m. is Tanner's House; N. 1 m. Badminton, the domain of the Dukes of Beaufort, a park nearly 9 miles in circuit. The house was erected in 1682, by the first Duke.

ADBASTON, STAFFORD. See ABDASTON.

ADBEER, SOMERSET, a hamlet in the parish of Trent, 165 miles from London (coach road 129), 4 from Yeovil. — Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, 141, thence 24 miles. S.W. of Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, and Taunton, 177, thence 22 miles. — Money orders issued at Yeovil: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — A chapel that formerly stood here was demolished during the civil wars.

ADBOLTON, NOTTINGHAM, formerly a parish, now a hamlet in the parish of Holme-Pierpoint, southern division of the wapentake of Bingham: 134 miles from London (coach road 124), 2½ from Nottingham. — Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby and Nottingham. E. of Derby, through Nottingham, 18½ miles. — Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m. and 5½ p.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living was a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, valued at £2. 13s. 9d.; but in 1707, it was consolidated with the rectory of Holme-Pierpoint—which see. The church is desecrated.

ADDERBURY (EAST), OXFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bloxham, union of Banbury: it comprises the chapelrys of Little Barford (or Barford St. John) and Badicott, the townships of East and West Adderbury, and the hamlet of Milton: 75 miles from London (coach road 70), 3½ from Banbury, 3 from Deddington. — Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverton, 52, thence 23 miles; or by Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, 63, thence 20 miles. S. of Derby, to Rugby and Weedon, 62, thence 18 miles. — Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The oldest record we have of this place is in Knyghton, who says that a blasphemous impostor (most likely a lunatic) was condemned to be crucified here by a council of Bishops, assembled at Oxford in 1219. On the east side of the village stood the palatial mansion of the Argyll family, which, in the time of Charles I., was occupied by Henry Wilmot, Baron Adderbury and Earl of Rochester, whose son John obtained for the town, at the hands of Charles II., a charter of immunities. He is too well known as the dissipated companion of his profligate sovereign, to need biographical notice in such a work as this. He died at the age of 30, in premature senility. This building has been reduced, and converted into a gentleman's residence. The church is a Gothic building, with a very lofty spire. The living was given by William of Wykham to New College, Oxford, which he founded. In the deed of endowment, dated 1365, which is in New College Hall, it is written Ebburbury. — The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £21. 4s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £818: patron, New College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, — Alcock, 1836: contains 6,380 acres, 491 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. (with Adderbury West) in 1841, 2,525: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 2,904: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,705: poor rates in 1837, £458: the impropriate and vicarial tithes, the property of New College, Oxford, were commuted in 1766; those of Little Barford in 1793. — N. 1 m. is Bloxham Grove; 2 m. Wykham Park.

ADDERBURY (WEST), OXFORD, a township in the above parish, which see for population, distance, mode of access, &c., &c.

ADDERLEY (or ATHERLEY), SALOP, a parish in the Drayton division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bradford North, union of Drayton: 155 miles from London (coach road 157), 4 from Drayton, 8 from Whitchurch. — Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby, Stafford, and Whitmore station, thence 8 miles: W. of Derby, through Tamworth, Stafford, and as above, 71 miles. — Money orders issued at Whitchurch: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — This parish is in the north-east corner of the county, which extends out between Stafford and Cheshire. The Hall Park is on the borders of the latter. The Birmingham and Liverpool Junction Canal passes through the parish. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £11. 6s. 0½d.: patron, Rev. H. C. Cotton: pres. incumbent, William Cotton, 1820: contains 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 465: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,603: poor rates in 1837, £206. — N. ½ m. is Adderley Hall; W. 1 m. Shavington Park, the seat of Viscount Kilmorey; 2 m. Cloverley Hall; N.E. 2 m. Brand Park.

ADDERMINTON, GLOUCESTER. See ADMINGTON.

ADDERSTONE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the chapelry of Bambrough, in which it is included in population, &c., on the post road from Alnwick to Berwick: 343 miles from London (coach road 319), 3 from Belford, 12 from Alnwick. — Nor. West. Rail. to York, Newcastle, and Lucker station, thence 1 mile: N. of Derby, through York, and as above, 211 miles. — Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — On the west side of the great north road lies Adderstone Park; and just south of it, also abutting on the high road, Twizell Park. The castle came into the possession of the Selby family in the early part of the 14th century, and continued with them several generations. The present structure, a fine piece of Gothic architecture, built by Sir F. Blake, Bart., was many years in course of erection: it stands on a bold rock, at the foot of which runs the Till. The best view of the castle is from the bridge, which was built in the 16th century: it consists of one arch 90 feet span, and is nearly 50 feet from the stream. It was over this very bridge that Lord Surrey marched to the attack of the Scots at the memorable battle of Flodden Field. Sir W. Scott has given a very graphic description of the scenery of this locality, with that seductive mixture of reality and fiction in which he stood pre-eminent:

"Even so it was;—from Flodden ridge
The Scots beheld the English host
Leave Barmore-wood, their evening post,
And heedful watched them as they crossed
The Till by Twisel Bridge.
High sight it is, and haughty, while
They dive into the deep defile;
Beneath the caverned cliff they fall,
Beneath the castle's airy wall.
By rock, by oak, by hawthorn tree,
Troop after troop are disappearing;
Troop after troop their banners rearing,
Upon the eastern bank yon see,
Still pouring down the rocky den,
Where flows the sullen Till,

And rising from the dim-wood glen,
Standards on standards, men on men,
In slow succession still,
And sweeping o'er the Gothic arch,
And pressing on, in ceaseless march,
To gain the opposing hill.
That morn, to many a trumpet clang,
Twisel, thy rock's deep echo rang;
And many a chief of birth and rank,
St. Helen! at thy fountain drank.
Thy hawthorn glade, which now we see
In spring-tide bloom so lavishly,
Had then from many an axe its doom,
To give the marching columns room."

St. Helen's fountain is a spring at the foot of a rock near the bridge.---Contains 55 houses: poor rates in 1837, £178.

ADDETON, WEST RIDING, YORKSHIRE. See ADWALTON.

ADDINGHAM, CUMBERLAND, a parish in Leath ward, union of Penrith, containing the townships of Gamblesby, Glassonby, Hunsonby with Winkile, and Little Salkeld: 290 miles from London, via Trent valley (coach road 291), 8 from Penrith, 12 from Aldston Moor.---Nor. West. Rail. to Penrith, thence 8 miles: N. of Derby, through Tamworth, Crewe, Penrith, &c., 206 miles.---Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---Dr. Todd derives Addingham or Aldingham from Hald-hingham, implying a dwelling near hanging stones; but Bullet says it means nothing more than a place on the summit of a hill. At Little Salkeld, in this parish, is the celebrated Druidical monument, "Long Meg and her daughters," which is a space nearly circular, of which the circumference is 350 yards, surrounded by 67 stones, varying very much in size, but all unhewn: these are the daughters. "Long Meg" is a single stone, 18 feet high and 14 in girth, which stands at the south-west corner of the area surrounded by the daughters, and about 20 yards distant outside of it. At the same place was anciently a chapel, and, tradition says, a village; but there are no remains of it: human bones, crosses, and other traces of the existence of such a place have been dug up. The Roman road called "Maiden way," may be traced in several parts of this parish. The celebrated Dr. Paley held this living at the time of his death.---The living (St. Michael), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £9. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income £253: patron, Dean and Chapter of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, William Sharp, 1839: contains 9,520 acres: 132 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 735: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 845.---S. 1 m. is Salkeld Lodge.

ADDINGHAM, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish and township, partly in the wapentake of Claro, and partly in that of Staincliffe, union of Skipton, and includes part of the township of Beamsley: 233 miles from London (coach road 213), 5 from Skipton, 9 from Otley.---Nor. West. Rail. to Leeds and Keldwich station, thence 5 miles: N. of Derby, through Leeds, and as above, 101 miles.---Money orders issued at Otley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---About a mile distant are traces of a Roman camp. Considerable quantities of cotton and woollen goods are manufactured here.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £9.

7s. 8d.: pres. net income, £360: patron, Mrs. M. Cunliffe: pres. incumbent, William Thompson: contains 4,310 acres: 446 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,812: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,084: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,117: poor rates in 1837, £410.---N. 1 m. is Fairfield Hall; W. 2 m. Low Hall.

ADDINGRAVE, BUCKINGHAM, a hamlet in the parish of Oakley. It had formerly a chapel of ease, which is now in ruins.---See OAKLEY.

ADDINGTON, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Buckingham: 52 miles from London (coach road 50), 2 from Winslow, 5 from Buckingham.---Nor. West. Rail. to Leighton Buzzard, thence 11 miles: S. of Derby, through Rugby and Leighton Buzzard, and as above, 103 miles.---Money orders issued at Winslow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---In this parish is a place called Gallows Gap, where stood the barony gallows, which was first erected by one of the Molines family, who, in the reign of Edward III., was lord of the barony, in which capacity he had power of "pit and gallows," as it was called; that is, he might hang culprits or keep them in his dungeon. This is an agricultural district.---The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bucks, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, J. Powlett, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. W. Scurr, 1839: contains 1,320 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 84: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 97: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,101: poor rates in 1837, £70.---N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Addington House; S. 2 m. Claydon Hall, the seat of Sir Harry Verney, Bart.

ADDINGTON, KENT, a parish and township in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Larkfield, lathe of Aylesford, union of Malling: 49 miles from London (coach road 27), 7 from Maidstone, 8 from Rochester.---Sou. East. Rail. to Toubridge, thence 8 miles: S. of Derby, through London, and as above, 181 miles.---Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---In this parish is a curious intermittent spring, which flows only at the interval of several years.---The living (St. Margaret), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £6. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £253: patron, Hon. J. W. Stratford: pres. incumbent, J. Paulson: contains 920 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 208: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 239: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,236: poor rates in 1837, £161.---E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Leybourne Grange; 2 m. Preston Hall; Clare Hall; and Sytham Court.

ADDINGTON, SURREY, a parish in the first division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wallington, union of Croydon: 13 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 12), 3 from Croydon, 5 from Bromley.---Sou. West. Rail. to Croydon, thence 3 miles: S. of Derby through London, and as above, 145 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles.---Money orders issued at Croydon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m. and 9 p.m.: post closes 7 a.m. and 5 p.m.---Here is the country seat of the Archbishop of Canterbury, with about 500 acres of land attached to it. It was purchased in 1807 by Dr. Sutton, then primate, with the funds produced by the sale of the palace at Croydon. The late Archbishop, Dr. Howley, nearly rebuilt the house. The manor is held by the service of making and presenting to the king on his coronation-day a mess of pottage; but it does not seem to be requisite that it be made according to any particular receipt. This custom appears to have originated in the fact of the manor being given by William the Conqueror to Tezelin, his cook, as appears by Domesday Book. The service was performed at the coronation of George IV. This service is now due from the Archbishop, as holder of the manor, unless the act of parliament, by which he was enabled to sell the old palace at Croydon and buy this manor, dispensed with the service. Situated on the north-east of Croydon stands Addiscombe House (once the residence of the first Lord Liverpool), which was purchased by the Hon. East India Company, in 1809, for the establishment of their military college, previously formed at Woolwich Common, for the education of cadets for the engineers and artillery, but in 1825 opened to receive cadets for the whole military service of the Company, the cavalry being excepted. There are generally about 150 students, who are at present under the inspection of Major-General Stannus, assisted by General Sir Charles Paisley, to whom is intrusted the examination of the cadets, previously to their obtaining their commissions. There are fourteen professors and masters engaged in the several departments of instruction, and two public examinations take place annually, at which the chairman and deputy-chairman of the Court of Directors preside, assisted by some of the superior officers of the state. Under the auspices and patronage of the Hon. East India Directors, this establishment has obtained a rank equal to that of any military institution in the kingdom; the course of mathematical study being of a very advanced order, embracing the whole of Dr. Hutton's course, as arranged, extended, and adapted to the more modern analysis by Professor Cape. The other subjects of study are fortification, civil and military drawing; the Hindustani, French, and Latin languages, more especially the former; with occasional instruction, by professors from London, in chemistry, geology, &c. At the end of each half-yearly term, those who have completed their four terms in the college, receive, according to the results of the general examination, their appointments, either as engineers, artillery, or infantry officers. The mathematical reading of the engineers is very considerable, comprising the differential and integral calculus, and the several subjects of mechanical philosophy, &c. The engineers appointed, of whom the usual number is seven twice a year, proceed to Chatham, to study further the operations of gunnery, mining, fortification, &c., after which they are sent out to India, to enter upon the duties of the service. The course of action by which the officers educated at Addiscombe have distinguished themselves in India, and the great achievements they have accomplished, bear honourable testimony to the claims which Addiscombe can make, of being one of the most efficient establishments in Europe, for the education of those destined for military service. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, diocese of Winchester, is valued at £4. 16s. 5d.: pres. net income £206: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, M. T. Farrer, 1843: contains 3,210 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 580: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 667: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £4,118: poor rates in 1837, £220. —

N. 2 m. is Addiscombe House; Shirley House, the seat of S. Skinner, Esq.; W. 2 m. Hayling House; S. 2 m. Chelsam Lodge.

ADDINGTON (GREAT), NORTHAMPTON, a parish and township in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Huxloe, union of Thrapston: 87 miles from London (coach road 70), 4 from Thrapston, 7 from Kettering. — Nor. West. Rail. to Northampton and Ringstead, 85½ miles, thence 1½: W. of Derby, through Tamworth, Northampton, and as above, 87 miles. — Money orders issued at Thrapston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The Northampton Canal passes through the parish. — The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £10. 12s. 8d.: pres. net income, £315: patron, Rev. J. Tyley: pres. incumbent, J. Tyley, 1832: contains 1,230 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 266: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 306: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,590: poor rates in 1837, £130. — N. 1 m. is Woodford Lodge; N.E. 2½ m. Burton House; S. E. 2½ m. Finedon House.

ADDINGTON (LITTLE), NORTHAMPTON, a parish and township. Situation, access, and postal arrangements, same as GREAT ADDINGTON: 5 from Thrapston, 8 from Kettering. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £7. 12s.: pres. net income, £245: patron, G. Capron, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. Sanderson, 1813: contains 1,170 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 299: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 344: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £999: poor rates in 1837, £195: tithes commuted.

ADDLE (or ADEL), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Skyrack, comprising the townships of Addle-cum-Eccup and Arthington, and the hamlets of Breary and Cookridge: 211 miles from London (coach road 205), 5 from Leeds, 8 from Bradford. — Nor. West. Rail. to Leeds and Kirkstall station, thence 3 miles. N. of Derby, to Leeds, and as above, 79 miles. — Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — In the year 1702, the remains of a Roman town were discovered in the adjacent moor, and many antiquities have been obtained from it: it is supposed to be the ancient Burgadunum. The parish is within the bounds of the parliamentary borough of Leeds. The church is reckoned one of the finest specimens of Norman architecture. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £16. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £623: patron, Major-Gen. Davy: pres. incumbent, G. Lewthwaite, 1809: contains 6,350 acres: 189 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,219: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,402: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £7,370: poor rates of Addle-cum-Eccup in 1837, £275.

ADDLETHORPE, LINCOLN, a parish and township in the marsh division of the wapentake Candleshoe, parts of Lindsay, union of Spilsby: 150 miles from London (coach road 134), 7 from Alford, 11 from Spilsby. — East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Peterborough, Boston, and Burgh station, thence 3 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Peterborough, and as above, 161 miles. E. of Derby, through Lincoln, Boston, &c., 97 miles. — Money orders issued at Alford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 2 p.m. — The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9. 12s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £72: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, T. Whitworth, 1842: contains 1,170 acres: 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 238: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 274: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,279: poor rates in 1837, £239. — S.W. 1½ m. is Boothby Hall.

ADFORTON, HEREFORD, a township in the parish of Leintwardine, union of Knighton, including the hamlets of Payton and Grange: 165 miles from London (coach road 150), 8 from Ludlow, 8 from Presteign. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham and Bromsgrove, thence 15 miles; or Gt. West. Rail. to Bromsgrove, &c., 189 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham, and as above, 93 miles. — Money orders issued at Ludlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — Contains 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 250: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 280: poor rates in 1837, £123.

ADGARLEY, LANCASHIRE, a township in the parish of Urrwick, hun<sup>d</sup> of Lonsdale. For population, distance, and access, see Urrwick.

ADISHAM, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Downshamford, lathe of St. Augustine, union of Bridge: 87 miles from London (coach road 62), 3 from Wingham, 6 from Canterbury. — Sou. East. Rail. to Canterbury, thence 6 miles. S. E. of Derby, through London, and as above, 219 miles. — Money orders issued at Wingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (Holy Innocents), a rectory, with the perpetual curacy of Staple, in the diocese of Canterbury, and exempt from the jurisdiction of the archdeacon, is valued at £28. 3s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £952: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, W. W. Dickens, 1818: contains 1,810 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 372: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 428: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,903: poor rates in 1837, £384. — N. 1½ m. is Dene Park; W. 1½ m. Higham Park; S. 1 m. Woodlands; S. E. 1½ m. Ilden Park; 2 m. Charlton Park, the seat of G. L. Roupell, Esq.

ADLESTROP, GLOUCESTER, a parochial chapelry in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Slaughter, union of Stow-in-the-Wold: 86 miles from London, 4 from Stow-in-the-Wold, 11 from Burford. — Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 23 miles. S. of Derby, through Birmingham to Tewkesbury, 82 miles, thence 20 miles. — Money orders issued at Moreton-in-Marsh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — From the time of the grant of the manor to Sir Thomas Leigh, in 1554, when it was taken from the Abbey of Evesham, it has not passed out of the hands of his lineal descendants. — The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a curacy to the rectory of Broadwell, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol. — See BROADWELL. Contains 1,320 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 200: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 230: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,199: poor rates in 1837, £64: tithes commuted in 1775. — S. 1 m. is Daylesford House.

ADLINGFLEET, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross, union of Goole, comprising the townships of Adlingfleet, Fockerby, Haldenby, and Eastoft:

218 miles from London (coach road 170), 5 from Goole, 2 from Burton. — East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Peterborough and Barton-upon-Humber, 198, thence 20 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Pontefract, and Goole, thence 5 miles. From Derby, take rail. to Pontefract, &c. 95 miles. — Money orders issued at Goole: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £9. 12s. 11d.: pres. net income, £280: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Frank Sugden, 1845: contains 1,680 acres: 92 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 448: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 515: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,986: poor rates in 1837, £207: tithes commuted in 1767.

ADLINGTON, CHESHIRE, is one of a series of busy townships comprised in the parish of Freshbury, and in which its ecclesiastical statistics are included: 192 miles from London (coach road 172), 6 from Macclesfield, 6 from Stockport. — Nor. West. Rail. to Tamworth, Crewe, Congleton, and Adlington. W. of Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 109 miles. — Money orders issued at Macclesfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There are valuable mines of coal and flagstone in the neighbourhood. N. 1½ m. is Adlington Hall, the seat of Banastre Leigh, Esq.: it has been in the family from the time of Edward II. It was a member of this family, Sir Urian Leigh, who, while serving under Essex in the expedition against Cadiz, in the reign of Elizabeth, was the hero of the romantic adventure which formed the foundation of the well-known ballad, "The Spanish Lady's Love." — Contains 3,350 acres: 197 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,731: poor rates in 1837, £548. — E. 1 m. Shrigley Hall; 1½ m. Stypherson Hall; Benistall Hall; S. 2 m. Leigh Hall; Butley Hall; W. 1½ m. Newton Hall; 2 m. Hough Park.

ADLINGTON, LANCASHIRE, a township in the parish of Standish, which see for statistics: 206 miles from London (coach road 205), 6 from Wigan, 9 from Bolton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Tamworth, Crewe, Wigan, and Adlington. N. of Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 122 miles. — Money orders issued at Wigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — A new church has been erected by the parliamentary commission. — S. ¼ m. is Adlington Hall, built at the end of last century on the site of the old house. The property once belonged to a family of this name; but it has been in the Clayton family for more than two centuries. The present owner, Clayton Browne Clayton, obtained it by intermarriage with the heiress of the branch of the family in which it descended; on which occasion he assumed the Clayton surname and arms. N. 2 m. is Duxbury, the seat of Sir F. Standish, principally used as a stud farm. N. 1 m. Ellerbeck Hall; 2 m. Park Hall; S. 1½ m. North Hall; W. 2 m. Blams Clough Hall.

ADMARSH, LANCASHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Lancaster: 238 miles from London, 12 from Garstang, 11 from Burton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe and Garstang, thence 12 miles. From Derby, take rail. to Crewe, &c., 154 miles. — Money orders issued at Garstang: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the arch<sup>d</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, is valued at £32. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £80: patron, Vicar of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, H. Short, 1846: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 249: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 300.

ADMINGTON (or ADDERMINTON), GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Queinton: 90 miles from London, 6½ from Chipping-Camden, 6 from Stratford-on-Avon.---Nor. West. Rail. to Leamington, thence 15 miles. W. of Derby, through Tamworth to Leamington, &c., 70 miles.---Money orders issued at Chipping-Camden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---For ecclesiastical statistics, see QUEINTON. Contains 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 200: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 230.

ADMISTON (or ATHELKAMPSTON), DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Piddletown, union of Dorchester: 140 miles from London (coach road 129), 6½ from Dorchester.---Sou. West. Rail. to Moreton, thence 4 miles. S. of Derby, through Gloucester to Taunton, 180, thence 45 miles; or through London, &c., in all, 272 miles.---Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---A little north of this place stands the most ancient seat in the county, built in the old English style of architecture, occupied by George James Wood, Esq.---The living, a rectory united to that of Burleston, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £2: pres. net income, £200: patron, Earl of Mornington: pres. incumbent, J. P. W. Greenly, 1841: contains 290 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 74: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 84: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,773: poor rates in 1837, £21.

ADPAR, CARDIGAN, a town and borough in the parish of Llandyfrïog, hun<sup>d</sup> of Troedyrour: 208 miles from London (coach road 225), 10 from Cardigan, 15 from Carmarthen.---Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 105 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Tewkesbury, 81, thence 105 miles.---Money orders issued at Cardigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Adpar is situated on the Teivi, opposite Newcastle Emlyn, which is in Carmarthen, the river dividing the counties. The two towns (or rather the two parts of the town, for, although in different counties and in different parishes, they have a post-office and a market in common) are united by a good bridge. The united borough is one of the five associated boroughs which, together, send one member to parliament; the other four are Aberystwith, Cardigan, Lampeter, and Tregaron. The town has no particular tradé; but is a central point for the sale of cattle, for which purpose eleven fairs are held during the year; and in the spring it is noted for seed-barley, that grown on the sea-coast, and brought to this market, being specially esteemed. One writer, describing Newcastle Emlyn, thus speaks of the Teivi: "The Teivi enters the valley from the north-east, and flows in a straight line till it arrives nearly underneath the castle; it then takes a sudden turn, and, instead of winding immediately about the foot of the hill, darts back again for a considerable way, in a course parallel with its first channel, and close by it. It then sweeps round majestically in front, leaving a long and very beautiful meadow between it and the castle, and comes down again on the opposite side with features of a different character. Here its bed becomes impeded by rocks, through which it furrows a deep, tortuous, and noisy course, and rolls with much impetuosity under the venerable bridge."---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 600: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 690: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £49.

ADSTOCK, BUCKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Buckingham: 57 miles from London (coach road 52), 3 from Winslow, 4 from Buckingham.---Nor. West. Rail. to Bletchley, thence 10 miles. S. of Derby, through Tamworth and Coventry to Bletchley, &c., 95 miles.---Money orders issued at Winslow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Cecilia), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 16s. 3d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, Adam Baynes, 1809: contains 1,130 acres: 90 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 419: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 482: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,882: poor rates in 1837, £293: tithes commuted in 1797.---C. Inn and Family H., Chandos Arms.---N.W. 2 m. is Loughboro' House: S. ¼ m. Addington House; S. 3 m. Claydon Park.

ADSTONE, NORTHAMPTON, a chapelry in the parish of Canons Ashby, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Green's Norton: 69 miles from London (coach road 67), 7 from Towcester, 8 from Daventry.---Nor. West. Rail. to Roade, thence 9 miles. E. of Derby, through Tamworth to Roade, &c., 85 miles.---Money orders issued at Towcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Living (All Saints), a curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough. The corporation of the Sons of the Clergy are lords of the manor, as also patrons: pres. incumbent, S. H. White: contains 1,390 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 196: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 220: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,878: poor rates in 1837, £90.

ADVENT (or ST. ADVEN), CORNWALL, formerly a chapelry in the parish of Lanteglos, now a distinct parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Leaneath, Camelford union: 274 miles from London (coach road 230), 2 from Camelford, 10 from Bodmin.---Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 30 miles. N.W. of Derby, through Birmingham and Exeter to Plymouth, &c., 291 miles.---Money orders issued at Camelford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 11½ a.m.---A copper mine is worked in this neighbourhood.---The living is subordinate to the rectory of Lanteglos, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter: pres. net income, £474: patron, Duchy of Cornwall: pres. incumbent, R. Bird, 1845: contains 4,020 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 291: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 335: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,596: poor rates in 1837, £110.

ADWALTON (or ADDERTON), WEST-RIDING, YORK, a hamlet in the township of Drighlington, parish of Birstall, and wapentake of Morley: 205 miles from London (coach road 192), 4 from Bradford, 7 from Leeds.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Wakefield, and Methley station, thence 8 miles. N. of Derby, through Wakefield, &c., 63 miles.---Money orders issued at Bradford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The inhabitants of this hamlet, in common with those of the surrounding districts, are principally employed in woollen fabrics. A battle was fought on the moor, in 1642, between the Royalist forces, headed by the Duke of Newcastle, and the Parliamentarians, under Fairfax, when the latter were defeated.---The living, &c.,---see BIRSTALL.---Fairs, Feb. 6, March 9, Easter Thursday, fortnight after Easter, month after Easter, first fortnight in May, Whit-Thursaday, Nov. 5, Dec. 23.

ADWELL, OXFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Lewknor, Thame union: 45 miles from London (coach road 41), 2 from Tetworth, 5 from Thame.---Gt. West. Rail. to High Wycombe, thence 13 miles.---S.E. of Derby, through London, &c., 177 miles.---Money orders issued at Tetworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---In this vicinity is an ancient intrenchment, called Adwell-Cop, supposed to have been made by the Danes in 1010, when they burned Oxford.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £105: patron, Mrs. E. Jones: pres. incumbent, W. L. Buckle, 1813: contains 500 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 46: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 52: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2795: poor rates in 1837, £31.

ADWICK-UPON-DEARNE, WEST-RIDING, YORK, a parochial chapelry in the wapentake of Tickhill, union of Doncaster: 180 miles from London (coach road 167), 6 from Rotherham, 7 from Doncaster.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Rotherham, and Wath station, thence 1 mile. N. of Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 48 miles.---Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---It is about a mile from the spot where the North Midland Railway crosses the Dearne and Dove Canal. To the west 2 miles, nearer to Doncaster, lies Sprotborough Hall, the seat of Sir J. N. Copley, Bart., which was built in the time of Charles II. by Sir Godfrey Copley, the first baronet.---The living, a perpetual curacy annexed to the vicarage of Wath-upon-Deerne, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £20. 5s.: pres. net joint income, £350: patron, Christ Ch. Oxford: pres. incumbent, H. Partington, 1833: contains 1,130 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 180: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 207: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,375: poor rates in 1837, £144.---E. 2 m. is Grose House; N. 1½ m. Bamborough Hall.

ADWICK-LE-STREET, WEST-RIDING, YORK, a parish in the same wapentake and union: 189 miles from London (coach road 166), 4 from Doncaster, 9 from Pontefract.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Rotherham, and Darfield station, thence 8 miles. N. of Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 57 miles.---Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---This place lies on the north of Doncaster, and derives the adjunct to its name from being situated on the Roman Road or Street, which runs in almost a straight line through Bawtry and Doncaster.---The living (St. Lawrence), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £364: patron, T. Fullerton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. R. Symonds, 1843: contains 2,950 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 554: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 637: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,456: poor rates in 1837, £84.---N.W. 1½ m. Red House; S. ½ m. Woodlands.

AFF-PUDDLE (or AFF-PIDDLE, or AFF-POX-

DELL), DORSET, a parish and township in the south division of Blandford, hund<sup>d</sup> of Hundred's-Barrow, Wareham union. The parish consists of the following hamlets and farms:---Pallington, Briant's Puddle, Oker's-wood, Roger's-hill, Thrope, and Waddock. 138½ miles from London (coach road 111), 9 from Dorchester, 12 from Blandford.---Sou. West. Rail. to Southampton and Moreton station, thence 2½ miles. S. of Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, and Taunton, 176 miles, thence 48 miles.---Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---On the summit of a hill, on the road from Piddleton to Poole, are 112 pits, the largest 60 yards across, which in the wettest seasons do not contain water; and on the heath are many more. It is matter of conjecture and discussion whether they are natural or artificial; if the latter, for what purpose they could be intended.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, formerly in the diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £8. 14s. 9d.: pres. net income, £64: patron, J. Frampton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Richard Waldy, 1824: contains 4,940 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 507: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 523: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,000: poor rates in 1837, £155.

AGDEN, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Malpas: 181 miles from London (coach road 177), 3 from Malpas, 11 from Nantwich.---Nor. West. Rail. to Stafford and Crewe, thence 15 miles. W. of Derby, through Tamworth, Crewe, &c., 90 miles.---Money orders issued at Malpas: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Contains 670 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 105: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 120: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £619: poor rates in 1837, £30.---E. 1½ m. is Wickstead Hall; and 2 m. Marbury Hall.

AGDEN, CHESTER, a township partly in the parish of Rosthern, but chiefly in that of Bowdon: 201 miles from London (coach road 179), 6 from Knutsford, 10 from Warrington.---Gt. West. Rail. to Birmingham, Crewe, Warrington, and Heatley station, thence 3 miles. W. of Derby, through Crewe, 94 miles.---Money orders issued at Knutsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 670 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 119: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 135: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,026: poor rates in 1837, £72.---N. 1 m. Outrington Hall, the seat of Trafford Trafford, Esq.; ½ m. Agden Hall, Garland Hall, and High Leigh Hall, the seat of Cornwall Leigh, Esq., M.P. Several branches of this family have lived in this part of the county for centuries. The present possessor traces his pedigree nearly to the Norman conquest.

AGEL-THORPE (or AYLETHORPE), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Coverham, wapentake of Hang-Weash: 269½ miles from London (coach road 226), 3 from Middleham, 4 from Masham.---Nor. West. Rail. to York and Bedale, thence 13 miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 137 miles.---Money orders issued at Middleham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 12 noon.---Contains 1,090 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 210: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 240: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,946.---N. 1 m. Penhill Park; 2 m. Bolton Hall.

AGLONBY, CUMMERLANE, a township in the parish of Warwick: 271 miles from London (coach road 302), 3 from Carlisle, 18 from Penfith.---Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe and Carlisle, thence 3 miles. N. of Derby, through Tamworth, Crewe, &c., 187 miles.---Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.; post closes 3 p.m.---Contains 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 122; probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 139.

AGMONDESHAM, BUCCA. See AMERSHAM.

AGNES (St.), CORNWALL, a parochial chapelry and market-town, situated on the Bristol channel, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pyder, union of Truro, western division of the county of Cornwall: 294 miles from London (coach road 256), 9 from Truro, 14 from Falmouth.---Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 50 miles. S.W. of Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Plymouth, &c., 306½ miles.---Money orders issued at Truro: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 5 p.m.; post closes 10 p.m.---There was once a port here, but it is choked up with sand. The coast is bold and rocky. St. Agnes' beacon is a pyramidal hill, upwards of 600 feet above the level of the sea: its geological structure is very peculiar; it is thus described by Borlase:—The strata, upon digging, appear in the following order: the vegetable soil, and common rubble under it, 5 feet deep; a fine sort of white and yellow clay, 6 feet; under this, a layer of sand of the same nature as that of the sea below, 6 feet; beneath this, a layer of smooth rounded pebbles like those on the beach; under this, 4 feet of a white stony rubble and earth, and then the firm rock (hills), in which the tin lodes slope their course. Hals observes: On the summit there are three sparrows' nests consisting of a vast number of these stones, great and small, piled up together in memory of some once notable human creatures, before the sixth century interred here. During the war, these were converted into a beacon, to communicate intelligence into the interior in case of invasion. On the south-east, and also on the north, are some rich mines: in the principal one, the Huel Fewan, pronounced Wheal Fuan, 800 hands are employed. Peranzabuloe, the mother church of this chapelry, has recently excited considerable notice with the religious world, from the bearing it has on the question—whether England received Christianity through the Romish church? There was a record or tradition of a chapel, which never belonged to that church, being here buried in the sand; and one has been discovered and dug out. A few miles eastward of St. Agnes is one of those al fresco amphitheatres, of which there are several in this part of the country: it consists of a succession of raised turf seats, seven in number. There is great diversity of opinion as to the purpose for which these amphitheatres were originally intended: some suppose them to have been constructed by the ancient Britons, as places to assemble for the administration of justice: others imagine them to be of later construction, and designed to accommodate the spectators of the primitive pastimes and plays of the country: more recently they were used as arenas for the exhibition of the feats of wrestling, in which the natives of this county vied with those of Somerset. The name of this one, "Piran's round," together with its proximity to Peranzabuloe, which is a corruption of St. Piran in sabulo, i. e. St. Piran

VOL. I.

in the sand, suggests another purpose for which it may have been intended. While St. Piran lived at Peranzabuloe, this may have been a place of assemblage of worshippers of the True God, in very early days of the Christian dispensation.---The living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Piran in Sabulo, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £33: contains 8,660 acres: 1,081 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 7,757; probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 8,920: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £9,929: poor rates in 1837, £1,210.---Market days on Thursday: Fair on the 30th of April.

AGNES (St.) See SCILLY ISLANDS.

AIQBUEETH, LANCASHIRE, a hamlet in the township of Allerton: 205½ miles from London, 4½ from Liverpool.---Nor. West. Rail. to Liverpool, via Trent Valley, 201, thence 4½ miles. N. of Derby, through Tamworth to Liverpool, &c., 121½ miles.---Money orders issued at Liverpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.; post closes 3 p.m.---The living (St. Anne),—see CHILDWALL. The patronage is in Trust: pres. incumbent, W. J. Purdon, 1842.

AIGHTON, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Mitton, and returned in connection with the hamlets of Bailey and Chaigley, as having a population of 2,277 in 1841: 22½ miles from London (coach road 210), 6 from Clitheroe, 12 from Preston.---Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe, Wigan, Preston, and Thornley, thence 3 miles. N. of Derby, through Tamworth, Crewe, &c., 140 miles.---Money orders issued at Clitheroe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.; post closes 5 p.m.---In this township is Stoneyhurst, once the princely mansion of the Sherburnes. It came into the hands of the Wilds in 1754, as heirs at law of their cousin, the Duchess of Norfolk, who was the daughter of Sir Nicholas Sherburne. Whitaker, in his History of Whalley, says:—This venerable house stands on an eminence, which commands some extensive views both of Calder bottom and Ribblesdale; but it is well screened from the north, by the vast bulk and extent of Longridge Fells. It was probably begun by Sir B. Sherburne, who died in 1594. The heavy cupolas were added by Sir Nicholas, who resided here in 1695: the canals were dug and the gardens laid out by himself in the Dutch taste. According to the custom of our old mansions, the domestic chapel was above the gateway; but a spacious and handsome oratory has been more recently fitted up, which, together with the size and general disposition of the apartments, render the whole easily convertible to the purpose of a large Catholic seminary, to which it is now appropriated.---Contains 5,780 acres: 286 houses: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,580: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,084: poor rates in 1837, £408.---N. 1½ m. is Chaigley Manbr: S. 2 m. Huntingdon Hall.

AIKBAR, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Finghall: 262 miles from London (coach road 234), 5 from Middleham, 6 from Richmond.---Nor. West. Rail. to York and Bedale, thence 5 miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 130 miles.---Money orders issued at Middleham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.; post closes 12 noon.---Contains 750 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 60: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 69: poor rates in 1837, £32.---N.W. 2 m. is Garviston Park; N. 2 m. Hornby Castle; E. 2 m. Grosewood House.

AIKE, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township, partly in the parish of Lockington, and partly in that of St. John, Beverley: 213½ miles from London (coach road 190), 6 from Beverley, 7 from Great Driffield. —East. Co. Rail. to Peterborough and New Holland, 198½ miles, from which cross the Humber to Hull (by steam-packet in connexion, taking about 20 minutes), thence per rail. to Lockington, 12½, thence 1 mile; or by Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Wakefield, Selby, Hull, &c., 265 miles; from Derby take rail. to Wakefield, &c., 133 miles: or by Derby, Wakefield, Selby, to Lockington, &c., 265 miles. —Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —Contains 630 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 97: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 111: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £648: poor rates in 1837, £40.

AIKTON, CUMBERLAND, a parish in the union of Wigton, comprising the townships of Aikton, Biglands, Gamelsby, Wampool, and Wiggonby: 314 miles from London (coach road 309), 4 from Wigton, 9 from Carlisle. —Nor. West. Rail. to Carlisle and Wigton, thence 4 miles. N. of Derby, through Crowe to Carlisle, &c., 230 miles. —Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2½ p.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £14. 13s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £546: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, S. J. Goodenough, 1844: contains 5,270 acres: 150 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 802: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 923: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,174: poor rates in 1837, £362. —S. lies Crofton Hall, the seat of Sir Westall Brisco, Bart., the late proprietor of which, by planting and draining, greatly improved this part of the county.

AILESBUURY, BUCKS.—See ATLESBURY.

AILESWORTH, NORTHAMPTON, a hamlet in the parish of Castor, hun<sup>d</sup> of Nasseburgh, union of Peterborough: 107½ miles from London (coach road 83), 5½ from Peterborough, 9 from Stamford. —East. Co. Rail. to Peterborough, thence 5½ miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Northampton and Castor, 109, thence 2 miles. S.E. of Derby, through Stamford to Peterborough, 70, thence 5½ miles. —Money orders issued at Peterborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —In the parish of Castor was the site of the Roman station, Durobrivis-on-the-New, of which further mention is made under the head CASTOR. —For ecclesiastical statistics, see CASTOR. Contains 56 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,000: poor rates in 1837, £80. —E. 1½ m. is Milton Park, the seat of Earl Fitzwilliam, once belonging to the abbots of Medenhamstead. The house is an irregular structure of various dates.

AILSBY, LINCOLNSHIRE: 181½ miles from London, 4 from Great Grimsby, 9 from Caistor, 15 from Barton. —East. Co. Rail. to Peterborough, 102½ miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to do., 110½, thence by Gt. North. Rail. to Great Grimsby, 75, thence 4 miles. E. of Derby, through Lincoln, 50, thence 28 miles. —Money orders issued at Great Grimsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2½ p.m.: post closes 12 noon. —S. 1½ m. is Lanby Hall; W. 1 m. Riby Grove.

AINDERBY-MYERS (or AINDERBY-IN-THE-MIRE), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a joint township with Holthby, in the parish of Hornby: 256½ miles from London (coach road 222), 3 from Catterick, 4 from Richmond. —Nor. West. Rail. to York and Northallerton, thence 7½ miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 124½ miles. —Money orders issued at Catterick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —Contains 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 112: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 129: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,222: poor rates in 1837, £66. —S. 1 m. is Quernhow Hall; 2 m. Lean's Hall; N. 1 m. Hornby Castle, a seat of the Duke of Leeds.

AINDERBY-QUERNHOW, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Pickhill: 248 miles from London (coach road 217), 6 from Thirsk, 7 from Ripon. —Nor. West. Rail. to York and Thirsk, thence 6 miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 116 miles. —Money orders issued at Thirsk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —Contains 330 acres: 24 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £948: poor rates in 1837, £65.

AINDERBY-STEEPLE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of East Gilling, union of Northallerton, comprising the townships of Ainderby-Steeple, Morton-upon-Swale, Thirntoft, and Warlaby: 251½ miles from London (coach road 223), 2 from Northallerton, 12 from Darlington. —Nor. West. Rail. to York and Northallerton, thence 2 miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c. 119½ miles. —Money orders issued at Northallerton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5.40 p.m. —The living (St. Helen), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income £200: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, F. P. Walton, 1839: contains 4,500 acres: 173 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 760: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 875: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £866: poor rates in 1837, £98.

AINSTABLE, CUMBERLAND, a parish in Leath ward, union of Penrith: 297 miles from London (coach road 295), 11 from Penrith, 11 from Carlisle. —Nor. West. Rail. to Penrith and Moorhousehill station, thence 5 miles. N. of Derby, through Tamworth and Penrith, &c. 214 miles. —Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m. —On the east lies Armathwaite Castle, on the bank of the Eden, which here flows through a deep valley, and spreads out into a broad lake-like sheet of water; and then, assuming another character, "rushes down a cataract in sonorous violence over a bed of opposing rocks, whose immovable crags whirl the stream into eddies as it passes them in its impotent fury." —The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £8. 8s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £225: patron, F. Aglionby, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Bird, 1832: contains 4,119 acres: 117 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 501: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 576: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,668: poor rates in 1837, £160.

AINSWORTH (or COCHRY-IN-MIDDLETON), LANCASHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Middleton: 196 miles from London (coach road 189), 7 from Manchester, 3 from Bury. —Nor. West. Rail. to Manchester and Middleton station, thence 3 miles. N.W. of Derby, through Tamworth to Manchester, &c., 112 miles. —Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £27: pres. net income, £136: patron, Rector of Middleton: pres. incumbent, R. Heslop, 1836: contains 1,090 acres: 258 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,598: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1837: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,213: poor rates in 1837, £345.

AINTHORN (or ANTHORN), CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bowness, situated at the entrance of the Whampool river, on a small lake communicating with Morecombe Bay: 312 miles from London (coach road 315), 10 from Wigton, 12 from Carlisle.—Nor. West. Rail. to Carlisle, thence 12 miles. N.W. of Derby, through Tamworth to Carlisle, &c., 216 miles.—Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4 p.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—Contains 39 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £631.

AINTREE, LANCASHIRE, a township in the parish of Sephton: 207 miles from London (coach road 212), 6 from Liverpool, 8 from Ormskirk.—Nor. West. Rail. to Liverpool and Aintree station. N.W. of Derby, through Tamworth to Liverpool, &c., 123 miles.—Money orders issued at Liverpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—Contains 840 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 277: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 310: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,222: poor rates in 1837, £170. S. 2 m. is Fazakerley Hall; W. 2 m. Stord Park.

AIRTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kirkby, in Malham dale, on the river Aire: 240 miles from London (coach road 230), 6 from Settle, 8 from Skipton.—Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Leeds, and Skipton, thence 8 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Manchester, Skipton, &c., 253 miles. North of Derby, through Leeds, &c., 103 miles.—Money orders issued at Settle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.—Contains 2,790 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 209: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 239: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,056: poor rates in 1837, £59.

AIRYHOLME, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Hovingham: 235 miles from London (coach road 223), 7 from New Malton, 16 from York.—Nor. West. Rail. to York and Thornton, thence 6 miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 103 miles.—Money orders issued at Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.—Contains 690 acres: 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841 (with that of Hawthorpe), 57: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 72: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £454: poor rates in 1837, £21.—S. 1½ m. is Wiggenthorpe Park.

AISENBY (or AYSTENBY), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Topcliffe: 240 miles from London (coach road 211), 6 from Boroughbridge, 6 from Ripon.—Nor. West. Rail. to York and Sessay station, thence 3 miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 108 miles.—Money orders issued at Boroughbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—Contains 800 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 268: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 304: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,481: poor rates in 1837, £78.—N. 1½ m. is Newby Hall, the seat of Lord Grantham. The house was built from designs by Sir C. Wren, who also chose the site. The statue gallery is perhaps the finest in the kingdom.

AISHOLT, SOMERSET. See ASHOLT.

AISHOLT (LOWER), SOMERSET, a hamlet in the parish of Aisholt, hun<sup>d</sup> of Cannington: 159½ miles from London (coach road 148), 8 from Bridgewater.—Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 8 miles. S.W. of Derby, through Birmingham, Bridgewater, &c., 172 miles.—Money orders issued at Bridgewater: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—N. 1 m. is Barford House; E. 2 m. Park House; S.E. 1½ m. Broomfield Park.

AISKEW, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Bedale: 247 miles from London (coach road 223), 1 from Bedale, 6 from Northalerton.—Nor. West. Rail. to York and Bedale, thence 1 mile. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 115 miles.—Money orders issued at Bedale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.—Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 661: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 754: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,289: poor rates in 1837, £230.—E. 1½ m. is Newton House; S. 1½ m. Firby Park; 2 m. Thorpe Perrow.

AISLABY (or AYSLEBY), DURHAM, a township in the parish of Eaglescliffe, a little to the south of the Stockton and Darlington Railway, and situated on the river Tees: 273 miles from London (coach road 244), 4 from Stockton, 11 from Darlington.—Nor. West. Rail. to York, Darlington, and Yarm station, thence 1½ miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 141 miles.—Money orders issued at Stockton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—Contains 1,660 acres: 123 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 161: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 181: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,466: poor rates in 1837, £175.

AISLABY (or AYSLABY), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township and chapelry in the parish of Whitby: 273 miles from London (coach road 237), 2 from Whitby, 18 from Scarborough.—Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, York, and Sleights, thence 2 miles; or East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Peterborough and New Holland, and across the Humber to Hull, thence per rail to Sleights, &c., 289 miles. N.W. of Derby, through York, &c., 141 miles.—Money orders issued at Whitby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3 p.m.: post closes 9½ p.m.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, diocese of York, is valued in the Parliamentary return at £45: pres. net income, £87: patron, Mrs. Boulby: pres. incumbent, J. Harrison, 1844: contains 1,080 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 474: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 545: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,251: poor rates in 1837, £42.—N.E. 1 m. is Carr Hall; N.W. 2 m. Alder Park; S. 1 m. Grove Hall; 1½ m. Esk Hall.

AISLABY (or AYSLABY), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township, partly in the parish of Whitby, partly in that of Middleton: 252 miles from London (coach road 224), 2 from Pickering, 6 from Kirby-Ironside.—Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, York, and Pickering, thence 2 miles; or East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Peterborough and New Holland, crossing the Humber to Hull, thence per rail to Pickering, 268 miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 120 miles.—Money orders issued at Pickering: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1½ p.m.—Contains 2,190 acres: 90 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 462: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 530: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,333: poor rates in 1837, £75.—N.W. 2 m. is Bog Hall, and Sunnington Manor.

AISMUNDERBY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the chapelry of Ripon: 247 miles from London (coach road 212), 1 from Ripon, 6 from Boroughbridge. — Nor. West. Rail. to York and Boroughbridge, thence 6 miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 115 miles. — Money orders issued at Ripon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — Contains 2,830 acres: 142 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, returned with the townships of Bondgate and Markingfield, 825: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 947: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,916: poor rates in 1837, £268. — W. 1 m. is Studley Hall. Brigland says that the park contains about 700 acres, and the pleasure grounds about 300. "Studley is remarkable for its pleasure grounds, which are generally ranked among the first in England. They are situated at the distance of at least three-fourths of a mile from the house, in a valley, through which a small brook runs from Fountain's Abbey, and the hills on each side are covered with wood; a number of fine trees, displaying the most luxuriant foliage, adorn the entrance," &c. — See ALDFIELD.

AISTHORPE (or EAST THORPE), LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Lawress, parts of Lindsey, union of Lincoln: 172 miles from London (coach road 140), 7 from Lincoln, 12 from Gainsborough. — Nor. West. Rail. to Lincoln, thence 7 miles; or East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Peterborough, Lincoln, &c., 173 miles. S. of Derby, through Lincoln, &c., 57 miles. — Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, with the vicarage of Thorpe-le-Falwols, in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4. 10s.: pres. net income, £289: patron, J. Milnes, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. Milnes, 1833: contains 1,150 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 82: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 94: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,068: poor rates in 1837, £45.

AKA, NORTHUMBERLAND. See ROCK.

AKEBAR. See AKEBAR.

AKELD, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Kirk-Newton: 365 miles from London (coach road 322), 2 from Wooler, 9 from Coldstream. — Nor. West. Rail. to York, Newcastle, and Belford, thence 11 miles. N. of Derby, through York, &c., 233 miles. — Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 196: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 226: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,503: poor rates in 1837, £130.

AKELY (or OAKLEY-CUM-STOCKHOLT), BUCKS, a parish and township in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Buckingham: 59½ miles from London (coach road 59), 3 from Buckingham, 6 from Stoney-Stratford. — Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverton, thence 7 miles. S. of Derby, through Wolverton, &c., 87 miles. — Money orders issued at Buckingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £255: patron, New College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. H. Risley, 1841: contains 1,080 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 362: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 410: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,354: poor rates in 1837, £146: tithes commuted in 1794.

AKENHAM, SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Bosmere and Claydon: 75 miles from London (coach road 73), 4 from Ipswich, 9 from Woodbridge. — East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Ipswich and Claydon station, thence 2 miles. S.W. of Derby, through London to Ipswich, &c., 207 miles. — Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, united with Claydon, is valued at £9. 11s. 5d.: pres. net income, £549: patron, Miss E. Drury: pres. incumbent, G. Drury, 1846: contains 1,060 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 117: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 135: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,052: poor rates in 1837, £102.

ALBANS (St.), HERTFORD, a borough and market-town, having separate jurisdiction, in the liberty and union of St. Albans: 26 miles from London (coach road 21), 8 from Watford, 12 from Dunstable. — Nor. West. Rail. to King's Langley, thence 5 miles. S. of Derby, through Tamworth and King's Langley, &c. 116 miles. — St. Albans stands on the site of Verulam, a town of greater antiquity than London. It was of great importance under the Romans, standing on their main north road, and being the point from which many cross roads diverged, and had the rank of a municipium. It was sacked by Boadicea; but, after her defeat by Suetonius, it recovered its former position. In 303, during the persecution of Diocletian, Albanus, a Roman officer, was put to death for holding the Christian faith; and at that time, so great was the hatred of the inhabitants to him, who has since become the tutelary saint of the town, that a stone was inserted in the city walls recording his execution, in order to deter others from embracing Christianity; but a very few years afterwards a church was built to his memory on the spot where he suffered, which was the site of the Abbey Church. The abbey was founded by Offa, king of Mercia, in the middle of the 8th century, by way of a set-off against the atrocities he had committed, which were not of an ordinary character even for those times. With a view to the carrying out of this undertaking, Offa made a journey to Rome, on which occasion he renewed and confirmed to the Pope the right to Peter's pence, a tax which the English paid for several subsequent centuries. After his return, he collected a convent of monks from houses of the most regular discipline, and founded the monastery. Antiquarians have disputed whether Offa's was an original structure, or whether he built at all at St. Albans. Matthew Paris says, "Offa, at his own expense, constructed all the buildings, except an old edifice, which he found erected formerly, out of the ancient edifices of the heathen." It seems that, to the time of the Conquest, the abbots, at intervals, employed themselves in collecting from the remains of the old Roman town, which lay on the banks of the river, materials to rebuild the abbey; and during the time of Eadmar, the eighth abbot, a very extraordinary discovery was made. The workmen found in a small chamber, in the walls of a massive building, "among some lesser books and rolls, an unknown volume of one book, which was not mutilated by its long continuance there, of which neither the letters nor the dialect, from their antiquity, were known to any person that could then be found; but the inscriptions and titles in it shone resplendent in letters of gold." The narrative goes on, that at last an old monk, named Unwon, was found, very learned in dialects, and that he read the work, and also parts of the other books which were with it, "for the letters were such as used to be written when Verulam was inhabited, and the dialect was that of the ancient Britons, then used by them." "In the first book, the greater one, was found written the HISTORY OF ST. ALBAN, the proto-martyr of the English." The conclusion of the tale is, that when Eadmar had caused it to be translated into Latin, "what is wonderful to tell, the primitive and original work fell away into round pieces, and was soon reduced irrecoverably to dust." In 993, Ælfrie (who is mentioned under ABRINGDON), became abbot, succeeding his brother Leofric, who was promoted to Canterbury; but who, while abbot, in order to relieve the poor during a terrible famine, sold a considerable portion of the material which his predecessors had collected from the ruins of the old town. Ælfrie obtained from King Ethelred a grant of the royal manor and palace of Kingsbury, which was confirmed by Canute. In 1066, the abbacy devolved on Frederic, who was of the royal Saxon blood. It was this spirited ecclesiastic who, near Berkhamstead, impeded the march of the Normans, by felling the trees which grew along the line of their route; and who, when interrogated by the conqueror, justified himself, saying "that he had done but his duty, and that if all the other ecclesiastics in the kingdom had done theirs, the Normans would not have become masters of it." He was the prime mover in the confederation which compelled William to swear, before the nobles and prelates assembled at Berkhamstead, that he would govern according to the ancient laws of the realm (or, in modern parlance, made him swear to the constitution). But William bided his time, and punished the abbot severely, and nearly ruined the abbey. In Stephen's time, the abbot was Robert de Gorham, the first who was mitred: he procured from Pope Adrian IV., who was a native of the place, very valuable privileges and immunities: among others, that of precedence over all other abbots in the kingdom. In the middle of the 15th century, Duke Humphrey of Gloucester was interred here. His bones are shown in a small vault. And a few years after, the first battle of St. Albans was fought between Henry VI. in person, against the Duke of York and the Earls of Warwick and Salisbury. Six years later, the second battle was fought on Shrove-Tuesday. After the death of the Duke of York, Queen Margaret overcame the Earl of Warwick, who lost many officers of distinction; among others, Grey of Groby, the first husband of Elizabeth Woodville. His effigy still exists as a monumental brass in the floor of the chancel. About 20 years after this event, Abbot Wallingford made the place memorable by introducing the art of printing, then new. In 1523, Wolsey, who was Bishop of Winchester, Archbishop of York, Chancellor of England, a Cardinal, and Legate, took this abbacy "in commendam." On his disgrace, the abbey came into the hands of Henry VIII., who pardoned Wolsey, and allowed him to resume the style of Abbot of St. Albans; but reserved to himself the revenues, which he distributed among his courtiers. However, he kept the Abbey

Church, which his son, Edward VI., sold to the town for £400, and at the same time gave a charter of incorporation. Local tradition asserts that Cromwell used the abbey as a stable, which accounts for the mutilated state of the sepulchral inscriptions and brasses. Besides the brass of Sir J. Grey of Groby, is one of Thomas de la Marre: it is the largest in the kingdom, being nearly 10 feet long by 6 wide, but is unfortunately broken in two. It is in a chapel under one of the arches, called Whethamstead's tomb, being built for the abbot of that name. Facing it is a very splendid tomb to Abbot Ramrydge. The church, or abbey, is 200 yards long, 60 wide, and 65 feet high; the tower is 174 feet high. The material of which it is built bears out the statement of its being gathered from the ruins of Verulamium, for much Roman material is worked up in it. Attempts are made to restore it; but its immense extent, and the amount of work required, prevent much being done beyond preventing it getting worse. The old abbey gate, west of the church, is the jail for the liberty of St. Albans. There are two other churches, St. Michael, which contains the monument of Lord Bacon, and St. Peter's, which, after much parish squabbling and jobbing, was obliged to be rebuilt about 40 years since. There are here several good schools; and "the Buildings," a charitable institution, founded by Sarah Duchess of Marlborough for 86 poor men and women; also almshouses for 10 poor widows. The town-hall and market-house is in Peter Street: near it is a tower, which is part of the palace of Kingsbury, mentioned above. There are here a silk-mill and a cotton-factory; but straw-plait is the great source of occupation. The borough returns two members to Parliament, and includes St. Albans, St. Michael's, St. Peter's, and part of St. Stephen's. Under the charter of Edward VI., it is governed by a mayor, aldermen, and councillors, who hold a court the first Wednesday in the month: on Saturday there is a court of requests. Gorhambury, the seat of Lord Verulam, was originally granted by Abbot de Gorham to one of his relatives. Abbot de la Marre repurchased it. At the dissolution, the King gave it to Sir Ralph Rowlat, whose daughter's husband, Sir John Maynard, sold it to Sir Nicholas Bacon. At the death of Lord Bacon, it became the property of Sir T. Meautys, who is buried in St. Peter's church. From his family it was purchased by Sir Harbottle Grimstone, a member of an old Norman family, and who became distinguished in the Parliamentary contest, in which he appears to have taken an active part, being one of the first to oppose the illegal exactions of the King, and again foremost in pressing the acceptance of the King's concessions, for which he was forcibly expelled the house by Cromwell. The present Earl is a direct descendant from him in the female line. The house is beautifully situated in a park of 600 acres, containing a fine head of deer. One part of it forms an excellent race-course. The Gorhambury races are well attended, and there is some good running. In the house are some fine pictures, especially portraits. The living, a discharged rectory, in the patronage of the Corporation, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £111: pres. incumbent, H. J. B. Nicholson, 1835: contains 320 acres: 996 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841,

2,904: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,353: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £20,881: poor rates in 1837, £2,880.---Market-days, Saturday. Fairs, March 25 and 26, for horses, cattle, &c., and Oct. 11. C. Inns, Pea-hen, Wool Pack, Turf Hotel. F. Hotels, Great Red Lion, Angel, Wool Pack, Verulam Arms, Cross Keys.

ALBERBURY, SALOP. See ABERBURY.

ALBORNE (or ALNESBORN), SUFFOLK, a depopulated hamlet in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Colneis.---"Here," says Tanner, "was a small priory of Austin canons, dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, which seems, about 1466, or at all events some time before the general suppression, to have been joined and appropriated to the monastery at Woodbridge."

ALBOURN, SUSSEX, a parish in Tipnook hun<sup>d</sup>. rape of Bramber, union of Cuckfield: 46½ miles from London (coach road 42), 2 from Hurst-Pierpoint, 8 from Brighton.---Sou. East. Rail. to Reigate and Hastings junction, thence 3 miles. S. of Derby, through London to Reigate, &c., 178½ miles.---Money orders issued at Hurst-Pierpoint: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The living (St. Bartholomew), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £7. 14s. 2d.: pres. net income, £225: patron, John Goring, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Campion, 1842: contains 1,280 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 395: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 454: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,647: poor rates in 1837, £294.---Inn, King's Head.

ALBRIGHTON, SALOP, a parish, formerly a market-town, in the Shiffnall division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brimstree, union of Shiffnall: 134 miles from London (coach road 137), 6 from Shiffnall, 7 from Wolverhampton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 7 miles. S.W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 55 miles.---Money orders issued at Shiffnall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Salop, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £5. 10s.: pres. net income, £651: alternate patrons, the Company of Haberdashers, and Christ's Hospital: pres. incumbent, G. W. Woodhouse, 1836: contains 2,970 acres: 211 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,058: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,216: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,357: poor rates in 1837, £289.---Fairs, first Monday in March, May 23d, July 18th, for cattle, sheep, and swine.

ALBRIGHTON, SALOP, a township and chapelry in the parish of St. Mary, Shrewsbury: 160 miles from London (coach road 157), 4 from Shrewsbury, 7 from Wem.---Nor. West. Rail. to Stafford, via Trent Valley, thence 27 miles. S.W. of Derby, through Tamworth and Stafford, &c., 77 miles.---Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (St. John), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Salop, diocese of Lichfield.---See SHREWSBURY.---Contains 9 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £883: poor rates in 1837, £23.

ALBURGH, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Earsham, union of Depwade: 106 miles from London (coach road 103), 3 from Harleston, 5 from Bungay.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Ipswich and Haughley Road station, thence 23 miles. S.E. of Derby, through Peterborough and Norwich, 202 miles, thence 12½ miles.---Money orders issued at Harleston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The tower of the church is square, Norman, and the interior fittings are very finely carved in oak.---The living (All Saints'), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £395: patron, St. John's Coll. Cam.: pres. incumbent, J. A. Coombe, 1846: contains 1,512 acres: 113 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 589: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 657: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,393: poor rates in 1837, £228.---Inn, King's Head.

ALBURY, HARTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Edwinstree, union of Bishop-Stortford: 40½ miles from London (coach road 35), 5 from Bishop-Stortford, 4 from Standon.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Stanstead, thence 5 miles. S.E. of Derby, through London to Stanstead, 172½ miles: or through Peterborough, Cambridge, Stanstead, &c., 190 miles.---Money orders issued at Bishop-Stortford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---This place is mentioned in Domesday-book as El-derberie, belonging to the bishopric of London. It came into lay hands in the reign of Henry II., when it was held by Hugh de Bokeland. After passing through the possession of various families, it was bought by one of the Calvert family, of which there are several branches having seats in this county. The hall, which lies on the north, is now occupied by John Calvert, Esq. The church contains several ancient tombs of lords of the manor. One in the nave is remarkable on account of the dame lying at the right side of the knight, who is in armour; from which circumstance it is supposed to be the monument of John de la Lee and his wife, in whose right he obtained the manor, in the reign of Edward I., she being the heiress of the last of the Beards, who held it from the reign of Richard I. This is not an uncommon method of indicating that the wife was the holder of the manor.---The living (St. Mary), a vicarage, a peculiar of the dean and chapter of St. Paul's, is valued at £7. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, treasurer of St. Paul's: pres. incumbent, T. L. Bayliff, 1846: contains 3,200 acres: 132 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 641: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 723: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,852: poor rates in 1837, £386.

ALBURY (or ALDBURY), OXFORD, a parish and township in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bullington, union of Thame: 56½ miles from London (coach road 45), 3 from Tetworth, 4 from Thame.---Nor. West. Rail. to Aylesbury, thence 13 miles; or Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, 63 miles, thence 10 miles. S. of Derby, through Tamworth to Aylesbury, &c., 109 miles.---Money orders issued at Tetworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Helen), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £9. 2s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £276: patron, Earl of Abingdon, who is also lord of the manor: pres. incumbent, Hon. F. Bertie, 1820: contains 550 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, with Tiddington, of which Albury contributes 57 only, 244: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 281: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,453: poor rates in 1837, £87.---Inn, Three Pigeons.

ALBURY (or ALDERBURY), SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackheath, union of Guildford: 38 miles from London (coach road 29), 6 from Guildford, 7 from Dorking.---Sou. West. Rail. to Guildford and Chilworth, and thence  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile. S. of Derby, through London to Guildford, &c., 170 miles. Money orders issued at Guildford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The old church situated in the park is dilapidated, and service is not performed in it. It contains two remarkable octangular pillars, resting on circular bases of Sussex marble, supposed to be part of the remains of a Roman temple, which stood on the heath south-west, called Blackheath, of which we quote the following description:—"Mr. Bray, who visited this place in 1803, informs us, that the spot is marked by a square bank, 22 yards on each side, covered with short grass instead of surrounding heath. It occupies the centre of a square piece of ground 220 yards on each side, just ten times the size of the site of the building, containing 10 acres; on the west side is a double bank and a ditch, perfect. On digging into the banks, they were found to be full of fragments of Roman tiles, some having a raised ledge on one side, and mortar. Among them was also thrown up part of a stag's horn, and a small piece of an urn." "The Park," the seat of Martin Farquhar Tupper, Esq., a member of an old Guernsey family, was, in 1678, the property of the first Baron Guernsey, and Earl of Aylesford, who built the house, the old one having been burned. Just without the park, at the foot of the chalk hills, rises the spring which supplies the "Shirebourne Ponds," which are well worth the attention of the visitor. They lie on high ground: the larger one comprises an area of several acres, completely overshadowed by large elms, making a most delicious cool retreat in summer: the water is so remarkably pure and clear that the shoals of gold and silver fish with which it is tenanted, and which are of extraordinary beauty, may be seen swimming about as if there was very little depth of water. The temperature is so even, that though in summer the water is remarkably cold, yet they are rarely frozen over. In this parish was born the celebrated Malthus, whose Essay on Population has given his name to a system. He was professor of History and Political Economy at Haileybury, and died, aged 70, in 1835. The Malthusian, or anti-connubial system, is founded on the hypothesis that population increases in a geometrical, while provisions only increase in an arithmetical ratio. The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory in the deanery of Stoke, diocese of Winchester, rated in "the valor of Edward I. at 18 marks," and in the king's books at £17. 12s. 8d.: pres. net income, £429: patron, H. Drummond, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Hooper, 1834: contains 4,920 acres: 163 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,079: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,241: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,241: poor rates in 1837, £607. Drummond Arms Inn and Hotel. N.E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Netley Place: W. 2 m. Thalford House, the seat of Sir H. E. Austen: S. 1 m. Abinger Hall, the seat of Lord Abinger.

ALBY, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of South Erpingham, union of Aylesham: 146 miles from London (coach road 126), 6 from Aylesham, 5 from Cromer. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 20 miles. N.E. of Derby, through Peterboro', Norwich, &c., 222 miles. Money orders issued at Aylesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living (St. Ethelbert), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 11s.: pres. net income, £140: patron, Earl of Orford: pres. incumbent, Samuel Rees, 1843: contains 840 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 299: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 344: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £839: poor rates in 1837, £228: tithes commuted for £200. C. Inn and Family H., Horse Shoes. N.W.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Aldborough Hall, the seat of Johnson Gay, Esq.: N. 2 m. Hanworth: E. 2 m. Gunton, a very extensive well-planted domain, the seat of Lord Suffield: S.W. 2 m. Wollerton Hall, a seat of Lord Orford.

ALCANNINGS, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Swanborough, division and union of Devizes, at the source of the Avon: 80 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 92), 3 from Devizes, 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  from Marlborough. Gt. West. Rail. to Hungerford, thence 19 miles. W. of Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Swindon, 131, thence 19 miles. Money orders issued at Devizes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living, a rectory in the diocese of Sarum, united with Etehill Hampton: pres. net income, £1,200: patron, Lord Ashburton, who is also lord of the manor: pres. incumbent, T. A. Methuen, 1809: contains 3,221 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 663: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 720. St. Ann's-hill fair held Aug. 6, for cattle and sheep. Inn, King's Arms.

ALCESTER, DORSET, a liberty in the parish of St. James, Shaftesbury, and partly within that borough. "This liberty contains the manors and farms of Anketilplace, Blintisfield, Glydeford, Le Gore, and that of the dean of Sarum." Hutchins' Dorset, II. 31.—See ST. JAMES.

ALCESTER, WARWICK, a parish and market-town in the Alcester division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barlichway, union of Alcester, pleasantly situated at the junction of the Arrow and Alne rivers: 143 miles from London (coach road 105), 16 from Warwick, 8 from Stratford. Nor. West Rail. to Birmingham and Droitwich, thence 11 miles. S.W. of Derby, through Birmingham to Droitwich, &c. 72 miles. Money orders issued and paid here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. It derives its name from having been a "cestre," or castrum, on the Roman way, which may still be traced in the vicinity. In the time of the Saxons, it was an important place; but it is not mentioned in Domesday Book, nor are any records known earlier than Henry I., who made it a borough. In Stephen's time, a monastery was founded by Ralph Boteler; and in Henry III.'s reign, a moiety of the manor was purchased by the Beauchamps, who resided here till the time of Henry VIII., when the male line failing, the manor came to the Greilles, by marriage with the heiress of Sir R. Beauchamp. The site of their mansion is now occupied by a farm-house; and in the church is the tomb of the distinguished Sir Fulke Greville, who was highly esteemed by Elizabeth, and created Lord Brooke by James I., who gave him Warwick Castle. He founded a history lecture at Cambridge. In 1628, he was stabbed by a servant, whom he had reprimanded for insolence; the man committing suicide with the same weapon. After his death appeared the life of his friend, Sir Philip Sydney, and some poetical works. Some years since, the inhabitants of Alcester were very extensively engaged in the manufacture of needles; but this trade is very much fallen off, or removed elsewhere. In the market-hall, the Marquis of Hertford, lord of the manor, holds his courts. In the church, which was built in 1752, is a splendid monument by Chantrey, of the late Marquis of Hertford. Ragley Hall, the seat of the Marquis, lies 2 miles south-west. It was built by Lord Conway, but was very extensively improved under Wyatt. The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £14. 2s. 10d.: pres. net income, £259: patron, Marquis of Hertford: pres. incumbent, T. A. Methuen, 1809: contains 1,530 acres: 491 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,399: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,759: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,354: poor rates in 1837, £714. Market-days, Tuesday, principally for corn, which is extensively carried on here. Fairs, Tuesday before Jan. 29, Tuesday before Lady-day, third Tuesday in April, May 18, last Tuesday in July, third Tuesday in Sept., Oct. 17, and first Tuesday in Dec. Bankers, Gloucester Banking Company; draw on Williams, Deacon, and Co.: Stoussbridge and Kidderminster Banking Company, on market day; draw on Smith, Payne, and Smith: C. Inns, Bear, Swan. F. Hotels, Swan, Angel.

ALCISTON, SUSSEX, a hilly parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of the same name, union of West Fife, rape of Pevensey: 65½ miles from London (coach road 64), 7 from Lewes, 5 from Seaford. Sou. East. Rail. to Reigate, Lewes, and Berwick, thence ¼ mile: from Derby, through London to Reigate, &c. 197½ miles. Money orders issued at Lewes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £6.—(See SELWICKTON.) Contains 1,620 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 275: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 316: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,606: poor rates in 1837, £370. S. 1 m. is Berwick Court; N.W. 2 m. Firle Park; N. 2 m. Mays House.

ALCONBURY (or ALKMUNDSBURY), HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Leightonstone, union of Huntingdon, intersected by the Alconbury brook, a branch of the Ouse: 82 miles from London (coach road 63), 4 from Huntingdon, 8 from Kimbolton. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Huntingdon, thence 4 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, 63, thence 22 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Bedford, &c. 118 miles; or through Loughborough, Stamford, Peterborough, and Huntingdon, &c. 144 miles; or get out at Peterborough, 105, thence 15 miles. Money orders issued at Huntingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £8. 6s. 1d.: pres. net income, £162: patron, Dean and Chapter of Westminster: pres. incumbent, Jenkin Hughes, 1838: contains 3,700 acres: 156 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 823: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 947: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,622: poor rates in 1837, £505. Fair, June 24, for pedlar's ware. Lord of the manor, J. Rust, Esq. S. 1 m. is Stukely Hall; E. 1 m. Broughton Hall. This was given by King John to David, Earl of Huntingdon; and John the Scot, his son, bestowed it on Sir Stephen Segrave, which I rather mention, as he was one of those noblemen who serve as instances of the instability of power. He reached the summit of his ambition with difficulty, supported himself there with much trouble, and met with a sudden fall. In youth, from clerk he turned soldier; though of low birth, by his diligence he acquired so much wealth and honour, that he was reckoned among the chief men of the kingdom, was appointed judiciary of England, and managed almost all the affairs of the nation as he pleased: at length he quite lost the King's favour, and lay concealed till his death in a monastery. Thus, he who, at first, through pride, renounced the priesthood for the army, returned to the tonsure he had left.

ALCONBURY-WITH-WESTON, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Leightonstone: 63 miles from London, 5 from Huntingdon, 8 from Kimbolton. For access and postal arrangements, see ALCONBURY. The living, a perpetual curacy annexed to the vicarage of Alconbury, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is parochially united with Alconbury: contains 1,540 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 491: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 565: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,153: poor rates in 1837, £206. Lord of the manor, J. Rust, Esq.

ALDBOROUGH (or ALDBOROUGH), SUFFOLK, a seaport town and parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Plumegate, bounded on the west by the river Alde, from whence the town derives its name: 90 miles from London (coach road 94), 7½ from Saxe Mundham, 5 from Orford. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 22 miles: from Derby to London, and as above, 222 miles. Money orders paid and granted here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. Aldborough is very pleasantly situated; sheltered by a hill on the west, and facing the North Sea on the east. The river Alde rises in this county, and after a short course used to discharge at this spot, as appears by old records, and a plan dated 1559, still extant: at this time the town was separated from the sea by dunes of some extent, but they have disappeared before the action of the waters, or rather have formed the slip of land called the Lanthorn marshes, on which is Orford light: this slip of land turns the Alde, and makes it flow south-west, parallel with the shore, forming a fine estuary until, below Orford, it receives another small stream and falls into the sea. This was church property till Henry VIII. made his sweeping change, when he gave it to the Duke of Norfolk, at which time it was incorporated. It sent members to parliament in the reign of Elizabeth, and continued to do so till disfranchised by the reform bill. The present constitution of the corporation is under a charter of Charles II. A very productive fishery is carried on here; cod, soles, and lobsters being taken in considerable quantities: sprats and herrings are also taken and dried here. The class of vessels belonging to the port average fifty tons; there are forty or fifty of them. Since the commencement of the present century, Aldborough, having good sands, has been frequented for bathing, which has caused a considerable improvement in the town. This was the birthplace of Crabbe (1754), whose "Tales of the Hall,"

"The Village," &c., depict to the life, the subjects of which he treats with a simplicity and vigour painfully truthful, stirring the feelings far beyond what can be effected by elaborated sentimental descriptions.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £33. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £383: patron, F. J. V. Wentworth, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. T. Dowler, 1839: contains 1,600 acres: 320 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,757: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,994: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,500: poor rates in 1837, £760.---Market days, Wednesday and Saturday, but they have lately been discontinued. Fairs, 1st of March, 3d of May, for toys. Lion and New Commercial Inns. White Hart Hotel.

ALDBOROUGH, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Claro: it contains the townships of Aldborough, Boroughbridge (a market and post town), High and Low Dunsforth (and parts of Milley), Minskip, and Rocliffe (now constituted a separate parish for ecclesiastical purposes, the Rev. Arthur Maister, incumbent): 243 miles from London (coach road 207), 16½ from York, 6½ from Ripon.---Nor. West. Rail. to York and Boroughbridge, thence 1 mile: from Derby through York, &c., 109 miles.---Money orders issued at Boroughbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Aldborough, or Aldburgh, is the ancient Isaur, the capital of the Brigantes, by the Romans idiomized into Isurium. Julius Agricola was the first who completely subjugated the Brigantes, A.D. 79; and all the defences, ramparts, &c., of which remains are so plentiful here, must have been subsequent to that period, because they consist of stone; and Cæsar, in his Commentaries, tells us that the military defences of the Britons were earthen ramparts and the trunks of trees. Morris states that the area within the walls of Isurium was 60 acres, on the side of a hill sloping northward towards the river Ure. Coins, urns, tessellated pavements, domestic and sacrificial implements, &c., have been found in abundance. The ruins have formerly been laid under contribution for building purposes, but much still remains: the foundations are in most parts five yards thick. This space is now cultivated, and from the level at which the pavements are found, it appears that the ruins raise the surface three feet. Aldborough Lodge is the seat of Andrew Lawson, Esq., who inherits it from his elder brother Marmaduke.---The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the peculiar jurisdiction and patronage of the D<sup>n</sup> and Chp<sup>r</sup> of York, is valued at £9. 19s. 5d.: pres. net income, £368: pres. incumbent, G. K. Holdsworth, 1822: contains 1,890 acres: 116 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,365: poor rates in 1837, £259.---Returned 2 members, but disfranchised by Reform bill.---Market day, Saturday. Chartered Fairs in April, June (the largest), August, October, and December.

ALDBOROUGH, NORFOLK, a parish in the northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Erpingham, union of Erpingham: 143 miles from London (coach road 126), 5 from Aylesham, 6 from Cromer.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 18 miles: from Derby through Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 220 miles.---Money orders issued at Aylesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.

---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £173: patron, Lord Suffield: pres. incumbent, R. Shackburgh, 1832: contains 590 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 293: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 337: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,108: poor rates in 1837, £193.---Stock fair, 21st and 22d June, but if these days fall on Friday and Saturday, then held on the Monday and Tuesday following.---N. Aldborough Hall and Hanworth House; E. Gunton Hall, the seat of Lord Suffield.

ALDBOURNE (or AUBOURNE), WILTSHIRE, a parish in the division of Marlborough and Ramsbury, union of Hungerford: 69½ miles from London (coach road 73), 8 from Hungerford, 7 from Marlborough, 8 from Swindon.---Gt. West. Rail. to Hungerford, thence 8 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Gloucester, and Swindon, 131, thence 10 miles.---Money orders issued at Hungerford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---It is a place which was formerly of more importance than it is at present. To go back to an early period, there was a royal chase, and tradition asserts that King John had a hunting seat in this locality---(if King John had all the palaces which are assigned to him, he might have lived in a different house every day of the year);---another tradition is, that it was John of Gaunt who had the house here, and that part of it is now the vicarage. The town suffered considerably during the civil war; the parliamentary forces being defeated by Charles in person: but it suffered more severely in 1760, when a great part of it was destroyed by fire. Some years back the manufacture of fustians was carried on, but it has decayed. The forest or chase continued in the hands of the crown, till Henry VIII. gave it to the Duke of Somerset. In the "Ordinances of Royal Households" it is thus mentioned:---Among the forestes and parkes of the prince's, not disparted, and under his highness's government, is Alborne chase, in Wiltshire, in a maner disafforested by reason of the warren of conyes, these being in lease for a long time.---The living (St. Michael), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wiltshire, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £26. 6s. 3d.: pres. net income, £367: patron, Bishop of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, J. Seagram, 1832: contains 8,060 acres: 336 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,556: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,789: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,576: poor rates in 1837, £735.

ALDBROUGH, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Stanwick, on a tributary of the Tees: 265½ miles from London (coach road 240), 7 from Richmond, 7 from Darlington.---Nor. West. Rail. to York and Dalton, thence 6½ miles: from Derby through York, &c., 133½ miles.---Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---Contains 1,150 acres: 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 577: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 660: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,919: poor rates in 1837, £198.---N.W. 1½ m. Carlton Hall: W. 1 m. Stanwick Park; 2 m. Forcett Park, the seat of John Michell, Esq.

ALDBROUGH, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the middle division of the wapentake of Holderness, union of Skirlaugh, bordering on the northern sea. It contains the townships of Aldborough, East and West Newton, and part of Cawden: 257 miles from London (coach road 185), 11 from Hull, 6 from Hornsea. — Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Wakefield, and Hull, thence 13 miles; or East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Peterborough, 104, New Holland, 97, by steam-packet in connexion, cross the Humber to Hull, 13, in all 214 miles. — Money orders issued at Hull: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living (St. Bartholomew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £13. 15s.: pres. net income, £185: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. Craven, 1834: contains 5,240 acres: 213 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,119: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,287: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,913: poor rates in 1837, £574.

ALDBURY, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dacorum, union of Berkhamstead: 32½ miles from London (coach road 34), 3 from Tring, 7 from Dunstable. — Nor. West. Rail. to Tring station, thence 1 mile: from Derby through Tamworth, Tring, &c., 104 miles. — Money orders issued at Tring: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £20. 8s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £448: patrons, Trustees of the Earl of Bridgewater: pres. incumbent, D. Jenks, 1818: contains 2,020 acres: 133 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 790: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 907: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,942: poor rates in 1837, £322. — 1 m. Stocks House: E. 1½ m. Ashridge Park, the seat of the Countess of Bridgewater. The house was erected by the late duke on the site of the old abbey. It is said to have been a royal palace: afterwards it was a monastery of Austin Friars, and was endowed with the manors of Ashridge, Gaddesden, and Hemel Hempstead. Edward I. held in it a parliament, which was made memorable by a discussion on the subject of inflicting fines. Norden says: "Our most worthy and ever famous Queen Elizabeth lodged here." Elizabeth alienated it, and it quickly passed through several hands. The park is five miles in circuit, and is curiously situated: the centre is in Bucks, and the two sides in Herts: it contains some fine timber trees.

ALDBURY, SURREY. See ALBURY.

ALDBURY, HERTS. See ALBURY.

ALDBURY, OXFORD. See ALBURY.

ALDBY, NORFOLK. See ALBY.

ALDBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK. See BOSSALL.

ALDCLIFFE, LANCASTER, a hamlet in the parish of Lancaster, on the estuary of the Lune: 231½ miles from London, via Trent Valley, (coach road 238), 2 from Lancaster, 10 from Garstang. — Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe and Lancaster, thence 2 miles: from Derby through Manchester, Lancaster, &c., 141 miles. — Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Contains 680 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 111: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 126: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,335: poor rates in 1837, £117. — N. 1 m. Springfield Hall: S. 1 m. Aldcliffe Lodge; 2 m. Ashton Park, the seat of — Podder, Esq., Banker, Preston.

ALDEBY (or ALDEBURGH), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Clavering, union of Loddon and Clavering, bounded on the south by the Waveney river: 150 miles from London (coach road 112), 3 from Beccles, 11 from Yarmouth. — East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Norwich and Dalton, thence 11 miles: from Derby through Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 217 miles. — Money orders issued at Beccles: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — There was here a religious establishment; the building is now used as a malt-house. Aldeby Hall farm, consisting of 380 acres, belongs to the trustees of Ampton school, Suffolk. — The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £120: patron, Dean and Chapter of Norwich: pres. incumbent, A. H. Bellman, 1843: contains 2,690 acres: 72 houses: in 1841, the village of Alderby had a pop<sup>n</sup> of 496: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 573: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,867: poor rates in 1837, £201. — Tuns Inn. — W. 1 m. All Saints' Hall: S. ½ m. Aldeby Hall.

ALDENHAM, HERTS, an extensive parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cashio, union of Watford: 20½ miles from London (coach road 17), 3 from Watford, 6 from St. Alban's. — Nor. East. Rail. to Watford, thence 3 miles: from Derby through Tamworth, Watford, &c., 118 miles. — Money orders issued at Watford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £24: pres. net income, £425: patron, Trustees of P. Thellusson, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. Benbow, 1833: contains 5,830 acres: 278 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,662: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,911: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,186: poor rates in 1837, £411. — Chequers, and Three Horse Shoes Inns. — N. ½ m. is Aldenham Abbey, the seat of W. Stuart, Esq., grandson of the Earl of Bute, who filled several high official stations in the reign of George III.; but becoming unpopular, he resigned his situations and retired into private life, in which he was esteemed and beloved: 1½ m. Garston House: S. ¾ m. Dell's Row: W. 1½ m. Bushey Grove, the seat of H. H. Burchell, Esq.

ALDERBURY, WILTS, a parish in the division of Salisbury and Amesbury, union of Alderbury, containing the chapelries of Farley and Petton, and the tything of Alderbury: 99 miles from London (coach road 80), 3 from Salisbury, 4 from Downton. — Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 3 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Stroud, Reading, and Salisbury, 229, thence 3 miles; or through Birmingham, Stroud, and Swindon, 121, thence 38 miles. — Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — It stands on a hill in a fine sporting country. A woollen factory furnishes employment to a portion of the inhabitants. Clarendon, which lies about 1½ m. W., is the seat of Sir F. Bathurst, Bart. It is one of the hundred and one palaces assigned by tradition to King John. In 1164, Henry II. held a council here, which passed the celebrated "Constitution of Clarendon:" it consists of sixteen articles, the purport of which was to carry all ecclesiastical disputes, or rather all questions respecting ecclesiastical privileges, before the civil courts; and its object was to preserve the liberties of the subject from the encroachments of the hierarchy. Thomas à Becket was the only prelate who opposed it; but he, on finding the king resolute, signed the deed. Yet, afterwards on the pope declaring against the articles, he obtained absolution for the offence he had committed, and commenced that course of arrogant opposition to the government, which at length drew down retributive justice, through the unjustifiable violence of men whose pride was as great as his own, and their conduct as lawless. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, a peculiar of the treasurer of Salisbury cathedral: pres. net income, £162: patron, Bishop of Sarum: pres. incumbent, N. Smart, 1843: contains 2,100 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,440: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,656: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,689: poor rates in 1837, £218. — New Inn, and Green Dragon Inns. — S.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Alderbury House, the seat of G. Fert, Esq.; 1 m. Bodenham: W. 1 m. Longford Castle.

ALDERFORD, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eynesford, union of St. Faith's: 135 miles from London (coach road 108), 3 from Reepham, 9 from Norwich. — East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 9 miles: from Derby to Peterborough and Norwich, &c. 211 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, with the vicarage of Attlebridge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £219: patron, Dean and Chapter of Norwich: pres. incumbent, J. D. Parmeter, 1844: contains 454 acres: 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 44: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 50: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £532: poor rates in 1837, £54. — Bell Inn. — N. 2 m. is Girtton Hall; S.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Great Withingham, the seat of C. Kett Thompson, Esq.; 2 m. Weston Hall.

ALDERLEY, GLOUCESTER, a village and parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Grumbald's Ash, union of Chipping-Sodbury: 115 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 108), 2 from Wotton, 8 from Tetbury. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse and Charfield, thence 3 miles: from Derby to Birmingham, Gloucester, and Charfield, &c. 117 miles. — Money orders issued at Wotton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — It is situated in the fork of two small streams, which shortly after they unite, fall into the Avon. It was the birth place of Sir Matthew Hale (1600), whose remains lie in the church, in which is also his monument. His name is proverbial for an upright judge. He was counsel for Strafford, Laud, Hamilton, and the King. Under the commonwealth, he for some time sat on the bench; but, being required to pervert justice, he refused to try any more criminal cases. After the restoration, he filled the highest offices, and died in 1676. He wrote many works, religious, philosophical, and legal. — The living (St. Kenelme), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £11. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, R. H. B. Hale, Esq.: pres. incumbent, M. H. Whish, 1846: contains 730 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 174: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 200: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,787: poor rates in 1837, £181. — N. 1 m. Newark Park; S.E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Manor House, the seat of R. Hale, Esq., a descendant of Sir Matthew.

ALDERLEY, CHESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Macclesfield, comprising the townships of Superior and Inferior Alderley, and Great Warford. The pop<sup>n</sup> of the township of Upper Alderley in 1841 was 468; and of Lower Alderley, 662: 183 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 172), 8 from Congleton, 5 from Macclesfield. — Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe and Alderley: from Derby, through Tamworth, Crewe, &c. 92 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles. — Money orders issued at Congleton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 p.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The Park is a seat of the Stanley family, who are the chief proprietors of the neighbouring property. On the north of the Park, the ground rises rather abruptly, and forms a range of hills called Alderley Edge, of which the summit is about 360 feet above the church, and commands a very fine view. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £14. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £750: patron, Lord Stanley of Alderley: pres. incumbent, W. C. Cruttenden, 1847: contains 6,240 acres: 243 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,538: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,772: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £8,826. — S. 2 m. is Heawood Hall; E. 1 m. Clarendon Hall.

ALDERMASTON, BERKS, a parish and market-town in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Theale, union of Bradfield: 44 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 49), 10 from Reading, 8 from Newbury. — Gt. West. Rail. to Reading and Aldermaston station: from Derby, through London, and as above, 176 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles; or through Birmingham, Gloucester, Reading, &c. 178 miles. — Money orders issued at Reading: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £12. 12s. 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: patron, W. Congreve, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Sept. Bellas, 1835: contains 2,240 acres: 128 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 662: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 739: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,596: poor rates in 1837, £285. — Fairs, May 6, July 7, and Oct. 11, for horses, cattle, and pedlery. — S.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m., on the navigable river Kennet, stands Aldermaston Hall, the seat of W. Congreve, Esq., built in 1636; is remarkable for fine stained windows, its massive staircase, and lofty hall: it stands in a park of 800 acres, in which is some splendid oak timber. In 1664, Colonel Gage halted here on his way from Oxford to Basing House; and the Earl of Essex passed it on his way to the second battle of Newbury. In the house are some very fine pictures. N. 1 m. is Padworth House; E. 2 m. Mortimer House.

ALDERMINSTER, WORCESTER, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Oswaldslo, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pershore: 115 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 89), 5 from Stratford-on-Avon, 10 from Evesham. — Nor. West. Rail. to Leamington, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Coventry and Leamington, &c. 69 miles. — Money orders issued at Stratford-on-Avon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £170: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, M. C. Thompson, 1830: contains 3,480 acres: 94 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 508: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 576: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,831: poor rates in 1837, £196.

ALDERSEY, CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Coddington, on a small branch of the Dee: 180 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 175), 8 from Chester, 8 from Tarporley.---Nor. West Rail. to Crewe and Tattenhall, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 98 miles.---Contains 840 acres: 23 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,178: poor rates in 1837, £80.---N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Calveley Hall; W. 1 m. Aldford Hall; S.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Aldersey Hall.

ALDERSHOLT (or ALDERHOLT), DORSET, a tything in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of Cranborne, union of Winborne.---(See CRANBORNE.) 95 miles from London,  $\frac{1}{2}$  from Cranborne.---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 310: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 355.

ALDERSHOLT, SOUTHAMPTON, a parish and hamlet in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Crondall, division of Basingstoke: 36 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 35), 3 from Farnham, 6 from Frimley.---Sou. West. Rail. to Farnham, thence 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 168 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles.---Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Michael), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, endowed with £1,800 parliamentary grant, is valued at £15: pres. net income £64: in the patronage of the principal landed proprietors, who are J. Eggar, S. Andrews, J. Aldens, and W. Tice, Esqrs.: pres. incumbent, H. Carey, 1838: contains 4,070 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 685: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 788: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,864: poor rates in 1837, £210.---Red Lion Inn.---S.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Farnham Park.

ALDERTON, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Tewkesbury, union of Winchcomb: 137 miles from London (coach road 102), 7 from Cheltenham, 7 from Tewkesbury.---Gt. West. Rail. to Tewkesbury, thence 7 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham and Tewkesbury, &c., 166 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 89 miles.---Money orders issued at Cheltenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Margaret), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £22. 1s. 10d.: pres. net income, £337: patron, Rev. C. Covey: pres. incumbent, C. Covey: contains 1,750 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 411: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 473: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,108: poor rates in 1837, £109.---On the N. W. is Toddington Manor and Park, the domain of Lord Sudeley, in whose family it has descended from before the Conquest. The holder of it at the Doomsday survey was a great grandson of Ethelred II. The present Lord Sudeley assumed the arms of the Tracy family on marrying the sole heiress of the last Viscount Tracy.

ALDERTON (or ALDRINGTON), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cleley, union of Potterspury, between the line of London and Birmingham Railway, and the post road from Dunstable to Towcester: 63 miles from London (coach road 58), 4 from Towcester, 9 from Northampton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Roade, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Roade, &c., 78 miles.---Money orders issued at Towcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Margaret), a rectory in conjunction with Grafton-Regis, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £277: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, R. J. Sams, 1833: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 166: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 190: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1096: poor rates in 1837, £81.---N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Stoke Park; W. 2 m. Easton-Neston, the seat of Sir G. W. Denys, Bart., who inherits it through his mother, the heiress of the last Earl of Pomfret. It was once enriched with the collection of antiques, marbles, and pictures, which, in 1755, the Countess of Pomfret gave to the University of Oxford.

ALDERTON, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wilford, union of Woodbridge; the village is one mile west from the sea, and near the mouth of the river Deben: 80 miles from London (coach road 79), 7 from Woodbridge, 12 from Ipswich.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 212 miles.---Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Its ruinous church is a very conspicuous sea-mark.---The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £14. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income £720: patrons, Norton's trustees, and Bishop of Norwich every fourth turn: pres. incumbent, W. A. Norton, 1835: contains 2,680 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 620: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 713: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,664: poor rates in 1837, £331.---N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is the Rectory, in a park.

ALDERTON (or ALDERNETH), WILTS, a parish in the division and union of Malmesbury: 102 miles from London (coach road 103), 6 from Malmesbury, 7 from Tetbury.---Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Gloucester, to Tetbury road, 111, thence 13 miles.---Money orders issued at Malmesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m.---This manor was for 300 years in the possession of the Gore family. The manor-house is to the north of the village.---The living (St. Giles), a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Salisbury, annexed to the vicarage of Sherston-Magna: pres. net income, £80: patron, J. Neeld, Esq., M.P.: pres. incumbent, Anthony Austin, 1843: contains 1,700 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 183: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 210: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,822: poor rates in 1837, £91.

ALDERWASLEY (or ALDERWASHLEY), DERBY, a township and chapelry in the parish of Wirksworth: 144 miles from London (coach road 138), 2 from Wirksworth, 4 from Matlock.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby and Alderwasley: from Derby as above, 12 miles.---Money orders issued at Wirksworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Alderwasley Hall is the seat of Francis Hurt, Esq., into whose family it came in 1670, by marriage with the heiress of the last of the Lowes, to which family the manor was granted by Henry VIII. In Wirksworth church are monuments of both the Lowes and the Hurts; among others, that of Antonye Lowe, the original grantee of the manor. The inscription on the tomb states him to have been in the service of Henry VII., Henry VIII., Edward VI., and Mary, and from the neck of the figure hangs a medallion of Mary, the original of which, together with the gold chain which carried it, is in the possession of Mr. Hurt. The neighbourhood furnished lead ore, and there are iron furnaces.---Patron, F. Hurt, Esq.: pres. incumbent, M. Hubberdy: contains

3,024 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 398: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 456: poor rates in 1837, £169.

ALDFIELD, West Riding, York, a chapelry in the parish of Ripon: 254 miles from London (coach road 208), 3 from Ripon, 4 from Ripley. — Nor. West. Rail. to York and Ripon; from Derby, through York, &c., 122 miles. — Money orders issued at Ripon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.; post closes 2½ p.m. — On the E. is Studley Royal, with its domain, including the ruins of Fountain's Abbey, which was founded about the year 1132, under the following circumstances:— Some of the monks of St. Mary's at York, wished to change that monastery for the more severe discipline observed at Rievaulx Abbey, which had just been established. (See ABBOTSDALE, Low.) The abbot refusing to allow them to do so, because of the imputation it cast on his government, they applied to the Archbishop of York, who went to St. Mary's; but the abbot and the majority of the monks, being satisfied with the degree of austerity (?) they practised, turned him out; a fight ensuing, the archbishop laid the place under ban, and withdrew, accompanied by those monks who wished to be under stricter rule. After keeping them some time at his house, he gave them this spot, whither they repaired, and lived under the shelter of trees until they had builded the monastery. They suffered great privations, being entirely dependent on supplies from the archbishop, and Burton says— At one time a stranger coming to beg a morsel of bread, only two loaves and a half were found for all the monks, one of which the abbot caused to be given to the stranger, saying, "God would provide for them," which was accordingly done; for, immediately after, two men came from the neighbouring castle of Knaresborough, with a cart load of fine bread, sent by Eustace Fitzjohn, who had been informed of their great want. They soon received considerable accessions of wealth; but owing to the incursions of the Scots, and other causes, they fell again into poverty: in the time of Edward III. they became very prosperous, and had large endowments from nobles who wished to be interred within their precincts. The last abbot but one was hanged at Tyburn for his sacrilegious offences. When Henry VIII. seized it, he sold it to Sir R. Gresham, and he to Sir Stephen Proctor, and from him it passed to his son-in-law, John Messenger, whose descendants sold it to W. Aislebie, Esq., the owner of Studley Royal, who included it in his grounds. He dying without heir male, it came to the eldest of his daughters, and from her to her niece Miss Lawrence; at her death, two years since, it came to Earl de Grey. The ruins cover about 2 acres, the building and offices occupied 10 or 12. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Ripon: pres. net income, £72: patron, Earl de Grey: pres. incumbent, S. H. Atkins, 1846: contains 850 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 152: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,261: poor rates in 1837, £53.

ALDFORD, Chester, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Broxton, union of Great Boughton: it is on the river Dee, and intersected by a small tributary stream of that river: it comprises the townships of Aldford and Churton, the chapelry of Bruera or Churton-Heath, and the townships of Great Boughton, Buerton, and Edgerley: 185½ miles from London (coach road 177), 5 from Chester, 10 from Malpas. — Nor. West. Rail. to Chester and Boulton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, Chester, &c., 101½ miles. — Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.; post closes 4½ p.m. — The name is the old spelling of Oldford, there being, in former times, a ford across the River Dee, over which a bridge is now thrown. — The living (St. John the Baptist) is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, valued at £16. 17s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £330: patron, Marquis of Westminster: pres. incumbent, F. Brandt, 1843: contains 3,760 acres: 321 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 835: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 960: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,271. — N. 1 m. is Eaton Hall, the seat of the Marquis of Westminster; S. 1 m. Aldford House; S.W. 2 m. Darland Hall.

ALDHAM, Essex, a parish in the Witham division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Lexden, union of Lexden and Winstree: 42½ miles from London (coach road 48), 6 from Halstead, 6 from Colchester. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Witham and Mark's Tey, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through London, to Witham, &c., 174½ miles. — Money orders issued at Halstead: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.; post closes 2 p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £327: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, C. Bannatyne, 1840: contains 2040 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 382: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 439: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,345: poor rates in 1837, £254. — Fairs, Easter Tuesday, and Nov. 1. Queen's Head Inn.

ALDHAM, Suffolk, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Cosford: 76 miles from London (coach road 66), 2 from Hadleigh, 8 from Ipswich. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, to Ipswich, &c., 208 miles. — Money orders issued at Hadleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.; post closes 6 p.m. — On Aldham common, which really belongs to Hadleigh, was burned, in 1555, Dr. Taylor, the rector of the latter place: on the spot was erected a stone with this inscription:—

"ANNO 1555.
"Dr. Taylor, for defending what was god,
In this place shed his blood."

— The living (St. Mary), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £10. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £290: patron, T. B. Leonard, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Uthoff, 1782: contains 2,170 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 293: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 337: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,953: poor rates in 1837, £175. — N. 1 m. is Berrard's Hall; S.E. 2 m. Hintlesham Hall.

ALDINGBOURN, Sussex, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Box and Stockbridge, union of Westhampnett, rape of Chichester: 75 miles from London (coach road 62), 4 from Chichester, 7 from Arundel. — Sou. East. Rail. to Bognor station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through London, to Bognor, &c., 207 miles. — Money orders issued at Chichester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.; post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £10. 6s. 10d.: pres. net income, £212: patron, Dean of Chichester: pres. incumbent, John Moss, 1819: contains 3,080 acres: 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, including the hamlets of Lidsey and Westergate, 772: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 886: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,854: poor rates in 1837, £481: tithes commuted in 1777. —E. 1 m. is Knyghton Park, or Nyton; was formerly a grange to Boxgrove Priory: it is the seat of C. P. Peckham, Esq. Aldingbourne House is the seat of R. N. Harler, Esq. Norton House, the seat of J. Greathead, Esq.

ALDINGHAM (UPPER AND LOWER), LANCA-SHIRE, two united parishes and townships in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Lonsdale, north of the sands, union of Ulverstone. The lower division is situated on Morecombe Bay. It contains the townships of Upper and Lower Aldingham, Glaston, and Leece: 264 miles from London (coach road 277), 5 from Ulverstone, 15 from Lancaster. —Nor. West. Rail. to Lancaster and Milnthorpe, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Lancaster, &c., 180 miles. —Money orders issued at Ulverstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.; post closes 6 p.m. —It is situated on the shore of that portion of Lancaster called Furness, which is entirely separated from the rest of the county by Morecombe Bay, an encroachment of the sea on this part of the coast. It is stated in "West's Antiquities of Furness," that this parish was, a few centuries since, much more extensive. About 3 miles north of Aldingham, the estuary of the Leven is fordable at low water, where it is about 2 miles across; and there is one part of the bay which is forded at low water, a distance of 7 miles. —The living (St. Cuthbert), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, is valued at £39. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £1,093: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, J. Stonard, 1814: contains 4,680 acres: 155 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 907: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,043: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,800: poor rates in 1837, £321.

ALDINGTON, KENT, a parish, partly within the liberty of Romney-marsh, partly within the franchise and barony of Bircholt, lathe of Shepway, union of East Ashford: 72½ miles from London (coach road 60), 7 from Ashford, 6 from Hythe. —Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford and Mersham, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through London, to Ashford, &c., 204½ miles. —Money orders issued at Ashford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —This living was held in the reign of Henry VIII. by the celebrated Erasmus, who, being left an orphan, was by his guardians brought up to the ecclesiastical order, that they might retain his patrimony. He twice visited England; the second time he remained four years, and was in great favour with Sir T. More, as well as with the king. It was after his last return to the Continent that he wrote his "Colloquies," which gave rise to the remark, that "Erasmus laid the egg which Luther hatched." Luther, however, was incensed against him by his "Treatise on Free Will." He died in 1536. The living was afterwards held by R. Masters, who was one of the ecclesiastics hanged in 1534 for aiding the imposture of "the Holy Maide of Kent," who was a servant girl in this parish. —The living (St. Martin), a rectory, with the chapel of Smeeth, a peculiar of the Archbishop of Canterbury, is valued at £38. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £1,014: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, W. Knatchbull, 1823: contains 3,420 acres: 89 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 733: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 843: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,811: poor rates in 1837, £497: tithes commuted in 1842. —N. 1½ m. is Somerfield Hall.

ALDINGTON, WORCESTER, a hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Badsey: 143 miles from London (coach road 96), 3 from Evesham, 10 from Alcester. —Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse and Eckington, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Eckington, &c., 86 miles. —Money orders issued at Evesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.; post closes 4 p.m. —The living is attached to the curacy of Badsey, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, —which see: pres. incumbent, C. Phillott, 1808: contains 22 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,339: poor rates in 1837, £56: the tithes of this township, the property of the Dean and Chapter of Christ Church, Oxford, the impropiators, and the curate, were commuted in 1807. —W. 2 m. is the Abbey Manor House.

ALDMONDBURY, WEST RIDING, YORK. See ALMONDBURY.

ALDRIDGE, STAFFORD, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Offlow, union of Walsall. It contains the chapelry of Great Barr, and the township of Aldridge, the latter with a population in 1841 of 967: 120 miles from London (coach road 116), 3 from Walsall, 6 from Lichfield. —Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Lichfield, 30, thence 6 miles. —Money orders issued at Walsall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —This is supposed to have been a place of some consequence with the Druids; for the hill on which the township of Barr stands, called Barr Beacon, is said to be the place from which they gave notice of their sacrifices. There is a pool, of which the appellation, Druid's-meer, accords with the other tradition: this pool sometimes overflows; and when this takes place, it is supposed to foretell a dearth. A fine pottery clay is dug here. —The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £8. 1s. 3d.: pres. net income, £905: patron, Sir E. D. Scott, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. Harding, 1820: contains 7,980 acres: 303 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,094: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,408: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £11,773. —S.E. 1 m. is Little Aston Hall; S. 1½ m. Aldridge Lodge; 2 m. Sutton Hall Park.

ALDRINGHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish on the east coast, in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Blything: 89 miles from London (coach road 94), 2 from Aldeburgh, 5 from Saxmundham. —East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Ipswich, thence 21 miles: from Derby, through London, to Ipswich, &c., 221 miles. —Money orders issued at Saxmundham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The spire of the church has just been taken down, and the building has been repaired by subscription, Lord Huntingfield, the lord of the manor assisting considerably. —The living (St. Andrew), a perpetual curacy not in charge, in connection with the chapel of Thorpe. It is in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £59: patron, Rev. E. Holland: pres. incumbent, R. Bond, 1838:

contains 610 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 401: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 461: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £692: poor rates in 1837, £110.---Fairs, Oct. 11, for hiring servants, but little attended; Dec. 11, a pleasure fair.

ALDRINGTON, SUSSEX. See ATHERINGTON and PORTSLADE.

ALDSTONE (or ALSTON-MOOR), CUMBERLAND, a parish in Leath ward, situated near the borders of Northumberland, and consists of a narrow valley surrounded by high lands, and enclosed on the west by the Cross, Hartside, and Thackmoor Fells: 309 miles from London (coach road 272), 25 from Carlisle, 12 from Kirk-Oswald.---Nor. West. Rail. to York, Darlington, and Walsingham, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 177 miles.---Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 4 p.m.---The living (St. Augustine), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in connection with the chapelry of Garragill, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, diocese of Durham, is valued at £7. 13s.: pres. net income, conjointly with Garragill, £139: patron, Greenwich Hospital: pres. incumbent, H. Salvin, 1841: contains 35,060 acres: 1,285 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,062: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 9,070: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £25,590: poor rates in 1837, £1,684: tithes commuted in 1803.---The manor of Aldstone, as the extent in acres above given shows, is very extensive; nearly the whole of it is grass land, very thinly wooded; the fences are chiefly low stone walls. The value lies beneath the surface in the form of lead ore: the leases of the mines furnish a splendid revenue to Greenwich Hospital, to which this manor and the other estates of the attainted Earl of Derwentwater were, in 1735, given by the crown. From the largest mine the water flows for five miles along an aqueduct, called Nent Force. In the parish are several extensive caverns, furnishing fine study to the geologist. N.W. lies Whitley Castle.

ALDSTONE CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish, which see for mode of access and postal arrangements.---This is the most eastern town in Cumberland: it consists of a number of small houses, chiefly of stone, covered with slate, irregularly built on the declivity of a steep hill, near the river Tyne, over which there is an old narrow stone bridge of one arch. The chief trade carried on is making shot, sewing thread and flannel, and there is a large brewery.---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,044: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,750: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,006.---Market day, Saturday. Fairs, last Thursday in May, Friday before Sept. 27, 1st Thursday in Nov. for cattle, horses, and linen and woollen cloth. Races, Easter Monday and Tuesday.---Bankers, Newcastle Union Bank Branch.

ALDSWORTH, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brightwell's Barrow, union of Northleach: 93 miles from London (coach road 78), 4 from Northleach, 6 from Fairford.---Gt. West. Rail. to Swindon, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Cheltenham, 87½, thence 15 miles.---Money orders issued at Northleach: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The church, standing on a hill, is visible for many miles round.---The living (St. Peter), a perpetual curacy, united with Turkdean, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £23. 10s.: pres. net income, £66: patron, Vicar of Turkdean: pres. incumbent, J. C. Bellingham: contains 3,460 acres: 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 365: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 419: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,735: poor rates in 1837, £70.---N. 1½ m. is Easington Park.

ALDWARD (or ALDWARK), WEST RIDING, YORKSHIRE, a township in the parish of Ecclesfield. It is separated from the parish to which it belongs, being completely surrounded by other parishes: 174 miles from London (coach road 172), 2 from Rotherham, 4 from Sheffield.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby and Rotherham: from Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 42 miles.---Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---S. 2 m. is Eastwood House, on an eminence commanding a view over Rotherham, along the valley of the Don, to Sheffield. N. is Aldwark Hall.

ALDWARK, DERBY, a hamlet in the parish of Bradborne, hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirksworth. This township is in the honour of Tutbury, duchy of Lancaster. The Peak Railway runs along its southern boundary: 156 miles from London (coach road 145), 4 from Wirksworth, 6 from Ashbourn, 2 from Matlock-Bath.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby and Wingfield, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Wingfield, &c., 24 miles.---Money orders issued at Wirksworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Contains 16 houses: poor rates in 1837, £50.

ALDWART, NORTH RIDING, YORKSHIRE, a township in the parish of Alne, on the Ure, which is here navigable: 232 miles from London (coach road 202), 5 from Boroughbridge, 9 from Knaresborough.---Nor. West. Rail. to York and Toller-ton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 100 miles.---Money orders issued at Boroughbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Contains 2,220 acres: 34 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,031: poor rates in 1837, £21.---N. 1 m. is Winchett Hall.

ALDWINKLE (ALL SAINTS), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Huxloe, union of Thrapston: 92 miles from London (coach road 76), 8 from Thrapston, 10 from Kettering.---Nor. West. Rail. to Northampton and Thrapston, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Northampton, &c., 95 miles.---Money orders issued at Thrapston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---In 1631, John Dryden here first saw the light, whose literary productions, during the last ten years of his life, are among the finest in the English language. But the brilliancy of his talents renders the more conspicuous the meanness of his character: his prostitute muse first lauding the Protector, then panegyricizing Charles, to whose service it was thenceforward given up, for which he was paid by an appointment of £200 a year, as poet laureate: bowing his genius to pander to the licentiousness of his master, his writings are most immoral and indelicate. In 1681, appeared the first of his famous political satires. On the accession of James II., Dryden again evinced his determination to obtain court favour, by professing his conversion to the religious views of the new king; and in justification of himself, published "The Hind and the Panther," which Prior and Montague replied to in "The Country Mouse and the City Mouse." On the abdication of James, his only dependence was the precarious earnings of literature, on which he subsisted ten years, till his death in 1700. He was buried in Westminster Abbey.

—The living (All Saints) is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, valued at £12. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £311: patron, Rev. Dr. Roberts: pres. incumbent, R. Roberts, 1838: contains 2,450 acres, and ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,798, (in these two returns is included the parish of St. Peter's,—see below;) 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 272: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 313: poor rates in 1837, £143.—Rose and Crown Inn.

ALDWINKLE (St. Peter's), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Huxloe, union of Thrapston: 92 miles from London (coach road 76), 3 from Thrapston, 10 from Kettering.—For access and postal arrangements, see ALDWINKLE (All Saints).—Situat<sup>d</sup> on the Nene, which is navigable to the sea, and communicates with the Northampton canal. It is the birth-place of the Rev. Thomas Fuller, who was born at the parsonage in 1608: his father was rector. He was early a popular man, and obtained church preferment. At the breaking out of the civil war, he was lecturer at the Savoy Chapel in the Strand; and, on the anniversary of the king's accession, preached from 2 Sam. xix. 30, "Yea, let them take all, so that my lord the king return in peace," which put him in some jeopardy with the Independents. He subsequently held the living of Waltham, then that of Cranford, and at the Restoration was reinstalled in a prebend of Salisbury, of which he had been deprived. He was rather a voluminous writer: his most famous works are "England's Worthies," and "Holy State." His style of writing is humorous, vivacious, and quaint.—The living (St. Peter's) is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, valued at £11. 6s. 3d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Lord Lilford: pres. incumbent, Hon. F. Powys, 1806: contains 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 183: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 210: poor rates in 1837, £93.

ALDWORTH, BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Compton, union of Wantage: 48 miles from London (coach road 50), 11 from Reading, 7 from Wallingford.—Gt. West. Rail. to Reading and Goring, thence 3½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, Goring, &c., 166 miles.—Money orders issued at Reading: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.; post closes 6 p.m.—The village is situated on a hill, in an agricultural district, and is considered to be a place of great antiquity. Beche Farm is traditionally held to be the site where, in the reign of Edward III. a fortified residence was constructed by one of the De la Beche family, of whom there are some very fine old monuments and tombs in the church; some of them are much mutilated, it is said by the fanatics in the civil war. The enormous old yew in the churchyard, is supposed to be older than the building itself.—The living (St. Mary) is a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, and diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, valued at £8. 16s. 0½d.: pres. net income, £449: patrons, St. John's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, J. T. Austen, 1832: contains 1,960 acres, 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 314: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 361: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,201: poor rates in 1837, £155.—S. E. is Basilden Park, the seat of Sir W. Sykes, Bart.

ALEMOUTH (Ailmouth or Alnemouth), NORTHUMBERLAND, a small township and seaport in the parish of Lesbury, situated at the mouth of the river Alne, whence its name: 338½ miles from London (coach road 311), 5 from Alnwick, 19 from Morpeth.—Nor. West. Rail. to Newcastle and Lesbury, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through Newcastle, &c., 206 miles.—Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.; post closes 6 p.m.—A small exportation of agricultural produce takes place at this little seaport, but not so much now as twenty years ago, and even then there were only 10 or 12 vessels of 50 to 150 tons engaged in it. The sea has encroached, and has almost swept away the churchyard.—Contains 99 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £200: poor rates in 1837, £188.

ALESHAM, SUSSEX. See HAILSHAM.

ALESHAM, NORFOLK. See AYLISHAM.

ALESWORTH (or Ailesworth), NORTHAMPTON, a hamlet in the parish of Castor, hun<sup>d</sup> of Nasseburgh: 107 miles from London (coach road 87), 3 from Wandsford, 5 from Peterborough.—East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Peterborough, thence 5 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Northampton and Castor, 105, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Northampton, &c., 113 miles.—Money orders issued at Peterborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.; post closes 6½ p.m.—Wheat Sheaf Inn.—E. 2 m. is Milton Park, the seat of Earl Fitzwilliam.

ALFOLD (or AWFOLD), SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackheath, union of Hambledon, and partly in the county of Sussex: 41 miles from London, 7 from Godalming, 10 from Guildford.—Sou. West. Rail. to Godalming, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 173 miles.—Money orders issued at Godalming: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—From an old inscription found in the church, it would seem that a glass factory was established here in the latter part of the 16th century by some French protestants, who settled here after the massacre of St. Bartholomew's day.—The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, diocese of Winchester, is valued at £6. 11s. 2d.: pres. net income, £205: patron, Rev. L. W. Elliott: pres. incumbent, R. J. Sparkes, 1839: contains 2,610 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 519: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 597: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,225: poor rates in 1837, £231.

ALFORD, LINCOLN, a parish and township in the Wold division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby. A rivulet runs through the town, from a ford over which, the name is derived: 152 miles from London (coach road 142), 22 from Boston, 11 from Louth.—East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Peterborough and Alford: from Derby, through Peterborough, to Alford, 120 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The Alford grammar school is governed by a corporation, which holds the advowson of Salesby; and quinquen-nially two scholars from Alford are entitled to fellowships in Magdalene College, Cambridge. The scholars of this foundation have also a claim, conjointly with those of Caistor and Louth, on a scholarship in Jesus College. The school was founded and endowed by Francis Spanning in 1565; and the revenues being increased by private benefactions, it was, in 1576, made a royal corporation. —The living (St. Wilfrid), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the chapelry of Rigby, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £180: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, E. Dawson, 1808: contains 1,410 acres: 353 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,945: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,237: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,637: poor rates in 1837, £764. —Market day, Tuesday. Fairs, Whit-Tuesday, for cattle and sheep, and another Nov. 8. —S. 2 m. is Well Hall.

ALFORD, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Catsash, union of Wincanton: 129½ miles from London (coach road 115), 2 from Castle Cary, 8 from Glastonbury. —Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bath, &c., 272 miles. —Money orders issued at Castle Cary: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —About three-fourths of a mile from the church is a chalybeate spring, which was once much frequented; it is now rarely used. The farm on which it rises is called Alfordwell. —The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath, is valued at £9. 9s. 9d.: pres. net income, £188: patron, Rev. J. G. Thring: pres. incumbent, J. G. D. Thring, 1808: contains 710 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 90: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 104: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £964: poor rates in 1837, £57.

ALFRETON, DERBY, a market town and parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Scarsdale, consisting of the townships of Alfreton and Alfreton Outseats: 148 miles from London (coach road 140), 9 miles from Mansfield, 14 from Derby. —Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, 132 miles, thence to Wingfield 14, and on to Alfreton 2 more. —Money orders issued here from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ p.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —The church is a very old building, constructed at various periods. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistracy; and at the court leet, the lord of the manor appoints the constables and other officers. A large trade is done in stocking weaving; and brown pottery is made. In the vicinity are extensive collieries; and also iron-works, in which some of the largest iron bridges were cast. —The living (St. Martin), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £17. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £150: patron, W. P. Morewood, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Pepper, 1818: contains 4,560 acres: 1,047 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 7,577: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 8,713: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £9,634: poor rates in 1837, £903. —Market day, Friday, chiefly for grain, and is well attended. Fairs, Jan. 26; Easter Tuesday; Whit-Tuesday; July 31, very large, for cattle, horses, &c.; Oct. 6, and Nov. 24. —Bankers: Nottingham and Nottinghamshire Banking Co<sup>y</sup>; draw on London and Westminster Bank: open every Friday and fair day, from 2 till 4 p.m. Wyld & Co<sup>y</sup>; draw on Sir J. W. Lubbock & Co<sup>y</sup>.

VOL. L

London: open daily from 10 a.m. till 4 p.m. —Inns, the George; and the Angel. —N. is Alfreton Hall, the seat of W. Palmer Morewood, Esq., lord of the manor, who assumed the name on coming to the estate, bequeathed to his aunt by her husband, the last of the Morewoods, of which family there are some good monuments in the church. The house is a large handsome stone edifice, occupying an elevated site overlooking the Derby road, and has been considerably improved by the present proprietor. E. 2 m. is Cornfield Hall.

ALFRICK, WORCESTER, a hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Suckley, union of Martley: 149 miles from London (coach road 119), 8 from Worcester, 10 from Great Malvern. —Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Spetchley, thence 10 miles: or Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, Spetchley, &c., 149 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 77 miles. —Money orders issued at Worcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living is a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, but not in charge, being appended to the rectory of Suckley—(which see.) Contains 1,790 acres: 96 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 434: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 499: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,790: poor rates in 1837, £210.

ALFRINGTON (or ADLINGTON), DORSET, is thus spoken of in "Hutchin's Dorset":——Anciently, a manor and hamlet, now a tithing and farmhouse in Roubarrow hundred, 1 mile south-east of Corfe, near the foot of the hills. A market and fair were granted here 54 Henry III. There was anciently a chapel, of which there are no remains. It seems to have been a free chapel. To it belonged a portion of tithes, perhaps the whole tithes of the hamlet; for this farm pays no tithes to the rector of Corfe. —See CORFE.

ALFRISTON, SUSSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Alciston, rape of Pevensey, union of Eastbourne, and within the liberty of the duchy of Lancaster: 68½ miles from London (coach road 55), 3 from Seaford, 6 from Hailsham. —Sou. East. Rail. through Lewes to Berwick, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 200½ miles. —Money orders issued at Lewes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 2 p.m. —In this part of the county, wheat-ears are caught in great numbers in the autumn. —The living (St. Andrew) a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £11. 16s. 0½d.: pres. net income, £135: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, C. B. Smyth, 1832: contains 2,120 acres: 122 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 668: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 768: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,656: poor rates in 1837, £626.

ALGARKIRK, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Kirton, parts of Holland, union of Boston: 127½ miles from London (coach road 111), 9 from Spalding, 6 from Boston. —East Co<sup>y</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Algarkirk station: from Derby, through Stamford, Peterborough, &c., 95 miles. —Money orders issued at Spalding: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The church, which is partly in the Norman and partly in the early English style, is rich in its details, and contains monuments to the Beridge family since the time of James I. In the burying-ground is a stone image, said to be that of Algar, Earl of Mercia, who, with the assistance of his seneschals Wibert and Leofric, obtained a victory over the Danes near this place in 870. He was defeated, however, and slain in an engagement the day after. —The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory with the curacy of Fosdyke, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £50. 18s. 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £1,310: patron, Rev. B. Beridge: pres. incumbent, B. Beridge, 1822: contains 6,050 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 754: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 867: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,692: poor rates in 1837, £479.

ALHAMPTON, SOMERSET, a tithing in the parish of Ditcheat, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Whitestone, union of Shepton Mallet: 3 miles from Castle Cary, 2 from Bruton.—See DITCHHEAT.

ALKERTON, GLOUCESTER, a tithing in the parish of EASTINGTON—(which see)—3 miles from Stroud.—Contains 218 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,205: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,350.

ALKERTON (or AWKERTON), OXFORDSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bloxham, union of Banbury: 77<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 77), 6 from Banbury, 6 from Kington.—Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverton, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Weedon, 62<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>, thence 17 miles.—Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.—In the middle of the 17th century, the rectory of this parish was held by Timothy Lydiat, a man of first-rate attainments as a mathematical and chronological writer. He saw great vicissitudes, and was ruined through being security for a friend, and afterwards suffered greatly for his attachment to the Royal cause. He was the friend of Archbishop Usher, who did much to assist him. His latter years were spent here in indigence, and he died 1649. Dr. Johnson has taken him as an instance of the vanity of human wishes in his poem on that subject:—

"If dreams yet flatter, once again attend, Hear Lydiat's fate and Galileo's end."

A record less enduring, but which, if true, will outlive the other, has been obliterated from the wall by the cleaning process of the whitewasher. It mentioned him as the faithful pastor of that church.—The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £6. 3s. 6d.: pres. net income, £153: patron, Rev. R. E. Hughes: pres. incumbent, R. E. Hughes, 1846: contains 650 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 190: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 229: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,019: poor rates in 1837, £66.

ALKHAM, KENT, a parish in the upper half of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Folkestone, lathe of Shepway, union of River: 86 miles from London (coach road 69), 4 from Dover, 4 from Folkestone.—Sou. East. Rail. through Ashford to Folkestone, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 218 miles.—Money orders issued at Dover: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The "Magna Britannia" says—In this parish is an eylebourn, which, from no appearance of head or spring, sends out such store of water as will carry a vessel of a considerable burden. The inhabitants look upon it to be a fatal presage of death or dearth whenever it happens.—The living (St. Anthony), a vicarage, with the chapelry of Capel-le-Fern, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £11.: pres. net income, £152: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, James Eveleigh, 1835: contains 3,190 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 595: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 684: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,246: poor rates in 1837, £385.

ALKINGTON, GLOUCESTER, a tithing in the hun<sup>d</sup> and parish of Berkeley, situated on the Severn: 110<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 113), 1 from Berkeley, 3 from Dursley.—Gt. West. Rail. to Berkeley, thence <sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> mile: from Derby, through Birmingham, Berkeley, &c., 110 miles.—Money orders issued at Dursley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.—For living, &c., see BERKELEY. Contains 193 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,317: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,468: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,298: poor rates in 1837, £638.

ALKINGTON, SALOP. See WHITCHURCH.

ALKINGTON, LANCAIRE, a township in the parish of Oldham-cum-Prestwick: 192<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 187), 4 from Manchester, 1 from Oldham.—Nor. West. Rail. to Manchester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Manchester, &c., 108 miles.—Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the neighbouring cotton-factories.—N. <sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> m. is Alkington Hall, which was noted at the end of the last century for the museum of natural history collected by Mr. Lever. It is said that his taste that way was first formed by killing a white sparrow, which he succeeded in preserving: the pursuit became so absorbing, that he seriously impaired his fortune, and obtained an act of parliament to enable him to dispose of his collection by a lottery, which was done in 1788. The fortunate gambler who obtained it, exhibited it near Blackfriars' Bridge, London; and in 1806 disposed of it by an action sale. W. 1 m. Litchfield Hall.

ALKMONTON, DERBY, a township in the parish of Longford: 142 miles from London (coach road 134), 5 from Ashbourn, 10 from Derby.—Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, thence 10 miles.—Money orders issued at Ashbourn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—Contains 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 94: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 116: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £917: poor rates in 1837, £33.—N. <sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> m. is Longford Hall.

ALLARTHORP (or ALLERTHORPE-WITH-SWAINBY), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Pickhill: 248 miles from London (coach road 218), 5 from Bedale, 6 from Thirsk.—Nor. West. Rail. through York to Otterington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 116 miles.—Money orders issued at Bedale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.—Allarthorpe Hall, now a farm-house, was for some time the residence of Mrs. E. Montague, a well-known literary character in the middle of the last century, contemporaneous, though thirty years younger, with the equally celebrated Lady Mary Wortley Montague. Mrs. Montague formed a literary society, known by the name of the "Blue Stocking Club," from the circumstance of Mr. Benjamin Stillingfleet, one of the members, wearing stockings of that colour, which has given rise to the name of

"blue-stocking," applied to female literati. Ecclesiastical statistics returned with SWAINBY—(which see.) W. 2 m. is Thorp Perrow, the seat of Mark Millbank, Esq.

ALLATHORNE (or ARROWTHORNE), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a hamlet in the parishes of Hornby and Brompton-Patrick: 241 miles from London (coach road 228), 5 from Bedale. Nor. West. Rail. to York and Bedale, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 109 miles. Money orders issued at Bedale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. Contains 850 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 66: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 75: poor rates in 1837, £17.

ALLEN (Str.), CORNWALL, a parish in the western division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Powder, union of Truro: 289 miles from London (coach road 252), 4 from Truro, 12 from Falmouth. Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 45 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Plymouth, 258½, thence 45 miles. Money orders issued at Truro: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 4 p.m.: post closes 7 a.m. The living (St. Allyn), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £8. 13s.: pres. net income, £174: patron, Bishop of Exeter: pres. incumbent, G. Morris, 1842: contains 3,610 acres: 113 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 652: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 750: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,468: poor rates in 1837, £232.

ALLCANNINGS, WILTS. See ALCANNINGS.

ALLENDALE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a hilly parish in the southern division of Tindale ward, union of Hexham: 338 miles from London (coach road 273), 6 from Haydon Bridge, 8 from Hexham. Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, Newcastle, to Haydon Bridge, thence 6 miles; or to Carlisle, &c., same distance: from Derby, through York, &c., 206 miles. Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. This parish is intersected by the Allen, which flows through it from south to north. It is of considerable extent, and is subdivided into eight divisions, some of which are called grieveships. Owing to the great extent of this parish, it was, in 1811, divided ecclesiastically into four, with as many rectories. In 1831, 574 of the inhabitants were employed in the lead mines here, which produce upwards of 2,500 tons of lead annually. At a place called Old Town, about three miles north-west, are vestiges of an ancient entrenchment, of a square form, supposed to be Roman. The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the diocese of York, and peculiar jurisdiction of Hexham, now in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, diocese of Durham, is valued at £26. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £143: patron, T. W. Beaumont, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Rawes, 1843: contains 45,810 acres: 956 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,729: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,589: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £12,184: poor rates in 1837, £1,175. Fairs, last Friday in April, August 22, and first Friday after October 29, for horses, cattle, and sheep.

ALLENDALE, a market town in the above parish—(which see for access and postal arrangements.) Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,150: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,365: is a polling-place for the southern division of the county. Market day, Friday.

E. 3 m. is Whitefield Hall, the seat of W. Orde, Esq., M.P. for Newcastle-upon-Tyne.

ALLENHEAD (ALLONHEAD, or HEDWALLEN), NORTHUMBERLAND, a hamlet, formerly a distinct parish, in the southern division of Tindale ward: 344 miles from London (coach road 268), 12 from Hexham, 4 from Allendale. Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, Newcastle, to Haydon Bridge, thence 12 miles; or through Derby, Carlisle, &c., the same distance: from Derby, through York, &c., or Carlisle, &c., 212 miles. Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. In the vicinity are several lead mines, which furnish the chief occupation of the inhabitants. The surrounding country is mountainous and desolate. The living, a vicarage, formerly a peculiar of Hexham, but now united to the perpetual curacy of St. Peter's in Allendale, is valued at £4. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £50: patron, Incumbent of Allendale: pres. incumbent, W. Walton, 1818. The population is enumerated in Allendale.

ALLENMORE, HEREFORDSHIRE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Weibtree: 144½ miles from London (coach road 131), 4 from Hereford, 12 from Ross. Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 26 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Spetchley, 67, thence 30 miles. Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean of Hereford, is valued at £5. 12s. 6d.: patron, Dean of Hereford: pres. incumbent, F. E. Baker, 1842: contains 1,930 acres: 133 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 668: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 768: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,166: poor rates in 1837, £238.

E. ¼ m. is Allensmore House, the seat of Burnam Pateshall, Esq.

ALLENTON (or ALLWINTON), NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish in the western division of Coquetdale ward, union of Rothbury, comprising eleven townships, viz., Allenton, Biddleston, Borrowdon, Clennell, Fairhaugh, Farnham, Linbriggs, North and South Netherton, Peals, and Sharperton: 352 miles from London (coach road 310), 15 from Alnwick, 8 from Rothbury. N. W. Rail. through York, Newcastle, to Warkworth, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 220 miles. Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The river Coquet winds through this parish, and unites with the Alwine, which latter gives the locality its name. On the south side of the Coquet are traces of our ancestors, supposed to be burial places of the ancient Britons, called Barrow Peel and Riddle Cairn. The living (St. Michael), a perpetual curacy, is united with Hallystone, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £100: patron, Duke of Northumberland: pres. incumbent, A. Procter, 1833: contains 31,940 acres: 158 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 812: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 934: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £19,966.

ALLER, SOMERSET, a parish in the division of Somerton, union of Langport: 159½ miles from London (coach road 128), 6 from Somerton, 8 from Bridgewater. Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bridgewater, &c., 172½ miles.

Money orders issued at Somerton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3¼ p.m.---At this village, Alfred caused to be baptised the Danes, under Guthrum or Godrum, after his final triumph over them at Edington, on which occasion he stood sponsor himself to the chief, and giving him the name of Athelstane, adopted him for his son. In 1645, it was the theatre of one of those sad spectacles of which England saw too many at that time—Englishmen arrayed against their own countrymen, each party zealous in what it considered a good cause: the event is known as the battle of Aller Moor. It was the birth-place of Dr. Cudworth, who, at the period of the civil war, was in great repute as a scholar: his father was rector of the parish. His most noted work, "The Intellectual System," was published in 1678. Its professed object was "to confute all the reason and philosophy of atheism," but he appears to have shared the fate of many other controversial writers, in being considered by many persons to have put the objections of his adversaries more forcibly than his own refutation of them. He was undoubtedly a very learned man: died 1688.---The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £36. 15s.: pres. net income £623: patron, Emanuel College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, W. Young, 1829: contains 4,290 acres: 98 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 559: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 642: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,242: poor rates in 1837, £316.

ALLERBY (or ALWARDBY), CUMBERLAND, a township in connection with Outerside, parish of Aspatria: 321½ miles from London (coach road 313), 7 from Cockermouth, 8 from Wigton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Carlisle, to Allerby: from Derby, through Carlisle, &c., 237½ miles.---Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The Maryport and Carlisle Railway passes in the immediate vicinity.---Contains 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 421: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 476: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,259.---W. ¼ m. is Allerby Park.

ALLERSTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Pickering-lythe, union of Pickering: 249½ miles from London (coach road 220), 5 from Pickering, 10 from Scarborough.---Nor. West. Rail. to York and Knapton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 117½ miles.---Money orders issued at Pickering: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a curacy, united to the vicarage of Ebberston, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, diocese of York: pres. net joint income, £135: patron, Dean of York: pres. incumbent, J. Ellis, 1836: contains 9,110 acres: 69 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 414: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 476: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,240: poor rates in 1837, £172.

ALLERTHORPE (or ALVERTHORPE), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township with Thornes, and a chapelry in the parish of Wakefield: 194 miles from London (coach road 183), 1 from Wakefield, 7 from Leeds.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Wakefield, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Wakefield, &c., 62 miles.---Money orders issued at Wakefield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The living, a curacy formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the archd<sup>y</sup>

of Craven, diocese of Ripon: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Wakefield: pres. incumbent, G. A. Walker, 1840: contains 2,930 acres: 999 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,930: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,820: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,129: poor rates in 1837, £1,360.---N. 2 m. is Hague Hall, the seat of the Rev. G. Allott.

ALLERTHORPE, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, partly in the Wiltonbeacon division of the wapentake of Harthill, union of Pocklington: it comprises the townships of Allertorpe and Waplington. The township of Allertorpe, situated 1½ miles from Pocklington, had, in 1841, a pop<sup>n</sup> of 187: contained 1,430 acres, 28 houses: 237 miles from London (coach road 212), 2 from Pocklington, 11 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. through York to Pocklington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 105 miles.---Money orders issued at Pocklington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---The living, a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Thornton, not in charge: joint pres. net income, £210: patron, Dean of York: pres. incumbent, C. Rawlins, 1836: contains 2,050 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 199: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 229: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,122.

ALLERTON, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Childwall: 207 miles from London (coach road 202), 6 from Liverpool, 6 from Prescott.---Nor. West. Rail. to Liverpool, via Trent Valley, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Liverpool, &c., 123 miles.---Money orders issued at Liverpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Contains 1,410 acres: 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 419: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 449: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,836: poor rates in 1837, £165.---S. 1 m. is Allerton Hall, a very pleasantly situated seat overlooking the broadest part of the Mersey, and the high ground about Runcorn. It was occupied by Wm. Roscoe, whose writings, especially "The Life of Lorenzo de Medici," are well known. This part of Lancashire is covered with villas and merchant's country houses: S. 1 m. Clayton Lodge; 1 m. farther, Hilton House.

ALLERTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Bradford: 222½ miles from London (coach road 200), 4 from Bradford, 4 from Keighly.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby and Leeds, to Bradford, or through Manchester to Halifax, 218 miles, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leeds or Manchester, &c., 91 miles.---Money orders issued at Bradford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in the factories; this being the busy manufacturing district.---Contains 1,970 acres: 306 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,958: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,258: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,707: poor rates in 1837, £350.

ALLERTON-BY-WATER, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kippax: 199½ miles from London (coach road 182), 5 from Pontefract, 6 from Leeds.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby and Normanton, to Methley station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Methley, &c., 67½ miles.---Money orders issued at Pontefract: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---Contains 870 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 435: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 471: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,779: poor rates in 1837, £160. — N. 2 m. is Kippax Park, the seat of Thomas Davison Bland, Esq., whose father assumed the name of Bland on succeeding to the property, through the female line, on the death of the last of the baronets of that name, who had held the estates from the time of Elizabeth. W. 2 m. is Methley Park, the seat of Earl Mexborough: S. 2 m. Dunford House.

ALLERTON-CHAPEL, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bempstone, union of Axbridge, and containing the hamlets of Arston and Stone-Allerton: 151½ miles from London, (coach road 132), 3 from Axbridge, 11 from Bridgewater. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Highbridge, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 164½ miles. — Money orders issued at Wells: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, a peculiar of the Dean of Wells, is valued at £10. 8s. 4d.: pres. net income, £223: patron, Dean and Chapter of Wells: pres. incumbent, Peter Parfitt, 1814: contains 1,490 acres: 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 331: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 381: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,076: poor rates in 1837, £130.

ALLERTON-CHAPEL (or CHAPEL-ALLERTON), WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry within the liberty of Leeds, parish of St. Peter: 207 miles from London (coach road 194), 2 from Leeds, 8 from Bradford. — Reached via Leeds. — Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Craven, diocese of Ripon, is valued at £2. 10s.: pres. net income, £361: patron, Vicar of Leeds: pres. incumbent, J. Urquhart, 1835: contains 3,040 acres: 408 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,580: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,967: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,107: poor rates in 1837, £363. — S. ½ m. is Rounhay Park, the seat of S. Nicholson, Esq., who owns the Chapel-Allerton estates. S. 2 m. Burley Wood, the seat of T. Wolrich Stansfield, Esq., the representative of the ancient family of Wolrych.

ALLERTON-MAULEVERER, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parochial chapelry in the upper division of the wapentake of Claro. It contains the townships of Allerton-Mauleverer, with Hoppeton and Claretton: 229 miles from London (coach road 202), 4 from Knaresborough, 5 from Boroughbridge. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to York, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 97 miles. — Money orders issued at Knaresborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — It derives its name from the ancient family of Mauleverer, who held this domain for more than five centuries. There was formerly here an alien priory to the Abbey of Marmoustier, at Tours in France, to which the church of St. Martin was given by Richard Mauleverer, and confirmed to them by Henry II. After the dissolution of these foreign cells, Henry VI. gave this to King's College, in Cambridge. There is a Roman Catholic school here. The family seat of the Mauleverers, called Thornville-Royal, is on the north. In 1786, it was sold by Lord Galway to the Duke of York, who built the house. It afterwards became the property of Colonel Thornton, from whom Lord Stourton purchased it for £163,800. It consists of 4,125 acres, with a superb mansion and park: his lordship has added to the house. Claro Hill, a remarkable eminence, from which the wapentake has derived its name, stands on the northern side of the park. — The living (St. Martin), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £65: patron, Lord Stourton: contains 2,300 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 277: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 318: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,745.

ALLERTON-MAULEVERER, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish: returned with the township of Hoppeton. — For access, &c., see above. — Contains 42 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,265: poor rates in 1837, £136.

ALLERTON (NORTH), YORK. See NORTHALLERTON.

ALLESLEY, WARWICK, a parish in the Monks Kirby division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow, union of Meriden: 96 miles from London (coach road 93), 2 from Coventry, 6 from Kenilworth. — Nor. West. Rail. to Coventry, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, Coventry, &c., 53 miles. — Money orders issued at Coventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £17. 18s. 9d.: pres. net income, £749: patron, Rev. W. T. Bree: pres. incumbent, W. T. Bree, 1823: contains 3,950 acres: 176 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 963: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,107: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,792: poor rates in 1837, £463. — S. 1 m. is Allesley Hall, which, with the domain, is the property of the Rev. Edward Neale. N. 1 m. Allheath Hall: 2 m. Birchley Hall.

ALLESTREE (or ALLESTREY), DERBY, a parochial chapelry in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Morleston and Litchurch, union of Belper: 134 miles from London (coach road 128), 2 from Derby, 14 from Ashbourn. — Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, thence 2 miles. — Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Andrew), a perpetual curacy, united with Mackworth, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield: patron, F. Munday, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. Pickering, 1802: contains 990 acres: 96 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 507: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 583: poor rates in 1837, £72. — N. 1½ m. is Allestree Hall, the seat of W. Evans, Esq.; S. Millhill House; and Darley Abbey, the seat of R. Holden, Esq.

ALLEXTON (or ALLIXTON), LEICESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of East Goscote, union of Billesdon: 96 miles from London (coach road 93), 2 from Coventry, 6 from Kenilworth. — Nor. West. Rail. to Coventry, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, Coventry, &c., 52 miles. — Money orders issued at Coventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — This parish borders on Rutland, from which it is separated by the Eye, a branch of the Welland. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £6. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £127: patron, Lord Berners, who is also lord of the manor: contains 1,010 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841,

81: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 93: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,647: poor rates in 1837, £71.

ALLHALLOWS, CUMBERLAND, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Allerdale, below Derwent ward, union of Wigton, comprising the manors of Baggrey, Harby Brow, Unckmanby, and Whitehall. It was formerly called Unckmanby, and was a chapelry in the parish of Aspatria: 321½ miles from London (coach road 308), 5 from Wigton, 4 from Market-Ireby. —Sou. West. Rail. through Crewe and Carlisle, to Brayton station, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through Carlisle, &c., 237 miles. —Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3 p.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —It is intersected by the river Ellen, and here are quarries of freestone, collieries, and lime-kilns. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £80: patron, Bishop of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, T. Thompson: contains 1,860 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 235: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 270: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,861: poor rates in 1837, £77: tithes commuted in 1812. —On the west is Brayton Hall, the seat of Sir Wilfred Lawson, Bart., who succeeded his brother, to whom the estates were bequeathed on his assuming the name.

ALLHALLOWS, KENT, a seaward parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Hoo, lathe of Aylesford: 41 miles from London (coach road 36), 7 from Rochester, 5 from Sheerness. —Steam-boat from Hungerford, Waterloo or London Bridge to Gravesend, thence 11 miles: railway being constructed from Sou. East. terminus to Rochester, which, when finished, will have a station at Higham, distant 8 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 173 miles. —Money orders issued at Rochester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The coast-guard station is in this parish: the number of the men is 25. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £8. 7s. 11d.: pres. net income, £215: patron, Dean and Chapter of Rochester: contains 2,460 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 303: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 348: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,849: poor rates in 1837, £155. —Rose and Crown Inn.

ALLINGHAM, KENT. See THORNHAM.

ALLINGTON, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Godder Thorne, division and union of Bridport: 157 miles from London (coach road 136), 1 from Bridport, 8 from Lyme Regis. —Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Taunton, 176½, thence 28 miles. —Money orders issued at Bridport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —Here are almshouses for the poor of this parish and of Charmouth, endowed with the rent of two closes of land, containing 30 acres. —The living (St. Swithin), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury. It was formerly only a chapelry to Bridport: pres. net income, £108: patron, Rev. H. Fox: pres. incumbent, Henry Fox, 1819: contains 960 acres: 236 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,545: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,777: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,226: poor rates in 1837, £446. —Fair, July 22.

ALLINGTON, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Larkfield, lathe of Aylesford, union of Malling, near the river Medway. It was formerly a market town: 58 miles from London (coach road 32), 2 from Maidstone, 7 from Rochester. —Sou. East. Rail. to Maidstone, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 190 miles. —Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The castle of Allington is, perhaps, one of the most perfect remains of the feudal age in the county of Kent, although described by Mr. Hasted as having been long in ruin, a very small part being left, now used as a part of the adjoining farm-house, which seems to have been built out of the ruins of the house erected here by Sir Thomas Wyatt. Many of the towers are but little injured, and the moat has water in it half round the castle. Queen Elizabeth gave the estate to Sir Jacob Astley, master of her jewel-house, from whose descendants it came to the Marshams. Lord Romney is the present owner. The Medway winds round the north-west angle of the ruins, and the hills in its vicinity are for the most part covered with wood. The entrance is under a low arch, with grooves for portcullis, flanked by two circular towers, supposed to have been erected while it was held by the Cobhams, prior to the time of Edward IV. Sir Thomas Wyatt, the accomplished courtier and poet, was born at this castle in 1503. —The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £6. 18s. 8d.: pres. net income, £145: patron, Earl of Romney: pres. incumbent, G. F. J. Marsham, 1831: contains 530 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 49: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 56: poor rates in 1837, £90. —N. 1 m. is Boxley Abbey; E. 1½ m. Boxley Park House, the seat of Lord Romney; S. 1 m. Allington Park House; W. 1 m. Preston Hall.

ALLINGTON (formerly ALDINGTON), WILTS, a parish in the union of Amesbury, division of Salisbury and Amesbury: 102 miles from London (coach road 77), 6 from Salisbury, 4 from Amesbury. —Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Gloucester, to Swindon, 130, thence 30 miles. —Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £14. 13s.: pres. net income, £236: patron, Earl of Craven: pres. incumbent, F. W. Fowle, 1816: contains 460 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 94: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 108: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £721: poor rates in 1837, £72. —N. 2 m. is Wilbury Park, the seat of William Cubitt, Esq., M.P. for Andover.

ALLINGTON, SUFFOLK. See ATHELINGTON.

ALLINGTON, WILTS, a tithing in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of CHIPPENHAM—(which see): 95½ miles from London (coach road 95), 2 from Chippenham, 9 from Malmesbury. —Money orders issued at Chippenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 148: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,259.

ALLINGTON, WILTS, a township or tithing in the parish of All-Cannings, on the Kennet and Avon Canal: 81½ miles from London (coach road 88), 4 from Devizes, 10 from Marlborough. —Gt. West. Rail. to Hungerford, thence 20 miles: from

Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, Swindon, Chippenham, &c., 146½ miles. Money orders issued at Devizes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. Earl of Ilchester, lord of the manor: contains 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 184: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 207: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,259: poor rates in 1837, £107. N. 1½ m. is New Park.

ALLINGTON (EAST), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stanborough and Coleridge, union of Kingsbridge: 231½ miles from London (coach road 205), 4 from Kingsbridge, 6 from Dartmouth. Gt. West. Rail. to Totness, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Totness, &c., 245½ miles. Money orders issued at Kingsbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the arch<sup>d</sup> of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £32. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £345: patron, Mrs. Fortescue: pres. incumbent, H. R. Fortescue, 1844: contains 4,220 acres: 119 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 729: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 839: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,208: poor rates in 1837, £402.

ALLINGTON, WEST, (or ALVINGTON), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stanborough and Coleridge, union of Kingsbridge, including the chapelries of Malborough, South Milton, and South Huish: 1 from Kingsbridge, 18 from Plymouth. Access and postal arrangements as above. The gardens of Garston, in this parish, were famous for orange and lemon trees trained against the walls, and said to produce as fine fruit as any that comes from Portugal. The living (All Saints), a vicarage in the arch<sup>d</sup> of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £62. 16s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £685: patron, Dean and Chapter of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, D. Macdonald, 1835: contains 3,840 acres: 161 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 998: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,148: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £7,173: poor rates in 1837, £486.

ALLINGTON (WEST), LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Winnibriggs and Threo, parts of Kesteven: 132½ miles from London (coach road 115), 5 from Grantham, 10 from Newark. Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester to Melton Mowbray, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Melton Mowbray, &c., 45 miles. Money orders issued at Grantham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ p.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The living (Holy Trinity), a rectory in the arch<sup>d</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8. 13s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £262: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. E. Welby, 1816: contains 2,070 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 120: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 138: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,498: poor rates in 1837, £178: tithes, great and small, commuted in 1793.

ALLINGTON (EAST), LINCOLNSHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Sedgebrook. The chapel (St. James) belongs to the second mediety of the rectory of Sedgebrook. The other returns are included in the parish of West Allington—(which see.) Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 276: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 317.

ALLITHWAITE (UPPER), LANCASHIRE, a township in the parish of Cartmell, union of Ulverstone: 269 miles from London (coach road 255), 2 from Cartmell, 11 from Hawkeshead. Nor. West. Rail. through Lancaster to Milnthorpe, thence

8 miles: from Derby, through Lancaster, &c., 185 miles. Money orders issued at Milnthorpe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Contains 3,710 acres: 137 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 868: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 994: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,340: poor rates in 1837, £211.

ALLITHWAITE (LOWER), LANCASHIRE, a township in the same parish as the preceding—(which see): 1½ miles from Cartmell, 13 from Hawkeshead. Contains 2,360 acres: 164 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 958: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,094: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,873: poor rates in 1837, £534.

ALLONBY (or ALANNY), CUMBERLAND, a chapelry in the parish of Broomfield, ward of Allerdale below Derwent, union of Wigton: 324½ miles from London (coach road 315), 9 from Cockermouth, 11 from Wigton. Nor. West. Rail. through Carlisle to Aspatria station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Carlisle, &c., 240½ miles. Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 3 p.m. Situated on a low flat on Allonby Bay, facing the Scottish coast, of which it has an extensive prospect, it lies well for bathing, and is resorted to for that purpose. The inhabitants are chiefly occupied in fishing, and during the winter considerable quantities of cod are taken; also some herrings, but this branch of the fishery is not so productive as it once was. Hutchinson, in his "History of Cumberland," assigns, as a reason, the habits of the fish. He says, after remaining in this channel ten years, the wonderful shoals of this fish are said to leave it, to stay away ten years, and then return and stay ten years longer. These revolutions are described to be as regular as those of the planets, the flow of the tide, or the change of the seasons. He goes on to state that, strange as it may seem, it is a fact, and had been noticed for three repetitions. The fish seem now to have altered their habits, and do not return as they used. The living, a perpetual curacy in the arch<sup>d</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, not in charge, is valued in the parliamentary returns at £47. 6s.: pres. net income, £94: patron, Vicar of Broomfield: pres. incumbent, W. Hartley, 1829: contains 176 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 811: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 938: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,343: poor rates in 1837, £293.

ALLOSTOCK, CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Great Budworth, union of Northwich: 169 miles from London (coach road 168), 5 from Knutsford, 5 from Middlewich. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Holmes Chapel, thence 3½ miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 85 miles. Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The children of parents who rent property under £10 per annum, are admissible to the school of Lower Peover. Contains 2,540 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 520: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 607: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,559: poor rates in 1837, £291. S. 1 m. is Allostock Hall.

ALL SAINTS, KENT, a member of the town and port of Dover, in the lower half-hun<sup>d</sup> of Kingslow, lathe of St. Augustine. The living, a curacy not certified; the church is now demolished, and the parish united to that of St. Nicholas at Wade.

ALL SAINTS, SOUTH ELMHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Wangford: 143 miles from London (coach road 105), 5 from Halesworth, 5 from Bungay. — Nor. East. Rail. through Ely to Norwich, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Norwich, &c., 220 miles. — Money orders issued at Halesworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, with the parish of St. Nicholas, Elmham, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8. 0s. 6d.: pres. net income, £260: contains 1,150 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 279: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 319: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,548: poor rates in 1837, £271. — W. 1 m. is Flixton Hall, the seat of Sir Robert Shafto Adair, Bart.

ALLWINTON, NORTHUMBERLAND. See ALLENTON.

ALMELEY (or ALMERLEY), HEREFORD, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Wolphy, and partly in that of Stretford, union of Weobley, containing the townships of Almeley, Hopley's Green, and Logaston: 180½ miles from London (coach road 150), 5 from Weobley, 13 from Leominster. — Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Wadborough, thence 39 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c. 72½ miles. — Money orders issued at Ludlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £6. 17s. 11d.: pres. net income, £254: patron, Bishop of Hereford: pres. incumbent, W. Edwards, 1836: contains 3,630 acres: 152 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 642: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 739: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,887: poor rates in 1837, £342. — The petty sessions of the hun<sup>d</sup>. are occasionally held here. — N. 1 m. is Newport Park.

ALMER, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Loosebarrow, division of Shaston, union of Blandford: 122 miles from London (coach road 107), 6 from Blandford, 7 from Wimborne. — Sou. West. Rail. to Wimborne, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, and Bridgewater, 164½, thence 45 miles. — Money orders issued at Blandford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — South 1 mile is Charborough House, the seat of Sawbridge Erle Drax, Esq., M.P., who acquired the property and assumed the name through his wife, the heiress of Drax Grosvenor, Esq. The house stands in a little vale, surrounded by well-wooded hills. Over the door of a small building in the grounds, an inscription was affixed by T. E. Drax, Esq., stating, under that roof, in the year 1686, was concerted the plan of the Revolution, and cautioning Englishmen that on themselves depended the maintenance of the liberties then acquired. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £13. 5s. 5d.: pres. net income, £284: patron, T. S. Drax, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Charles Sawbridge: contains 1,520 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 189: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 217: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,560: poor rates in 1837, £59.

ALMINGTON, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Drayton-in-Hales: 150½ miles from London (coach road 158), 1 from Drayton, 12 from Newcastle-under-Lyne. — Nor. West. Rail. through Tamworth and Crewe, to Standon Bridge, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 76½ miles.

— Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Contains 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 390: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 447. — S. 1 m. is Hales Hall, and Almington Grove: N. 1 m. Tunstall Hall, and Oakley Hall.

ALMINGTON, and STONE-DELPH, WARWICK, a township in the parish and union of Tamworth, on the Coventry Canal: 111 miles from London (coach road 112), 2 from Tamworth, 7 from Atherstone. — Nor. West. Rail. to Tamworth, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 27 miles. — Money orders issued at Tamworth: London letters 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — Contains 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 297: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 336: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,969: poor rates in 1837, £105.

ALMODINGTON (or ALMANINGTON), SUSSEX, a hamlet and curacy in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Manhood, rape of Chichester. This was formerly a parish, but is now consolidated with EARNLEY—(which see): 85 miles from London (coach road 68), 6 from Chichester, 10 from Bognor. — Sou. East. Rail. to Chichester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 217 miles. — Money orders issued at Chichester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.

ALMONDBURY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the upper division of the wapentake of Agbrigg, union of Huddersfield. It includes the townships of Almondbury, Austonley, South Crossland, Farnley-Tyas, Holme, Lingartha, Linthwaite, Lockwood, and Upper Thong, with the chapelries of Honley, Meltham, Marsden, and Nether Thong: 212½ miles from London (coach road 186), 2 from Huddersfield, 10 from Barnsley. — Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, 132 miles; then through Wakefield to Huddersfield, 78½, thence 2 miles. — Money orders issued at Huddersfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Camden thinks it was the Campodonum of the Romans; but Whittaker thinks it is Saxon, and was the seat of the Saxon kings. This is one of the great manufacturing districts: in 1838, there were in this parish 3 cotton-mills, 67 woollen-mills, and 2 silk-mills; but the number of hands employed in these works is considerably larger than it was then. There is a grammar-school, founded by letters patent of James I., and which has an endowment of £100 a-year, from bequests of Robert Nettleton and others. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of York. There are churches in Almondbury, Crossland, Holme, Linthwaite, and Nether Thong, the last three built about 1830. Valued at £20. 7s. 11d.: pres. net income, £232: patron, Governors of Clitheroe School: pres. incumbent, Lewis Jones, 1823: contains 30,140 acres: 5,545 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 37,315: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 42,910: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £26,368: tithes commuted in 1782. — N. 1½ m. is Thorp Villa, and Lascelles Hall; S. 1 m. Woodfield House; 2 m. Woodsome Hall.

ALMANDBURY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish, which see for access and postal arrangements. — Contains 2,550 acres: 1,303 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 8,136: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 9,336: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,300: poor rates in 1837, £879.

ALMONDSBURY, GLOUCESTER, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Berkeley, partly in that of Langley and Swinehead, and partly in that of Thornbury, union of Thornbury. It comprises the tithings of Almondsbury, Hempton and Patchway, Over with Lower Tockington, and Gaunt's Eartheote. Access and postal arrangements see below. The greater part of this parish consists of pasture land, defended from the encroachment of the river by sea walls; yet it is at times overflowed. On the brow of Knowle Hill are the traces of a camp or bury, supposed by some to give the termination to the name of the place; but others say its name is derived from its being the burying place of Almond, a Saxon prince. Within the area of this camp is Knowle House, the seat of W. Chester Master, Esq. The living (St. Mary the Virgin), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, a peculiar of the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £568: patron, Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol: contains 6,950 acres: 239 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,584: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,821: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £13,293: poor rates in 1837, £799.

ALMONDSBURY, GLOUCESTER, a village in the above parish: 126½ miles from London (coach road 117), 8 from Bristol, 4 from Thornbury. Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, and Yote, 121½, thence 5 miles. Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. It is situated below two singular limestone hills, which abruptly terminate the line through which the river Boyd flows to the Avon. From these heights the view is grand and extensive, embracing the estuary of the Severn and the opposite coast of Wales. In the church, a handsome cruciform building, are some specimens of Norman architecture. Contains 1,900 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 592: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 682: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,045.

ALMPTON, NOTTINGHAM. See OMPTON.

ALMSFORD, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Catsash, union and division of Wincanton: 136½ miles from London (coach road 114), 1 from Castlecary, 4 from Bruton. Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 30 miles; or Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, 141, thence 30 miles; from Derby, through Birmingham, Bath, &c. 173½ miles. Money orders issued at Castlecary: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7,12s. 1d.: pres. net income, £297: patron, F. Woodford, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. T. Chamberlain: contains 920 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 293: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 337: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,512: poor rates in 1837, £202.

ALMWYCH, ISLE OF ANGLESEA, NORTH WALES. See AMLWCH.

ALNE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Bulmer, union of Easingwold. It includes the townships of Alne, Aldwork, Flawith, Thothorpe, Tollerton, and Youlton. Access and postal arrangements are given below. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £415: patron, Sir C. Codrington: pres.

incumbent, H. Chaloner, 1820: contains 10,250 acres: 301 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,703: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,958: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £9,448: the great and small tithes of the townships of Thothorpe and Flawith were commuted in 1800, and those of Tollerton in 1810. S. 2 m. is Winchett Hall.

ALNE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish, partly within the liberties of St. Peter, York: 230½ miles from London (coach road 212), 3 from Easingwold, 6 from Boroughbridge. Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, York, and Alne station: from Derby, through York, &c., 98½ miles. Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7-50 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Contains 2,490 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 475: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 545: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,580: poor rates in 1837, £118.

ALNE (GREAT), WARWICK, a chapelry and township in the parish of Kinwarton—(which see): 145½ miles from London (coach road 103), 3 from Alcester, 7 from Stratford. Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham and Droitwich, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 74½ miles. Money orders issued at Alcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Contains 1,620 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 465: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,848.

ALNE (LITTLE), WARWICK, a hamlet in the parish of Aston-Cantlow, near the junction of the Alne with the Arrow. The returns are made with those of the parish—(which see): 4 miles from Alcester, 4 from Henley. For access and postal arrangements, see GREAT ALNE.

ALNHAM, NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish in the northern division of Coquetdale ward, union of Rothbury. It comprises the townships of Alnham, Prendick, Screnwood, and Unthank. Access and postal arrangements are given below. The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Northumberland, diocese of Durham, is valued at £3,17s. 1d.: pres. net income, £74: patron, Duke of Northumberland: pres. incumbent, John Carr, 1840: contains 16,360 acres: 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 256: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 294: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,424.

ALNHAM, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish: 351 miles from London (coach road 314), 14 from Alnwick, 9 from Rothbury. Nor. West. Rail. to York and Lesbury, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 483 miles. Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ p.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. On a hill, about a mile to the westward of the village, there is a semicircular encampment, 100 yards in diameter, defended by a high double rampart and deep trench, within which there is a range of uncemented stones. Contains 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 166: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 186: poor rates in 1837, £81.

ALNWICK, NORTHUMBERLAND, a market town and parish, partly in the eastern division of Coquetdale ward, and partly in the southern division of Bamborough ward: 338 miles from London (coach road 308), 34 from Newcastle. Nor. West. Rail. to York and Lesbury, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c. 206 miles. Money orders are issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m. and 1 p.m. : post closes 12.20 p.m. and 8 p.m. — The town stands on the side of a hill, sloping towards the Alne, which gives it its name, although, according to Lombard, another derivation is suggested. He says—Aunwyke seemeth to some to have receaved the name from the Saxons, of Alne, the tree, and Wick, which in their speache signifieth a toune: but it is more probable that the name should be deryved of the ryver running thereby, which is called Ale, and so Alnwyke, the toune upon Ale. The most ancient accounts of the place are in connection with the castle, which, from foundations discovered during repairs, is supposed to have been originally a Roman structure, although no part now standing is of that era: some portions of the edifice, from the style of the architecture, seem to be of Saxon times. At the Conquest, it belonged to Tyson, one of the Saxon barons who fell at Hastings, whose daughter, together with her father's domains, was, according to the policy of the Conqueror, handed over to one of his followers, Ivo de Vescy. In 1093, it was besieged by Malcolm of Scotland, who, with his son Prince Edward, fell in the attack: in 1174, King William III. of Scotland was taken prisoner before this castle: it was burnt by John when he desolated this part of the kingdom (as mentioned under Acreington Park): in 1310, it was bought from the Bishop of Durham, who was guardian of the natural son of the last of the Vescys, by the ninth Lord Percy, first baron of Alnwick—one of the great barons who, in 1301, subscribed the celebrated letter to Pope Boniface VIII., on his attempting to interfere in the affairs of the kingdom, informing him that the king was not to answer in judgment for any rights of the crown of England before any tribunal under heaven; . . . and that, by the help of God, they would, resolutely and with all their force, maintain against all men. And in 1328, Douglas and Randolph made an unsuccessful attempt upon it. The first record of the town is about 50 years before the castle came into the hands of the Percys; for in the 42nd of Henry III., it is recognized as an established corporation, although no charter of incorporation is to be found among the archives. The abbey was founded in 1174, and in 1375 had annexed to it, by Lord Percy, the hospital of St. Leonard: it was an abbey of some importance, and its abbot was summoned to parliament: at the dissolution, it was granted to Sadler and Winnington; and, after passing through the possession of several families, was, at the end of the last century, bought by the Duke of Northumberland. A gateway tower remains standing. In 1411, the castle was embattled, and the town walled, by the second Earl, who fell at St. Albans: and in 1448, the Scots burnt the town, in revenge for the destruction of Dumfries: in 1463, after the battle of Hexham, the Earl of Warwick besieged the castle, which, however, was relieved by Sir George Douglas. Such is a very short summary of the vicissitudes experienced by this fortress, from its situation so near the border. It is described as being ruinous from the shocks to which it had been exposed, till 1750, when Sir Hugh Smithson, who had married the heiress of the Percy family, assumed their name by act of parliament, and, Grose says, immediately set to repair the castle; and, with the most consummate taste and judgment, restored and embellished it as much as possible in the true Gothic style, so that it may deservedly be considered as one of the noblest and most magnificent models of a great baronial castle. The taking up the freedom in this town is accompanied by a very extraordinary ceremony. On St. Mark's day (April 25), the young freemen assemble in the market, and proceed to the moor, called Arden Forest, where is a pond, called "Freeman's Well," through which they are required to wade, the bottom being very uneven, and the water dammed up to make it as deep as possible. This is said to be in accordance with an absolute requirement of King John, who was annoyed at the muddy state of the roads in this part of the country. Many traditions refer to King John; but this does not seem very probable, for he gave the town (as was before remarked) a more substantial, if not so durable, proof of his anger. In the present condition of the town, only one of the old gates remains, the Bondgate, now a prison. The police, cleansing, paving, and lighting, is conducted under an act obtained in 1822. It is well supplied with water and gas: has a large market-place and town-hall. The stream is crossed, at the northern end of the town, by a good stone bridge. The houses are mostly built of stone, and some of them have considerable elegance. The chief trade is tanning, and the exporting of farm produce. There are several free schools; but by a report made in 1838, it appeared that the state of education was then at a very low ebb indeed, not above one in eight receiving even elementary instruction. On the north of Alnwick lies Hulne Abbey, founded by the lords of Alnwick (see ABBERWICK). One of its towers was repaired and somewhat restored, in the Gothic style, by the Duke who restored Alnwick Castle. On the wall adjoining is inscribed in old English—

xx
 "In the year of Crist Jhu mccc. lli & viii
 This Tower was blded be Sir Hen Percy
 The fourth erle of Northberland of gret honour & worth
 That espoused Maud ye good Ladie, full of vertue & bewty
 Dauter to Sir Willm Herbert right noble and hardy
 Earl of Pembroke whose soules God save
 And with his grace coserve ye blder of this tower."

—The living (St. Mary and St. Michael), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, diocese of Durham, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £175: patron, Duke of Northumberland: pres. incumbent, C. Granville, 1846: contains 16,250 acres: 940 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,626: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 7,620: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £22,909: poor rates in 1837, £2,434. Place of election for the county members for the northern division. —Market day, Saturday. Fairs, Palm Sunday eve, for shoes, hats, and pedlery; May 12; last Monday of July; first Tuesday in October, and Oct. 28, for horses and cattle; the Saturday before Christmas day, for shoes, hats, and woollens; and first Saturday in November is a statute fair. —Bankers, W. H. Lambton & Co.—Barclay, Bevan, & Co.; Branch of Durham and Northumberland District Bank—Glyn & Co.; Newcastle Banking Company—Barnett, Hoare, & Co.—Inns, White Swan, Angel, Red Lion, Turk's Head, George and Dragon, King's Arms.

ALPHAMSTONE, Essex, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hinckford, union of Sudbury: 54½ miles from London (coach road 50), 7 from Bures, 5 from Halstead. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Chelmsford and Mark's Tey station, thence 8½ miles: from Derby to London, and as above, 186½ miles. — Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of London, is valued at £11: pres. net income, £257: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Henry Hodges: contains 1,440 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 314: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 361: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,856: poor rates in 1837, £144.

ALPERTON, MIDDLESEX. See APPERTON.

ALPHETON, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Babergh, union of Sudbury: 65½ miles from London (coach road 61), 7 from Sudbury, 10 from Bury. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Chelmsford and Mark's Tey station, thence 19 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 197 miles. — Money orders issued at Sudbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living, a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £10. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £260: patron, Rev. T. G. Dickinson: pres. incumbent, T. G. Dickinson, 1816: contains 2,250 acres: 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 321: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 368: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,324: poor rates in 1837, £99. — W. 2 m. Spring Hall.

ALPHINGTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wonford, union of St. Thomas: 194½ miles from London (coach road 167), 1 from Exeter, 5 from Topsham. — Gt. West. Rail. to Exeter, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Exeter, &c., 208½ miles. — Money orders issued at Exeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — In the church is a Roman circular font, with interlaced arches, scroll ornaments, and grotesque figures over the arches, engraved in the third volume of the Antiquarian Repository. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £34. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £852: patron, Rev. R. Ellicombe: pres. incumbent, R. Ellicombe, 1831: contains 2,720 acres: 237 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,286: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,479: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,999: poor rates in 1837, £575. — Fairs, first Thursday in June, for horned cattle; and 2d Oct. for horses and cattle. — S. 2 m. Peamore House, the seat of S. Trehawke Kekewich, Esq.

ALPINGTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Loddon, union of Loddon and Clavering: 132 miles from London (coach road 119), 6 from Norwich, 5 from Loddon. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 208 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory united to that of Yelverton—(which see): contains 630 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 197: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 225: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,794: poor rates in 1837, £77. — W. 2 m. Hill House: S. 2 m. Burgh Apton House.

ALPRAHAM, CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Bunbury, union of Nantwich: 177½ miles from London (coach road 176), 3 from Tarporley, 7 from Nantwich. — Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe and Calveley station, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 93½ miles. — Money orders issued at Tarporley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — Contains 1,800 acres: 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 478: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 538: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,731: poor rates in 1837, £212. — S. 1½ m. Calveley Hall: E. 2 m. Minshall Hall.

ALRESFORD, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Tendring: 56½ miles from London (coach road 56), 5 from Colchester, 8 from Manningtree. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Colchester, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 188½ miles. — Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £307: patron, Hulme's Trustees: pres. incumbent, J. H. Swainson, 1843: contains 1,640 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 289: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 332: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,556: poor rates in 1837, £150.

ALRESFORD (OLD), HAMPSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Fawley, division of Alton, and union of Alresford: 74 miles from London (coach road 57), 7 from Winchester, 19 from Southampton. — Sou. West. Rail. to Winchester, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 206 miles. — Money orders issued at Winchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory with the chapelries of New Alresford and Maidstead, is a peculiar of the diocese of Winchester: valued at £49. 12s. 8½d.: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, Earl of Guildford, 1797: contains 3,660 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 502: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 575: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,648: poor rates in 1837, £604. — Bankers, Bulpitt & Co.; Barclay, Bevan, & Co. — It is a little village lying to the north of Alresford, or New Alresford: E. ½ m. is Old Alresford House, the seat of Lord Rodney: W. 2 m. Avington Park, the seat of the Duke of Buckingham, a handsome building in an extensive park nearly surrounded by high downs. In the time of Charles II. it was occupied by the notorious Countess of Shrewsbury, with whom the king was a frequent visitor.

ALRESFORD (NEW), HAMPSHIRE, a market town and parish in the division of Alton. — For access and postal, see ALRESFORD (OLD). — New Alresford was incorporated at an early period, and is said to have sent one member to parliament in the 23d Edward I. The town is governed by a bailiff and eight burgesses; and petty sessions are held in it by the county magistrates. There is a fine lake called Alresford Pond, covering nearly 200 acres, which formerly extended to Bishop's Sutton, one and a half miles distant: it forms the source of the river Itchin. The northern embankment is a causeway, said to be Roman, nearly 500 yards in length, which was finished, under a grant from King John, by Bishop Godfrey de Lucy. The object was to improve the navigation of the river, which, by locks and sluices, he rendered navigable to the sea; and, as a recompense, the bishop obtained for himself and successors the entire royalty of the river to the sea. The bishop also renewed the market here, which had fallen into desuetude, and called the place Newmarket, probably the better to distinguish it from the adjoining village of Old Alresford; but the inhabitants would not comply with the proposed alterations, and so it kept its name.---The living is a perpetual curacy in the rectory of Old Alresford: contains 1,250 acres: 258 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,578: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,814: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,921: poor rates in 1837, £459.---Market day, Thursday. Fairs, Holy Thursday, chiefly for sheep, last Thursday in July, and the 17th of October.---Bankers, Bulpitt & Co.—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.

ALREWAS (or ALDERWAS), STAFFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Offlow, union of Lichfield. It contains the township of Alrewas, with the hamlets of Fradley and Orgreave.---For access and postal, see below.---According to Malmesbury, this church was one of the prebends instituted by the Bishop of Lichfield in 822. In the southern division of the parish is a large extent of waste ground, called Fradley and Alrewas Common, on one part of which is a remarkable spring, vulgarly said to be bottomless: it is always flowing over, and although in a very low situation, the plummet descends 42 feet. Plot, in his "Staffordshire," speaking of this well, mentions an uncommon species of fungus being found near it, four or five inches in diameter, and issuing from a pedicle in the shape of an inverted cone; the interior resembling a sponge, and covered with a membranous skin: but fungi of this description are not uncommon.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Chancellor of Lichfield Cathedral, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £328: patron, Prebendary of Alrewas: incumbent, J. Moore, 1832: contains 4,350 acres: 340 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,658: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,906: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,973: poor rates in 1837, £534: tithes commuted in 1802.

ALREWAS (or ALDERWAS), STAFFORD: the township of Alrewas is 5 miles north-east by north of Lichfield: 116½ miles from London (coach road 124), 5 from Lichfield, 8 from Burton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby, Tamworth, and Alrewas, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Alrewas, 18½ miles.---Money orders issued at Lichfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 231 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,267: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,447: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,418: poor rates in 1837, £354.---E. 1½ m. Salter's Hall.

ALREWAS (HAYES), STAFFORD, an extra-parochial liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Offlow.---For access and postal, see ALREWAS.---Contains 1,680 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 87: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 94.

ALSAGER, CHESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Barthomley, union of Congleton: 164½ miles from London (coach road 157), 5 from Sandbach, 8 from Nantwich.---Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe and Alsager: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 80½ miles.---Money orders issued at Sandbach: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The chapel was built and endowed, also the school founded and endowed, by Mary, Judith, and Margaret Alsager.---The living, a donative curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £100: patron, Lords and Ladies of the Manor: pres. incumbent, W. Hadfield, 1843:

contains 2,860 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 445: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 513: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,793: poor rates in 1837, £257.---S. ¼ m. Alsager Hall: W. 2 m. Oakhanger Hall: N. 2 m. Bostock Hall, the seat of J. F. France, Esq.

ALSOP-LE-DALE, DERBY, a chapelry in the parish of Ashborne. This chapelry is in the honour of Tutbury: 156 miles from London (coach road 145), 6 from Ashbourne, 8 from Longnor.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Ambergate, thence 13½ miles: from Derby, through Ambergate, &c., 24 miles.---Money orders issued at Ashbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Ashbourne, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield: pres. net income, £49: patron, Inhabitants and Freeholders: pres. incumbent, W. H. Wayne: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 67: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 77.

ALSTON, LANCASHIRE, a township in the parish of Ribchester, union of Preston: 215½ miles from London (coach road 222), 6 from Preston, 6 from Blackburn.---Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe, Preston, and Alston: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 131½ miles.---Money orders issued at Preston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Contains 2,790 acres: 176 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 964: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,014: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,357: poor rates in 1837, £230.---E. 2 m. is Buckley Hall.

ALSTONE. See ALDERSTONE.

ALSTONE, WORCESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Overbury, union of Winchcomb: 128½ miles from London (coach road 101), 5 from Tewkesbury, 7 from Evesham.---Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Tewkesbury station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Tewkesbury, &c., 84½ miles.---Money orders issued at Tewkesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Patron, Dean and Chapter of Worcester: pres. incumbent, W. Smith, 1839: contains 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 89: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 102: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £892: poor rates in 1837, £56.

ALSTONEFIELD, STAFFORD, a parish in the north hun<sup>d</sup> of Totmonslow. It comprises the chapelries of Longnor, Quarnford, and Warslow, with the townships of Alstonefield, Upper and Lower Elkstone, Fairfield-head, Heathylee, and Hollingsclough: 157½ miles from London (coach road 144), 6 from Ashbourne, 8 from Longnor.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby and Ambergate, thence 15 miles: from Derby through Ambergate, &c., 25½ miles.---Money orders issued at Ashbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---In this parish rises the river Dove, on which the village stands, a favourite stream of the disciples of Isaak Walton: one of them (Cotton) wrote a supplement to Isaak's works, and has thus eulogised this stream:—

"O, my beloved Nymph! fair Dove!
Princess of Rivers! How I love
Upon thy flowery banks to lie,
And view thy silver stream
When glided by a summer's beam.
And all that wanton fry,
Playing at liberty;
And with my angle upon them,
The all of treachery
I ever learned
To practise and to try."

There is a silk-mill and some button-factories in the parish; and mines of lead, copper, and coal. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £8. 11s. 4d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Sir John Crewe, Bart.: pres. incumbent, J. Simpson, 1822: contains 21,860 acres: 961 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,701: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,406: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,626: tithes commuted, 4th & 5th William IV.

ALSTONEFIELD, STAFFORD. The township is 5½ miles N.N.W. of Ashbourne. It stands on the river Dove, on the confines of Derbyshire. —For access and postal, see above. —Contains 2,700 acres: 118 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 739: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 844: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,538: poor rates in 1837, £175.

ALTCAR, LANCASHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby, union of Ormskirk. It is intersected by the Alt: 213 miles from London (coach road 214), 6 from Ormskirk, 11 from Liverpool. —Nor. West. Rail. to Liverpool and Little Altcar, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Liverpool, &c., 129 miles. —Money orders issued at Ormskirk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —The living (St. Michael), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £11. 10s.: pres. net income, £95: patron, Earl of Sefton: pres. incumbent, C. Forshaw, 1826: contains 3,580 acres: 69 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 490: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 563: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,893: poor rates in 1837, £509.

ALTERNON, CORNWALL, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lennewith, union of Launceston: 237½ miles from London (coach road 222), 8 from Launceston, 8 from Camelford. —Gt. West. Rail. to Exeter, thence 44 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Exeter, &c., 251½ miles. —Money orders issued at Launceston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. —The living (St. Nunn), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £18. 5s.: pres. net income, £320: patron, Dean and Chapter of Exeter: pres. incumbent, R. H. Tripp, 1842: contains 13,840 acres: 203 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,334: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,534: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,147: poor rates in 1837, £394.

ALTHAM, LANCASHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Whalley, union of Burnley: 223½ miles from London (coach road 212), 5 from Burnley, 6 from Blackburn. —Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe, Manchester, and Burnley, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 139½ miles. —Money orders issued at Burnley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £11. 15s. 8d.: pres. net income, £117: patron, R. T. R. Walton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Wood, 1823: contains 1,160 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 349: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 401: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,975: poor rates in 1837, £110. —S. 1 m. is Shuttleworth Hall; W. 2 m. Clayton Hall, the seat of J. Lomax, Esq.

ALTHORNE, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dengie, union of Maldon: 48 miles from London (coach road 42), 3 from Burnham, 6 from Maldon. —East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Maldon, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 180 miles. —Money orders issued at Maldon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The low lands in this parish are protected from the overflowing of the estuary of the river Crouch by embankments, constructed by labourers brought over from Holland for the purpose, whose descendants still live here. —The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, united with Crixeth, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, diocese of London, is valued at £14: patron, J. H. Candy, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Bruce, 1831: contains 2,000 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 418: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 481: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,580: poor rates in 1837, £192.

ALTHORPE (or OLDTHORPE), NORTHAMPTON, formerly a hamlet, now a manor, in the parish of Great Brington, from which Earl Spencer derives the title of Viscount: 74½ miles from London (coach road 73), 7 from Northampton, 5 from Weedon. —Nor. West. Rail. to Weedon, thence 5 miles: from Derby to Rugby, Weedon, &c., 67½ miles. —Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters delivered 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —It appears that the Spencer family first settled at Althorpe in 1508, when some land was purchased by John Spencer, whom the king afterwards knighted, and gave him a license for a park, which is described as containing 300 acres of land, 100 acres of wood, and 40 acres of water in Oldthorpe. In 1603, Anne, consort of James I., with the prince her son, rested here on her way from Scotland to London, and during her stay was entertained by a mask composed by Ben Jonson. In 1642, Henry Lord Spencer was created Earl of Sunderland, after the battle of Edgehill: he fell the same year at Newbury. His lady has been immortalized by Waller as his "Sacharissa;" but although he honoured her in his verses, she declined to accept his name, and married Baron Spencer. Althorpe House is a large building, occupying three sides of a quadrangle, and the park is an undulating piece of ground distinguished by masses of forest trees. The house is celebrated for the collection of books and pictures. Dibdin, describing the library in his time, says—It occupies a suite of rooms four in number, and measuring in the whole about 170 feet in length. These are garnished from top to toe with the choicest copies of the choicest editions of the choicest authors, in the choicest bindings. The present Earl Spencer was a distinguished member of the House of Commons as Lord Althorpe.

ALTHORPE, LINCOLN, a parish in the western division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey. It comprises the townships of Althorpe, Amcotts, and Keadby, and is intersected by the river Trent, which is here joined by the Stamford and Keadby Canal: 196 miles from London (coach road 165), 5 from Burton, 5 from Epworth. —Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby, Lincoln, and Gainsborough, thence 15 miles; or East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Peterborough, Lincoln, &c., 196 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln, &c., 81 miles. —Money orders issued at Burton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living (St. Oswald), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £400: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, J. Aspinall, 1839: contains 5,460 acres: 183 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,184: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,362: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,921: tithes commuted in 1779, 1794, and 1831.

ALTHORPE, LINCOLN. The township of Althorpe is 6 miles south-west from Burton-upon-Stather, and 4 south-east from Crowle. For access and postal arrangements, see ALTHORPE parish. Contains 68 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 358: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 407: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,219: poor rates in 1837, £146. W. 1 m. is Warren House; E. 2 m. Frodingham Hall.

ALTHORPE (or ALETHORPE), NORFOLK, a hamlet in the parish of Fakenham, to which it is now united, the church having long since gone into decay; so early as the year 1419, this was appointed a chapelry: 142 miles from London (coach road 111), 2 from Fakenham, 3 from North Walsingham. East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Ely and East Dereham, thence 13½ miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Ely, &c., 170 miles. Money orders issued at Fakenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.; post closes 5½ p.m. Contains 280 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 18: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10.

ALTAUR, BRECKNOCKSHIRE, a chapelry to the vicarage of Llan-afan-fawr, hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Builth: 156½ miles from London (coach road 170), 3 from Builth, 12 from Brecon. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 53 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Spetchley station, 67½, thence 53 miles. Money orders issued at Builth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3½ p.m.; post closes 5 p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Brecon, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £2. 17s.: patron, Bishop of St. David's: contains 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 50: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 57: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £272: poor rates in 1837, £16.

ALTOFTS, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Normanton, on the river Calder: 196½ miles from London (coach road 186), 4 from Wakefield, 8 from Leeds. Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, 132 miles, thence 63½ to Normanton, thence 1 mile. Money orders issued at Wakefield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The North Midland Railway intersects the township, and is carried on a viaduct over the Calder and the canal. Contains 1,730 acres: 87 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,539: poor rates in 1837, £220. W. 2 m. is Moor House, the seat of J. Maude, Esq.

ALTON, HANTS, a parish and market town in the Alton division of the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Alton. The parish includes the hamlets of Anstey, Thyding, and Willhall, with the chapelries of Holybourne, Binstead, and Kingsley, and the market town of Alton: 49 miles from London (coach road 48), 10 from New Alresford. Sou. West. Rail. to Alton: from Derby, through London, and as above, 181 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Penny posts to Dronford, Warnford, and Westmeon. This place once turned out considerable quantities of bombazines, serges, and other woollen fabrics, but that branch of trade has decreased. There are a paper-mill and some corn-mills turned by a branch of the Wye; but the principal trade is brewing, the Alton ale being famous in London, as well as throughout the county. The town is a modernized and improving place, pleasantly situated on the Wye: the market-house has been enlarged, and the markets are well attended. Hops are extensively cultivated in the vicinity, and are considered equal to those grown at Farnham. The church, a small building, was the scene of one of those sad occurrences which, in the middle of the 17th century, were too common in this country. In December, 1645, Sir W. Waller attacked Lord Hopton, who was in possession of the town. The royalists being routed, a Colonel Bowles with his men retired to the church, but finding they could not hold their position, they surrendered; the colonel refusing quarter, was killed on the spot. The living (St. Lawrence), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £728: patron, Dean and Chapter of Winchester: pres. incumbent, E. James, 1832: contains 3,910 acres: 472 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,139: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,610: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,458: poor rates in 1837, £1,133. Polling-place for the county. A corn market every Tuesday, and every alternate Tuesday a cattle and sheep market, which is considered the best in the county. Fairs, April 29, for sheep and lambs; Sept. 29, for cattle and toys; also a considerable lamb market, held on the Butts the day after Stockbridge fair. Bankers, Bulpitt & Co.—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.—Inns, George, Swan, Royal Oak, Duke's Head. E. 1½ m. is Ansty House; 2 m. Holybourn Lodge; W. 1½ m. Thedden Grange; 2 m. Blentworth Hall.

ALTON, WORCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Rock, noted for its hop plantations: 142½ miles from London (coach road 126), 4½ from Bewdley, 13 from Worcester. Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham and Brooms Grove, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 71½ miles. Money orders issued at Bewdley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.

ALTON-BARNES (or ALTON-BERNERS), WILTS, a parish and small village in the division and union of Devizes, and hun<sup>d</sup> of Swanborough: 76½ miles from London (coach road 82), 4 from Pewsey, 7 from Marlborough. Gt. West. Rail. to Reading and Hungerford, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, and Swindon, 130, thence 15 miles. Money orders issued at Pewsey: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. It formerly belonged to the abbess of Amesbury nunnery. The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £6. 18s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £294: patron, New Coll., Oxford, which also holds the manor: pres. incumbent, David Williams, 1835: contains 1,053 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 167: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 192: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £959: poor rates in 1837, £40. S. 1 m. is the Manor House; E. 1½ m. Stowell Lodge.

ALTON-PANCRAS, DORSET, a parish in the liberty of Alton-Pancras, subdivision and union of Cerne: 148 miles from London (coach road 120), 3 from Cerne-Abbas, 7 from Dorchester. Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 7 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Bristol, and Bridgewater, 164½, thence 32 miles. Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living (St. Andrew or St. Pancratius), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the patronage and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £120: pres. incumbent, R. Shittler: contains 1,370 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 248: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 285: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,576: poor rates in 1837, £75.---N. 2 m. is Minter House.

ALTON-PRIORS, WILTS, a chapelry in the parish of Overton, division of Everley and Pewsey, union of Pewsey, in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Elstub and Everley: 82 miles from London, 7 from Devizes, 7 from Marlborough.---For access and postal, see ALTON-BARRES.---It is a curacy annexed to the living of Overton---(which see): patron, Duke of Marlborough: pres. incumbent, C. Hoyle, 1812: contains 2,630 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 150: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 170: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,853: poor rates in 1837, £89.

ALTON, STAFFORD.---See ALVETON.

ALTRINCHAM (OR ALTRINGHAM), CHESHIRE, a chapelry and market town in the parish of Bowdon, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bucklow, union of Altrincham, 190½ miles from London (coach road 179), 12 from Warrington, 9 from Manchester.---Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe, Stockport, and Altrincham: from Derby through Crewe, &c., 106½ miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The town is situated on Bowdon Downs, and, on account of the salubrity of the air, is much resorted to by invalids from Manchester. Spinning bobbins and yarn, together with handloom weaving, constitutes a great portion of the employment of the inhabitants. Many, however, are employed in the market-gardens, a large quantity of vegetables being supplied from this place to the Manchester markets. Altringham is of the ancient fee of the Barons of Dunham Massey. In the reign of Edward I., Hamon de Massey of Dunham Massey, instituted burgesses in this town, and granted them a gild mercatory, that is, a society for free traffic and merchandise, about the year of Christ 1290.---The living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, being merely a chapelry to Bowdon, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Bowdon: pres. incumbent, Francis Orton, 1843: contains 520 acres: 537 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,399: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,909: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,547: poor rates in 1837, £338.---Market day, Tuesday. Fairs, April 29, Aug. 5 and 6, and Nov. 22, for cattle and drapery.---N. 1 m. is Timperley Hall; W. 1 m. Oldfield Park; S. 1 m. Hale Lodge; 1½ m. Bank Hall; 2 m. Tempest Hall.

ALVANLEY, CHESHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Frodsham, union of Runcorn: 186½ miles from London (coach road 188), 3 from Frodsham, 10 from Chester.---Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe and Chester, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 102½ miles.---Money orders issued at Preston Brook: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living, a donative curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Chester, is valued at £5. 10s.: pres. net income, £47: patron, Lord Alvanley: pres. incumbent, E. Wolfenden, 1847: contains 1,460 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 314: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 361: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,156: poor rates in 1837, £165.---S. ½ m. is Alvanley Hall.

ALVASTON, CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Nantwich: 159½ miles from London (coach road 164), 9 from Sandbach, 10 from Middlewich.---Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 75½ miles.---Money orders issued at Sandbach: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Contains 610 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 48: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 55.---S. 1 m. is Alvaston Hall.

ALVASTON, DERBY, a township and chapelry in the parish of St. Michael, union of Shardlow, and hun<sup>d</sup>. of Morleston and Litchurch: 135½ miles from London (coach road 124), 4 from Derby, 8 from Kigworth.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby and Spondon, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Spondon, &c. 3½ miles.---Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Derby, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £116: patron, Parishioners: pres. incumbent, Edward Poole, 1846: contains 870 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 493: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 567: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,744: poor rates in 1837, £142: tithes commuted in 1802.---S. 1 m. is Elvaston, the seat of the Earl of Harrington.

ALVECHURCH, WORCESTER, a parish in the division of Northfield, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Oswaldston, and union of Bromsgrove: 131½ miles from London (coach road 114), 4 from Bromsgrove, 11 from Birmingham.---Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham and Bromsgrove, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 60½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bromsgrove: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 p.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---This was formerly a place of some importance, as is indicated by the names of streets, which are now merely nominal; and the Bishop of Worcester had a palace here. Bishop Brain, who, in the reign of Edward III., was chancellor of England, and to whom the Black Prince wrote the account of the battle of Poitiers, died here. Dr. Hickes, the Saxon scholar, was incumbent of this parish and dean of Worcester: he was deprived for refusing to take the oaths on the accession of William III.; and was sent by the nonjurors to St. Germain's, to negotiate the appointment of bishops in the English church from among the followers of the exiled king. On his return, he was himself made Bishop of Thetford. The church, dedicated to St. Lawrence, was built in the reign of King Stephen, 1145, and contains a few ancient monuments. The churchyard was consecrated in the same reign by a Bishop Stephen.---The living, a rectory and peculiar of the See of Worcester, is valued at £24. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £1,025: patron, Bishop of Worcester: pres. incumbent, J. F. Tonym, 1801: contains 6,820 acres: 307 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,633: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,878: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,176: poor rates in 1837, £599.

ALVEDISTON (OR ALVESDISTON), WILTS, a parish in the division of Hindon, union of Tisbury, and hun<sup>d</sup>. of Chalk: 109 miles from London (coach road 92), 7 from Hindon, 9 from Shaftesbury.---Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, and Bath, 143½, thence 33 miles.---Money orders issued at Hindon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The village is singularly situated, being at the bottom of a deep valley, to the left of the turnpike road from Salisbury to Shaftesbury, which runs along the top of Whitesheet Hill. This position renders the access of vehicles difficult. The view from the elevated down, along which the road runs, is very fine.---The living (St. Mary), a vicarage not in charge, subordinate to the rectory of Broad Chalk, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Salisbury, and incorporated with Broad Chalk and Bower Chalk, the value of St. Mary alone being £400: patron, King's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, S. H. Hawtrey, 1813: contains 2,564 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 263: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 302: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,334: poor rates in 1837, £90.

ALVELEY, SALOP, a parish and township partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stottesden, and partly in the borough of Bridgenorth, union of Bridgenorth, on the eastern bank of the Severn. It includes the liberty of Romsley and the township of Nordley-Regis: 13½ miles from London (coach road 133), 6 from Bridgenorth, 8 from Bewdley.---Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 22 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 63½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bridgenorth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---This was one of the six prebends included in the collegiate church of Bridgenorth, which was a royal free chapel, valued in the reign of Henry III. at 60 marks.---The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy, under the jurisdiction of the peculiar court of Bridgenorth, is valued at £65: pres. net income, £103: patron, Colonel Gatacre: pres. incumbent, R. A. W. Considine, 1838: contains 7,640 acres: 193 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,062: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,221: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £5,618: poor rates in 1847, £485.---N. 2 m. is Ley Hall; S. 1½ m. Red House; E. 2 m. Cotton Hall, the seat of R. Adderley, Esq.

ALVERDISCOTT (or AISCOT), DEVONSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Fremington, union of Torrington, and division of Braunton: 212 miles from London, (coach road 200), 4 from Bideford, 6 from Barnstaple.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol and Tiverton, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 225½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bideford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon; post closes 1 p.m.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £13. 3s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £168: patron, W. Lee, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. M. Lee, 1838: contains 1,390 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 332: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 382: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,431: poor rates in 1837, £125.

ALVERSTOKE, HANTS, an extensive and populous parish in the liberties of Alverstoke and Gosport, hun<sup>d</sup> of Portsdown, division of Fareham, comprising the town and port of Gosport, and the chapelries of Anglesey, Elson, and Fortun. The village of Alverstoke is about two miles from the Gosport station, and about 3½ from Fareham station, on the south-west line of road: 91 miles from London (coach road 79), 1 from Gosport, 6 from Titchfield.---Sou. West. Rail. to Manchester and Gosport, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, Reading, Winchester, &c., 230 miles.---Money orders issued at Gosport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.; post closes 5½ p.m.

---The new church was erected in 1830, under the church commission, to accommodate 1,169 persons, and cost £3,965. Dr. Sturges, the distinguished polemical disputant, died here in 1807.---The living (St. Mary), a rectory, a peculiar of the See of Winchester, is valued at £21. 6s. 0½d.: pres. net income, £1,287: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, Thomas Walpole, 1845: contains 6,840 acres: 2,338 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 13,510: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 14,637: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £41,440: poor rates in 1837, £3,290.

ALVERSTON, ISLE OF WIGHT, a chapelry in the parish of Brading: the chapel is now in ruins: 100 miles from London, 5½ from Newport.---Sou. West. Rail. to Portsmouth, thence 5 miles; cross per steam-packet to Rye, thence 5 miles: from Derby through London, and as above, 232 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---For returns, &c., see BRADING.

ALVERTHORP, WEST RIDING, YORK. See ALBERTHORPE.

ALVESCOTT, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bampton, union of Witney: 76½ miles from London (coach road 74), 5 from Burford, 6 from Witney.---Gt. West. Rail. to Farringdon Road station, thence 13 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Stonehouse, Farringdon Road station, &c., 156½ miles.---Money orders issued at Burford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £8. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £371: patron, T. Neate, Esq.: pres. incumbent, A. Neate, 1829: John Gwynne, Esq., Lord of the Manor: contains 2,690 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 357: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 410: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £3,323: poor rates in 1837, £187: tithes commuted in 1796.

ALVESDISTON, WILTS. See ALVEDISTON.

ALVESTON, GLOUCESTERSHIRE, a parish partly in the upper and partly in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Langley and Swineshead, union of Thornbury. It includes the hamlets of Grovening and Urcot: 133½ miles from London (coach road 119), 9 from Bristol, 3 from Thornbury.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Yate, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Yate, &c., 126½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---In this parish are vestiges of two Roman camps, one near the top of Oldbury Hill, the other on Castle Hill.---The living (St. Helen), a curacy annexed to Alveston in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol: pres. net income, £250: patron, Dean and Chapter of Bristol: pres. incumbent, John Rawes, 1846: contains 2,470 acres: 137 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 841: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 968: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £4,173: poor rates in 1837, £237.

ALVESTON (formerly called AULSTON), WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the Snitterfield division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barlich-way, union of Stratford-on-Avon: 111 miles from London (coach road 96), 2 from Stratford-on-Avon, 7 from Warwick.---Nor. West. Rail. through Coventry to Leamington, thence 8 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Coventry, &c., 76½ miles.---Money orders issued at Stratford-on-Avon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The village stands in a wooded country on the banks of the Avon. Dr. Perry gave it the name of the Montpelier of England, on account of the salubrity of the air. To the west are Welcombe Hills, the scene of hostilities between the Britons and the Saxon invaders. The intrenchments called the Dingles are supposed to have been made by the latter people.---The living (St. James), a vicarage in the diocese of Worcester, exempt from the visitation of the archdeacon, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £220: patron, R. Hampton Lucy, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Peglar, 1846: contains 4,300 acres: 135 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 793: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 912: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,561: poor rates in 1837, £431: tithes commuted in 1771.---S. 1½ m. is Banaset House, the seat of J. W. Harding, Esq.: W. 2 m. Welcombe House, the seat of C. W. Warde, Esq.: E. 2 m. Charlote House, the seat of G. Lucy, Esq., whose father took the names and arms of Lucy on coming to the property of that ancient family: one member of which has been, as is well known, most severely treated by the "Bard of Avon." This park, house, and their then owner, are inseparably connected with the history of Shakspeare.

ALVETON (or ALTON), STAFFORDSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Totmonalw-South, union of Cheadle. It contains the townships of Alveton, Cotton, Denston, and Farley, and a part of Oakmoor.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £5. 16s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £151: patron, Earl of Shrewsbury: pres. incumbent, J. Pike Jones, 1829: contains 7,470 acres: 430 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,390: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,749: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £8,726: poor rates in 1837, £769.

ALVETON (or ALTON), STAFFORDSHIRE: 140 miles from London (coach road 142), 4 from Cheadle, 6 from Uttoxeter.---Gt. West. Rail. to Rugby, Tamworth, and Burton, thence 18 miles: from Derby, per road, 18 miles.---Money orders issued at Cheadle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The ruins of the old castle stand on the summit of a precipitous rock, 300 feet above the river Churnet, a branch of the Dove, which flows through a narrow bed, so that the ground on the other side is nearly as high as the castle rock. Dr. Plot, in his "Staffordshire," says,---Quickly after the beginning of Edward II., Alveton Castle seems to have been built by Theobald de Verdon, as may pretty plainly be collected from the annals of Croxden. But it is by others considered to date nearly to the Conquest, for it seems that in the time of Henry II. it belonged to Bertram de Verdon. It now belongs to the Earl of Shrewsbury.---Contains 222 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,370: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,560: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,410: poor rates in 1837, £300.---N. ½ m. Alveton Abbey; 2 m. Wood Farley.

ALVINGHAM, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parochial chapelry in the marsh division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth. It is on the Louth navigation canal: 170 miles from London (coach road 153), 4 from Louth, 18 from Grimsby.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Louth, thence 4 miles: from Derby through Peterborough, &c., 137½ miles.---Money orders issued at Louth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---Here was a small priory of Gilbertines, founded by Walter de Bec, whose sister was one of the first nuns: at the suppression, it was valued, says Dugdale, at £128. 14s. 2d., and was granted to Edward Lord Clinton.---The living (St. Adelwold), a perpetual curacy in connection with Cockerington St. Mary, in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £2: pres. net income, £130: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, Henry Howard, 1846: contains 1,940 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 313: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 360: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,162: poor rates in 1837, £159: tithes commuted in 1819.---S. 2½ m. Brackenborough House.

ALVINGTON (or AVENTON), GLOUCESTERSHIRE, a hamlet and chapelry to the parish of Woolaston: 117 miles from London (coach road 128), 6 from Blakeney, 7 from Chepstow.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Berkeley Road, thence 7 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Gloucester, Berkeley Road, &c., 116½ miles.---Money orders issued at Blakeney: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---Several antiquaries, following Camden, have considered this to be the Abone of the Romans; though neither do the distances of the Itinerary support the supposition, nor are there any traces of encampment, nor remains of any sort.---The living, a curacy not in charge, subordinate to Woolaston---(which see): patron, Duke of Beaufort: pres. incumbent, C. Bryan, 1813: contains 1,550 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 340: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 391: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,787: poor rates in 1837, £109: tithes commuted in 1810.

ALVINGTON, DEVON. See ALLINGTON.

ALWALTON (or ALLETON), HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Norman Cross, union of Peterborough: 107½ miles from London (coach road 80), 5 from Peterborough, 6 from Stilton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Roade to Wansford station, thence 3½ miles; or East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Peterborough, Caistor, &c., 107½ miles; from Derby through Peterborough, &c., 75 miles.---Money orders issued at Peterborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---This village, together with Fletton, was given to the monks of Peterborough by Andreas, their 23d abbot, for the augmentation of their commons; and at the dissolution, Henry VIII. gave it to the Dean and Chapter. Stukely derives the name from Ald-werkton; and Dr. Neve from Ad-vallum, or from Adelwold-tune, from Adelwold, Bishop of Winchester. At the Domesday survey, Waltune was possessed by Hugh de Bolebec.---The living (St. Andrew), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £9. 5s. 10d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Dean and Chapter of Peterborough: pres. incumbent, J. Hopkinson, 1833: contains 1,040 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 329: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 379: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,543: poor rates in 1837, £74: tithes commuted in 1805.

ALWARDBY, CUMBERLAND. See ALLERBY.

ALWINGTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Shebbear, union of Bideford, including the small villages of Fairy-cross and Woodtown: 222 miles from London (coach road 206), 4 from Bideford, 13 from Barnstaple. — Gt. West Rail. to Tiverton, thence 38 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Bristol, Tiverton, &c., 235½ miles. — Money orders issued at Bideford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — The ancient family of Coffin have held the manor of Alwington since the Conquest. The grandfather of the present occupant of Portledge House, in the manor of Alwington, who is also the rector of Alwington and lord of the manor, added the name of Coffin to that of Pine (J. T. Pine Coffin), on coming to the property through the female line. — The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £17. 4s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £243: patron, Rev. J. T. Pine Coffin: pres. incumbent, J. T. Pine Coffin, 1837: contains 5,330 acres: 85 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 392: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 451: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,203: poor rates in 1837, £153. — S. 1 m. Yeo Vale, the seat of Mrs. Morrison; 2 m. Orleigh Court, the seat of J. Lee Lee, Esq.

ALWINTON, NORTHUMBERLAND. See ALLENTON.

ALWOODLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Harewood: 209 miles from London (coach road 193), 4 from Leeds, 5 from Otley. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Leeds, thence 4 miles: from Derby through Leeds, &c., 77 miles. — Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 1,120 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 162: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 195: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £575: poor rates in 1837, £51. — W. 2 m. Westwood Hall.

AMBER-GATE, DERBYSHIRE, an important station on the North Midland Railway, 10½ miles from Derby, and 62½ miles from Leeds. At this point a road diverges by Alfreton and Chesterfield to Sheffield, and a very beautiful and picturesque road to Cromford, Matlock-Baths, and Matlock. Omnibuses ply from this point to Matlock. The station is a handsome building in the Elizabethan style. Mr. Stephenson has extensive limeworks here.

AMBERLEY, HEREFORDSHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Marden: 161 miles from London (coach road 135), 6 from Hereford, 8 from Leominster. — Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse, to Wadborough station, thence 25 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Spetchley station, 138, thence 25 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, &c., 92½ miles. — Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Contains 330 acres: 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 22: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 25: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £387.

AMBERLEY, SUSSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of West-Eastwirth, rape of Arundel, including the hamlet of Rockham: 76 miles from London (coach road 51), 4 from Arundel, 11 from Worthing. — Sou. East. Rail. through Brighton to Arundel station, thence 6 miles: from Derby through London, and as above, 208 miles. — Money orders issued at Arundel: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — It lies on the east bank of the Arun, and is remarkable for the remains of its castle, contiguous to the church. It was built in 1368, by William Rede, Bishop of Chichester, as an episcopal residence; but it was afterwards leased to various families, until it came into the possession of Lord Selsea. A part of the building has been turned into a farm-house. Although it was surrounded by a fosse, and the principal entrance was defended by two small round towers and a portcullis, the architecture is light and elegant, suited to the residence of a prelate, rather than for that of a warrior. — The living, a vicarage united with Houghton, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £7. 5s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £166: patron, Bishop of Chichester: pres. incumbent, G. A. Clarkson, 1840: contains 3,030 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 722: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 830: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,513: poor rates in 1837, £114: tithes commuted in 1813.

AMBERSHAM (NORTH AND SOUTH), HANTS, tithings in the parish of Steep, but locally in the union of Midhurst, Sussex: 51 miles from London (coach road 49), 3 from Midhurst, 6 from Haslemere. — Sou. West. Rail. to Godalming, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 183 miles. — Money orders issued at Midhurst: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 2,590 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 351: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 400: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,962: poor rates in 1837, £304.

AMBLE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Warkworth, at the mouth of the Coquet: 334 miles from London (coach road 301), 9 from Alnwick, 11 from Morpeth. — Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, York, Newcastle, and Warkworth, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 202 miles. — Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — This little hamlet appears to have been a place of some note in olden times, from the remains of a monastery which was subordinate to Tynemouth; and more ancient remains, both Roman and British, are found. — Contains 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 277: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 322.

AMBLECOAT, STAFFORD, a hamlet in that part of the parish of Old Swinford, in the union of Stourbridge: 123½ miles from London (coach road 122), 1 from Stourbridge, 8 from Wolverhampton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 52½ miles. — Money orders issued at Stourbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The inhabitants are principally employed in the potteries, collieries, and ironworks which abound in this part of the country. — Contains 570 acres: 244 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,623: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,866: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,186: poor rates in 1837, £679.

AMBLESIDE, WESTMORELAND, a market town and chapelry, partly in the parish of Windermere and partly in that of Grasmere, union and ward of Kendal: 269½ miles from London (coach road 278), 13 from Kendal. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, to Windermere, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 181½ miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The town, the name of which was, in 1273, written Amelstate, and afterwards Hamelside, is beautifully situated on the side of a steep hill, at the mouth of a narrow glen, through which rushes the Gill, which name means that the stream is a mountain torrent.

Above the town is Kirkstone Moor. Opposite, Loughrigg Fell towers up from its wood-fringed base 1,060 feet. The gorge or glen, at the mouth of which the town is placed, extends back three miles, and then abruptly turns to the left, round the base of Fairfield, whose summit is 2,950 feet above the sea. Beyond, the valley opens out, and holds the waters of the two little lakes, Rydal and Grasmere. The scenery of this valley, and of the different glens which converge into it, is beautiful; and descending the stream from Fairfield, Windermere lies stretched before the admiring gaze of the tourist. The town is old and irregularly built, but above and beyond it are some detached modern houses standing in gardens. Some woollen cloths are manufactured here and sent to Kendal. There is a large slate quarry at Whittemoss; and a small quantity of metal is procured from the neighbouring mountains. The magistrates hold petty sessions in the town. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £80: patron, Lady L. Fleming: pres. incumbent, Sam. J. Fell, 1846: contains 180 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,281: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,400: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,842: poor rates in 1837, £335. Polling-place for the county. Market day, Wednesday. Fairs, Wednesday after Whitsunday, and Oct. 29, for cattle.

AMBLESTON, PEMBROKE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Dangleddy, union of Haverford-West: 22½ miles from London (coach road 266), 7 from Haverford-West, 3 from Fishguard. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 118 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Spetchley station, 67½, thence 120 miles. Money orders issued at Haverford-West: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. About a mile north-east of the church is considered to be the site of a Roman station, the Advigesionum of Richard of Cirencester. Mr. Fenton made this discovery in 1805: he thus mentions it:—The station, by its shape, the square agger with rounded angles, notwithstanding the tillage it has for ages undergone, is faint yet distinct, the appearance of Roman brick and cement on its surface, although in pasture, and the course of the road which runs through it corresponding with other portions of the Via Julia we had traced. . . . We had no doubt that this was the place referred to by the monk of Cirencester. It is almost a perfect square, each side measuring about 260 feet: it lies east-south-east by west-north-west. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £183: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, John Pugh, 1824: contains 115 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 605: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 696: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,623: poor rates in 1837, £210.

AMBRESBURY. See AMESBURY.

AMBROSDEN, OXFORDSHIRE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bullington, union of Bicester. It comprises the chapelries of Arncoot and Blackthorne, with the hamlet of Ambrosden. The hamlet of Ambrosden is half a mile distant, having a population of 379: 65½ miles from London (coach road 51), 2 from Bicester, 12 from Oxford. Nor. West. Rail. to Aylesbury, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bletchley, 85½, thence 20 miles. Money orders issued at Bicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. Bishop Kennet, who at one time held the living, and was afterwards Bishop of Peterborough, supposes the name of this place to be derived from Ambrosius, the British chief who encamped here during the siege of Alchester by the Saxons. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £11. 17s.: pres. net income, £228: patron, Sir E. H. P. Turner, Bart.: pres. incumbent, L. G. G. Dryden, 1838: contains 5,210 acres: 172 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 892: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,026: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £4,191. N. ¼ m. is Ambrosden Park, the seat of Sir E. H. P. Turner, Bart.

AMCOTTS, LINCOLN, a township in the parish of Althorp, on the river Trent. It is a chapelry to ALTHORP—(which see for access and postal arrangements): 165 miles from London, 4 from Burton, 9 from Epworth. Contains 68 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £3,567: poor rates in 1837, £88.

AMERSHAM (or AGMONDE-ESHAM), BUCKS, an ancient borough, market town, and parish, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Burnham, union of Amersham: 30½ miles from London (coach road 26), 14 from Aylesbury. Nor. West. Rail. to Watford, thence 13 miles; or Gt. West. Rail. to High Wycombe, 32½, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Boxmoor, 107½, thence 10 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. It is situated in a valley among the beautifully-wooded chalk hills which cover this part of the country. The manor, after passing through the possession of several families, came to the crown at the death of the great Earl of Warwick, whose widow was compelled formally to surrender it. Henry VIII. gave it to Lord Russell; and in the reign of James I., it came to the Drake family by marriage. The present lord, T. Tyrwhitt Drake, Esq., is an indirect descendant. In the monument-room of the church are some very fine monuments of the family. The market and town-house was built by one of the Drakes in 1682. It is a handsome brick structure, on pillars, with a clock tower. The market is held in the area below, and is well attended: meetings for business take place above. Lace-making and straw-plait work, which are the standard occupations in this part of the country, are carried on. The living is one of the best in the kingdom, and is held by one of the Drakes. The hamlet of Coleshill, which is in this parish, is a detached part of Hertfordshire. Coleshill House was the residence of the Waller family, and in it the poet was born. (Maunder says he was born at Coleshill, Warwick; but this must be a clerical error.) He represented the borough in two parliaments in the reign of Charles I.; the first time he was only seventeen. He is buried in Beaconsfield church. Maunder sums his character thus:—His intellectual powers were of a superior order. He was at once a powerful, elegant, and graceful speaker; while the wit and pleasantness of his conversation made him a favourite even with those whom his abject pliancy must have disgusted. English versification is much indebted to him; and for ease, gaiety, brilliancy, and wit, his amatory poems have not been surpassed. There are several small endowed schools, and one or two endowed charities.

Here, Fox informs us, among other Lollards, was burned William Tillsworth, in the time of Henry VII., by order of Dr. Smyth, Bishop of Lincoln, for talking against pilgrimages and the worship of images, and for reading the scriptures in English. His murder is made memorable by one of the most refined acts of cruelty ever perpetrated even by the intolerant papists of that day. They caused his daughter to carry the torch and set fire to the pile which was to be the horrible means of putting him to death. About a mile from the town is Shardeoles, the seat of the lord of the manor, finely situated on the brow of a hill, overlooking a lake of 35 acres extent, which lies in the narrow valley below. The gardens were swamp ground; but were drained and the grounds laid out under the orders of the celebrated Richmond. The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £48. 16s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £1,331: patron, T. T. Drake, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Drake, 1826: contains 5,420 acres: 528 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,645: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,192: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £7,305: poor rates in 1837, £967. Disfranchised by the Reform Bill; used to return two members. Market day, Tuesday. Fairs, Whitmonday for sheep, and Sept. 19. N. ½ m. is Homer House; W. 1½ m. Grange Grove; S. 2 m. Coleshill House.

AMESBURY (formerly AMBROSEBURY or AMBRESBURY, and in Domesday-book AMBLESBURIE), WILTS, a parish and formerly a market town, in the division and union of the same name: 103 miles from London (coach road 77), 7 from Salisbury. Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, Reading, Salisbury, &c., 242 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. It stands in a valley on the Avon, and seems to have been, in former times, a place of considerable importance. It is generally considered to derive its name from Ambrosius Aurelius, a British chief who ruled after the Romans had retired from the island, and during the early conflicts with the Saxons. The accounts of him are vague and confused: he is generally associated with Merlin, and always with this locality. In Domesday-book, it is stated to be held by the king, and to have been held by Edward; also not to have been levied upon nor divided into hides. Rex tenet Amblesberie: Rex Edwardus tenuit: nunquam geldavit, nec hidata fuit. The nunnery appears to have been founded by Elfrida, queen of Edgar, and flourished till the time of Henry II., when the nuns, being convicted of loose and immoral conduct, were expelled, and in their place he instituted 24 nuns from Font Evrault, in Normandy. Many females of high birth took the veil in this nunnery. At the dissolution, it was granted by Henry VIII. to the Earl of Hertford. Amesbury House, which stands on the site of it, was built from designs by Inigo Jones, who seems to have paid great attention to this neighbourhood, as he wrote a work on Stonehenge, which he considered to be a Roman temple; but he is opposed by all antiquarians. Amesbury House was, in the early part of the 18th century, the abode of Gay, the poet and author of the fables which bear his name. It was then the residence of the celebrated Duke and Duchess of Queensberry, who took up the cause of Gay in his later years. In the latter part of the last century, it was occupied by a society of nuns from Louvain, who fled hither at the commencement of the Revolution; about the year 1800 they removed into Dorsetshire. It now belongs to Sir Edmund Antrobus, Bart., who purchased it about 25 years ago. The estate contains about 5,700 acres, including Stonehenge, and other celebrated antiquities. On the west side of the river is an earthwork, called Vespasian's Camp, but supposed to be of British formation. It stands on an eminence, round two sides of which the Avon winds, and it occupies an area of about 40 acres, enclosed by a single ditch and vallum: it is laid out as pleasure grounds. In this town, in 1672, Addison was born, one of the finest writers in our language. Our space will not permit us to do more than remark, that his literary renown was embellished by his Christian life, and to quote the pithy summary given by Maunder:—Of his numerous and well-known writings, it may be affirmed that they rest on the solid basis of real excellence in moral tendency, as well as in literary merit: vice and folly are satirized; virtue and decorum are rendered attractive; and, while polished diction and attic wit abound, the purest ethics are inculcated. May we not then repeat the laudatory and emphatic words of Dr. Johnson,—“Whoever would attain an English style, familiar but not coarse, and elegant but not ostentatious, must give his days and nights to the volumes of Addison.” Here are three or four endowed schools, and a bequest for apprenticing poor boys. The best pipe-clay in England is dug in the vicinity; and the stream yields trout and roach. Stonehenge is of too much importance to be slightly passed over in an article such as this is; it will be described, as well as all other remarkable localities, when we have finished inhabited places. The living (St. Mary and St. Melorius), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £40: pres. net income, £141: patron, Dean and Chapter of Windsor: pres. incumbent, F. W. Fowle, 1817: Lord of the Manor, Sir Edmund Antrobus: contains about 5,700 acres: 198 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,171: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,346: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £5,710: poor rates in 1837, £621. Market discontinued. Fairs, May 17, June 21, Dec. 21, horses and cattle.

AMLWCH, ISLE OF ANGLESEY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Twerolyn, union of Anglesey: 257 miles from London (coach road 269), 15 from Holyhead, 20 from Beaumaris. Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Bangor, thence 19 miles: from Derby, through Chester, &c., 173 miles. Money orders issued at Bangor: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. The derivation of the name is traced to the nature of the locality—lluch, a sandy beach. It is considered that mines were worked by the Romans in the Parys mountain, which is in this parish. About the middle of the last century, they were recommenced by a company renting of Sir N. Bayley, afterwards Earl of Uxbridge. At one time they yielded large quantities of copper ore, which, for want of coal here, was, to a great extent, taken to the vicinity of Liverpool and to Swansea to be smelted. The Romans probably worked them for lead. Some years ago part of a furnace hearth was found, made of gritstone, and with it some lumps of lead. A description of these mines, when in the height of their prosperity, is given by Mr. Bingley, in his tour, and also by Mr. Aikin. One portion of these mines, adjoining those of the Earl of Uxbridge, made the fortune of the Rev. Edward Hughes, father of Lord Dinorben, who married a young woman, then in a very humble station, but whose claims to this property he succeeded in establishing.---The living, a perpetual curacy in connection with the chapelry of Llanwenllwyio, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Anglesey, and diocese of Bangor, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £217: patron, Bishop of Bangor: pres. incumbent, M. Williams, 1846: contains 1,264 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,217: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 7,147: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,070: poor rates in 1837, £1,240.

AMLWCH, NORTH WALES, a seaport town in the above parish—which see for access and postal arrangements: 261 miles from London.---Is situated on a narrow creek between two ledges of rocks, which is dry at low water. It can harbour 20 to 30 vessels from 150 to 200 tons, which come to freight with the copper and copper ore. It is difficult of access in rough weather, on account of the roll of the sea into this narrow gorge. Off this port are several small islets called the Mouses.---Contains 1,264 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,070.---Market-day, Saturday. Fairs, March 8, May 4, and August 12.---Bankers, National Provincial Bank of England—draw on London Joint Stock Bank.

AMMINGTON. See ALMINGTON.

AMMINGTON, OXFORD. See ЕММINGTON.

AMNEY. See AMPNEY.

AMOTHERBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Appleton-le-Street: 243½ miles from London (coach road 221), 3 from New Malton, 7 from Pickering.---Nor. West. Rail. through York to New Malton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 111½ miles.---Money orders issued at Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---It has a small endowed free school.---The living is a chapelry to Ryedale, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, diocese of York: contains 1,580 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 276: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 294: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,662: tithes commuted in 1776.

AMPLEFORD (or AMPLEFORTH), YORK, a parish partly in the liberty of St. Peter, partly in the wapentake of Birdford, and partly in that of Ryedale, in the union of Helmsley-Blackmoor. It includes the townships of Ampleford and Oswald-Kirk-Quarter: 240½ miles from London (coach road 223), 4 from Helmsley, 18 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. through York to Raahelf, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 108 miles.---Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---The living (St. Hilda), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £4. 6s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £261: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, G. W. Wrangham, 1829: contains 2,270 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 446: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 513: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,530: poor rates in 1837, £190.

AMPLEFORD (or AMPLEFORTH), YORK, a township in the above-mentioned parish—which see for access and postal arrangements.---Contains 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 237: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 264: poor rates in 1837, £53: tithes commuted in 1804-6.---To the south lie Newburgh Hall; and Gilling Castle, the seat of C. G. Fairfax, Esq., who assumed the name on inheriting the estates at the death of his cousin, the heiress of the last Viscount Fairfax.

AMPNEY (or AMNEY) CRUCIS, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Crowthorne and Minety, union of Cirencester: 98 miles from London (coach road 87), 3 from Cirencester, 9 from Northleach.---Gt. West. Rail. to Cirencester, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Cirencester, &c., 124 miles.---Money orders issued at Cirencester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The living (The Holy Rood), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formery in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, now in that of Bristol, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £6. 9s. 0½d.: pres. net income, £84: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, E. A. Daubeny, 1829: contains 2,660 acres: 113 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 591: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 680: poor rates in 1837, £284.

AMPNEY-DOWN, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Crowthorne and Minety, union of Cirencester: 87½ miles from London (coach road 85), 3 from Cricklade, 6 from Cirencester.---Gt. West. Rail. to Purton, thence 6 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Gloucester, Purton, &c., 131½ miles.---Money orders issued at Cricklade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage formery in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, now in that of Bristol, and in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £10. 5s. 8d.: pres. net income, £116: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, A. Price, 1788: contains 2,470 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 425: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 489: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,610, including Ampney-Crucis: poor rates in 1837, £187.

AMPNEY, ST. MARY, (or ASHBROOKE), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the same hun<sup>d</sup> and union: 99 miles from London (coach road 88), 4 from Cirencester, 5 from Fairford.---Gt. West. Rail. to Cirencester, thence 4 miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Gloucester, Cirencester, &c., 125½ miles.---Money orders issued at Cirencester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The chapel is an old building of the style called early English.---The living, a perpetual curacy formery in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, now in that of Bristol, and in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £5. 3s.: pres. net income, £71: patron, M. H. Beach, Esq.: pres. incumbent, L. Latham, 1833: contains 1,170 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 121: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 139: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,672: poor rates in 1837, £74: tithes, &c., with Ampney-Crucis, commuted in 1769.

AMPNEY (ST. PETER), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the same division and hun<sup>d</sup> as the above, situated to the south of Ampney (St. Mary).---For access and postal arrangements, see AMPNEY (ST. MARY).---The living, a perpetual curacy formery in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, now in that of Bristol, and in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £4. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £60: patron, Bishop of Gloucester: pres. incumbent, E. A. Daubeney, 1820: contains 860 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 196: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 226: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £948: poor rates in 1837, £60.

AMPORT, HANTS, a parish in the division, hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Andover: 7½ miles from London (coach road 69), 5 from Andover, 5 from Ludgershall. —Sou. West. Rail. to Andover Road station, thence 13½ miles: from Derby through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Swindon, 130, thence 30 miles. —Money orders issued at Andover: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £25. 7s. 11d.: pres. net income, £858: patron, Dean and Chapter of Chichester: pres. incumbent, C. Webber, 1828: contains 3,460 acres: 124 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 771: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 886: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,655: poor rates in 1837, £391. —W. ¼ m. Amport Park, the seat of the Marquis of Winchester.

AMPTHILL, BEDFORD, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Redbornstoke, union of Ampthill: 54½ miles from London (coach road 46), 8 from Bedford. —Nor. West. Rail. through Bletchley to Ampthill station, thence 2½ miles: from Derby through Bletchley, &c., 77½ miles. —Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —It is situated about the centre of the county, between two hills: is a regularly built town, and has a good market-house. The occupation of the inhabitants is agriculture; the soil is light and sandy. There are various endowed charities and schools, to the amount of about £200 a-year. Petty sessions for the Ampt-hill division are held here, and the Lord High Steward holds a court for the "honour of Ampt-hill," at which peace officers are appointed. In the reign of Henry VI. a castle was built here. Leland says:—The castle and town of Ampthill, and divers fair lordships thereabout, belonged to Lord Fanhope, a man of great fame and very rich, who built this stately castle as it now standeth, with the spoils he won in the wars in France. It came into the hands of Henry VII., and Henry VIII. constituted it a royal demesne, and named the annexed estate "The Honour of Ampthill." The castle stood in the park to the north-west of the town, on higher ground than the present mansion, and was the residence of Queen Catherine during the time her divorce was in agitation. Lord Ossory erected a cross on the site of the castle, and Horace Walpole wrote the following lines to be inscribed on its base:—

"In days of old, here Ampthill's towers were seen,
The mournful refuge of an injured Queen;
Here flowed her pure but unavailing tears;
Here blinded Zeal sustained her sinking years.
Yet Freedom hence her radiant banners waved,
And Love avenged a realm by Priests enslaved:
From Catherine's wrongs a nation's billsas was spread,
And Luther's light from Harry's lawless bed."

Houghton Park was, at the beginning of this century, thrown into Ampthill Park, and the house of the former made into ornamental ruins; it was built by Mary Countess of Pembroke, the subject of the well-known epitaph of Ben Jonson. Ampt-hill Park is the seat of Lord Holland: it is a spacious domain, embellished with some fine old oak and other timber trees. —The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £10. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £283: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, George Maule, 1846: contains 1,928 acres: 332 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,001: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,301: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,579: poor rates in 1837, £400. —Market day, Thursday. Fairs, May 4, Nov. 30, for cattle, and Sept. 29. Bankers, Sharples & Co.—draw on Barclay & Co.

AMPTON, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Thedwestrey, union of Thingoe: 99½ miles from London (coach road 76), 5 from Bury St. Edmonds, 8 from Thetford. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Bury St. Edmonds, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Ely, to Thetford, 123, thence 8 miles. —Money orders issued at Bury St. Edmonds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £5. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £172: patron, Lord Calthorpe: pres. incumbent, J. H. Stuart, 1842: contains 870 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 147: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 169: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £845: poor rates in 1837, £55. —Ampton Hall is the seat of Lord Calthorpe, an indirect descendant of the Calthorpes who have long been seated here. The father of the present Lord Calthorpe took the name on succeeding to his uncle's estates, and was afterwards raised to the peerage. There is a school in Ampton endowed with £415 a year by one of this family; also endowed almshouses. W. 2 m. West Stow Hall, now a farm-house; and Culford Hall.

AMROTH (or AMSBROTH), PEMBROKE, SOUTH WALES, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Narberth: 213½ miles from London (coach road 251), 5 from Narberth, 6 from Tenby. —Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 110 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, 94½, thence 114 miles. —Money orders issued at Narberth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £3. 18s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £112: patron, C. P. Callen, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. Lewis, 1847: contains 129 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 779: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 895: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,877: poor rates in 1837, £302. —The seat now called Amroth Castle, formerly Eare Wear, is owned by the Rev. T. Shrapnel Biddulph.

AMSTEY, HERTS. See ANSTEY.

AMWELL (GREAT), HERTFORD, a parish in the union of Ware, and hun<sup>d</sup> of Hertford: 24 miles from London (coach road 20), 3 from Hoddesdon, 3 from Hertford. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Hoddesdon to St. Margaret's station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 156 miles. —Money orders issued at Hoddesdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The name in Doomeday-book is Emme Well, said to be from Emma's Well, one of the sources of the New-river. On a small islet in the river stands a monument to Sir Hugh Middleton, the great author of a work to which the Londoners are so much indebted, and who impaired his fortune in the undertaking, shares in which are now worth the original sum many times multiplied. The scenery of the locality has been celebrated by Scott, the Quaker poet, in his Amwell,—

"How picturesque the view, where up the side
Of that steep bank her roofs of russet thatch
Rise mixed with trees, above whose swelling tops
Ascends the tall church tower, and loftier still,
The hill's extended ridge! How picturesque,
Where slow beneath that bank the silver stream
Glides by the flowery isle, and willow groves
Wave on its northern verge, with trembling tufts
Of oster intermixt."

—The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of London, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £310: patron, Rev. M. Barnard: pres. incumbent, M. Barnard, 1826: contains 2,510 acres: 265 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,545: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,777: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,061: poor rates in 1837, £634. —S. 2 m. Netherfield Hall, the seat of Lewis Upton, Esq.; and Hailey Bury College: W. 2 m. Amwell Bury Park.

AMWELL (LITTLE), HERTFORD, a liberty in the parish of All Saints, union and hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hertford: 3 from Hoddesdon, 1 from Ware. —For access and postal arrangements, see AMWELL (GREAT). —Contains 480 acres: 68 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,465: poor rates in 1837, £128.

ANCASTER, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven, union of Grantham, and including the township of West Willoughby and Sudbrook: 142½ miles from London (coach road 116), 6 from Grantham, 8 from Sleaford. —East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Spalding, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Newark, 33, thence 15 miles. —Money orders issued at Grantham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —There seems no doubt that this was a Roman station; but it is matter of controversy what was its name. On the whole, the weight of authority is in favour of "Causennæ." Horsley says, —What was its Roman name I know not; but it has been a very strong city, entrenched and walled about, as may be seen very plainly for the most part, and perceived by those that are the least versed in those searches. —The living (St. Martin), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £151: patron, — Lamb, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Z. S. Warren, 1840: contains 2,800 acres: 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 530: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 614: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,866: poor rates in 1837, £216.

ANCLIFF, LANCASTER, a small hamlet in the parish of Wigan: 197 miles from London (coach road 199), 2 from Wigan. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Wigan, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 113 miles. —Money orders issued at Wigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —There is a curious well here, called the Burning Well, from the surface of which rises a vapour which will take fire on the application of a light, and burn for some hours if not disturbed.

ANCROFT, DURHAM, a parochial chapelry to the vicarage of Holy Island, union of Berwick-on-Tweed, in that detached portion of the county which lies on the border of Scotland: 363½ miles from London (coach road 253), 6 from Berwick, 10 from Coldstream. —Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, Newcastle, to Deal station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, Newcastle, &c., 231½ miles.

—Money orders issued at Berwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1½ p.m.: post closes 1 p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £131: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, W. Hewitt, 1827: contains 9,570 acres: 252 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,670: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,820: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £11,786: poor rates in 1837, £678.

ANDERBY, YORKSHIRE. See AINDERBY.

ANDERBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the marsh division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 159½ miles from London (coach road 142), 5 from Alford, 10 from Spilsby.

—East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Alford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln, Boston, Alford, &c., 101½ miles. —Money orders issued at Alford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. —The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, united in 1733 to Cumberworth, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 2s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £548: patron, Magdalen College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, John Lodge, 1835: contains 1,080 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 243: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 280: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,587: poor rates in 1837, £136: tithes commuted in 1805.

ANDERSON (or ANDERSTONE-WINTERBORNE), DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Coombs-ditch, division and union of Blandford: 110 miles from London, 7 from Blandford, 3 from Bere Regis. —Money orders issued at Blandford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £6. 19s. 1d.: pres. net income, £146: patron, D. B. Tregonwell: pres. incumbent, T. H. House, 1847: contains 750 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 43: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 50: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,323: poor rates in 1837, £54.

ANDERTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Great Budworth. It is intersected by the Grand Trunk Canal: 177 miles from London (coach road 175), 2 from Northwich, 9 from Warrington. —Nor. West. Rail. to Crewe and Acton station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 93 miles. —Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. at 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —Contains 490 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 372: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 432: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,537: poor rates in 1837, £388.

ANDERTON, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Standish, union of Chorley, intersected by the Bolton Railway: 202½ miles from London (coach road 201), 5 from Wigan, 4 from Bolton. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Manchester, Bolton, to Blackrod station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 118½. —Money orders issued at Wigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.:

post closes 7 p.m.—Contains 1,110 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 454: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,320: poor rates in 1837, £154.

ANDOVER, HAMPS, a borough, market town, and parish, in the division and union of Andover: 65½ miles from London (coach road 64), 18 from Salisbury.—Sou. West. Rail. to Andover Road station, thence 7½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Reading, to Andover Road station, &c., 202½.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Situating on the edge of the Downs which form Salisbury Plain, near the river Anton, it is supposed by Stukely to be the Andoreon of the Romans, being on the Roman road from Winchester to Cirencester. In Doomsday-book it is set down as being held by the king, and previously by Edward; and as having six mills, and woods which furnish pannage for 100 hogs. It was incorporated by King John. In the time of Edward I. it sent members to parliament; but, from the time of Edward II. to that of Elizabeth, it returned none: it was governed under her charter till the passing of the Reform Bill, at which time the number of electors was 24. The church was in existence in the reign of William the Conqueror, who gave it to the abbey of St. Florence, in Anjou; but in the dissolution of the alien priories, in the time of Henry V., it was given to St. Mary's College, Winchester. The present structure was eight years in course of building: it has accommodation for 1200, and the greater portion of the sittings are free. It is built in the early English style; and the cost, about £30,000, was defrayed by the Rev. W. S. Goddard. The town-hall was erected about twenty years ago, and cost £7,000. The area below accommodates the market people, and the structure above is used for the meetings of the magistrates and municipal officers. It has ready access, by good turnpike roads, to all the adjacent towns. There are several endowed charities, but all of them on a small scale. Weyhill, which is within the limits of the Andover union, about 3 miles north-west, has the largest sheep fair in the kingdom, held in October, and lasts six days. The sheep pens are more than a mile in circuit, and nearly 200,000 sheep have been offered for sale. This fair draws a large concourse of agriculturists to Andover.—The living (St. Mary), a vicarage with the chapelry of Foxcote annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £17. 4s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £433: patron, Winchester College: pres. incumbent, C. H. Ridding, 1835: contains 8,290 acres: 923 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,941: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,682: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £8,975: poor rates in 1837, £1,217.—Market-day, Saturday. Fairs, Friday and Saturday after Midlent; 13th May, cheese; 17th and 18th November, sheep. Bankers, Heath & Co.—draw on Masterman & Co.—N. 1 m. is Down House: S. 2 m. is Middleton House, the seat of Henry Beaumont Coles, Esq., the member for the borough.

ANDOVERSFORD, GLOUCESTER, formerly a post town in the parish of Dodeswell—(which see for population, &c.) The petty sessions are held here for the district of Andoversford. The Cheltenham, Oxford, and London Union Railway here crosses the road from Cheltenham to Oxford: 106 miles from London (coach road 97), 10 from Gloucester, 5 from Cheltenham.—Gt. West. Rail. to Cirencester, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Cheltenham, 85, thence 5 miles.—Money orders issued at North Leach: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.

ANDREW (St.), GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Dinas-Powis, union of Cardiff. The village is called Dinas-Powis, and stands on a small river. The remains of the ancient castle may still be seen: 163½ miles from London (coach road 165), 5 from Cardiff, 5 from Llandaff.—Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 50 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, 94, thence 60 miles.—Money orders issued at Cardiff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £14. 13s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £398: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, E. W. Richards, 1828: contains 102 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 497: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 572: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,806: poor rates in 1837, £267.

ANDREW (St.), ILKETSHALL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Wangford: 108 miles from London (coach road 106), 3 from Bungay, 4 from Beccles.—East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Ipswich to Diss, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to Norwich, 202, thence 15 miles.—Money orders issued at Bungay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The town estate yields £21. 10s. per annum, which is applied to the general expenses of the parish, including the repair of the church.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 13s. 6d.: pres. net income, £139: patron, Bungay Grammar School: pres. incumbent, J. Gilbert, 1809: contains 102 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 548: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 628: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,631: poor rates in 1837, £413.

ANDREW (St.), MINOR, GLAMORGANSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Ogmore: 163½ miles from London (coach road 175), 15 from Cardiff, 6 from Bridgend.—Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 60 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, 94½, thence 65 miles.—Money orders issued at Cardiff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.—The living, a sinecure rectory in the diocese of Llandaff, is of the certified value of £5, charged on the Clementon estate. The church is in ruins. Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 18: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 22.

ANDREW (St.), DEVONSHIRE, a parish in the town of Plymouth—(which see for population, access, and postal): 244 miles from London, 261½ from Derby.—The living, a parish in the diocese of Exeter, archd<sup>y</sup>. of Totness: pres. net income, £1,100: patron, Corporation of Plymouth.

ANDREW (St.), KENT, a parish in the city of Canterbury—(which see for access and postal): 81 miles from London, 213 from Derby.—The living, a rectory in the diocese of Canterbury, united to the rectory of St. Mary Bredman, having jointly a pres. net income, £203: patron, Archbishop for two turns, and Dean and Chapter for one: pres. incumbent, C. E. Smith, 1847: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 509: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 589.

ANDREW (Str.), NORFOLK, a parish in the city of Norwich—(which see for access and postal): 126 miles from London, 202 from Derby.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £90: patron, Parishioners: pres. incumbent, J. Brown, 1807: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,295: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,484.

ANDREW (Str.), SOMERSET, a parish in the city of Wells—(which see for population, access, postal, &c.): 150 miles from London, 164½ from Derby.

ANDREW (Str.), SUSSEX, a parish in the city of Chichester—(which see for access and postal): 79 miles from London, 211 from Derby.—The living, a rectory in the diocese of Chichester: pres. net income, £102: patron, Dean and Chapter of Chichester: pres. incumbent, W. W. Holland, 1817: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 623.

ANDREW (Str.), YORKSHIRE, a parish in the city of York—(which see for population, access, postal, &c.): 219 miles from London, 87 from Derby.

ANDREW (Str.), WORCESTER, a parish in the borough of Droitwich—(which see for access and postal): 182½ miles from London, 61½ from Derby.—The living (St. Andrew and St. Mary), a rectory, together with the rectory of St. Nicholas, in the diocese of Worcester, having a joint pres. net income, £330: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. Topham, 1828: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 790: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 910.

ANDREW (Str., THE GREAT), CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the borough of Cambridge—(which see for access and postal): 57½ miles from London, 189½ from Derby.—The living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ely: pres. net income, £120: patron, Dean and Chapter of Ely: pres. incumbent, J. Cooper, 1843: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,983: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,276.

ANDREW (Str., THE LESS), CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the same borough.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Ely: pres. net income, £48: patron, Trustees: pres. incumbent, J. H. Titcomb, 1845: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,986: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 8,036.

ANDREW (Str.), HERTFORDSHIRE, a parish in the borough of Hertford—(which see for access and postal): 26 miles from London, 158 from Derby.—The living, a rectory united to the rectory of St. Mary, and the vicarage of St. Nicholas, in the diocese of Rochester: pres. net income, £271: patron, Duch. of Lanc.: pres. incumbent, H. F. Skrimshire, 1840: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,135: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,450.

ANGERSLEIGH (or LEIGH MILITIS), SOMERSETSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Taunton and Taunton-Dean, union of Taunton: 168 miles from London (coach road 145), 4 from Wellington.—Gt. West. Rail. to Taunton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Taunton, &c., 182 miles.—Money orders issued at Taunton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £4. 19s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £111: patron, H. T. Tucker: pres. incumbent, H. T. Tucker, 1842: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 42: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 49: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £817.

VOL. L

—S. 1 m. is Lowten House; N. 1 m. Poundesford Park, the seat of C. J. Helyar, Esq.

ANGERTON (High), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Hartburn, union of Morpeth: 326 miles from London (coach road 290), 1 from Hartburn.—Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, Newcastle, to Morpeth, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 194 miles.—Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 12 noon.—Contains 12 houses: poor rates in 1837, £39.

ANGERTON (Low), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the same parish and union.—For access and postal, see above.—Contains 11 houses: poor rates in 1837, £82.

ANGLE (or NANGLE), PEMBROKE, a parish and village in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Castle Martin, union of Pembroke: 229½ miles from London (coach road 269), 9 from Pembroke, 6 from Milford Haven.—Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 126 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, 92, thence 132 miles.—Money orders issued at Pembroke: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The village lies to the right of the entrance to Milford Haven, and bears marks of having been a place of some consideration in former ages. It derives its name from the Latin words in angulo, lying in a nook, so descriptive of its position.—The living is in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, valued at £10. 10s.; and consists of a sinecure rectory, having a net income of £157, and a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, having a net income of £80, both having for their patron the Bishop of St. David's: contains 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 388: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 460: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,219: poor rates in 1837, £305.

ANGLESEY, CAMBRIDGE, in the parish of Bas-singbourn; 54½ miles from London (coach road 42), 5 from Royston, 3 from Pottton.—East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Saffron Walden, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Bletchley, to Bedford, 90, thence 20 miles.—Money orders issued at Royston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.

ANGLESEYVILLE, HAMPSHIRE, a watering-place of very modern date: 92 miles from London (coach road 79), 2 from Gosport.—Sou. West. Rail. to Gosport, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 224 miles.—Money orders issued at Gosport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The first stone of the village was laid on the 19th Sept., 1826, by the Marquis of Anglesey. The situation of the town being elevated, and the surrounding scenery remarkable for its variety and beauty, it has progressed rapidly; and there are now a reading-room, with baths, a large hotel, a terrace, a crescent, public gardens, and other appliances. A number of comfortable marine villas have also already been erected.

ANGLEZARK, LANCASHIRE, a township in the parish of Bolton-le-Moor, union of Chorley: 220 miles from London (coach road 203), 3 from Chorley, 6 from Bolton.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Bolton, to Chorley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 136 miles.—Money orders issued at Chorley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—There were formerly some lead mines and extensive stone quarries in this neighbourhood.---Contains 2,570 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 188: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 213: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £975: poor rates in 1837, £86.---N.E. 1 m. is Eggeston Hall; S. 1 m. Hallo House; 2 m. Rivington Hall.

K

ANGMERING, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Poling, rape of Arundel: 67½ miles from London (coach road 58), 4 from Arundel, 3 from Little Hampton.---Sou. East. Rail. through Brighton, to Angmering station, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 199 miles.---Money orders issued at Arundel: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The parish was formerly divided into East and West Angmering. There is a charity school here, endowed with 33 acres of land in 1679 by William Older, at which more than 60 children are taught, the income being upwards of £100 a year.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, to which is annexed the vicarage of West Angmering, is jointly valued at £21. 9s. 8d.: pres. net income, £258: patron, Captain Pechell, R.N.: pres. incumbent, H. Reeks, 1843: contains 3,640 acres: 179 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,002: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,153: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,824: poor rates in 1837, £452.---N. 2 m. is Angmering Park, a domain of very considerable extent, which was formerly the seat of the ancient and respectable family of Palmer, to whose memory there were several monuments in the sacristy in the chancel of the church; but that part of the estate having passed into the hands of the Shelley family, they were pulled down about 1774 by Sir John Shelley, who carried away the fragments of them to Michel Grove. The estate afterwards passed into the hands of a gentleman named Walker. E. 2 m. is Goring Castle.

ANGRAM, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Long Marston, ainsty of the city of York: 190 miles from London (coach road 194), 4 from Tadcaster, 6 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Tadcaster, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Tadcaster, &c., 59 miles.---Money orders issued at Tadcaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 p.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---Contains 470 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 73: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 79: poor rates in 1837, £42.---N. 1 m. is Newburgh Hall, once a monastery, founded by Roger de Mowbray, the native place of William de Newburgh, or de Newberry, the English historian; 8. 1 m. Newburgh Park.

ANGRAM-GRANGE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Coxwold, union of Easingwold: 237 miles from London (coach road 217), 4 from Easingwold, 7 from Thirsk.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, to Raskelf, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 105½ miles.---Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---Contains 380 acres: 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 30: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 35.

ANICK, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of St. John Lee: 322 miles from London (coach road 278), 2 from Hexham, 18 from Newcastle.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, Newcastle, to Hexham station, thence ¼ mile: from Derby, through York, &c., 190 miles.---Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Contains 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 183: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 238: poor rates in 1837, £13.

ANICK-GRANGE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the same parish: 278 miles from London, 2 from Hexham.---For access and postal, see ANICK.---Contains 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 43: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 50.

ANKERDEN. See ANCHREDHAM.

ANLABY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township partly in the parish of Hessle, and partly in that of Kirk-Ella, union of Sculcoates: 202 miles from London (coach road 171), 4 from Hull, 7 from Beverley.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to New Holland, 196 miles, thence per steam-packet across to Hull (about 15 minutes), from which 4 miles; or through Rugby, Normanton, to Hull, &c., 248 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, &c., 116 miles.---Money orders issued at Hull: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---Contains 2,020 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 443: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 492: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,985: poor rates in 1837, £216.

ANMER, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Freebridgelinn: 109 miles from London (coach road 106), 6 from Castle-Rising, 11 from Lynn.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Lynn, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, March, Lynn, &c., 121 miles.---Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £9. 0s. 1d.: pres. net income, £222: patron, H. Coldham, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Coldham, 1816: contains 1,420 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 175: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 201: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,200: poor rates in 1837, £23.---S. ¼ m. of the village is Anmer Park, the seat of H. W. Coldham, Esq.; and about 2 m. E. stands Houghton Hall, the magnificent demesne of the Marquis of Cholmondeley, who inherited it from the Earl of Orford. The mansion was built by the celebrated Sir R. Walpole, during the long period that he held the office of prime minister, and was completed in 1735. It is stately in proportions and noble in design, having two fronts of very imposing aspect. That to the west has a double balustraded flight of steps to the centre of the building, over which there is an entablature supported by four Ionic columns. The wings, which contain the domestic and other offices, are joined to the centre by handsome balustraded colonades, forming an entire façade of not less than 450 feet. In the interior of the mansion there are numerous magnificent apartments, distinguished alike for their size and the taste and elegance with which they are furnished. The great hall is a cube of forty feet, and the principal saloon is also of imposing dimensions, being forty feet long by thirty wide, and forty feet high. Houghton still contains several fine statues and other works of art, but the noble collection of paintings for which it was formerly famous, and which, it is said, cost the great politician £100,000, was sold by his son, the Earl of Orford, to the Empress of Russia in 1779, for the sum of £40,000. Engravings of the principal pictures, comprising 200 of the best pieces, had, however, been previously published by Mr.

Boydell, in fourteen parts, at two guineas each. Sir Robert Walpole, who held the reins of government in Britain, as prime minister, longer than any other man within the last three hundred years, was born at Houghton in 1676, and educated at Eton, which, at the proper period, he left for King's College, Cambridge. He entered parliament as the representative of Castle-Rising in 1701, but was in the course of the next year also returned for Lynn. He very soon became remarkable for his ability, and was, in 1708, made secretary at war; in 1709, treasurer of the navy; and in the year following, one of the committee appointed to manage the trial of Sacheverell: but when, shortly afterwards, the Whig ministry was dissolved, he was dismissed from all his offices on the charges of breach of trust and corruption. On the accession of George I., however, the Whigs were again in the ascendant, and Mr. Walpole was appointed paymaster of the forces, and at length prime minister; but this office he resigned in 1717, in consequence of some disputes with his colleagues, and he went into opposition till the year 1720, when he resumed his old appointment of paymaster of the forces. On the bursting of the South Sea bubble, his splendid financial abilities drew the eyes of the whole country upon him; and the Earl of Sunderland being obliged to retire, Walpole once more took the place of prime minister, which he retained for the long term of twenty-two years, in spite of the almost incessant attacks of numerous and most able opponents, though not, it is broadly asserted, without an abundant exercise of that corruption of which in early life he was so strongly suspected. Be that as it may, none can deny him the title of an able minister, however they may demur to his claim to the character of a patriotic Englishman.

ANN-ABBOTS, HANTS. See ABBOTS-ANN.

ANNE'S (St.) IN-THE-GROVE (or BRICK'S CHAPEL), WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Halifax: 210½ miles from London (coach road 197), 10 from Dewsbury, 5 from Bradford. —Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Halifax: from Derby, through Wakefield to Halifax, &c., 78½ miles. —Money orders issued at Dewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £3: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Halifax: pres. incumbent, J. Hope, 1823: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,751: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,606.

ANNESLEY, NOTTINGHAMSHIRE, a parish, including the township of Felly, in the southern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Broxtow, union of Barford, lying on the border of Sherwood Forest: 140½ miles from London (coach road 134), 6 from Mansfield, 10 from Nottingham. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Nottingham, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 26 miles. —Money orders issued at Mansfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and formerly in the diocese of York, now in that of Lincoln, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £52: patron, J. Masters, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. S. Cussham: contains 3,360 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 274: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 315: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,460: poor rates in 1837, £220. —About 1 m. S. stands Annesley Hall, the seat of J. Chaworth, Esq., brother of the lady who first won Byron's early affections, and whom he has immortalized; and E. 2 m. is Newstead Abbey, now the residence of Col. Wildman, the intimate friend of his late Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex, but for centuries the property of the Byron family, and, above all, eminent as the residence of the great poet, the fame of whose genius stands second only to that of Shakspeare and Milton. Newstead is pleasantly situated on a rising and extensive lawn, in the centre of which there is a small but beautiful lake, and around are masses of noble forest trees, which fill up the domain. The Abbey is chiefly remarkable for the number of conventual features which it retains, for it still presents all the aspect of an ancient monastic structure. Whether there had been any religious house on the spot, or in the neighbourhood, before this was erected, is not accurately known; but, as the name would imply, there is great probability that such an institution existed. The monastery of Newstead was founded for a fraternity of Black Canons, by Henry II., in 1170; and at the dissolution of similar establishments by Henry VIII., the property, the revenues of which were estimated at £229, was granted to Sir J. Byron, who was at that time lieutenant of Sherwood Forest, and remained in the family of his descendants until parted with by the late Lord Byron, previous to his departure to Italy. Sir J. Byron fitted up part of the building as a mansion, but suffered the church to go to decay; the south aisle of which was, however, afterwards taken into the residence, and now contains some of the most habitable apartments. The front of the Abbey church, which was built in the form of a cross, still remains, a beautiful and impressive relic of the times bygone, it having the appearance of a cathedral, and is adorned with lofty pinnacles. As soon as the visitor enters the court-yard, the castellated stables and offices are perceived; and these, together with the other old conventual buildings, form a coup d'œil of the highest interest; while the west end of the church, the battlements, and venerable front of the mansion, contribute to the picturesqueness of a scene which in its way is hardly to be surpassed. The grounds around are undulating and agreeable. It was here that Byron wrote his first work, "Hours of Idleness," which incurred those sarcastic comments of the Edinburgh Reviewers, that, in the "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers"—that raciest of all retorts—drew from the youthful poet the sparkling evidence of those great powers which were afterwards to make his name a household word wherever the British tongue is spoken. George Lord Byron was grandson of the celebrated navigator, Admiral Byron, and son of Captain Byron, R.N., whose excesses drove him from England, and obliged him, when he died in 1791, to leave his widow and son, then a boy of only three years of age, in a state of almost penury. Mrs. Byron retired to her native city, Aberdeen, for the purpose of living upon her scanty income; but when, in 1798, the death of his uncle placed George in possession of the family title and estates, she returned to England, and her son was sent by his guardian, the Earl of Carlisle, to Harrow, where he remained, distinguished for his spirit of independence, until 1804, when he removed to Cambridge. Shortly after finishing his academic career, he went to London, where he became involved in a series of gaieties, which materially lowered his reputation, and isolated him to a great extent from his brother peers. Anxious to escape from the thralldom of spirit which this involved, he repaired with his friend, now Sir John Cam Hobhouse, to the Continent, whence he returned after a two years' tour. Shortly after his arrival, he published the two first cantos of his "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage," and was immediately stamped as a first-rate poet. This was speedily followed by the "Giaour," the "Bride of Abydos," "Lara," the "Corsair," and some other poems. In 1815, he married Anna Isabella, the only daughter of Sir R. M. Noel, by whom he had one daughter, who afterwards became Countess of Lovelace. Byron's marriage did not prove a happy one; a separation from his lady ensued, and he again departed for the Continent; and for several years travelled about, giving from time to time the inspirations of his eagle muse to the public. In 1823, the gallant struggle of the Greeks for their liberation from the Turkish yoke excited his sympathy and admiration, and he threw himself, heart and fortune, into their cause. His energies were, however, no sooner called into play, than he was assailed by fever, and died at Missolonghi, on the 19th April, 1824, in the 37th year of his age, to the deep regret of the Greeks and the great loss of Europe. Would that the purity of his principles had been equal to the extent of his genius!

ANSLEY, WARWICK, a parish in the Atherstone division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, union of Atherstone, on the head-source of the Bourne: 101½ miles from London (coach road 101), 5 from Nuneaton, 3 from Atherstone.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Nuneaton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Nuneaton, &c., 43 miles.---Money orders issued at Nuneaton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £6. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £116: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. C. Lucena: contains 3,580 acres: 166 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 701: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 806: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,275: poor rates in 1837, £317.---N. 2 m., on the road from Nuneaton to Coleshill, stands Ansley Hall. The mansion is a massive congregation of irregular but striking architecture, extensive in its dimensions, and exceedingly commodious. Around it there is a large park, with many noble groups of ancient forest trees, which abounds with deer, whose various and graceful motions so vividly recall the free enjoyment of old English life. In one part of the grounds there is a Chinese temple, erected from the design of Sir W. Chambers, the architect of Somerset House in the Strand; and beneath it, in a cell, is preserved a curious tomb of some of the Purefoy family, which stood in Caldicott church till 1766, when, during the repairs, it was cast out into the churchyard. In a sequestered part of the park, also, there is a hermitage, formed of the stones of an ancient oratory which formerly stood in the domain, and which has been celebrated by the poem of Thomas Warton, who, in 1758, visited the place. In Ansley church there are some remains of Saxon and Norman architecture.

ANSLOW (or ANNESLEY, anciently ANSELEY), STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Rolleston, union of Burton-on-Trent, near the line of the grand trunk canal: 126 miles from London (coach road 128), 3 from Burton-on-Trent, 9 from Uttoxeter.---Nor. West. Rail. through Tamworth to Burton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton, &c., 14½ miles.---Money orders issued at Burton-on-Trent: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Contains 1,920 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 347: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 368: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,563: poor rates in 1837, £110.---S.W. 1 m. is Needwood House; 2 m. Byrkley Loop.

ANSTEY (or AMSTY), HERTFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Edwinstree, union of Buntingford: 46½ miles from London (coach road 33), 4 from Buntingford, 3 from Barkway.---East. Co<sup>h</sup> Rail. to Newport station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 178½ miles.---Money orders issued at Buntingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---There are charities connected with this parish, which in the aggregate produce the sum of £7. 16s. 8d. yearly. The place is principally remarkable for a castle which formerly stood here, and which was built shortly after the Conquest by Eustace, Earl of Boulogne, and which was demolished in the time of Henry III., "because it was a nest of rebels;" and it was indeed the centre of those "marches," as they were called, which extended from the heights of Hampstead and Harrow to the low lands of Bedfordshire and Northampton, and which, especially about Finchley, were the haunts of robbers, until the commons were enclosed and the mail coaches ran.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of London, is valued at £21. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £504: patron, Ch. Coll. Cambridge: pres. incumbent, G. S. Porter, 1839: contains 2,170 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 497: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 572: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,559: poor rates in 1837, £202: tithes commuted in 1827.---E. 1 m. is Smalley Cottage.

ANSTEY, LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Thurcaston, union of Barrow-upon-Soar: 106½ miles from London (coach road 100), 4 from Leicester, 8 from Loughborough.---Nor. West. Rail. to Leicester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Loughborough to Syston, 24½, thence 4 miles.---Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The living (St. Mary) is annexed to the rectory of Thurcaston, in the diocese of Peterborough, having a joint pres. net income of £676: patron, Eman. Coll. Cambridge: pres. incumbent, R. Waterfield, 1838: contains 1,400 acres: 169 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 898: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 863: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,031: poor rates in 1837, £309: tithes commuted in 1761.---N. 1 m. lies Broadgate Park, where there are still the remains of an ancient mansion of capacious dimensions, which was the birth-place of the unfortunate Lady Jane Grey, who was executed, together with Lord Dudley, her husband, the son of the Duke of Northumberland, by order of Queen Mary, for having, at the instigation of her ambitious father-in-law, accepted the crown of England, which she only retained for the space of nine days. Lady Jane Grey was the daughter of Henry Grey, Marquis of Dorset, who was the son of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, the favourite companion of Henry VIII., and whose wife was the youngest daughter of Henry VII. Lady Jane appears to have been one of the most extraordinary characters that ever existed; for, though only seventeen years of age at the time of her execution, she had exhibited the most astonishing endowments, both of mind and spirit. According to her tutors, Dr. Aylmer and Roger Ascham, both of whom were men of learning, and the latter of whom became the tutor of Queen Elizabeth, she was acquainted with not less than seven different languages, including Greek, Latin, Hebrew, Chaldee, and Arabic, could play on several instruments, and sing with considerable sweetness and skill. But "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." With the attainment of the object of ambition, happiness was parted with and life endangered; and she, with her amiable husband, at last fell a sacrifice to the selfishness of others, Northumberland himself deservedly perishing for the faulty exercise of his influence over those whom he ought to have protected from every injury, and for his intriguing treachery against the Duke of Somerset. The domain of Bradgate is of great antiquity, a park having existed here as early as 1247, being then the property of Robert Blanchmains, Earl of Leicester, who demised it to Sayer de Quencey, Earl of Wilton; and which, in the time of Leland, was not less than six miles in compass. There is a fine monument to Henry, Lord Grey of Groby, in the chapel adjoining. It should be observed that Dr. Aylmer, during his residence with the Marquis of Dorset, was mainly instrumental in the promotion of Protestantism in the county of Leicester. W. 2 m. is Birstall House.

ANSTEY-PASTURES, LEICESTERSHIRE, an extra-parochial liberty in the western division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Goswote. Here is the residence of the family of Martin, which is of Norman descent, is of very considerable antiquity in Leicestershire, members of it having in early times held the chief offices in the county town. John Martin was, in 1333, 1338, and in 1364, chosen mayor of Leicester, and twice returned member of parliament for that borough during the reign of Edward III. Shortly afterwards the family held possessions at Anstey, or, as it was then called, Hanastigie or Anstige, which they have ever since retained. There are only two houses in the liberty.

ANSTEY, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the liberty of the city of Coventry, union of Foleshill: 9½ miles from London (coach road 93), 5 from Coventry, 10 from Rugby.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Shilton station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Tamworth, Shilton, &c., 45 miles.---Money orders issued at Coventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---In 1719, the Rev. J. Mil- lion left property for building a school for the poor of this and the neighbouring village of Shilton, at which there are now about forty children. The Oxford Canal and the Birmingham and Derby Junction Railway pass through the parish.---The living (St. James), a vicarage not in charge, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £12. 4s.: pres. net income, £63: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, T. C. Adams, 1809: contains 990 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 224: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 257: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,708: poor rates in 1837, £209.---N. ½ m. is Toldish Hall; 2 m. Hawkesbury Hall.

ANSTEY (or ANSTY), WILTSHIRE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hindon, union of Tisbury: 109 miles from London (coach road 95), 13 from Salisbury, 6 from Shaftesbury.---Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 241 miles; or, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Reading, Salisbury, &c., 247 miles.---Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.

---The living, a donative curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Salisbury: pres. net income, £22: patron, Lord Arundel: pres. incumbent, J. H. Samler, 1846: contains 840 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 329: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 378: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,840: poor rates in 1837, £134.---Half a mile west stands Wardour Castle, the seat of Lord Arundel of Wardour, one of the noblest ornaments of the county of Wilts. The present mansion was erected after the designs of Mr. Paine the architect, between the years 1776 and 1784, almost entirely of freestone, and forms a splendid object on the road from Salisbury to Shaftesbury, from which the passenger gradually perceives it emerging, apparently out of a grove of trees, until the whole of the front stands displayed before him. This front comprises a fine façade of a centre and two semicircular advancing wings; the former adorned by an entrance formed of pilastres and half Corinthian columns, which leads to a fine hall thirty feet long by twenty-four wide, and beyond which there is a rotunda staircase, esteemed as one of the finest architectural effects in the kingdom. A double flight of steps leads to a peristyle of the Corinthian order, which is 144 feet in circumference, and eight fluted columns of the Corinthian order support a lofty cupola, the freize being highly ornamented with trophies of music. On the principal floor there are twenty-six apartments, all finished with taste and elegance; and in the house there is a large collection of paintings, some of which are of considerable merit. But the object most worthy of notice, as a curiosity, is the celebrated "Wassail Bowl," said formerly to have been in the possession of the monks at Glastonbury. It is made of oak in the form of an old tankard, and contains about two quarts. Inside it is strongly varnished, and there have been several pegs, one above another from the bottom, which are placed so far from each other as to allow of a fair draught of half a pint at a time. Four of these pegs only remain, but there are still the holes where the others have been fixed. The lid is carved with a representation of the Crucifixion, in which our Saviour has the Virgin Mary on one side, and St. John on the other. The sides of the bowl or cup have figures of the twelve apostles carved upon them, each apostle having his name on a label beneath his feet. Below these figures there are birds, beasts, and full-blown flowers; and under these again, extending to the bottom of the three feet on which the cup stands, there are the forms of serpents, &c., joined together so as to make them appear like monsters, but whether of any figurative signification has never been ascertained. The knob on the handle intended for raising the cover is a bunch of grapes. Not far from the present mansion, and constituting a fine object in the view from the windows, are the remains of the ancient stronghold of the Lords of Arundel. They surmount a hill of considerable elevation, and are backed by extensive woods of great beauty. The old castle has attached to it much of historical interest. Before the time of Edward III. it was the residence of the family of St. Martin, one of whom sat as knight of the shire in the thirty-fourth year of that monarch's reign. It afterwards passed through the possession of the Lovels, Lords Touchet, Audley, and De Broke, to the hands of Sir John Arundel, whose son Thomas was created Lord Arundel of Wardour by James I. That nobleman in early life had eminently distinguished himself in the war against the infidels, having, at the battle of Gran, taken the sacred banner of the Ottoman army with his own hand, for which service he was created a Count of the Holy Roman Empire. His descendant, Lord Arundel, on the breaking out of the great civil war, espoused the cause of the king, and ultimately died of a wound which he received in the battle of Lansdown. Prior to that event, however, while attending on his majesty at Oxford, he intrusted the defence of his castle to his lady, Blanche, who, with only twenty-five men, most intrepidly withstood a heavy bombardment of five days, from a strong force under Sir Edward Hungerford; and, when closely pressed to surrender, nobly rejected a proffer of safety for herself and female attendants, unless the lives of her gallant defenders were also spared. The castle was occupied for the parliament by Mr. Edward Ludlow, one of its strongest adherents, and was only retaken after a long assault by the royal troops. These attacks occasioned so much injury to the edifice, that the family were obliged to restrict their residence to only a portion of it, which was afterwards, and is now, used as a farm-house. The present noble owner, Henry Benedict Arundel, the eleventh baron, is married to a daughter of Lord Stourton.

ANSTEY (East), Devon, a hilly parish in the hund. and union of South Molton: 195 miles from London (coach road 169), 3 from Dulverton, 10 from South Molton.---Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Tiverton, &c., 208½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £11: pres. net income, £180: patron, T. S. Jessopp, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. P. Norris: contains 2,170 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 240: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 276: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,209: poor rates in 1837, £69.

ANSTEY (West), Devon, a parish immediately to the north of the above---(which see for access and postal arrangements): 169 miles from London, 4 from Dulverton, 9 from South Molton.---The living (St. Petrock), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, is valued at £10. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £132: patron, Dean and Chapter of Exeter: pres. incumbent, G. M. Slatter, 1819: contains 2,820 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 279: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 320: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,454: poor rates in 1837, £101.

ANSTON, West Riding, York, a parish and township, consisting of North and South Anston, in the southern division of the wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill, union of Worksop: 174 miles from London (coach road 152), 6 from Worksop, 7 from Tickhill.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby and Woodhouse Mill, to Anston station, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through Woodhouse Mill, &c., 37 miles.---Money orders issued at Worksop: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The Chesterfield Canal runs through a part of the parish.---The living (St. James), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £79: patron, Prebendary of Laughton: contains 3,110 acres: 169 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 921: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,059: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,961: poor rates in 1837, £262: tithes commuted in 1767.---Two miles east is Walling, or Wadding Wells (for the name has been differently spelt by different authorities), the seat of Sir Thomas Wollaston White, Bart., a gentleman of considerable importance on the borders of Yorkshire and Nottinghamshire. The house, which is about five miles south of Tickhill, and situated in a picturesque part of the country, is a handsome structure of late erection, and stands in a well-wooded park of considerable size. It is principally remarkable from its being placed on the boundary line of the two counties just mentioned; a little brook which runs under some of the out-houses being the division mark. There was formerly a priory of nuns in the park, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and founded by Ralph de Cheurolcourt; but the original charter, which is in the possession of the present baronet, has no date. The establishment seems to have stood within the limits of Nottinghamshire. The most immediate founder of the family, Thomas White, Esq., was the son of a gentleman in Suffolk, who married a daughter of the great Lord Burleigh, Queen Elizabeth's treasurer, and purchased the manor of the town of Tuxford. His son was high sheriff of Nottinghamshire, in the twentieth year of the reign of James I.; and the great-grandson of the latter, Thomas White, who succeeded to the family property, married a daughter and co-heiress of Richard Taylor, Esq., of Walling Wells, from whom this estate was inherited. His grandson again, who married a daughter of General Armstrong, was a barrister of Lincoln's-Inn, and was a man of much consideration, becoming Recorder of Stamford, Deputy Recorder of Nottingham, Judge of Chester, Steward of East Retford, and first Treasurer of the Foundling Hospital. His son, Mr. Taylor White, married a daughter of Sir Wollaston, Bart. of Loseby, which title becoming extinct at her father's death, the baronetcy was, in 1802, conferred on their son Thomas Wollaston White, father of the present baronet, who succeeded to the title in 1817. Two miles west of Anston is Sheveton Park; and three miles eastward, Carlton Hall, the residence of R. Ramsden, Esq., who is a magistrate for the county of Nottingham, and served the office of high sheriff in 1837. Mr. Ramsden is third in descent from Robert Ramsden, Esq., who was fifth son of Sir D. Ramsden, Bart. of Byrom, and Elizabeth, second daughter of Viscount Lonsdale. Mr. Ramsden succeeded to the property in 1830.

ANTHONY (Str.), IN MENEGE, CORNWALL, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Kerrier, on the southern shore of the estuary of the Helford: 275 miles from London, 8 from Helston, 5 from Falmouth.---Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 57 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Plymouth, &c., 314 miles.---Money orders issued at Helston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 p.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There are the remains here of two ancient entrenchments, called the Great and Little Dinas; and there was here also formerly a cell of Black Monks of Angiers, which must have been as ancient as the time of Richard I. There are two daily schools, one of which is endowed with the sum of £14 per annum.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £4. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £101: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. Polewhele, 1828: contains 1,410 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 313: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 360: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,095: poor rates in 1837, £130.

ANTHONY (Str.), IN ROSELAND, CORNWALL, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Powder, union of Truro: 294 miles from London (coach road 270), 2 from St. Mawes, 3 from Falmouth.---Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 50 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Plymouth, &c., 307 miles.---Money orders issued at St. Austle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---There was formerly here a small priory of Austin canons. There are also two schools here.---The living, a donative curacy, a peculiar of the see of Exeter: patron, Sir S. T. Spry: pres. incumbent, H. T. Rodd, 1841: contains 710 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 144: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 166: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,050: poor rates in 1837, £76.---Two miles west stands Pendennis Castle, a fortification of great strength, situated on the summit of a mount 300 feet high, at the end of the peninsula which separates the British channel from Falmouth harbour. The outer lines circumscribe a space of about three acres in extent, and are abundantly stored with ordnance to command the mouth of the harbour most completely. On the north, or land-front, at a short distance in advance of the four cavaliers by which the fortress is thus secured, there is a crown and hornwork constructed in the time of Oliver Cromwell. The banks and ditch of the citadel, which are also admirably calculated to defend the place on that side, still remain. On the east face there is a half-moon battery, and close to the water's edge there is another of five guns, called Crab Quay. On the south the hill slopes in a natural glacis towards the sea. The interior of the walls is chiefly occupied by barracks for the garrison, with the necessary storehouses and magazines. There is also, toward the south, the old castle, built wholly of granite in the time of Henry VIII., whose arms adorn the gateway. During the civil war between Charles I. and his parliament, the fortress was held for the king, and bravely defended, in 1646, against the forces of the latter, by John Arundel of Trerice, who, though at last reduced to extremity by the want of provisions, succeeded, by the fortitude he displayed, and the veil which he thereby threw over his necessities, in gaining from the enemy most excellent conditions of surrender.

ANTHORN, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bowness, on the north bank of the estuary of the Wampool: 325½ miles from London (coach road 312), 13¼ from Carlisle, 9 from Wigton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Carlisle to Wigton, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Carlisle, &c., 241½ miles.---Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Contains 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 263: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 298: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £631.

ANTINGHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Erpingham, union of Erpingham: 143 miles from London (coach road 126), 3 from North Walsham, 6 from Cromer.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 220 miles.---Money orders issued at North Walsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---There is a large daily school here, chiefly supported by Lord Suffield. The tower is the only remains of the ancient church of St. Margaret.---The living, the rectories of St. Mary and St. Margaret, the latter being united with North Walsham, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 3s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £262: patron, Lord Suffield and Windham: pres. incumbent, J. Dolphin, 1830: contains 1,530 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 271: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 311: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,417: poor rates in 1837, £160.

ANTONY (Str. JACOB), CORNWALL, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of East, union of St. Germans: 249½ miles from London (coach road 223), 4 from Devonport, 4 from Saltash.---Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 5½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Plymouth, &c., 257 miles.---Money orders issued at Devonport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Standing on Hamoaze, the vicinity of the place to the great navy depot at Devonport and Stonehouse, has caused it to become the residence of naval officers, and other persons connected with the dockyards and stores. There is a school endowed by one of the Carews, in 1766, for ten poor children. There are also a national school well attended, an infant school, and several others, both for week-day and Sunday instruction.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £12. 17s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £262: patron, W. H. Pole Carew: pres. incumbent, J. F. Kitson, 1845: contains 2,860 acres: 458 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,894: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,328: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,361: poor rates in 1837, £740.---N. 2 m. stands Ince Castle.

ANTROBUS, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Great Budworth: 175 miles from London (coach road 179), 4 from Northwich, 8 from Warrington.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Aiton, thence 3½ miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c.,

91 miles. — Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — Contains 2,560 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 486: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 526: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,988: poor rates in 1837, £230.

ANWICK, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven, union of Sleaford: 157½ miles from London (coach road 120), 5 from Sleaford, 8 from Tattershall. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Boston, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, &c., 115 miles. — Money orders issued at Sleaford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (St. Edith), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage united to Branswell, in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, and jointly having a pres. net income, £715: patron, Marquis of Bristol: contains 1,820 acres: 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 314: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 361: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,084: poor rates in 1837, £92. — S. 2 m. is Haverholme Priory, the seat of the late Sir J. W. Gordon, Bart., but now the property of the Earl of Winchelsea and Nottingham. The house and grounds occupy about 300 acres, on an island formed by the river Slea. The manor, in 1137, was granted by Alexander, Bishop of Lincoln, to the Cistercian monks of Fountain's Abbey in Yorkshire; but they, pretending to dislike the situation, removed to South Park, and the manor was then made over to the nuns and canons of the order of St. Gilbert of Lempringham, who settled there in 1139, and continued until the dissolution in the time of Henry VIII., when their revenues were estimated at £88. 5s. 3d. per annum. The manor was given by the king to Lord Edward Clinton, but the place appears to have been of little note as a residence till it was enlarged and improved in 1788, according to the value of the property by the last possessor. The Northern and Eastern Railway intersects the parish.

APETHORPE, NOTTINGHAMSHIRE. See ARPLETHORPE.

APETHORPE, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Nassington, union of Oundle, on a branch of the Nen: 101½ miles from London (coach road 84), 5 from Wansford, 9 from Stamford. — Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Oundle, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Syson and Kettering, to Stamford 76½, thence 9 miles. — Money orders issued at Wansford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The church has several stained glass windows, and six stalls on each side of the choir, after the manner of a cathedral. In the north aisle there is a most gorgeous altar tomb of white marble, erected in 1620 to the memory of Sir Anthony Mildmay (also of Lady Grace, his wife), who was some time ambassador for Queen Elizabeth. The canopy is supported by six fine figures, and the whole compose a fine allegorical group. — The living (St. Leonard's), a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Lincoln, and exempt from the jurisdiction of the archd<sup>r</sup>: pres. net income, £80: patron, Preb. of Nassington: pres. incumbent, M. J. Berkeley, 1833: contains 2,630 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 269: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 309: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,312: poor rates in 1837, £67. — Near the village is Apethorpe Hall, the seat of the Earl of Westmoreland. It is a fine building of freestone, consisting of two quadrangles, with an open cloister towards the east, and a fine front of Elizabethan architecture. On the east side there is a statue of James I., who paid a visit here in 1603, on his journey from Scotland, and who, it is said, contributed the timber to finish the edifice, and who here also first met with his great favourite, Villiers, whom he afterwards created Duke of Buckingham. The house is adorned by several valuable family portraits. The family of the Earls of Westmoreland is one of the most ancient in the kingdom. From an ancient pedigree, it appears that they originally wrote their name Vane, and that they are descended from Howell ap Vane of Monmouthshire, who flourished long before the time of the Norman Conquest; but the immediate progenitor of the present noble owner, who laid the foundation for the family dignity, was Mr. John Vane of Hilden, in Kent, and who had, in the reign of Henry VI., a grant of the manor of Hadloe in the same county. This gentleman had four sons, the second of whom, Thomas, succeeded to the greater part of the family property. The youngest, John, became the founder of the noble house of Darlington, the head of which was created Duke of Cleveland in 1833. Thomas Vane, the grandson of Richard, who became involved in the troubles of Sir Thomas Wyatt's rebellion, in the latter end of the reign of Queen Mary, was committed to the Tower, and condemned to death, but pardoned after he had been ordered for execution. In the next reign he was knighted at Dover, by the Earl of Leicester, in the presence of Elizabeth, and married for his second wife Lady Mary Neville, only daughter and heiress of Henry Lord Abergavenny, who was the lineal descendant of Ralph Neville, first Earl of Westmoreland, and also a lineal descendant, through a long line of noble ancestors, of Hugh Delespenser, Chief-Justice of England in the time of Henry III., and who was summoned as one of the Lords of Parliament in the 39th year of that monarch's reign. After the death of her husband, the dignity of the barony of Delespenser was revived by James I., in 1604, in favour of this lady, in which she was succeeded by her only son, Francis, who had himself been previously raised to the peerage by the ancient titles of his family, Baron Burghersh and Earl of Westmoreland. This nobleman married Mary, the only daughter of Sir Anthony Mildmay of Apethorpe, the tomb to whose memory is noticed above, and thus acquired the property on which the family now reside. Mildmay, the second Earl, on the breaking out of the civil war, warmly engaged in the cause of the king, at whose coronation he had been created a Knight of the Bath; but in April, 1645, he, with Lords Holland, Monmouth, Thanet, and Saville, went over to the other party, and took the oaths prescribed by the Parliament. Concurring, however, in the restoration of the monarchy, he was jointly, with the Earl of Bridgewater, appointed lord lieutenant of the county of Northampton. John, the seventh Earl, who succeeded his brother Thomas, distinguished himself greatly in the wars under the Duke of Marlborough, attaining the rank of lieutenant-general, and being elevated to the barony of Catherlough in the Irish peerage. Dying without issue, that title became extinct, and the barony of Delespenser reverted to

Sir T. Dashwood of West Wycombe, Bucks, who was descended from the eldest daughter of Vere, the fourth Earl, while the earldom of Westmoreland, and the barony of Burghersh, went, in 1762, to the next male heir to the title, Thomas Fane, Esq., M.P. for Lyme Regis, who was a lineal descendant of Sir Francis Fane, first Earl of Westmoreland, and of him the present (the eleventh) Earl is the great-grandson. His lordship, who succeeded to the title in 1841, married a daughter of the late Earl of Mornington. S.W. 2 m. of Apethorpe is Morehay Lodge.

APETON, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Gnosall—(which see for population, &c.): 137½ miles from London (coach road 143), 5 from Stafford, 5 from Eccleshall. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Stafford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 53 miles. — Money orders issued at Stafford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — N. 2 m. stands Knightby Abbey.

APLEY, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Wraggoc, parts of Lindsey, union and county of Lincoln: 158 miles from London (coach road 143), 2 from Wragby, 10 from Lincoln. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough, Boston, to Bardney, thence 3½ miles: from Derby, through Lincoln to Five Mile House, 55½, thence 3 miles. — Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living (St. Andrew), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £20: patron, T. T. Drake, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. Stanley, 1846: contains 1,240 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 162: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 186: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,041: poor rates in 1837, £98. — S. 2 m. is Stanfield Hall.

APPERLEY, GLOUCESTERSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Deerhurst, near the Severn: returned with Whitfield, and jointly having a pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 445: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 494: 127 miles from London (coach road 104), 4 from Tewkesbury, 6 from Cheltenham. — Gt. West. Rail. to Cheltenham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Tewkesbury, 82½, thence 4 miles. — Money orders issued at Tewkesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — Apperley Court, a mansion of some pretensions, stands in the neighbourhood.

APPERLEY BRIDGE, YORK, WEST RIDING, a township in the parish of Calverley, on the line of the Leeds and Bradford Railway: 212 miles from London (coach road 198), 3 from Bradford, 4 from Bingley. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, Leeds, to Apperley Bridge station: from Derby through Leeds, &c., 80 miles. — Money orders issued at Bradford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — There is a large establishment here, founded in 1812, for educating the sons of Methodist ministers.

APPLEBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey, union of Glandford Brigg: 203½ miles from London (coach road 163), 7 from Glandford Brigg, 8 from Barton. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Grimsby, to Glandford Brigg, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln, Glandford Brigg, &c., 83½ miles. — Money orders issued at Barton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 4½ p.m. — It stands on the western bank of the river Ancholme, which has been made navigable to the Humber. The Roman Road from Stamford to Lincoln passes through the village, and is in some places cast up considerably above the neighbouring ground. — The living (St. Bartholomew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £10. 4s.: pres. net income, £150: patron, C. Winn, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Eric Rudd, 1807: contains 5,180 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 505: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 581: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,897: poor rates in 1837, £227: tithes commuted in 1825.

APPLEBY (GREAT and LITTLE), DERBY and LEICESTER, a parish partly in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Repton and Gressley, union of Ashby-de-la-Zouch, in the county of Derby, and partly and chiefly in that of Spokenhoe, in the county of Leicester: 116 miles from London (coach road 112), 6 from Ashby-de-la-Zouch, 7 from Atherstone. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Tamworth, thence 7 miles: from Derby to Oakley 17½, thence 7 miles. — Money orders issued at Ashby-de-la-Zouch: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The village connects the four counties of Leicester, Derby, Stafford, and Warwick. There is a free grammar-school here, founded in 1697 by Sir J. Moore, Lord Mayor of London, which is fairly attended. There are also other day schools, and a Sunday school. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £20. 9s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £750: patron, G. Moore, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. M. Echallaz, 1830: contains 2,020 acres: 232 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,075: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,236: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,756: poor rates in 1837, £501: tithes commuted in 1771.

APPLEBY ST. LAWRENCE, WESTMORELAND, a borough, market town, and parish in East ward, union of East ward. The township stands on a branch of the river Eden, and lies within the parishes of St. Lawrence and St. Michael; the former comprising the townships of Appleby, Burrala, Colby, Drybeck, Hoff and Row, and Scattergate: 279 miles from London (coach road 270), 14 from Penrith. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Preston, to Shap station, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 195 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. — The town consists of one broad street intersected by three others, and is situated on the side of a hill, at the top of which is the castle, and at the bottom the church of St. Lawrence. There is a suburb, termed Bondgate, which communicates with the town by an ancient stone bridge of two arches; but the whole place appears in former times to have been much more extensive than it is now, as there are evident marks of foundations, which are called the Burrala, meaning, as archæologists conceive, "Borough walls," as the word is construed for similar remains in the neighbourhood of Bath. The supposition is very possible, as it is known that, in 1176, William King of Scotland surprised the town, and almost completely destroyed both it and the castle. The mischief arising from this raid had, however, been to a great extent remedied, and a court of exchequer had been established here, when a similar misfortune occurred in the reign of Henry IV., and the Scots again burnt the town; and at length it became so reduced, that, in the reign of Queen Mary, it was found necessary to lower the fee farm rent to the crown from twenty, to two marks per annum. The town was still further reduced by the devastations of the plague in 1598, and never seems to have entirely recovered its pristine importance, although it still has many houses of highly respectable appearance, and as a county town must retain its position as a place of consideration. The castle, which is the property of the Earl of Thanet, by whose ancestor, a former earl, it was almost entirely re-edified in 1686, stands on a steep and richly-wooded eminence, rising from the river, and is a place of great antiquity: the keep or principal tower, called Cæsar's Tower, appearing, with every fair probability, to have been erected on the site of a fortress constructed during the domination of the Romans in this country. Many other parts of the castle bear evidence that they are of Norman, if not of Saxon origin; and according to the papers of Anne, Countess of Pembroke, by whom it was most gallantly defended during the civil war, and by whom it was in a great measure restored after the conclusion of that struggle, it had been a place of importance ever since the days of William the Conqueror, and even as early as 1422 it was almost entirely rebuilt, having been much improved by the erection of a noble gateway by John, Lord Clifford. Appleby is supposed to occupy the site of the Roman station Aballaba, from which name, by a not uncommon corruption, its present title was in all probability derived; and as it was made a county town by Edward the Confessor, must have been esteemed on many accounts of much note, even in his time. It has been the birth-place of many learned men, among others of Thomas de Appleby, bishop of Carlisle; Roger, bishop of Osory; Dr. Bambrlop, archbishop of York; and Dr. Potter, dean of Worcester and provost of Queen's College, Oxford. The church of St. Lawrence was repaired by the celebrated Countess of Pembroke, who was interred within its walls, and monuments to whom and to her mother, the Countess of Cumberland, have been erected in the church. The edifice is partly in the later English, and partly in the decorated style. There is a free grammar-school in Appleby, instituted long before the dissolution of religious institutions. It was founded by the burghers, and incorporated by letters patent in 1574, the endowment amounting at the present time to about £216 a year, and there being on an average about six scholars on the foundation. The children of the town are entitled to instruction on payment of 7s. 6d. quarterly to the master; and there are attached to the school five scholarships of £8 per annum, which were founded at Queen's College Oxford, in 1720, by the Earl of Thanet, and besides which it is entitled to send candidates for the five exhibitions of £60 per annum, founded by Lady Elizabeth Hastings at the same college. There were ten governors appointed by the patent, with the right of a corporate body. In this school were educated the two brothers, Drs. John and William Langhorne, the celebrated translators of Plutarch; Barlow, bishop of Lincoln; Bedal, bishop of Kilmore; and Addison, dean of Lichfield. St. Anne's Hospital, which is a quadrangular building, comprising a chapel and thirteen separate habitations, was endowed for the support of so many widows, in 1654, by Anne, Countess of Pembroke, spoken of above, who left at Temple Sowerby, within the confines of the parish, an estate which produces £70 a year, with money in the Funds, which returns £52. 4s. 10d., for keeping the town-hall, the church, the school-house, and the bridge in repair. The revenue of the hospital is somewhat more than £500 a year; the Earl of Thanet, being heir of the Countess, is the sole trustee, and the vicar of Appleby for the time being is the reader. The other charities of the borough produce a trifle short of £60 a year. There was formerly in Appleby a monastery of White Friars, believed to have been founded by Lord Percy, Lord Vessey, and Lord Clifford, which, after the dissolution in the 35th Henry VIII., was granted to Christopher Craken-thorpe; and, according to Tanner, there was also an hospital which was dedicated to St. Nicholas, and given to the Abbey of Shapp by John de Veteri-pont: a donation which was confirmed by Walter, bishop of Carlisle, on condition that the holders of the revenues should maintain three lepers there for ever. After the dissolution of monastic institutions, it was given, in the 36th year of his reign, by Henry VIII. to Thomas, Lord Wharton. The town was incorporated by charters from Henry II., John, and Henry III., all which charters were given up to James II., since whose time Appleby has existed as a borough by prescription, having a corporation which consists of a mayor, recorder, town-clerk, twelve aldermen, and sixteen capital burgesses, sword-bearer, sergeant-at-mace, two bailiffs, and two chamberlains. The mayor is a justice of the peace, elected annually by the common councilmen, and by custom has precedence of the judges of assize, who also, by custom from time immemorial, when on the northern circuit, are entertained at the castle at the expense of the owner. A confirmation of the charter of Shapp Abbey, cited by Brompton, mentions a sheriff of "Applebyshire," from which it is believed that the town gave name to one of those districts into which the earldom of Northumberland was divided by Edward the Confessor. Up to its disfranchisement by the Reform Bill, in 1832, Appleby sent two members to parliament, the right of election being vested in the holders of 100 burgess tenures, chiefly on the properties of the Earls of Thanet and Lonsdale, and it is now the place for the nomination of the county members, and one of the polling-places. The average yearly income of the corporation is about £300, which is derived principally from a toll on corn exhibited for sale in the market-place by non-freemen. The summer assizes for Westmoreland, and the sessions for the east and west wards, are held in the shire-hall; but there are also petty sessions held in the grand-jury-room by the magistrates every other Saturday within the limits of the borough. The town-hall is an ancient building, situated in the principal street; the shire-hall was erected in 1771, on the Bondgate side of the river Eden, and adjoins the gaol. In 1811, Smirke erected new cloisters, in the Gothic style, on the site of the old ones, which were formerly used for a market. Appleby is irregularly built, but the town is well lighted with gas, and there is a good supply of water. In the castle, which is now in habitable repair, and which is usually occupied by the steward of the Earl of Thanet, there are several very curious paintings.

—The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £9. 5s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £306: patron, Dean and Chapter of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, Joseph Milner, M.A., 1817, register of the diocese: contains 19,900 acres: 481 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,354, from which it does not much vary: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,232: poor rates in 1837, £499: tithes commuted, 1823. —Market day, Saturday. Fairs, Whitmonday, for linen cloth and merchandise; 2d Wednesday in June, a large fair for cattle and sheep; Aug. 21, for horses, sheep, and cheese.

APPLEBY ST. MICHAEL, WESTMORELAND, a parish, sometimes called Bondgate, comprising the townships of Bondgate and Langton, Crackenthorpe, Hilton, and Murton. —For access and postal arrangements, see APPLEBY ST. LAWRENCE. —The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £20. 13s. 9d.: pres. net income, £175: patron, Bishop of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, Thomas Belles, 1823: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,165: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,339: tithes commuted, 1772.

APPLEDORE, DEVONSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Northam, on the coast of Barnstaple Bay, at the mouths of the rivers Torridge and Taw. It is the first harbour within the bar of Barnstaple, to which port it is subordinate: 222 miles from London (coach road 204), 2 from Bideford, 7 from Barnstaple. —Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 38 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Tiverton, &c., 235½ miles. —Money orders issued at Bideford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1.20 p.m. —Hubba the Dane landed here in the reign of Alfred, but was taken and beheaded on a neighbouring hill. The scenery in the neighbourhood is very pleasing; and as there is an extensive beach and good accommodation for strangers, Appledore is fast growing into notice as a bathing place. There is an Independent chapel, and a chapel of ease has lately been erected. —The living, a perpetual curacy, in the diocese of Exeter, has a pres. net income o. £150: patron, Vicar of Northam: pres. incumbent, E. Reynolds, 1842: pop<sup>n</sup> returned with the parish.

APPLEDORE, KENT, a parish and market town in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackburn, lathe of Scray, union of Tenterden, on the road to New Romney: 76 miles from London (coach road 61) 6 from New Romney, 6 from Tenterden. —Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 208 miles. —Money orders issued at Tenterden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The town stands on the river Rother, and the church is built on the site of a fortress of the Danes, who sailed up as far as here in the year 893. Appledore was, for some time after the Conquest, of some importance; but in the time of Richard II. its port was destroyed by the French, and its prosperity declined. The Royal Military Canal, from Hythe to Romney, runs through the parish. —The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a vicarage, with the chapelry of Ebony annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £21: pres. net income, £185: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, William Cobb, 1844: contains 2,760 acres: 103 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 561: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 645: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,176: poor rates in 1837, £509. —Market day, Tuesday. Fairs, Jan. 11, and 4th Monday in June for cattle and pedlery.

APPLEDRAM, SUSSEX, a parish in the rape of Chichester, hun<sup>d</sup> of Box and Stockbridge, union of West Hampnett: 81 miles from London (coach road 64), 2 from Chichester, 16 from Portsmouth. —Sou. East. Rail. to Chichester, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 213 miles. —Money orders issued at Chichester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The village stands one mile north of the spot where the Arundel and Portsmouth Canal flows into Chichester harbour. The church is of early English architecture. —The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £64: patron, Dean and Chapter of Chichester: pres. incumbent, Henry Smith, 1842: contains 1,070 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 156: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 179: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,354: poor rates in 1837, £36.

APPLEDURDWELL (or APPULDERCOMBE, or, as it is spelt in the ancient British, Y FWLL Y DWB Y CWM—that is, "the pool of the valley"), HANTS, a hamlet in the parish of Godshill, Isle of Wight: 105 miles from London (coach road 91), 6 from Newport, 3 from Shanklin. —Sou. West. Rail. to Gosport, thence across to Ryde 5 miles per steam-packet, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 237 miles. —Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —The mansion of the same name, or, as it is generally written, Appuldercombe, is the principal marine residence of the Earl of Yarborough; but as the chief seat of the family is Brocklesby Hall in Lincolnshire, a detail of the descent of the peerage will be given with the account of that mansion. It was the principal seat of the Worsley family, whose name now constitutes the title of the eldest son of the Earl. The manor was anciently in the possession of the Abbey of Montsbury, in Normandy, being given to that institution, according to Tanner, in the latter end of the reign of Henry III., by Isabella de Fortibus, and became a monastery of Benedictine monks. It, however, was included in the lot which befel other alien priories during the war with France, being seized upon by the crown, and dissolved in the second year of Henry V. After this, in the 20th of Henry VI., it was given to the minoresses, as they were called, or nuns without Aldgate, to whom it was confirmed in the first year of his successor, Edward IV. After the general dissolution of monastic institutions in England, having passed through several families, the manor of Appuldercombe became the property of Sir James Worsley of Worsley Hall, in Lancashire, from whom it descended to its present owner. The Worsleys trace their descent from Sir Elias de Workesley, who followed Robert Duke of Normandy to the Holy Land, and died and was interred during the expedition in the island of Rhodes. The old priory house was thoroughly repaired during the reign of Elizabeth, most probably by Sir Francis Walsingham, who married the widow of Sir James Worsley, and in right of whom he held the property. That ancient edifice was taken down in 1710 by Sir Robert Worsley, who began to erect a new mansion on its site, but never lived to see his work completed. Alterations were indeed made from time to time, and nearly a century elapsed before the whole was brought to a close, the house being finished in 1805 by Sir Richard Worsley, the last baronet. It stands in a situation peculiarly fine, being surrounded by an extensive park in an amphitheatre of hills of graceful form, and commands a great variety of noble prospects, while the slope which forms the background is thickly embellished by beech trees and oaks of unusual size and beauty. The mansion, which is built entirely of freestone, has, from its size and position, an aspect of great grandeur. It has four fronts of the Corinthian order, with buildings advanced from each front, which are finished with pilastres and pediments of Portland stone, a plan which somewhat detracts, however, from the imposing appearance of the whole. The entrance-hall, which is on the east side, is fifty-four feet long and twenty-four broad, and is adorned by eight Ionic columns of great beauty, formed of a composition in imitation of porphyry. This hall, and the other state apartments of Appuldercombe, are superbly decorated with sculptures, paintings, and drawings of great value, chiefly the collection of Sir R. Worsley, made during the years 1785-6-7, in a tour through Spain, Italy, Greece, Egypt, Asia Minor, and Tartary. Sir Richard freighted a ship for himself, and induced several artists of skill and eminence to accompany him for the selection of these works of art, in the purchase of which he spared no expense. The paintings, among others of great merit, comprise portraits of Henry VIII., of his brother-in-law Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, his sister Mary, the Queen Dowager of France, and afterwards wife of the latter, and of Edward VI., his son, by Holbein, the two first of which are said to have been given by the king himself to Sir R. Worsley. The sculptures are many of them exquisite productions, and the drawings are also numerous and very valuable. The prospects from the eminences of the park are, as stated above, exceedingly fine, commanding views of a large part of the Isle of Wight, Spithead, Portsmouth, and the adjacent parts of Hampshire. There is a curious artificial ruin at the top of a rocky hill at some distance, called "Cook's Castle," which is a very striking and interesting object from the mansion as well as from various other points of view. On the summit of one of the other principal elevations of the park, there is a granite obelisk, 70 feet high, erected by the last baronet to the memory of Sir Robert Worsley. About two miles south of Appuldercombe, near the church of St. Lawrence, in one of the most beautiful parts of the island, there is an exceedingly elegant cottage ornée, erected by the late Sir R. Worsley, in and around which there is gathered all that is needed to gratify a refined and sumptuous taste. It is surrounded by grounds of a singularly beautiful and romantic cast, in which there are jutting craggy rocks clothed here and there with ivy, irregular lawns, groups of fine elms, a crystal rivulet, and all so disposed as to give an admirably combined interest to the scenery. In addition to these attractions, under the inspection of a French vigneron, Sir Richard, in 1792, caused to be constructed that which is the only real vineyard in England. The vines are of the Muscadine and Plant Verd sorts, and are planted in beds of twelve feet broad, the plants being placed about one-and-a-half feet from each other. The shoots are kept at the length of two to two-and-a-half feet, and the whole are so arranged as to be screened from every chilling blast by a high range of rocky hills. A light kind of white wine is made from the grapes. The living is a curacy, not in charge, valued at £4. The chapel is in ruins.

APPLEFORD, Bzrks, a chapelry in the union of Abingdon: 50½ miles from London (coach road 52), 4 from Abingdon, 3 from Wallingford. Gt. West. Rail. to Wallingford, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Didcot, 154, thence 3 miles. Money orders issued at Abingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 6 p.m. The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Sutton Courtney—(which see for population, &c.): contains 760 acres: 35 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,398: poor rates in 1837, £98. N. 1 m. is Appleford House.

APPLESHAW, Hants, a parish and village on the road to Andover, in the hund<sup>d</sup> and division of Andover: 73 miles from London (coach road 68), 4 from Ludgershall, 18 from Salisbury. Sou. West. Rail. to Andover Road, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 205: or through Birmingham, Gloucester, Reading, to Andover Road, &c., 210½ miles. Money orders issued at Andover: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, united to the vicarage of Ampert: contains 850 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 372: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 427: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,433: poor rates in 1837, £120. Fairs, May 23, Friday and Saturday before Weyhill fair, and Nov. 4 and 5 for sheep; the last is a great sheep show. W. 1 m. is Redenham House, the seat of Sir J. Pollen, second baronet of that name, who succeeded to the title and estates in 1814. The family is originally from Lincolnshire; the baronetcy was created in 1795. John Pollen, Esq., the only surviving son of his father, a wealthy London merchant in the middle of the last century, sat for the borough of Andover, as did also his son afterwards, and who obtained such distinction as a barrister as to be made one of the judges of the principality of Wales. N. 2 m. is Chute House; E. 1½ m. Hatherden House; 2 m. Enham Place. There is a school at Appleshaw, which was endowed by Francis Offley with £2. 5s. per annum in 1761, but which is now connected with the National School Society.

APPLESTHORPE (or APETHORPE), NOTTINGHAM, a parochial chapelry in the North-clay division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, immediately adjoining on the east to North Leverton: 176 miles from London (coach road 144), 6 from East Ret-ford, 8 from Tuxford. — East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Lincoln, to Stow, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, Stow, &c., 61½ miles. — Money orders issued at Tuxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a vicarage, a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £19. 11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £81: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, T. Mickle, 1841: contains 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 109: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 125: tithes commuted in 1795.

APPLETHWAITE, WESTMORELAND, a township in the parish of Windermere, union of Kendal: 261½ miles from London (coach road 270), 5 from Ambleside, 8 from Kendal. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Windermere, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 177½ miles. — Money orders issued at Ambleside: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — The village is seated at the head of a wild ravine, and the houses, as is the case with most of the villages in Westmoreland, are detached, and form a picturesque street along the dell. The fishery of Kentmere, a neighbouring lake, belongs to the inhabitants at large, who pay a tithe of their "takings" to the vicar. The inhabitants have also a right to the benefit of a charity school at Bowness. — Contains 77 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,821: poor rates in 1837, £238.

APPLETON, BERKS, a parish and township in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Ock, union of Abingdon, which is bounded by the Thames on the west. Pop<sup>n</sup> of the township, 381: houses, 69: 68 miles from London (coach road 61), 5 from Abingdon, 5 from Oxford. — Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Oxford, &c., 149 miles. — Money orders issued at Abingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — This village was the birth-place of a physician somewhat famous in his time, Dr. E. Dickinson, who published a learned work, showing that the heathen mythology was traceable to a corruption of the text of the Bible. He died in 1707. A free school here was endowed in 1604, by Sir R. Fettiplace, the annual income of which is £16. 16s. 8d. The other charities have an income in the aggregate of £50. 4s. 8d. per annum. — The living (St. Lawrence), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £13. 5s.: pres. net income, £307: patron, Mag. Coll. Oxford: pres. incumbent, W. J. Butler, 1844: contains 2,300 acres: 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 496: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 571: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,149: poor rates in 1837, £245.

APPLETON (or HULL and APPLETON), CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Great Budworth: 185½ miles from London (coach road 184), 5 from Warrington, 9 from Runcorn. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Warrington, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 101½ miles. — Money orders issued at Warrington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Pop<sup>n</sup> returned with Hull. — N. 1½ m. is Appleton Lodge, the seat of T. Lyon, Esq.; 2 m. Bradley Hall; 8. 2 m. Questy Birch Hall.

APPLETON, LANCASHIRE, a township in the chapelry of Prescott: 188½ miles from London (coach road 184), 7 from Warrington, 11 from Liverpool. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Warrington, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 104½ miles. — Money orders issued at Warrington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — N. 1½ m. is Moss Brook House.

APPLETON, NORFOLK, in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Freebridge Lynn: 106 miles from London (coach road 103), 3 from Castle-Rising, 8 from Lynn. — East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Ely to Lynn, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, to Lynn, &c., 165 miles. — Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Sir H. R. Paston Bedingfield derives his title from this place; but he has sold the estate. His seat is Oxburgh Hall—(which see.) — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely. The church has been desecrated, and the living sequestrated: is valued at £8: pres. net income, £8: patron, Sir H. R. P. Bedingfield, Bart.: pres. incumbent, W. Allen, 1835: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 25: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 29. — E. 2 m. is Hillington House, the seat of Sir William J. H. B. Folkes, Baronet. The family has for several generations been settled at Hillington, but originally came from Staffordshire, where they were people of consideration as early as the time of Henry V. The first of any note of whom mention is made is William Fowke, as the name was then spelled, who lived in 1438, and from whom was descended, in a direct line, Martin Folkes, Esq., a barrister, who, in 1695, was appointed solicitor-general, and, two years afterwards, attorney-general to Catherine, Queen Dowager of Charles II. From him descended Mr. Martin Folkes, who was created a baronet in 1774. The present baronet succeeded Sir Martin in the title and estates in 1821. The mansion has within these last few years been greatly improved, and the gardens, conservatories, and pineries are justly celebrated for their extent and completeness. N. 1½ m. is Sandingham Hall.

APPLETON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, two townships in the parish of Catterick, respectively called North and South Appleton: 269 miles from London (coach road 228), 3 from Catterick, 4 from Richmond. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, to Catterick Bridge station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 137 miles. — Money orders issued at Catterick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 1,480 acres: 16 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,666: poor rates in 1837, £79.

APPLETON-LE-MOORS, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Lastingham, on the Severn, a branch of the Rye: 254½ miles from London (coach road 231), 5 from Pickering, 3 from Kirkby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, to Pickering, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 122 miles. — Money orders issued at Pickering: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m. — Contains 2,570 acres: 59 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,063: poor rates in 1837, £76.

APPLETON-NUN, YORK, in the parish of Bolton-Percy, lower division of the ainsty of the city of York: 221 miles from London (coach road 190), 9 from York, 5 from Tadcaster. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, Normanton, to Bolton Percy, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, &c., 89 miles. — Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — A Cistercian nunnery, dedicated to God, the Virgin Mary, and St. John the Evangelist, was founded here by Adeliza de St. Quintin, in the latter part of the reign of Stephen. Its land and rents were rated in the 26th of Henry VIII. at £83. 5s. 9d.; and in 1553, the site was granted to Sir William Fairfax and Humphrey Shelley. Nun-Appleton House was built by Lord Thomas Fairfax, whose ancestors had received a grant of the convent and estates; and from him it was purchased by Mr. Milner, a merchant, and mayor of Leeds, in 1697, whose son was created a baronet in 1616-17. The son of that gentleman, Sir William, married a daughter of the Rev. George Mordaunt, and niece of the Earl of Peterborough. After being receiver of the taxes for many years, he was succeeded by his son, Sir William Mordaunt, who married the eldest daughter of Humphrey Sturt, Esq. of Critchill House, Dorset, and was succeeded in 1811 by Sir William Mordaunt Sturt Milner, the present baronet.

APPLETON-ROEBUCK, YORK, a township in the parish of Bolton-Percy, ainsty of the city of York. — For access and postal arrangements, see above: 189 miles from London, 7 from York, 8 from Selby. — Contains 2,780 acres: 117 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 613: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 703: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,529: poor rates in 1837, £287.

APPLETON-LE-STREET, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish, 4 miles west of New Malton — (which see for access and postal arrangements). — Contains 1,140 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 170: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 203: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,643: poor rates in 1837, £78.

APPLETON-LE-STREET, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Ryedale, union of Malton. It comprises the townships of Amotherby, Appleton-le-street, Broughton, Hildenley, and Swinton: 244½ miles from London (coach road 218), 4 from New Malton, 18 from York. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, to New Malton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 112½ miles. — Money orders issued at New Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, diocese of York, is valued at £7. 8s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £515: patron, Rev. J. J. Peach: pres. incumbent, J. J. Peach, 1800: contains 4,780 acres: 175 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 944: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,086: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,644.

APPLETON-UPON-WISK, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the west division of the liberty of Langbaugh, union of North Allerton: 261½ miles from London (coach road 232), 7 from Yarm, 7 from North Allerton. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, to Cowton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 129½ miles. — Money orders issued at Yarm: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living, a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, diocese of York, united with the rectory of Great Smeaton, and having jointly a pres. net income, £472: patron, Robert

Barry, Esq.: contains 1,800 acres: 116 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 559: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 642: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,427: poor rates in 1837, £206. — W. 2 m. is Hornby Grange.

APPLETREE, NORTHAMPTON, a hamlet in the parish of Aston-le-Walls, union of Banbury: 78½ miles from London (coach road 77), 7 from Banbury, 10 from Daventry. — Nor. West. Rail. to Roade, thence 18½ miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Roade, &c., 90½ miles. — Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 275: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 315: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,050. — S. 2 m. is Edgcott Park.

APPLETREE-WICK, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Burnsall, union of Skipton, on the Wharfe: 239½ miles from London (coach road 224), 8 from Skipton, 1 from Burnsall. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, Leeds, to Skipton, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 107½ miles. — Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12½ p.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — In this village, William Craven was born of poor parents, and became one of the instances of the opportunities given in this country of rising to the highest positions in the state, being made lord mayor of London in the year 1611. He was the founder of the noble family of Craven. — Contains 7,740 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 485: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 555: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,932: poor rates in 1837, £230: tithes commuted in 1815. Fair, Oct. 25.

ARBORFIELD, BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Sonning, union of Wokingham: 39½ miles from London (coach road 36), 5 from Wokingham, 4 from Reading. — Gt. West. Rail. to Reading, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 171½ miles; or through Birmingham, Gloucester, Reading, &c., 175½ miles. — Money orders issued at Wokingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Bartholomew), a rectory, a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury, is valued at £7. 19s. 8d.: pres. net income, £345: patron, Lord Braybrooke: pres. incumbent, J. W. Hayes, 1839: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 300: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 345: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,796: poor rates in 1837, £193. — Fair, Oct. 5, for cattle. — S. 2 m. Swallowfield Place: N. 1 m. Arborfield House, a mansion built by the Standen family, the last representative of whom, Edward Standen, Esq., who died in 1730, was the person alluded to in a ballad called Molly Mogg, which was very noted at the time. A new mansion was built a few years ago by G. Dawson, Esq., and is now in the possession of Sir John Conroy, Bart. E. 2 m. is Bearwood, the seat of John Walter, Esq., M.P., whose father was the late principal proprietor, and for many years sole conductor, of the Times newspaper; a paper which stands confessedly at the head of the daily journals in this and every other country, unrivalled in the means of its information, and unsurpassed in the energy and ability with which it is conducted. The present position of the Times is indeed one of the remarkable facts, perhaps the most remarkable fact, of this age of progress. Exhibiting in its leading columns attainment which comprises a knowledge of every branch of literature and science, and a consummate tact and talent in the writers for the handling of their subjects—and this not occasionally only, but day by day, and week by week, and year by year—it is not at all surprising that the paper, backed as this merit is by a most complete organization of contributors in every department, should have attained an immense authority over the public mind, and that its influence should be felt, as it has been felt in innumerable instances, in the momentous periods of modern history, throughout the deliberations and proceedings of the most important public bodies in this country and elsewhere, even to the extent of affecting the decisions of the legislature. To the lofty position which it has reached, and which, in the presence of its many able competitors, it has now for so many years maintained, was the Times elevated chiefly by the prudence, independence, sagacity, and skill of the late Mr. John Walter. Five-and-forty years ago, journalism was not what it is now; and when, in 1803, Mr. Walter became the principal proprietor and sole conductor of his paper, even he could little have anticipated the immense organ of power it was one day to become. Yet, though he had this veiled future before him, he took the bold course which every man who is wise as well as courageous would adopt. He determined to think and to act for himself, irrespective of all superior influences, whether of ministry or party, believing that, in the long run at least, the British people would rightly appreciate that independence which would save them from discoloured and unfair representations of passing events. Yet, while thus carefully guarding the position of his journal from the suspicion of a pecuniarily interested bias, Mr. Walter was equally energetic in arranging a wide-spread system of correspondence throughout the world, so that whenever and wherever a matter of importance transpired, he was sure to receive the earliest and most correct intelligence of the fact; and it is well known that, in a vast number of instances during the French war, intelligence of great political import was conveyed to the Times office, hours and even days before the Government received their despatches; and, in one case, notice of the capitulation of Flushing arrived in Printing-house Square as much as forty-eight hours before the ministry were made acquainted with the fact. And when, some thirty years afterwards, the overland route to our Indian possessions was at last laid open, it was the directors of the Times who anticipated the Government in the reception of important intelligence, by forwarding, at an enormous expense, by a special courier, their papers and letters from Marseilles across the whole country of France, instead of waiting for the more tardy arrival of the Mediterranean steamer in Southampton Water. Nor was it only in these leading features of a public journal that Mr. Walter's care and sagacity were singularly shown. All the minor portions of a great establishment were like the minutest joint of a steam-engine, kept invariably bright and in working order. He who made a mistake ever so small, found that there was no such term as "trifle" in the Times vocabulary. Yet if strict in the exaction of a veracious fulfilment of duty, no less generous was Mr. Walter in the reward of faithful service. No one who conscientiously discharged his trust on the paper ever wanted either employment or a home, after his engagement upon it. And, in the higher departments of the paper, the munificent rewards which Mr. Walter was able to offer, and which he was always ready to confer, commanded the assistance of men of first-rate experience, education, and ability; so that the "leading articles" of the Times are now justly classed with the best of our classical literature. The first consideration of Mr. Walter appears to have been, the thorough independence of his journal from any extraneous influence; and this feeling frequently brought the paper into hostile collision with the ministry of the time, so that the correspondence, and other documents from abroad, were frequently, on their arrival at Gravesend, either suppressed altogether by the officials of the Government, or so delayed as to be of little service, while packets for the other papers were duly forwarded. This abuse of authority was powerfully denounced to the country. Such conduct was not likely to escape without occasioning a sacrifice; and, accordingly, his father, who had for many years enjoyed the lucrative office of printer to the Custom-house, was deprived of that business. This was too great a loss to be put up with quietly; yet when it was decided to present a memorial to the Lords of the Treasury, with a view to regain the business, Mr. Walter refused to sign it. As years progressed, the Times gradually acquired a wider influence and circulation, until it became a matter of exceeding difficulty to supply by the hand-press the requisite number of copies; and though every device, of "double forms," and all other typographic expedients, to obviate the difficulty had been tried, it seemed likely to be insuperable. Mr. Walter had not been insensible of its approach; and, even as early as 1804, had engaged an ingenious compositor, named Martyn, to construct a press-machine; a proceeding which so irritated the pressmen of the establishment, that they threatened him with serious bodily injury, and he was obliged to approach and leave the premises in a variety of disguises. This was the first germ of machine-printing; and when the ingenious German, Koenig, came to this country, with his young relative Bauer, Mr. Walter readily availed himself of his services. Their machine was set up, in order to ascertain its real merits, not, however, in the Times office, but in a neighbouring house. After a great outlay and much difficulty, it was at length got into good working order, and fit for use. On the night of the 28th November, 1814, the pressmen were desired to wait for some foreign intelligence; and, towards six o'clock in the morning, they were astonished by Mr. Walter entering the office with a printed copy of that day's journal in his hand, and thus showing them that their power of insubordinate combination was at an end. There was every disposition to riot, but, on the proprietor telling them that he had at hand a force competent to put down all disturbance, and that their wages should be paid until they obtained other employment, they quietly dispersed. Thus was accomplished a change in the supply of intelligence, which has had an incalculable influence on the social polity of the world; a change which can only be paralleled by the revival of letters, and the invention of printing itself; a change, the full effect of which no one in existence can as yet foretell. Being at the head of such an establishment as that of the Times, Mr. Walter became identified with all the great questions of the day; and the history of the paper is the history of his life. Above all, he identified himself with a determined opposition to the New Poor Law; and, by means of his paper and of his personal influence, did all that in him lay to abate its cruelty and remove its oppression. This, as a statesman, was his leading point when elected to sit for Berkshire, in the first parliament after the passing of the Reform Bill. He sat also in the next parliament; but, in 1837, the indifference of both parties in the house to the cause which he especially advocated—the cause of the poor—induced him to resign his seat; and he was afterwards returned for the town of Nottingham, for which place the present proprietor was elected without solicitation, and when absent, on the day of his father's decease. After several months of severe illness, the late Mr. Walter expired on the 28th July, 1847, at the premises in Printing-house Square, whither he had removed for the benefit of medical attendance. The mansion itself possesses no attractions in an architectural point of view, but contains a fine collection of pictures, chiefly of the Flemish and Dutch schools; among which may be reckoned several chefs-d'œuvres of Hobbema, Berghem, and Paul Potter. The pleasure grounds, which were laid out by the late Mr. Walter, with the assistance of the eminent landscape gardener, David Stewart, Esq., exhibit one of the happiest combinations of art and nature that is to be met with in this country. The lake covers a space of not less than fifty acres, the banks being clothed to the water's edge with magnificent woods, the growth of Windsor forest, of which the domain once formed a part.

ARBORY. See KIRK-ARBORY.

ARBURY, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Winwick, and returned with Houghton—(which see): 184½ miles from London (coach road 186), 4 from Newton, 18 from Liverpool. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Warrington, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 100½ miles. —Money orders issued at Warrington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.; post closes 6 p.m. —E. ½ m. is Enfield Hall.

ARCLID, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Sandbach: 164 miles from London (coach road 162), 2 from Sandbach, 5 from Congleton. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Sandbach, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 80 miles. —Money orders issued at Sandbach: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.; post closes 6 p.m. —Contains 610 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 89: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 97: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,010: poor rates in 1837, £31.

ARDEN, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Hawby, wapentake of Birdforth, union of Helmsley, Blackmoor: 251½ miles from London (coach road 227), 10 from Thirsk, 11 from Stokesley. —Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, to Thirsk, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 119½ miles. —Money orders issued at Thirsk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.; post closes 5 p.m. —A nunnery of the Benedictine order was founded here about 1150, by Peter de Hoton, which, in the thirty-second year of his reign, was granted by Henry VIII. to Thomas Culpepper; but no vestige of the monastic buildings now remains. —Contains 9,090 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, including that of Ardenside, 181: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 206: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £586: poor rates in 1837, £84.

ARDINGLEY (or ERTHINGLEY), SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Buntinghill, rape of Lewes, union of Cuckfield, and on the line of the London and Brighton Railroad: 35½ miles from London (coach road 33), 4 from Cuckfield, 7 from East Grinstead. —Sou. East. Rail. through Reigate to Balcombe, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 167½ miles. —Money orders issued at Cuckfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.; post closes 6 p.m. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £19. 5s. 10d.: pres. net income, £498: patron, J. F. W. Peyton: pres. incumbent, W. P. Haslewood, 1844: contains 4,780 acres: 108 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 742: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 853: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,292: poor rates in 1837, £546.

ARDINGTON, BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wantage: 59½ miles from London (coach road 57), 3 from Wantage, 8 from Abingdon. —Gt. West. Rail. to Stevenage, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Stevenage, &c., 153½ miles. —Money orders issued at Wantage: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.; post closes 5 p.m. —The Great Western Railway crosses the Wilts and Berks Canal in this parish. —The living (the Holy Trinity), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, formerly in the diocese of Salisbury, now in that of Oxford, is valued at £8. 7s. 9d.: patron, Christ Church, Oxford: contains 1,310 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 405: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 466: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,256: poor rates in 1837, £93. —W. 2 m. is Charlton Manor: S. 1 m. Lockhinge House: E. 2 m. Hendred House.

ARDLEIGH, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Tendring, near the river Stour: 55 miles from London (coach road 56), 5 from Colchester, 4 from Manningtree. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Colchester to Ardleigh: from Derby, through London, and as above, 187 miles. —Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.; post closes 7 p.m. —This parish possesses the privilege of sending children to the free grammar-school, founded at Didham, in 1571, by W. Littlebury, Esq. —The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, is valued at £11. 0s. 10d.: pres. net income, £258: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, H. Bishop, 1807: contains 5,100 acres: 207 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,605: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,846: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,135: poor rates in 1837, £1,196. —S. 2 m. is Ardleigh Park, on the east side of the railway: N. 1 m. is Hill House.

ARDLEY (or AUDLEY-STRETTON), OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ploughley, union of Bicester: 59½ miles from London (coach road 58), 4 from Bicester, 3 from Middleton. —Nor. West. Rail. to Aylesbury, thence 16½ miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Aylesbury, &c., 105½ miles. Money orders issued at Bicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £5. 12s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £307: patron, Duke of Marlborough: pres. incumbent, John Lowe, 1815: contains 1,440 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 168: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 193: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,583: poor rates in 1837, £91.

ARDSLEY WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Darfield, on the Dearne and Dove Canal: 199½ miles from London (coach road 189), 2 from Barnsley, 5 from Wakefield. Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Wakefield, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Wakefield, &c., 67½ miles. Money orders issued at Barnsley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. A new church, in the Norman style, was opened here in June, 1841. The living, a perpetual curacy: pres. net income, £120: patron, Vicar of Darfield: pres. incumbent, R. G. Micklethwaite, 1844: contains 1,030 acres: 199 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,300: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,495: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,566: poor rates in 1837, £200: tithes commuted in 1760. There is a Wesleyan chapel also here. N. 1 m. Tingley House: W. 1½ m. Stump Cross: S. 2 m. Haigh Hall.

ARDSLEY (EAST), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Agbrigg, union of Wakefield. Access and postal arrangements same as above, but one mile nearer to the station. The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £27: pres. net income, £369: patron, Earl of Cardigan: pres. incumbent, J. Daniel, 1844: contains 1,630 acres: 175 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 900: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,035: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,092: poor rates in 1837, £241: tithes commuted in 1827.

ARDSLEY (WEST), (WESTERTON, or WOODKIRK), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the same wapentake, union, and county, as the above (which see for access and postal arrangements.) The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £31. 6s.: pres. net income, £265: patron, Earl of Cardigan: pres. incumbent, G. D. Miller, 1846: contains 2,250 acres: 290 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,420: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,633: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,631: poor rates in 1837, £375.

ARDWICK, LANCASHIRE, a chapelry to the parish of Manchester, hun<sup>d</sup> of Salford, union of Chorlton: 190 miles from London (coach road 182), 1 from Manchester, 6 from Stockport. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Manchester, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Sheffield to Manchester, &c., 88 miles. Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Besides Sunday schools, there are several both daily and boarding schools of considerable note. The Sheffield, Ashton-under-Lyne, and Manchester Railway, which at this point is carried on a succession of enormous viaducts, here joins the North Western Railway. The suburb is included in the borough of Manchester. The living (St. Thomas) is a curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £294: patron, Fellows of Manchester Collegiate Church: pres. incumbent, N. W. Gibson, 1831: contains 470 acres: 1,033 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 9,906: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 11,392: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £11,241: poor rates in 1837, £825. E. 2 m. is Gorton House; 1½ m. Gorton Hall; S. 1 m. Kirkmanshulme.

VOL. I.

ARELEY (KING'S), WORCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Doddingtree, union of Martley: 137½ miles from London (coach road 122), 1 from Stourport, 4 from Bewdley. Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Bromsgrove, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 66½ miles. Money orders issued at Stourport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The church is a fine Gothic building, and stands on an eminence from which there is an extensive prospect. There is a monument in the burial ground to a person termed Sir Harry, who is generally reputed to have been a Sir H. Coningsby of Herefordshire, who was driven into seclusion by an accident which befell his daughter, a child, who, as he held her at a window, either leapt or fell from his arms into a moat, and was drowned. Layamon, who was the earliest native writer upon British history, giving a statement of the occurrences that happened from the time of Brute to that of Cadwalladar, and who describes himself as a priest living at Erenlege on the Severn, is generally supposed to have been born here. The charities connected with the parish are endowed to the amount of about £19 a year. The living (St. Bartholomew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £346: patron, Rector of Martley: pres. incumbent, H. J. Hastings, 1831: contains 1,390 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 423: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 486: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,554: poor rates in 1837, £233.

ARELEY (UPPER), STAFFORD, a parish in the south division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Seisdon, union of Kidderminster: 138½ miles from London (coach road 131), 3 from Bewdley, 5 from Kidderminster. Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Barnt Green, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 67½ miles. Money orders issued at Bewdley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The living (St. Peter) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield: pres. net income, £255: patron, Earl of Mountmorris: pres. incumbent, John Allen, 1824: contains 5,160 acres: 165 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 667: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 767: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,831: poor rates in 1837, £173. N. ½ m. is Areley Hall.

ARGAM (or ERGHAM), EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Dicker, union of Bridlington: 267½ miles from London (coach road 211), 5 from Bridlington, 12 from Great Driffield. Nor. West. Rail. through York, Malton, to Speeton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 135½ miles. Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 1 p.m. The living (St. John the Baptist) is a rectory united to the perpetual curacy of Bridlington, diocese of York. The church has been desecrated, and there has been no institution since 1605:

x

valued at £4: pres. net income, £21: patron, C. Grimstone, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Jabez Banks: contains 510 acres: 3 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 30: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 35: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £332: poor rates in 1837, £11.

ARKENDALE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry to the parish of Knaresborough, wapentake of Claro: 228 miles from London (coach road 203), 4 from Knaresborough, 4 from Boroughbridge. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, Leeds, to Knaresborough, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 96 miles. — Money orders issued at Knaresborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living is a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon: pres. net income, £68: patron, Vicar of Knaresborough: pres. incumbent, George Creighton, 1845: contains 1,620 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 261: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 300: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,358: poor rates in 1837, £124. The great and small tithes, and the moduses of the manor, which were the property of the prebend of Beechill, the vicar, and the lay impropriator, were commuted in 1773.

ARKENGARTH-DALE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a mountainous parish and township in the wapentake of Gilling-West, on a tributary of the Swale: 280 miles from London (coach road 245), 11 from Richmond, 7 from Askrigg. — Nor. West. Rail. through York to Richmond, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 148 miles. — Money orders issued at Richmond: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There is a free school here, endowed by Mr. G. Browne of Stockton, with an annual income of £60 a year, to which all the children of the dale have a right of gratuitous admission. In addition to the church, there is a Methodist chapel here. The inhabitants of the parish are chiefly employed in the lead mines, which are of great antiquity, having been worked in the time of King John; and they are still very productive, the produce from the ore brought to the surface averaging as much as 2,000 tons in the twelvemonths. The smelting-house is also said to be unequalled for extent, and in the completeness of its fittings. — The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £123: patron, Sir J. Lowther, Bart.: pres. incumbent, J. Hayton, 1830: contains 14,180 acres: 291 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,243: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,429: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,195: poor rates in 1837, £521.

ARKESDEN, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Uttlesford, union of Saffron-Walden: 44½ miles from London (coach road 40), 10 from Bishop-Stortford, 7 from Saffron-Walden. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Newport, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 176½ miles. — Money orders issued at Bishop-Stortford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £181: patron, R. B. Wolfe, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. S. Griffinhoofe: contains 2,320 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 498: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 573: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>.

£2,079: poor rates in 1837, £309. — 8. 1½ m. is Woodhall.

ARKHOLME-WITH-CAWOOD, LANCASHIRE, a township and chapelry in the parish of Melling, on the river Lune, which here expands into a lake: 241½ miles from London (coach road 250), 5 from Kirby-Lonsdale, 10 from Lancaster. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, to Carnforth, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 157½ miles. — Money orders issued at Kirby-Lonsdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, is valued at £8. 10s.: pres. net income, £80: patron, Vicar of Melling: pres. incumbent, R. Mallison, 1829: contains 2,920 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 407: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 467: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,597: poor rates in 1837, £214. — N. ½ m. is Thurland Castle; W. 2 m. Caponwray Hall.

ARKSEY (or ARKSEY-WITH-BENTLEY), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill, union of Doncaster, including the township of Bentley: 191 miles from London (coach road 164), 2 from Doncaster, 8 from Thorne. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, Rotherham, to Darfield, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 59 miles. — Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — A free school was endowed here in 1660 by Sir Bryan Cooke, Bart., and a school-house was built by his successor in 1683, the endowment being £40 a year. There is also an hospital for four poor parishioners, with an endowment of £89. 12s. per annum. The other charities of the parish have an income of about £18. 10s. a year. — The living (All Saints), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £12. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £113: patron, Sir W. B. Cooke, Bart.: pres. incumbent, — Sorsby, 1844: contains 5,220 acres: 244 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,056: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,214: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £10,067: poor rates in 1837, £626: the great and small tithes, moduses, and other similar ecclesiastical incomes, were commuted in 1827-8; they were the property of the lord of the manor.

ARLECDON, CUMBERLAND, a parish in the ward of Allerdale, above Derwent. It includes the townships of High and Low Frizington and Whillymoor: 345½ miles from London (coach road 299), 5 from Whitehaven, 7 from Workington. — Nor. West. Rail. through Carlisle to Whitehaven, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Carlisle, &c., 256½ miles. — Money orders issued at Whitehaven: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 12 noon. — Coal is worked to some extent within the parish. A new church was consecrated here in 1829. — The living (St. Michael), a perpetual curacy, a peculiar in the diocese of Chester, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £100: patron, Bishop of Chester: pres. incumbent, F. Allnatt, 1847: contains 5,700 acres: 94 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 558: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 641: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,211: poor rates in 1837, £124. The tithes of the manor of Frizington, which were the property of the Bishop of Chester, were commuted in 1805; and those of Lamplough and Arledon, and of the townships of Arledon, Kelton, Whillymoor, and Winder, which were jointly the property of the bishop and of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1819.

ARLESTON. See SYNFID.

ARLEY, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the Kirby division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow, union of Nuneaton: 102½ miles from London (coach road 100), 6 from Nuneaton, 6 from Atherstone. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Nuneaton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 42½ miles. — Money orders issued at Nuneaton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — There is a free school here, endowed by William Avery with an income of £15 yearly. The other charities of the parish produce about £19. 13s. per annum. — The living (St. Wilfrid), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £9. 0s. 7d.: pres. net income, £351: patron, Rev. Roger R. Vaughton: pres. incumbent, R. R. Vaughton, 1815: contains 2,130 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 265: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 304: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,391: poor rates in 1837, £139.

ARLEY KING'S. See ARLEY KING'S.

ARLINGHAM, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Berkeley, union of Wheatonhurst, on the opposite side of the estuary of the Severn, by which river it is on three of its sides surrounded: 110½ miles from London (coach road 118), 2 from Newnham, 12 from Gloucester. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 110½ miles. — Money orders issued at Newnham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — In 1765, a school was endowed here by Mrs. Mary Yate, with an income of £40 per annum, of which one half goes to the master, a quarter to the mistress, and the remainder is expended in the purchase of books. This benefactress also left £40 a year to the poor of the parish. — The living (St. Mary the Virgin), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £19. 18s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £193: patron, Mrs. Hodges: pres. incumbent, J. L. Crawley, 1837: contains 2,300 acres: 103 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 793: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 912: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,110: poor rates in 1837, £336: tithes commuted in 1801. — N. ½ m. is Arlington Court; W. 1 m. Oaklands.

ARLINGTON, DEVON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Sherwill, union of Barnstaple: 205 miles from London (coach road 193), 6 from Barnstaple, 8 from Ilfracombe. — Gt. West. Rail. to Wellington, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Wellington, &c., 218½ miles. — Money orders issued at Barnstaple: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £13. 18s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £272: patron, J. P. Chichester, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. H. Chichester, 1824: contains 1,890 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 206: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 237: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,709: poor rates in 1837, £123.

ARLINGTON, GLOUCESTER, a tithing in the parish of Bibury: 101 miles from London (coach road 85), 4 from Fairford, 6 from Cirencester. — Gt. West. Rail. to Cirencester, thence 6 miles:

from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Cirencester, &c., 126 miles. — Money orders issued at Fairford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — Contains 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 364: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 409.

ARLINGTON, SUSSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Longbridge, rape of Pevensey, union of Hailsham, on the Cuckmere river: 67½ miles from London (coach road 62), 4 from Hailsham, 9 from Lewes. — Sou. East. Rail. through Reigate, Lewes, to Berwick, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 199½ miles. — Money orders issued at Hurst Green: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The living (St. Pancras), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £10. 6s. 11d.: pres. net income, £156: patron, Preb. Woodhorne: pres. incumbent, R. Belaney, 1843: contains 4,790 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 686: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 788: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,317: poor rates in 1837, £804.

ARLSEY, BEDFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Clifton, union of Biggleswade: 42½ miles from London (coach road 41), 4 from Baldock, 3 from Shefford. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Ware, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Bletchley, to Ampthill, 92, thence 15 miles. — Money orders issued at Baldock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, united to the rectory of Astwick, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £280: patron, Mrs. Roger Smith: pres. incumbent, Roger Smith, 1841: contains 2,370 acres: 126 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 820: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 943: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,203: poor rates in 1837, £248: the great tithes, the property of the lord of the manor, and the small tithes, the property of the vicar, were commuted in 1804. — S. ½ m. is Arlsey Bury, the seat of Samuel Bedford Edwards, Esq., son of the late proprietor, who was a captain in the service of the East India Company, and who succeeded to the estates of his uncle. Mr. Edwards, who served the office of high-sheriff for the county in 1825, is the descendant of an ancient ancestry, which date their origin, as a family, from Henry Edwards, who lived at Henlow in the same county, and died about the close of the 15th century. He left three sons, of whom the third was Sergeant-at-arms to Henry VIII., Edward VI., Queens Mary and Elizabeth, dying during the reign of the last, in 1576. Richard Edwards, Esq., who died at Henlow, in 1623, and his grandson, also named Richard, who died in 1657, both held the office of Registrars of Chancery.

ARMATHWAITE, CUMBERLAND, a chapelry in the parish of Hesket-in-the-forest, Leath ward, on the river Eden, which flows through it: 295½ miles from London (coach road 292), 10 from Carlisle, 5 from Kirk-Oswald. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Penrith, to Southwaite, thence 4 miles: from Derby through Crewe, &c., 211½ miles. — Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There was here a small Benedictine nunnery, built and endowed by William Rufus. At the time of the dissolution of the monasteries, there were not more than a superior and three nuns, with their annual income of £18. 18s. 8d. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £26. 10s.: pres. net income, £50: patron, Trustees of Mr. Milbourn: pres. incumbent, William Hudson: (for population, &c., see parish.) — 8. 1 m. is Armathwaite Castle, situated in a deep glen, in a very beautiful situation close to the banks of the river Eden. The castle is of some antiquity, but the front, which is of hewn stone, is modern, and additional buildings for domestic offices have within the last thirty or forty years been erected. The mansion is placed in a secluded valley, commanded by several heights, and its position would naturally induce the idea that it was built rather for the purposes of retirement than security. The scenery around is in the extreme picturesque and romantic, and admirably calculated to bring up the ideas of that old English style of life which prevailed in the middle ages. Close by the Eden has spread itself into a clear lake-like expanse, and flows along in a tranquil stream, backed at the southern extremity of the view by the bold elevation of "Baron Wood," a magnificent hill, the fine outline of which is broken by the projection of a crag of singular and grotesque form, that, from its having become the rendezvous of a number of wild animals of the feline tribe, has acquired the name of Cat Glent. Other bold masses of rock, covered on their summits with noble forest trees, add a striking feature to the scene, while behind is the mill and some sequestered cottages. Beyond these emblems of quietude, the Eden is again seen under a different aspect, rushing down a cataract formed by a shelving rock, with all the turbulent fury of a mountain torrent, seeming to shake the very crags with the tumult of its uproar, and whirling in mad eddies round the bases of the cliffs, as it once more seeks an easy course. The prospect is finished at a small distance by a little stone bridge, which harmonizes beautifully with the other features of the landscape. The precise date of the foundation of the castle has never been ascertained, but it appears to have been inhabited in the reign of Henry VIII. by a family of the name of Skelton, one of whom, John Skelton, was poet-laureate to that monarch. The family continued to be proprietors till 1712, when Richard Skelton sold the domain to W. Sanderson, Esq., from whom it has descended to its present owner. Near the romantic lake, termed Tarn Wadling, about 1½ miles from Armathwaite, are the remains of an extensive fortress called Castle Hewin, which covers a large plot of ground, and which evidently appears to have been a place of great importance in its time. The principal building is more than 230 feet long by 150 broad, and the foundations, which are faced with rough stones of ashlar work, are in some places as much as eight feet thick. The castle has been divided into numerous apartments, and strengthened by outworks and long-extended trenches. At one corner there is a smaller structure, which appears to have been a sort of keep or capital. It is about 50 feet square, and the outer fence, which seems to have been circular, is of stone. Below it there are a ditch and breastworks, which have been carried down the declivity of the hill for a considerable distance. By Leland, who is the only old author that has mentioned it, it is called Castle Lewin, but he adds no particulars; and from tradition alone we learn that it originally belonged to Ewaine, sovereign of Cumberland, in the days of Athelstane, who is reported to have been buried in the Giants' Cave at Penrith. An old ballad, written about the time of Chaucer, and which had sufficient merit to induce Dr. Piercy to insert it in his collection of ancient poetry, makes the castle to be of considerable eminence in the time of King Arthur; and as the passage is one strikingly illustrative of the modes of thought and feeling at the time, we quote it:—

"A boone, a boone, oh King Arthur,
I beg a boone of thee—
Avenge me of a carlish knyghte,
Who hath shent my love and me.

On Tarne Wadlinge his castle stands,
All on a hill so hye;
And proudly rise the battlements,
And gay the streamers flye.

No gentle knyghte, nor lady faire,
May pass that castle wall;
But from that foul discourteous knyghte
Misshappe will them befall."

The fortress stands on the summit of a lofty hill, north-east of the lake, and commands a very extensive range of country; overlooking, south, a spacious tract with Pendennis in front, the view being terminated eastward by the heights of Cross-fell, Stainmore, and Dufton. On the south-west the view includes the whole country from Ullswater to Greystock, and is only bounded in the distance by the lofty heights of Helvellyn, Mellifells, and the neighbouring mountains. The western aspect is of softer features, taking in the widely-cultivated tract to the river Peteril. On the north, from the summit, may be surveyed the city of Carlisle, Brompton, the high lands of Nichol, and the Solway Frith, a number of features which, for variety and effect, are scarcely to be found in any other view in Britain. We need scarcely say that the place is well worthy of a visit from every traveller.

ARMIN, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Snaith, union of Goole, on the river Ouse: 219½ miles from London (coach road 175), 6 from Snaith, 3 from Howden. — Nor. West Rail. through Derby, Pontefract, to Goole, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Pontefract, &c., 87½ miles. — Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The living, a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £74: patron, Earl of Beverley and N. E. Yarburgh: pres. incumbent, H. Lloyd, 1845: contains 3,660 acres: 96 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 593: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 682: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,742: poor rates in 1837, £296.

ARMINGHALL, NORFOLK, a parish in the hundrd and union of Henstead: 112½ miles from London (coach road 120), 3 from Norwich, 12 from Bungay. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Ipswich, Diss, to Armington, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Peterboro' and Norwich, 202, thence 3 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £16: pres. net income, £66: patron, Dean and Chapter of Norwich: pres. incumbent, T. J. Bachelor, 1833:

contains 900 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 79: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 91: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,163: poor rates in 1837, £49.---E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Arminghall Hall; E. 2 m. Kirby Hall.

ARMITAGE, STAFFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Offlow (South), union of Lichfield. It includes the hamlet of Handsacre: 124 miles from London, 2 from Rudgeley, 6 from Lichfield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Rudgeley station, thence  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile: from Derby, through Tamworth, Rudgeley, &c., 37 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles.---Money orders issued at Rudgeley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The church, which stands on a lofty height, is a striking object in the landscape from all sides. The charities of the parish bring in a revenue of £8. 6s. per annum. There was an Independent church formed here in 1820. The Grand Trunk Canal passes under a tunnel, and forms a junction with the river Trent in this parish. The place was formerly called Hermitage, from a hermitage in a beautiful and sequestered spot between the village and the church.---The living (St. John), a perpetual curacy, a peculiar of the prebendary of Lichfield, annexed to the prebend of Handsacre in Lichfield cathedral, is valued at £20. 10s.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, F. Wilson: contains 1,950 acres: 185 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 987: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,135: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,213: poor rates in 1837, £357.---W.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Armitage Park; N. 2 m. Lee Hall.

ARMLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of St. Peter's, liberty of Leeds: 207 miles from London (coach road 192), 2 from Leeds, 7 from Bradford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Leeds, thence 2 miles: from Derby to Leeds, &c., 75 miles.---Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---There is a chapel of the Wesleyan Methodists here, founded in 1800; and there are also several juvenile and infant schools. The Leeds and Bradford Railway passes through the parish, as does also the Leeds and Liverpool Canal.---The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £26. 1s. 4d.: pres. net income, £204: patron, Vicar of Leeds: pres. incumbent, C. Clapham, 1822: contains 1,040 acres: 1,011 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,676: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,527: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,982: poor rates in 1837, £930.---N. 1 m. Armley Park.

ARMSCOTT, WORCESTERSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Tredington, locally situated in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Kington, Warwick, near the Moreton and Avon Railway: 116 miles from London (coach road 86), 3 from Shipston, 10 from Evesham.---Nor. West. Rail. to Leamington, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Coventry, Leamington, &c., 60 miles.---Money orders issued at Shipston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---Contains 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 145: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 165.

ARMSTON, NORTHAMPTON, a hamlet in the parish of Polebrook: 100 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 77), 3 from Oundle, 7 from Thrapston.---Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Oundle, thence 3 miles: from Derby, to Northampton, &c., 98 $\frac{1}{2}$ .---Money orders issued at Oundle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---An hospital, with a chapel, was founded here as early as 1231, by Ralph de Troubleville, and Alice, his wife.---Contains 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 27: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 32: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £752: poor rates in 1837, £19.

ARMTHORPE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the south division of the wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill, union of Doncaster: 193 miles from London (coach road 162), 3 from Doncaster, 7 from Thorne.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Rotherham, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 61 miles.---Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m.---There is a charity school in the parish, founded by Anne Holmes in 1689, with an income of £5. 13s. per annum, for the purpose of educating ten children, and apprenticing the sons of the poor. The other endowments of the parish produce about £12 yearly.---The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £8. 18s. 9d.: pres. net income, £366: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, H. J. Branson, 1834: contains 2,810 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 449: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 516: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,735: poor rates in 1837, £228.

ARNCLIFFE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a hilly parish and township, partly in the western and partly in the eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross, union of Settle, on a branch of the Wharfe. The parish contains the townships of Arncliffe, Buckden, Halton-Gill, West Halton, Hawksworth, and Litton: 236 miles from London (coach road 231), 13 from Skipton, 9 from Settle.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby and Leeds to Skipton, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 104 miles.---Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m.---The living (St. Oswald), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £36: patron, University College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, William Boyd, 1835: contains 38,060 acres: 204 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 834: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 959: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £12,843. The great and small tithes of the townships, the property of University College, Oxford, and of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1766. The charities of the parish produce a revenue of £59 per annum. There was lately a considerable cotton-mill here.

ARNCLIFFE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish---(which see for access and postal arrangements).---Contains 5,790 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 243: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 314: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,541: poor rates in 1837, £99.

ARNCLIFFE, NORTH RIDING, YORK. See INGLESBY-ARNCLIFFE.

ARNCOTT, OXFORD, a village and chapelry in the parish of Ambrosden---(which see for access): 54 miles from London, 3 from Bicester, 17 from Oxford, and situated on the east of the river Kay.---Contains 2,010 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 354: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 404: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,240: poor rates in 1837, £238. The tithes were commuted in 1814. There is a chapel and school here of the Wesleyan Methodists.

ARNE, DORSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hasilor, division and union of Wareham. It lies on the coast, between Wareham and Poole harbour: 131 miles from London (coach road 110), 5 from Wareham, 5 from Poole.---Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Wareham, thence 5 miles: from Derby to London, and as above, 263, or through Birmingham, Gloucester, Reading, Southampton, &c., 267 miles.---Money orders issued at Wareham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---There is a large barrow on the height that extends into the harbour, which has been used as a beacon.---The living, a curacy annexed to the rectory of Wareham, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury: pres. net income, £400: patron, J. H. Calcraft, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. R. Capel, 1841: contains 2,450 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 168: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 193: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £268: poor rates in 1837, £78.

ARNESBY, LEICESTERSHIRE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Guthlaxton, union of Lutterworth: 98½ miles from London (coach road 93), 8 from Leicester, 9 from Lutterworth.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Broughton Astley, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 15½ miles.---Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---There are several schools in the parish; and a Baptist church has existed here ever since 1702. The parish charities produce something more than £13 a year. Many of the inhabitants are employed in framework knitting. The township and the manor are jointly held by Miss A. M. Clarke and Mr. J. Tebby.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £5. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £119: patron, J. S. Sherwin, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. Mettam, 1820: contains 1,510 acres: 96 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 505: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 581: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,708: poor rates in 1837, £163. The great and small tithes were commuted in 1794.

ARNOLD, NOTTINGHAMSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Broxtow, union of Basford: 134½ miles from London (coach road 128), 4 from Nottingham, 10 from Mansfield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Nottingham, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 20 miles.---Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The inhabitants are almost entirely employed in framework knitting. Henry Sherbrooke, Esq., is lord of the manor. The Wesleyans, the Primitive Methodists, and the Baptists, have chapels here; there is a school, endowed with £22. 16s., for poor children; and the other charities connected with the parish produce £16. 16s. per annum. There are several daily schools unendowed.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 17s. 8d.: pres. net income, £310: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, G. F. Hobcombe, 1812: contains 4,670 acres: 812 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,509: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,185: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,276: poor rates in 1837, £1,047: tithes commuted in 1789.---W. 1 m. Red Hill Lodge: E. 1 m. Lambley Hall.

ARNSIDE, WESTMORELAND. See BRETHAM.

ARRAM, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Atwick---(which see for population returns, &c.): 221 miles from London (coach road 193), 11½ from Beverley, 2 from Hornsea.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to New Holland, 196, cross the Humber per steam-packet to Hull, 3 miles, from which take rail. to Lockington, 13, thence 9 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, Selby, Hull, Lockington, &c., 268 miles.---Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---S. ¼ m. Arram Hall.

ARRETON, HAMPSHIRE, a village and parish in East Medina liberty, Isle of Wight: 101 miles from London (coach road 83), 3 from Newport, 6 from Ryde.---Sou. West. Rail. to Gosport, 90, cross per steam-packet to Ryde, 5, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 233 miles; or through Birmingham, Gloucester, Reading, Gosport, &c., 237 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---There is a charity school here, founded in 1688, for the educating, maintaining, and apprenticing the poor children of the parish, by John Mann, Esq., with a revenue of £46 per annum, which is now absorbed by the National School Society. The income of the other charities of the parish produce about £30. 16s. per annum.---The living (St. George), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £21: pres. net income, £220: patron, J. Fleming, Esq.: pres. incumbent, James B. Snow, 1843: contains 8,270 acres: 334 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,964: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,258: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,091: poor rates in 1837, £1,275.---E. 1 m. Knighton House: W. 2 m. Standen House.

ARRINGTON (anciently, ERMINGTON), CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wetherley, union of Caxton and Arrington: 63 miles from London (coach road 49), 5 from Caxton, 11 from Cambridge.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Bishop-Stortford to Shelford, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough and Cambridge, 163, thence 11 miles.---Money orders issued at Caxton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The petty sessions for the division are held here.---The living (St. Nicholas), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 6s. 3d.: pres. net income, £69: patron, Trinity College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, S. B. Dowell, 1843: contains 1,388 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 317: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 365: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £998: poor rates in 1837, £65.---E. ¾ m. Wimpole Park, the seat of the Earl of Hardwicke, the most splendid private residence in the county of Cambridge. The mansion is a very spacious and imposing structure of brick, consisting of a centre erected by Sir Thomas Chicheley, and two wings which have been built since; that to the east communicating with the offices, and that on the west with a large green-house. The entrance is by a double flight of steps; and the interior, which is distinguished by much elegance, has, within about the last thirty years, been greatly improved by the noble proprietor, by throwing several apartments into one, and fitting it up as a state drawing-room.

The mansion contains an admirable and very judiciously selected collection of paintings, many of which are by the first masters; and in the library, which is a noble apartment, there is a very excellent assortment of the best literary productions, and many volumes of curious engravings. The room is adorned by portraits of several eminent writers, including Ben Jonson, Sir Isaac Newton, Pope, Dr. Barrow, Warburton, Dr. Clarke, and Lord Somers; but one which is particularly valuable, of Matthew Prior, who was a frequent visitor at Wimpole. In the private chapel there are various figures of the saints and pontiffs, and a striking altar-piece of the Nativity by Sir James Thornhill. Secured in the various apartments there is also an important collection of state papers. The grounds near the mansion have the disadvantage of being flat, but, through the agency of fine timber, sheets of water, well-disposed and ornamental buildings in appropriate situations, together with the winding stream of the Cam, several very beautiful effects are produced; and opposite the south front of the hall there is an avenue of noble forest trees, fully two miles and a half long. Before the beginning of the present century, the domain was much enlarged, and the gardens especially, improved by the late Earl of Hardwicke. The manor passed through the hands of the Beeches and the Avenells to the family of the Chicheleys, early in the reign of Henry VI. From the then holder, Henry Chicheley, Esq., it descended to Sir Thomas Chicheley, who was master of the ordnance, and one of the privy councillors of Charles II., during whose reign it became the property of Lady Saville, who sold it to Sir John Cutler. Through marriage with his daughter, Wimpole became the property of Lord Radnor, who, at the beginning of the last century, disposed of it to Harley, the first Earl of Oxford, and for a long time the celebrated prime minister of Queen Anne. Of him it was bought by Lord Chancellor Hardwicke, and from him descended to his great-grandson, the present owner. The originator of the family of Hardwicke was Mr. Simon Yorke, a merchant of good property at Dover, whose grandson, Philip Yorke, was called to the bar, and quickly attained such eminence in his profession, that, in 1720, at the early age of twenty-nine, he was made solicitor-general, and four years afterwards attorney-general, which office he held until 1733, when he was elevated to the bench as Lord Chief Justice of England, and Baron Hardwicke. In 1736, his lordship was advanced to the dignity of lord high chancellor, and received the additional titles of Viscount Royston and Earl of Hardwicke. In 1746, his lordship was appointed Lord High Steward of England, for the trials of the rebel peers who were out, in 1745, with the young Pretender. He was also appointed one of the lord justices for the administration of the kingdom, during the king's absence in his German dominions, in 1740, 1748, and 1752; and in 1749, the earl was unanimously chosen High Steward of the University of Cambridge. The second son of his lordship also became an eminent lawyer, having, like his father, filled the offices of solicitor and attorney-general, and of lord high chancellor, but died just as the patent of the barony of Morden was being made out for him. His son

Philip succeeded his uncle as third earl, and had himself a distinguished family: his eldest son, the Right Hon. Charles Philip, became one of the tellers of the exchequer, and was for some time first lord of the admiralty; and his second son, Joseph Sydney, attained the distinction of K.C.B., and was made a vice-admiral. The third son of the second earl, Sir Joseph Yorke, K.B., who was an aid-de-camp to the Duke of Cumberland at the battle of Fontenoy, attained to great distinction in the army, and was elevated to the peerage as Baron Dover, in 1788; and his brother, the fifth son, who took holy orders, became Bishop of Ely. The present earl is son of Vice-Admiral Sir Joseph Sydney, and has himself attained the rank of post-captain in the navy. He succeeded the late earl in the title and estates in 1834; is one of the counsellors of the Duchy of Lancaster, and Lord-lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of Cambridgeshire.

ARROW, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Woodchurch: 194½ miles from London (coach road 200), 6 from Great Neston, 5 from Liverpool. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Bebington, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 110½ miles. Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Contains 730 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 112: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 127: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £828: poor rates in 1837, £47. N. 2 m. Arrow House.

ARROW, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the hundred of Barlichway, union of Alcester, on the Arrow river. It includes the township of Arrow, with the hamlets of Oversley and Ragley: 143½ miles from London (coach road 103), 1 from Alcester, 8 from Stratford-on-Avon. Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Droitwich, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 72½ miles. Money orders issued at Alcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living (Holy Trinity), a rectory in the diocese of Worcester, having a pres. net income, £248; patron, Marquis of Hertford: pres. incumbent, H. C. Carleton, 1807: contains 4,220 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 543: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 629: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,787. Ragley Hall, the seat of the Marquis of Hertford, about two miles from Alcester, is a mansion having four fronts, three stories high, of very considerable beauty. It was built by Lord Conway, an ancestor of the present Marquis of Hertford, about the middle of the last century, but was afterwards much improved by Sir Jeoffrey Wyatville, the favourite architect of George IV., under whose superintendence the great alterations at Windsor Castle were executed. The mansion stands on a commanding elevation, and is surrounded by an extensive park of great natural advantages, being amply stored with noble oak trees, and having fine plantations judiciously disposed. There is also a large sheet of water, which very pleasingly varies the effect of the different views. The interior of the house presents a series of apartments furnished with superior taste, and excellently calculated for the purposes of either state or pleasure. The pictures, though scattered, are numerous and valuable, and such as will greatly interest any connoisseur of the fine arts. The entrance-hall is of large proportions, and embellished by some particularly good stucco work. Richard Ingram Seymour Conway, K.G., Marquis and Earl of Hertford, Earl of Yarmouth, Viscount Beauchamp of Hache, and Baron Conway of Ragley, Baron Conway of Killultagh, Antrim, Ireland, is a lineal descendant of the Great Protector, the Duke of Somerset, in the reign of Edward VI. In the last year of the reign of the youthful monarch, the attainder of the unfortunate duke, who lost his head chiefly through the cabals of the ambitious father-in-law of Lady Jane Grey, was reversed in favour of his grandson, who received the honour of knighthood for his conduct at the battle of Musselburgh. This advantage enabled Sir Edward Seymour, who was seated at Bury Pomeroy in the county of Devon, to inherit all the lands that might come to him by collateral descent after the attainder. Sir Edward, who was sheriff of the county in the 25th of Elizabeth, was succeeded by his eldest son, who was created a baronet in the year 1611. His grandson, the third baronet, who, like his father, sat for Devonshire in parliament, adhered, when the great struggle broke out between Charles I. and the House of Commons, to the cause of the king, and had his seat, Bury Castle, plundered and burnt to the ground, in consequence of his allegiance. He died in the year of William III.'s accession to the throne; and was succeeded by his son, another Sir Edward, who had long before that time made a distinguished figure in parliament, and is, indeed, described by Burnett, in his History of his own Times, as the ablest speaker of any man in the House, except those who had been bred to the law, and as the man of most weight of all his party. He served constantly from the time of his election to that of his death, having sat through four successive reigns. In 1667, he promoted the impeachment of Lord Clarendon, moved and carried it, and was leader of the deputation by which it was carried to the House of Lords. In 1672-3, he was unanimously chosen speaker of the House of Commons in the long parliament; was early in the following year sworn in of the privy council, and soon after made treasurer of the navy. He married the daughter of Sir W. Wall, knight, an alderman of the city of London. His eldest son, Popham Seymour, inherited, under the will of his cousin, the Earl of Conway, all his estates, and in consequence assumed the surname of Conway. He fell in a duel with Colonel Kirk in 1699, and dying unmarried, the whole of his property devolved upon his brother, Francis Seymour, Esq., who assumed the name and arms of Conway, and was, in March, 1702-3, raised to the peerage by the title of Lord Conway of Ragley. Part of his extensive estates lying in the north of Ireland, he was, in the course of the same year, created Baron Conway of Killultagh, county Antrim, but did not take his seat in the Irish house of peers until 1721. In 1727, he was made a privy councillor, and sworn in governor of Carrickfergus. He also married the daughter of an alderman of London, Sir John Shorter, who was lord mayor in 1688, and father-in-law of Sir Robert Walpole, afterwards first Earl of Orford. The eldest son, Francis, succeeded to the family honours; and the second son, Henry, commanded the British forces in Germany, under Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick, with much distinction, during the absence of the Marquis of Granby. General Seymour Conway was a man much distinguished in the fashionable and political world, and for some time filled the office of secretary of state for the northern department, being at the same time a privy councillor. Francis, the second baron, was, in 1750, created Viscount Beauchamp and Earl of Hertford, with remainder to the heirs male of his brother, General Conway. In 1757, his lordship was appointed Lord Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the county of Warwick, and in the same year installed a knight of the Garter. In 1765, when his brother, who had been in the previous year dismissed from his post of Groom of the Bedchamber, and all his military commands, for voting against the ministry on the subject of general warrants, was reinstated in his offices, the Earl of Hertford was appointed Viceroy of Ireland, and in the following year Chamberlain of the Household. In 1793, his lordship was advanced to the dignity of Earl of Yarmouth and Marquis of Hertford. He had thirteen children, the second and third sons, Henry and Robert, becoming joint Clerks of the Crown, &c., and King's Bench in Ireland; the fifth son became an admiral in the navy, and two other sons obtained great distinction in the army. The present Marquis succeeded to the titles and estates in 1842, on the death of his father, who was Warden of the Stannaries, and Chief-Steward and Vice-Admiral of the Duchy of Cornwall.

ARROW, WARWICKSHIRE, a township in the above parish—(which see for access and postal arrangements.)—Contains 2,560 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841 (including Ragley), 265: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 291: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,533: poor rates in 1837, £172.

ARROWTHORNE, NORTH RIDING, YORK.—See ANATHORNE.

ARLEY, BEDFORD.—See ARLEY.

ARTINGTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Addle, on the river Wharfe: 216½ miles from London (coach road 198), 5 from Otley, 7 from Leeds.—Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, Leeds, to Weston, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 84½ miles.—Money orders issued at Otley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—There was formerly a small priory of Benedictine nuns in this parish, which at the dissolution was granted to Cranmer, archbishop of Canterbury. No vestige of the building now remains, and the site is now occupied by a farm-house. Arthington Hall is placed on a fine elevation in the valley of the Wharfe.—Contains 1,780 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 410: probable pop. in 1849, 470: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,434: poor rates in 1837, £229.

ARTHINGWORTH, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Rothwell, union of Market-Harborough, on the river Line: 105½ miles from London (coach road 77), 5 from Market-Harborough, 4 from Rothwell.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Market-Harborough, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 72½ miles.—Money orders issued at Market-Harborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—There was a free school here with an endowment of £36 a year, but which is now incorporated with the National School Society. — The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £12. 2s. 8<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £323: patron, L. Rokeby, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. R. Rokeby, 1830: contains 2,030 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 242: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 278: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,830: poor rates in 1837, £163: the great and small tithes were both commuted in 1767.

ARTHURET, CUMBERLAND, a parish in Eskdale ward, union of Longtown, on the river Esk; it includes the townships of Longtown, Brakenhill, Lineside, and Netherby—(which see): 310<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 310), 1 from Longtown, 4 from Gretna Green. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Carlisle, to Mossband, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 226 miles. — Money orders issued at Longtown: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 6<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. — The country beyond, according to the compilers of the Magna Britannia, was always formerly called "Batable Land," or land always in dispute; and, in 1543, Sir Thomas Wharton, lord of the marches, defeated the Scotch under Oliver Sinclair, on Solom Moss, within the confines of the parish, while on one of their fiercest inroads. Archy Armstrong, the celebrated court jester of Charles I., died and was buried here in the churchyard, in 1672. Lady Widdrington, in 1754, left an endowment of £40 a year for the benefit of this and the adjoining parish of Kirk-Andrew, on which a considerable number of children are now regularly educated. — The living (St. Michael), a united rectory and vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £3. 2s. 1<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £687: patron, Sir J. R. G. Graham, Bart.: pres. incumbent, W. Graham, 1829: contains 17,390 acres: 594 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,859: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,287: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £10,644: poor rates in 1837, £765.

ARTINGTON (or ERTINDON), SURREY, a tithing in the parish of St. Nicholas, Guildford: 30 miles from London. — For access, &c., see GUILDFORD. — Contains 2,860 acres: 85 houses.

ARUNDEL, SUSSEX, a borough, market town, and parish in the rape and hund<sup>l</sup> of Arundel: 72<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 55), 10 from Shoreham, 9 from Chichester. — Sou. East. Rail. through Brighton, to Arundel station, thence 2<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 204<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. — The town is pleasantly situated on the banks of the river Arun, which is here navigable for vessels of as much as 200 tons burthen, and is enabled to communicate both with the river Thames and with Chichester harbour, by means of canals. It is by many archaeologists supposed to be the Portus Adurni of the Romans, and the name of the town is naturally believed to be derived from that of the river. The houses are generally well built, forming two streets, which meet at right angles. The principal business is in oak and timber, but a considerable quantity of oak bark, derived from the woods of Sussex and the neighbouring counties, is also shipped here. The town is a borough by prescription, and has been so since the time of Edward I., whence, up to the passing of the Reform Bill, it returned two members to parliament, being latterly considered a close borough of the Duke of Norfolk. It now only returns one, and the franchise is extended to all the inhabitants of the parish, but the borough is still one of the polling-places for the county. The old corporation received its charter from Elizabeth, and consisted of a mayor, twelve burgesses, and a steward, assisted by other officers; but by the Municipal Corporation Act, lately passed, it now comprises a mayor, four aldermen, and twelve councillors, the income arising from rents being something short of £300 a year. The church, which was formerly collegiate, is a fine structure in the form of a cross, with a low tower at the intersection, and contains many of the remains of the former lords of Arundel, a family which has continued more directly noble under the same titles since the Conquest than any other in England. According to Tanner, Roger de Montgomery, who came over with the Conqueror, and was by him enriched with no less than twenty-seven manors in the county of Sussex, and was by him also created Earl of Arundel, founded a Benedictine monastery, subject to the house of Martin St. Sagio, or St. Sees, in Normandy; and it appears very probable that his descendant, Roger de Belesme, gave the church of St. Nicholas to the same institution, there being at that time a cell of five black monks subject to the monastery of Sees, and which so continued till Henry V., who, during his French wars, with a strong arm severed everything like foreign domination on this side of the channel. In the latter end of the reign of Edward III., Richard Earl of Arundel obtained license to found a larger chauntry in the chapel of the castle, and, in 1375, endowed it with 1000 marks yearly. His son, Richard, obtained leave of the king, with the consent of the principal and other members of the monastery of Sees, to extinguish the priory, and with the revenues of it to constitute St. Nicholas a collegiate church, with twelve secular canons, priests, and other officers, for whose maintenance all the lands and tithes were appropriated. After this change, it was termed the college of the Holy Trinity; and in the 26th of Henry VIII., was in possession of a yearly revenue of £168. 0s. 7<sup>d</sup>. per annum, which, after the dissolution of the religious institutions, was granted to Henry Earl of Arundel. The castle, which is the principal residence of the Dukes of Norfolk, stands on a bold height on the north-east side of the town, overlooking the river Arun. The older part of the structure was erected on the site of one built by Roger de Montgomery, and was, in the reign of Henry I., besieged and stormed when held by Robert de Belesme, who had taken part with Robert of Normandy, the rebellious brother of the king. Henry settled it on his queen, Adeliza, who, after the king's death, married William de Albini, one of the most accomplished men of his time. The first mention of Arundel and its castle is contained in the will of King Alfred, who bequeathed it to his nephew Athelm. After being held long by several royal and noble families, it became the property of the Fitz-Alans, from whom it descended through marriage with Mary, daughter and heiress of Henry Fitz-Alan, the twenty-second earl, to the Howards, Duke of Norfolk. By an act of parliament of the 2d Henry VI., the possession of this castle confers, without patent, the title of Earl on the owner. The castle had for a long time been in ruins, but Charles, Duke of Norfolk, having determined to make it his principal residence, repaired and almost entirely rebuilt it, and it is now one of the finest mansions in the country. The foundation is a steep circular knoll, partly natural and partly artificial, and from the summit there is a commanding view of the Isle of Wight. Towards the coast the ground is flat, and it is supposed that the sea formerly washed the walls of the castle, as several anchors and other marine implements have been dug up close to the site. The park, which is beautifully wooded, is very extensive, and abounds in a variety of picturesque scenery. There is little doubt but that the origin of the house of Howard is of the highest antiquity; and Dugdale, who is generally sufficiently cautious in what he says, thus speaks of it:—There are those perhaps who will expect that I should ascend much higher in manifesting the greatness of this honourable and large spreading house of Howard, in regard I do not make any mention thereof above the time of Edward I., some supposing that their common ancestor in the Saxon time took his original appellation from an ancient office or command; others, afterwards, from the name of a place. And some have not stuck to derive him from the famous Hereward, the chief conductor of those forces which so stoutly defended the Isle of Ely for a time against William the Conqueror and his army. But to this last I cannot well assert, by reason that Ingulph, then abbot of Crowland, who was his contemporary, affirms that Hereward left no other issue than an heir female, Turfrida, wife to Hugh de Evermuc, lord of Deeping, county of Lincoln. I shall therefore, after much fruitless search to satisfy myself as well as others on this point, begin with William Howard, a learned and reverend judge of the Court of Common Pleas, for a great part of the reign of Edward I., and beginning of that of Edward II. How William Howard attained the distinguished position of Chief Justice of Common Pleas is not clear; but it is singular to remark how much the administration of justice has, oftener than any other avocation, led to nobility in England. His son, by a natural introduction, became one of the gentlemen of the bedchamber of Edward I.; and his son again, Sir John Howard, was, by Edward III., made admiral and captain of the king's navy in the north. He married the daughter and heir of Sir Robert de Bois of Farsfield, in Norfolk, by which the whole of his extensive property came into the Howard family. His successor and grandson was sheriff of the counties of Essex and Hertford, during the reigns of Henry IV. and Henry V. The eldest son of this last knight died in the Holy Land, and his second son, Sir Robert Howard, married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, and grand-daughter and heir of Richard Fitz-Alan, Earl of Arundel, and cousin and coheir of John Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk. By this marriage the inheritance of these great families became partly invested in the house of Howard. Thomas Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, was son and heir of John, Lord Mowbray, by Elizabeth, daughter and heir of John, Lord Seagrave, and of his wife, Margaret Plantagenet, daughter and heir of Thomas Plantagenet, surnamed de Brotherton, created Earl of Norfolk and Marshal of England, and who was the eldest son of Edward I., by his second wife, Margaret, daughter of Philip the Hardy, King of France. Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, had, in 1385-6, been invested with the title of Earl-Marshal of England, all his predecessors having been simply styled "Marshal." Sir John Howard, son of Sir Robert, was a close adherent to the house of York, and remarkable alike for the magnificence of his estate and fortune, and for the high offices which he held. In 1470, he was summoned to parliament by the title of Lord Howard, was made commander-in-chief of all the king's naval forces, for resisting the Lancastrians, then rallying under the Earl of Warwick and the Duke of Clarence, and in the following year he was constituted deputy-governor of Calais, and the marches adjacent. He did not, however, long enjoy these advantages, for the next year he accompanied his master, Richard III., to the field of Bosworth, and notwithstanding the celebrated and friendly warning which was posted on his tent during the night before the battle, of "Jockey of Norfolk, be not too bold,

For Dickon, thy master, is bought and sold,"

he entered into the fight, and paid the penalty of his fidelity with his life, being one of the slain on that well-contested day. On the 7th November, 1485, he was, although dead, attainted, and all his honours were forfeited. In this attainder, Thomas, Earl of Surrey, was included; but, after a three years' imprisonment, was restored, and created Duke of Norfolk in 1514, installed a Knight of the Garter, and made Lord Treasurer. The reward, however, was not without reason, for it was under him that, in 1513, the Scots received that terrible overthrow at Flodden Field, which for ever put an end to their formidable incursions on the English territory. His son Thomas succeeded him, and became a distinguished noble at court, as third duke, and renowned especially as father of the gallant, the generous, and learned Earl of Surrey, whose name will ever be dear to every right-minded Englishman, for the sake of its lofty and noble-minded owner, whose verses were one of the chief means of giving a polish to the then transitory tongue of his native land. Both father and son were condemned to the block by Henry VIII.; and the latter underwent the sentence, but the former was saved by the timely death of the execrable tyrant, and was, in 1553, restored to his honours. An attainder of the fourth duke occurred in the reign of Elizabeth, but James I. shortly after his accession, restored the greater part of his titles, and many of the estates; and he was created hereditary Earl-Marshal of England in 1621, and Earl of Norfolk in 1644; and in 1664, his grandson, Thomas Howard, was restored to the dukedom, with all the dignities and advantages enjoyed by the first duke, and from him the title has come down to the present noble possessor of its position and appendages, after nothing more than the usual deviations from direct descent into collateral branches of the family, so common in a long pedigree. — The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £5. 0s. 10d.: pres. net income, £199: patron, Duchess of Norfolk:

pres. incumbent, A. F. Hart, 1844: contains 1,830 acres: 517 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,624: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,018: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,855: poor rates in 1837, £1,061. — S. 1½ m. from Arundel is Badworth Park; and E. 2 m. Angmering Park. — Market day, Tuesday. Fairs, 2d Tuesday of every month for cattle; May 14, Aug. 21, Sept. 25, for cattle and sheep; Dec. 17, for cattle and pedlery. — Bankers, Branch of London and Joint Stock Banking Company—draw on Head Office, 21 Lombard Street, London; Henry Upperton & Co.—draw on Lubbock & Co.

ARVANS (Str.), MONMOUTH, a parish partly in the upper division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Caldicott, partly in that of Ragland, union of Chepstow, on the river Wye: 124½ miles from London (coach road 138), 3 from Chepstow, 3 from Tintern Abbey. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 21 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, 94, thence 25 miles. — Money orders issued at Chepstow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There are here the remains of two ancient chapels. The hamlet of Portcassies is included in this parish. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £53: patron, Duke of Beaufort: pres. incumbent, — Creswell, 1844: contains 2,840 acres: 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 354: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 407: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,336: poor rates in 1837, £185.

ASAPH (Str.) (or LLAN-ELWY), FLINT, a parish partly in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Isdulas and Yale, county of Denbigh, but mostly in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Rhuddlan, county of Flint. It includes the city of St. Asaph, and the townships of Bodeugan, Cilowen, Gwernyngron, Talar, Faenol, Bodlewyyddan, Pengwynn, Brynopolyn, Gwernglefryd, Cyrchynen, and Rhyl-lon, in Flintshire; and those of Meriadog and Wigfair, in the county of Denbigh: 212½ miles from London (coach road 220), 5½ from Denbigh, 6 from Abergelle. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Chester, to Rhyl, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 128 miles. — Money orders issued at Denbigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — Contains 638 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,338: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,690: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £8,792: poor rates in 1837, £1,720.

ASAPH (Str.), FLINT, a city in the above parish. — The place, though small, receives the appellation of a city, from being the seat of the episcopal see of St. Asaph, and bears to a certain extent an imposing air to the approaching traveller; for although few of the houses are of a superior order, and the diocesan church is but a plain architectural structure, yet the town, being placed on the side of a pleasing elevation, the summit of which is crowned by the cathedral, and being situated between the two rivers Clwyd and Elwy—the former flowing on the eastern and the latter on the western side of the town—there being handsome bridges over both, and the contiguous country being well timbered, there are many features to induce admiration and respect. From its being situated on the river last named, the original name of St. Asaph was Llan Elwy; and it is conjectured, from the hill on which it is built being called Bryn Paulin, that this was a station of the Roman general Paulinus, when he was on his way to subdue the people of Mona. Cyndeyrn Garthwys ap Owain, better known in North Britain under the name of Kentigern, who was bishop of Glasgow and primate of Scotland, being driven from his see by the persecution of the pagan prince of that district, fled to this part of the country for refuge, and was taken under protection by Cadwallon, prince of Wales, who assigned him this pleasant spot between the two rivers as a residence; and here, about the year 560, he built the church of Llan Elwy, and also founded a college for devotion and religious instruction, upon the plan of that at Bangor Iscoed. This institution flourished to such an extent under his presidency, that it is said to have been attended by as many as nine hundred and sixty monks. The persecution having ceased in his native country, Garthwys was recalled to his original charge; and on retiring from Wales, he nominated a pious scholar, called Asa or Asaph, to be his successor, and from him both the place and the church have derived their present appellation. About the middle of the 12th century, a priest named Gilbertson was appointed to the see; and he was succeeded by the celebrated historian, Geoffrey of Monmouth. (See ARNEDON.) Whether Kentigern erected the district into a see is uncertain, but that either he or Asaph did so, is decidedly evident from the latter being denominated, in ancient writings, Episcopus Asaphensis. He died in 596, and was buried in his own cathedral. From 1573 to 1600, the see was held by Bishop Hughes, a descendant from the tribe of Marchand, who founded a free grammar-school in the town. His successor was the learned William Morgan, a prelate who was chiefly instrumental in procuring the translation of the Bible into Welsh. He had also a share in the edition of the translation called Queen Elizabeth's Bible. Dr. Barrow, who suffered much persecution during the civil war and the protectorate, was another distinguished prelate of this see. On the restoration of Charles II. he was made Bishop of Sodor and Man, where he was of great public benefit; and on his translation to the see of St. Asaph, exhibited the same munificent spirit, both in repairing the cathedral and in founding almshouses, besides several other works of charity. He was the instructor of his nephew, the celebrated Dr. Isaac Barrow, the forcible and ingenious divine who was the tutor of Sir Isaac Newton, and whose works will be admired as long as genuine English remains and sterling eloquence shall be esteemed. Dr. Beveridge, who was preferred to St. Asaph in 1704, displayed, in early life, the extent of his talents by an unusual attainment of oriental languages: his "Private Thoughts" will not fail to be read so long as a spark of devotion remains in the land. The church of St. Asaph was originally built of wood, and after being destroyed a second time by fire in 1402, remained for nearly eighty years in ruins, till Bishop Redman built the present structure entirely of stone. The archdeaconry has been added to the see in commendam. There are few monuments of any great interest. The episcopal palace, which was long almost unfitted for a residence, was greatly improved and enlarged by the late Bishop Lewis Bagot. The spiritual corporation is to consist of a dean and four canons, and there are also four vicars-choral, who are incumbents of St. Asaph. The diocese includes portions of the counties of Flint, Denbigh, Montgomery, Merioneth, and Salop, having 131 churches and chapels in 121 parishes. Besides the free grammar-school, there are several other schools, both commercial and charitable; and the charities in the parish have an income of about £106 a year. Not far from the town there are still traces of the camp of Paulinus. The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph: pres. net income, £179: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbents, W. H. Owen, 1827; T. W. Edwards, 1828; J. Jones, 1828; W. R. Wyatt: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,752: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,164. Market day, Saturday. Fairs, Easter-Tuesday, July 15, Aug. 19, Oct. 16, Nov. 2, Dec. 26, for cattle.

ASBY (or, as it was formerly written and pronounced, ASHEBY, and still more anciently, ASHEBY), WESTMORELAND, a parish in East Ward, union of East Ward, including the townships of Asby, Coatsforth, Little Asby, and Asby-Winderworth: 270 miles from London (coach road 273), 5 from Appleby, 5 from Orton. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Preston, to Tebay, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 186 miles. Money orders issued at Appleby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 1 p.m. George Smith, merchant-tailor and citizen of London, built and endowed a school-house in 1688, to which Dr. Smith, a native of the parish, and then Bishop of Carlisle, contributed £100. The revenue of the school, which is now incorporated with the National Society, amounts to £60. 6s. per annum. There is also an almshouse, founded in 1812, for poor widows. The parish is mountainous, and there are both a copper mine and a stone quarry within its boundaries. About a quarter of a mile from Great Asby, there is an extensive cavern, called Pate Hole, the main gallery of which is 1,200 feet long. The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £25. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £205: patron, Sir F. F. Vane, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. Guy, 1834: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 407: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 468.

ASCOTE (CHAPEL), WARWICKSHIRE, an extra-parochial hamlet in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow: 83½ miles from London (coach road 82), 2 from Southam, 9 from Warwick. Nor. West. Rail. to Weedon, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Weedon, &c., 76½ miles. Money orders issued at Southam: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 18: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 22: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1200.

ASCOTT, OXFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Great Milton: 55½ miles from London (coach road 51), 5 from Bensington, 5 from Wallingford. Gt. West. Rail. to Wallingford Road, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Didcot, 154, thence 8 miles. Money orders issued at Wallingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Contains 370 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 112: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 127: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £963: poor rates in 1837, £79.

ASCOTT-UNDER-WYCHWOOD, OXFORD, a parochial chapelry in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chadlington, union of Chipping-Norton: 78 miles from London (coach road 51), 6 from Burford, 6 from Chipping-Norton. Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Oxford, &c., 179 miles. Money orders issued at Burford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. The charities to the poor of this parish produce £44. 18s. per annum. The living (Holy Trinity), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £8. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £55: patron, Vicar of Shipton: pres. incumbent, W. Williams, 1826: contains 2,540 acres: 85 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 463: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 532: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,995: poor rates in 1837, £190.

ASENBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Topcliffe: 342 miles from London (coach road 212), 5½ from Boroughbridge, 6 from Ripon. Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, York, to Sessay, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 210 miles. Money orders issued at Boroughbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Four boys from this township are entitled to be educated in Topcliffe grammar-school. Contains 800 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 265: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 300: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,481: poor rates in 1837, £78.

ASFORDBY, LEICESTERSHIRE. See ASHFORDBY.

ASGARBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Aswardhurn, parts of Kesteven: 145½ miles from London (coach road 114), 3 from Sleaford, 10 from Tattershall. East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Boston, thence 12½ miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, &c., 113½ miles. Money orders issued at Sleaford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage united to the rectory of Kirkby-Laythorpe, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, having a joint pres. net income, £287: patron, Marquis of Bristol: pres. incumbent, H. Ashington, 1844: contains 1,150 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 77: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 88: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £977: poor rates in 1837, £30.

ASGARBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in Bolingbroke-Soke West, parts of Lindsey, union of Sleaford: 161½ miles from London (coach road 138), 6 from Spilsby, 6 from Horncastle. East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Boston, to Burgh, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Boston, &c., 110½ miles. Money orders issued at Spilsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. The living (St. Swithin), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £14. 8s.: pres. net income, £55: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: contains 1,590 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 131: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 151: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £946: poor rates in 1837, £145.

ASH, DERBY, a hamlet in the parish of Sutton-on-the-Hill—(which see for access and postal): 130 miles from London, 7 from Derby, 11 from Uttoxeter. Contains 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 58: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 65.

ASH, DEVON, a hamlet in the parish of Trowley—(which see for returns, access, and postal): 148 miles from London, 2 from Colyton, 4 from Lyme-Regis. The mansion-house here was the birth-place, in 1650, of John Churchill, afterwards Duke of Marlborough, a general whose uniform success is only equalled by that of the Duke of Wellington; and who was the first man that, by his daring and generalship, gave to the British army, since the time of Henry V., the fame of being, like the navy, the first in the world.

ASH (near SANDWICH), KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wingham, lathe of St. Augustine, union of Eastry: 101 miles from London (coach road 65), 3 from Sandwich, 3 from Wingham. — Sou. East. Rail. through Reigate, Canterbury, to Sandwich, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 233 miles. — Money orders issued at Sandwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — A school, in which a considerable number of children are educated, was endowed here by Eleanor and Anne Cartwright in 1721; and school-house residences for master and mistress were given in 1818, by Mrs. Elizabeth Godfrey, and on her death a sufficient sum bequeathed to keep the premises in good repair. The salaries of the master and mistress exceed £60 a year. The ruins of the fortress called Richborough Castle are in this parish, the remains of which consist of a wall 200 feet in length, varying from 10 to 30 feet in height, and 12 feet in thickness, and enclosing an area of about five acres in extent. The remains are situated on the spur of a bold outlet of high land, which overlooks a flat space of half-marshy ground, which has evidently at one time been the bed of the sea. Near them is the site held by the Romans, called Portus Rutupensis. Many relics of antiquity have been dug up in the neighbourhood. It appears to have been founded, and to a considerable extent established, by Caesar's army, in which there was a traditionary belief of the roughness of the seas, and the danger of what, from this place, were called the Rutupian shores, many a detachment having been wrecked, and many entirely lost, on the coast. From hence, says Camden, was the most usual passage into Britain, and the Roman fleets made this port. Lupicinus, sent by Constantius into Britain to check the incursions of the Scots and Picts, here landed his companies of Heruli, Bactari, and Masici. Theodosius also, father of the emperor of that name, to whom the senate voted equestrian statues for restoring tranquillity in Britain, landed here with his cohorts. The general impression, indeed, among antiquaries is, that the extremity of the point of land on which Richborough stands was once an island, entirely encompassed by the sea; and, according to Mr. Boys, in digging a few years ago, to lay the foundation of Richborough sluice, the workmen, after digging through what was formerly the muddy bed of the river, that runs close by in a more contracted channel, came to a regular sandy sea-shore that had been suddenly covered with silt, on which lay broken and entire shells, oysters, sea weeds, the pures of the thornback, a shoe, and some small human bones. The period when Rutupium, which is mentioned by Pliny as one of the three principal cities of Kent, was deserted by the sea, was, most probably, between the fourth and sixth centuries; for about that time the name of Sandwich, which is now on the outskirts of the marsh, begins to appear in ancient writings: Upon the whole, it may be said, those of Richborough are the clearest remains of a Roman fortress of any in Britain. Ash is a noted district for the growth of hops. The river Stour is navigable here, and is crossed by two ferries. — The living (St. Nicholas), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £147, of which £95 are a charge upon the lessees of the tithes commuted for £3,333, the rest arising from the rent of four acres of land and a grant from Queen Anne's Bounty Fund: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, Edward Penny, 1842: contains 6,940 acres: 388 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,077: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,388: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £15,640: poor rates in 1837, £1,532. — W. 1½ m. is Grove Park. — Fairs, April 6, and October 11, for pedlery.

ASH (next RIDLEY), KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Axton, Dartford, and Wilmington, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone, union of Dartford: 20 miles from London, 4 from Wrotham, 4 from Farningham. — Steam-packet to Gravesend, thence 8 miles; (when railway is completed, for which an act has been obtained, and the works are fast progressing, there will be a station at Dartford, which is 9 miles from Ash): from Derby, through London, and as above, 152 miles. — Money orders issued at Seven Oaks: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — A free school was endowed here in 1735, with a revenue of £28. 10s. per annum, by the Rev. Samuel Attwood. There is also a school for girls; but both institutions are now incorporated with the National Society. — The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £19. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £376: patron, W. Lambard, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. Salwey, 1840: contains 2,930 acres: 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 663: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 762: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,297: poor rates in 1837, £385.

ASH, SURREY, a parish, including the tithing of Normandy, partly in the first division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Godley, and partly in the first division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Woking: 36 miles from London (coach road 35), 4 from Farnham, 9 from Bagshot. — Sou. West. Rail. through Guildford to Ash: from Derby, through London, and as above, 168 miles. — Money orders issued at Farnham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.; post closes 4½ p.m. — The Basingstoke Canal, after running south to near the village, turns westward, and enters Hampshire. The parochial endowed charities produce about £15. 15s. per annum. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, diocese of Winchester, is valued at £15. 18s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £473: patron, Winchester College: pres. incumbent, G. Heathcote, 1838: contains 12,650 acres: 388 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,236: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,571: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,287: poor rates in 1837, with Normandy, £307. — S. 2 m. is Poyle Park.

ASH (or ASHE), HAMTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Overton, Kings-clere division, union of Whitchurch: 55 miles from London (coach road 53), 2 from Overton, 5 from Whitchurch. — Sou. West. Rail. to Basingstoke, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 187 miles. — Money orders issued at Overton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (Holy Trinity), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £9.: pres. net income, £350: patron, W. H. Beach, Esq.: contains 2,310 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 160: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 184: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,877: poor rates in 1837, £276.---S. 1 m. is Ashe Park; E. 2 m. Oakley Park, the seat of William Beach, Esq., who has also another residence, Keevil House, in Wiltshire. Mr. Beach is nephew of the late Sir W. Hicks, uncle to the present baronet, Sir M. H. H. Beach, and second son of the late Michael Hicks, Esq. of Beverstone Castle, who, upon his marriage with Henrietta Maria, daughter of William Beach of Netheravon, assumed the additional name of Beach. The present proprietor dropped his original name of Hicks in 1838, by sign manual. The family were originally settled at Warminster, in Wilts, in the time of Elizabeth.

ASHAMPSTEAD, BERKS, a chapelry in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Moreton, union of Bradfield: 46½ miles from London (coach road 49), 9 from Newbury, 5 from East Ilsley.---Gt. West. Rail. to Pangbourne, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 178½ miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---A Baptist church was founded here in 1835.---The living (St. Clement), a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Basildon, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, and diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford: pres. net income, £78: patron, Rev. W. Sykes, and Simeon's Trust: pres. incumbent, John Holding, 1847: contains 2,380 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 465: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,297: poor rates in 1837, £155.---E. 1 m. Basildon Park, the seat of Sir F. W. Sykes, Bart. The mansion is a fine structure, most elegantly furnished, and is well placed in an extensive park, well stocked with deer, and commands several noble prospects of the surrounding country, enlivened by the windings of the river Thames, which here divides the county from Oxfordshire. The family of Sykes is of very considerable antiquity in Yorkshire and Cumberland; but the baronetcy was not created till 1781, when the title was granted to Sir Francis Sykes, who was chief governor of Cosimbussar in Bengal, where he amassed a considerable fortune; and who, on his return to England, erected the present mansion, which is built entirely of stone, with a centre and two wings. The wings are occupied as domestic offices; but the stables and coach-houses are at some distance from the mansion, and are judiciously concealed by a plantation. The grand saloon, which was painted by T. De Bryin in imitation of relief, is particularly striking. The present baronet, Sir Francis William Sykes, succeeded to the title and estates in 1843. The rides over the several lofty hills in the neighbourhood, are some of the most delightful in all Berkshire. S. 2 m. from Ashampstead is Yattendon House.

ASHAMSTEAD, OXON. See LEWKNOR.

ASH-BOCKING (or ASHBOCKEN), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Bosmere and Claydon: 78 miles from London (coach road 75), 6 from Needham, 6 from Ipswich.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Claydon, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 210 miles.---There is a National School here.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £9. 18s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £333: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. G. Pless, 1833: contains 750 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 321: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 369: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,646: poor rates in 1837, £257.---W. 2 m. Coddensham Hall.

ASHBOURNE, DERBY, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Appletree, partly in that of Morleston and Litchurch, but chiefly in that of Wirksworth. In the hun<sup>d</sup> of Appletree, it comprises the townships of Hulland, and Hulland-ward-Intacks, with the hamlets of Sturston, Hulland-ward, and Yeldersley; in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Morleston and Litchurch, the township of Clifton, with Compton; and in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirksworth, the town of Ashbourne, the chapelry of Alsop-le-Dale, with Eaton, and the liberties of Newton-Grange, and Offcoat, with Underwood. 145½ miles from London, 11 from Belper, 9½ from Wirksworth.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, thence 13½ miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8.45 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The living (St. Oswald), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield, in connection with the rectory of Mapleton St. Mary, is valued at £5. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income £184: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, Samuel Shipley, 1806: contains 12,800 acres: 1,003 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,936: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,676: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £25,906.

ASHBOURNE (ASHBURN, or ASHBORNE), a market town on the confines of Derbyshire, in the parish of Ashbourne---(which see for access and postal.)---Ashbourne is situated about 1½ miles east of the river Dove, over which there is a stone bridge, and is not far from the celebrated Dove Dale, the romantic scenery of which attracts many visitors, and is unsurpassed, even in Derbyshire. The houses are chiefly built of red brick, and are covered with slate, the streets being tolerably neat, and the supply of water good. The neighbourhood being a grazing country, there is a considerable export of malt and cheese to the manufacturing districts; but several of the inhabitants are employed in the working of cotton, and the manufacture of tambour lace; and there is a cotton-mill in the town, in which, a few years ago, as many as 200 hands were employed. There are several news-rooms and libraries in the town, which are very fairly supported. The Baptists, the Wesleyan Methodists, and the followers of Lady Huntingdon, have chapels in Ashbourne. The free grammar-school was founded about 1585, by Sir Thomas Cockaigne and others, and endowed with £240 a year, two-thirds of which is appropriated to the chief master, who has a house to live in provided, and the other third to the usher, who has also a residence allowed. There is a preparatory English school for the boys of the town, until they are fit to enter the grammar-school; also, a school for 30 girls under twelve years of age; almshouses for ten poor persons in the parish; and almshouses also for the widows of four Protestant clergymen. In 1610, eight other almshouses were founded, which were endowed by subsequent benefactions.

In 1668, six other almshouses were endowed, with an estate left by Mr. Jeremiah Pole; and six others by Mr. John Cooper, who built the Huntingdon chapel; so that there are few places in the country so admirably provided with charitable bequests, according to its size, as Ashbourne. Besides the schools just named, there are several daily schools. A neat stone edifice has lately been erected in Church-street for the Savings Bank; and a new jail, or lock-up, was erected in Back-lane in 1844, with four cells, and a residence for the superintendent constable. The streets are only partially paved; but the town is well lighted with gas. Ashbourne was a royal demesne at the time of the Conquest, and appears in Domesday-book under the name of Esseburna. The church, which is a fine building, was dedicated, in 1204, to St. Oswald, by Hugh de Patishull, Bishop of Coventry, and was probably built on the site of one of still greater antiquity. The chancel is used as the burial-place of the Boothby family, and there is one monument, among others that are interesting, particularly worthy of notice. It is an exquisite production from the hand of Bankes, and is dedicated to the memory of Penelope, the only daughter of Sir Brook Boothby, Bart., a most pleasing child, who died when about six years of age. The figure is of white marble, and represents a girl, with drapery agreeably disposed, lying upon her side, sleeping in all the placitude of innocence; and is known from a statement made to the late Sir W. Boothby by that great artist, to have suggested to Chantrey that most pleasing of all his works, the monument of the two children in Lichfield cathedral. In 1845 the churchyard was enlarged, and the church thoroughly repaired, under the directions of the late eminent architect, Cottingham, through the auspices and exertions of the late baronet, and without whose exertions this beautiful church must have remained in a state of comparative ruin. In 1644, a battle was fought in the neighbourhood of Ashbourne between the royalists and the parliamentarians, in which the former were defeated. In 1745, Charles Edward Stuart, with the Dukes of Athol and Perth, took his residence for the night at the manor-house, expelling, during their stay, the family of Boothby, the proprietors. Compton Brook separates Ashbourne from Clifton parish, although Compton forms part of Clifton and Newton Grange. Offcote and Underwood, Sturston and Geldersley, are included in the suburbs. The town is not incorporated; but, by a recent act of parliament, the several powers are vested in the various parochial officers, under the governance of the county magistrates, who meet here every Saturday morning. The scenery in the neighbourhood is very beautiful. Not far from the town is the cottage inhabited by Moore when writing his Lalla Rookh; and several of Congreve's letters are dated from here. The manor belongs to Sir Brooke W. B. Boothby, Bart., whose family claim their origin as far back as from Saxon times; and, according to Dugdale and Camden, the hundred and wapentake of Boothby, Boothby Pargnell, a market town, and a gentleman's old seat, called Boothby, were denominated from one Boothby, who there inhabited. In the wars of the Roses the family took the Lancasterian side, and Sir Theobaldus Boothby defended Pontefract Castle with great intrepidity for some time. A descendant of his, Henry Boothby, Esq., was created a baronet in November, 1644. The present baronet succeeded to the title and estates in 1846. Ashbourne is an excellent centre for the tourist who wishes to enjoy the beauties of Derbyshire. At the distance of thirteen miles is Haddon, the ancient seat of Sir John Manners, ancestor of the Duke of Rutland, with all its old baronial interest. At the distance of seventeen miles is Chatsworth, with its ducal magnificence and noble park. Nine miles off is Kedleston, the seat of Lord Scarsdale. At Tissington, a neighbouring village, there is still a curious custom in existence, of dressing, on Holy Thursday, five stone wells, which have remarkably pure water, with flowers formed into the shape of texts of Scripture. At Walton Hall, the seat of W. Davenport Bromley, Esq., about six miles from Ashbourne, Rosseau spent the chief part of his time while in England; and in Ham Church, about four miles distant, there is one of Chantrey's finest works, a monument to the late Mr. Watts. Ham Hall, the seat of Jesse Watts Russell, Esq., is a beautiful place close to Dove Dale, which is visited by all who travel in the neighbourhood. Added to these objects of interest, there is the beautiful valley of the Dove, which stretches from here to Uttoxeter. — Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,581: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,960: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,988: poor rates in 1837, £631. — Polling-place for the south division of the county. — Market day, Saturday. Fairs, first Tuesday in January, Feb. 13, April 3, May 21, July 5, Aug. 16, Oct. 20, Nov. 29, for horses and cattle. Bankers, Burton, Uttoxeter, and Ashbourne Union Banking Company—draw on Roberts, Curtis, & Co. — N. 2 m. from Ashbourne, is Sandy Brook Hall, the seat of Sir Matthew Blackiston, Bart. The family of Blackiston is originally from the palatinate of Durham, and appear to have had two baronetcies formerly conferred upon them. The founder of the present branch of the family was Sir M. Blackiston, an eminent merchant of the city of London, who filled the mayoralty in 1760, and was created a baronet three years afterwards. The present baronet succeeded to the title and property in 1806.

ASHBRITTLE (West), SOMERSETSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Milverton, division of Wellington, union of Battle, and includes the tithing of Greenham: 176 miles from London (coach road 154), 6 from Wellington, 10 from Dulverton. — Gt. West. Rail. to Wellington, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Wellington, &c., 190 miles. — Money orders issued at Wellington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Taunton, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £19. 3s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, J. Quick, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Turner, 1829: contains 2,460 acres: 113 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 540: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 621: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,816: poor rates in 1837, £202. — Fairs, last Monday in Feb., and third Monday in Oct., for cattle. — E. 2 m. Trunlett House.

ASHBURNHAM, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Foxearle, rape of Hastings, union of Battle: 75 miles from London (coach road 55), 6 from Battle, 6 from Hailsham. — Sou. East. Rail. through Reigate and Lewes to Hailsham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 207 miles. — Money orders issued at Battle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — There is an almshouse here, founded by one of the Ashburnham family, for the support of six poor widows. The village was owned by the Ashburnham family before the Conquest, gives them their name and title, and the Earl of Ashburnham is still lord of the manor. In the church are preserved the shirt, stained with some drops of his blood, and silk-knit drawers, which Charles I. wore when he was executed. They were given to Mr. John Ashburnham, together with his watch, and the sheet that was thrown over the body on the scaffold; and were bequeathed by Bertram Ashburnham, Esq., in 1743, one of his descendants, to the clerk of the parish and his successors, for ever. There are, in the chancel of the church, some magnificent monuments to various members of the family. — The living (St. James), a vicarage with the rectory of Penshurst united, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £8. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £307: patron, Earl of Ashburnham: pres. incumbent, J. R. Munn, 1840: contains 4,280 acres: 106 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 790: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 909: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,593: poor rates in 1837, £278. — Ashburnham House, the principal seat of the Earl of Ashburnham, though situated rather low, still commands fine views of Beachy Head and Pevensey Bay. The mansion is spacious and of modern erection, and contains some good pictures by Vandyke, Lely, and other masters. About thirty years ago, it underwent a thorough repair, and is now, on many accounts, well worthy of the attention of the tourist. The park is capacious, very finely timbered, and well stocked with deer, features which give the place, usually termed Ashburnham Place, a very noble air. The family is very ancient, being stated by Fuller to be "of stupendous antiquity." The Doomsday-book mentions Piers, Lord of Esburnham, as in existence during the reign of Edward the Confessor; and at the period of the invasion, it appears that Bertram de Esburnham was sheriff of Sussex, Surrey, and Kent. The first of the family of any particular note after the Conquest was John Ashburnham, who was sheriff of Surrey and Sussex, under Richard II. and Henry IV., and who for some time represented the latter county in parliament, an office which was held by several of his descendants. In the first civil war, William Ashburnham, then the principal of the family, espoused the cause of the king, and was one of the first to take up arms in behalf of his sovereign, and was appointed governor of Weymouth, and major-general of the forces in the west. His brother John was a groom of the bedchamber to Charles, and attended him in his escape from Hampton Court to the Isle of Wight; but, unfortunately, yielding to an erroneous impression, conducted him to Colonel Hammond, the governor of the island, in the parliamentary interest, by whom he was again rendered into custody. The continued affection of the king, as indicated by the fact alluded to above, as also the testimony of Lord Clarendon, who says of him, that "he was a person of unblemished honour and veracity, and had not any temptation," prove that this was error and not treason: it may be stated also, that he suffered an imprisonment in the Tower during the greater part of Cromwell's protectorate, and sent considerable sums over to Holland for Charles II.'s support in that country. His grandson was created a baron by William III. in 1698; and the second son of that nobleman was raised to the dignity of an earl in 1730, with the additional honour of the viscounty of St. Asaph. In 1830, the present earl succeeded to the title and estates. Adjoining the park is Battle Abbey, the seat of Sir Godfrey Webster, Bart.; but as the edifice is intimately connected with the history of the town, we will defer it until the article headed BATTLE—(which see for those particulars.) S. 2 m. Windmill Hill.

ASHBROOKE, GLOUCESTERSHIRE. See AMPNEY (ST. MARY.)

ASHBURTON (anciently called ASPEXTON, or AISHBURTON, i. e. 'the ash by our town'), DEVON, a borough, market town, and parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Teignbridge, union of Newton-Abbot. The parish includes the chapelries of Bickington and Buckland-in-the-Moor: 222 miles from London (coach road 192), 7 from Totness, 20 from Exeter. — Gt. West. Rail. through Exeter to Newton-Abbot, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, to Newton-Abbot, &c., 217½ miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — Ashburton is pleasantly situated in a valley, surrounded by gentle hills, about half a mile from the river Dart, on the high road from Plymouth to Exeter, and chiefly consists of one long street, the houses of which are brick, roofed with slate. The river Yeo, a rapid stream, which turns several mills, runs through the middle of the town. Some years ago there was a considerable woollen factory established here, the returns of the factory business of various kinds being still very considerable. The church, which was originally collegiate, and has still several stalls remaining, stands on the brow of a hill. It is a spacious and venerable building, in the form of a cross, and is in the architecture of the 15th century, having a tower 94 feet high. The town, which is under the government of the county magistrates, was made one of the four county stannary courts as long ago as 1328, and a stannary session is still occasionally held here. Up to the 26th Edward I. Ashburton returned two members to parliament, a privilege which, dormant for a time, was also exercised in the 8th Henry IV., from which time the place was disfranchised till the year 1640, when the right to seats in the legislature was again granted, and two representatives were returned, until the passing of the Reform Bill in 1832, when they were reduced to one, but the franchise has been extended to the whole parish. An Independent church was formed here in 1700: the Baptists, and the Wesleyans, also have chapels. The free grammar-school, the endowment of which is about £80 a-year, was founded by Hugh Pomeroy, John Blundell, and others, in the 36th year of Elizabeth's reign; and within the last few years, William Gifford, Esq., first editor of the Quarterly Review, and who first led out the effusion of Byron's genius, has endowed it with two university scholarships of £30 a year each. In 1754, Mr. Harris and Lord Middleton, then the representatives of the borough, founded and endowed a free school here with £115 per annum, in which about a hundred children are educated. In 1657, the sum of £10 a year was left by Mr. Lawrence Blundell for the education and maintenance of two poor scholars at the university; and in 1805, Miss Mary Dunning left £6 a year for the education of ten poor girls. The other charitable endowments of the parish produce about £106 a year. Ashburton was the native place of John Dunning, the celebrated lawyer, who was raised to the peerage by the title of Lord Ashburton, and who was interred here. Dr. Ireland, the late dean of Westminster, and Mr. William Gifford, spoken of above, were also natives of this place. The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage in the diocese of Exeter, is valued at £38. 8s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £639: patron, Dean and Chapter of Exeter: pres. incumbent, William Marsh, 1835: contains 8,320 acres: 513 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,841: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, owing to the decline of the woollen trade, the same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £7,848: poor rates in 1837, £1,675. W. 2 m. is Holme Park; N. W. 2 m. Holme Chase. The present Lord Ashburton, grand-nephew of the first Lord, derives his title from the town. Market day, Saturday. Fairs, first Thursdays in March and June; Aug. 10, and Nov. 11, for horned cattle.

ASHBURY, BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Shrivensham, union of Farringdon, near the vale of Whitehorse. It contains the tithings of Idstone and Odestone, and the hamlets of Ashbury and Chapelwick: 73½ miles from London (coach road 70), 16 from Lambourn, 10 from Wantage. Gt. West. Rail. to Shrivensham, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, Swindon, to Shrivensham, &c., 138½ miles. Money orders issued at Farringdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The parochial charities are endowed to the extent of £13. 13s. yearly. The living (St. Mary), a sinecure rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £30. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £375: patron, Magdalene College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, W. Chambers, 1833 (annexed to this is a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage with the chapelry of Chapelwick, having a gross income of £380): contains 5,520 acres: 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 819: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 492: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,427: poor rates in 1837, £262: the vicarial and rectorial tithes were commuted in 1770. N. 1½ m. is Compton House; S. 1½ m. Ashdown Park, a seat of the Earl of Craven, whose principal country residence is Combe Abbey, in Warwickshire—(which see for social and historical data of title and family.)

ASHBURY, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Black Torrington, union of Okehampton, on a branch of the Torridge: 220½ miles from London (coach road 201), 5 from Hatherleigh, 6 from Okehampton. Gt. West. Rail. to Exeter, thence 27 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Exeter, &c., 234½ miles. Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £5. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £96: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, H. Woolcombe, 1810: contains 1,650 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 65: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 74: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £508. S. 1 m. is Stone House.

ASHBY-WITH-FENBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Bradley-Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor: 176 miles from London (coach road 160), 7 from Great Grimsby, 9 from Caistor. East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough, Louth, to Thoresby, thence 3 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. through Peterborough, &c., 184 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, &c., 144 miles. Money orders issued at Grimsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3 p.m.: post closes 10 a.m. The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £310: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Joseph Gedge, 1844: contains 1,620 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 211: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 243: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,778: poor rates in 1837, £110.

ASHBY-BY-PARTNEY (or ASHBY-BY-SPILSBY), LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the Wold division of the wapentake of Candleshoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 153½ miles from London (coach road 134), 2 from Spilsby, 3 from Burgh. East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Burgh, thence 3 miles; or Nor. West. Rail. through Peterborough, &c., 161 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, &c., 121½ miles. Money orders issued at Spilsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The chancel of the church was covered with thatch so late as the year 1824. The living (St. Helen), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £157: patron, R. Fowler, D.D., Bishop of Ossory: pres. incumbent, John E. Norris: contains 1,210 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 160: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 184: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,472: poor rates in 1837, £115: the great and small tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the rector, were commuted in 1811. E. 2 m. is Candlerby House.

ASHBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a township in the parish of Bottesford, union of Glandford Brigg: 197½ miles from London (coach road 157), 6 from Brigg, 14 from Gainsborough. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Lincoln, Gainsborough, to Kirtton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, &c., 83½ miles. Money orders issued at Brigg: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3½ p.m.: post closes 11 a.m. Contains 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 418: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 478: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,166: poor rates in 1837, £166: tithes commuted in 1801. S. 1½ m. is Holme Hall.

ASHBY, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Loddon, union of Loddon and Clavering: 136½ miles from London (coach road 116), 8 from Norwich, 9 from Bungay. East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Norwich to Buckingham, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through Norwich, &c., 212½ miles. Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united with Carlton, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £294: patron, Sir W. B. Proctor, and Sir C. H. Rich: pres. incumbent, T. W. H. B. Proctor, 1838: contains 640 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 263: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 302: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £897: poor rates in 1837, £62.---W. 2 m. is Burgh House; S. 1 m. Langley Park, the seat of Sir William Beauchamp Proctor, Bart., who is a rear-admiral in the royal navy. The founder of the family honours, William Beauchamp, Esq. of Epsom, who assumed the name and arms of Proctor, in compliance with the will of his maternal uncle, whose property he inherited, was a gentleman of much consideration, being colonel of the East Middlesex Militia, and representative of the metropolitan county from 1747 till 1768, was a K.C.B., and created a baronet in 1744. The present, the third, baronet succeeded to the property and title in 1827.

ASHBY, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of West Flegg: 140 miles from London (coach road 125), 3 from Acle, 8 from Yarmouth.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Norwich to Brundall, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 216 miles.---Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a rectory in connection with those of Oby and Thirne, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10: pres. net joint income, £690: patron, Bishop of Norwich: pres. incumbent, H. Bolton, 1829: contains 1,150 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 16: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 18: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,104: poor rates in 1837, £147.

ASHBY, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lothlingland: 119 miles from London, 5 from Lowestoff, 8 from Yarmouth.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Norwich, Reedham, to Herringfleet, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 220 miles.---Money orders issued at Lowestoff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norfolk, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £214: patron, S. M. Peto, Esq., M.P.: pres. incumbent, E. Thurlow, 1817: contains 800 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 53: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 61: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £558: poor rates in 1837, £43.---Contiguous is Herringfleet Hall, the seat of Henry Mussenden Leathes, Esq. The family of Leathes appears to have been originally settled in Cumberland, for in Nicholson's history of that county we find the following statement: Leathes is an hamlet next unto Wampool, and was so called from a grange or farm which the lord of White-riggs had there. From this place the family of Leathes took their surname, which anciently, well nigh the Conquest, enjoyed the same; and it descended in the issue male, until Adam de Leathes, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, sold the same to the inhabitants. The family appears to have possessed considerable property in the northern counties towards the latter end of the 17th century, and were lords also of several places in the county of Antrim in Ireland. William Leathes, who was born about 1674, was made paymaster-general to the forces of Queen Anne, and minister-plenipotentiary of George I. at the courts of Brussels and the Hague. He died in 1727. He left his property to his eldest nephew, Carteret Mussenden, Esq., who was to assume the name and arms of Leathes. The family of Mussenden is also of great antiquity, having come over with William the Conqueror, and became possessed shortly afterwards of the lordship and lands of Mussenden, or, as it is now called, Missenden, in Buckinghamshire. Sir Bernard de Mussenden, who married a daughter and coheir of Lord Frome in the time of Henry IV., dying without issue, the property passed over to a branch of the Mussenden family, who were settled in Lincolnshire. The principal of that branch became a prebendary of Down and Connor. His grandson, John Mussenden, married the daughter of Mr. Adam Leathes, and sister of Mr. William Leathes, spoken of above, whose eldest son, Carteret, inherited his uncle's property, and took the name of Leathes. Of this gentleman the present proprietor is grandson. The house is remarkable for a fine and extensive collection of paintings, especially of a series of works by Vander Mignes, purchased of the artist himself by Mr. W. Leathes, when envoy from England to the court of the Hague. That set is distinguished for the expression of all the finest features of the artist, including symmetry, gracefulness of composition, and anatomical development. One of the principal paintings, a portrait of Mr. Leathes himself, receiving despatches from a courier, is full of life and intelligence. There are also many fine exemplars of the old masters—Guido Reni, Titian, Vandewelde, Ostade, Holbein, Mompert, Teniers, and the rest. Not far from the hall are the remains of a priory of black canons, dedicated to St. Olave, which was founded by Roger Fitzosbert of Somerley, in the reign of Henry III. At the dissolution, its revenues were valued at £49. 11s. 7d. The site of the abbey and a great portion of the revenues were, in the 38th of Henry VIII., granted to Henry Jernegan, from whose descendants the property passed, by purchase, about 1740, to the Mussenden-Leathes family. S. 1 m. Somerley Hall, the seat of the Rev. George Anguish, prebendary of Norwich, who succeeded to the property in 1810, on the death of his brother. The family originally came from the Isle of Angus (whence the surname of Anguish is supposed to have been obtained), and settled early in Norfolk, where for three centuries they remained, and where Edward Anguish, in 1609, held the manor of Moulton of the Earl of Northampton as part of his manor of Fornate. The grandson of that gentleman, who was comptroller of the navy in the time of Charles II., was, in 1669, created a baronet. The baronetcy expired with his son, who died childless; and the estates descended to the present possessor, whose father was accountant-general of the Court of Chancery, and whose eldest sister married Francis Godolphin, Duke of Leeds. N. 1½ m. Lound Park; W. 1 m. Ashby Hall.

ASHBY (CANONS), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Greens-Norton, union of Daventry: 71 miles from London (coach road 65), 8 from Towcester, 7 from Daventry.---Nor. West. Rail. to Roade, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Roade, &c., 83 miles.---Money orders issued at Towcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---According to Speed, a priory of black canons was founded here in honour of the Virgin Mary, as early as the reign of King John, if not before. About the time of the dissolution, there were thirteen religious, who were endowed with £127. 19s. The site was granted in the 29th year of Henry VIII. to Sir Francis Bryan. — The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough: patron, Sir H. Dryden: pres. incumbent, Francis H. White: contains 1,410 acres: 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 252: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 289: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,762. — E. 2 m. is Eydon Park.

ASHBY (CASTLE), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Weymersley, union of Hardingstone: 75½ miles from London (coach road 63), 7½ from Northampton. — Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Little Billing, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Northampton, &c., 77½ miles. — Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The place is supposed to have derived its name from a castle, the remains of which can yet be discovered in the neighbourhood of the magnificent mansion of the Marquis of Northampton, and which also bears the name of Castle Ashby. It is a quadrangular building, enclosing a court, one side of which is enclosed by a screen designed by Inigo Jones, and which has all the features of his style. The house was almost re-edified by Lord Northampton before he was raised to the earldom in 1618. The roof, which is flat, is guarded by a parapet of stone letters, enclosed at the top and bottom by a rail; the letters forming the words from the 127th Psalm—Nisi Domus edificaverit Domum in vanum laboraverunt qui edificaverunt eam—"Unless the Lord build the house, in vain they labour that build it." The balustrades also have the dates of 1625 and 1635, showing the time occupied in the completion of the alterations. The hall is a spacious apartment, and the mansion is, in the interior, replete with all that the most refined and luxurious taste could require. It contains many family portraits of great interest; and among them, that of Spencer, second Earl of Northampton, who, at an advanced age, relinquished a life of ease and security, raised a regiment of foot and a troop of horse in behalf of King Charles I., and, after enduring many hardships, paid the penalty of his loyalty with his life, being killed in 1643 at the battle of Hopton Heath, near Stafford. The noble family of Northampton was founded by Sir William Compton, a descendant of Turhulius de Eardene, who is supposed to have been Earl of the county of Warwick both before and after the Norman Conquest. Sir William, who was much the companion of Henry VIII. in his youth, was, on that monarch's accession to the throne, appointed to several offices of honour and trust. His grandson was created Baron Compton, and he was succeeded by the first Earl of Northampton who attained to that dignity, and was installed K.G. in 1618. The second Earl was the distinguished adherent of Charles I., spoken of above, and was supported in the cause by equally zealous sons, one of whom, Sir Charles, with the assistance of only six followers, surprised Beeston Castle, cut down the drawbridge, took the governor's troop-horse, and made thirty soldiers, who were in their beds, prisoners. Another son died while in exile with his sovereign. The third Earl was equally strong in his attachment to the throne, and on Charles II.'s entry into London, preceded the monarch at the head of two hundred gentlemen followers. His third son, Sir Spencer Compton, was speaker of the House of Commons in 1714, and subsequently created Earl of Wilmington. The present Marquis, who succeeded to the title in 1828, has long been distinguished for his philosophical attainments, and the munificent spirit which he has shown towards men of science and literature. He has lately resigned the office of president of the Royal Society. — The living (St. Mary Magdalene), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £17. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £238: patron, Marquis of Northampton: pres. incumbent, G. S. Cautley, 1836: contains 1,740 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 172: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 197: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,634: poor rates in 1837, £125. — W. ¼ m. is Parkhill House.

ASHBY (COLD), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Guildborough, union of Brixworth: 82½ miles from London (coach road 78), 2½ from Welford, 12 from Northampton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Crick station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 55½ miles. — Money orders issued at Welford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — Cold Ashby was the birth-place of Richard Knolles, who was an English historian of considerable repute, and for some time master of the free school at Sandwich, and died in 1610. Besides his great work, the History of the Turks, which, in the composition, occupied him for twelve years, and which elicited the approbation of Dr. Johnson, he wrote "The Lives and Conquests of the Ottoman Kings," "A Discourse on the Greatness of the Ottoman Empire," and "A Compendium of Latin, Greek, and Hebrew Grammar." — The living (St. Denis), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £6. 0s. 5d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Rev. W. Mousley: pres. incumbent, William Mousley, 1829: contains 1,940 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 443: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 507: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,211: poor rates in 1837, £221. — S. 1½ m. is Thorney Grange.

ASHBY-DE-LA-LAUNDE, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven, union of Sleaford: 158 miles from London (coach road 121), 6 from Sleaford, 13 from Lincoln. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough, Boston, to Tattershall, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, &c., 126 miles. — Money orders issued at Sleaford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (St. Hybald), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 8s. 4d.: pres. net income, £299: patron, J. W. King, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. W. King, 1822: contains 2,880 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 157: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 180: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,394: poor rates in 1837, £183: the great and small tithes, the property of the lord of the manor and the vicar, were commuted in 1807. — N. 1 m. is Ashby Hall; S. 1 m. Bloxholm Hall, the seat of R. A. Christopher, Esq., M.P. (whose original surname was Dundas), a grandson of Robert Dundas, Esq. of Arniston, a lord of Session in Scotland, and elder brother of the first Viscount Melville. He acquired the property in right of his wife, the Lady Mary Bruce, eldest daughter of the Earl of Elgin.

ASHBY-DE-LA-ZOUCH, LEICESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of East Goscote, union of Ashby-de-la-Zouch: 122 miles from London (coach road 115), 10 from Kegworth, 18 from Leicester.---Nor. West. Rail. to Tamworth, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Burton, thence 8 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The living (St. Helen), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, with the chapelry of Blackfordby annexed, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £14. 10s. 4d.: pres. net income, £417: patron, Marquis of Hastings: pres. incumbent, M. Vavasour, 1833: contains 8,300 acres: 850 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 5,652: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 6,499: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £12,674: poor rates in 1837, £1,206: tithes commuted in 1799 and 1800.

ASHBY-DE-LA-ZOUCH, LEICESTER, a market town in the above parish—(which see for access and postal arrangements.)---Ashby stands on the road from Leicester to Burton-upon-Trent, in a pleasing situation on the borders of Derbyshire, and is a place which is not only of some note from its historical data, but also, and perhaps to a greater extent, from the fame which has been thrown over it by the genius of Sir Walter Scott, who here lays the scene of the grand tournament during the regency of John, in which his brother, King Richard I., as the Black Knight, in the pages of Ivanhoe, plays so distinguished a part. The name of the town appears to be derived from the old words asc and bye, or a habitation by the ash, a title indicative of the character of the country; the ash being, from here to almost the north of Derbyshire, considered as peculiarly the tree of the district. The town consists of one principal street, and two smaller ones running nearly parallel with it. The church, which is dedicated to St. Helen, is a fine structure of the fourteenth century, in the early decorated style. In the Hastings chapel, there are several fine monuments of the family of the Earls of Huntingdon. There is also a very handsome church, built in 1838, at a cost of £4,000, at the west end of the town, called Trinity Church, capable of containing 900 hearers. There are also four dissenting chapels, for the Wesleyans, Independents, Baptists, and Primitive Methodists. The free grammar-school was founded in 1567, by Henry, Earl of Huntingdon, and others, and endowed with the rents of 120 houses and 75 acres of land. It is a school of considerable note, and has four masters. There are ten exhibitions in it, of £10 a year each, for Emanuel College, Cambridge, founded by Mr. Francis Ashe, merchant and citizen of London. There are also two free schools for boys: the Langley charity school is for girls only. A native of this town, the Rev. Simeon Ashe, bequeathed £50 a year to the town, £10 of which was to be given towards apprenticing two poor boys in some corporate town, and the remainder for the benefit of the poor of the parish. There is a set of baths here, called the Ivanhoe Baths, which are well supplied with saline water from the Moira Baths, three and a half miles distant, and which derive their own supplies from the mines. The bath-house is a very fine building of stone, in the Doric style, 200 feet long. The water is considered a curative for gout, rheumatism, scrofula, and similar disorders. The Royal Hotel, which is built especially for visitors to the baths, is also a handsome building in the Doric style. The town derived its appended name of La-Zouch from an ancient Norman family, which held the manor from the time of Henry III. to the year 1461. About that time, a strong castle was built here by Sir William Hastings, who was created Baron Hastings by Edward IV., and beheaded in the Tower of London, by order of Richard III., some time before he apprehended the Earl of Richmond's descent upon England. A century later, the castle was for some time the place of confinement of the unfortunate Mary Queen of Scots, when she had fallen into the power of Elizabeth; here also the consort of her son James I., and her grandson Prince Henry, were magnificently entertained in 1603, by the Earl of Huntingdon, on their journey from the north to London. On the outbreak of the civil war, the Earl of Huntingdon became one of the most strenuous supporters of Charles I., and his castle at Ashby was garrisoned by his second son, Colonel Hastings, who was, for his services, shortly after created Baron Loughborough. The castle was at first besieged by Fairfax, and, in 1646, surrendered on honourable conditions to Colonel Needham; but, in 1648, it was included in the list of fortresses ordered to be dismantled at the close of the war. In the ruins, which are extensive, and which constitute a highly interesting object to the south of the town, portions of the hall, the chapel, and the kitchen, are yet standing. The Marquis of Hastings has lately spent a large sum in arresting the further decay of the ruins, and in erecting a manor-house on the site of a place built for the accommodation of James I. and his suite, during one of his visits to the Earl of Huntingdon. The town, which was partially destroyed by fire in 1753, is governed by a constable and two headboroughs, who are appointed annually at the court-leet of the lord of the manor; and it is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, within that of a court of pleas at Tutbury. The petty sessions are held here, and it is a polling-place for the northern division of Leicestershire. Hosiery of the coarser kinds, and hats in considerable numbers, are manufactured at Ashby. Bricks also are made to some extent, and a furnace has lately been erected for smelting the iron ore which is found on the wold; there are, in addition to these, pits and mines for coal, lead, and lime; and, at Woodville, fire-clay is found, and earthenware and fire-bricks are made. All tithes of the lordship or liberty, which belonged to the lord of the manor and the vicar, were commuted in 1768, and the tithes of the parish, which were the property of the same parties, in 1800. A great number of Roman coins have been dug up in the neighbourhood within the last few years. The Ashby-de-la-Zouch Canal, which throughout a winding course of 26½ miles has not a single lock, connects this town with Coventry; from it there is a tram-road to Ticknall in Derbyshire, and another to Cloudhill in Leicestershire. Dr. Joseph Hall, Bishop of Norwich, who was equally celebrated for his piety, wit, modesty, and learning, and whose works obtained for him the title of the "British Seneca," was a native of Ashby-de-la-Zouch, being born here in 1574, educated at Emanuel College, Cambridge, and afterwards made Dean of Worcester. In 1624 he refused the see of Gloucester, but three years afterwards accepted that of Exeter, and in 1641 was translated to Norwich. In a few weeks after he was enthroned, he was, with twelve other prelates, sent to the Tower, for protesting against the validity of the acts of parliament which had been passed during their forced absence from the House of Lords. In June of the following year he obtained his release, but was previously persecuted by the Puritans, his house being plundered by them, and the cathedral spoiled. His estate was about the same time sequestrated, and he was, consequently, thus, in his old age, reduced to poverty; yet he nevertheless continued to preach occasionally, and bore up with admirable fortitude against all his misfortunes till his death, which occurred in 1656. His "Meditations" are well known. Another distinguished man, who was a native of this town, was Dr. John Bambridge, a physician, who was born in 1582, and died in 1643. He was eminent as a mathematician and astronomer, and gained considerable celebrity for his "Description of the Comet of 1618;" he was appointed professor of astronomy at Oxford. Contains 6,980 acres: 783 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,060: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,810: poor rates in 1837, £1,206. Market day, Saturday. Fairs, Monday before Shrove-Tuesday, Easter-Tuesday, Whit-Tuesday, the last Monday in Sept., and Nov. 10th, for horses and cattle. Bankers, Branch of Leicestershire Banking Comp<sup>y</sup>—draw on London and Westminster Bank, and Barclay, Bevan & Co. Inns, Old George, King's Head, Royal Hotel. S. 1 m. is Willesey Hall, the seat of Sir Charles Abney Hastings, Bart., a building in the Tudor style of architecture, placed in the centre of the manor, and which contains a large collection of family portraits. The mansion is surrounded by a park of three hundred acres in extent, in which there is a fine lake that covers as many as twenty-five acres. During the civil wars the house suffered severely by the Parliamentary troops, at the time they were besieging Ashby Castle. The mansion of Willesey has been the property and residence of the Abney family from the reign of Henry V. nearly to the present time; an Abney of Derbyshire having, about the year 1420, married the heiress of John de Ingwardby, lord of Willesey. The present baronet succeeded to the title in 1823, and to the Willesey property, in right of his mother, in 1834. The church stands nearly opposite to the house, on the edge of the lake. It is built of fine stone, and the interior very handsomely fitted up, chiefly with very finely carved cedar-wood. It is a perpetual curacy.—Not far from Ashby is Staunton Harold, the seat of the Earl Ferrers. The name is evidently derived from Stoneton or town, and the addition of Harold form the name of an ancient lord. The manor of Staunton was given by William the Conqueror to Henry Ferraries, and came into the family of Shirley by the marriage of the heiress of John de Staunton in 1423, with Ralph Shirley, Esq. This family, says Burton, is of great antiquity, and descends from an ancient Saxon line, in existence long before the Conquest. Of the opulence and dignity, as well as the antiquity of this noble family, a copious account may be seen in three MS. histories preserved in the British Museum. The mansion is a large mixed pile of brick and stone, having the south-eastern or principal front adorned with pilasters and Doric columns in the centre, surmounted by a pediment. The interior is spacious, the library being particularly worthy of attention. It contains, among other treasures, the works of Confucius, the Chinese philosopher, complete in sixteen quarto volumes. The church or chapel adjoins the house, and the park is a fine expanse of 150 acres, containing a lake of upwards of 50 acres in extent, which is adorned with a handsome bridge. The church was erected at the sole expense of Sir Robert Shirley, about the period of the commencement of the civil wars.—Two miles from Ashby-East, Coleorton Hall, the seat of Sir G. H. Beaumont, Bart., in the parish of Coleorton—(which see for account of the house and family.)

ASHBY-FOLVILLE, LEICESTERSHIRE, a parish and township in the hun<sup>d</sup> of East Goscote, union of Melton-Mowbray: 112 miles from London (coach road 104), 6 from Melton-Mowbray, 10 from Leicester. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Syston, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Syston, &c., 30 miles. Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Lord Carrington left 133 acres of land, the produce of which is about £200 a year, and a bedehouse to the poor of the parish. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicestershire, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, valued at £9: pres. net income £190: patron, Rev. W. Ackworth: pres. incumbent, Wm. Ackworth, 1846: contains 2,830 acres: 99 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 437: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 503: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,715: poor rates in 1837, £212. N. 1½ m. Paske Hall.

ASHBY-MAGNA, LEICESTERSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Guthlaxton, union of Lutterworth: 96 miles from London (coach road 93), 4 from Lutterworth, 11 from Leicester. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Broughton Astley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Loughborough, to Broughton Astley, &c., 43 miles. Money orders issued at Lutterworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The living (St. Mary), a vicarage formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £7. 8s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Earl of Aylesford: pres. incumbent, Hon. A. Savile, 1846: contains 1,720 acres: 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 337: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 388: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,490: poor rates in 1837, £175. N. 1 m. Willoughby Hall: S. 2 m. is Knapton Hall.

ASHBY-MEARS. See MEARS-ASHBY.

ASHBY-PARVA, LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Guthlaxton, union of Lutterworth: 91 miles from London (coach road 92), 3 from Lutterworth, 8 from Hinckley. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Ullesthorpe, thence 1½ miles:

from Derby, through Loughborough, to Ullesthorpe, &c., 44½ miles. Money orders issued at Lutterworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.; post closes 5½ p.m. The Midland Counties Railway passes within a mile of the village. A new church has been lately built here. The living (St. Peter), a rectory, formerly in the arch<sup>d</sup>. of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £5. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £260: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, T. S. Lievre, 1832: contains 1,260 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 179: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 205: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,155: poor rates in 1837, £87. W. 2 m. is Claybrook Hall.

ASHBY-PUERORUM, LINCOLNSHIRE (so called from an estate here which was bequeathed to the Lincoln choristers), a parish in the wapentake of Hill, parts of Lindsey, union of Horncastle. It includes Stainsby hamlet and Holbeck: 157½ miles from London (coach road 137), 5 from Spilsby, 10 from Louth. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Tattershall, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln, to Tattershall, 66½ miles, thence 11 miles. Money orders issued at Spilsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.; post closes 3 p.m. The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the arch<sup>d</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 3s. 2d.: pres. net income, £118: patron, Dean and Chapter of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, G. F. Apthorpe, 1837: contains 1,620 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 102: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 117: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,527: poor rates in 1837, £72. E. 1 m. is Stainsby House.

ASHBY (St. LEGBY), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Fawsley, union of Daventry: 75 miles from London (coach road 76), 4 from Daventry, 14 from Northampton. Nor. West. Rail. through Daventry to Ashby station: from Derby, through Rugby, to Ashby station, 56½ miles. Money orders issued at Daventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.; post closes 7 p.m. The church contains a richly ornamented screen, and some finely-stained glass. The tomb of Catesby, who was the favourite of Richard III., still exists within the communion rails, the manor having belonged to his family. A descendant of his is also well known in history, as having been the originator of the Gunpowder Plot. The charity bequests of this parish produce £43. 15s. per annum. The tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1764. The Roman highway, called Watling Street, is the eastern boundary of the parish. The living (St. Mary and St. Leodgare), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the arch<sup>d</sup>. of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £130: patron, Lady Senhouse: pres. incumbent, J. C. Jenkins, 1840: contains 2,050 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 257: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 295: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,608: poor rates in 1837, £144. N. ½ m. is Ashby Hall; N. 2 m. Wilton House.

ASHBY (WEST), LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in Horncastle soke, parts of Lindsey, union of Horncastle: 155½ miles from London (coach road 138), 2 from Horncastle, 12 from Louth. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Boston, to Tattershall, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln, to Tattershall, &c., 76½ miles. Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The great and small tithes, the property of the Bishop of Carlisle, were commuted in 1771. The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy in the arch<sup>d</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln: pres. net income, £54: patron, Bishop of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, W. M. Pierce, 1826: contains 1,590 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 534: probable population in 1849, 614: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,471: poor rates in 1837, £275. S. ½ m. is The Cottage; 2 m. Thimbleby Hall, and Thimbleby House.

ASHCHURCH, GLOUCESTERSHIRE, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Tewkesbury: 128 miles from London (coach road 103), 1 from Tewkesbury, 8 from Cheltenham. Gt. West. Rail. through Gloucester to Ashchurch: from Derby, through Birmingham, to Ashchurch, 80½ miles. Money orders issued at Tewkesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.; post closes 7½ p.m. It contains the tithings of Aston-upon-Carron, Fiddington and Natton, Northway and Newton, and Pamington. There is a mineral spring here, the qualities of which are similar to those of the waters of Cheltenham. The parish is endowed with £26 per annum. The living (St. Nicholas), a perpetual curacy in the arch<sup>d</sup>. of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £23: pres. net income, £270: patron, Rev. John Askew: pres. incumbent, John Askew, 1844: contains 4,240 acres: 131 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 743: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 854: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £7,265: poor rates in 1837, £304. Certain tithes of Pamington, Homedowns, and Aston-upon-Carron, the property of the impropriators and feoffees of the Bredon almshouse, were commuted in 1812. S. 2 m. is Spa House.

ASHCOMBE, DEVONSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Exminster, union of St. Thomas: 206½ miles from London (coach road 177), 3 from Chudleigh, 9 from Exeter. Gt. West. Rail. through Exeter to Starcross, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Exeter, &c., 219½ miles. Money orders issued at Chudleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. Two charity schools here are supported partly by an endowment of £3 a year, and partly by subscription. The living, a rectory in the arch<sup>d</sup>. and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £18: pres. net income, £222: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. H. Palk, 1820: contains 2,250 acres: 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 297: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 342: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £9,265: poor rates in 1837, £225. N. ½ m. is New House, the seat of Sir P. P. Fuller Palmer Acland, Bart., who succeeded to the title in 1831. The present proprietor is a descendant of the second surviving son of Sir Hugh Acland, sixth baronet of Columb-John, in the county of Devon. On inheriting the estates of his maternal relatives the Palmers, at the death of Peregrine Palmer, Esq., M.P. for the University of Oxford, the grandfather of the present baronet, Arthur Acland, Esq., settled at Fairfield, in Somersetshire, and his son by sign manual assumed the prefix of Palmer to his surname, and was created a baronet in 1834. N. 2 m. is Oxton House, a residence delightfully placed at the confluence of three interesting valleys, which diverge in different directions, and open up extensive views of beautiful and distant scenery, combining sea and land, wood, hill, vale, and stream, including the Belvidere of Powderham Castle, and the mouth of the river Exe to the sea, and indeed all the south-eastern part of Devonshire that the eye can comprehend. These distant views, and the variety and beauty of the surrounding grounds, with their noble clusterings of forest trees and devious paths, render Oxtou one of the most agreeable seats in the country. N.W. 2 m. is Cockwood House.

ASHCOTT, SOMERSET, a chapelry in the parish of Shapwick, hund<sup>d</sup> of Whitley, union of Bridgewater: 161½ miles from London (coach road 129), 6 from Glastonbury, 12 from Shepton Mallet. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Bridgewater, &c., 175 miles. — Money orders issued at Glastonbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The charities connected with the chapelry produce about £70 a year. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here. — The living (All Saints), a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Shapwick, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells: pres. net income, £215: patron, Rev. G. H. Templer: pres. incumbent, G. H. Templer, 1810: contains 2,890 acres: 135 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 843: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 969: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,319: poor rates in 1837, £195. — E. 1 m. is Sharpham Park, the seat of the Earl of Cavan, earl and baron in the peerage of Ireland. Sir Oliver Lambert, Knt., a distinguished officer in the army of the Earl of Essex in Ireland, towards the latter end of the reign of Elizabeth, was provisional master of the camp, and was left by his superior, in 1599, with a detached command. He was shortly afterwards made sergeant-major of the army, a member of the privy council, and was, in 1617, elevated to the peerage by the title of Lord Lambert, baron of Cavan. His son, the second baron, sat in the English House of Commons in 1626-7, for Bossiney, in Cornwall, and afterwards became distinguished as a leading member and chief speaker in the Irish House of Lords. He was advanced to the dignities of Viscount Kilcourse and Earl of Cavan, in 1647. The present earl succeeded his grandfather, who was a general in the army and colonel of the 45th regiment of infantry, in 1837. N. 2 m. is Shapwick House, the seat of George Henry Templer, Esq., magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of this county. The founder of this gentleman's family in England, was a captain in the guards of William III., and came over with that monarch from Holland. A descendant of his built the beautiful mansion of Stover Lodge, which is now the property of the Duke of Somerset. The father of the present proprietor of Shapwick, who held a high position in the civil service of the East India Company, purchased the demesne, and it has since his time been made the family residence. N., and extending some miles to the N.W., are the Polden Hills.

ASHDON (or АШТОНДОН), ESSEX, a parish and township in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Freshwell, union of Ruffron-Walden, near the borders of Cambridgeshire. It includes the hamlet of Bartlow-End—(which see): 49½ miles from London (coach road 45), 4 from Linton, 6 from Haverhill. — East.

Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Audley End, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 181½ miles. — Money orders issued at Ross: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £25 a year, and there is a national school which contains 70 children. A Baptist church was formed here in 1809. The parish is remarkable from having been the scene of a sanguinary engagement in 1016, termed the battle of Assandune, between the Saxons under their king, Edmund Ironside, and the Danes under Canute, in which the former were defeated. Canute, according to Hollinshed, a few years after, ordered a church to be built at Ashdon, to commemorate his victory over Edmund, at the dedication of which he himself was present, attended by great numbers of the nobility and clergy. Four pyramidal barrows or mounts, supposed to be the sepulchres of the Danish chiefs, still remain. Of these Hollinshed says—In the place where the battle was fought, are yet seven or eight hills, wherein the carcasses of them that were slain in the same field were buried; and one being dugged down of late, there were found two bodies in a stone coffin, the one laie with his head towards the other's feet; and manie chains of iron of horses were found in the same hil. — The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, and diocese of London, is valued at £28. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £691: patron, Caius College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, B. Chapman, 1818: contains 4,840 acres: 218 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,164: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,338: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,025.

ASHELDHAM, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Dengie, union of Malden: 53 miles from London (coach road 46), 9 from Malden, 4 from Bradwell. — East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Malden, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 185 miles. — Money orders issued at Malden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, and diocese of London, is valued at £16. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £339: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, W. W. Dakins, 1817: contains 1,810 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 219: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 252: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,248: poor rates in 1837, £237.

ASHELWORTH, GLOUCESTER, a parish in a detached portion of the upper division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Berkeley, union of Gloucester: 119 miles from London (coach road 105), 6 from Newent, 8 from Tewkesbury. — Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, to Cleve, 84½, thence 6 miles. — Money orders issued at Gloucester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The parish is bounded on the south-east by the Severn, which is navigable here. The parochial endowments produce about £30 a year. — The living (St. Andrew or St. Bartholomew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £10. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £187: patron, Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol: pres. incumbent, H. A. S. Attwood, 1840: contains 1,710 acres: 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 594: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 683: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,727: poor rates in 1837, £152. The great and small tithes, the property of the Bishop of Bristol and the vicar, were commuted in 1797. — E.

2 m. is Norton House, the seat of the Earl of Harrowby; but as the principal country residence of the family is Sandon Hall, Staffordshire, the history of the family will be given with the account of that mansion.

ASHEN, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hinckford, union of Risbridge: 57½ miles from London (coach road 54), 9 from Halstead, 2 from Clare. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Braintree, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 189½ miles. — Money orders issued at Halstead: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — In the time of Edward II., there was a priory of Augustine friars here. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Middlesex, diocese of London, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £300: patron, Duchy of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, Edmund Squire, 1834: contains 2,220 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 321: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 369: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,107: poor rates in 1837, £169. — W. 2 m. is Baythorne Park.

ASHENDON, BUCKS, a parish in the above hun<sup>d</sup>.: 51½ miles from London (coach road 46), 6 from Thame, 9 from Bicester. — Nor. West. Rail. to Aylesbury, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, to Aylesbury, &c., 96½ miles. — Money orders issued at Thame: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy, with that of Dourton united, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bucks, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £108: pres. net income, £106: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, T. W. Gardiner, 1845: contains 1,790 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 312: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 359: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,306: poor rates in 1837, £208. — N. 2 m. is Wooton House, a seat belonging to the noble family of Buckingham, and occasionally the residence of the present Duke when he was Marquis of Chandos. Wooton has been the property of the Grenville family since the close of the eleventh century. A mansion, however, of some distinction was erected here in 1705, after the model of Buckingham House. No expense was spared to render it an abode worthy of nobility, and Sir James Thornhill, it is said, received as much as £1,000 a year, for three years, for his professional services in contributing to its embellishment. That mansion, with all its costly contents, was destroyed by fire in October, 1820, but was shortly afterwards entirely rebuilt. The grounds abound with oaks of majestic growth, and several fine effects are derived from an expanse of water which adorns the park. The chapel is an elegant and interesting structure, and contains several monuments to different members of the family, which are well worthy of notice.

ASHFIELD, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Thredling, union of Bosmere and Claydon; in connection with the chapelry of Thorpe. The chapel is now in ruins: 90 miles from London (coach road 83), 6 from Framlingham, 2 from Debenham. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Ipswich to Stowmarket, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, to Thetford, 125, thence per coach to Bury-St.-Edmunds, 13, thence to Stowmarket, &c., 24½ miles; or through London to Stowmarket, &c., 222 miles. — Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes

5 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £53: patron, Lord Henniker: pres. incumbent, E. Edwards, 1824: contains 1,560 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 343: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 394: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,901: poor rates in 1837, £226.

ASHFIELD (GREAT), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Blackburn, union of Stow: 89 miles from London (coach road 76), 5 from Ixworth, 7 from Stowmarket. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Stowmarket to Elmswell, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, to Thetford, 125, thence 14 miles. — Money orders issued at Bury-St.-Edmunds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £104 per annum. — The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £54: patron, Lord Thurlow: pres. incumbent, J. H. Steggall, 1823: contains 2,030 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 396: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 456: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,901: poor rates in 1837, £182. — N. 1½ m. is Ashfield Lodge, the seat of Lord Thurlow. Ashfield is remarkable as being the birth-place of two of the most eminent men of their day, Edward Thurlow, who became Lord High Chancellor of England, and his brother, who became, first, Bishop of Rochester, and afterwards Bishop of Durham. Edward Thurlow, who was born in 1735, was the eldest son of the Rev. Thomas Thurlow, vicar of the parish. At the proper age he was entered at Caius College, Cambridge, but left the university without taking a degree. He then entered at the Inner Temple, and was called to the bar in 1758; but long remained unemployed. At length, his talents being appreciated, he obtained extensive practice, and was returned to parliament for the borough of Tamworth. Energetic in all things, he was a warm supporter in the House of Commons of the ministry of the day, was made solicitor and attorney-general, and ultimately attained the great seal and the barony of Ashfield in 1778. The former he resigned in 1783; but on the fall of the coalition ministry in December of the same year, he was reinstalled, with the title of Baron Thurlow of Thurlow, and continued to occupy the woolsack, under the premiership of Mr. Pitt, till 1792, when he finally retired. He died in 1806. Lord Thurlow was a man of great and powerful talents; and it is reported that Dr. Johnson used to say of him, that he was the only man in England whom he did not dare to meet without preparation. W. 1½ m. Hunstone Hall.

ASHFORD, DERRY, a chapelry to the vicarage of Bakewell, hun<sup>d</sup>. of High Peak, union of Bakewell: 158 miles from London (coach road 155), 2 from Bakewell, 6 from Tideswell. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Ambergate, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Ambergate, &c., 26 miles. — Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The village is very beautifully situated on the Wye, which is here crossed by three stone bridges. On the banks of the river there are several mills for cutting and polishing the black marble which is found in the neighbouring hills. They were the first of the kind established in England.

William Harris, in 1631, founded a school here, and endowed it with £7. 16s. 4d. a year, to which Mr. Thomas Ross and the Rev. Samuel Evatt afterwards added £1 each. There are also several other schools here, and a Baptist church has existed ever since 1700. Another chapel, first endowed by the Nonconformist divine, William Bagshaw, termed the Apostle of the Peak, has been used by various sects. The chapel was originally erected in 1247, and dedicated to the Holy Trinity. Near the church there formerly stood a mansion erected by Edward Plantagenet, Earl of Kent, but the building has altogether disappeared, and the site of it can now only be traced by the hollow of the moat. — The living, a perpetual curacy, a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield, is valued at £2. 1s.: pres. net income, £102: patron, Vicar of Bakewell: pres. incumbent, W. G. Giles, 1840: contains 155 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 950: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,092: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £3,217: poor rates in 1837, £391. — W. 1 m. is Thornbridge, the seat of the Hon. George Henry Cavendish; W. 1½ m. Ashford Hall.

ASHFORD, DEVON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and division of Braunton, union of Barnstaple, on the north side estuary of the Taw: 216 miles from London (coach road 194), 2 from Barnstaple, 8 from Ilfracomb. — Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 32 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Tiverton, &c., 230½ miles. — Money orders issued at Barnstaple: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £8. 13s. 9d.: pres. net income, £110: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. K. Fletcher, 1803: contains 2,170 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 115: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 134: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £662: poor rates in 1837, £58. — N. 1 m. is Springfield Hall, the seat of Charles Cutcliffe Drake, Esq. The antiquaries of Devon all concur in considering the family of Drake as of very ancient origin, and Sir W. Pole mentions Sir Roger le Drak who held Hurnford-cum-Terra at half a knight's fee, in the time of Edward I.; but the first of whom we have any historical account is John Drake, Esq. of Exmouth, a man of great estate, and a name of no less antiquity, who lived in the time of Henry V., and from him the estate came, in regular succession, till the time of Sir Bernard Drake, who obtained much renown for his services at sea, and was knighted by Queen Elizabeth. His grandson was made a baronet, and invested with the order of the "Royal Oak," by Charles II.; but the title expired with the sixth baronet, who died in 1733, on whose demise the descendant of the fourth son of Sir John Drake of Ash inherited the family property. — N. 2 m. Lee House, the seat of R. Preston, Esq.

ASHFORD, KENT, a market town, parish, and liberty in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Chart and Longbridge, lathe of Scray, union of West Ashford: 67 miles from London (coach road 53), 13 from Canterbury. — Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford: from Derby, through London, and as above, 199 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m. and 2½ p.m.: post closes 9½ a.m. and 10 p.m. — Ashford, originally written Ashford, was built on the ruins of Great Chart, an ancient market town destroyed by the Danes, and which formerly gave its name to the hundred. The town is seated on an eminence, rising gently from the river Stour, over which there is a stone bridge with four arches. The houses, which are generally of modern construction, are well built, and the principal street, which is nearly half a mile in length, is well lighted. The only manufacture carried on here, and that but to a small extent, is that of linen, and that is likely to be abandoned very shortly. A suite of assembly-rooms has within these few years been erected on the site of the manor and market-house, in which social reunions are occasionally held; and a court-leet is held once a year, at which a constable, borough-holder, and other officers are appointed. By the Reform Act, Ashford is made one of the polling-places for the county. The church, which is cruciform in its plan, is a handsome structure, with a fine tower rising from the centre. It was originally founded by Sir John Fogge, knight, and was formerly collegiate, being constituted for a master, two chaplains, and two secular clerks. Leland, however, in his 'Itinerary,' seems to throw some discredit over the completion of the foundation, for he says—A college was intended to have been founded in the parish of St. Mary by Sir John Fogg, comptroller to king Edward IV., but king Edward died ere Fogg had finished his enterpris, so that remaineth to Ashford only the name of a prebend. The place hath lands, priest, and choristers, but removable, for they have no common seale. But Bishop Tanner says—There is a mention of Dr. Sutton, master of the college here, as patron of Daunton in Essex, A.D. 1469. In the chapel adjoining the chancel, there are three sumptuous monuments erected to the memory of members of the family of the Smyths of Westernhanger; and in front of the steps leading to the communion table, there is an ancient monument to the Duchess of Atholl, who died in 1375. In 1638, Sir Norton Knatchbull endowed a free grammar-school here with a revenue of £30 a year, vesting the appointment of master in his own family. For some time this endowment was in abeyance; but it was revived in 1832, and the school is now well attended. There are also two National schools, partly supported by a bequest of £20 a year, left in 1702 by Dr. Thomas Turner. Besides these, there are several other schools, and the Wesleyan Methodists, Baptists, Society of Friends, and followers of Lady Huntingdon have each chapels here. The noble family of Keppel, Earls of Albemarle, derive their title of Baron Ashford from this town. Dr. John Wallis, the celebrated mathematician, was a native of Ashford. He was born in 1616, and educated at Emanuel College, Cambridge. In 1649 he was chosen Savilian professor at Oxford, and in 1658 was made keeper of the archives there. He died in 1703, leaving behind him three volumes of valuable mathematical theses and one of sermons. He was one of the earliest members of the Royal Society. Ashford has of late years become noted as one of the principal stations of the South-Eastern Railway, and as the point whence the lines to East Kent and Hastings diverge. — The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, and deanery of Charing, is valued at £18. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £460: patron,

Dean and Chapter of Rochester: pres. incumbent, J. P. Alcock, 1847: contains 2,950 acres: 529 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,082: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,544: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £8,387: poor rates in 1837, £972: tithes commuted in 1843. --- Market days, Tuesday, for corn; 1st and 3d Tuesday in every month for cattle. Fairs, May 17, Sept. 9, Oct. 24, and first week in Aug. for wool. --- Bankers, Jemmett, Ponfret, & Co.—draw on Smith, Payne, and Smith; Branch of London and County Joint Stock Banking Company—Head office, 21 Lombard Street. --- Inns, Saracen's Head, and Royal Oak. --- N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Godinton; W.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Hothfield Place, the seat of the Earl of Thanet. The original name of the family was Toketon (now Tufton), and was derived from a place in Kent, of which, in remote ages, they were the feudal lords. The more immediate ancestor was Nicholas Tufton, who came from Northiam, in Sussex, and was succeeded in his property by his son, John Tufton, Esq., who settled at Hothfield, in Kent, and was sheriff of that county in the 4th of Queen Elizabeth. His grandson, Sir Nicholas Tufton, was one of those who met King James I. at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, on his coming into England, and was on that occasion knighted. He was shortly afterwards raised to the peerage by the title of Baron Tufton of Tufton, in Sussex; and in 1628 created Earl of Thanet. John, the second Earl, was obliged to compound with the parliament for his estate in 1654, which he did for £9,000, the largest sum paid on the list of that year. His son, the third Earl, was twice committed by Cromwell to the Tower, and the second time suffered imprisonment for two years. From this nobleman the title passed to three of his brothers in succession, from the last of whom, Thomas, the title descended lineally to Sackville, the ninth Earl, who, dying without issue, was in 1825 succeeded by his brother, the present possessor of the title and estates.

ASHFORD, MIDDLESEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Spelthorne, union of Staines: 21 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 16), 2 from Staines, 2 from Bedfont. --- Sou. West. Rail. to Staines, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 153 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles. --- Money orders issued at Staines: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. --- The village is very beautiful, being surrounded by lands in high cultivation, and fine wooded scenery. It is considered remarkably healthy, no case of consumption having occurred here for many years. There is an endowed Sunday school in the parish. --- The living is a curacy subordinate to Staines, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Middlesex, diocese of London—(which see): contains 1,500 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 524: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 603: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,312: poor rates in 1837, £277: all the tithes were commuted in 1809. --- The principal seat is that of F. Clifford, Esq., called the Clock House, from the circumstance of there being a large and handsome clock attached to the mansion, and which is the only one in the village. In the neighbourhood are the seats of Mrs. Gibbons, R. S. Mawe, Esq., Thomas Denton, Esq., and John Irving, Esq.

ASHFORD-BOWDLER, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Munslow, union of Ludlow: 159 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 137), 3 from Ludlow, 6

from Tenbury, --- Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Droitwich, thence 27 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 88 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles. --- Money orders issued at Ludlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. --- The living (St. Andrew), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, diocese of Hereford, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £55: patron, C. Walker, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. Pinhorn, 1815: contains 630 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 96: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 111: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,212: poor rates in 1837, £58. --- N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Ashford Hall, the seat of Lechmere Graves Russell, C.B., a major-general in the army, and also colonel-commandant of the Bombay Horse Artillery Brigade. The family of General Russell, derived from the old stock of the Russells in Herefordshire, emigrated to the colonies in America early in the 17th century, and there for a century and a half filled places of honour and trust. The general, whose mother was a direct descendant of a brother of Lord Lechmere of Hanley, succeeded his father in 1832. N. 2 m. is Cainham Court, the seat of Berkeley George Calcott, Esq. W. 2 m. Moor Park, the seat of John Salwey, Esq. The Salweys, or Sewyns, are a family of very ancient Saxon origin, having been settled at Cannock in Shropshire long before the Conquest. They remained people of consideration throughout the whole of what may be considered medial English history, frequently holding offices direct from the crown. One of the family, Richard Salwey, Esq., was a major in the Parliamentary army, and went as ambassador to the Porte at Constantinople in 1654. He sat for the counties of Worcester and Westmoreland from 1653 to 1659. The present representative of the family succeeded to the property in 1825, on the death of his father. E. 2 m. Dean Park.

ASHFORDBY (or ASFORDBY), LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Goscote East, union of Melton-Mowbray: 120 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 108), 3 from Melton-Mowbray, 11 from Loughborough. --- Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Kirby, thence 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles: from Derby, through Loughborough, Syston, &c., 39 miles. --- Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. --- The village is situated on the river Wreake, which communicates with the Oakham and Melton-Mowbray navigation. There is a school here, towards the support of which £150 was bequeathed in 1769 by Mr. Morris Camm. --- The living (All Saints), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £15. 11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £455: patron, Rev. A. Burnaby and sisters: pres. incumbent, Andrew Burnaby, 1826: contains 1,210 acres: 93 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 482: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 554: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,066: poor rates in 1837, £372.

ASHFORD-CARBONELL, SALOP, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Munslow, and partly in that of Stottesden, union of Ludlow: 160 miles from London (coach road 137), 3 from Ludlow, 9 from Leominster. --- Access and postal same as above. --- The Teme separates this parish from Ashford-Bowdler. --- The living (St. Mary), a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Little Hereford—(which see): contains 1,490 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 266: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 305: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £722: poor rates in 1837, £193.

ASHILL, SOMMERSSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Abldick and Bulston, union of Chard: 171 miles from London (coach road 137), 4 from Ilminster, 8 from Taunton. —Gt. West. Rail. to Taunton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Taunton, &c., 184½ miles. —Money orders issued at Taunton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —This parish contains the hamlets of Jordana, Rowlands, Southton, Wimbleton, and Wood. The Chard Canal intersects the parish. —The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage and a peculiar of the prebendary of the cathedral of Wells, is valued at £6. 0s. 10d.: pres. net income, £98: patron, Preb. of Ashill: pres. incumbent, J. Mickleburgh, 1833: contains 1,860 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 438: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 503: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,855: poor rates in 1837, £164. —Fairs, Easter-Wednesday, and first Wednesday after Sept. 12, for cattle and pedlery.

ASHILL, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wayland, union of Swaffham: 119½ miles from London (coach road 94), 3 from Watton, 6 from Swaffham. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Swaffham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Swaffham, &c., 129 miles. —Money orders issued at Thetford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £19. 13s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £850: patron, Rev. B. Edwards: pres. incumbent, B. Edwards, 1813: contains 2,970 acres: 129 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 637: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 732: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,366: poor rates in 1837, £347: tithes commuted in 1761. —N. 1½ m. is Berry's Hall; W. 2 m. Pickenham Hall, the seat of W. L. W. Chute, Esq. This gentleman, whose original name was Wigget, assumed the additional appellation of Chute, with the arms of that family, on succeeding, in 1828, to the estate of the Rev. Thomas Vere Chute. He was high sheriff of Norfolk in 1832, and is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of the county; he is also a magistrate of Hants. The Chutes were an ancient family in the counties of Somerset and Kent, and were, until about the year 1500, lords of the manor of Taunton; the Kentish branch of the family became extinct in 1700, on the death of Sir G. Chute, Bart. The first person of note of the other portion of the stock was Challoner Chute, Esq., a member of the Middle Temple, and speaker of the House of Commons during the brief period of Richard Cromwell's parliament, an office which he filled with great repute. He purchased the "Vine" estate, in Hants, in 1653, of Lord Sandys, which passed lineally through four generations to John Chute, Esq., who died without issue, and the property demised to William Lobb, Esq. of Dickenham Hall, Norfolk, who had married Elizabeth, granddaughter of Challoner Chute. That gentleman, upon acquiring it, assumed the name and arms of Chute; and his eldest son having no children, the estate passed to the Rev. Thomas Vere Chute, his second son, who dying unmarried, left it to William Lyde Wigget, Esq., the representative of an old Norfolk family. —S. 2 m. Saham Tony Hall.

ASHINGDON (or ASSINGDEN), ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Rochford: 53 miles from London (coach road 40), 3 from Rochford, 9 from Maldon. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Maldon, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 185 miles. —Money orders issued at Rochford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —Some suppose this, instead of Ashdon, to be the place where Canute vanquished Edmund Ironside. —The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, diocese of London, is valued at £8. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £254: patron, Rev. J. Nottidge: pres. incumbent, Sept. Nottidge, 1846: contains 1,020 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 119: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 137: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,519: poor rates in 1837, £72.

ASHINGTON, SOMMERSSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Stone, division and union of Yeovil: 169½ miles from London (coach road 121), 3 from Ilchester, 4 from Yeovil. —Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Bridgewater, &c., 182½ miles. —Money orders issued at Ilchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —Five boys from this parish are educated in the school of Marston Magna. —The living (St. Vincent), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £6. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £162: contains 550 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 71: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 81: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,700: poor rates in 1837, £47.

ASHINGTON, SUSSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of West Grinstead, rape of Bramber, union of Thakeham: 47 miles from London (coach road 46), 12 from Petworth, 4 from Steyning. —Sou. East. Rail. to Horsham, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 179 miles. —Money orders issued at Petworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory, with Buneton annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £8 5s.: pres. net income, £189: patron, G. Wyndham, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. Blakiston, 1845: contains 1,430 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 282: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 322: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £865: poor rates in 1837, £133.

ASHINGTON, NORTHUMBERLAND. See BOTHALL.

ASHLEY, HAMPSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Milton—(which see for access and postal arrangements): 69 miles from London, 4½ from Christchurch, 7 from Lymington.

ASHLEY, CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Bowdon: 179½ miles from London (coach road 177), 5 from Knutsford, 3 from Altringham. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Chorley, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 95½ miles. —Money orders issued at Chorley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —Contains 2,390 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 424: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 486: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,131: poor rates in 1837, £200. —W. 2 m. is Tatton Park, the seat of Wilbraham Egerton, Esq. The mansion is one of the most complete residences in the county of Chester. It is built of stone, having a noble portico of four Corinthian columns, each of which is formed out of a single block, dug from the quarries at Runcorn. In the middle of this front is the library, which is very extensive, and replete with stores of literature and art. The entrance-hall for the mansion is in the centre of the opposite front, and is of very spacious dimensions. The apartments are admirably arranged, and the whole disposition of the edifice is a result that might well have been expected from the two Wyatts, the architects. The house stands on a gentle elevation, and overlooks an extensive and finely timbered park, in which there is a large mere or lake to diversify the scenery, and give an additional effect to the several views. The offices are in conformity with the style of the house. Few mansions, indeed, possess such a various combination of taste, magnificence, and comfort. Wilbraham Egerton, Esq., the proprietor of Tatton Park, is a lineal descendant of the Hon. Thomas Egerton, third son of the second Earl of Bridgewater, who was born in 1651. Mr. Egerton's family have for a series of generations sat in parliament for the county of Chester, and he himself was for a period of nineteen years its representative, being succeeded in that office by his son, Mr. Tatton Egerton. Mr. Egerton, who was high sheriff in 1808, is lieutenant-colonel of the yeomanry cavalry, lieutenant-colonel of the local militia, and a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of the county. W. 2 m. is Denfield Hall. N. 1 m. Ashley Hall, an ancient manorial mansion, which is approached by a stately avenue of walnut trees. The hall is remarkable from containing eleven portraits of gentlemen of this county, who were ancestors of the Cholmondeleys, Grovenors, and other families now in existence, who formed themselves into a club during the progress of the first pretender, James, in order to debate his claims, and decide whether they should join his standard. The final meeting was held at Ashley Hall, when the casting vote against such a proceeding was given by Thomas Asheton, the proprietor of the manor and mansion. That decision, from the influence of the several parties in Cheshire and Lancashire, is supposed to have been fatal to the enterprise. S. 1 m. is Janny House.

ASHLEY, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Corby, union of Market-Harborough, situated on the river Well: 103½ miles from London (coach road 86), 5 from Rockingham, 5 from Harborough. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Langton, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 70½ miles. —Money orders issued at Rockingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —The charities of the parish produce £28 a year. There is a Baptist chapel here. —The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £17: pres. net income, £320: patron, Rev. R. Farrer: pres. incumbent, R. Farrer, 1819: contains 2,190 acres: 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 323: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 371: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,978: poor rates in 1837, £271. The tithes and moduses, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1806. Sir John Henry Palmer is lord of the manor.

ASHLEY, HAMPSHIRE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Buddlegate, Winchester division, union of Stockbridge: 76 miles from London (coach road 70), 3 from Stockbridge, 9 from Winchester —Sou.

West. Rail. to Winchester, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 208 miles. —Money orders issued at Stockbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —There are remains of several Roman encampments in the parish, as well as a large circular entrenchment, supposed to be British or Danish. —The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £7. 16s. 3d.: pres. net income, £329: patron, Rev. James Hannay: pres. incumbent, James Hannay, 1843: contains 2,580 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 102: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 117: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,086: poor rates in 1837, £38. William Leonard Thomas Pyle Thornton, Esq., is lord of the manor.

ASHLEY, ISLE OF WIGHT. See NEWCHURCH.

ASHLEY, STAFFORDSHIRE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of North Firehill: 147½ miles from London (coach road 154), 6 from Eccleshall, 6 from Drayton. —Nor. West. Rail. through Stafford to Standon bridge, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Stafford, &c., 63½ miles. —Money orders issued at Eccleshall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —There is a Roman Catholic chapel, a National school, besides several other schools in the parish. The public charities produce about £22 a year. —The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £10. 2s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £316: patron, T. Kinnerley, and —Meynell, Esqs.: pres. incumbent, T. H. Harding, 1836: contains 2,600 acres: 169 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 853: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 980: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,206: poor rates in 1837, £203.

ASHLEY, WILTS, a parish in the division of Malmesbury, union of Tetbury: 95 miles from London (coach road 96), 3 from Tetbury, 5 from Malmesbury. —Gt. West. Rail. to Tetbury road station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Tetbury road station, &c., 120½ miles. —Money orders issued at Tetbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £9. 16s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £220: patron, Dean of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, Ed. Houl-ditch, 1845: contains 951 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 96: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 111: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,214: poor rates in 1837, £48. T. G. B. Estcourt, Esq., is lord of the manor.

ASHLEY-CUM-SYLVERLEY, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Cheveley, union of Newmarket: 70½ miles from London (coach road 63), 13 from Clare, 11 from Bury. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Newmarket, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, to Newmarket, &c., 145 miles. —Money orders issued at Newmarket: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living, a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £150: patron, Marquis of Bute: pres. incumbent, Edward Smith, 1835: contains 2,143 acres: 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 417: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 480: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,347: poor rates in 1837, £198. The great and small tithes of Kirtling and Ashley-cum-Silverley, the property of the lord of the manor, the clerical rector, and the vicar, were commutted in 1806. — W. 2 m. is Cheveley Park, the seat of the Duke of Rutland, where the family usually spend a considerable portion of the year; N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Dalham Hall.

ASHLEY-GREEN. See CHESHAM.

ASHLEY-LAY, DERBYSHIRE, a township in the parish of Wirksworth: 144 miles from London (coach road 138), 2 from Wirksworth, 4 from Ambergate. — Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Belper, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Belper, &c., 12 miles. — Money orders issued at Wirksworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 5 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. — Contains 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 277: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 320: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,533: poor rates in 1837, £74.

ASHMANHAUGH, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Tunstead: 136 miles from London (coach road 118), 6 from North Walsham, 10 from Norwich. — East. Cr<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, to Norwich, &c., 212 miles. — Money orders issued at North Walsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living (St. Swithin), a disch<sup>d</sup> perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £42: patron, Sir J. H. Preston, Bart.: pres. incumbent, A. Herring, 1838: contains 700 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 180: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 207: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £642: poor rates in 1837, £76. — 8. 1 m. is Hoveton House, the residence of the Rev. T. C. Blofeld, M.A., who married the only surviving child of Francis Grose, Esq., the celebrated antiquary. The family of Blofeld were settled in Norfolk at a very early period, as there are records still in existence which prove that a Thomas Blofeld sold lands at Northrepps in this county as early as 1466, and from him the present representatives trace their lineal descent. Thomas Blofeld of Hoveton, who died in 1708, sat in six successive parliaments as member for Norwich. Mr. Blofeld is rector of Felmingham and vicar of Hoveton, both in Norfolk, for which county he is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant. E. 1 m. is Beeston Hall, the seat of Sir J. H. Preston, Bart., who is a grandson of Henry Hulton, Esq., who was a commissioner of customs at Boston, U.S., and married a daughter of Isaac Preston, Esq. of Beeston. The son of that gentleman assumed the name and arms of Preston, and was created a baronet in 1815. He was succeeded in the title and estates in 1846 by the present baronet. S.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Hoveton Park, the seat of H. N. Burroughs, Esq., is situate in the parish of Hoveton St. Peter—(which see.)

ASHMANSWORTH, HANTS, a chapelry in the parish of East Woodhay, union of Kingsclere: 63 miles from London (coach road 64), 8 from Whitechurch, 10 from Andover. — Sou. West. Rail. to Basingstoke, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 195 miles. — Money orders issued at Whitechurch: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There is a National school here. — The living (St. James), a curacy annexed to the vicarage of East Woodhay, and having a joint pres. net income of £1,078: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, T. D. Hodgson, 1825: contains 1,740 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 220: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 253:

ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,205: poor rates in 1837, £159 — N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Highclere Park, the seat of the Earl of Carnarvon. In Domesday-book it is described as Semper fuit in Ecclesiam tempore Regis Edwardi—that is, "It always belonged to the church during the time of King Edward," the Confessor, of course. Some time afterwards, it was apportioned to, or at least was in the possession of, the Bishops of Winchester; and several of the public acts of William of Wykeham were dated from here. The bailiwick continued to be held by the bishops till the time of Edward VI., when it was surrendered to the king, with its appended ecclesiastical patronage, by the then diocesan, John Poynt. The property was granted by the king to Sir W. Fitzwilliam, from whose family it passed by purchase to Sir Robert Sawyer, attorney-general to Charles II. and his brother James, and, by descent from his daughter Margaret, who married Thomas Earl of Pembroke—the last Lord High-Admiral of England till the time of William IV., when he was Duke of Clarence—the estate has come to the present Earl of Carnarvon. The Earl of Carnarvon derives his immediate descent from the Hon. W. Herbert, a major-general in the army, and fifth son of the eighth Earl of Pembroke, whose eldest son was created Baron of Dorchester in 1780, and raised to the earldom of Carnarvon in 1793. The present Earl succeeded to the title in 1833. The mansion-house, which was erected by the Hon. Robert Herbert, was greatly enlarged and improved by the late Earl of Carnarvon. It is built of brick, covered with stucco, and is, externally, more remarkable for elegance than splendour of appearance; but the apartments in the interior are very spacious, and of excellent dimensions. It is placed on a fine elevation in one of the noblest parks in the kingdom, which received its aspect, to a great extent, from the consummate taste of the late proprietor. It occupies a space of not less than thirteen miles in circumference. The plantations are excellently disposed, and there is an abundance of foliage to give it a luxuriant appearance, while the country around is varied and picturesque. Two remarkable hills are situated to the south of the house, between which there is an archway that forms the entrance to the park from the Winchester road. One of these hills, called Sidon Hill, is thickly clothed with wood, and cut into carriage drives to the very summit, which towers to the height of 400 feet above the neighbouring valley. The other, Beacon Hill, is altogether bare of trees, and is the site of an ancient camp, noticed both by Camden and Gough. Views of various and often contrasting beauty are seen from different parts of the park, which in itself exhibits almost every feature of English scenery. Truly, indeed, may it be said, that the observer—

"From scene to scene, by random steps conveyed,
Admires the distant views, the secret shade;
Dwells on each spot; with eager eye devours
The woods, the lawns, the buildings, and the bowers;
New sweets, new joys, at every glance arise,
And every turn creates a fresh surprise."

On the opposite side of Sidon Hill, there is a castellated lodge embosomed in trees, which has a turret at each angle, and which produces a striking and most pleasing effect; the view of the mansion from this spot is fine in the extreme. About a mile from Beacon Hill there are seven tumuli or barrows, some of which have been opened under the authority of the Earl of Carnarvon. In the highest of the three, the elevation of which is about twelve feet, there first appeared a quantity of collected mould, occupying about half its height; under this a great heap of flints, which reached to the surface of the down; and below them again, under an arch of flints, burnt bones, and ashes were found. The contents of the other barrows were similar, but they were without the arch of flints. The largest barrow was about a hundred yards in circumference. About a mile and a half eastward from Beacon Hill, there is an eminence called Ladle Hill, on which there is a circular encampment, and a little down the declivity of the hill, the remains of an outpost; southward of the large camp there are three barrows.

ASHMORE, DORSET, a parish in the hund of Cranbourn, Shaston-West division, union of Shaftesbury: 114 miles from London (coach road 101), 5 from Shaftesbury, 8 from Blandford.---Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, to Bath, 143, thence 35 miles; or through London, and as above, 246 miles.---Money orders issued at Shaftesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £7. 19s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £410: patron, Rev. C. Chisholm: pres. incumbent, G. Chisholm, 1826: contains 3,940 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 242: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 278: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £797: poor rates in 1837, £93.

ASHOLT (or AISHOLT), SOMERSET, a parish in the division of Williton, union of Bridgewater: 158½ miles from London (coach road 146), 7 from Bridgewater, 8 from Taunton.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bridgewater, &c., 171½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bridgewater: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7. 12s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £280: patron, Rev. Josh. West: pres. incumbent, John West, 1832: contains 2,650 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 201: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 231: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,457: poor rates in 1837, £97.---E. 2 m. is Park House; Barford House; Broomfield Hall, the seat of Andrew Crosse, Esq.

ASHORN. See NEWBOLD-PACEY.

ASHOVER, DERBY, a parish and township, partly in the hund of Scarsdale, and partly in that of Wirksworth, union of Chesterfield. The hamlets of Dethick-Lea and Holloway are included in the parish: 153 miles from London (coach road 147), 7 from Chesterfield, 7 from Alfreton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Stretton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Stretton, &c., 21 miles.---Money orders issued at Chesterfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Ashover is within the jurisdiction of the court at Tutbury, in the Duchy of Lancaster, for the recovery of debts under 40s. The constables and other officers are appointed at a special sessions. The village, which was formerly a market town, is a place of great antiquity, as, according to Doomsday-book, there was a church here before the Norman Conquest. It stands in a beautiful deep and narrow valley, near the Amber. The church is a fine structure, built in 1419, and contains a Norman leaden font of very curious design. There is also in it a monument of the Babington family, who resided at Dethick, where there is a chapel of ease. A free school was founded in 1703 at Ashover Hill, which is chiefly supported by the proceeds of a legacy, amounting to £22 a year, bequeathed in 1819 by the Rev. Francis Gisborne. There is also a National school here, and the other schools are numerous. The parochial charities produce about £7. 7s. per annum. There are chapels of the Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists. The manufactures carried on here are of stockings and tambour lace. Lime and gritstone abound in the neighbourhood, and coal, ironstone, and lead ore are also met with in tolerable abundance. The Gregory lead mine, which is upwards of three hundred yards deep, is said to have once been the richest in the kingdom. There is a rocking-stone on Ashover common, about 26 feet in circumference, which is called Robin Hood's mark.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £24. 3s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £481: patron, Rev. J. Nodder: pres. incumbent, J. Nodder, 1835: contains 11,290 acres: 655 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,482: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,004: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £10,214: poor rates in 1837, £676.---S. 1½ m. is Stubbing Edge Hill, the seat of William Milnes, Esq., a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of the county of Derby. S. 2 m. Overton Hall, the seat of J. Bright, Esq., M.D.

ASHOW, WARWICK, a parish in the Kenilworth division of the hund of Knightlow, union of Warwick: 106 miles from London (coach road 95), 4 from Leamington, 5 from Warwick.---Nor. West. Rail. through Coventry to Kenilworth station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Coventry, &c., 48 miles.---Money orders issued at Leamington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £6. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £295: patron, Lord Leigh: pres. incumbent, C. S. Twistleton, 1831: contains 1,100 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 172: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 197: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,797: poor rates in 1837, £86.---E. 1 m. Stoneleigh Abbey, the seat of Lord Leigh. For history of the family and account of the abbey, see STONELEIGH.

ASHPERTON, HEREFORDSHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Stretton-Grandisome, hund of Radlow, union of Ledbury: 142½ miles from London (coach road 125), 5 from Ledbury, 11 from Hereford.---Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Tewkesbury, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Edington, 75½, thence 18 miles.---Money orders issued at Ledbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Hops are cultivated to a considerable extent in the parish. The village stands on the line of the Hertfordshire and Gloucester Canal.---The living (St. Bartholomew), a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Stretton-Grandisome, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, and having a joint pres. net income, £479: patron, Rev. J. Hopton: pres. incumbent, J. Graves, 1841: contains 1,090 acres: 93 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 604: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 695: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,669: poor rates in 1837, £156.

ASHPRINGTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Coleridge, union of Totness: 225½ miles from London (coach road 198), 6 from Dartmouth, 6 from Brixham. — Gt. West. Rail. to Totness, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Totness, &c., 239¼ miles. — Money orders issued at Totness: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — There is an almshouse here for six poor persons, founded in 1622 by Sir Edward Giles. About a mile from the village, on the north-east, the river Hareborn falls into the estuary of the Dart. — The living (St. David), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £29. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £520: patron, Rev. G. T. Carwithen: pres. incumbent, Jacob Ley, 1795: contains 2,240 acres: 115 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 588: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 676: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,869: poor rates in 1837, £297. — N. ¼ m. is Sharpham House; Sharpham Hall, the seat of R. Durant, Esq.; 1 m. Dundridge House, the seat of J. Parrott, Esq.

ASH-PRIORS, SOMERSETSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Williton and Freemanora, Bishop's Lydeard division, union of Taunton: 169 miles from London (coach road 147), 5 from Wivelscombe, 6 from Wellington. — Gt. West. Rail. to Taunton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Taunton, &c., 182¼ miles. — Money orders issued at Taunton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (Holy Trinity), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, diocese of Bath and Wells: pres. net income, £70: patron, Sir T. B. Lethbridge, Bart.: pres. incumbent, R. B. Bradley, 1834: contains 750 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 226: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 260: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £872: poor rates in 1837, £70. — E. ¼ m. is Sandhill Park, the seat of Sir T. B. Lethbridge, Bart., who represented the county of Somerset in parliament for more than twenty years. The father of the present baronet, who is colonel of the 2d Somersetshire militia, was raised to the rank which his son now holds in 1804, and was succeeded in the title and estates in 1815. A maternal ancestor of the family, Sir William Peryam, was chief baron of the Court of Exchequer in the time of Elizabeth.

ASHREIGNY (or Ring's Ash), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Winkley, union of Torrington: 209 miles from London (coach road 198), 4 from Chumleigh, 11 from Torrington. — Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Tiverton, &c., 222¼ miles. — Money orders issued at Chumleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — A school here was endowed with £10 per annum, in 1730, by Mrs. Gertrude Pyncombe, which is well attended. There is also a daily and Sunday National school here. — The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £24: pres. net income, £335: patron, Rev. J. T. Johnson: pres. incumbent, G.

Johnson, 1829: contains 6,220 acres: 206 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,088: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,251: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,735: poor rates in 1837, £321.

ASHRIDGE, BUCKINGHAM, a hamlet in the parish of Pitston, or Pightlesthorne—(which see for access and postal): 32½ miles from London (coach road 29), 2 from Chesham, 4 from Berkhamstead. — This is a very ancient place, for a parliament was held here in 1291 by Edward I.; and, according to Tanner, Edmund, Earl of Cornwall, son to Richard, King of the Romans, founded here a college for a rector and twenty brethren or canons, called Bonhommes, in honour of the precious blood of the holy Jesus, A.D. 1283. Its possessions were, at the time of the suppression, estimated at £447. 18s. The foundation of the religious house here for a while gave a peculiar sanctity to the place, for Speed says—Ashbridge was in great repute, for the blood (supposed out of Christ's side), brought out of Germany by Edmund, eldest son of Richard, King of the Romans, and Earl of Cornwall, whereto resorted a great concourse of people for devotion and adoration thereof. But when the sunshine of the gospel had pierced through such clouds of darkness, it was perceived apparently to be only honey, clarified and coloured with saffron. In the time of James I. it devolved to the Ellesmere family, many of whose portraits were preserved in Ashridge Abbey. The site of the ancient structure, which was pulled down not many years since, is now occupied by a noble mansion in the Gothic style, erected after the designs of Mr. James Wyatt.—(See ALDBURY, p. 34.) Near this is Stocks House.

ASHTHEAD, SURREY, a parish in the second division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Copthorne and Effingham, union of Epsom: 20 miles from London (coach road 17), 2 from Epsom, 2 from Leatherhead. — Sou. East. Rail. to Epsom, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 152 miles. — Money orders issued at Epsom: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — There is a charity school endowed with £10 per annum, and also a poor school, founded and endowed by the Hon. Colonel and Mrs. Howard. In addition, there is an almshouse for six poor widows, founded in 1731, and endowed with £32. 7s. 2d. per annum, by Lady Diana Fielding. The other charities of the parish produce about £28 a year. In a mansion called Ashtead Park, lately pulled down, Charles II. was frequently entertained by Sir Robert Howard. There is in the parish a mineral spring, similar to that at Epsom. — The living (St. Giles), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, diocese of Winchester, is valued at £13. 15s. 5d.: pres. net income, £499: patron, Hon. F. G. Howard and Mrs. Howard: pres. incumbent, William Legge, 1826: contains 2,510 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 618: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 711: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,022: poor rates in 1837, £465. — W. 2 m. is Randall House; E. 1 m. Woodcote House, the seat of E. R. Northey, Esq., who served for some time in the army, and was present at the battle of Waterloo, and who is now a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for the county. The family of Northey, which is very ancient, was originally settled in Essex, thence removed to Wilts, and afterwards to London. Sir E. Northey, who was born in 1651, became attorney-general to Queen Anne, and sat for the borough of Tiverton from 1710 to 1714. Three of his grandsons were also distinguished men, William, LL.D. and F.R.S., becoming one of the commissioners of the board of trade, and, when out of office, a distinguished leader of the opposition early in the reign of George III. Thomas, who was in the army, served in various parts of the world, and lost a leg at the siege of Quebec; and Murray, their brother, saw much service as a captain in the Royal Navy.

ASHTED, WARWICK, a chapelry in the parish of Aston-juxta-Birmingham—(which see for access and postal.)—The living (St. James), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester: pres. net income, £210: patron, Bishop of Lichfield and trustees: pres. incumbent, J. Allport, 1846: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 14,498: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 16,398.

ASHTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Tarvin, on the borders of Delamere forest: 186½ miles from London (coach road 185), 8 from Chester, 7 from Tarporley.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Chester, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 102½ miles.—Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—Contains 1,740 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 435: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 472: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,042: poor rates in 1837, £218.—W. 1 m. is Peel Hall; N. 1½ m. Ashton Heys, the seat of William Atkinson, Esq.

ASHTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Exminster, union of St. Thomas: 199½ miles from London (coach road 174), 4 from Chudleigh, 6 from Exeter.—Gt. West. Rail. to Exeter, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Exeter, &c., 213½ miles.—Money orders issued at Chudleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.—In the church there is a fine wooden screen. The parish is bordered on the west by the river Teign, the sudden inundations of which often do much injury to the property near it. Manganese to some extent is found here.—The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £11. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Rev. George Ware: pres. incumbent, George Ware, 1832: contains 1,560 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 319: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 367: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,613: poor rates in 1837, £166.—S. 2 m. Cannonteign, the seat of the Dowager Countess of Exmouth.

ASHTON, LANCASHIRE, a township in the parish of Preston: 210½ miles from London (coach road 219), 2 from Preston, 7 from Kirkham.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Preston, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 126½ miles.—Money orders issued at Preston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 3,120 acres: 128 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 710: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 815: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,337: poor rates in 1837, £362.—E. 2 m. is Moor Hall, S. 1 m. Talketh Hall; 2 m. Penwortham Hall, the seat of William Marshall, Esq.

ASHTON-WITH-STODDAY, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Lancaster, between the estuary of the Lime and the Lancaster and Preston Railway: 226½ miles from London (coach road 237), 3 from Lancaster, 8 from Garstang.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Preston, to Quarmore station, thence ¼ mile: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 142½ miles.—Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—Contains 1,500 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 39: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 50: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,215: poor rates in 1837, £132.—W. ¼ m. is Ashton Park, the property of the Duke of Hamilton. It was erected in the 14th century, but owing to the numerous alterations, has little of the baronial character left. The scenery in the neighbourhood is very beautiful. The house is furnished in a ducal style of elegance. S. ¼ m. Sheep Park.

ASHTON, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cleley: 61½ miles from London (coach road 62), 1½ from Roade, 5 from Towcester.—Nor. West. Rail. to Roade, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through, Rugby, Roade, &c., 73½ miles.—Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £275: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, John Risley, 1800: contains 1,290 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 417: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 480: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,346: poor rates in 1837, £66.—W. 1½ m. is Stoke Park. The mansion is an elegant structure, cased with stone. The elevation of the house comprises a centre and two wings, united by corridors. The property, which is the residence of F. V. Wentworth, Esq., a branch of the Vernon family, was originally given by Charles I. to Francis Drane, Esq., in lieu of monies which he owed to that gentleman.

ASHTON, NORTHAMPTON, a hamlet in the parish of Ufford—(which see for access): 89 miles from London, 5 from Wansford, 5 from Stamford.—Money orders issued at Wansford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—Contains 980 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 101: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 116: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £956: poor rates in 1837, £66.

ASHTON, NORTHAMPTON, a hamlet in the parish of Oundle—(which see for access): 81 miles from London, 1 from Oundle, 8 from Stilton.—Money orders issued at Oundle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—Contains 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 172: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 193: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,857: poor rates in 1837, £107.

ASHTON (BLANK), GLOUCESTER. See ASTON (BLANK).

ASHTON (COLD), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pucklechurch, union of Chipping-Sodbury: 106½ miles from London, 10 from Bristol, 5 from Bath.—Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon to Bath, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, to Marshfield, 135½, thence 6 miles.—Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—There is a monument to the memory of Sir Beville Granville, who fell here while in pursuit of the parliamentary army, after the battle of Lansdown, in the time of Charles I. Bishop Latimer was for some time incumbent of the parish before his elevation to the bench; and the place was for some time the residence of the descendants of Whittington, the celebrated Lord Mayor of London. The living (Holy Trinity), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £17. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £492: patron, Rev. E. W. Batchellor: pres. incumbent, E. W. Batchellor, 1842: contains 2,310 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, including the hamlet of Pennsylvania, 414: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 476: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,665: poor rates in 1837, £57. South of the village is Ashton Lodge, the seat of Henry Bush, Esq. S. 1 m. 'The Rocks,' the seat of S. S. Webb Horlock, Esq. This family have at different times spelt their names in various ways; and as they have nearly the same arms as the Harleys, Earls of Oxford, it is most probable that they are a branch of that ancient family. Maternally they derive their descent from the Protector Somerset, and, of course, through him, from the Plantagenets. The family were originally settled in Wales, but removed into Dorsetshire, and afterwards into Gloucestershire, on the marriage of the grandfather of the present proprietor of 'The Rocks,' about a century since, with the heiress of General Webb, so celebrated in the wars of Marlborough. Mr. Horlock is a magistrate.

ASHTON-UNDER-HILL, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Tibaldstone: 133½ miles from London (coach road 102), 5 from Evesham, 8 from Tewkesbury. Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Bredon, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, to Eckington, 7½, thence 5 miles. Money orders issued at Evesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The living (St. Barbara), a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, annexed to the vicarage of Beckford, and having jointly a pres. net income of £317: patron, Rev. Dr. Timbrill: pres. incumbent, J. Timbrill, 1797: contains 1,300 acres: 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 342: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 393: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,857: poor rates in 1837, £122. N. 1½ m. is Elmley Park; W. 1½ m. Overbury Park.

ASHTON-KEYNES, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Highworth, Cricklade, and Staple, union of Cricklade and Wootton-Basset: 88½ miles from London (coach road 89), 4½ from Cricklade, 5½ from Cirencester. Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon to Minety, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Minety, &c., 124½ miles. Money orders issued at Cirencester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. Adjoining the churchyard are the remains of a monastery, surrounded by a moat, converted into a farm-house. The village is pleasantly situated; the river Isis or Thames runs through it on one side of the street or road. Here are the remains of four ancient crosses. The charities produce about £113 a year. The living (Holy Cross), a vicarage, with the chapel of Leigh annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £16: pres. net income, £325: patron, J. Pitt, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Charles Pitt, 1834: contains, with Leigh, 3,820 acres: 228 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,332: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,531: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,909: poor rates in 1837, £506. The tithes, the property of the lord of the manor and of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1777.

ASHTON (LONG), SOMERSET, a village and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hartcliffe with Bedminster, union of Bedminster, one mile north of the Bristol and Exeter Railway: 121½ miles from London (coach road 120), 3 from Bristol, 7 from Keynsham. Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 134½ miles. Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The church contains several fine monuments. There is a National school, to the support of which £10 was left by Anne Smyth, in addition to which, a farther bequest of £6. 10s. was left in 1661 by F. Dirrick. The other charities of the parish produce about £142 a year. Petty sessions are held here, and at Bedminster for the division of Bedminster. The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bath, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £10. 17s. 11d.: pres. net income, £117: patron, Sir J. Smyth, Bart., and W. J. Langton: pres. incumbent, G. R. Blackburne, 1841: contains 4,110 acres: 310 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,926: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,215: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,623: poor rates in 1837, £445. N. 1½ m. is Ashton Court, the seat of Sir J. Smyth, Bart. This ancient family was originally settled at Aylebaron, in the Forest of Dean, but has for the last three centuries been located at Ashton. It has been twice raised to the baronetcy, first in the person of Sir H. Smyth, K.B., an active supporter of the royal cause during the interregnum; and, secondly, in that of Sir Jarritt Smyth, who for some time represented Bristol in the House of Commons, and was created a baronet in 1763. The present baronet, the fourth of that creation, succeeded his brother in the title and estates in 1824.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE, LANCASTER, a parish and town in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Salford, union of Ashton-under-Lyne. The parish is six miles long and four wide, and contains the divisions of Ashton-under-Lyne, Audenshaw, Hartshead, and Knott-Lanes, with the villages of Boston, Charlestown, Hay, Hurst, Mossley, Luzley with Soweracre, Staleybridge, and Smallshaw: 192 miles from London (coach road 186), 6 from Manchester. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Ashton: from Derby, through Sheffield, to Ashton, 82 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. and 8½ p.m. Ashton-under-Lyne stands on an eminence rising from the northern bank of the Tame, and is a place of considerable pretension, not only from its manufacturing importance, but also from its social features, the proportion of houses of respectable appearance, as regards the whole town, being very considerable. The streets are some of them certainly narrow, and apparently inconvenient, but there is evidently an improvement in progress, and many of those newly laid out have dwellings of handsome elevation. The town was indeed greatly improved by the expenditure of £10,000, under an act of parliament, passed in 1828, and is well lighted with gas in every part. It is supplied with all the appliances of assembly-rooms, theatre, mechanics' institute, educational institutions, and charitable foundations. The Baptists, the Independents, the Wesleyans, and the New Connexion Methodists, have all associations and places of worship here. The Independdent chapel in Albion Street is a large and handsome structure, rebuilt lately at an expense of between £4,000 and £5,000. There is also a Unitarian, as well as a Catholic and Moravian chapel, in the adjoining township of Duckingfield, which is only separated from Ashton by the river Tame. There is an Israelites' sanctuary in Church Street. There was anciently a market here, but it had fallen out of use for many years, until it was restored by an act of parliament in 1828. Besides the fairs aftermentioned, there is a monthly fair for cattle. Owing to its position on the Tame, and to the centralization here of several important canals, Ashton is admirably situated for trade. Coals are plentifully found in the neighbourhood, and water is always at hand. Three canals, the Yorkshire, Derbyshire, and Lancashire, are joined at Ashton. By the Ashton Canal, merchandise is conveyed to Liverpool; and by the Huddersfield Canal, which communicates through its accessories with the German Ocean, the Yorkshire ports are all open. By the Peak Forest Canal, lime is brought from the rocks of the High Peak, and fuel is transferred in return, so that there is no facility requisite which is wanting to render Ashton a place of importance, especially as the railway system is shortly likely to make it a focus. Cotton manufactures have taken deep root here, and new factories are being constantly erected. The spinners are chiefly employed in the finer kinds of yarn, and the weavers in producing calicoes, ginghams, and muslins. The collieries in the neighbourhood are also extensive, upwards of a thousand men being generally employed in the pits. More than 12,000 hands are engaged in the cotton trade, and the machine power is very considerable. There are also some woollen mills, and a large silk manufactory. The church is a fine structure, of the time of Henry V., and there are three chapels in the town beside in connection with the establishment. The town was originally a borough, but from some cause it was disfranchised: it has now recovered its privileges, but is now under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates. The Earl of Stamford and Warrington is the lord of the manor, and the municipal officers are appointed under his jurisdiction at the court leet. There are no freemen, and there is no criminal jurisdiction in the precincts of the borough. The commissioners of police are resident inhabitants, paying a rental of not less than £35 per annum. There is a court of requests established here under 48th George III., which has cognizance of all small debts contracted throughout the parish, and several adjoining townships in the county palatine of Chester. The commissioners, of whom three are required to form a quorum, must possess a personal property worth £1,000, or an estate of £50 a year. The officers, like the other municipal actaries, are appointed under the authority of the lord of the manor. By the Reform Bill the town of Ashton returns one member to parliament, the number of voters being about 700; the mayor is, of course, the returning officer. The Ashton family formerly possessed exclusive privileges here, even to the extent of life and limb. The residence of that family, which is of great antiquity, is now usually occupied by the steward of the Earl of Stamford and Warrington. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £26. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £900: patron, Earl of Stamford and Warrington: pres. incumbent, G. Chetwode, 1816: contains 9,300 acres: 8,254 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 46,304: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 47,849: poor rates in 1837, £8,613. — Market day, Saturday. Fairs, March 23, April 29, July 25, and Nov. 21, for cattle, &c. — Bankers:—Ashton, Stalybridge, Hyde, and Glossop Bank—draw on Glyn, Halifax, & Co.; Branch of Saddleworth Banking Company—draw on Glyn, Halifax, & Co.; Branch of Manchester and Liverpool District Banking Company—draw on Smith, Payne, and Smith. — Commercial Hotel, Globe Inn, Queen's Arms. — S. 1½ m. is Ashton Hall, a seat of the Duke of Hamilton (see ASHTON-WITH-STODDART); S. 2 m. Gorse Hall.

ASHTON-IN-MACKERFIELD (or ASHTON-IN-THE-WILLOWS), LANCASTER, a township and chapelry in the parish of Winwick, union of Wigan, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby, near the line of the Wigan Railway: 182½ miles from London (coach road 196), 1 from Warrington, 4½ from Wigan. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Warrington, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 98½ miles. — Money orders issued at Warrington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The Wesleyans, Baptists, Independents, Roman Catholics, and Unitarians, have each places of worship here. There is an endowed school, founded in 1588, besides several other schools of various denominations. The charities of the parish produce, on an average, something less than £160 per annum. There are collieries of some extent in the neighbourhood. — The living of the chapelry, which includes the township of Haydock, a perpetual curacy annexed to the rectory of Winwick, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £1. 12s.: pres. net income, £550: patron, Rector of Winwick: pres. incumbent, H. H. Sherlock, 1845: contains 7,600 acres: 1,198 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,410: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,221: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £16,440: poor rates in 1837, £2,371.

ASHTON-ON-MERSEY, CHESTER, a parish and township in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bucklow, union of Altrincham: 193½ miles from London (coach road 183), 8 from Stockport, 5 from Manchester. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Manchester, to Ashton: from Derby, through Sheffield, Manchester, &c., 92 miles. — Money orders issued at Stockport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There are chapels for the Methodists, Independents, and Unitarians in the neighbourhood. The charities connected with the parish produce about £15 a year. — The living (St. Martin), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £13. 4s. 6d.: pres. net income, £608: patron, Rev. C. B. Sowerby: pres. incumbent, C. B. Sowerby, 1835: contains 3,690 acres: 460 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,414: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,776: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,880: poor rates in 1837, £382.

ASHTON (STEEPLE), WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Whorwellsdown, union of Westbury and Whorwellsdown, including the tithings of Ashton Steeple, Ashton West, Littleton, and Hinton, with the chapelry of Semington: 104½ miles from London (coach road 96), 3 from Trowbridge, 7 from Devizes. — Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, to Box, 138½, thence 11 miles. — Money orders issued at Trowbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The bequests for schools produce about £82 per annum. — Fossils have been found at various times in large quantities in this parish. — The living (St. Mary), a vicarage, with the foregoing chapelry annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salisbury, now in that of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £17. 2s. 6d.: pres. net income, £852: patron, Master of Mag. Coll. Cambridge: pres. incumbent, R. Crawley, 1828: contains 6,000 acres: 376 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,941: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,241: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,392. Walter Long, Esq., M.P., is lord of the manor, and resides at Rood Ashton, a splendid Gothic mansion. The family of Longs of Ashton were at a very early date settled at South Wraxhall, and subsequently at Draycote, by marriage with the heiress of Cerne, in the time of Henry VI., and has for the last three hundred years held a position of great consideration in the county. The present proprietor built a new church at West Ashton, in 1846, which he also endowed, and in the same munificent spirit he has since erected a parsonage house and a school.

ASHTON (Wxst), WILTS, a township in the above parish, situated 2½ miles from Trowbridge. (For access and postal, see above.) — Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 307: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 352: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,074: poor rates in 1837, £167.

ASHURST, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Washlingstone, lathe of Aylesford, union of Tunbridge: 51 miles from London (coach road 34), 5 from Tunbridge-Wells, 9 from Tunbridge. — Sou. East. Rail. through Reigate to Tunbridge, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 183 miles. — Money orders issued at Tunbridge-Wells: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £5. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £164: patron, Earl de la Warr: pres. incumbent, R. Ramsden, 1834: contains 1,000 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 224: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 258: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,824: poor rates in 1837, £114. — E. 1½ m. Ashurst Park; 2 m. Ashurst Lodge, the seat of H. Parkin, Esq.

ASHURST, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of West-Grinstead, rape of Bramber, union of Steyning: 52 miles from London (coach road 47), 4 from Steyning, 3 from Henfield. — Sou. East. Rail. through Reigate to Keymer junction, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 184 miles. — Money orders issued at Steyning: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living, a rectory, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester: pres. net income, £268: patron, Mag. Coll. Oxford: pres. incumbent, T. N. Blagden, 1836: contains 2,250 acres: 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 427: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 491: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,320: poor rates in 1837, £133.

ASHWATER, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Black Torrington, union and division of Hols-worthy, 14 from Oakhampton. — Gt. West. Rail. to Crediton, thence 33 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 239 miles. — Money orders issued at Holsworthy: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12 noon. — Good building stone is found here. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £26. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £437: patron, Rev. T. Melhuish: pres. incumbent, T. Melhuish, 1823: contains 4,220 acres: 159 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,046: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,203: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,906: poor rates in 1837, £225. — Fairs, first Tuesday in May, and first Monday after August 1.

ASHWELL, HERTS, a parish and village in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Odsey, union of Royston: 43½ miles from London (coach road 41), 4½ from Baldock, 6 from Biggleswade. — East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Ware, thence 17½ miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Bletchley, Bedford, &c., 120 miles. — Money orders issued at Baldock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — This was formerly a market town, and being a little to the north of the Icknield way, is supposed to be of Roman origin. The manor belongs to the see of London. The church, which has lately been rebuilt, has a lofty spire. There are Wesleyan and Independent chapels in the village, and a free school, founded by Henry Colborne in 1655, which is conducted on the National system. Upwards of forty children are instructed in it, the master having a salary of £50 a year. There are almshouses for six inmates, and the other charities produce about £40 per annum, part of which is appropriated to the apprenticing of poor children. On Harborough Hill, within the bounds of the parish, are the remains of a quadrangular encampment, which is supposed to have been an exploratory station of the Romans, as it commands a sight of the country on all the sides from which an enemy could approach, and many urns, coins, and other remains of that people have been dug up in the neighbourhood. Dr. Cudworth, master of Christ's College, Cambridge, who was the author of the "Intellectual System," died here in 1688, being at that time vicar of the parish. — The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £22. 3s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £513: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, Henry Morrice, 1812: contains 3,500 acres: 205 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,235: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,420: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,675: poor rates in 1837, £448.

ASHWELL, RUTLAND, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Alstoc, union of Oakham: 131½ miles from London (coach road 99), 4 from Oakham, 3 from Overton. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Oakham, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Melton, &c., 49 miles. — Money orders issued at Oakham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — A bequest of Elizabeth Cox, left in 1646 for the poor of the parish, produces about £19 a year. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £20. 16s. 3d.: pres. net income, £401: patron, Viscount Downe: pres. incumbent, Hon. T. Dawnay: contains 1,890 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 223: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 256: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,740: poor rates in 1837, £91.

ASHWELL-THORPE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Depwade: 118½ miles from London (coach road 100), 3 from Wymondham, 7 from Attleburgh. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Wymondham, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, &c., 158½ miles. — Money orders issued at Oakham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The remains of Sir Edward de Thorpe were interred here, and the tomb bears effigies of himself and lady. He was the founder of the family, from whom the property of the manor passed to the celebrated Sir J. Bouchier, Lord Berners, in the reign of Henry VII. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, united with that of Wrenningham, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £648: patron, Lord Berners: pres. incumbent, Robert Wilson, 1826: contains 1,080 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 469: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 539: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,377: poor rates in 1837, £155. — E. 1 m. is Breacon New Hall; Ashwell Hall.

ASHWICK, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and division of Kilmersdon, union of Shepton-Mallet: 121½ miles from London (coach road 118), 3½ from Shepton-Mallet, 9 from Frome. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 152 miles. — Money orders issued at Shepton-Mallet: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — There are coal mines in the neighbourhood, which afford employment to several of the inhabitants. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells: pres. net income, £118: patron, Vicar of Kilmersdon: pres. incumbent, John Davis, 1826: contains 1,528 acres: 213 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 945: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £3,276: poor rates in 1837, £439. — N. is Binegar and Ashwood Grove; Gurney Slade, the seat of Richard Streatley, Esq., is within the precincts of the parish. S. Maesbury Castle, a Roman entrenchment.

ASHWICKEN (or ASHWYKEN), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Freebridge-Lynn: 105 miles from London (coach road 98), 4½ from Lynn, 5 from Castle-Rising. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Lynn, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, &c., 145 miles. — Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a rectory, with that of Leziat attached, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £435: patron, Rev. J. Freeman: pres. incumbent, J. Freeman, 1841: contains 1,260 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 78: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 89: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,261: poor rates in 1837, £60: tithes commuted for £520 per annum.

ASHWOOD, STAFFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Swinford (King's). On a heath near a bridge over the Stour, in this neighbourhood, are the remains of a Roman encampment.

ASHWORTH, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Middleton, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Salford: 206½ miles from London (coach road 192), 3 from Rochdale, 11 from Manchester. — Nor. West. Rail. to Rochdale, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Manchester, &c., 74½ miles. — Money orders issued at Rochdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £119: patron, W. Egerton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, D. Rathbone, 1832: contains 730 acres: 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 325: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 374: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £824: poor rates in 1837, £126.

ASKE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Easby: 290 miles from London (coach road 235), 2 from Richmond, 11 from Darlington. — Nor. West. Rail. through Darlington to Richmond, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Darlington, &c., 158 miles. — Money orders issued at Richmond: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Contains 1,670 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 119: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 134: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,462: poor rates in 1837, £108.

ASKERNE (or ASKERON), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Campsall: 191 miles from London (coach road 169), 7 from Doncaster, 8 from Ferrybridge. — Nor. West. Rail. to Swinton, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Swinton, &c., 59 miles. — Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Askerne has become celebrated for its mineral springs, the waters of which are of a sulphurous quality. In the neighbourhood of the village is Conisborough Castle, a fine ruin of a castle, placed on an eminence, the description of which will be given in the account of the village of Conisborough. — Contains 800 acres. 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 237: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 253: poor rates in 1837, £69.

ASKERSWELL, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Eggerton, union and division of Bridport: 153 miles from London (coach road 131), 4 from Bridport, 8 from Beaminster. — Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Taunton, &c., 206 miles. — Money orders issued at Bridport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The village is very pleasantly situated in a valley, surrounded by hills of very graceful outline. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £9. 2s. 6d.: pres. net income, £160: patron, Rev. J. Cox, D.D.: pres. incumbent, Alfred Cox, 1842: contains 2,330 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 233: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 268: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,044: poor rates in 1837, £50.

ASKERTON, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Lanercost, on a branch of the Irthing: 333½ miles from London (coach road 316), 13 from Carlisle, 12 from Longtown. — Nor. West. Rail. through Carlisle to Milton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 201½ miles. — Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The village stands near the famous Picts' Wall, built to repel the incursions of the Scots, and had formerly always a garrison. Berethen Castle, formerly a royal fortress, stands on the banks of the Cambeck, but has now been long in ruins. — Contains 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 513: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 584: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £7,974: poor rates in 1837, £210. — Here is Asherton Castle.

ASKHAM, NOTTINGHAM, a chapelry in the Liberty of Southwell and Scrooby: 165 miles from London (coach road 140), 3 from Tuxford, 6 from East Retford. — Nor. West. Rail. to Newark, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Newark, &c., 50 miles. — Money orders issued at Retford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — The living, a curacy not in charge, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the see of York, united to the vicarage of East Drayton and the curacy of Stokeham, having jointly a pres. net income of £165: patron, Dean and Chapter of York: pres. incumbent, J. Goodacre, 1845: contains 1,240 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 288: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 331: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,608: poor rates in 1837, £130.

ASKHAM, WESTMORELAND, a parish and township in Westward, union of Westward, on the river Lowther: 281½ miles from London (coach road 280), 4 from Penrith, 2 from Lowther. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Clifton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 149½ miles. — Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — There is a school here, with an endowment of £11 a year. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £180: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, J. T. Ward, 1832: contains 3,000 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 635: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 730: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,183: poor rates in 1837, £192. — Close by Askham is the magnificent domain of the Earl of Lonsdale, one of the noblest in the kingdom. The present fabric was completed about the year 1809; and was built of a peculiarly fine white rose-tinted stone, after the style of the castles of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. The principal entrance is on the north side, by a lofty arched gateway, from which there branches off an embattled wall on either side, enclosing a court, from which, again, there is an entrance to a fine lawn, with a roadway on each side of it thirty feet wide. By these, a terrace, 35 yards wide and 170 long, is attained. This has a flight of steps twenty feet wide, which serves as the direct approach from the court to the grand hall. An open-work porch, of admirable design, embellishes the front, and constitutes the immediate entrance to the castle hall, which is ninety feet high and sixty feet square, containing the great staircase which leads to the state apartments. On every story there are open corridors, which lead to the several suites of rooms, the windows of the galleries being filled with stained glass. The chief apartments are in the south front, and are all of most spacious dimensions. In the centre is the saloon, having the drawing and dining-room on either hand, and beyond them the breakfast and billiard-room. The main building of the castle communicates with the outer offices on one side, and with the kitchen offices on the other, by open cloisters. This front within the cloisters is 280 feet long, and commands some most splendid views of the deer park, with all its undulations and noble timber, the latter placed in the most beautiful groupings and best positions. The north front, which also contains many very elegant and superbly furnished apartments, is 420 feet long, and is enriched by eight lofty towers. The views from this front are striking in the extreme, commanding Penrith beacon-hill, Saddleback, and the Scotch mountains. Altogether there are few domains, if any, in the kingdom that possess finer prospects, or are equally striking specimens of the modern castellated structures, than Lowther. There was formerly a village of Lowther, but the cottages were pulled down, and the ground added to the demesne of the castle. According to Olaus Wormius, who was consulted by Spelman, and cited by Mr. Gough in his edition of Camden, the name of Loder, or Lothar, was common among the ancient kings of Denmark, and implied "fortunate honour." Whether the family of Lonsdale can claim, with sufficient clearness to be respected, any derivation from so ancient a title, does not appear; but it is certain they were people of distinction as early as the time of Henry II. Sir John Lowther, M.P. for Cumberland, was created a baronet of Nova Scotia in 1640, and was succeeded by his son Sir John, who was the 31st knight in the family almost in direct succession. He was made a privy councillor on the arrival of William III., and, shortly after, lord-lieutenant of Westmoreland and Cumberland, and was raised to the peerage by the titles of Viscount Lonsdale and Baron Lowther. But the viscounty ceased with his grandson Henry, who died in 1750, and the baronetcy devolved upon his great nephew Sir James Lowther, whose father was governor of Barbadoes. That baronet sat in parliament for the county for several years, and was elevated to the peerage by the titles of Baron Lowther of Lowther, Viscount Lowther, and Earl of Lonsdale. He married a daughter of the Earl of Bute; but, having no issue, obtained a new patent, and was created Baron and Viscount Lowther, with remainder to the heirs male of the Rev. Sir W. Lowther, Bart., of Swillington, who, upon his death, took these titles, and was, in 1807, created Earl of Lonsdale. He was succeeded in the titles and estates in 1844 by the present earl, who had previously, in 1841, been summoned to the House of Lords, with the title of Baron Lowther.

ASKHAM-BRYAN (or EAST ASKHAM), YORK, a parish and township in the lower division of the ainsty of the city of York: 219 miles from London (coach road 196), 4 from York, 6 from Tadcaster. — Nor. West. Rail. to Copmanthorpe, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, 86 miles. — Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There is a small free school here, and the parochial charities produce about £33 a year. — The living (St. Nicholas), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of York, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £120: patron, H. Croft, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. S. Thompson, 1807: contains 1,920 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 342: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 393: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,397: poor rates in 1837, £167. The great and small tithes, the property of the vicar, lord of the manor, and the perpetual curate, were commuted in 1811.

ASKHAM-RICHARD (or WEST ASKHAM), YORK, a parish in the lower division of the ainsty of the city of York: 217 miles from London (coach road 195), 5 from York, 5 from Tadcaster. —

Nor. West. Rail. to Copmanthorpe, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, 85 miles.---Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---There is a school here which has a small endowment.---The living (Virgin Mary), & disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, H. Croft, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. S. Thompson, 1816: contains 960 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 232: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 267: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,685: poor rates in 1837, £90. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriators and the vicar, were commuted in 1813.

ASKRIGG, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a market town and chapelry in the parish of Aysgarth, on the river Ure, not far from the moors: 279½ miles from London (coach road 246), 12 from Middleham.---Nor. West. Rail. to Northallerton, 249½ miles, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Northallerton, Bedale, and Leyburn, 147½ miles.---Money orders issued at Hawes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 11.55 a.m.---The town has much picturesque scenery, with waterfalls, and other fine features of landscape, about it. The free grammar-school of Yorebridge was endowed in the 43d of Elizabeth by Anthony Besson, with £64. 10s. per annum; but its revenues now are £210 per year; and there are also almshouses for six poor women of this village and Low Abbotside, each of whom receives £10 a year, left by Christopher Alderson in 1807. There are some lead mines in the neighbourhood.---The living (St. Oswald), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £15.: pres. net income, £110: patron, Vicar of Aysgarth: pres. incumbent, Richard Wood, 1823: contains 4,790 acres: 187 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 726: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,941: poor rates in 1837, £333.---Market day, Thursday. Fairs, May 12 1st Thursday in June, July 11 and 12, October 28 and 29, for cattle.---King's Arms Hotel, New Inn.

ASKWITH, YORK, a township in the parish of Weston, near the river Wharfe: 219½ miles from London (coach road 208), 3 from Otley, 12 from Skipton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Leeds to Wiseton, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 89½ miles.---Money orders issued at Otley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---Contains 3,180 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 460: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 497: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,846: poor rates in 1837, £98. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1779.

ASLACKBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Aveland, parts of Kesteven, union of Bourne: 135 miles from London (coach road 104), 2 from Folkingham, 7 from Bourne.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Spalding, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Newark, &c., 58 miles.---Money orders issued at Folkingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Tanner says of this place:—There seems to have been a preceptory or commandery of the Temple at the manor here, founded by John le Mareschal about the time of Richard I., which was afterwards given to the hospitallers, and, as part of their possessions, was granted in 33d of Henry VIII. to Edward Lord Clinton and Ursula, his wife. A farm-house now occupies the site. It still bears the name of "the Temple," and contains some remains of the church of the order. There are also the ruins of a very ancient castle in the neighbourhood.---The living (St. James), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £12. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £453: patron, R. F. Barstow, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. G. Moore, 1840: contains 4,810 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 507: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 583: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,862: poor rates in 1837, £127: tithes commuted in 1765.

ASLACTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Depwade: 119 miles from London (coach road 97), 4 from Long Stratton, 5 from Buckenham.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Attleborough, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Ely, &c., 158½ miles.---Money orders issued at Long Stratton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There is a Wesleyan chapel here. The parochial charities produce something under £20 per annum. Aslacton was the native place of Sir William le Neve, the herald and antiquary. Many of the inhabitants are employed in the manufacture of bombazines.---The living (St. Michael), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £15. 5s.: pres. net income, £58: patron, J. Cooper, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Charles Carver, 1793: contains 1,310 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 465: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,733: poor rates in 1837, £323.

ASLACTON (or ASSELACTON), NORTH, a chapelry in the parish of Watton, on the river Snite: 138½ miles from London (coach road 123), 2 from Bingham, 12 from Newark.---Nor. West. Rail. through Nottingham to Burton Joice, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton Joice, &c., 28½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---Aslacton was the birth-place of Archbishop Cranmer, whose name will be ever revered so long as the benefits of true religion shall be experienced in the world. Thomas Cranmer was born in the year 1489, and was educated at Jesus College, Cambridge, being the son of one of the class of yeomen, whose descendants were destined to play so prominent a part in the history of their country. He soon became distinguished as a divine; and having taken the king's view of his marriage with his first wife, Catherine of Arragon, the widow of his brother, he was sent to the foreign universities to vindicate the measure of the divorce, and on his return was promoted to the archbishopric of Canterbury. While holding the primacy, he zealously promoted the cause of the Reformation, and was the main instrument of causing the Bible to be translated into the vernacular language, and to be read publicly in the churches. But this great man's character was reduced by weaknesses which took off largely from the glory of his general conduct; and in 1536, when Henry desired to get rid of Anne Boleyn, as he had previously done of Catherine, Cranmer was mean enough to pronounce the sentence of divorce. This conduct, however, won him his master's especial favour, and he became his fast friend against Gardiner, Bishop of Winchester, and all his other enemies, to the end of his days, and at length appointed him one of the council of regency to his young son, Edward VI. The young king being chiefly brought up under Cranmer's care, he was enabled to further the Reformation with consistency and effect; and by his influence chiefly the liturgy was framed, and the homilies and articles of faith drawn up and adopted. On the accession of Queen Mary, he had to encounter the fierceness of that wrath which had been long restrained by the advocates of the Romish church; and he was accused of blasphemy, perjury, incontinence, and heresy; was tried, and sentenced to be deprived of office, and was condemned to death. Being tempted by the offer of pardon, he was induced to sign a recantation of what were deemed his heretical opinions; but when brought out in St. Mary's church, in Oxford, whither he had been sent to read his recantation in public, he boldly proclaimed his repentance, warned the people of the errors of Romanism, and stated his readiness to suffer death at the stake, in order to expiate his temporary apostasy. This so greatly enraged his persecutors, that they dragged him to a stake in front of Balliol College, where he freely submitted to the flames, holding his right hand in the fire, and exclaiming, "That unworthy hand! that unworthy hand!" Yet, whatever may be thought of the occasional unsteadiness of principle which he evinced, certainly no man contributed so largely to the establishment of the Reformation in England. He was executed on the 21st March, 1556. Aslacton forms a portion of the Duchy of Lancaster. The living (St. Michael), is a perpetual curacy, united to the vicarage of Watton, and a peculiar of the collegiate church of Southwell: contains 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 424: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 488: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,931: poor rates in 1837, £116. The great and small tithes of Aslacton and Scarrington, belonging to the dean and chapter of Lincoln, the vicar, and the lay impropriators, were commuted in 1780.

ASPALL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Hartismere: 9 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 85), 2 from Debenham, 6 from Eye. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Haughley, thence 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 224 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles. Money orders issued at Stonham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 5 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £149: patron, Rev. T. Chevallier and B. Chevallier, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. H. Chevallier, 1847: contains 1,240 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 152: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £997: poor rates in 1837, £121. Aspell Hall, the seat of Mrs. Chevallier.

ASPAL-STONHAM. See STONHAM-ASPEL.

ASPATRIA (or ASPATRICK), CUMBERLAND, a parish and township in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Allerdale ward, below Derwent, union of Wigton. The name is supposed to be derived from Gospatrick, Earl of Dunbar, first lord of Allerdale. It comprises the townships of Aspatria with Brayton, Hayton with Melay, and Outerside with Allerby: 328 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 311), 8 from Cockermouth, 9 from Wigton. Nor. West. Rail.

through Carlisle to Wigton, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 193 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles. Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 11 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m. Aspatria, which was formerly only a long straggling village, has, by the erection of a considerable number of substantial dwellings, assumed the appearance of a town, and there is now a pitch market here. It is one of the polling-places for the western division of the county; and there is a bed of red freestone at Hayton, and a seam of coal at Outerside. The church is a fine structure in the Norman style. An Independent church was formed here in 1827. A bequest of Sir Thomas Musgrave produces about £10 a year to the parish. The living (St. Kentigern), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £10. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £249: patron, Bishop of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, E. Salkeld, 1838: contains 8,610 acres: 270 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,921: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,209: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,837. The tithes of Aspatria, Brumfield, and Allhallows, the property of the Bishop of Carlisle, the lay impropriators, and the vicars, were commuted in 1817. Here is Brayton Hall, the seat of Sir Wilfrid Lawson, Bart. The family was first known in the time of Henry III., when John Lawson was lord of Fawlisgrave, in Yorkshire; and from him descended, through a long line of ancestors, Sir Wilfrid Lawson, Knight, who married the widow of Thomas Leigh, Esq. of Isell, in Cumberland, and thus acquired the Brayton estate. The grandson of Sir Wilfrid, also Wilfrid Lawson, was created a baronet by James II. The title passed through nine holders, and at length expired with the tenth baronet, who died in 1806, and left his estates to the nephew of his lady, Thomas Wybergh, Esq., who assumed the name and arms of Lawson. He was succeeded in 1812 by his brother, Wilfrid Wybergh, Esq., who also assumed the name of Lawson on acquiring the estates, and was created a baronet in 1831, having married the third daughter of the late Sir James Graham, Bart., of Netherby. Brayton Hall is a mansion of considerable pretension, furnished with great taste, and containing a very fine collection of pictures. There is a deer park attached. In the precincts of Aspatria also is Warwick Hall, the seat of Robert Warwick, Esq. The original name of the family of the present proprietor was Bonner; but they assumed the name of Warwick in 1792, on succeeding to the estate, after the death of Francis Warwick, Esq., who, it appears by the parochial register, was the nineteenth lord of the manor of that name. The mansion, which was rebuilt about forty years ago, is pleasantly situated on the banks of the river Eden.

ASPEDEN, HERTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Edwinstree, union of Buntingford: 36 miles from London (coach road 31), 1 from Buntingford, 9 from Stevenage. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Ware, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 158 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. There is a curious monument in the church to the memory of Sir Robert Clifford, master of the ordnance to Henry VIII. There is a free school here, endowed with £17 a year for the master, and £7. 5s. for the clothing of some of the children.

The parish, in common with Layston, enjoys a bequest from Bishop Ward; the other charities return about £26 per annum. The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £15. 5s. 2½d: pres. net income, £357: patron, Countess of Mexborough: pres. incumbent, Hon. H. R. Yorke, 1829: contains 1,620 acres: 113 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 529: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 606: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,739: poor rates in 1837, £253.

ASPLEY, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Eccleshall. Contains 540 acres: 4 houses.

ASPLEY-WITH-FORDHALL, WARWICKSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Wootton-Waven: 104½ miles from London (coach road 98), 4 from Nuneaton, 7 from Coventry. Nor. West. Rail. to Nuneaton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nuneaton, &c., 40½ miles. Money orders issued at Nuneaton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.

ASPLEY-GUISE, BEDFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Manshead, union of Woburn: 5½ miles from London (coach road 43), 2 from Woburn, 7 from Ampthill. Nor. West. Rail. to Woburn Sands, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Bletchley, &c., 96 miles. Money orders issued at Woburn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here. A small portion of the parish stretches into Buckinghamshire. There are some interesting monuments in the church to the memory of the family of Guise and Sir Edward Sadleir. There was formerly a market held here on Friday, and a fair on June 17, but both have long been discontinued. The living (St. Botolph), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £15. 16s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £215: patron, Duke of Bedford: pres. incumbent, J. R. Moore, 1844: contains 1,960 acres: 196 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,139: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,310: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,544: poor rates in 1837, £281. All tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1760.

ASPULL, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Wigan: 207½ miles from London (coach road 203), 3 from Wigan, 7 from Bolton. Nor. West. Rail. to Wigan, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 75½ miles. Money orders issued at Wigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the neighbouring collieries. The living is a curacy in the patronage of the rector of Wigan: contains 1,930 acres: 422 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £3,323: poor rates in 1837, £723. S. 1 m. is Pennington Hall, and Ince Hall.

ASSELBY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Howden: 227½ miles from London (coach road 178), 2 from Howden, 7 from Selby. Nor. West. Rail. through Normanton, Selby, to Howden, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Selby, &c., 95½ miles. Money orders issued at Howden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Contains 910 acres: 71 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,091: poor rates in 1837, £146.

ASSENDON, OXFORDSHIRE, a township in the parish of Pirton: 37½ miles from London (coach road 39), 4 from Henly-on-Thames, 7 from Watlington. Gt. West. Rail. to Twyford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 175 miles. Money orders issued at Henley-on-Thames: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. There is a land spring here, which only appears after a long continuance of wet weather, and then occasionally overflows the low lands in the neighbourhood.

ASSINGDEN. See ASHINGDON.

ASSINGTON, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Babergh, union of Sudbury: 61½ miles from London (coach road 57), 5 from Sudbury, 4 from Nayland. East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Colchester, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 183½ miles. Money orders issued at Sudbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m. post closes 5 p.m. John Gurdon left £100 in 1777 for the instruction of the poor children of the parish. The living (St. Edmund), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £390: patron, J. Gurdon, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Dan. R. Fearon, 1844: contains 3,450 acres: 129 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 778: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 894: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £3,829: poor rates in 1837, £345. N. is Assington Hall, the seat of John Gurdon, Esq. This family was originally from Gourdon, near Cahors, on the borders of Perigord, and came over with William the Conqueror; the name may still be found on the roll of Battle Abbey. Sir Adam de Gurdon was bailiff of Alton in the time of Henry III., but being considered a member of the Montford faction, was outlawed for rebellion and treason. He was, however, on the accession of Edward I., restored in blood, and made, in 1272, warden of Wolmer Forest. He married three wives, and had two sons by the last, the second of whom settled in London, and had a son, John, who became eminent as a merchant. The sixth in lineal descent from that gentleman, who married Rose, the daughter and heiress of Robert Leston, Esq. of Lavenham, in Suffolk, served the office of high sheriff, and purchased Assington Hall. John Gurdon, Esq., the great-grandson of that gentleman, sat in the long parliament for the county, and was appointed one of the committee to sit in judgment on Charles I., but did not attend the trial. The present proprietor succeeded to the estate in 1817, on the death of his father.

ASTBURY, CHESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Northwich. It comprises the townships of Buglawton, Davenport, Hulme-Walfield, Moreton with Alcumlow, Newbold-Astbury, Odd-rode, Radnor, Smallwood, and Summerford, and the chapelry of Congleton: 181 miles from London (coach road 160), 2 from Congleton, 6 from Sandbach. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Newbold Astbury, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 79 miles. Money orders issued at Congleton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. The ceilings of the church, which are of oak, put up in 1616-7, are well worthy of attention. In the churchyard there are several monuments of the Brereton family. The charities of the parish produce about £75 a year. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of silk. There is a bed of limestone in the parish, which rests upon a gritstone, found to be an excellent material for building. The lime is of fair quality, and a seam of coal is found in the roof of the limestone. —The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, with the chapelry of Congleton annexed, is valued at £68: pres. net income £1,485: patron, B. J. Greville, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Crewe, 1836: contains 18,070 acres: 2,579 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 14,335: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 16,485: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £27,232.

ASTERBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Gartree, parts of Lindsey, union of Horncastle; 165½ miles from London (coach road 143), 7 from Horncastle, 7 from Louth. —East. Co<sup>o</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Leghourn, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln, Bardsey, &c., 73 miles. —Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —Mr. Anthony Ascham, in 1638, left a small endowment for poor children. —The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8. 0s. 10d.: pres. net income, £210: patron, T. Southwell, Esq.: pres. incumbent, B. F. Fowler, 1807: contains 620 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 256: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 294: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £884: poor rates in 1837, £136. The great and small tithes of the townships of Glouceby and Asterby, the property of the lay impropiator, the clerical rector, and the vicar, were commuted in 1776.

ASTERLEY (or EASTERLEY), OXFORDSHIRE, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chadlington. It is stated by Warton, in his History of Kiddington, that—Among the fields and woods of this parish (Kiddington), detached at almost half-a-mile's distance from Over Kiddington, to the south-west, is a single farm-house, called Asterley, which also denominates a manor. Here was once the parish of Asterley, of which the memory now scarcely subsists in tradition. But there is a large field, called Chapelbroke, now covered with bushes and high trees, in which the church, long since decayed or destroyed, may probably be supposed to have stood. The church, called the parochial church of Asterley in the registers of Lincoln, was dedicated to St. Peter. It was a rectory, and was valued in 1291 at seven marks and a half, and is recited under the deanery of Cheping-Norton. In the year 1466, John Chedworth, bishop of Lincoln, united and incorporated the church of Asterley with that of Kiddington, on the petition of Sir Richard Illingworth, &c., and with the consent of Fulke Burmyngham, arch-deacon of Oxford. It is rarely that we see a place so entirely erased from the face of England.

ASTHALL, OXFORDSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bampton, union of Witney. It stands on a small rivulet, and includes the hamlet of Asthall-Leigh: 78 miles from London (coach road 70), 2 from Burford, 6 from Witney. —Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 112 miles. —Money orders issued at Burford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —There is a large barrow near the great Roman road, called Akeman Street, which is supposed to be the monument of some great ancient warrior; and in the church there is a stone coffin, said to contain the remains of the mistress of Henry I., whose name was Alice Corbett, who was mother of Reginald Earl of Cornwall. Woollen manufacture, to some extent, is carried on in the place. The parochial charities produce about £7 per annum. Near the church there is a farm-house, which was formerly the residence of Sir Richard Jones, one of the puisne judges of the time of Charles I. —The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £7. 9s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Eton College: pres. incumbent, Henry Gregory, 1834: contains 1,180 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 389: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 147: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,436: poor rates in 1837, £231.

ASTLEY, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Leigh, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby: 198½ miles from London (coach road 195), 11 from Manchester, 7 from Bolton. —Nor. West. Rail. to Newton Junction, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 66½ miles. —Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m. —The Wesleyans and Unitarians each have a chapel here. There is a school with an endowment of £26, and the place is otherwise well supplied with educational establishments. The other parochial charities produce something more than £50 a year. Fustian is manufactured here to a considerable extent. —The living (St. Stephen), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £39. 19s.: pres. net income, £250: patron, Vicar of Leigh: pres. incumbent, Alfred Hewlett, 1840: contains 2,120 acres: 319 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,011: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,313: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £4,059: poor rates in 1837, £407.

ASTLEY, SALOP, a chapelry in the parish of St. Mary, liberties of Shrewsbury: 160 miles from London (coach road 153), 5 from Shrewsbury, 11 from Wellington. —Nor. West. Rail. to Stafford, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 62 miles. —Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the jurisdiction of the peculiar court of St. Mary, Shrewsbury, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £56: patron, Corporation: pres. incumbent, W. Vaughan, 1828: contains 1,450 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 264: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 303: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,528: poor rates in 1837, £44.

ASTLEY, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the Kirby division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow, union of Nuneaton: 100½ miles from London (coach road 98), 4 from Nuneaton, 7 from Coventry. —Nor. West. Rail. to Nuneaton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nuneaton, &c., 40 miles. —Money orders issued at Nuneaton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Astley Castle, once the seat of Henry Grey, Marquis of Dorset, the father of Lady Jane Grey, though now reduced from its splendour, is still in habitable repair. According to Tanner—In the 17th of Edward III., Sir Thomas de Astley obtained leave of the king and the ordinary to change the chantry, which he had there founded some years before, into a dean and secular canons; and then erected there, in the form of a cross, a beautiful collegiate church to the honour of the assumption of the blessed Virgin. It consisted only of a dean, two canons or prebendaries, viz. of Milverton and Wolvey, and three vicars, be- sides clerks and servants, and was valued in the 26th of Henry VIII. at £46. 0s. 8d. The site was granted to the Marquis of Dorset in the 38th of Henry VIII.—The living (Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £60: patron, T. Newdigate, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. Freeman, 1845: contains 2,550 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 371: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 426: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,277: poor rates in 1837, £320.

ASTLEY, WORCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Doddingtree, union of Martley, on a small tributary of the Severn: 136 miles from London (coach road 121), 5 from Bewdley, 9 from Worcester.—Gt. West. Rail. to Droitwich, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 62 miles.—Money orders issued at Bewdley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—Tanner says—An alien priory of Benedictine monks, subordinate to the abbey of Taurinus, near Ebroix, founded by Ralph de Todenet, in the time of William the Conqueror, or, however, close after the year 1160. Upon the frequent seizure of this estate into the king's hands during the wars with France, the abbot and convent of St. Taurinus obtained leave, in the time of Richard II., to sell the same to John Beauchamp, who was in possession of it for some time; but afterwards, under Edward IV., this priory was annexed to the college of Westbury, in Gloucestershire, and, on the Dissolution, was granted by Henry VIII. to Sir Ralph Sadler. A hermitage near Redstone Ferry, dug out of the rock, was a frequent resort, during Popish times, for pilgrims of high degree. It is now a public house. There is a school here, endowed with £20 a year; the other parochial charities produce £5. 15s. a year.—The living (St. Peter), a rectory exempt from visitation, in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £5. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £623: patron, Trustees of Rev. D. J. J. Cookes: pres. incumbent, H. W. Cookes, 1842: contains 3,310 acres: 167 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 834: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 959: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,820: poor rates in 1837, £429.

ASTLEY (ABBOTS), SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stottesden, union of Bridgenorth, and within the parliamentary boundary of that borough: 141 miles from London (coach road 142), 4 from Bridgenorth, 4 from Wenlock.—Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 69½ miles.—Money orders issued at Bridgenorth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—Mrs. C. Phillips left, in 1805, a small endowment for a school here. The river Severn traverses the parish.—The living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Lichfield: patron, T. Whitmore, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. Whitmore, 1822: contains 3,330 acres: 135 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 657: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 755: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,571: poor rates in 1837, £323. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and of the incumbent, were commuted in 1773.—W. 1 m. is Aldenham Hall, the seat of Sir John E. E. Dalberg Acton, Bart. The family derives its immediate origin from William de Acton Burnel, who lived in the reign of Edward III. The tenth in lineal descent from him, Edward Acton, Esq. of Aldenham Hall, was, in 1643, created a baronet for his fidelity to the king. The sixth baronet, Sir John Francis Edward, went over to Italy, and became ultimately commander of the land and sea forces of Naples, and was for some time prime minister of that country. The seventh baronet married the only child and heir of Emerie Joseph, Duke of Dalberg, and assumed the pre-name of Dalberg by sign manual. He died in 1837, and was succeeded by the present baronet, who was an infant at the time. E. ¼ m. Stanley Hall, the seat of Sir Henry Thomas Tyrwitt. The family of Tyrwitt was very ancient in Northumberland, being lineally descended from Sir Hercules Tyrwitt, who was living sixty or seventy years before the Conquest, but dates its more immediate origin from Dr. Tyrwitt, residentiary of St. Paul's, and canon of Windsor, who died in 1742. His grandson, Thomas Tyrwitt, Esq., who sat in the House of Commons for Denbigh and Shrewsbury in 1790, inherited the estates of Sir Thomas Jones, his maternal cousin, assumed the name of Jones, instead of Tyrwitt, and was created a baronet in 1808. His son, by royal license, reverted to the name of Tyrwitt, and was succeeded in the title and estates in 1839, by the present baronet.

ASTLEY. See SWILLINGTON.

ASTON, BUCKINGHAM, a hamlet in the parish of Ivinghoe: 36½ miles from London (coach road 34), 1 from Ivinghoe, 7 from Dunstable.—Nor. West. Rail. to Tring, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Tring, &c., 105½ miles.—Money orders issued at Ivinghoe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—Contains 1,180 acres: 79 houses.

ASTON-BY-BUDWORTH, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Great Budworth: 190½ miles from London (coach road 176), 3 from Northwich, 8 from Warrington.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Acton, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 97 miles.—Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—Contains 2,830 acres: 53 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,073: poor rates in 1837, £415.

ASTON (or ASTON-BY-SUTTON), CHESTER, a chapelry and township in the parish of Runcorn: 189½ miles from London (coach road 181), 3 from Frodsham, 8 from Northwich.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Preston, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, to Acton, &c., 99 miles.—Money orders issued at Frodsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—Leycester, in speaking of this place in his antiquities of Chester, says—After Middleton chapel fell into decay, another chapel was erected in later ages somewhat nearer to the hall of Aston, called Aston chapel, situated within the parish of Runcorne. And this Aston chapel was lately made a parochial chapel in our days, by the grant of John Bridgeman, bishop of Chester, dated 16th April, 1635, by the procurement of Sir Thomas Aston, Bart. of Aston, and so it is now become a parochial chapel for the adjacent villages of Sutton, Aston-juxta-Sutton, Middleton-Grange, and Aston-Grange.—The living, a perpetual curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Runcorn, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £18. 15s. 4d.: pres. net income, £88: patron, Sir Arthur Aston: pres. incumbent, Edward Marsden, 1844: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 206: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 237: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,372: poor rates in 1837, £74.

ASTON AND THORNTON, DERBYSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Hope, on a branch of the Derwent: 189½ miles from London (coach road 164), 6 from Tideswell, 3 from Derwent.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby, to Sheffield, and thence 12½ miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 57½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 2 p.m.---Contains 22 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,194: poor rates in 1837, £17.

ASTON, NORTH WALES, a township in the parish of Hawarden, Flint: 187 miles from London (coach road 197), 2 from Hawarden, 6 from Flint.---Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Queensferry, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, to Chester, &c., 79 miles.---Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Most of the inhabitants are employed in an extensive iron-foundry here.---Contains 41 houses.---In the vicinity is Aston Hall.

ASTON (or PIPE-ASTON), HEREFORDSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wigmore, union of Ludlow: 155 miles from London (coach road 143), 4 from Wigmore, 10 from Leominster.---Gt. West. Rail. to Worcester, thence 32 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, to Worcester, &c., 104 miles.---Money orders issued at Leominster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 6 a.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £2. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £84: patron, Representatives of T. A. Knight, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Wm. Williams, 1842: contains 1,098 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 52: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 60: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £522: poor rates in 1837, £10.---E. ½ m. is Hay Park; 1 m. Moor Park.

ASTON, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broadwater, union of Hertford: 34 miles from London (coach road 30), 3 from Stevenage, 4 from Watton.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Ware, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, and Dunstable, thence 18, &c., 112 miles.---Money orders issued at Stevenage: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There is a National School here.---The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £26. 11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £380: patron, Rev. G. A. Oddie: pres. incumbent, James Ellice, 1815: contains 1,990 acres: 93 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 556: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 639: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,432: poor rates in 1837, £163.

ASTON, MONTGOMERY, a township in the parish of Lydham, North Wales: 166 miles from London (coach road 161), 10 from Church-Stretton, 7 from Montgomery.---Gt. West. Rail. to Kidderminster, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 117 miles.---Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---Contains 11 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £735: poor rates in 1837, £42.

ASTON, OXFORDSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Bampton: 70 miles from London (coach road 69),

5 from Witney, 2 from Bampton.---Gt. West. Rail. to Wantage Road, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 184½ miles.---Money orders issued at Witney: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---Contains 1,870 acres: 157 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,496: poor rates in 1837, £608.

ASTON, SALOP. See WELLINGTON.

ASTON, SALOP, a township in the parish of Wem.---Contains 49 houses.

ASTON, SALOP. See OSWESTRY.

ASTON, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Muckleston: 157½ miles from London (coach road 154), 6 from Drayton, 6 from Newcastle.---Nor. West. Rail. to Whitmore, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 52 miles.---Money orders issued at Stoney-Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Contains 910 acres: 48 houses.

ASTON, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the Birmingham division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, union of Aston. It contains the townships of Aston, Bordesley, Castle-Bromwich, Deritend, Duddlestone with Nechells, Erdington, Saltley-Washwood with Little Bromwich, Water-Orton, and Witton: 114½ miles from London (coach road 111), 2 from Birmingham, 13 from Tamworth.---Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, by west. br. of Mid. Rail. to Birmingham, 44 miles.---Money orders issued at Birmingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---There are chapels of ease, erected in the Gothic style by the parliamentary commissioners, at Bordesley and Erdington, at a cost of £17,291. The Methodists, Independents, Baptists, and several other bodies of dissenters, also have chapels in the parish. The educational institutions are numerous. There is an almshouse, endowed with £88 a year, in 1650, by Sir Thomas Holte; and there is a further bequest, by Mrs. Anne Holte, in 1735, of £20 a year for the benefit of the inmates. The other parochial charities produce on an average £64 per annum. The inhabitants are chiefly artisans, employed on a large scale in the general manufactures of Birmingham; but there is also some silk weaving done in the parish. The Birmingham and Fazeley Canal passes through the parish, and is intersected by the Grand Junction Railway. This extensive parish includes several manors of very ancient domain, and subject, before the Conquest, to the Earls of Mercia, under whom they were held by Godmund the Saxon at the arrival of the Normans. William gave them to Fitz-ansculf, one of his followers; and in the time of Edward I., they fell into the hands of Thomas de Maidenbach, who obtained a charter from the king for the very highest baronial privileges, even to the holding supreme courts affecting life and limb. In 1367, the manor of Aston was purchased by the Holt family, in whose possession it remained 400 years; and, in 1620, Sir Thomas Holt erected, in the Elizabethan style, the noble and stately hall which stands here, and where he entertained Charles I. two nights previous to the battle of Edgehill. In 1770, Sir Lister Holt alienated the property, and the hall is now the residence of James Watt, Esq., son of the great inventor, or rather wonderful improver, of the steam-engine.

Few men have been so instrumental in promoting the progress of the world as the father of the present resident at Aston Hall. James Watt was born, in a comparatively humble sphere, at Greenock, in 1736; and first began life as a mathematical instrument maker, in which capacity he settled at Glasgow, and obtained some employment, first from the students, and afterwards from the authorities, of the university there. Among other things for the purpose of illustrating philosophical lectures, they had a machine, something like a steam-engine, which was continually getting out of order, and at last got locked altogether. With little hope of rendering it permanently useful, it was given to Watt to repair, if he could. He soon perceived the true principles on which it acted, and returned it in an efficient condition. The observation of this model led him to study the whole subject of impelling power, and to perceive how important a commercial and social agent the steam-engine might become; and he soon effected such improvements in its construction, as rendered it available for the vast variety of purposes to which it has since been applied. Afterwards meeting with a gentleman of large capital, and of equal enterprise, named Boulton, he entered into partnership with him. They erected the works of Soho at Birmingham; and, through a judicious but very costly outlay, soon established such a business in the manufacture of engines, as realized, in a comparatively few years, a very handsome fortune, with his portion of which Watt retired, to spend the evening of his days in serenity and quietude. He died in 1819. The hall at Aston is surrounded by a very fine park, ornamented with noble timber, from every portion of which it forms a very fine object. The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a vicarage, to which are annexed the chapels of Deritend, Bordesley, and Erdington, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £21. 4s. 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £2,075: patron, executors of the Rev. G. Peake: pres. incumbent, G. O. Fenwicke, 1834: contains 13,330 acres: 6,409 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 45,718: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 52,523: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £53,142: poor rates in 1837, £7,961. The great tithes, the property of a lay impropriator, were commuted in 1802.

ASTON (or WHITE-LADY-ASTON). See BREWOOD.

ASTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish and township, with Aughton, in the south division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill: 189 miles from London (coach road 156), 6 from Rotherham, 8 from Worksop. Nor. West. Rail. to Rotherham, 183, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 57 miles. Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The church contains a monument to the memory of Lord d'Arcy and his three wives, and a marble slab to the memory of Dr. Mason, the poet, the friend of Gray, who was rector of the parish, and died in 1797. There is a school here, with a small endowment, for poor children. The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £12. 15s. 2<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £831: patron, Duke of Leeds: pres. incumbent, W. Alderson, 1811:

contains 2,870 acres: 131 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 763: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 877: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,012: poor rates in 1837, £254.

ASTON-ABBOTS, BUCKINGHAMSHIRE, a hilly parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cottesloe, union of Aylesbury: 46<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 40), 5 from Aylesbury, 6 from Leighton. Nor. West. Rail. to Leighton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leighton, &c., 97<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles. Money orders issued at Aylesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living (St. James), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of St. Albans, and diocese of London, is valued at £6. 7s. 11d.: pres. net income, £143: patron, Earl of Chesterfield: pres. incumbent, Philip Strong, 1823: contains 2,180 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 356: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 409: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,459: poor rates in 1837, £221.

ASTON-BLANK (also called COLD ASTON), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bradley, union of Northleach: 97 miles from London (coach road 86), 3 from Bourton-on-the-Water, 4 from Northleach. Gt. West. Rail. to Stow-on-the-Wold, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 99 miles. Money orders issued at Moreton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The village is situated on the Roman fosse-way, which leads from Stowe to Northleach. There is a school here with a small endowment; and there are other parochial charities, which produce about £34 a year. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £26. 12s. 4d.: pres. net income, £186: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, T. Townsend, 1845: contains 2,250 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 302: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 347: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,637: poor rates in 1837, £89. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1795.

ASTON-BOTTERELL, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stottesden, union of Cleobury-Mortimer: 151 miles from London (coach road 143), 9 from Bridgenorth, 6 from Ludlow. Gt. West. Rail. to Kidderminster, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 92 miles. Money orders issued at Bridgenorth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The manor was formerly held, under the Earls of Arundel, by the Botterell family, from whom the village derived the adjunct to its name. It formerly had, by grant of Henry III., a market on Tuesday, and a fair at Michaelmas. The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £7. 1s. 4<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £367: patron, Duke of Cleveland: pres. incumbent, W. O. Gurney, 1824: contains 3,000 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 173: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 198: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,926: poor rates in 1837, £96.

ASTON-CANTLOW, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the Stratford division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barlichway, union of Alcester: 104 miles from London (coach road 99), 4 from Henley, 4 from Alcester. Gt. West. Rail. to Stratford-on-Avon, thence 6 miles: from Derby, by west. br. of Mid. Rail. to Leamington, 69 miles. Money orders issued at Henley-on-Thames: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 a.m.---The parish is intersected by the river Alne; and the Stratford-on-Avon Canal runs on its eastern boundary. The village derives its additional name from William de Cantelupe, who received a grant of it from Henry III. There was anciently a park here; and, according to tradition, a castle also, situated to the south of the church, but no relics remain.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £9. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £93: patron, Rev. R. S. Carles: pres. incumbent, Henry Hill, 1846: contains 4,300 acres: 183 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,089: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,252: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,509: poor rates in 1837, £555.

ASTON-ON-CARRON, GLOUCESTER, a tithing in the parish of Ashchurch: 128 miles from London (coach road 104), 2 from Tewkesbury, 9 from Cheltenham.---Gt. West. Rail. to Tewkesbury, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 85 miles.---Money orders issued at Tewkesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 187: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 207: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,053.

ASTON (CHETWYND), SALOP, a township in the parish of Edgmond.---Contains 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 281: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 321: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,486.

ASTON (CHURCH), SALOP, a chapelry in the parish of Edgmond, Newport division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of South Bradford.---The parochial charities produce about £19 a year.---The living is a curacy to the rectory of Edgmond, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, and diocese of Lichfield: contains 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 512: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 589: poor rates in 1837, £87.

ASTON-CLINTON, BUCKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Aylesbury, including the township of Aston-Clinton, and the hamlet of St. Leonard: 35½ miles from London (coach road 35), 4 from Tring, 4 from Aylesbury.---Nor. West. Rail. to Tring, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Tring, &c., 104½ miles.---Money orders issued at Tring: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---A Baptist chapel was opened here in 1830. The charities of the parish produce about £14 a year. There is a national school here, besides other educational establishments.---The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bucks, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £23. 6s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £506: patron, Jesus Coll. Oxford: pres. incumbent, C. W. W. Eyton, 1848: contains 3,640 acres: 167 and 199 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,025: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,179: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,526: poor rates in 1837, £518: tithes commuted in 1814.

ASTON (or ASTON-SUB-EDGE), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kiftsgate, union of Evesham: 97 miles from London (coach road 92), 2 from Campden, 6 from Evesham.---Gt. West. Rail. to Chipping-Campden, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 83 miles.---Money orders issued at Campden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £10. 2s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £204: patron, Earl Harrowby: pres. incumbent, John Besby, 1831: contains 850 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 134: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 154: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £986: poor rates in 1837, £16. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1771.

ASTON-EPISCOPI. See WHITE-LADY-ASTON.

ASTON-EYRE, SALOP, a chapelry in the parish of Morvill, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Stottesden: 144½ miles from London (coach road 143), 3 from Bridgenorth, 5 from M. Wenlock.---Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 74 miles.---Money orders issued at Bridgenorth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living, a curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, and annexed to the curacy of Morvill, having jointly a pres. net income of £204: patron, Lord Sudeley: pres. incumbent, W. G. L. Wasey, 1840: contains 1,330 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 130: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 150: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £948: poor rates in 1837, £62.

ASTON-FLAMVILLE, LEICESTERSHIRE, a parish and township in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Sparkenhoe, union of Hinckley: 106½ miles from London (coach road 97), 3 from Hinckley, 13 from Leicester.---Nor. West. Rail. to Broughton, 101½ miles, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Broughton, &c., 36½ miles.---Money orders issued at Hinckley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Peter), a rectory, with the curacy of Burbage and Sketchnley annexed, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £33. 12s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £278: patron, Earl de Grey: pres. incumbent, W. T. Balfour, 1837: contains 4,670 acres: 339 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,909: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 2,195: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £8,455.

ASTON-FLAMVILLE, LEICESTERSHIRE, a township in the above parish---(which see for access and postal arrangements.)---Contains 1,500 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 95: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 107: poor rates in 1837, £85.

ASTON-GRANGE, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Runcorn: 182½ miles from London (coach road 181), 4 from Frodsham, 8 from Warrington.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Acton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c. 88 miles.---Money orders issued at Prestonbrook: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---Contains 550 acres: 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 42: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 54: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £849: poor rates in 1837, £43.

ASTON-INGHAM, HEREFORDSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Greytree, union of Newent: 125 miles from London (coach road 120), 6 from Ross, 10 from Ledbury.---Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 107 miles.---Money orders issued at Ross: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There is a free school here, with an endowment of £10 per annum, left in 1682 by Christopher Stocke.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £7. 7s. 1d.: pres. net income, £350: patron, Rev. H. Whatley: pres. incumbent, H. L. Whatley, 1835: contains 2,300 acres: 122 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 621: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 714: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,548: poor rates in 1837, £224.

ASTON-IN-THE-WALLS, (or ASTON-LE-WALLEYS), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chipping-Warden, union of Banbury, including the township of the same name, and the hamlet of Appletree: 74 miles from London (coach road 71), 8 from Banbury, 9 from Daventry.---Nor. West. Rail. to Weedon, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 80 miles.---Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---There is a Roman Catholic day and Sunday school here.---The living (St. Leonard), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £9. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £536: patron, St. John's Coll. Oxford: pres. incumbent, H. Thorpe, 1831: contains 1,270 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 252: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 289: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,050: poor rates in 1837, £49.

ASTON-ST.-LEONARD, BUCKS, a hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Aston-Clinton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Aylesbury: 33½ miles from London (coach road 35), 6 from Tring.---Nor. West. Rail. to Berkhamstead, thence 5½ miles: from Derby, through Berkhamstead, &c., 109½ miles.---Money orders issued at Tring.---The chapel is supposed to have been the chantry chapel of the abbey of Missenden. It contains a monument to General Wood, a distinguished commander of the time of Queen Anne, and who died in 1712. The living is endowed with the proceeds of an estate vested in ten trustees, from which about £200 a year is derived. The living, a donative curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, and diocese of Lincoln: pres. net income, £170: patron, Trustees: pres. incumbent, Edward Owen, 1810: contains 972 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 167: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 172: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £638.

ASTON (LITTLE), STAFFORDSHIRE. See SHERSTONE. There is a liberty of the same name in the parish of Stone, Staffordshire.

ASTON-MAGNA, WORCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Blockley: 92 miles from London (coach road 89), 3 from Moreton-in-the-Marsh, 6 from Shipston.---Gt. West. Rail. to Moreton-in-the-Marsh, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 98 miles.---Money orders issued at Moreton-in-the-Marsh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Pres. net income, £105: patron, Lord Redesdale: pres. incumbent, E. F. Chamberlayne, 1846: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 314: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 359.

ASTON-MIDDLE, OXFORD, a township in the parish of Aston-Steeple: 64 miles from London, 3 from Deddington, and 8 from Woodstock.---Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 151 miles.---Money orders issued at Woodstock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.: contains 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 138: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 157: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,540: poor rates in 1837, £116.

ASTON-MOLLINS. See DITTON, BUCKS.

ASTON-JUXTA-MONDRUM, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Acton: 188½ miles from London (coach road 168), 4 from Nantwich, 8 from Tarporley.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Acton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 89 miles.---Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---According to Domesday-book, the town of Aston was held in 1086 by Odeard under William Fitzingel, baron of Alton. There was at that time but one place of the name, but in the reign of Henry II. it was divided into this and the neighbouring hamlet of Aston Grange.---Contains 950 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 174: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 197: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,585: poor rates in 1837, £178.---Aston Hall is the seat of Sir Arthur Aston, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the court of Spain in 1839. The family of Aston is of very ancient origin. Odard de Eston, lord of the manor of Eston (now called Aston), lived before and in the time of William the Conqueror. In Domesday-book, it is stated that "Willielmus filius Nigelli (or Fitznigel, who was baron of Helton), "tenet de Hugoni Comite Aston et Delardus de Eo," both of which latter are Saxon manors, and held under the baron of Halton as he held under the Earl of Abestee. From Lord Odard descended Gilbert de Aston, who was a person of great consideration, and connected with the principal families in the palatinate of Chester, as early as the reign of Henry II. The head of the family, at that time Sir Thomas Aston, was created a baronet in 1628, and took an active part on the side of the king in the civil war. The title dropped with the fourth baronet, who sat in parliament for Liverpool, and died in 1774, leaving his estates to his eldest sister, who was married to Dr. Hervey, fourth son of John, first Earl of Bristol. This gentleman, on acquiring the family estates, assumed the name of Aston, and from him the present proprietor is descended.

ASTON (NORTH), OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wootton, union of Woodstock: 80 miles from London (coach road 64), 9 from Woodstock, 2 from Deddington.---Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 152 miles.---Money orders issued at Woodstock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £6. 10s.: pres. net income, £199: patron, J. Willis, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. R. Clifton, 1848: contains 1,230 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 289: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 332: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,303: poor rates in 1837, £234.

ASTON-ROWANT, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lewknor, union of Thame: 45½ miles from London (coach road 39), 4 from Tetworth, 5 from Thame.---Gt. West. Rail. to High Wycombe, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Wallingford Road, 153½ miles.---Money orders issued at Tetworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The church contains some ancient brasses, and about the end of the 17th century, a Roman urn, containing five other urns, was dug up within the precincts of the parish in Kingston Field, about a furlong from Ikeneld Street. There are several schools in the parish, both charitable and others.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, with the curacy of Stokenchurch annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £16.

18s. 11d.: pres. net income, £190: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, R. Williams, 1845: contains 2,980 acres: 162 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 885: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,018: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,948: poor rates in 1837, £665: the tithes, rectorial and vicarial, and the moduses, were commuted in 1832.

ASTON-SANDFORD, Bucks, a parish in the north-west part of the detached portion of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ashendon, union of Aylesbury: 49½ miles from London (coach road 42), 4 from Thame, 6 from Aylesbury.---Nor. West. Rail. to Aylesbury, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Cheddington, &c., 109 miles.---Money orders issued at Thame: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.; post closes 8 p.m.

---The Rev. Thomas Scott, the well-known author of the Commentary on the Bible, was rector of Aston-Sandford, from 1803, till his death in 1821. He was born at Braytoft, in Lincolnshire, in 1747, and was at first intended for the medical profession, but entered the church; and, according to his own statement in his "Force of Truth," was at first more of a Unitarian or an infidel, than anything else; but taking to the study of the holy scriptures with an intention of exposing their absurdity, he was so impressed by their revelations, that he was led to a most sedulous reading of them, and ultimately became fully convinced of the perfect truth of all the doctrines of Christianity. His Commentary on the Bible, the composition of which occupied him for more than twenty years, is a surprising monument of learning and research.---The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Buckingham, rural deanery of Waddesdon, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £12. 16s. ½d.: pres. net income, £135: patron, Mrs. S. Barber: pres. incumbent, H. Alford: contains 650 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 86: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 99: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £845: poor rates in 1837, £57.

ASTON-SOMERVILLE, GLOUCESTERSHIRE, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kiftsgate, union of Evesham: 105 miles from London (coach road 98), 4 from Evesham, 4 from Broadway.---Gt. West. Rail. to Chipping-Campden, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 90 miles.---Money orders issued at Evesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. This manor has remained for upwards of six centuries the property of the Somerville family. Lord Somerville, the great agriculturist, who first introduced the breed of Merino sheep into this country, died in 1819, and was buried here.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £9. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £272: patron, Lord Somerville: pres. incumbent, G. Head, 1848: contains 1,320 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 89: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 102: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,440.

ASTON-STEEPLE, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wootton, union of Woodstock, containing the townships of Aston-Steeple, and Aston-Middle: 78 miles from London (coach road 64), 4 from Deddington, 7 from Woodstock.---Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 139.---Money orders issued at Deddington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There is a school here endowed with £20 a year. Several Roman remains have been met with in the neighbourhood.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £16. 2s. 8d.: pres. net income, £582: patron, Brazenose College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. Burrows, 1832: contains 1,870 acres: 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 580: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 667: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,677.

ASTON-TIRROLD (or ASTON-TIRREL), BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Moreton, union of Wallingford: 49½ miles from London (coach road 50), 4 from Wallingford, 5 from Streatley.---Gt. West. Rail. to Wallingford Road, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 141½ miles.---Money orders issued at Wallingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The village is supposed to have been a site occupied by the Romans—several vestiges of that people, especially a tessellated pavement, having been found here. The church is very ancient; and in a chapel on the north side there are effigies, supposed to represent members of the Durham family, to whom the place formerly belonged. The parochial charities produce about £12 a year; and the school is endowed with £17 a year, left in 1640 by Dr. Radcliffe, who founded two scholarships at Oxford, to be supplied, if possible, from this school. There is a chalybeate spring in the neighbourhood.

---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £10. 12s. 11d.: pres. net income, £233: patron, Magdalene College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. L. Hoskyns, 1845: contains 2,030 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 343: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 394: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,567: poor rates in 1837, £118.

ASTON-UPON-TRENT, DERBYSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Morleston and Litchurch, union of Shardlow: 130½ miles from London (coach road 121), 6 from Derby, 11 from Loughborough.---Nor. West. Rail. to Sawley, 12½, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Sawley, &c., 13 miles.---Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---In 1256, a grant for a market and fair was obtained for this parish, but they have long been disused. The parochial charities produce about £22 per annum. The Grand Trunk Canal joins the river Trent a little below Shardlow in this parish, and there are extensive wharfs for Staffordshire pottery and corn.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £29. 15s.: pres. net income, £1,030: patron, E. A. Holden, Esq.: pres. incumbent, N. P. Johnson, 1796: contains 1,710 acres: 131 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 646: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 743: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £3,320: poor rates in 1837, £490: the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1762.---On the east is Aston Hall, the seat of Edward Anthony Holden, Esq., high sheriff for the county in 1838, and now a magistrate of this and the neighbouring county of Derby. The family was originally from Wilne, where they had for some time been settled in the seventeenth century.

ASTON-UPTHORP, BERKS, a hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Blewberry, hun<sup>d</sup> of Moreton, union of Wallingford: 50½ miles from London (coach road 52), 6 from Wallingford, 8 from Abingdon.---Gt. West. Rail. to Wallingford Road, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 137½ miles. Money orders issued at Wallingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.; post closes 7½ p.m. The living, a curacy, not in charge, to the vicarage of Blewberry, a peculiar of the see of Salisbury, having jointly a pres. net income of £161: patron, Vicar of Blewberry: pres. incumbent, J. Macdonald, 1836: contains 1,120 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 194: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 224: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,408: poor rates in 1837, £50.

ASTON-WHEATON. See WHEATON-ASTON.

ASTROPE (or ASTHORPE), NORTHAMPTON, a hamlet in the parish of King's Sutton: 83 miles from London (coach road 69), 6 from Brackley, 2 from Banbury. Nor. West. Rail. to Blisworth, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 89 miles. Money orders issued at Brackley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.; post closes 4½ p.m. Tithes commuted in 1772.

ASTWELL, NORTHAMPTON, a hamlet partly in the parish of Wappenham, and partly in that of Syresham: 71 miles from London (coach road 64), 6 from Brackley, 5 from Towcester. Nor. West. Rail. to Blisworth, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 93 miles. Money orders issued at Brackley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. There is a misferral spring here, called St. Rumball's Well, which was formerly much frequented. Contains 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 125: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 140: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,006: poor rates in 1837, £113. The great and small tithes of Astrope liberties, the property of the vicar and the lay impropriators, were commuted in 1772.

ASTWICK (or ESTWICK), BEDFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Biggleswade: 45 miles from London (coach road 40), 5 from Biggleswade, 6 from Shefford. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Ware, thence 19 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Bedford, &c., 115 miles. Money orders issued at Biggleswade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. We find, from the first volume of Bridge's "Northampton," that—Astwick or Estwick and the adjoining hamlet of Evenley, though now reduced to a hamlet of six houses, appears to have been formerly a large town. There was formerly a capital manor house, the site of which is now overgrown, but there is still remaining a moat full of water, 150 paces long and ten yards wide. A number of Roman coins have been found in Astwick-field. The living (St. Guthlac), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bedford, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, and in connection with the vicarage of Arlsey, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: having jointly a pres. net income of £280: patron, Mrs. Roger Smith: pres. incumbent, Roger Smith, 1841: contains 570 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 84: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 96: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £711: poor rates in 1837, £46: tithes commuted in 1804.

ASTWICK (or ESTWICK), NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, in the parish of Evenley, 3 miles from Brackley.

ASTWOOD, BEDFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Newport, union of Newport-Pagnell: 60 miles from London (coach road 51), 6 from Newport-Pagnell, 10 from Woburn. Nor. West. Rail. to Ridgmount, 54, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Bletchley, &c., 92½ miles. Money orders issued at Newport-Pagnell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The parochial charities produce £5 a year. The living (St. Peter), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, S. F. Cumberlege, 1839: contains 1,300 acres: 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 243: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 279: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,433: poor rates in 1837, £67.

ASWARBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Aswardburn, parts of Kesteven, union of Sleaford: 123 miles from London (coach road 110), 4 from Folkingham, 5 from Sleaford. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Spalding, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Newark, &c., 56 miles. Money orders issued at Folkingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The church, with its elegant tower and spire, is a particularly interesting building. The living (St. Denis), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £12. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £285: patron, Sir T. Whichcote: pres. incumbent, F. Whichcote, 1818: contains 1,940 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 119: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 137: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,563: poor rates in 1837, £52. In the vicinity is Aswarby Hall, the seat of Sir Thomas Whichcote, Bart. The family derive their surname from Whichcote, a village in Shropshire, where members of it were settled as early as the reign of Henry II. The baronetcy was created in 1660, in favour of Mr. Jeremy Whichcote, who was a member of Lincoln's Inn, and attorney-general to the Prince Elector Palatine. The present proprietor of Aswarby, who succeeded to the title and estates in 1829, is the seventh baronet.

ASWARDBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Hill, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 156½ miles from London (coach road 136), 4 from Spilsby, 8 from Horncastle. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Boston to Little Steeping, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln, &c., 94 miles. Money orders issued at Folkingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. There is a chapel of the Wesleyan Methodists here. The living (St. Helen), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 19s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £266: patron, R. Brackenbury: pres. incumbent, C. Brackenbury, 1828: contains 650 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 92: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 106: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £709: poor rates in 1837, £64. E. ½ m. is the Elms.

ATCHAM (or ATTINGHAM), SALOP, a parish in the Wellington division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of South Bradford, union of Atcham: 171½ miles from London (coach road 149), 4 from Shrewsbury, 6 from Acton-Burn. Nor. West. Rail. to Stafford, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 43½ miles. Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The parochial charities produce about £64 a year. The Roman road, Watling Street, traverses the parish, and here crosses the Severn. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £11. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £240: patron, R. Burton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Burton, 1831: contains 3,490 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 513: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 590: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,144: poor rates in 1837, £440.---Attingham Hall, the residence of Lord Berwick, is a fine mansion, and contains an admirable collection of paintings, as also some beautiful Etruscan vases, and antiquities from Herculaneum. The original name of the noble family of Berwick was Harwood; but the father of the first Lord Berwick assumed the name of Hill, from his mother, who was sister of Dr. Richard Hill, a statesman of celebrity in the reign of William III. and his two successors. The son of that gentleman, who married the daughter and coheir of William Noel, a judge of the court of Common Pleas, represented the county of Salop in three successive parliaments, and was raised to the peerage by the title of Baron Berwick of Attingham, in the county of Salop, in 1784. The title descended in a direct line to the third baron, who died childless, and was succeeded in 1842 by his brother, the Rev. Richard Noel Hill, the present baron.—N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Longner Hall, the seat of R. Burton, Esq. The family of this gentleman may justly claim equality for standing and distinction with that of any country gentleman in the kingdom. Its origin is derived from the Burtons of Longner, in Shropshire, where, at the breaking out of the war between the houses of York and Lancaster, they had for some centuries been settled, but are supposed to have originally come from Yorkshire. There are indeed traditionary accounts of their descent from Lionel Duke of Clarence, son of Edward III.; and though these cannot absolutely be relied upon, yet it is in evidence that they held a distinguished position in the country at the time alluded to above. One antiquary, B. L., who appears to have been a member of the family, in his Commentary on the Itinerary of Antonius, says—They were of Shropshire sometime, of no ordinary relations, very gracious with the princes of the royal house of York. And another antiquary, Mr. Browne Willis, for some time M.P. for Whaddon, in speaking of them, says—They were a family of great antiquity, being possessors of Longner in the time of Edward IV., and before that, being seated at Boerton, in the parish of Conover, Shropshire. This might well be the case, for the family name was formerly written indifferently de Barton, de Borton, Burghoton, and Boerton, and ultimately Burton. Sir Edward Burton was the representative of the family at the time of Edward IV., and it is related of him, that—He was, with the king, successful in fourteen set battles between the houses of York and Lancaster; and, for his great loyalty and service, he was made knight-banneret under the royal standard, in the field, in the year 1460. His grandson was groom of the stole to Henry VII., and his grandson again, Edward Burton, was distinguished by his religious fidelity, and passed through many dangers from his adherence to Protestant principles. From him the property passed to Thomas Burton, Esq., who died, in 1730, childless, and was succeeded by his nephew, Robert Lingen, Esq., who, under his uncle's will, assumed the name and arms of Burton. In 1841, the property descended to the present proprietor, the great-nephew of that gentleman.—S. Crouk Hall; E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Chilton Grove; 1 m. Great Betton.

ATCH-LENCH, WORCESTERSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Church-Lench: 113 miles from London (coach road 104), 6 from Evesham, 6 from Alcester.---Gt. West. Rail. to Hartwich, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 78 miles.---Money orders issued at Evesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Contains 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 94: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 108: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £515.

ATHAN (St.), GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cowbridge, union of Bridgend and Cowbridge, South Wales, including the port of West-Aberd-daw: 165 miles from London (coach road 174), 4 from Cowbridge, 15 from Cardiff.---Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-Super-Mare, where cross Bristol Channel to Penarth, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 175 miles.---Money orders issued at Cowbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 11 a.m.---There are the remains here of a castle, erected by Sir Roger Berkholes, and which was one of twelve built in the neighbourhood by the Normans. It was called East Orchard Castle, and there are also the mounds of another, called West Orchard Castle.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £15. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £369: patron, Rev. W. Rayer: pres. incumbent, Arthur Dene, 1843: contains 1,300 acres: 68 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 379: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 436: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,840: poor rates in 1837, £159.---E. 1 m. is Penmon Castle, a very fine mansion. In the division of property, this castle fell to the share of Sir Oliver St. John of Bledso, in the possession of whose descendants it remained till the time of Charles I., when it was sold to Colonel Philip Jones, who was a very active leader among the republican party, and was one of the privy council of Oliver Cromwell, and died about twelve years after the Restoration. From him the property descended to Robert Oliver Jones, Esq., the present proprietor. The estate is situated in the parish of Pinmark—(which see).

ATHELINGTON (or ALLINGTON), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Hoxne: 99 miles from London (coach road 88), 4 from Woodbridge, 5 from Eye.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Haughley, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 231 miles.---Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 14s. 2d.: pres. net income, £155: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, R. B. Exton, 1825: contains 980 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 111: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 128: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £711.

ATHERINGTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Tawton with Winkley, union of Barnstaple: 212 miles from London (coach road 204), 7 from Torrington, 8 from Barnstaple.---Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 220 miles.---Money orders issued at Torrington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 11 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.---The church contains a monument of a crusader, brought from Umberleigh chapel in 1818.---The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £26. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £403: patron, Rev. J. Arthur: pres.

incumbent, James Arthur, 1829: contains 2,500 acres: 114 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 629: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 723: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,140: poor rates in 1837, £269.

ATHERINGTON (or ALDRINGTON), SUSSEX, a parish in the half-hun<sup>d</sup>. of Fishergate, rape of Lewes, union of Steyning: 52½ miles from London (coach road 55), 5 from Brighton, 7 from Worthing. —Sou. East. Rail. through Brighton to Hove, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 184½ miles. —Money orders issued at Brighton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. —In the church there is a remarkably fine screen and rood loft; and in the parsonage house there is a bed-room, in which Charles II. concealed himself, when so closely pursued after the battle of Worcester. There is a stone figure, worthy of notice, of John of Gaunt, who was the proprietor of this place. It was removed from a chapel of the nuns attached to a convent at Caen, in Normandy, which was endowed with lands in this parish by Matilda, the queen of William the Conqueror. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £7. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £294: patron, Mag. Coll., Cambridge: pres. incumbent, P. S. Dodd, 1812.

ATHERSTON, SOMERSET, a hamlet in the parish of White Lackington—(which see for returns, access, and postal). —Here was formerly a chapel.

ATHERSTONE (anciently ADRESTONE and EDRESTONE), WARWICK, a market town in the parish of Mancetter, union of Atherstone: 101½ miles from London (coach road 105), 6 from Nuneaton. —Nor. West. Rail. to station: from Derby, by Midland Western Branch, through Burton, Tamworth, &c., 33 miles. —Money orders issued at Atherstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. —It stands on the road from London to Derby, at the north of the forest of Arden, and near the river Anker, and on the line of the Great Roman Road, called Watling Street. The name in Domesday-book is written Aderestone, supposed by Dugdale to be derived from its Saxon possessor Aldred or Edred, and thence termed Aldredston or Edredstone; but by others it is believed that the name originated from its neighbourhood to Mancetter, or as it is now pronounced Mancetter, the Manduessedum of the Romans, from which station this was the first milliarium on the line of Watling Street, and thence has been called Aitherstone or Atherstone. At the Conquest the place was given to the monks at Bec in Normandy. The town consists chiefly of one long street, nearly a mile in length, the houses in which are well built. There is a convenient market-house on pillars, with a large assembly-room above. According to Tanner, the church was founded by Lord Basset of Drayton. He says —In the 49th of Edward III., Ralph Lord Basset of Drayton gave whereon to build a church and habitation in this place for friars, hermits of St. Austin, which was shortly after done, and these mendicants continued here till the general dissolution, when the friary, and all that belonged to it (being valued but at £1. 10s. 2d. per annum), were given to one Henry Cartwright and his heirs. The nave of the church of the convent is now a parochial chapel, and the chancel of the ancient edifice is used for the grammar-school. The church, with the exception of the chancel, is about to be rebuilt. Two days previous to the battle of Bosworth Field, which transferred the crown of England from the brow of Richard III. to Henry VII., the latter, then Earl of Richmond, on the 20th August, entered the town of Atherstone, and encamped his forces in the field, still called the Royal Meadow, he himself passing the night at an ancient inn, now called the Three Tuns. There he had an interview with the Stanleys, and concerted with them those measures which secured him the victory of Bosworth, which is about 9 miles from thence, raised him to the throne, and put an end for ever to the wars of the Roses. The town is well lighted, and there is a convenient market-place a little out of the principal street. There are chapels for the Wesleyans and Independents, and a convent of Dominican nuns. The free grammar-school was founded in the 15th year of Elizabeth, by Sir William Devereux of Merevale and others, and endowed with estates which now produce about £360 a year. It is under the management of trustees, who appoint the master, who are also the trustees of several minor charities for the benefit of the poor. There is also a free charity school, in which thirty boys are instructed in reading, writing, and arithmetic, as also National and infant schools, capable of accommodating 500 children. There are also here a well-supported dispensary, a library, and news-room. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates. The principal manufactures are of hats, shalloons, and ribbons; and coal and a species of granite are found abundantly in the neighbourhood, in which there are also several fine springs. The soil is good. The Coventry Canal passes within a hundred yards of the place. The Trent Valley branch of the London and North Western Railway passes through the town, where there is a first-class station. Drayton the poet, one of the earliest of our topographical writers, and whose works were published by Selden, was born here. There is a good parsonage house. —The living (St. Mary), a chapelry to the parish of Mancetter, and a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Coventry, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £11. 5s.: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Mancetter: pres. incumbent, F. H. Richings, 1841: contains 801 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,760: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,000: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,008: poor rates in 1837, £1,767. Market day, Tuesday. Fairs, April 7, July 18, a holiday fair; Sept. 19, for cattle and cheese; December 4, a great cattle fair. Principal Inns—Red Lion, Three Tuns.

ATHERSTONE-UPON-STOUR, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the Kington division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kington, union of Stratford-on-Avon, on the river Stour, near its junction with the Avon: 101 miles from London (coach road 92), 3 from Stratford-on-Avon, 9 from Shipston. —Gt. West. Rail. to Stratford-on-Avon, thence 3 miles: from Derby, by Midland Western Branch, to Leamington, &c., 57 miles. —Money orders issued at Stratford-on-Avon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —Dr. Thomas, the continuator of Dugdale's Antiquities, resided here. —The living, a rectory

in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £13. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £288: patron, Rev. T. Cox, D.D.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Cox, 1814: contains 1,120 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 93: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 107: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> with Whitchurch: poor rates in 1837, £43: all tithes of Atherstone fields, the property of the lay impropiator, were commuted in 1764.

ATHERTON (or CHOWBENT), LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Leigh.---The population is employed chiefly in the manufacture of cotton and iron, and in collieries in the neighbourhood.---The living, a perpetual curacy not in charge, exempt from visitation: pres. net income, £100: patron, Lord Lilford: pres. incumbent, Sam. Johnson, 1834: contains 2,220 acres: 805 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,475: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,146: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,558: poor rates in 1837, £779.

ATLOW, DERBYSHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Bradborne: 145 miles from London (coach road 139), 4 from Ashbourne, 13 from Derby.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, thence 13 miles.---Money orders issued at Ashbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £18: pres. net income, £148: patron, C. H. Okeover, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. E. Aitkens, 1834: contains 1,580 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 156: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 179: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,603: poor rates in 1837, £84.

ATTFAR. See ADFAR, CARDIGANSHIRE.

ATTENBOROUGH, NOTTINGHAMSHIRE, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broxtow. It includes the hamlets of Chilwell and Toton---(which see): 136½ miles from London (coach road 119), 6 from Nottingham, 10½ from Derby.---Nor. West. Rail. to Nottingham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Long Eaton, 10½ miles.---Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £10 a year: the parish is crossed by the rivers Trent and Erewash, and by the Nottingham Canal.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the curacy of Bramcote annexed, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4. 15s.: pres. net income, £250: patron, G. S. Foljambe, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Joseph Shooter, 1835: contains 1,930 acres: 216 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,036: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,191: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,851.

ATTERBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a township in the parish of Norton Bishop: 177½ miles from London (coach road 148), 9 from Market-Raisen, 12 from Gainborough.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Lincoln, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, &c., 63½ miles.---Money orders issued at Market-Raisen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---Contains 1,190 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 127: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 144: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £942: poor rates in 1837, £59.

ATTERCLIFFE (formerly ATTERCLIFFE-CUM-DARNALL), WEST RIDING, YORK, an ancient parochial chapelry in the borough of Sheffield: 177 miles from London (coach road 162), 2 from Sheffield, 4 from Rotherham.---Nor. West.

Rail. through Derby to Sheffield, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 47 miles.

---Money orders issued at Sheffield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6.10 p.m.---The name of the village is very probably derived from an abrupt precipice which here overhangs the river Don. The old and dilapidated chapel has been succeeded by a new and substantial church, erected in 1822 by the church building commissioners. An Independent congregation was formed here in 1793, and there are also chapels for the Wesleyans. There are, beside the National schools, several Sunday schools. There were almshouses for four poor widows, until Attercliffe came under the operation of the new poor law, since which time they have been let as cottages, the rents passing to the union accounts. The charities of the parish produce, on an average, £13 a year. The Tinsley Canal passes through the township.---The living (Christ Church), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £180: patron, the Vicar of Sheffield: pres. incumbent, J. Blackburn, 1817: Attercliffe proper contains 737 acres: 586 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> 2,709: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> of whole township, including Darnall, £5,244.

ATTERTON, LEICESTERSHIRE, a hamlet, which was formerly a chapelry, in the parish of Witherley; but the chapel is now in ruins: 104½ miles from London (coach road 105), 3 from Atherstone, 6 from Hinckley.---Nor. West. Rail. to Atherstone, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 32½ miles.---Money orders issued at Atherstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 13 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,092: poor rates in 1837, £85.

ATTINGHAM. See ATCHAM.

ATTINGTON, OXFORDSHIRE, an extra-parochial hamlet in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Thame, consisting of two farms and farm-houses: 44 miles from London (coach road 42), 1 from Tetsworth, 3 from Thame.---Gt. West. Rail. to High Wycombe, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Worcester, Oxford, &c., 141 miles.---Money orders issued at Tetsworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---Contains 560 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 9: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 9: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £840.

ATTLEBOROUGH, WARWICKSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Nuneaton: 97½ miles from London (coach road 100), 1 from Nuneaton, 8 from Coventry.---Nor. West. Rail. to Nuneaton, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 37 miles.---Money orders issued at Nuneaton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.---A new church, calculated for a congregation of 500 persons, has lately been built here. National schools for 200 children have recently been erected at a cost of nearly £700.---The living, an incumbency in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Worcester, is valued at £170: pres. net income, £140: patron, Vicar of Nuneaton: pres. incumbent, Mesac Thomas, M.A., 1845.

ATTLEBRIDGE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Taverham, union of St. Faith's, on the river Wensum: 127½ miles from London (coach road 112), 5 from Reepham, 9 from Norwich.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Wymondham, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, &c., 176 miles.

—Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 10½ p.m.—The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, united to the rectory of Alderford, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 6s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £219: patron, Dean and Chapter of Norwich: pres. incumbent, J. D. Parmeter, 1844: contains 810 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 94: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 108: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,046: poor rates in 1837, £111.

ATTLEBURGH (or ATTLEBOROUGH), NORFOLK, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Shropham, union of Wagland: 110 miles from London (coach road 94), 15 from Norwich.—East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to the station: from Derby, through Dereham, &c., 167 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.—This place was once a city and the capital of Norfolk; and was afterwards divided into the two villages of Attleburgh-Major and Attleburgh-Minor, which are now united. The church is a fine collegiate edifice in the form of a cross, with a tower rising at the intersection, and contains many monuments of the families of Mortimer, Blickley, and Ratcliffe. Tanner, in speaking of the place, says—Sir Robert Mortimer, Knight, designed the foundation of a chantry or college in the parish church here, to the honour of the exaltation of the holy cross; but, being prevented by death, his executors or trustees built and endowed the same for a master or warden and four secular priests, about the seventh year of Henry IV. It was valued in the 26th Henry VIII. at £21. 16s. 3d. per annum, and was granted in the 33d of that monarch's reign to Robert Earl of Sussex. There is a school here, endowed with £16. 10s. a year, besides several other educational institutions. The other charities of the parish produce, on an average, £70 per annum. The Methodists, Baptists, and the Society of Friends, have all respectively places of worship here. There are near the town the remains of an obelisk, which was erected to the memory of Sir Edward Rich, who, in 1675, gave £200 towards the formation of a highway between Attleburgh and Wymondham, for which an act was obtained in the seventh year of William III., and which is said to have been the first turnpike road made in the kingdom.—The living (The Virgin Mary), a united rectory (formerly two parishes, Attleburgh-Major, valued at £19. 8s. 9d., and Attleburgh-Minor, valued at £8. 2s. 6d.), in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £1,226: patron, Rev. Sir E. B. Smyth, Baronet: pres. incumbent, J. T. Barrett, 1838: contains 5,800 acres: 372 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,959: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,252: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £9,577: poor rates in 1837, £1,189.—Market day, Thursday. Fairs, Thursday before Easter, Thursday after Holy Thursday, and 15th August, for cattle and toys.—Bankers, Gurney & Co.—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.—The Cock Inn.

ATWICK, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish and township, with Arram and Skirlington, north division of the wapentake of Holderness: 246 miles from London (coach road 189), 2 from Hornsea, 12 from Bridlington.—East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Hull to Leckington, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Hull, &c., 136 miles.—Money orders issued at Hull: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.—The village stands pleasantly on a rivulet, which empties itself into the German Ocean. There is a fund here of £76 per annum, left by Mr. Edward Fenwick, in 1689, for apprenticing the boys of this parish; and there is also another fund of £6 per annum, left in 1726, for apprenticing the girls of the parish, left by Ralph Burton, who also bequeathed a legacy, which produces £12. 18s. for the benefit of the parish for other charitable purposes.—The living (St. Lawrence), a discharged vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the East Riding, and diocese of York, is valued at £4. 7s. 11d.: pres. net income, £149: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, R. G. S. Browne: contains 2,100 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 300: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 345: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,961: poor rates in 1837, £219: tithes commuted in 1769.

AUBOURNE, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Boothby-Graffo, parts of Keateven; including part of the township of Haddington, on the Witham: 155 miles from London (coach road 127), 7 from Lincoln, 10 from Newark.—Nor. West. Rail. through Newark to Swinderby, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Newark, Swinderby, &c., 43 miles.—Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The living (St. Peter), a discharged vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 13s. 10d.: pres. net income, £54: patron, Rev. H. Neville: pres. incumbent, F. M. Willan: contains 3,090 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 436: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 501: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,877: poor rates in 1837, £54.

AUBURN (or ABBORN), EAST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Fraisthorpe: 233 miles from London, 5 from Bridlington.—East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Bridlington, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Hull, &c., 143 miles.—Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ noon: post closes 1 p.m.—The living, a perpetual curacy, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £2. 13s. 4d.

AUCKLAND (ST. ANDREW), DURHAM, a parochial chapelry, partly in the south-eastern, but chiefly in the north-western division of Darlington ward. The former part comprises the townships of Byer's-green, Coundon-Grange, Eldon, Middlestone, Midridge-Grange, Old-Park, Sunderland-Bridge, Westerton, and Windleston. The latter division includes the townships of Auckland (St. Andrew), West Auckland, North and South Bedburn, Binchester, Bishop-Auckland, Coundon, Evenwood, Hunwick with Helmington, Lynesack with Softley, Newfield, Newton-Capp, Pollard's-lands, Shildon, Last Thickey, and the chapelries of Auckland (St. Helen) and Hamsterley: 279 miles from London (coach road 248), 1 from Bishop-Auckland, 11 from Darlington.—Nor. West. Rail. through Darlington to West Auckland, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through York, to West Auckland, &c., 147 miles.—Money orders issued at Bishop-Auckland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—According to Tanner, the chapel or church was made collegiate, and well endowed by Anthony Beck, bishop of Durham.

At the time of the Lincoln taxation there were twelve portionists or prebendaries, and their revenues were then rated at £249. 13s. 4d.; but the founder, in his statutes, made in 1292, appointed a dean and nine prebendaries only, and of that number there was some alteration made by Thomas, bishop of Durham, in 1428. But there were again a dean and eleven prebendaries in the 26th year of Henry VIII., when the deanery was valued at £100. 7s. 2d., and the eleven prebends at £79. 16s. 8d. The township of Eldon, within this parish, gave the titles of baron and earl to John Scott, the great lord high chancellor. The charities of the parish produce as much as £300 a year. The living (St. Andrew), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £603: patron, Bishop of Durham: pres. incumbent, G. E. Green, 1848: contains 67,770 acres: 1,919 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 19,100: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 21,965: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £46,382.

AUCKLAND (BISHOP), DURHAM, a market town in the chapelry of St. Andrew, Auckland, north-western division of Darlington ward: 279 miles from London, 10½ from Durham. Nor. West. Rail. through Darlington to the station: from Derby, through York, &c., 147 miles. Money orders issued at Bishop-Auckland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at 9½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. The town, in common with others of a similar name in the neighbourhood, derives its appellation from the number of fine oak trees that formerly grew in the district, and its prefix of Bishop from the palace of the Bishop of Durham, which stands close to the place. The town, which is erected on an eminence at the confluence of the Gaunless and the Wear, is very pleasantly situated, and is noted for the salubrity of its climate. The streets are lighted with gas, are well paved, and the houses, most of which are highly respectable in appearance, are amply supplied with water. The palace was originally built by Bishop Anthony Beck, in the time of Edward I., but was destroyed during the great civil war, and was rebuilt, after the Restoration, by Bishop Cosins, in the beautiful park, which, with its demesne lands, extend to eight hundred acres. It stands on the north-east of the town, and is surrounded by plantations and pleasure grounds finely watered by the river Gaunless. The Bishop's chapel, which is a stately edifice, was erected in 1660 by Dr. Cosins. There are chapels in Bishop-Auckland for the Wesleyans, Independents, and Society of Friends. The educational institutions of the town are numerous. The free grammar-school was founded in 1604, on the petition of Anne Swyfte, who endowed it with property, which now produces £37 a year. Its management is vested in twelve governors, who constitute a body corporate, and have a common seal. About sixty years ago the school was rebuilt, and a neat chapel was erected over it. A school was established here on the system of Dr. Bell, by Bishop Barrington, who left £100 a year for the master, with a house to live in, but it is now connected with the National School Society. There is also a Central National School here; and in 1768, a gentleman named Walton, founded a school, with an endowment of £20 a year, and a house, rent free, for the master. In addition to these, Bishop Barrington founded a house of industry for girls, the mistress of which receives £28 a year. There is also an almshouse for two men and two women, founded by Bishop Cosins. Bishop-Auckland has been made a polling-place for the south division of the county, and the petty sessions for the north-west division of Darlington ward are held here. Muslin and other cotton goods are made here to some extent. Contains 2,570 acres: 467 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,776: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,342: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,849: poor rates in 1837, £693. Market day, Thursday. Fairs, Holy Thursday, for horned cattle, swine, and all sorts of wares; on Corpus Christi day, and Thursday before Oct. 10, for sheep, &c. Bankers, J. Backhouse & Co.—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.

AUCKLAND (ST. HELEN), DURHAM, a chapelry in the parish of Auckland (St. Andrew), north-western division of the ward of Darlington. It comprises the townships of Auckland (St. Helen), West Auckland, and Evenwood: 279 miles from London (coach road 246), 3 from Bishop-Auckland, 10 from Darlington. Nor. West. Rail. through Darlington to West Auckland, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through York, Darlington, &c., 147 miles. Money orders issued at Bishop-Auckland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham, is valued at £13. 9s. 4d.: pres. net income, £220: patron, Bishop of Durham: pres. incumbent, W. Chester, 1821: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,759: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,472.

AUCKLAND (ST. HELEN), DURHAM, a township in the above parish—(which see for access and postal.) Contains 1,780 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 470: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 540: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,828: poor rates in 1837, £152.

AUCKLAND (WEST), DURHAM, a township in the above chapelry: 280 miles from London, 4 from Bishop-Auckland. Nor. West. Rail. through Darlington to Auckland station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through York, &c., 146 miles. Money orders issued at Bishop-Auckland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at 10½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The Wesleyan Methodists have a place of worship here, and there is a free school endowed with about £30 a year. About a third of the inhabitants are employed in agriculture. Contains 3,720 acres: 308 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,923: poor rates in 1837, £569.

AUDENSHAW, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Ashton-under-Lyne: 199 miles from London, 4½ from Manchester. Nor. West. Rail. to Stockport, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 91 miles. Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m. It includes Audenshaw, an ancient hamlet, and has a Dissenters' chapel and a free school. Silk-weaving, calico-printing, and hat-making are carried on to a considerable extent. The canal to Ashton passes this town, and close on the south-west are the extensive reservoirs of the Manchester and Salford Waterworks Company. Pres. net income, £150: patron, Crown and Bishop alternately: pres. incumbent, T. T. Eagar, 1844: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,374: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,180. Close by is High Ash, an old hall, belonging to the family of Stopford: Shepley Hall, noted for its collection of pictures: Newton Hall.

AUDIEU. See AUBIN (Str.)

AUDLEM, CHESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Nantwich, on the Liverpool Junction Canal. It comprises the townships of Audlem, Buerton, Dodcot with Wilkesley, Hankelow, and Tittenley: 165 miles from London (coach road 163), 7½ from Nantwich.---Nor. West. Rail. to Whitmore, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 71 miles.---Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 11½ p.m.---There is a free grammar-school, founded here in 1696, with an endowment of £40 a year, by Ralph Bolton and Thomas Gammull. There is also an English school with an endowment. The other charities of the parish produce about £80 a year. The Baptist chapel was opened in 1815. The place is seated on the Liverpool Junction Canal.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £5. 16s. 8d.: patron, Lord Combermere: pres. incumbent, G. Pitt: contains 2,250 acres: 296 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,827: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,251: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,786: poor rates in 1837, £376.

AUDLEY, STAFFORDSHIRE, a parish in the northern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill. It comprises the townships of Audley, Bignall-end, Eardley-end, Knowl-end, Park-end, and Talk-o'-th'-Hill, and the liberty of Halmer-end: 170 miles from London (coach road 154), 4 from Newcastle, 9 from Congleton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Stafford to Basford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 72½ miles.---Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---A free grammar-school was founded here in 1622, by Edward Vernon, with an endowment of £120 a year, and there are also two National schools. The parochial charities produce £16. 10s. a year.---The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £520: patron, Rev. E. Gilbert: pres. incumbent, C. P. Wilbraham, 1844: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,474: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,149.

AUDLEY-STRETTON. See ARDLEY.

AUGHTON, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Halton: 238 miles from London (coach road 247), 7 from Lancaster, 8 from Kirkby Lonsdale.---Nor. West. Rail. through Lancaster to Rest Bank, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 130 miles.---Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---There are two National schools here, and a free school with an endowment of £68 a year.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, is valued at £22. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £140: patron, Rector of Halton: pres. incumbent, John Morland, 1817: contains 1,900 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 134: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 154.

AUGHTON, LANCASTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of West Derby, union of Ormskirk: 212 miles from London (coach road 208), 2 from Ormskirk, 10 from Liverpool.---Nor. West. Rail. through Liverpool to Aughton: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 116½ miles.---Money orders issued at Ormskirk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There are a Roman Catholic chapel and a school here. The charities of the parish produce about £18 per annum. There are races here every year. A branch of the river Alt, and the Leeds and Liverpool Canal, pass through the parish.---The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £14. 15s. 5d.: pres. net income, £676: patron, J. P. Tempest, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. H. Boulton, 1834: contains 4,410 acres: 241 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,560: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,794: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £8,730: poor rates in 1837, £357. The tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1813.

AUGHTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the Holme-Beacon division of the wapentake of Hart-hill, union of Howden, on the eastern bank of the Derwent. It includes the townships of Aughton, East Cottingham, and Laytham---(which see): 225 miles from London (coach road 189), 7 from Selby, 11 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. through York to Willitof, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Selby, &c., 93 miles.---Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The church lands produce about £18 a year. There are the remains of an ancient castle, close to the Derwent, here, of which the trenches can now scarcely be traced. Aughton is noted as the place where Richard Aske resided, who was executed as a leader of the insurrection, in the reign of Henry VIII., called the "Pilgrimage of Grace," and which was occasioned by the suppression of the monasteries.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, to which is annexed the chapelry of Cottingham, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding, diocese of York, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £90: patron, T. Mosley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Earle, jun., 1838: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 634: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 729.

AUGHTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Aston: 169½ miles from London (coach road 156), 5 from Rotherham, 7 from Sheffield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Woodhouse Mill, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 37½ miles.---Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.

AUKBOROUGH, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey, union of Glandford-Brigg: 210 miles from London (coach road 172), 10 from Barton-on-Humber, 3 from Burton.---East. Co<sup>y</sup>. Rail. to Burton, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Goole, &c., 97 miles.---Money orders issued at Barton-on-Humber: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12½ noon: post closes 7 p.m.---It is supposed by Dr. Stukeley to be the Aquis of the Romans; and traces of a Roman camp and of a road are met with in the parish. There are many curious fossils found in the neighbourhood.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, with the rectory of Whitton annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £209: patron, Bishop of Lincoln and Rev. C. Constable: pres. incumbent, John Wilson, 1822: contains 2,540 acres: 94 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 528: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 607: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,740.

poor rates in 1837, £190. The impropriate and vicarial tithes, the property of the lord of the manor and of the vicar, were commuted in 1765.

AUKLEY, NOTTINGHAMSHIRE, a township in the parish of Finningley: 191 miles from London (coach road 158), 5 from Bawtrey, 13 from Gainsborough.---Nor. West. Rail. to Swinton, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Swinton, &c., 59 miles.---Money orders issued at Bawtrey: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Contains 1,970 acres: 28 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £722: poor rates in 1837, £152.

AULT-HUCKNALL (or HAULT-HUCKNALL), DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Scarsdale, union of Mansfield: 163½ miles from London (coach road 144), 6 from Mansfield, 7 from Chesterfield.---Nor. West. Rail. to Chesterfield, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 31½ miles.---Money orders issued at Mansfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There is a school at Hardwicke, in this parish, founded with an endowment of £25 a year, in 1729, by Thomas Whitehead.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Derby, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £113: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, Charles Currey: contains 3,730 acres: 114 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 678: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 779: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £505: poor rates in 1837, £192.

AUNSBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Aswardhurn, parts of Kesteven: 139 miles from London (coach road 112), 6 from Folkingham, 9 from Grantham.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Stamford, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Newark, &c., thence 51 miles.---Money orders issued at Folkingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Thomas & Becket), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 0s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £251: patron, J. A. Houlton: pres. incumbent, A. Leapingwell, 1836: contains 1,250 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 127: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 146: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,295: poor rates in 1837, £9.

AUST (or AUST-CLEVE), GLOUCESTERSHIRE, a tithing and chapelry in the parish of Henbury: 141 miles from London (coach road 123), 4 from Thornbury, 11 from Bristol.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Yate, 133½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---At this place Edward I. passed over the Severn, to hold a conference with Llewellyn, the last prince of Wales. The village is situated in the salt marshes on the eastern bank of that river, and there is a ferry thence to Chepstow, called the Old Passage, to distinguish it from the New Passage, which is two miles lower down. The charities of the chapelry produce about £22 a year.---The living, a curacy formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Gloucester, now in that of Bristol, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol: contains 1,200 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 191: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 220: poor rates in 1837, £92.

AUSTELL (Str.), CORNWALL, a market town and parish in the eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Powder, union of St. Austell: 276 miles from London (coach road 243), 14 from Truro.---Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 32 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 282 miles.

---Money orders issued at St. Austell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2½ p.m.: post closes 10 a.m.---Whence the name of St. Austell was derived is now quite uncertain. In the time of Henry VIII. it was only an inconsiderable village, and first began to be a place of consideration from the working of the Polgooth and other mines in the neighbourhood. That consideration, however, was considerably enhanced when the great highway from Plymouth to Land's End was, in 1760, carried through the town; and the continued activity of the mining property has, within the last twenty years, more than tripled the population. The town is delightfully situated in a highly-cultivated district, on the south side of a hill gently sloping to a small stream, and is paved, lighted with gas, and abundantly supplied with water; but the streets are narrow, and there is no foot pavement. The church exhibits a variety of the styles of English architecture; it has a handsome tower, and is richly ornamented with sculpture. Besides the church, there are places of worship for the Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, Baptists, Calvinists, and the Society of Friends. The market, for which the charter was granted by Queen Elizabeth, is a very considerable one for corn and all kinds of provisions; the tolls of it were assigned for the relief of the poor, and a very considerable revenue is derived from them for that purpose. During the civil war, St. Austell was taken by the king, Charles I., in 1644, previous to the capitulation of the parliamentarians at Lostwithiel. There are two National schools here; and a charitable bequest belongs to the town, from which about £240 a year is derived. The place, which is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, was made, by the Reform Act, one of the polling-places for the eastern division of the county. There are some woollen manufactures here, but the inhabitants are chiefly employed in mining, and in the pilchard fisheries in the bay. The richest mines in the neighbourhood are Pem-broke, Polgooth, East Crinnis, and Beam tin-mines; and for copper, those of Lanescot and Fowey. A very active business is carried on at the port, in the importation of coal and other articles, and the transference of ore, metal, and fish, during the season for the last of these commodities. The vessels are numerous, and several harbours have been formed on the coast in this parish, the most important of which is that of Charlestown, about a mile and a half from St. Austell, which has very excellent shelter and anchorage. At Par, to the east of Charlestown, there is a harbour chiefly for the mines of Fowey and Lanescot, with which a communication has been made by a canal. There is a third harbour at Pentewan, about three miles and a half off, between which and St. Austell there is a railroad. Near Pentewan, there are several quarries of stone excellently adapted for building, and extensively used in the county for that purpose; and close by these, in one of the noted tin streams, several fossil bones have been found, some of oxen of enormous size being especially worthy of notice. North of the town, at the distance of about two miles and a half, is Hensburrow, one of the highest points in the county, being about 1,030 feet in elevation.---The living, a vicarage, with that of Blazey annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £21: pres. net income, £576: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, F. Todd, 1839: contains 11,540 acres: 1,543 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 10,320: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 11,868: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £40,638: poor rates in 1837, £2,691.---Market day, Friday. Fairs, Thursday before Easter, for oxen, sheep, and cloth; Whit-Thursaday, first Friday after 23d, first Friday after October 16th, and the 30th November.---Bankers, Branch of Devon and Cornwall Banking Company—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.

AUSTERFIELD, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township and chapelry in the parish of Blyth: 201 miles from London (coach road 155), 2 from Bawtry, 9 from Doncaster.---Nor. West. Rail. to Rotherham, thence 17½ miles: from Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 69 miles.---Money orders issued at Bawtry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---Many antiquaries have supposed the name to be derived from the place having been a site of a great battle between the Britons and the Romans, under Ostorius.---The living, a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, diocese of York, is valued at £15. 8s. 4d.: patron, Vicar of Blyth: contains 2,710 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 325: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 370: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,419: poor rates in 1837, £92. The vicarial tithes, the property of Trinity College, Cambridge, and of the vicar, were commuted in 1765.

AUSTERSON (or AWSTASTON), CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Acton, Granby Hill: 173½ miles from London (coach road 177), 4 from Northwich, 6 from Frodsham.---Nor. West. Rail. to Acton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 86 miles.---Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 950 acres: 6 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £891: poor rates in 1837, £56.

AUTHORPE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Whitkirk: 206½ miles from London (coach road 189), 2 from Leeds, 10 from Wetherby.---Nor. West. Rail. to Leeds, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 74½ miles.---Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Here, on the 28th May, 1724, was born the celebrated John Smeaton, the architect of the Eddystone lighthouse; a striking representation of his chief work is sculptured on his monument in the choir of Whitkirk church. His father was an attorney, and intended to bring his son up to his own profession; but he, having a decided objection to that line of life, was allowed to follow the bent of his own genius, and became a mathematical instrument-maker. But he applied himself more to the principles than the details of his business; and, in 1759, obtained the gold medal of the Royal Society, for the best treatise on the force of wind and water. After that, he was employed in several very important engineering engagements, and by degrees rose to the summit of his profession. The old structure of Eddystone lighthouse having been burnt down, he was authorized to construct another, a work which he executed in such a way, that it has now for nearly a century withstood all the violent eruptions of the channel, and the weight and power of the winds and waves of the Atlantic Ocean. He died in 1792, his last work being the improvement of Ramsgate harbour, a work which would alone be a sufficient monument for any man's genius.---Contains 660 acres: 32 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,031: poor rates in 1837, £172.

AUTHWAITE. See BIRKER.

AUSTLE (St.) See AUSTELL (St.)

AUSTONLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Almondbury: 215 miles from London (coach road 181), 8 from Huddersfield, 9 from Barnsley.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Staley Bridge, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Stockport, &c., 88 miles.---Money orders issued at Huddersfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Contains 1,760 acres: 238 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £972: poor rates in 1837, £249.

AUSTREY, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the Tamworth division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, union of Tamworth: 116 miles from London (coach road 112), 6 from Tamworth, 7 from Atherstone.---Nor. West. Rail. to Tamworth, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 31 miles.---Money orders issued at Tamworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There are some curious specimens of stained glass in the windows of the church. The charities are affluent; the bequest of Thomas Monk, left in 1713, for the apprenticing and education of the poor in this and adjacent parishes, producing not less than £291 a year, while the other charities of the parish produce upwards of £32 per annum. There is a National school here.---The living (St. Nicholas), a vicarage formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in that of Worcester, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £162: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. H. Dyott, 1844: contains 2,280 acres: 103 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 479: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 550: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,694: poor rates in 1837, £192.

AUSTWICH, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Clapham: 246 miles from London (coach road 241), 5 from Settle, 9 from Ingletton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester to Elslack, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 114 miles.---Money orders issued at Settle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m.---Contains 5,400 acres: 131 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,567: poor rates in 1837, £261.---Fairs, Thursday before Whitsuntide, for cattle.---N.W. Clapham Lodge.

AUTHORPE, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the Wold division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth: 139 miles from London (coach road 144), 4 from Alford, 6 from Louth.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Authorpe station, 159 miles: from Derby, through Grimsby, &c., 115 miles.---Money orders issued at Alford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 6½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The living (St. Margaret), a dioc<sup>h</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £166: patron, R. Vyner, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. P. Vyner, 1836: contains 921 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 117: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 135: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,056: poor rates in 1837, £175.---W. 1 m. Burwell Park.

AVEBURY (or ABURY), WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Selkley, union of Marlborough: 79 miles from London (coach road 82), 7 from Marlborough, 11 from Swindon.---Gt. West. Rail. to Hungerford, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Chippenham, thence 11 miles.---Money orders issued at Marlborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---This village has grown up upon a site supposed to be of Druidical foundation, erected for purposes similar to those of Stonehenge, but on a much larger scale. It is called the Grey Wethers, and was, in 1720, examined by Dr. Stukeley, who supposed it to have included the whole of the district of the present village, and to have consisted of not less than 650 stones. It was surrounded by a large ditch, within which there was an extensive vallum, supposed to have been made to enable the spectators to view the whole of the ceremonies proceeding within the area. The ground circle had two entrances, comprising 100 stones each, which were placed at such distances as to make the avenues a mile in length. There are many barrows, cromlechs, and other tumuli in the neighbourhood, of which Silbury hill, a Roman remain, is the most remarkable, being easily distinguishable from the other hills around it, about 2,027 feet in diameter at the base, and nearly 170 feet high. Tanner says of Avebury:—In the time of Henry I., the manor was given by William de Tancarville to the Benedictine monks of St. George of Bocchorville, in Normandy, to which abbey it became an alien priory. It was once given to St. Mary, Winchester College, in Oxford, but afterwards, in the reign of Henry IV., it was annexed to the collegiate church of Fotheringhay, in Northamptonshire, and a part of its possessions granted, in the reign of Edward VI., to Sir W. Sherington.---The living (St. James), a vicarage, with that of Winterbourne Monckton annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £178: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, James Mayo, 1823: contains 5,450 acres: 139 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 751: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 863: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,571: poor rates in 1837, £401.---Avebury House.

AVECOTE (or AUOTE), WARWICKSHIRE: 112½ miles from London, 3 from Tamworth.---Nor. West. Rail. to Tamworth, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 27 miles.---Money orders issued at Tamworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---According to Tanner—There was here a small priory of four Benedictine monks, cell to Malvern the Greater in Worcestershire, begun by William Burdett, A. D. 1159. It was valued in 26th year of Henry VIII. at £34. 8s., and granted in 34th Henry VIII. in exchange to Sir Thomas, Lord Audley, and Sir Thomas Pope.

AVELEY, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chafford, union of Orsett: 19 miles from London (coach road 21), 7 from Romford, 2 from Burfleet.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Romford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 151 miles.---Money orders issued at Romford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The village was formerly a market town. There is an almshouse for three poor men here, and a charitable bequest of £3 per annum, which is expended in distributing bread among the poor.---The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, diocese of London, is valued at £14. 10s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £266: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, R. M. White, 1833: contains 3,920 acres: 135 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 849: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 976: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £758: poor rates in 1837, £298.---Fair, Easter Monday.

AVENBURY, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broxash, union of Bromyard, on the river Frome: 143 miles from London (coach road 125), 2 from Bromyard, 15 from Hereford.---Gt. West. Rail. to Worcester, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 87 miles.---Money orders issued at Bromyard: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £7. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £80: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, R. H. Williams, 1836: contains 3,140 acres: 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 382: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 439: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,270: poor rates in 1837, £255.

AVENING, GLOUCESTERSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Longtree, union of Stroud, and within the parliamentary boundary of Stroud. It includes a part of the chapelry of Nailsworth: 102½ miles from London (coach road 99), 3 from Stroud, 4 from Tetbury.---Gt. West. Rail. to Avening station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 109 miles.---Money orders issued at Stroud: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There is a congregation of the Baptists, which was formed here in 1818, another of Independents at Upper Forest Green, and an Independent church formed at Nailsworth in 1687. S. Sandford, in 1710, left £17 a year for the endowment of a free school here, which subsists partly on that bequest, and partly by voluntary contributions. The other charities produce about £13 a year. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in hand-loom weaving. There are several barrows in the parish, in which skeletons have been met with; and, in a field near Gatcombe Park, there is a large tumulus, known by the name of Longstone, from having a stone at each end, and a large stone resting upon them: the monument is supposed to commemorate a Danish chieftain, whose name was Long.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £24: pres. net income, £769: patron, Heirs of Dr. Brooke: pres. incumbent, T. R. Brooke: contains 4,660 acres: 500 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,227: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,661: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,279: poor rates in 1837, £359.

AVERHAM, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the wapentake of Thurgarton, union of Southwell, on the western bank of the Trent: 143 miles from London (coach road 127), 3 from Newark, 5 from Southwell.---Nor. West. Rail. through Nottingham to Southwell, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Southwell, &c., 33½ miles.---Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Michael), a rectory, with that of Kelham annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, diocese of York, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £1,435: patron, J. H. M. Sutton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. N. Sutton, 1844: contains 2,000 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 264: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 303: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,749: poor rates in 1837, £197.

AVETON-GIFFORD, Devon, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Ermington, union of Kingsbridge: 237 miles from London (coach road 208), 3 from Modbury, 13 from Dartmouth.---Gt. West. Rail. to Brent, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Brent, &c., 239 miles.---Money orders issued at Modbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £7 per annum.---The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £38. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £586: patron, Executors of the late James Pitman, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. P. Pitman, 1847: contains 1,840 acres: 178 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,057: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,215: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,436: poor rates in 1837, £507.

AVINGTON, Berks, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Kintbury-Eagle, union of Hungerford: 59½ miles from London (coach road 62), 3 from Hungerford, 6 from Newbury.---Gt. West. Rail. to Kintford, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through London, and as above, 191½ miles.---Money orders issued at Hungerford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The church is well worthy of notice from its antiquity, there being a curious specimen of Saxon architecture, in the separation of the chancel from the nave by an arch with a zig-zag moulding of singular appearance. The font is circular, also ancient and very curious.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £300: patron, Sir R. Burdett, Bart.: pres. incumbent, R. A. Gordon, 1846: contains 1,100 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 94: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 108: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,273: poor rates in 1837, £65.

AVINGTON, Hants, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Fawley: 63 miles from London (coach road 60), 5 from Winchester, 4 from Alresford.---Sou. West. Rail. to Andover Road, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 195 miles.---Money orders issued at Winchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There is a bequest of Anne Bridges, left to the rector of the parish, on condition of his residing constantly in the parish.---The living, (Virgin Mary) a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £11. 11s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £265: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, C. S. Bonnett, 1820: contains 1,830 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 204: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 235: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,611: poor rates in 1837, £62.---Avington Park is a seat of the Duke of Buckingham, the particulars of whose family history will be given with the account of Stowe, their principal residence. The mansion at Avington is spacious and elegant, having a front which consists of a centre and two wings, but is built of brick, and can hardly be said to be complete, it having been partially dismantled by the Duke of Chandos, by whose sudden death, in 1789, it was left unfinished. The apartments are furnished with great taste, and there is in the house a good collection of pictures, chiefly purchased by the late Earl Temple from among the Besborough and Orleans galleries, the most striking piece being a very fine Rembrandt, called "Cornelius the Centurion," the subject of which is taken from the tenth chapter of the book of Acts of the Apostles. It was painted for the ancestors of a merchant's family at Amsterdam, from whose descendants it was purchased by an English collector, who, with the assistance of two of the sons of the family, embarked with it on board a fishing-boat, and escaped with it, across the Channel, in the night before the French entered the city. The grounds in the neighbourhood of the mansion are finely laid out, and afford a very pleasing contrast to the high, open, and bare downs which constitute the chief characteristic of the country around. The manor was originally a royal demesne; but was given by King Edgar to the abbots of Winchester, in whose possession it remained till the dissolution of the monasteries, at which period it passed to the clerks of Micheldever, and afterwards to the Bruges or Brydges, one of whom had married Alice, a descendant of the Lord Chandos, so celebrated in the French wars of Edward III. The property came immediately into the hands of the last Duke of Chandos through Sir Thomas Brydges, who married the noted Anna Maria Brudenell, whose first husband, Francis Earl of Shrewsbury, fell in consequence of a wound received in a duel with George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, one of her paramours, and whose horse, it is asserted, the Countess held during the conflict. When she resided at Avington, Charles II. was her frequent guest, and the house consequently became the scene of many of the licentious revels of that profligate monarch.

AVON, Wilts, a chapelry in the parish of Christian-Malford: 90 miles from London (coach road 94), 3 from Chippenham, 9 from Malmesbury.---Gt. West. Rail. to Wootton-Bassett, thence 7½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 136 miles.---Money orders issued at Chippenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The living (All Saints), a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Christian-Malford, is valued at £1. 13s. 4d.: contains 160 acres: 4 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £659: poor rates in 1837, £4.

AVON-DASSET. See DASSET-AVON.

AWBURN (or ARBORN). See AUBURN.

AWKERINGTON. See ALKINGTON.

AWNBY, LINCOLNSHIRE. See HOLYWELL.

AWLISCOMBE, Devon, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hemyock, union of Honiton: 190 miles from London (coach road 154), 2 from Honiton, 10 from Collumpton.---Gt. West. Rail. to Collumpton, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 198 miles.---Money orders issued at Honiton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The great tithes, producing about £150 a year, are applicable to the improvement of small livings in Devonshire, and to the education of children in the parish of Broadhembury. A handsome bridge was built over the Otter in 1817. There is a Unitarian chapel here, and a National school. A bequest of George Pring produces £10 a year to the parish.---The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £12. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £213: patron, Duke of Bedford: pres. incumbent, F. Willesford, 1834: contains 1,820 acres: 103 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 590: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 679: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £598: poor rates in 1837, £202.

AWRE, Gloucestershire, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blideslow, union of Westbury, on the estuary of the Severn, which bounds the parish on three sides. It includes the chapelry of Blakeney—(which see)—and the tithings of Blidesloe, Etloe, Etloe-Duchy, and Hagloe: 111 miles from London (coach road 124), 3 from Blakeney, 8 from Berkeley. —Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 111 miles. —Money orders issued at Newnham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —There are two National schools here, and the parish is endowed with charities producing about £24 per annum. Awre was the birthplace of Sternhold, one of the authors of the metrical Psalms attached to the prayer-book. He died in 1549, having been groom of the robes to Henry VIII. and Edward VI. —The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage in connection with Poulton, transferred from the archd<sup>y</sup> of Hereford to that of Gloucester, in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £10. 5s.: pres. net income, £530: patron, Haberdashers' Company: pres. incumbent, J. H. Malpas, 1826: contains 4,120 acres: 219 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,277: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,468: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,632: poor rates in 1837, £503.

AWSWORTH, Nottinghamshire, a chapelry in the parish of Nuthall: 137 miles from London (coach road 132), 7 from Nottingham —Nor. West. Rail. to Nottingham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 23½ miles. —Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The inhabitants are chiefly colliers. —The living is a perpetual curacy: pres. net income, £101: patron, Rector of Nuthall: pres. incumbent, S. M'Lund.

AXBRIDGE, Somersetshire, a market town and parish (created a royal borough by King Athelstane) in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Winterstoke, division of Wrington, union of Axbridge: 145 miles from London (coach road 130), 10 from Wells. —Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, 159 miles. —Money orders issued at Axbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The town, which derives its name from a bridge over the river Axe, was once the residence of the West Saxon kings, by whom it was invested with many privileges. It is situated under the southern range of the Mendip hills, and consists chiefly of one long street, winding from east to west. Although formerly a borough, it was disfranchised in the 17th year of Edward III. on the petition of the inhabitants, who objected to the expense of sending members to parliament. Axbridge is now one of the polling-places for East Somersetshire. The church, which is placed on an elevated situation to the north-east of the town, is a very ancient structure, and is believed to have been founded by, if the present fabric be not almost entirely the work of, the West Saxon kings. At the east end of the town also, is the Market-house and Guildhall, which was rebuilt at an expense of £1,800 within these few years. The town is rapidly improving, owing to the influence of the Axe drainage, which was effected under an act of parliament about forty years ago, at an expense of upwards of £70,000; and the value of the land in the neighbourhood has been so largely increased, that much of it, which before could be had for 2s. 6d., now lets for from £5 to £6 an acre. The town is governed by a mayor, recorder, alderman, and bailiff; there is also a town-clerk, clerk of the peace, prothonotor, eight common council-men, with twenty-two free burgesses. Their income is about £100 a year. General sessions are held quarterly, and special sessions every Saturday. The dame schools are numerous, and the charities produce about £100 a year. The Wesleyan Methodists and Particular Baptists have chapels respectively here. Near the town there is a mineral spring, which is considered efficacious in chronic diseases. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £11. 4s. 4d.: pres. net income, £158: patron, Bishop of Bath and Wells: pres. incumbent, G. G. Beadon, 1823: contains 540 acres: 173 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,045: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,202: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,929: poor rates in 1837, £367. —Market-days, Tuesday and Saturday. Fairs, 5th Feb., 25th March, 11th June, and 28th October, for cattle. —Bankers, Stuckey's Banking Company—draw on Roberts, Curtis, & Co.; and a Branch of the West of England and South Wales Banking Company—draw on Glyn, Halifax, & Co., respectively.

AXFORD, Wilts, a tithing in the parish of Ramsbury: 68½ miles from London (coach road 73), 3 from Marlborough, 4 from Ramsbury. —Gt. West. Rail. to Hungerford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 144½ miles. —Money orders issued at Marlborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Contains 86 houses.

AXMINSTER, Devon, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Axminster, southern division of Devonshire. The parish includes the tithings of Beerhall, Town, Westwater, and Wyke: 169 miles from London (coach road 147), 12 from Budport. —Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Collumpton, 208 miles. —Money orders issued at Axminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The town derives its name from the river Axe, and a minster which was erected here by King Athelstane. It was a place of great importance in the time of the Saxons, and the burial-place of many of their kings. A battle was fought here in 1644, between detachments from the royal and parliamentary armies, in which Sir Richard Cholmondeley, the commander of the former, was slain. The town, which stands in a pleasing situation near the confluence of the Yarty and the Axe, is irregularly built; but the streets are spacious, and the climate is considered salubrious. The church is a very ancient structure, parts of it, indeed, being thought to be as old as the time of Athelstane; and Tanner observes, in speaking of it—King Athelstane founded here a minster for seven priests to pray for the souls of those who were slain in a battle, which he fought against the Danes, at Bremal-Down, near this place. This minster was afterwards altered from seven to two priests, for whom a portion of land was allotted, known by the name of Priest-aller, which, with the parsonage, belongeth to two prebends of the church of York. It was during a vacancy of the archiepiscopal see, in the time of Henry III., alienated to the abbey of Newnham, but restored in the 21st of Edward I. to the prebendaries, and continues to this day part of the endowment of the prebendaries of Grindal and Wart-hill. The edifice presents the chief features of the Norman style on the outside, the principal entrance being particularly worthy of notice. In the interior there are examples of the English styles of the several periods, and upon the pulpit and font there are some very curious carvings. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who here hold a petty sessions for the division of Honiton. It is noted for the manufacture of carpets, the finest qualities being esteemed superior even to those of Turkey; and one, which was 74 feet by 52, valued at £1,200, was not long since woven for the Sultan of that empire. There are also manufactures of broad and narrow cloths, druggets, cottons, and tapes. There are chapels for the Wesleyan Methodists and the Independents, the latter of whom had a church formed here as early as 1662.—The living (the Virgin Mary), a vicarage, to which are annexed the curacies of Kilminster and Membury, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £44. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £975: patron, Very Rev. W. J. Conybeare: pres. incumbent, W. J. Conybeare, 1848: contains 6,590 acres: 522 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,860: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,289: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £13,797: poor rates in 1837, £1,445.—Market days, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. Fairs, 1st Tuesday after April 25, after June 24, and 3d Wednesday after Oct. 12. Races, in August, on Shute Hill, about three miles distant.—Bankers, R. & H. Williams—draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co.; Branch of the Wilts and Dorset Banking Company—draw on London and Westminster Bank.

AXMOUTH, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Axminster, on the coast between Lyme and Sidmouth: 174 miles from London (coach road 153), 3 from Colyton, 9 from Sidmouth.—Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 33 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Exeter, &c., 226 miles.—Money orders issued at Axminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—The place is named from the river Axe running through it to the English Channel. Piers have been built at the mouth of the river, under shelter of which vessels of 100 tons burden can discharge their cargoes. A small endowment for a school was left, in 1726, by Mr. William Serle. On the 25th December, 1839, an extraordinary landslip occurred here, by which a chasm of from 200 to 300 feet in width, and more than a mile and a half in length, was formed. It runs parallel to the coast, and there is an area of about a mile in length, and half as much broad, now cut off from the main land.—

The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £22. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, J. H. Hallett, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. S. Hallett, 1814: contains 4,280 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 645: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 742: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,139: poor rates in 1837, £221.

AYCLIFFE (GREAT), DURHAM, a parish in the south-east division of Darlington ward, union of Darlington. It includes the townships of Great Aycliffe, Brafferton, Preston-le-Skerne, and Woodham—(which see): 272 miles from London (coach road 246), 5 from Darlington, 13 from Durham.—Nor. West. Rail. through Darlington to Heighington, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through York, &c., 140 miles.—Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—There is a school here, which has an endowment of £4 a year, for which eight children are instructed in reading, writing, and accounts. There is another bequest, producing £3. 10s. per annum, which is spent on bread for the poor. The village is of great antiquity, synods having been held here in 782 and 789. It was at one time a portion of the possessions of the see of Lindisfarne.—The living (St. Acca), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £246: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, J. D. Eade, 1835: contains 10,490 acres: 316 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,372: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,577.

AYCLIFFE (SCHOOL), DURHAM, a township in the parish of Heighington: 271 miles from London (coach road 236½), 4 from Darlington, 4 from Bishop-Auckland.—Nor. West. Rail. through Darlington to Heighington: from Derby, through York, 139 miles.—Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 700 acres: 7 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £350.

AYDON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Corbridge: 324 miles from London (coach road 277), 6 from Hexham, 15 from Newcastle.—Nor. West. Rail. through Carlisle to Corbridge, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Darlington and Newcastle, 192 miles.—Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—Contains 20 houses: poor rates in 1837, £55.

AYDONCASTLE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Corbridge.—(For access and postal arrangements see preceding article.)—The place takes its name from a castle, the ruins of which still remain on the west side of a deep dell. It belonged, in the time of Edward I., to a family of the name of Aydon, and was considered a place of remarkable strength. The castle was built in the form of the letter H, having a tower at the extremity of each wing. The ruins of one of them are sixty feet high, and the walls are of immense thickness.

AYLBURTON, GLOUCESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Lidney: 117½ miles from London (coach road 120), 5 from Blakeney, 8 from Chepstow.—Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 117½ miles.—Money orders issued at Newnham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.

—A bequest of Christopher Willoughby, in 1680, produces £16 a year for the benefit of the poor inhabitants.—The living, a curacy not in charge: patron, Vicar of Lidney: contains 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 468: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 538: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,855: poor rates in 1837, £118.

AYLESBEAR, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of East Budleigh, union of St. Thomas. It includes the township of Aylesbear, and the tithing of Newton-Poppleford—(which see): 204 miles from London (coach road 166), 5 from Ottery-St-Mary, 10 from Exeter.—Gt. West. Rail. to Exeter, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Exeter, &c., 210 miles.—Money orders issued at Exeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—A bequest was made by Richard White, in 1697, for the education of six poor children.—The living (St. Christopher), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the curacy of Newton-Poppleford annexed, in the arch<sup>d</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £16. 2s. 4d.: pres. net income, £123: patron, Rev. H. Marker: pres. incumbent, W. H. Carwithen, 1848; contains 3,750 acres: 196 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 982: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,129: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,526: poor rates in 1837, £375.

AYLESBURY (or AILESBUURY), BUCKINGHAM, a borough and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Aylesbury. The parish was a prebend (now suppressed) in the cathedral of Lincoln: 43½ miles from London (coach road 38), 7 from Tring.—Nor. West. Rail. 43½ miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 103½ miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—Aylesbury is situated about the centre of the celebrated vale to which it gives its name, on an eminence considerable, as compared with the characteristics of the surrounding country, and is therefore a striking object from a distance. It is the principal place in the county, where the elections, the Lent assizes, the quarter sessions, and the general business of the county are transacted. By a charter granted by Queen Mary, in 1553-4, it sends two burgesses to parliament. Walton, which was formerly a hamlet of itself, is now a continuous street leading out of Aylesbury towards Amersham, and is, for all municipal purposes, an integral part of the town. The market-place, which is an extensive rectangular area, is in the middle of the town, and towards it all the chief streets and lanes converge. The houses are irregularly built, presenting altogether a somewhat picturesque coup-d'œil. The market-house is a neat and commodious edifice, said to have been erected after the model of the Temple of the Winds at Athens. The county hall, which is on the south side of the market-place, is a large and imposing building, and, besides the several courts for the administration of law and justice, contains the record office, and the office of the clerk of the peace. Behind it lodgings are being built for the judges of assize, on part of the site of the old gaol. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin, is an ancient cruciform building, with a low square tower, surmounted by a wooden spire; it has a peal of eight bells, besides a "saint's" bell. Before the old tenor bell was recast in 1773, there was the following inscription upon it: Non sono animabus mortuorum sed nascentium. If the Latin be not good, the moral is, "I sound not for the souls of the dead, but of those who are being born." The organ, a handsome and fine-toned instrument, was the gift of Mrs. Mary Pitches, a lady resident in the town, in 1780. There is an ancient and graceful font of semi-spheroidal shape in the north transept, which, till recently, was disused for baptisms. The only monument, except those which are mural, is one with the alabaster figure of a recumbent knight, now much mutilated, supposed to represent one of the Boteler family, the founders of the Grey friars' monastery in the town. The churchyard is extensive, laid out with walks, and tastefully planted with trees; and the church altogether—described by Leland as the ancientest in all those quarters, both from its architecture and dimensions—is an object of great interest and striking beauty. On the south of it is the free grammars-school, originally endowed, by Sir H. Lee of Ditchley, with £8 a year, but enriched, in 1714, by Henry Philips, Esq., with the sum of £5,000. There are on the foundation 120 scholars, all of whom receive a classical education, with instruction in English and in accounts. The general infirmary, erected by voluntary contributions in 1833, stands on Aldenham hill, and is capable of receiving thirty-six in-patients. Besides several sums of small amount, left to be distributed among the poor, and the prisoners in the gaol, there is an income of £530 a year, arising from an estate left in Elizabeth's reign, by John Bedford, vested in trustees incorporated by act of parliament, for the benefit of the town. Hickman's charity produces about £40 a year. The union workhouse, which is a large building, Aylesbury being the head of a union of upwards of forty parishes, is of brick, in the Tudor style. It was opened in 1844, and is capable of containing 150 to 200 inmates. The new gaol is placed opposite to it, on a rising ground, on the road to Berton. The entrance is under an archway, having the residence of the governor on one side, and of the chaplain on the other. Behind is the main building, stretching out in the form of the three lower limbs of a cross, 303 feet by 140. It contains 220 common cells, and 6 dark or punishment cells, for males; 19 common, 3 reception, and 5 unappropriated cells, for females: each prisoner has a cell to himself, measuring 13 feet by 7. The building has three stories, approached by outside iron galleries, and crossings at each story. The separate system is strictly enforced. The cooking operations are carried on by steam in the basement of the building, and the victuals are raised by a windlass to the several galleries, and placed in silence in the niche in the door of each cell. The façade, which is sixty feet long, is handsome, and the whole building covers a space of about five acres. Aylesbury market, which is a pitch and stock market, considered the best in this and the neighbouring counties, is still improving. It is abundantly supplied with corn, cattle, poultry, and all other kinds of agricultural produce, from the luxuriant country around. The manufacture of bobbin-lace, for which this part of Buckinghamshire was at one time so famous, has altogether declined; its place has been partially supplied by the working of straw, but the market for straw-plait here seems little likely to be as important as are those of Dunstable and Luton. The town of Aylesbury is of very remote origin, and appears to have been one of the strongest fortresses possessed by the ancient Britons, from whom it was taken in 571, by Cutwulph, brother of Ceawlyn, king of the West Saxons. It early became famous, from the reputed sanctity of two maidens, daughters of Fredwald, a king or Mercian prince, who is described as the lord of all this country; and their father bestowed the town, with its domain, on one of them for her dowry, but she was induced to renounce the world, leave her husband, and enter on a conventual life. After the Norman Conquest, William made it a royal manor, investing some of his favourites with a portion of its lands, under the tenure of providing straw for his bed, and three geese in summer, and three eels in winter, for his sustenance, if he should go that way. During the great civil war, the town was garrisoned for the parliamentarians. The internal affairs of the town are managed by constables appointed at the general court-leet. The Wesleyans, Baptists, Independents, and Society of Friends, have all chapels in the town: the Roman Catholics also have a chapel here. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £24. 18s. 1d.: pres. income, £330: patron, Bishop of Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. R. Pretymann, 1842: contains 3,200 acres: 990 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,429: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,243: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £9,288: poor rates in 1837, £1,716: tithes commuted in 1771. Market day, Saturday. Fairs, Friday after Jan. 18, Saturday before Palm-Sunday, May 8, June 14, Sept. 25, for cattle, and Oct. 12. Bankers, Messrs. Rickford & Hunt—draw on Praed & Co.: Butcher & Son (of Tring), on Wednesday and Saturday only—draw on Drewett & Fowler: Branch of the London and County Joint-Stock Bank—draw on the Head Office, 21 Lombard Street. Newspapers:—the Bucks Herald, the Bucks Gazette, the Bucks Chronicle, and Aylesbury News. Inns—Red Lion, the Crown, the George, and White Hart. S.W. 2 m. is Hartwell House, the seat of John Lee, Esq., LL.D., famous as the place of refuge of Louis XVIII., while residing in this country during the French revolutionary war.

AYLESBY, LINCOLNSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Bradley-Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor: 200 miles from London (coach road 166), 4 from Great Grimsby, 17 from Barton. East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. to Great Grimsby, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Masborough, &c., 99 miles. Money orders issued at Great Grimsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. The living (St. Lawrence), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £73: patron, Rev. T. T. Drake: pres. incumbent, J. T. Drake, 1831: contains 2,110 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 201: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 231: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,918: poor rates in 1837, £149.

AYLESFORD, KENT, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Larkfield, lathe of Aylesford, union of Malling. It stands at the foot of a hill near the Medway: 59 miles from London (coach road 32), 4 from Maidstone, 5 from Rochester. Sou. East. Rail. to Maidstone, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 191 miles. Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The church stands on an abrupt rising ground overlooking the village; it contains monuments to members of the several families of Colepepper, Duke, Banks, Sedley, and Rycant. A hospital was founded here by Sir W. Sedley and his relative Mr. John Sedley, with an annual income of £135 per annum. In 1773, a school for the education of 25 children of the parish was endowed by Charles Milner with £23 per annum. The church lands produce £8 a year for the benefit of the poor. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Richard, Lord Gray of Codnor, founded here, about A.D. 1240, an house of Carmelite or White friars, which was granted in 33d year of Henry VIII. to Sir Thomas Wyatt, upon whose son's attainder it reverted to the crown, and was granted by Elizabeth to John Sedley. The priory has now been converted into an agreeable residence, which is now in the possession of the Earl of Aylesford, who derives his title from the place. A battle was fought here in 455, between Vortimer, and Hengist and Horsa. The Danes were also afterwards defeated twice in the parish—the first time by Alfred, and afterwards by Edmund Ironside. Sir Charles Sedley, one of the dissolute courtiers of Charles II., was a native of Aylesford, as was also Sir Paul Rycant, the eastern traveller, who was distinguished not only in that capacity, but also as an historical writer. He was the son of a London merchant, and received his education at Trinity College, Cambridge, but proceeded in 1661 to Constantinople, where he wrote his work, "The State of the Ottoman Empire." He was afterwards appointed British Consul at Smyrna, where, by command of the king, he wrote "The Present State of the Greek and Armenian Churches." On his return to England, he was made secretary to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, a privy councillor, and a judge of the Court of Admiralty. He was appointed by William III. his resident at the Hanse Towns, and was the author of several other works in addition to those just named. He died in 1700. In the neighbourhood of the village there is a large cromlech, called "Kit's-Cotty-House," supposed by some to be the tomb of Cutigern, the brother of Vortimer, and by others that of Horsa. The living (St. Peter), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £531: patron, Dean and Chapter of Rochester: pres. incumbent, E. G. Marsh, 1840: contains 3,380 acres: 205 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,344: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,545: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £6,835: poor rates in 1837, £976. Fair, 29th June.

AYLESHAM, SUSSEX. See HAILEHAM.

AYLESTONE, LEICESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Guthlaxton and Sparkenhoe, union of Blaby. It contains the townships of Aylestone and Glen-Parva, with the chapelry of Lubbesthorpe: 105½ miles from London (coach road 96), 3 from Leicester, 10 from Hinckley. Nor. West. Rail. to Leicester, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 53 miles. Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The Union Canal runs through the parish, and joins the river Soar, a little below the village.—The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £31. 8s. 11<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £845: patron, Duke of Rutland: pres. incumbent, G. W. Straton, 1843: contains 3,840 acres: 153 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 757: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 870: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,420: poor rates in 1837, £265.

AYLMERTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Erpingham, union of Erpingham: 151 miles from London (coach road 128), 3 from Cromer, 9 from Holt.—East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Dereham, &c., 175 miles.—Money orders issued at Cromer: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united to that of Ranton, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 11s.: pres. net income, £370: patron, W. H. Wyndham: pres. incumbent, R. C. Wyndham, 1838: contains 1460 acres: 61 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 289: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 333: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £986: poor rates in 1837, £160.

AYLSHAM, NORFOLK, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of South Erpingham, union of Aylsham: 144 miles from London (coach road 118), 12 from Norwich.—East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, &c., 167 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The town stands on the Bure, which is navigable from hence to Yarmouth. The chief employment of the inhabitants is agricultural. A free school was founded here in 1517, by Robert Jannys, who was mayor of Norwich that year, and in all probability a native of this parish, but it is now placed under the direction of the National School Society. One of the county bridewells was formerly in this town, but the building is now converted into dwelling-houses. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, and petty sessions are held every Tuesday at the Black Boy. The church is a fine specimen of the architecture of the 14th century, and is enriched by a stained glass east window and several monuments. The place was famous during the reigns of Edward II. and Edward III. for its linen, which was called Aylsham web; but the trade fell off, and woollen manufacture was substituted, but that has given way before the power of machinery. The church was built by John of Gaunt, the courts of whose duchy were for a long time held here. There is a mineral spring in the neighbourhood, efficacious in chronic disorders.—The living (St. Michael), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £17. 9s. 9d.: pres. net income, £425: endowed with a portion of about one-third of the great tithes: patron, Dean and Chapter of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, E. T. Yates, 1839: contains 4,250 acres: 484 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,448: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,815: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £9,260: poor rates in 1848, £1,193. 17s. 3d.: tithes commuted: vicar's rent charge, £670: rector's, £730. The Rev. S. Pitman is the lessee of the great tithes under the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury, and is owner of the rectory house and buildings, now cottages.—Market day, Tuesday. Fairs, March 23, and last Tuesday in September, for lean cattle, horses, and pedlery; October 6, for cattle.—Bankers, Messrs. Copeman & Co.—draw on Hankys & Co.—The Dog, and Black Boy Inns.

AYLSTON. See ALLEXTON.

AYLTHORPE. See AGELTHORPE.

AYLTON, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Radlow, union of Ledbury: 143 miles from London (coach road 124), 4 from Ledbury, 11 from Hereford.—Gt. West. Rail. to Tewkesbury, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 91 miles.—Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £3. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £149: patron, Earl of Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. H. Mapleton, 1844: contains 810 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 69: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 79: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,316: poor rates in 1837, £39.

AYMESTREY (or AYLIMSTREE), HEREFORD, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stretford, and partly in that of Wigmore, union of Leominster. It comprises the townships of Conhope, Aymestrey, and Over Lye: 168 miles from London (coach road 146), 9 from Leominster, 11 from Ludlow.—Gt. West. Rail. to Worcester, thence 33 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 105 miles.—Money orders issued at Leominster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.—Near the village there are the remains of British and Roman camps. A school, in connection with the National Society, has an endowment of £14 a year, and the other charities produce about £19 a year.—The living (St. John and St. Alkmund), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £7. 14s. 2d.: pres. net income, £249: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, James Landon, 1797: contains 7,070 acres: 195 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 958: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,101: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,020: poor rates in 1837, £482.

AYNHÖ, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of King's Sutton, union of Brackley: 83 miles from London (coach road 63), 6 from Brackley, 7 from Banbury.—Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Blisworth, &c., 84 miles.—Money orders issued at Brackley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.—There was an hospital here, founded in the time of Henry II., for the accommodation of travellers, which, at the dissolution of the monasteries, was granted to Magdalen College, Oxford. The parish also had a charter for an annual fair at Michaelmas, and for a weekly market, granted in the 17th year of Edward II., but they have long been discontinued. There is a free school, endowed with a rent charge of £20 a year, by Mrs. Mary Cartwright; and there are also almshouses for six poor persons, with an endowment of £161, which is distributed among the inmates, founded in 1816, by Mr. John Baker of Oxford. To the east of the village there are still the traces of a Roman road, called the Portway. Sir Ralph Winwood, who was twice envoy to Holland, and wrote "Memorials of Affairs of State," in the reigns of Elizabeth and James I., was a native of this parish. He was born in 1565, and was secretary of state from 1614 till his death in 1617. Shakerley Marmion, the poet and dramatist, was also a native of Aynho. He was born in 1602, educated at Wadham College, Oxford, and died in 1639. His chief work was "Cupid and Psyche," a poem. The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £25. 5s. 5d.: pres. net income, £500: patron, W. R. Cartwright: pres. incumbent, S. R. Cartwright, 1830: contains 2,330 acres: 139 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 662: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 761: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,031: poor rates in 1837, £307. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1792. Aynho House, the residence of W. R. Cartwright, Esq., lieutenant-colonel of the Northamptonshire Yeomanry, and for a long time a representative of the county, succeeded his father in 1772. The family takes its immediate rise from Hugh Cartwright, who was living in the time of Henry VII., and whose great-grandson, Richard, was a member of the Inner Temple, and bought the manor of Aynho. John Cartwright, Esq., the son of Richard, suffered much from his adhesion to the cause of the Parliament, on the breaking out of the civil war, and ultimately became connected with the family of Lord Fairfax by marriage. Since his time, the family have always held a place of eminence among the gentry of the county. The mansion is of fine elevation, and contains a valuable collection of pictures.

AYOTT (St. LAWRENCE), or AYOTT-MAGNA, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broadwater, union of Welwyn: 38 miles from London (coach road 28), 3 from Welwyn, 7 from St. Albans. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Hertford, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Boxmoor, &c., 124 miles. Money orders issued at Welwyn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The church was rebuilt in 1778, at the expense of Sir Lionel Lyde, under the expectation that he should be able to add the site of the old one to his park; but when the roof was off, and the building much dilapidated, the bishop issued an injunction against any further proceeding, on the principle, that ground once consecrated to holy purposes should never be desecrated without some evident necessity. The late baronet was succeeded in the estate by the present proprietor, Lionel Lyde, Esq., his nephew, whose grandfather was mayor of Bristol in 1781, and whose father was high sheriff of Bedfordshire in 1840. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £180: patron, Lionel Lyde, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Olive, 1830: contains 980 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 134: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 154: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,062: poor rates in 1837, £48.

AYOTT (St. PETER), or AYOTT-PARVA, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broadwater, union of Welwyn: 36 miles from London (coach road 25), 2 from Welwyn, 5 from Hatfield. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Hertford, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Boxmoor, &c., 122 miles. Money orders issued at Welwyn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9

a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 8s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Countess of Mexborough: pres. incumbent, Edward Prodgers, 1842: contains 1,270 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 240: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 276: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,072: poor rates in 1837, £66. Lamer Park, the seat of C. B. D. Garrard, Esq., who served the office of high sheriff in 1839, and is a magistrate. Sir John Garrard, grandson of Sir J. Garrard, Bart. of Lamer, left an only daughter and heiress, who married Montague Drake, Esq., M.P. for Agmondesham. The great-grandson of that gentleman, Charles Drake, Esq., assumed the name and arms of Garrard, on inheriting the Lamer estate, in 1767, on the death of Sir Benet Garrard, the sixth baronet. That gentleman died in 1817, and was succeeded by his son, the present proprietor.—The Thrift.

AYSGARTH, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish and township in the wapentake of Hang-west. It includes the townships of High and Low Abbotside, Askrigg, Aysgarth, Bainbridge, Bishop-Dale, Burton with Walden, Caperby, Newbiggin, Thoraby, and Thornton-Rust, with the chapelry of Hawes: 264 miles from London (coach road 241), 4 from Askrigg, 9 from Middleham. Nor. West. Rail. to Bedale, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Thirsk, Bedale, &c., 132 miles. Money orders issued at Hawes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3 p.m.: post closes 10 a.m. The parish is twenty-five miles in length, and nearly half as many in breadth. There are schools in nearly all the townships. The village stands on the Ure, near a remarkably fine waterfall, called Aysgarth force, where the whole stream, pent up, pours over an abrupt precipice of limestone rock, and breaks in its descent into numberless cascades. Above, there is a bridge of a single span of 71 feet, from which there is a most beautiful view. The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £19. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £137: patron, Trinity College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, John Winn, 1827: contains 79,980 acres: 1,219 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,725: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,584: poor rates in 1837, £168.

AYSLEBY, YORKSHIRE. See AISLBY.

AYSTON, RUTLAND, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Martinsley, union of Uppingham: 117 miles from London (coach road 90), 1 from Uppingham, 6 from Oakham. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Bisbrooke, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Syston, &c., 47½ miles. Money orders issued at Uppingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £8. 7s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £183: patron, G. Fludyer, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. H. Fludyer, 1834: contains 1,030 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 88: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 101: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,161: poor rates in 1837, £74.

AYTON (EAST), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Seamer: 267 miles from London (coach road 217), 4 from Scarborough, 20 from Whitby. Nor. West. Rail. to Scarborough, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 135 miles. --- Money orders issued at Scarborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. --- The living, a chapelry to Seamer, to which vicarage the curacy is annexed: contains 2,610 acres: 68 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,213: poor rates in 1837, £86. The great and small tithes, the property of the lord of the manor, were commuted in 1768.

AYTON (W<sup>EST</sup>), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Hutton-Bushell, wapentake of Pickering lythe: it lies on the Derwent, opposite to the township of East Ayton: 258½ miles from London (coach road 217), 5 from Scarborough, 16 from North Malton. --- Nor. West. Rail. through York to Seamer, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 126½ miles. --- Money orders issued at Scarborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. --- This is the place respecting which the celebrated lawsuit, called the 'Lady Hewley's charity case,' was carried on. That lady left three-fourths of the manor, to be vested in trustees, and applied for the support of preachers of the gospel. In the course of time, the property fell into the hands of the Presbyterian Unitarians, and the question arose as to whether Unitarians were preachers of the gospel or not, as, if not, they had no right to the property. After a variety of conflicting discussions, and nearly twenty years' litigation in the courts of Chancery and elsewhere, the matter was concluded by a compromise. In the neighbourhood there are the remains of an ancient castle, formerly belonging to the family of Evers. --- Contains 2,160 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 240: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 256: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,817: poor rates in 1837, £149. The great and small tithes of the township, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1792.

AYTON (G<sup>REAT</sup>), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the western division of the liberty of Langbaugh, union of Stokesley: it comprises the townships of Great and Little Ayton and Nunthorpe:

286 miles from London (coach road 240), 4 from Stokesley, 10 from Stockton. --- Nor. West. Rail. to Stockton, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Darlington, Stockton, &c., 154 miles. --- Money orders issued at Stokesley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. --- A charity school was founded here in 1704, with an endowment of £10 a year, by Michael Postgate, for the education of eight boys belonging to the village. A model farm and an agricultural school have been founded here by P. Richardson, Esq. The other charities bring in about £12 a year. The Independents, Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and Society of Friends, have all chapels here. There are quarries of freestone in the parish. The celebrated navigator, Captain Cook, received part of his education in Ayton school. --- The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, diocese of York, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £82½: patron, Rev. G. Marwood: pres. incumbent, Joseph Ibbotson, 1827: contains 5,740 acres: 283 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,216.

AYTON (L<sup>ITTLE</sup>), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish: 287 miles from London (coach road 240), 4 from Stokesley, 5 from Guisborough. --- Nor. West. Rail. to Stockton, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Darlington, Stockton, &c., 155 miles. --- Money orders issued at Stokesley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. --- Contains 1,170 acres: 13 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £983: poor rates in 1837, £37.

AZERLEY (or COMERLEY), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kirby-Malzeard, on a head-branch of the river Ure: 210 miles from London (coach road 217), 5 from Ripon, 5 from Masham. --- Nor. West. Rail. to Ripon, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 113 miles. --- Money orders issued at Ripon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. --- Contains 3,140 acres: 152 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,696: poor rates in 1837, £468.

B.

BABCARY, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Catsash, union of Langport, including the hamlets of Farrington and Stert: 109 miles from London (coach road 120), 4 from Somerton, 5 from Ilchester.---Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Bridgewater, &c., 183 miles.---Money orders issued at Somerton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living (Holy Cross), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £13. 18s. 6d.: pres. net income, £450: patron, Rev. W. H. Twembow: pres. incumbent, W. H. Twembow, 1845: contains 2,450 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 465: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 534: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,151: poor rates in 1837, £135.

BABINGLEY (or BABURGHLEY), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Freebridge-Lynn: 12½ miles from London (coach road 102), 2 from Castle-Rising, 6 from Lynn.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Cambridge to Lynn, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, to Lynn, &c., 129 miles.---Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---According to tradition, the first Christian church in East Anglia was erected here.---The living (St. Felix), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory with that of Sandringham, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: contains 870 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 54: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 62: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £874: poor rates in 1837, £72.

BABINGTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and division of Kilmersdon, union of Shepton-Mallet: 116½ miles from London (coach road 109), 5 from Frome, 10 from Bath.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Bath, &c., 152½ miles.---Money orders issued at Frome: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---In 1758, a bequest of £25 a year was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Long to the parish for charitable purposes.---The living (St. Margaret), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £170: patron, J. T. Jolliffe, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. R. Jolliffe, 1810: contains 600 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 163: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 187: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,235: poor rates in 1837, £170.

BABRAHAM (anciently BADBURHAM), CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chilford, union of Linton, near the Gogmagog hills: 56½ miles from London (coach road 51), 6½ from Cambridge, 4 from Linton.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Whittlesford, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Cambridge, to Shelford, 130 miles.---Money orders issued at Cambridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---In 1723, a school and almshouses were founded here by Mrs. Judith Bennet, at the former of which there are about forty scholars, and the latter are inhabited by six poor widows. The revenues, which amount to £134 per annum, are divided into three portions—£62 are given to the alms-people, £30 to the schoolmaster, and £25 a year are expended in apprenticing the poor children of the parish.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Ely, now in that of Sudbury, diocese of Ely, is valued at £6. 5s. 10d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, H. J. Adeane, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Singleton: contains 2,350 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 217: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 250: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,770: poor rates in 1837, £157.---Babraham House was the residence of Sir Horatio Palavicini, who collected the pope's taxes during the reign of Queen Mary, and who, it is stated, on the death of that queen and the accession of her sister, very wisely vacated his office, and, with proportionate prudence, put the money which he had gathered into his own pocket. The present house was rebuilt in 1834. Babraham is now the property and the residence of Henry John Adeane, Esq., who married the Hon. Matilda A. Stanley, a daughter of Lord Stanley of Alderley. The estate first came into the family through the marriage of Mr. Adeane's grandfather, General James Whorwood Adeane (who was a grandson of Dr. Henry Brydges, a brother of the first Duke of Chandos), with Anne, heiress of Robert Jones, Esq. Mr. Adeane sat as the representative of Cambridgeshire in 1830 and 1831, and was a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of the county; he died in 1847, and was succeeded by his son Robert Jones Adeane, a minor.

BABURGHLEY. See BABINGLEY.

BABWORTH, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the Hatfield division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bassetlaw, union of East Retford: it contains the hamlets of Great and Little Morton, Morton-Grange, and Ranby: 142 miles from London (coach road 146), 1 from East Retford, 7 from Worksop.---Nor. West. Rail. through Nottingham to Mansfield, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield and Eckington to Retford, &c., 49 miles.---Money orders issued at Retford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---A share in the Chesterfield Canal, which passes a little to the north of the town, was bequeathed, in 1781, by Lindley Simpson, Esq., for the support of a school for poor children. Its revenues are about £5 a year.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and diocese of York, is valued at £14. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £826: patron, Hon. J. B. Simpson: pres. incumbent, Rev. W. B. Simpson: contains 5,490 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 577: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 663: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,584: poor rates in 1837, £203.---Babworth Hall, the seat of the Hon. John Bridgman Simpson, is a mansion of fine elevation, and placed in a most delightful situation. The grounds, upon which, some years ago, a large sum was expended, are laid out with great taste, and assimilate with admirable effect with the venerable timber that adorns it, and the picturesque landscape beyond the precincts of the domain. In front of the house there is a lawn and a sheet of water, which impart a sweetly quiet beauty to the spot.

BACH, CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of St. Oswald—(which see for postal arrangements, access, &c.)—Contains 500 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 41: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 49: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £435: poor rates in 1837, £5.

BACHELDRE, MONTGOMERY, a township in the parish of Church-Stoke, North Wales: 181 miles from London (coach road 163), 4 from Bishop's-castle, 5 from Montgomery.—Gt. West. Rail. to Kidderminster, thence 45 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, to Kidderminster, &c., 111 miles.—Money orders issued at Bishop's-castle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12 noon.—(For population, &c., see WESTON-MADOC.)

BACHYMBYD, DENBIGH, a township in the parish of Llanynys, North Wales: 199 miles from London (coach road 202), 3 from Ruthin, 6 from Denbigh.—Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Gresford, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Chester, Gresford, &c., 99 miles.—Money orders issued at Ruthin: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.—(Population returned with the parish.)

BACKFORD, CHESHIRE, a parish partly in the higher division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirral, and partly in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broxton: it contains the townships of Backford, Chorlton, Lea, Great Mollington (in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirral), and Conghall, or Coughall (in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broxton): 184 miles from London (coach road 186), 3 from Chester, 16 from Liverpool.—Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Lee station, thence half a mile: from Derby, through Chester, &c., 86 miles.—Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—There is a National school here, which has an endowment from lands in Great Mollington.—The living (St. Oswald), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £5. 0s. 5d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Bishop of Chester: pres. incumbent, F. Bryans, 1838: contains 4,320 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 556: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 639.

BACKFORD, CHESHIRE, a township in the above parish—(which see for access and postal arrangements.)—Contains 800 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 185: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 210: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> in 1815, £1,327: poor rates in 1837, £97.

BACKWELL (or BACHWELL), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hartcliffe-with-Bedminster, and a little to the south of the Bristol and Exeter Railway. It contains the hamlets of Downside, Farley, Moorside, and West-Town: 128½ miles from London (coach road 125), 7 from Bristol, 12 from Axbridge.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Nailsea station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Nailsea, 141 miles.—Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—A Wesleyan congregation was formed here in 1830. There is a National school, which is handsomely supported; and the other educational establishments are numerous and well attended. There are large collieries in this neighbourhood, in which many of the inhabitants are employed.—The living (St. Andrew), a sinecure rectory and a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Bath, diocese of Bath and Wells: pres. net. income, £144: patron, Marquis of Bath: pres. incumbent, J. Langworthy, 1843: contains 2,750 acres: 178 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,161: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,335: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,829: poor rates in 1837, £292.—Fair, September 21.—Backwell House; Cam Park.

BACKWORTH (or BLACKWORTH), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Earsdon: 309 miles from London (coach road 281), 6 from North Shields, 7 from Newcastle.—Nor. West. Rail. through Newcastle to Killingworth, thence half a mile: from Derby, through Newcastle, &c., 177 miles.—Money orders issued at North Shields: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The place was formerly the property of Tyne-mouth Priory, and now belongs to the Grey family. There are valuable collieries here, called the 'Northumberland Wallsend,' and the 'Earsdon Main,' from which there is a communication by railway with the river Tyne.—Contains 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 442: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 597: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,502: poor rates in 1837, £119.—Backworth House.

BACONSTHORPE, NORFOLK, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Erpingham, union of Erpingham: 151 miles from London (coach road 121), 4 from Holt, 7 from Cromer.—East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, East Dereham, &c., 151, thence 18 miles.—Money orders issued at Holt: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—The living (the Holy Virgin), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £9: patron, J. T. Mott, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. A. Partridge, 1840: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 326: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 375: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,557: poor rates in 1837, £148.

BACOP, LANCASTER, a village partly in the township of New Church, in the parish of Whalley, hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackburn, union of Haslingden, and partly in the township of Spotland, in the parish and union of Rochdale, hun<sup>d</sup> of Salford: 210 miles from London (coach road 206), 7 from Rochdale, 7 from Burnley.—Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester and Bury to Bacop: from Derby, through Manchester, &c., 108 miles.—Money orders issued at Rochdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.—The inhabitants are much employed in the manufacture of cotton and woollen goods. There is one Wesleyan and two Baptist chapels here, one of which has existed since 1720. Within these last few years this place has risen into considerable importance from the establishment of cotton manufactories, and the village is principally inhabited by persons occupied in the various mills in and about the neighbourhood. Petty sessions for the division are held here once each week. In 1839, a mechanics' institute was established by some of the wealthy manufacturers; and, subsequently, a very handsome building has been erected at a cost of £1,300, which was opened in July, 1846, and presented free to the members. The river Irwell takes its rise at a place now called Dirpley, formerly Deerplay. About two and a half miles distant from the village, on the estate of J. Whittaker, Esq., is a Roman or British encampment.

—The living (St. John), a consolidated chapelry: pres. net income, £145: patron, Hulme's Trustees: pres. incumbent, E. B. Allen, 1839: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,526: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 9,000.—Fairs, Tuesday fortnight after Mid-lent, and October 25. Inns, George and Dragon, and Angel.—W. 1 m. Broad Clough, J. Whittaker, Esq.; Fern Hill, G. Ormerod, Esq.: S.  $\frac{3}{4}$  m. Stubby Lee, J. Holt, Esq.

BACTON, Hereford, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Webtree, union of Dore: 144 miles from London (coach road 139), 12 from Hereford, 14 from Hay.—Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 40 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, &c., 144 miles.—Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—The parochial endowments produce about £16 a year, and there is a school here, at which four children are educated gratuitously.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £3. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £129: patron, F. Hamp, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Charles Probert, 1835: contains 950 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 140: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 161: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £595: poor rates in 1837, £69.

BACTON, Norfolk, a parish on the sea-coast, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Tunstead: 146 miles from London (coach road 128), 5 from North Walsham, 10 from Cromer.—East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Lynn, to Norwich, &c., 184 miles.—Money orders issued at Bury St. Edmund's: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—A Baptist church was formed here in 1822, and there are an infant and two daily schools. The children of the parish have a right of admittance to the school at Witton, founded by Mr. Norris. The bequest of a person named Bradfield, produces about £5 a year to the parish.—The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 3s. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: pres. net income, £263: patron, Lord and Lady Wodehouse: pres. incumbent, G. Lillie W. Fanquier, 1823: contains 1,730 acres: 102 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 513: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 590: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,972: poor rates in 1837, £184.

BACTON, Suffolk, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Hartsmere: 89 miles from London (coach road 76), 6 from Stowmarket, 9 from Ixworth.—East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Chelmsford to Elmswell, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London to Elmswell, &c., 211 miles.—Money orders issued at Stowmarket: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—An income of about £85 a year is derived from the town-lands of the parish.—The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, formerly in the diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £19. 12s. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: pres. net income, £700: patron, H. W. Hemsworth: pres. incumbent, E. B. Barker, 1802: contains 2,380

acres: 102 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 800: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 920: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,750: poor rates in 1837, £617.—Bacton Hall.

BACUP. See WHALLEY.

BADBURHAM. See BARRHAM.

BADBY, Northampton, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Fawsley, union of Daventry: 74 miles from London (coach road 75), 3 from Daventry, 13 from Northampton.—Nor. West. Rail. to Weedon, thence  $\frac{1}{2}$  miles: from Derby to Weedon, &c., 66 miles.—Money orders issued at Daventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m.—The village stands on the side of a sandy ascent, called Badby-down, and there are numerous springs of water, and quarries of hard blue rag-stone in the neighbourhood. There is an endowed Sunday school, and also a weekly school, which has the benefit of an endowment, left, in 1802, by Mr. Knightley. On Arbury hill, a lofty eminence in the neighbourhood, there is an enclosure of about ten acres, which is supposed to have been a Roman encampment.—The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, united with Newnham, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £306: patron, Christ Church, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Thomas Green, 1816: contains 2,370 acres: 124 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 624: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 718: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,968: poor rates in 1837, £199. The great and small tithes, the property of the Vicar and the Dean and Chapter of Oxford, were commuted in 1779.

BADDESLEY (North), Hants, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Mansbridge, Romsey division, union of Hursley: 78 miles from London (coach road 70), 4 from Romsey, 8 from Winchester.—Sou. West. Rail. to Chandler's Ford station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London to Chandler's Ford, &c., 200 miles.—Money orders issued at Romsey: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The living (St. John), a donative in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester: pres. net income, £112: patron, T. Chamberlayne: contains 2,570 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 302: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 347: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,194: poor rates in 1837, £60.

BADDESLEY (South), Hants, a hamlet in the parish of Boldre—(which see for access and postal arrangements): 2 miles from Lymington.—According to Tanner—There was formerly a preceptory of the Knights-Templars here, and afterwards of St. John of Jerusalem, valued at £118. 16s. 7d. per annum, granted to Sir Thomas Seymour in the 31st year of Henry VIII., and to Sir Nicholas Throckmorton in the 5th of Edward VI., but restored to the Hospitallers in the 4th and 5th of Philip and Mary.

BADDESLEY-CLINTON, Warwick, a parish in the Solihull division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, union of Solihull: 104 miles from London (coach road 97), 7 from Warwick, 6 from Solihull.—Nor. West. Rail. to Coventry, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Hampton, &c., 50 miles.—Money orders issued at Warwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 6 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m.—The Warwick and Birmingham Canal passes through the parish.—The living (St. Michael), a donative formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £4. 6s. 8d.: pres.

net income, £27: patron, M. E. Ferrers, Esq.: contains 1,140 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 115: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 132: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,232: poor rates in 1837, £72.

BADDESLEY-ENSOR, WARWICK, a parochial chapelry in the Tamworth division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, union of Atherstone: 107½ miles from London (coach road 108), 3 from Atherstone, 6 from Tamworth.---Nor. West. Rail. to Polesworth, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, Polesworth, &c., 31 miles.---Money orders issued at Atherstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There is a Roman Catholic chapel here, and an Independent church was founded in 1800. In 1647, a small endowment for a school was left by Mr. G. Abbot. The place is also well supplied with other schools.---The living (St. Michael), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £16: pres. net income, £106: patron, inhabitants thereof: pres. incumbent, William Bradley, 1819: contains 1,340 acres: 108 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 579: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 665: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,494: poor rates in 1837, £170.

BADDILEY, CHESHIRE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Nantwich, on the Ellesmere Canal: 164 miles from London (coach road 167), 3 from Nantwich, 9 from Malpas.---Nor. West. Rail. to Basford, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Crewe to Nantwich, &c., 66 miles.---Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The church, which is of great antiquity, is built of English oak. The upright timbers were, in 1811, cased with brickwork, but the roof is still in fine preservation. The hall, which was a noble residence, and the seat of the Mainwaringa, has been converted into a farm-house. The parochial charities produce about £46 a year.---The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £24. 3s. 6d.: pres. net income, £219: patron, J. Tollemache, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. W. Edwards, 1839: contains 2,080 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 275: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 316: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,634: poor rates in 1837, £281.

BADDINGTON, CHESHIRE, a township in the parish of Acton, on the Liverpool Junction Canal: 159½ miles from London (coach road 166), 2 from Nantwich, 9 from Tarporley.---Nor. West. Rail. to Basford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 66 miles.---Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 1,500 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 173: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 198: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,283: poor rates in 1837, £191.---Baddington Hall.

BADDINGTON (or BADGENDON), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Crowthorne and Minety, union of Cirencester: 99 miles from London (coach road 93), 4 from Cirencester, 12 from Cheltenham.---Gt. West. Rail. to Cirencester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse to Cirencester, &c., 125 miles.---Money orders issued at Cirencester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---There are the remains here of an entrenchment thrown up in 556, just previous to a battle fought between the Britons and Cedric, the king of the West Saxons.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Gloucester, now in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bristol, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £8. 14s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £191: patron, Principal and Fellows of Jesus College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Thomas Price, 1845: contains 990 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 172: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 197: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,291: poor rates in 1837, £97.

BADDOW (GREAT), ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Chelmsford: 31 miles from London, 2 from Chelmsford, 9 from Maldon.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Chelmsford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 163 miles.---Money orders issued at Chelmsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There is a free school here, in which about twenty-five children are educated; it has an income of £168, of which £50 a year are paid to the master. There are also five almshouses. There are two National schools, besides other educational establishments. The church lands produce about £35. 10s. per annum, and the other parochial charities yield about £47 a year.---The living (Virgin Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, diocese of London, is valued at £18. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £402: patron, Mrs. Bullen: pres. incumbent, A. W. Bullen, 1846: contains 4,030 acres: 337 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,022: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,325: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,345: poor rates in 1837, £803.

BADDOW (LITTLE), ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Chelmsford, on a branch of the Chedmer: 31½ miles from London (coach road 34), 5 from Danbury, 2 from Chelmsford.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Chelmsford, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 163½ miles.---Money orders issued at Chelmsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The church contains a very fine monument of Sir Henry Mildmay, who died in 1639. An Independent church was formed here in 1670, and there is a free school for twenty-five children, the master of which receives a salary of £25 a year. The children are partly clothed out of the proceeds of the bequest with which it is endowed. A Lancasterian school was founded here in 1827.---The living (Virgin Mary), a sinecure rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, diocese of London, is valued at £7. 13s. 4d., united to a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, valued at £8. 2s. 2d., and having jointly a pres. net income, £125: patron, Lord Rayleigh: pres. incumbent, W. B. Ady, 1842: contains 1,420 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 562: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 646: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,562: poor rates in 1837, £380.

BADGER, SALOP, a parish in the franchise of Wenlock, union of Shiffnall: 141 miles from London (coach road 134), 6 from Shiffnall, 6 from Bridgenorth.---Nor. West. Rail. through Wolverhampton to Donnington, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 70 miles.---Money orders issued at Shiffnall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Giles), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, R. H. Cheney, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. F. Boddington.

ton, 1838: contains 980 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 137: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 157: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,667: poor rates in 1837, £25. — Badger House.

BADGEWORTH, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dudstone and King's-Barton, union of Cheltenham: 116 miles from London (coach road 98), 4 from Cheltenham, 2 from Gloucester. — Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Gloucester, &c., 96 miles. — Money orders issued at Gloucester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The parish lies on the bank of a small stream which flows north-westwards into the Severn, and its inhabitants are entitled to send their children to the free school of Churchdown. The parochial charities produce about £28 a year. — The living (Holy Trinity), a vicarage, to which is annexed the chapel of Sherdington, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol. There is also a sinecure rectory in the patronage of Jesus College, Oxford: value, £20. 11s. 3d.: pres. net income, £295: patron, J. E. Viner, Esq.: pres. incumbent, B. F. Carlyle, 1847: contains 1,730 acres: 173 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 903: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,038: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,994: poor rates in 1837, £331.

BADGWORTH, SOMERSET, a parish in the division of Wrington, union of Axbridge: 150 miles from London (coach road 133), 3 from Axbridge, 12 from Bridgewater. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Highbridge station, thence 4½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Highbridge, &c., 169 miles. — Money orders issued at Wells: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Congar), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £25. 15s.: pres. net income, £482: patron, Sir J. Mordaunt, Bart.: pres. incumbent, C. Mordaunt, 1838: contains 1,470 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 321: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £369: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,841: poor rates in 1837, £257.

BADINGHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Hoxne, on a branch of the Alde: 102 miles from London (coach road 91), 4 from Framlingham, 6 from Saxmundham. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Chelmsford to Haughley Road station, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through London to Haughley Road, &c., 234 miles. — Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £22. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £582: patron, R. Gorton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Robert Gorton, 1831: contains 3,390 acres: 155 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 864: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 993: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,252: poor rates in 1837, £683.

BADLESMERE, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Faversham, lathe of Scray: 82 miles from London (coach road 48), 4 from Faversham, 11 from Canterbury. — Sou. East. Rail. through Ashford to Chilham station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 214 miles. — Money orders issued at Faversham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — According to Tanner — Bartholomew, Lord Badlesmere, obtained license in the 13th year of Edward II., to found on the lands of this manor a house of regular canons. The lords of Badlesmere were potent barons in the reigns of Edward I. and Edward II., when the manor was forfeited by the attainder of John, Earl of Oxford and Baron Badlesmere; it has since been in the possession of the family of Sondes. — The living (St. Leonard), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united with that of Leveland, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £5. 2s.: pres. net income, £323: patron, Lord Sondes: pres. incumbent, George J. Hilton: contains 820 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 122: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 140: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £810: poor rates in 1837, £41. — Fairs, Sept. 9, Oct. 24, for linen and toys.

BADLEY, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Bosmere and Claydon: 82 miles from London (coach road 71), 2 from Needham, 2 from Stowmarket. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Stowmarket, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London to Stowmarket, &c., 214 miles. — Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £40: patron, Copinger Hill, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Copinger Hill, 1838: contains 1,050 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 83: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 95: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,186: poor rates in 1837, £183.

BADMINTON (GREAT), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Grumbald's Ash, union of Chipping-Sodbury: 96 miles from London (coach road 106), 12½ from Chippenham, 6 from Sodbury. — Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 12½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, to Yate station, &c., 131 miles. — Money orders issued at Mildenhall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The church, which was built at the expense of the late Duke of Beaufort, is a remarkably elegant structure, richly embellished with monuments of the Beaufort family, and some fine specimens of statuary by Ryabach. There are almshouses in the village for three men and three women, and there is a school for the poor of Great and Little Badminton, which is sustained by a bequest of the Duchess Dowager of Beaufort. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the chapelry of Little Badminton annexed, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Gloucester, now in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bristol, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £5. 5s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £7: patron, Duke of Beaufort: pres. incumbent, J. Buckley, 1840: contains 1,450 acres: 100 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 502: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 577: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,563: poor rates in 1837, £229. — Badminton is the residence of the Duke of Beaufort. The mansion is one of very fine elevation, and of considerable extent, situated in a finely-undulated park, which is upwards of nine miles in circuit. It was built on the French model, shortly after the last creation of the dukedom in 1682, and finished, as might be expected from the position and fortune of its noble owner, with that costly magnificence which seems to be an almost natural appanage of the British nobility. The collection of paintings is recherché, and comprises that very striking picture of Salvator Rosa for which he was expelled from Rome. It is a representation of all the sovereigns of Europe, under the forms of animals, with appropriate accompaniments. Among the rest is the resemblance of an ass, with a pontifical robe thrown over him, a compliment to the Pontiff, which procured the painter a compulsory permission to depart from the most profitable field of his labours. The noble family of Beaufort derive their origin from a royal stock, the founder of it being John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, son of Edward III., who had three sons, named John, Henry, and Thomas, by Catherine Swinford, daughter of Sir Payn Roet, alias Gwyn, king of arms, before his marriage with her. The eldest, Sir John Beaufort, was created Earl of Somerset in 1396, and two years afterwards a marquis; the second son was the celebrated Cardinal Beaufort, Bishop of Winchester, and Lord Chancellor of England; and the third was created Earl of Dorset and Duke of Exeter, but died in 1427, without having any children; they were all afterwards legitimized to all purposes except succession to the crown. A descendant of the first Earl of Somerset fell into the hands of the Yorkists, and was beheaded by them in 1463. He left a natural son, who—the male line of John of Gaunt having died out with Edmund, his uncle, who was also beheaded—in consideration of his manifold endowments and public services, was, in 1513, created Earl of Worcester. Henry, the fifth Earl, was a warm adherent of Charles I., and maintained his castle of Ragland against the parliamentary forces, at his own expense, with a garrison of 800 men, for a period of nearly four years, and only surrendered to Sir Thomas Fairfax at last upon good conditions. He was created a marquis. His son, who was also a loyal follower of the king, was employed in several state missions, and was the author of the celebrated book, entitled, "A Century of Inventions," in which the principles of the steam-engine, though briefly, are decidedly developed. From him the present duke is a lineal descendant. His grace succeeded to the title and estates in 1835. The family derive their name from the castle of Beaufort, in Anjou, which became the property of the house of Lancaster.

BADMINTON (LITTLE), GLOUCESTER, a tithing in the parish of Hawkesbury: 106 miles from London, 10 from Tetbury, 10 from Malmesbury. (For access, see GREAT BADMINTON.) Money orders issued at Tetbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living, a chapelry annexed to the above vicarage of Great Badminton: contains 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 136: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 161.

BADSEY, WORCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackenhurst, union of Evesham: it includes the hamlet of Aldington: 105 miles from London (coach road 98), 2 from Evesham, 15 from Alcester. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Evesham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Worcester, Evesham, &c., 88 miles. Money orders issued at Evesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. There is a small endowed school here, and the parochial charities altogether produce about £14 a year. The manufacture of silk has, to some extent, been carried on in the parish. The living (St. James), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £150: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, C. Phillott, 1808: contains 1,770 acres: 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 497: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 572: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,489: poor rates in 1837, £132. The tithes, the property of the Dean and Chapter of Oxford and of a perpetual curate, were commuted in 1812.

BADSHOT AND RUNFOLD, SURREY, a tithing in the parish of Farnham: 43 miles from London (coach road 37), 2 from Farnham, 9 from Guildford. Sou. West. Rail. to Farnham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 175 miles. Money orders issued at Farnham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The culture of hops is the chief pursuit of the inhabitants. Contains 227 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,343: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,488.

BADSHOT, SURREY. See BAGSHOT.

BADSWORTH, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross: it comprises the townships of Upton, Badsworth, and Thorpe-Audling: 196 miles from London (coach road 171), 5 from Pontefract, 11 from Doncaster. Nor. West. Rail. through Sheffield to Royston station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 64 miles. Money orders issued at Pontefract: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. There is an income of £43 a year derived from a church estate in the parish. The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £32. 5s. 10d.: pres. net income, £596: patron, Earl of Derby: pres. incumbent, W. J. Newman, 1845: contains 4,320 acres: 144 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 750: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 862: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,736. The tithes, moduses, &c., of Thorpe-Audling, in this parish, were commuted in 1810; they were the property of the clerical rector and the lay impropiator. Badsworth Hall.

BADSWORTH, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access and postal.) Contains 1,740 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 228: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 261: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,616: poor rates in 1837, £157.

BADWELL-ASH (or LITTLE ASHFIELD), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackbourn, union of Stow: 91 miles from London (coach road 78), 4 from Ixworth, 8 from Stowmarket. East. Co. Rail. through Stowmarket to Elmswell, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, Cambridge, Newmarket, &c., 149 miles. Money orders issued at Bury St. Edmund's: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The parochial charities produce about £13 a year. The living (Holy Virgin), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £69: patron, Miss Clough: pres. incumbent, Henry Ray, 1846: contains 2,000 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 458: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 526: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,044: poor rates in 1837, £336.

BAGBERE, DORSET, a hamlet and tithing in the parish of Sturminster-Newton-Castle. Money orders issued at Shaftesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. There was formerly a chapel of ease here, but it has long been desecrated.

BAGBOROUGH (West), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Taunton and Taunton-Dean: it includes the tithing of East Bagborough, and the hamlets of Stockham, Triscombe, and Westwood: 175 miles from London (coach road 156), 12 from Taunton, 7 from Watchet. — Gt. West. Rail. to Taunton, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Taunton, &c., 185 miles. — Money orders issued at Taunton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (Holy Trinity), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £18. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £550: patron, Rev. J. B. Clarke: pres. incumbent, J. B. Clarke, 1837: contains 1,900 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 449: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 516: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,963: poor rates in 1837, £177.

BAGBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Kirkby-Knowle: 248 miles from London (coach road 220), 3 from Thirsk, 11 from Boroughbridge. — Nor. West. Rail. through Leeds to Thirsk, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 116 miles. — Money orders issued at Thirsk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living, a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, and diocese of York, annexed to the rectory of Kirkby-Knowle, is valued at 10s.: contains 1,350 acres: 59 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,643: poor rates in 1837, £70. — Thirsk Park.

BAGENDON. See BADGINGTON.

BAGILLT-FAWR AND FECHAN, FLINTSHIRE, two townships in the parish of Holywell, on the estuary of the Dee: 193 miles from London, 2½ from Holywell, 2 from Flint. — Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Flint, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Chester, &c., 94 miles. — Money orders issued at Holywell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living has a pres. net income of £150: patron, Vicar of Holywell: pres. incumbent, W. E. Jones, 1846: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,150: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,470.

BAGINTON, WARWICK, a parish in the Kenilworth division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow, union of Warwick: 98 miles from London (coach road 90), 4 from Coventry, 13 from Rugby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Coventry, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, Coventry, &c., 58 miles. — Money orders issued at Coventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — There is a free school here, endowed with £200 a year, of which £60 per annum is paid to the mistress, and the rest is spent in the providing of books and of clothing for the children. The other parochial charities produce about £12 a year. There was formerly a castle here, the property of Sir W. Bagot, who was an adherent of Richard II., but the ruins of it now can scarcely be traced. It was there that the Duke of Hereford passed the night previous to his proposed encounter with the Duke of Norfolk, the prevention of which ultimately led to his ascent to the throne under the title of Henry IV., and to the long war between the Roses. The manor subsequently became the property of Bromley, secretary to Queen Anne. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £8. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £363: patron, Rev. W. Bromley: pres. incumbent, Frederick Gooch, 1833: contains 1,480 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 245: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 282: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,532: poor rates in 1837, £169. — Baginton Hall, the seat of the Right Hon. W. Yates Peel. — White Abbey.

BAGLAN, GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Neath, South Wales: 192 miles from London (coach road 194), 4 from Neath, 2 from Aberavon. — Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, cross the Severn to Penarth, then by rail to Eglewysilan, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Weston-super-Mare, &c., 197 miles. — Money orders issued at Neath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2½ p.m.: post closes 10 a.m. — There is a chapel of the followers of Whitfield in the lower hamlet of Baglan. A mineral well in the parish has the repute of many mystic virtues. — The living, a curacy not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Aberavon, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £36, having a joint pres. net income of £154: contains 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 471: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 541: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,823: poor rates in 1837, £178.

BAGLEY-WOOD, BERKS, an extra-parochial liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hormer: 59 miles from London (coach road 57), 3 from Abingdon, 3 from Oxford. — Gt. West. Rail. to Abingdon Road station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Oxford, &c., 129½ miles. — Money orders issued at Abingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — Contains 390 acres: 3 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 24: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 28.

BAGNALL, STAFFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Stoke-upon-Trent: 175 miles from London (coach road 154), 6 from Leek, 6 from Newcastle. — Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester to Newcastle-under-Lyne, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Barton-on-Trent, Newcastle, &c., 48 miles. — Money orders issued at Leek: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living, a curacy united to the rectory of Bucknall, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £3: joint pres. net income, £200: patron, Rev. E. Powys: pres. incumbent, E. Powys, 1818: contains 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 352: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 404.

BAGNIGGE-WELLS, MIDDLESEX, in the parish of St. Pancras, 1½ miles north-west from St. Paul's cathedral.

BAGNOR, BERKS, a township in the parish of Speen, on the Kennet—(which see for access and postal): 58 miles from London, 2 from Newbury, 7 from Hungerford.

BAGSHOT, SURREY, a chapelry in the parish of Windlesham: 33 miles from London, 10 from Staines, 11 from Windsor. — Sou. West. Rail. to Woking, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 165 miles. — Money orders issued at Bagshot: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — It was formerly called Holy Hall, but when the appellation was changed does not very clearly appear. The neighbouring extensive and celebrated heath derives its name from the village. The church was destroyed by lightning, but rebuilt in 1676. There are several good inns in the place, and it is of considerable importance as being a great thoroughfare for agricultural produce. The heath supplies the inhabitants with fuel, and there are many flocks of sheep pastured upon it, whose mutton is celebrated for its fine flavour. The heath was formerly an enclosed park, and much frequented by both James I. and Charles I.; but it was disparked during the civil war, and has now returned to a state of nature. There are several handsome villas in the neighbourhood; and to the west is Bagshot Park, the residence of George IV. when he was Prince of Wales, and afterwards of his cousin, the Duke of Gloucester. The mansion is now the residence of Lieut.-Col. Seymour, one of the equarries of Prince Albert. —The living, a chapelry, is annexed to the rectory of Windlesham, having a pres. net income of £404: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Edward Birch, 1846.

BAGTHORPE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hundred of Gallow, union of Docking: 129½ miles from London (coach road 109), 7 from Burnham, 14 from Lynn. —East. Co. Rail. through Cambridge to Lynn, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, Lynn, &c., 137 miles. —Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 1 p.m. —The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 10s.: pres. net income, £125: patron, Sir G. W. Chad: pres. incumbent, S. R. Cattley, 1832: contains 710 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 78: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 89: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £757: poor rates in 1837, £51. —Bagthorpe Hall.

BAGULEY, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Bowden—(which see for access and postal): 176 miles from London, 2 from Knutsford, 11 from Stockport. —Contains 2,070 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 538: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 619: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,130: poor rates in 1837, £198.

BAGWORTH, LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Thornton: 114 miles from London (coach road 108), 5 from Bosworth, 10 from Leicester. —Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester to Thornton, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 41 miles. —Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The living, a curacy not in charge, attached to the vicarage of Thornton and the curacy of Stanton, having a joint pres. net income of £202: patron, Viscount Maynard: pres. incumbent, R. Rabett, 1831: contains 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 377: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 433: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,399: poor rates in 1837, £273.

BAILDON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Otley: 216 miles from London (coach road 201), 5 from Bradford, 6 from Otley. —Nor. West. Rail. through Leeds to Shipley, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 84 miles. —Money orders issued at Bradford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The Wesleyan Methodists, the Primitive Methodists, and the Moravians, each have associations here. —The living (St. John), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Craven, diocese of Ripon, is valued at £20. 5s. 11d.: pres. net income, £148: patrons, Charles Frederic Walker, Esq., and other Trustees: pres. incumbent, Joseph Mitton, 1848: contains 2,940 acres: 591 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,280: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,771: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,724:

VOL. I.

poor rates in 1837, £328. —Fairs, first Saturday in March and November. —Batley House, William Scholefield, Esq.

BAILEY, LANCASTER. See AIGHTON.

BAILIE, CUMBERLAND, a township on a small tributary of the Esk, in the parish of Bewcastle—(which see for access and postal): 312 miles from London, 18 from Carlisle, 2 from Bewcastle. —Contains 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 522: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 600.

BAINBRIDGE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Aysgarth—(which see for access and postal): 246 miles from London, 1½ from Askrigg, 13 from Middleham. —The Society of Friends and the Wesleyan Methodists each have a chapel here. There is a grammar-school, endowed with £68 a year. The village stands on the river Ure, and in the neighbourhood there are two beautiful waterfalls on the Bain. There is also a fine sheet of water, called Seamer Water, which is well stocked with fish, and a favourite resort of waterfowl. On Borough-hill, a statue of the Emperor Commodus was found, and there are still the traces of a Roman encampment. —Contains 14,210 acres: 172 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,013: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,165: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,915: poor rates in 1837, £461.

BAINTON (or BADINGTON), NORTHAMPTON, a chapelry to the parish of Ufford: 113 miles from London (coach road 89), 5 from Wansford, 4 from Stamford. —East. Co. Rail. through Peterborough to Eaton station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Stamford, to Eaton, &c., 77 miles. —The living (Virgin Mary), a curacy not in charge, annexed to the rectory of Ufford, having jointly a pres. net income of £480: patron, St. John's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, Thomas Paley, 1847: contains 960 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 161: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 185: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,493: poor rates in 1837, £48.

BAINTON (or BEANTON), OXFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Stoke-Lyne: 78 miles from London (coach road 56), 3 from Bicester, 8 from Deddington. —Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Oxford, &c., 141 miles. —Money orders issued at Bicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —Contains 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 31: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 36.

BAINTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the Bainton-Beacon division of the wapentake of Hart-hill, union of Driffield: 224 miles from London (coach road 196), 6 from Great Driffield, 11 from Beverley. —East. Co. Rail. through Peterborough, New Holland, Hull, Crowswick, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Normanton, Market Weighton, &c., 126 miles. —Money orders issued at Driffield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. —The petty sessions for Bainton and Great Driffield are held here. —The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the East Riding, and diocese of York, is valued at £35. 14s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £757: patron, St. John's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, G. T. Clare, 1840: contains 2,320 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 452: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 519: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,283: poor rates in 1837, £216. The

x

tithes of Bainton and Naswick, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1774.

BAITHLEY, NORFOLK. See BALE.

BAKEWELL, DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of High Peak, union of Bakewell. It includes the chapelries of Ashford, Baslow, Beeley, Buxton, Chelmerton, Great Longstone with Holme, Mony-Ash, Sheldon, and Taddington with Priestcliffe, the townships of Bakewell, Blackwell, Brushfield, Bunnell, Flagg, Froggatt, Harthill, Over-Haddon, Rowland, Great Rowaley with part of Aport and part of Wardlow, and the hamlets of Calver, Curbar, Hassop, and Little Longstone: 167 miles from London (coach road 163), 11 from Chesterfield. Nor. West. Rail. to Chesterfield, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 35 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. Bakewell stands on the site of a Roman fortress or station, and was founded about the year 920, in the time of Edward the Elder. It derived its present name from its ancient Saxon appellation of Bedecanwillan, of which the present name is a contraction and corruption. The term indicates the neighbourhood, or the presence of the mineral springs, for which the place was in high repute even at that early period, and the waters of which were used as baths. These baths have, within these last few years, been again brought into effective use by the directions of the Duke of Rutland, who is the proprietor of the place; and the conveniences of the means for warm and shower-baths have been added, together with a news-room. The church is a spacious cruciform structure, partly of Saxon, and partly of Norman architecture. It contains some fine monuments of the Foljambes and the Vernons, well worthy of notice; and there is in the churchyard a very ancient cross, now much defaced. The market of Bakewell was formerly a very considerable one, but it has lately fallen off. The place is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, and its internal affairs are managed by a constable and his officers, all of whom receive their appointments at the court-leet of the lord of the manor. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Independents have each chapels here. Lady Grace Manners founded a school in 1636, the mistress of which now receives a salary of £50 a year; and there is an almshouse for six aged men, with an income of £40 per annum, founded, in 1602, by Roger and John Manners of Nether-Haddon. The other parochial charities produce about £30 a year. The petty sessions for the hundred of the High Peak are held here every first and third Monday in the month; and the town is also a polling-place for the north division of Derbyshire. The inhabitants are employed partly in smelting the lead-ore drawn from the numerous mines in the neighbourhood, and partly in a cotton-mill erected by the late Sir Richard Arkwright; and also in quarrying the petrosilex, chert, and black and grey marble, found in the surrounding hills. Bakewell is delightfully situated, partly upon an eminence still called the Castle-hill, not far from the confluence of the river Wye with the Derwent, and is much resorted to by anglers, for the fine trout and grayling which inhabit its waters. The manor was, at the Conquest, conferred on a member of the family of Peverell, from whose descendants it passed to the Gernons, and in the reign of Henry VII. to the Vernons, and from them, by the marriage of Sir John Manners with an heiress, it descended to its present possessor, the Duke of Rutland. The neighbourhood is rich in almost every variety of landscape beauty. The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, a peculiar of Lichfield, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £360: patron, Dean and Chapter of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, H. K. Cornish, 1840: contains 43,020 acres: 1,844 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,500: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,875: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £44,886: tithes commuted in 1806. Market day, Monday. Fairs, Easter-Monday, Whit-Monday, Aug. 26, Monday after Oct. 10, Monday after Nov. 11; every Monday fortnight, a market for cattle. Bankers, Branch of the Sheffield and Rotherham Banking Co.—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co., and London and Westminster Bank. Inn, Rutland Arms. Ashford Hall, the seat of the Hon. G. H. Cavendish, M.P.

BAKEWELL, DERBY, a township in the above parish—(which see for access and postal arrangements.) Contains 3,380 acres: 385 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,137: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,457: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,503: poor rates in 1837, £647.

BALA, MERIONETH, a town in the parish of Llan-y-kil, North Wales—(which see for access, &c.): 195 miles from London, 18 from Dolgelly, 41 from Shrewsbury. Money orders issued at Corwen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 6 p.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,255: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,443. Market day, Saturday. Fairs, Saturday before Shrove-Tuesday, May 14, July 10, Sept. 27, Oct. 24, Nov. 8, for sheep, cattle, and horses.

BALA-SALLA, ISLE OF MAN.

BALBY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township on the right bank of the Don, with Hexthorp, in the parish of Doncaster: 187 miles from London (coach road 163), 2 from Doncaster, 6 from Tickhill. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Sheffield, to Swinton, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 55 miles. In this village, and the neighbouring parish of Warmsworth, the first meeting of the Society of Friends was held by George Fox and his disciples. Pres. net income, £150: patron, Miss E. G. Banks: pres. incumbent, William Green, 1847: contains 1,420 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 483: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 555: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,606: poor rates in 1837, £150.

BALCOMBE, SUSSEX, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Buttinghill, and partly in that of Strut, rape of Lewes, union of Cuckfield: 33½ miles from London (coach road 33), 4 from Cuckfield, 10 from Horsham. East. Co<sup>t</sup> and Brighton Rail. to Balcombe station: from Derby, through London to Balcombe, 165½ miles. Money orders issued at Cuckfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The Brighton railway, in this parish, is carried through a tunnel 1,139 yards in length. The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £15. 18s. 6d.: pres. net income, £367: patron, Rev. Dr. Bethune: pres. incumbent, H. R. Sarel, 1819: contains 6,050 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,542: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,773: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,171: poor rates in 1837, £416.

BALDERSBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Topcliff: 231½ miles from London (coach road 214), 6 from Ripon, 6 from Thirsk. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leeds, to Ripon, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Ripon, &c., 99½ miles. — Contains 1,600 acres: 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 309: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 355: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,853: poor rates in 1837, £92.

BALDERSTON, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Blackburn: 215 miles from London (coach road 217), 5 from Blackburn, 7 from Preston. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Preston, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 93 miles. — Money orders issued at Blackburn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The public charities produce about £10 a year. There is an Independent chapel here. — The living (St. Leonard), a perpetual curacy, is valued at £9. 10s. 8d.: pres. net income, £90: patron, Vicar of Blackburn: pres. incumbent, William Hartley, 1839: contains 1,710 acres: 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 585: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £672: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,705: poor rates in 1837, £313.

BALDERTON, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Newark, union of Newark: 150 miles from London (coach road 122), 2 from Newark, 12 from Grantham. — Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester and Nottingham, to Newark, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Newark, &c., 35 miles. — Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — A school was endowed here, in 1726, for twelve girls and twelve boys, with an income of £18 a year, by a bequest of William Alvey. The other charities of the parish produce about £32 per annum. — The living, a vicarage annexed to that of Farndon, in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Nottingham, diocese of York, having jointly a pres. net income, £244: patron, the Prebend: pres. incumbent, T. Aphorp, 1810: contains 4,050 acres: 190 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 954: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,097: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,228: poor rates in 1837, £503. The great and small tithes, the property of the prebendaries of Farndon and Stoke, and the vicar, were commuted in 1766.

BALDOCK, HERTFORD, a market town and parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Broadwater, union of Hitchin: 41 miles from London (coach road 37), 19 from Hertford. — East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Ware, thence 16½ miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Bletchley to Liddington, &c., 112 miles. — Money orders issued at Baldock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. — The name of this place in many ancient writings is spelt Baudoc, and it is generally supposed that it was called after Balbec in Syria, by the Knights-Templars, who had a settlement here, the site being granted to them by Gilbert, Earl of Pembroke, and confirmed to them by his son William, by whose influence also King John and Henry III. were induced to give a charter for a market, and for an annual fair of five days' duration. In speaking of Baldock, Lambard says, — Here Queen Isabel, wife to Edward II., the Earl of Kent his brother, and Edward (after the third of that name) his son, sojourned after their arrayall, and wrote from thence their letters of request to the citizens of London for their aide against the Spensers, which they perfourmed accordingly, for they made open proclamation, that such as were not the quene's freindes, should depart the citye immediatly: then made they the barons, byshope, abbots, and others, to be sworn the quene's freindes, and favourers of the quarrell: and forasmuche as the byshop of Excester either refused to doe it, or was suspected to mislike it, they strake of his head. The church, dedicated to St. Mary the Virgin, was built on the site of a former one erected by the Templars, of which some traces can still be perceived. It is a spacious and very handsome structure with a tower and spire, and contains a very curious font, and an ancient rood-loft. It has been recently restored at a considerable expense, and in good taste, with a fine painted window at the east end. The Society of Friends, and the Independents and Wesleyans, have chapels here. There are almshouses for twelve aged widows, originally endowed by Mr. John Wynne, but his benefaction has been increased by other contributions, and the institution now enjoys an income of about £95 a year; also, two almshouses for aged married couples, founded and endowed by H. O. Roe, Esq. The estates left for the repair of the church, &c., produce £153 per annum; and beside these, there are other parochial charities which produce about £16 a year. There is a National school for boys and girls, and a British and Foreign school for boys. There are courts-leet and baron held here. The town is pleasantly situated on the great north road, at its junction with the Roman Icknield Street, between two hills, near the source of the river Rhea. It consists chiefly of one wide street, with a great number of highly respectable houses, and was, until railways superseded other modes of travelling, continually busy with the coaches travelling to and fro on the great north road. The soil of the surrounding land being favourable to the growth of barley, there is a large quantity of malt made here. There are also extensive breweries, and the strawplait-making for the London market is a rapidly growing business. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £10. 8s. 9d.: pres. income, £200: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, John Smith, M.A., 1832: contains 200 acres: 310 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,807: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,078: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,110: poor rates in 1837, £638. — Market day, Friday. Fairs, March 7, for cheese, cattle, and household goods; the last Thursday in May, Aug. 5, Oct. 2, and Dec. 11. — Bankers, Wells, Hogge, & Co. — draw on Barnett, Hoares, & Co. George Inn, Rose and Crown, and Lion.

BALDON-MARSH, OXFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bullington, union of Abingdon: 59 miles from London (coach road 52), 7 from Oxford, 7 from Abingdon. — Gt. West. Rail. to Abingdon Road station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Oxford, &c., 136 miles. — Money orders issued at Oxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — In 1771, Elizabeth Law bequeathed lands in Baldon-Toot for the free education of six boys and six girls. — The living

(St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, within the peculiar and exempt jurisdiction of Dorchester, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £93: patron, Sir H. P. Willoughby, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. P. Willoughby, 1830: contains 570 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 360: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 413: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,152: poor rates in 1837, £58.

BALDON-TOOT, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bullington, union of Abingdon: 60 miles from London (coach road 53), 6 from Oxford, 7 from Wheatley. —Gt. West. Rail. to Abingdon Road station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Oxford, &c., 137 miles. —Money orders issued at Oxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living (St. Lawrence), a vicarage not in charge: patron, Rector of Baldon-Marsh: contains 2,010 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 269: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 309: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,656: poor rates in 1837, £162.

BALDOX-FEE. See ELING.

BALE (or BARTLEY), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Holt, union of Walsingham: 145 miles from London (coach road 117), 5 from Holt, 6 from Walsingham. —East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Cambridge to Deerham, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, Wisbeach, Deerham, &c., 169 miles. —Money orders issued at Holt: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —The parochial charities produce about £15 a year. —The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united with that of Gunthorpe, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10. 13s. 4d.: having jointly a pres. net income of £534: patron, Rev. J. H. Sparke: pres. incumbent, J. H. Sparke, 1831: contains 710 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 229: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 263: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £980: poor rates in 1837, £221.

BALK, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kirkby-Knowle—(which see for access and postal): 222 miles from London, 4 from Thirsk, 10 from Helmsley. —Contains 780 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 82: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 94: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,034: poor rates in 1837, £54.

BALKHOLME, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Howden—(which see for access, &c.): 182 miles from London, 2 from Howden, 10 from South Cave. —Contains 550 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 135: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 155.

BALLES DON. See KINTBURY.

BALLIDON, DERBY, a chapelry in the parish of Bradborne: 152 miles from London (coach road 142), 6 from Ashborne, 6 from Wirksworth. —Nor. West. Rail. through Derby to Belper, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Belper, &c., 21 miles. —Money orders issued at Ashborne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The children of this parish have a right to attend the schools of Paswick or Bradborne. —The living, a curacy to the vicarage of Bradborne, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £10: contains 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 92: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 106: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,382: poor rates in 1837, £117.

BALLINGDON, ESSEX, a parochial chapelry in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hinckford: 58 miles from London (coach road 54), 1 from Sudbury, 17 from Bury. —East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Mark's Tey, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 190 miles. —Money orders issued at Sudbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —According to an old authority, Ballingdon, otherwise Balidon, hath had the credit of being set down in the maps as a distinct parish, whereas Brundon, that is really one, hath been generally forgotten. According to the accounts we have, there are two manors here, viz. 1st, Balingdon-above-Bridge, that hath only a court-baron, for the king is lord of the leet, that extends into part of Bulmer, Brundon, and Middleton; 2d, Balingdon-below-Bridge, having both a court-leet and a court-baron. There is reason to believe that this district was part of the manor of Brundon, which, in the earliest times, belonged to the family of Limes. The inhabitants of this village resort for divine service to the church of All Saints in Sudbury. That church, with the chapel of Berindune, or Beledon, was appropriated to the abbey of St. Albans, for the use of their kitchen. —The living is a perpetual curacy, but there is no church; and the church of the ancient parish of Berington, or Brundon, is a ruin: patron, Admiral Wyndham: contains 730 acres: 179 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 843: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 969: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,547: poor rates in 1837, £461.

BALLINGHAM, HEREFORD, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wormelaw, union of Ross: 139 miles from London (coach road 126), 7 from Hereford, 6 from Ross. —Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 26 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, &c., 121 miles. —Money orders issued at Ross: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £165: patron, Sir E. F. S. Stanhope, Bart.: contains 950 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 149: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 171: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £958: poor rates in 1837, £100.

BALNE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Snaith: 205 miles from London (coach road 173), 4 from Snaith, 10 from Pontefract. —Nor. West. Rail. through Pontefract to Hensall, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Pontefract, &c., 73 miles. —Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. —Contains 2,870 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 394: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 453: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,638: poor rates in 1837, £261.

BALSALL (BALSHALL, or TEMPLE-BALSALL), WARWICK, a chapelry in the parish of Hampton-in-Arden: 101 miles from London (coach road 100), 10 from Warwick, 10 from Coventry. —Nor. West. Rail. through Coventry to Docker's Lane, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Docker's Lane, &c., 58 miles. —Money orders issued at Warwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —The chapel was built about the year 1150, and originally belonged to the Knights-Templars. It is particularly remarkable for the fine proportions of its windows, some of which extend nearly from the roof to the ground, the heads of them all being adorned with beautiful tracery, while each is ornamented with its own peculiar design. There are still the remains of a hall of the Templars near the church. Bishop Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—This manor was given to the Knights-Templars in the reign of Stephen, and became a commandery or preceptory of that order. It belonged afterwards to the Knights-Hospitallers, though it doth not appear that any of them resided here; and, as part of their possessions, was granted, in the seventh year of Edward VI., to John Earl of Warwick, and, in the 8th of Elizabeth, to Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester. The manor was, in 1670, bequeathed by Lady Katherine Levson, of Trentham, in Staffordshire, to the parish, under twelve trustees, for the endowment of an hospital. In the will it is directed that, from the proceeds of the estate, £8 a year shall be given to each of twenty poor women, and £20 a year to the minister for reading prayers to them, and for instructing twenty poor boys of the place. In the reign of Queen Anne, the trustees of this endowment were incorporated by act of parliament, and the government was vested in eleven persons, who were empowered to enlarge the structure and increase the number of its inmates. Such has been the increase of the value of property, that the revenues of this charity now amount to nearly £1,750 per annum. The advantages of the institution have been proportionably increased, and the establishment now consists of a master, who receives a salary of £70 a year from the estate, and £50 more as perpetual curate of Balsall; an assistant master, an apothecary, a matron, a nurse, and thirty inmates. The hospital is an imposing structure, placed on the border of a large green. The vicar of Long Itchington also derives £50 a year from Lady Katherine's endowment. The other charities of Balsall bring in about £14 per annum. The educational institutions are numerous for the place. —The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester: pres. net income, £50: patron, Governor of Balsall Hospital: pres. incumbent, John Short, 1794: contains 218 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,160: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,334: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,293: poor rates in 1837, £278.

BALSCOTT, OXFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Wroxton: 109 miles from London (coach road 74), 5 from Banbury, 14 from Chipping-Norton. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Moreton, to Stretton, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Worcester, Moreton, &c., 112 miles. —Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —Here is a chapel to the vicarage of Wroxton. —Contains 550 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 199: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 229.

BALSHAM, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Redfield, union of Linton: 61 miles from London (coach road 52), 4 from Linton, 8 from Cambridge. —East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Chesterford to Balsham Road station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, Balsham, &c., 193 miles. —Money orders issued at Linton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The parochial charities produce about £50 a year. There are five or six educational institutions here. This village is said by tradition to have been the birthplace of Hugh de Bottesham, the founder of Peterhouse College, Cambridge. On the Gogmagog hills, which are partly in this parish, there are the remains of an encampment, with a vallum and ditch, supposed to have been occupied by the Romans, but of British origin. It is called Vandlebury. —The living (Holy Trinity), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Ely, now in that of Sudbury, diocese of Ely, is valued at £39. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £1,104: patron, Governor of Charter House, London: pres. incumbent, W. H. Chapman, 1838: contains 4,402 acres: 218 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,271: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,461: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,128: poor rates in 1837, £736. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1801.

BALTONSBOROUGH (or BALTONSBURY), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Glaston-Twelve-Hides, union of Wells: 169 miles from London (coach road 121), 4 from Glastonbury, 4 from Somerton. —Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bridgewater, &c., 182 miles. —Money orders issued at Glastonbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living (St. Dunstan), a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Butleigh, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £27. 9s. 8½d.: contains 2,700 acres: 124 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 718: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 826: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,226: poor rates in 1837, £231.

BAMBER-BRIDGE, LANCASHIRE, a village in the township of Walton-le-Dale: 211½ miles from London (coach road 220½), 3 from Preston. —Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester to Preston, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Manchester, Preston, &c., 99½ miles. —Money orders issued at Preston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.

BAMBROUGH (or BAMBOROUGH), NORTHUMBERLAND, a ward and parish, the latter comprising the chapelries of Beadnell and Lucker, and the townships of Adderstone, Bambrrough, Bambrrough-Castle, Bradford, Budle, Burton, Elford, Fleetham, Glororum, Hoppen, Mouson, Newham, Newstead, Outchester, Ratchwood, Shoston, Spindleston, North Sunderland, Swinhoe, Tuggal, Warrenton, and Warnford—all of which are in the union of Belford. The village of Bambrrough is situated on the sea-coast, N.E. of Belford: 359 miles from London (coach road 324), 5 from Belford, 6 from Holy Island. —Nor. West. Rail. through York and Newcastle, to Belford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, Belford, &c., 227 miles. —Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —This place was anciently called Bebbanburg, and gave its appellation to a district called Bambrroughshire; but its privileges, which were considerable, are now become obsolete. Bambrrough was formerly a market town, and returned two members to parliament in the reign of Edward I. Tanner, in his Notitia, says of this place—King Henry I. having given the churches of St. Oswald and St. Aidan here, with their chapels, to the priory of Nothell in Yorkshire, some regular canons of the order of St. Augustine were settled here as a cell to that religious house, who were endowed in the 26th of Henry VIII. with £124. 15s. 7d. per annum. Here were were also a college, on hospital dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene, and a house of Black friars.—The living (St. Aidan), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £200: patron, Trustees of Lord Crewe: pres. incumbent, W. Darnell, 1841: contains 25,100 acres: 773 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,237: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,877: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £30,356.

BAMBROUGH, NORTHUMBERLAND, a ward, in which the above parish is comprised, &c. &c.

BAMBROUGH-CASTLE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the ward of Bambrough—(which see for access and postal arrangements): 324 miles from London, 5 from Belford, 15 from Alnwick. —The name is derived from the neighbouring castle of Bambrough, a pile which stands on a lofty and rugged rock jutting out into the sea, accessible only on the south-east side, and which rises to the height of more than 150 feet above high-water mark. Lambard, in speaking of it, says,—*It taketh the name of Quene Bebbia who builded it, as sayethe Beda. Which reporteth further, that the handes of Kinge Oswold weare kept in a church theare, which in reward of his pitie toward the poore, to whom he opened the same most liberally, wear for ever preserved un-woythered, accordinge as Aidan the bishop had before told hym. But Henry Hupington saythe, that Ida the first kinge of Northumberland built it, enclosed it first with a hedge, and then with a wall, about the yeare 554. Eadfride, nephew and successor to Ceolwolph, which lyved in Beda his tyme, imprisoned within this castle Cynewylfe the bishop of Lindisf, because he suffered Offa, a nobleman, to be plucked from his church, and to be slayne. It was much defaced by Anlaf and Sueny the Danes, under King Aedelred 991. In tyme of William Rufus, Earle Robert of Northumberland fled to this castle, William followed, and besieged it so straitly, that he constreyned him to flight, wherein he took him, and because he found the castle impregnable, he built a castle of wood over against it, which he called then a malvesine, 'malus vicinus,' and in thend caused the defendantes to render it, 1094. Howsoever the Scot came to it, I find, in Mat. Paris, that by composition betwene King Henry II. and hym, he delyvered Henry this towne amongst other, and Henry delyvered to him the earldome of Huntingdon 1157. Edw. II. to satisfye his nobles, committed Peter Gaveston to this castle, but they ceased not tyll they had slayne him. During the wars between Stephen and the princess Matilda, this castle was repeatedly taken and retaken; and it suffered so much during the wars of the Roses, that, in the time of Henry VII., it was very much dilapidated. During the reign of James I., the castle and manor were granted to John Foster, Esq., and afterwards the building became a blessing to the whole of that part of the coast. Pennant, who visited the place in 1777, gives a succinct statement of its present purposes. He says,—*This castle and the manor belonging to it, was once the property of the Fosters; but, on the forfeiture of Thomas Foster, Esq., in 1715, for having joined the Pretender, it was purchased by his uncle, Lord Crewe, bishop of Durham, and, with other considerable estates, left vested in trustees, to be applied to unconfined charitable uses. Three of these trustees are a ma- jority; one of them makes the place his residence, and blesses the coast by his judicious and humane application of the prelate's generous bequest. He has repaired and rendered habitable the great Norman square tower: the part reserved for himself and his family is a large hall, and a few smaller apartments; but the rest of the spacious edifice is allotted for purposes which make the heart to glow with joy when thought of. The upper part is an ample granary; from whence corn is dispensed to the poor without distinction, even in the dearest time, at the rate of 4s. a bushel, and the distressed, for many miles around, often experience the convenience of this benefaction. Other apartments are fitted up for the reception of shipwrecked sailors; and bedding is provided for thirty, should such a number happen to be cast on shore at the same time. A constant patrol is kept every stormy night along this tempestuous coast, for above eight miles, the length of the manor, by which means numbers of lives have been preserved. Many poor wretches are often found on the shore in a state of insensibility, but by timely relief, are soon brought to themselves. It often happens that ships strike on the rocks in such a manner as to be capable of relief, in case numbers of people could be suddenly assembled: for that purpose, a cannon is fixed on the top of the tower, which is fired once, if the accident happens in such a quarter; twice, if in another; and three times if in such a place. By these signals, the country people are directed to the spot they are to fly to, and by this means frequently preserve not only the crew, but even the vessel; for machines of different kinds are always in readiness to heave ships out of their perilous situation. From the top of the tower, signals are made to the fishermen who are at work off Holy Island, as, from their position, they can frequently render assistance to vessels in distress, when, on account of the surf, boats could not put off from the main land. Beside the comforts spoken of above, the castle is provided with an infirmary, a dispensary, and a resident surgeon. Further, there is an extensive collection of theological works, and curious pamphlets and tracts, founded, in 1778, by Lord Crewe's trustees, and open to every respectable inhabitant within twenty miles round, and to every clergyman or minister of any denomination. Two schools, conducted on the system of Dr. Bell, are also supported out of the funds of the Crewe estate, which are attended by from 170 to 180 children of both sexes, of whom thirty girls are regularly clothed and lodged in the castle, until they are fit for service. This is indeed a fair outlay for a large return.—Contains 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 70: probable in 1849, 80: poor rates in 1837, £21.

BAMBURGH, LINCOLNSHIRE. See BAUMBER.

BAMFORD, DERBY, a hamlet in the parish of Hathersage, on a head-branch of the Derwent: 188 miles from London (coach road 165), 6 from Stoney Middleton, 11 from Sheffield.—Nor. West. Rail. to Sheffield, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 56 miles.—Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.—Contains 46 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £848: poor rates in 1837, £46.

BAMFORD (OR BAMPFORD), LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Middleton: 20½ miles from London (coach road 189), 3 from Rochdale, 7 from Manchester.—Nor. West. Rail. to Rochdale, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Manchester and Rochdale, 79½ miles.---Money orders issued at Rochdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---There is an Independent chapel here.

BAMPTON (or BATHAMPTON), DEVON, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of the same name. It contains the hamlets of Petton and Shillingford: 191 miles from London (coach road 162), 23 from Exeter.---Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 205 miles.---Money orders issued at Bampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The name is believed to be a corruption of Bathampton, or Bathampton, from its neighbourhood to the river Bathern, a tributary of the Exe, which rises on the borders of Somersetshire, and falls into that river a little below the town. Bampton is supposed by some to be the ancient Beamdune, when, in 614, the Britons experienced a bloody overthrow by Cyneglonus, king of the West Britons. The town formerly sent two members to parliament, but it is now included in the county division of North Devon. There are, however, still traces of a castle, erected, about 1336, by a member of the Cogan family. The place is agreeably situated in a vale; and the houses, mostly of stone, are scattered somewhat irregularly over a space of about half a mile in extent. The church is a spacious structure, and contains several monuments of the Bouchiers, Earls of Bath. There is a Baptist chapel here, the congregation of which was formed so long ago as 1690. The average produce of the parochial charities is about £11 a year. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of serge, but there is also a pottery in the town, which is within the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who hold petty sessions here, and at Hemstock, Tiverton, Culmstock, and Cullampton, and by whom the two port-reeves, constables, and inferior municipal officers are appointed. John de Bampton, a Carmelite friar, who first lectured on the Aristotelian Philosophy, at the University of Cambridge, was a native of this place; he died in 1391. There is a chalybeate spring of considerable note near the town.---The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £21. 11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £118: patron, E. Rendell, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. Rendell, 1841: contains 8,130 acres: 368 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,049: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,356: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,232: poor rates in 1837, £1,265.---Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs, March 21, Tuesday in Whitsun-week, last Thursday in Oct., Nov. 28.---Bankers, H. & R. Badcock—draw on Ransom & Co. Inns, White Horse, and Red Lion.

BAMPTON, WESTMORELAND, a parish and township in West ward; it lies along the river Lowther, and stretches south-eastward to the lake called Haweswater: 276 miles from London (coach road 282), 9 from Penrith, 10 from Orton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Preston to Shap, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Preston, Shap, &c., 184 miles.---Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There is a free grammar-school here, endowed with £500, collected by the exertions of Dr. Thomas Sutton, the yearly revenues of which are now about £70, and it is open to all the children of the parish. The master also conducts a Sunday school. The church was rebuilt in 1726. Dr. John Mill, celebrated for his edition of the New Testament, and Dr. Edmund Gibson, afterwards Bishop of London, and who rebuilt the school-house, were both educated here. There is a parochial library, founded about the middle of the last century by Jonathan Tindlar, for the use of the vicar; and there is also a free library for the parishioners.---The living (St. Patrick), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £7. 5s.: pres. net income, £101: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. Hodgson, 1834: contains 10,390 acres: 107 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 579: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 665: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,237: poor rates in 1837, £377.

BAMPTON-GRANGE, WESTMORELAND, a hamlet in the above parish—(which see for access and postal.)

BAMPTON (Kirk), CUMBERLAND, a parish in the ward and county of Cumberland. It comprises the townships of Kirk-Bampton, Little Bampton, and Oughterby: 305½ miles from London (coach road 311), 5 from Carlisle, 7 from Wigton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Carlisle, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Carlisle, &c., 183½ miles.---Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £14. 17s. 10d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Earl of Lonsdale and Sir W. Brisco: pres. incumbent, W. Pattinson, 1845: contains 3,580 acres: 99 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 536: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 616: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,026: poor rates in 1837, £227.

BAMPTON (Kirk), CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish—(which see for access and postal.)---Contains 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 221: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 254.

BAMPTON (LITTLE), CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish of Kirk-Bampton: 315½ miles from London (coach road 310), 5 from Wigton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Carlisle to Wigton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Carlisle, &c., 193½ miles.---Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---Contains 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 245: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 281.

BAMPTON-WITH-WEALD (formerly called BAMPTON-IN-THE-BUSH), OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bampton, union of Witney. It comprises the market town of Bampton, the chapelry of Shiford, and the hamlets of Aston-with-Cote, Chimney, and part of Bright-Hampton: 79 miles from London (coach road 71), 16 from Oxford.---Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Worcester, Stonesfield, &c., 126 miles.---Money orders issued at Witney: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The church is a large cruciform structure, with a fine peal of six bells. Near to it are the remains of a castle, built, about 1321, by Aymer de Valence, Earl of Pembroke. There is a National school here, founded, in 1635, by a gift of £300, by Mr. Robert Veysey of Chimney, and this benefaction has been added to by subsequent donations, so that the capital returns a yearly income for the master of £50. There is also a National school with an endowment of £45 per annum. The other parochial charities produce about £115 a year. Bampton is situated on a tributary of the Isis, which joins that river a little below Witney. The place was of considerable importance during the Saxon times, and was annexed, in the reign of Edward the Confessor, to the see of Exeter, by Leofric, who was one of the royal chaplains, and the first bishop of the see. At the period of the Conquest, its market was of great note for the abundance of fellmongers' wares, as jackets, breeches, stockings, gloves, &c., which were brought hither from Witney, and sold here into Berkshire, Wiltshire, and Dorsetshire; no town in England having anything the like trade for these sort of wares. The inhabitants are now chiefly farmers, and farmers' assistants. The church lands of the parish produce a revenue of £26. 2s. per annum. Phillips, the author of the 'Splendid Shilling,' who was born in 1676, was a native of Bampton. The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is divided into three mediocrities of the annexed values:—1st portion, C. L. Kirby, 1824, £465; 2d portion, Dacres Adams, £420; 3d portion, Ralph Barnes, 1844, £395: patron, Dean and Chapter of Exeter: contains 8,750 acres: 523 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,734: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,146: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £14,219. The great and small tithes, the property of the dean and chapter of Oxford, the lay impropriator, the clerical rector, and the vicar, were commuted in 1812. Market day, Wednesday. Fairs, May 26, and Aug. 26.

BAMPTON, OXFORD. The market town of Bampton is situated on a stream, which, flowing south-east, discharges itself into the Isis. (For access and postal, see preceding article.) Contains 4,970 acres: 331 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,845: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,131: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,661: poor rates in 1837, £577. Fairs, March 26, and Aug. 26, for horses.

BANBURY, OXFORD, a borough, market town, and parish, having separate jurisdiction, in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Banbury. The parish comprises the borough town of Banbury, and the hamlet of Neithrop: 98 miles from London (coach road 76), 21 from Oxford. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Shorthampton, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Shorthampton, &c., 127 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. The name of Banbury is most probably a contraction of the Saxon appellation of Banesberig, which, in all probability, was a Roman station, as an altar, several Roman coins, and other antiquities have been found in the place and its neighbourhood. Though small, it has always been a place of some consideration; and about 1125, Alexander, the then bishop of Lincoln, erected an episcopal palace, which continued as a bishop's residence till the time of Edward VI.; but that it was miserably perverted from its purpose as the residence of an apostle of peace, appears evident from the description of Leland, who states that "it was a terrible prison for convicts." There is little difficulty in ascertaining what was the species of convicts confined as criminals in the tower of a Roman Catholic archbishop. During the wars of the Roses, a bloody conflict took place in 1469, near Edgecote, about three miles from Banbury, in which the Earl of Pembroke, one of the commanders of the Yorkists, and his brother, Sir Richard Herbert, were taken and beheaded; the capture of Edward, son of Richard Duke of York, afterwards Edward IV., followed soon afterwards. Banbury and its neighbourhood also became a battlefield during the great conflict between Charles I. and his parliament, and was taken by the royalists, after an obstinate and skilful defence, but afterwards surrendered, after a siege of three-and-twenty weeks, to Col. Whalley, the inhabitants being, from their puritan principles, adherents to the republican party. The town, which has a cheerful and lively aspect, stands on the banks of the river Cherwell, but has few houses of great pretension—respectability is the term peculiarly applicable to it; and within these few years the roads have been improved, the causeways paved, and the streets lighted with gas. The church, which is a spacious structure, was erected under the authority of an act of parliament, and finished in 1790, at an enormous expense. It is arranged after the plan, and as an imitation of the elevation, of St. Paul's cathedral in London. There was formerly a free grammar-school, but it has been abandoned. There was a blue-coat school founded in 1705, and endowed by various benefactors with an income of £75 per annum, but has since been incorporated with the National school; the pupils are numerous. The other educational institutions are numerous for the place; and one of them, a Sunday school, has an income, derived from the proceeds of a legacy of £295 in the three per cent. consols, left in 1802 by Sir John Knightley. There is an almshouse for twelve poor aged women, which was rebuilt by Francis Lord North, eight of the inmates of which participate in a peculiar local charity, called the widows' groats. The other charities of the parish produce about £119 a year. Certain rents, under the trusteeship of the municipal authorities, which amount to about £69, are appropriated to the repair of the highways and bridges of the parish. Tanner, in citing Speed respecting this place, says—There was a college in this town dedicated to St. Mary, and endowed with £48. 6s. per annum. Dugdale mentions a guild of that valuation, and perhaps there were no other than the chantry priests belonging to that guild. In or near this town was an hospital, in the reign of King John, dedicated to St. John, consisting of a prior, or master, and several leprous brethren and sisters. It had revenues in the 26th year of Henry VIII. valued at £15. 1s. 10d. The mastership was in the gift of the Bishop of Lincoln. The town obtained a charter from Queen Mary, and afterwards from James I., which was confirmed in all its points, in 1718, by George I. The corporation then consisted of a mayor, twelve aldermen, six capital burgesses, and thirty assistants; but it has, of course, been regulated by the Municipal Reform Act. There is a general sessions once in every half year, and the petty sessions for Banbury and Bloxham are regularly held here. In addition to these two, there is a court for the recovery of small debts. The town returns one member to parliament. The income of the borough is something under £1,000 a year, about £150 of which are derived from quit-rents, and the rest from borough rates. Being the centre of a fine agricultural district, the markets and fairs are well attended, and are of very considerable importance to the neighbourhood. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £22. 0s. 10d.: patron, Bishop of Oxford: pres. incumbent, T. W. Lancaster, 1815: contains 3,150 acres: 1,148 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,734: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,148: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £15,547. — Bankers: Gillett, Tawney, and Gillett—draw on Glynn, Halifax, & Co.; T. R. and E. Cobb (Old Bank)—draw on Jones, Lloyd, & Co.: Branch of Leamington and Warwickshire Banking Co.—draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co.: Branch of London and Country Joint Stock Banking Co.—draw on Head Office, 21, Lombard Street. — Newspaper, Banbury Guardian—Thursday. — Red Lion, and White Lion Inns.

THE MENAI SUSPENSION BRIDGE: WITH THE BRITANNIA TUBULAR BRIDGE IN THE DISTANCE.

Drawn & Coloured for the British Gazette.

Printed and Published by H. G. ALLEN, 27, FLEET STREET.

BANBURY, OXFORD, a market town in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 702 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,352: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,002. — Market day, Thursday. Fairs, 1st Thursday after Old Twelfth-Day, or preceding Monday, 3d Thursday in Feb., 3d Thursday in March, 3d Thursday in April, Holy Thursday, 3d Thursday in June, 3d Thursday in July, 3d Thursday in August, 3d Thursday in September, 1st and 3d Thursday after Old Michaelmas, 3d Thursday in November, 2d Thursday before Christmas.

BANGOR, CARDIGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Troedyr, union of Newcastle-in-Emlyn: 242 miles from London (coach road 222), 7 from Newcastle-in-Emlyn. — Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, cross the Severn to Penarth, then by railway to Merthyr-Tydvil, thence 65 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, Weston, &c., 246 miles. — Money orders issued at Carmarthen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 6½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The living, a rectory, with that of Henllan annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Cardigan, and diocese of St. David's: pres. net income, £163: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, J. Walters, 1813: contains 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 210: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 242: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,024: poor rates in 1837, £73.

BANGOR, CARNARVON, a city and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Uwch-gorfoi, union of Bangor and Beaumaris, North Wales: 247½ miles from London (coach road 245), 9 from Carnarvon. — Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to station: from Derby to station, 119½ miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The city stands at the foot of a steep rock in a narrow and fertile vale, near the mouth of the river Ogwen, at the upper entrance of the Menai Straits. The name, translated, means either "White Choir," or "High Choir," to distinguish the city from "Bangor-is-y-coed," or "Bangor-below-the-wood;" it is called Bangor the Great. It was formerly defended by a strong castle, built by Hugh Earl of Chester, in the time of William Rufus. Happily, through God's providence, there are little uses for such things, and the foundations can now only be faintly traced. The members of the chapter and the subordinate officials of the cathedral are the bishop, dean, archdeacon, treasurer, and two prebendaries, who have endowments; there are a proceptor, chancellor, and three canons unendowed; two vicars-choral, organist, lay clerks, with the choristers, and other necessary inferior officials. But there are no corporate revenues belonging to the chapter, and the incomes of the several superior clergy, derived from the estates of the cathedral, only amount to about £3,350. The cathedral itself was founded as early as A.D. 525, by St. Daniel, to whom it was afterwards dedicated; but the mere structure was destroyed and rebuilt several times during the intestine commotions of the Anglo-Saxon dynasty. Even after the Conquest, during the wars of Henry III., in 1247, it was greatly injured, and was ultimately burned down to the ground in 1402, during the contest excited by the revolt of Owen Glendower. The present choir was erected in the reign of Henry VII. by Bishop Dean, or Deny, and the tower in that of Henry VIII. by Bishop Skiffington. Some few years later, however, the property of the see was wasted, Bishop Bulkeley, the then occupant, alienating, in 1547, some of the lands, and actually selling the bells of the cathedral. Only the choir is now used for the cathedral service, and one of the transepts is used for divine service in the Welsh tongue, while the nave of the building is used as a parish church. The total length of the building is 214 feet, that of the cross aisles 96, and the tower is 60 feet high. In one of the recesses there is the tomb of Prince Owen Gryffyd, who died in the year 1169. The bishop has the chief jurisdiction of the city. The tithes of the parish are appropriated to the church of Bangor. The town consists principally of one long narrow street, and its chief architectural embellishments are the cathedral, the palace, the deanery, the market-house, and the free school. The free school was founded in 1557, by Dr. Jeffrey Glynn, and now has a revenue somewhat short of £600 a year to support it. Another school is supported by a small endowment of the late Dr. Williams, and the other educational establishments are amply numerous for the place; there is also a central National school. The principal charitable institution is an almshouse for six poor aged single men, endowed, in 1616, by Bishop Rowlands, with an income which now amounts to £215 a year on an average, out of which each of the inmates has an allowance of seven shillings a week. There is a good dispensary in the city, and the other public charities produce about £25 a year. The Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodists, the Presbyterians, the Independents, and the Roman Catholics, all have chapels here. Some five or six-and-thirty years ago, this place consisted only of about 90 or 100 houses; but since the erection of the Menai Bridge, from the curiosity felt respecting that singular structure, the vicinity of Bangor to the sea, and the exceeding beauty of the scenery in its neighbourhood, it has become a place of very considerable resort, as many as 50,000 persons, it is stated, visiting it annually. The various views of the mountains of Carnarvon, the bay of Beaumaris, and the various adjuncts to features of such imposing character, give to the promenade at Garth point, the chief resort of the visitors and the inhabitants, a various, complicated, and most delightful beauty. The principal trade is the exportation of large slates, extracted from the quarries of Llandegai, about six miles distant, and carried to Port-Penrhyn on a tramway. There is also a considerable steam communication between Bangor and Liverpool during nine months in the year. There is a good fishery in the straits. For an account of the diocese, see Str. ASPH.—The living is a vicarage not in charge, with the curacy of Pentir: pres. not income, £878: patron, Bishop of Bangor: pres. incumbent, J. Hamer, 1819: contains 1,171 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 7,232: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 8,317: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,270: poor rates in 1837, £1,601.—In the neighbourhood of Bangor is Penrhyn Castle, a superb structure, rebuilt within the last few years, on the plan and in the style of the ancient stronghold, which formerly stood upon the site of a palace of Roderic, who was a prince of Wales about the year 720. It is spacious, contains many noble apartments, and is placed in the midst of a noble park, in which there is almost every accessory to produce landscape effect. Penrhyn Castle is now the seat of the Hon. H. G. D. Pennant, who is a descendant of Tudor Trevor, lord of Hereford and Whittington, and who was, about half a century before the advent of William the Conqueror, the founder of the tribes of the marches. One of his posterity, Thomas Pennant, was abbot of Basingwerk, in Flintshire, about the middle of the 15th century, and is highly celebrated by two noted Welsh bards, Guttyn Owam and Tudor Altd, not only for the extent of his hospitality, for his works of utility—such as the erection of wind and water mills—but for that also which is not quite so much in keeping with the clerical character—for his prowess in battle. So active a disposition appears to have induced him to quit the monastic life, and he became a monk deragné, and married a daughter of Anyhared, a daughter of Gwillim ap Griffith, of the great house of Penrhyn. From him was descended John Pennant, Esq. of Bonella Hodges, whose second son, Richard Pennant, Esq., was created Baron Penrhyn, in the peerage of Ireland. He was succeeded by his cousin, George Hay Dawkins, Esq., whose daughter and heiress, Juliana Isabella Mary, married the Hon. Edward G. Douglas, a brother of the Earl of Sholto, who assumed the additional name of Pennant on succeeding to the estates, and is now the proprietor of Penrhyn Castle.—Market day, Friday. Fairs, April 5, June 25, Sept. 16, Oct. 28.—Bankers, Williams & Co.—draw on Robarts, Curtis, & Co.; National Provincial Bank—draw on Joint Stock Bank.—Inns: Penrhyn Arms, Castle Hotel, Liverpool Arms, and Royal Oak.

BANGOR-MONACHORUM (or BANGOR-IS-Y-COED), FLINT, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Maylor, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bromfield, union of Wrexham, county of Denbigh, North Wales. It contains the townships of Bangor in Flint, and Eyton, Pickhill, Royton, and Lesswick in Denbigh: 20 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 174), 5 from Wrexham, 11 from Ellesmere.—Nor. West. Rail. to Chester and Ruabon, thence 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles: from Derby, through Chester, Ruabon, &c., 103 miles.

—Money orders issued at Wrexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—This place is singularly remarkable in the history of Britain. By the old writer, Richard of Cirencester, this place is called Banchorium Statio, and it is noted for a monastery which once stood here, the reputation of which will remain as long as the world shall exist; though no traces of the structure itself are now to be found, yet it nevertheless appears to have been one of the largest and most important monasteries in Great Britain—important not only from its size, but from the fact that its existence affords one of the many proofs that the assumption of the Church of Rome over the ecclesiastical authorities of this country, on the ground of having been the original Church, is totally unfounded. It appears to have been founded by Lucius, the son of Coel, one of the early Christian kings of Britain—early, for it would appear by the writings of Clement, that he was the companion of St. Paul, and was a witness of the formation of a Christian church shortly after the apostle's first departure from Rome. At any rate, there is ample proof that, on the arrival of Augustine, a college, famous at the time, did exist here. Lambard says—There were in it 2100 monks, which Galfride calleth "gregem domini," and sayth, "quod rectum ordinem tenebant," and yet Beda confesseth that they al lyved of the labour of their hands. Upon refusal to accept Augustine for their archbishop, Ethelbert excited King Ethelfride against them, which gatheringe togethr a great army at Chester, came towardees them, who (whyle the common souldiours prepared to encountre Ethelfride) kneled downe not far of and prayed; when Ethelfride saw them he demanded what they did, it was answered that they prayed for success in battayl. Nay, then, saithe Ethelfride, set on them first, for they fight against us no less than the rest, though they want weapons, insomuch as they pray against us. And so he slew 1,200 of them, and scattered the rest. It would appear from this that there was an opposition between the two Churches; and in an appeal presented to Sir Robert Peel in 1835, it is declared that there was a regular Episcopal Church in Wales in the time of the apostles, three of whose bishops, in a subsequent age (in 314), attended the Council of Arles in France, and signed the acts of that Council. Others attended the Council of Nice in 325, and then again the Council of Sardica in 349, and others again that of Ariminum ten years later, while the Saxons, by whom the power of the Roman See was advanced in these realms, did not arrive till just at the end of a century afterwards (in 449). Augustine arrived in 597, entered upon the see of Canterbury in 599, and in 602 began his attempts to subordinate the Church in Wales to his authority. Much effort was made to win over the Welsh bishops, but in a general synod it was determined to resist his supremacy, first on the ground of the corruptness of the doctrines which he preached, and secondly, on that of their pledged fealty to their own primate, the Archbishop of Caerlaon. This refusal led to the incursion of Ethelfride, his massacre of the clergy at Bangor, and a system of constant attacks upon the people and the Church by the Saxon kings for above 400 years, in the hope of securing the adhesion of the people to the Church of Rome. At the time of the Conquest there were many ruins of churches and chapels. The village stands in an open and pleasing country, and there is a school there with an endowment of £30 a year.---The living, a rectory, with the curacy of Overton annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £39. 6s. 2d.: pres. net income, £1,200: patron, Marquis of Westminster: pres. incumbent, G. A. E. Marsh, 1835: contains 269 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,257: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,442: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> 13,357: poor rates in 1837, £335.

GREAT TUBULAR BRIDGE ACROSS THE MENAI STRAIT; CHESTER & HOLYHEAD RAILWAY.

Designed & Supervised for the British Government.

Printed by the Engineer, at the ENGINEERING OFFICE, LONDON.

BANHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Guiltcross: 110 miles from London (coach road 92), 5 from East Harling.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Eccles Road station, thence 3½ miles: from Derby, through Peterborough and Ely, 147½ miles.---Money orders issued at Attleborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.---There is a small endowed school here. The fuel allotments produce about £62, and the town lands about £68. The other parochial charities bring in about £11 a year.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £9. 3s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £800: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, John Surtees, 1813: contains 3,710 acres: 237 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,165: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,339: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,435: poor rates in 1837, £1,003.---Fair, Tuesday in Easter week.

BANKS, CUMBERLAND. See LANERCOST.

BANNINGHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of South Erpingham: 141 miles from London (coach road 121), 3 from Aylesham, 9 from Cromer.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 179 miles.---Money orders issued at Aylesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £30 a year.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £295: patron, S. Bignold, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. J. Blake, 1814: contains 770 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 329: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 378: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,134: poor rates in 1837, £311.

BANSTEAD, SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Wallington, union of Epsom: 18½ miles from London (coach road 15), 3½ from Epsom, 6 from Croydon.---South. East. Rail. to Stoa's Nest station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London to Stoa's Nest, &c., 150 miles.---Money orders issued at Croydon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The parochial charities produce £39 a year, and there are three National schools in the parish.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey and diocese of Winchester. By a peculiar arrangement, the contiguous parts of the parishes of Banstead and Ewell have been consolidated into a district, and assigned to the chapel of St. Andrew for all parochial purposes. It is valued at £13. 8s. 7d.: pres. net income, £310: patron, Rev. W. L. Buckle: pres. incumbent, W. L. Buckle, 1832: contains 5,840 acres: 185 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,168: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,343: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,445: poor rates in 1837, £759.

BANWELL, SOMERSET, a village and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Winterstoke, union of Axbridge: 138 miles from London (coach road 130), 4 from Axbridge, 18 from Bristol.---Gt. West. Rail. to Banwell station, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, to Bristol and Banwell station, 143 miles.

---Money orders issued at Weston-super-Mare: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.

---This parish contains the hamlets of East and West Rolston, Westwick, Towerhead, Woolfords-hill or Overhill, Knightcott, and Yarborough. The church is a fine building, with stained glass windows. An English free school was established here in 1767, with an endowment of £5 a year; and in 1676 a rent charge of £4 a year was given by William Burgis for the purpose of apprenticing a boy every seven years. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here. The petty sessions for the division are held here and at Wrington. There is a mineral spring, which, after forming a considerable rivulet, falls into the Bristol Channel near Woodspring priory. In a charter of Edward the Confessor the village is styled Banwelli, which, according to the interpretation of Collinson, implies 'deep in the sea,' the whole of the valley in which Banwell stands having at one time been covered with the waters of the ocean. Two caverns were discovered here in 1824, one of which was full of diluvial matter, and the other, called the Stalactite Cave, gleams with a number of beautiful stalactitic formations. To the eastward of the village is Banwell Park, still an extensive and interesting domain, well supplied with game, but sadly shorn of its ancient glory, having formerly been much larger, and stocked with noble deer. There were once two palaces here of the Bishop of Bath and Wells: one at Towestead, which was entirely pulled down about fourteen or fifteen years since, and a modern dwelling-house erected, now the property of John Blackburn, Esq.; the other palace, which was the house to Banwell Park, has nothing remaining but the old hall and the chapel. The hall is now made into a residence, called the Court House, the property of Thomas Blackburn, Esq.---The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage in the diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £26. 6s. ¾d.: pres. net income, derived from a commutation of vicarial tithes, £702; the rectorial tithes, producing about £220 a year, belong to the Dean and Chapter of Bristol: patron, Dean and Chapter of Bristol: pres. incumbent, W. H. Turner, 1838: contains 4,970 acres: 295 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,819: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,092: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £11,441: poor rates in 1837, £888.---Fair, Jan. 18, for cattle, sheep, and cheese.

BAPCHILD, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Milton, lathe of Scray: 70 miles from London (coach road 41), 2 from Sittingbourne, 6 from Faversham.---So. East. Rail. to Maidstone, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through London to Maidstone, &c., 202 miles.---Money orders issued at Sittingbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---There is a daily school here, with a small endowment. On the north side of the road are the remains of a place erected for the accommodation of pilgrims on their way to the shrine of St. Thomas à Becket at Canterbury.---The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £192: patron, Dean and Chapter of Chichester: pres. incumbent, W. W. Holland: contains 1,080 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 338: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 389: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,825: poor rates in 1837, £226.---Fair, 21st of August.

BAPTON, WILTSHIRE. See FISHEXTON-DE-LA-MERE.

BARBON, WESTMORELAND, a chapelry in the parish of Kirkby-Lonsdale: 264½ miles from London (coach road 258), 3 from Kirkby-Lonsdale, 11 from Kendal. — Nor. West. Rail. through Lancaster to Menthorne, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Lancaster, &c., 132½ miles. — Money orders issued at Kirkby-Lonsdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, is valued at £3. 1s. 6d.: pres. net income, £80: patron, Vicar of Kirkby-Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, Benjamin Hopkins, 1842: contains 4,690 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 315: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 362: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,626: poor rates in 1837, £111.

BARBY, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Fawsley, union of Rugby: 73½ miles from London (coach road 78), 4½ from Rugby, 6 from Daventry. — Nor. West. Rail. to Crick, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Crick, &c., 63 miles. — Money orders issued at Rugby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — There is a school here, which is endowed with about £37 a year, and the town lands produce about £93 a year; the poor's land, a rent of about £28 a year. The village stands on the borders of Warwickshire, near the Oxford Canal. — The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory with Onely, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £30. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £1,150: patron, Trustees: pres. incumbent, C. Williams, 1815: contains 3,700 acres: 147 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 640: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 738: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,032: poor rates in 1837, £375. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1778.

BARCHESTON-WITH-WILLINGTON, WARWICK, a parish in the Brilles division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kington, union of Shipston-on-Stour: 103 miles from London (coach road 83), 2 from Shipston-on-Stour, 9 from Kington. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Moreton to Honington, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Worcester, Moreton, &c., 72 miles. — Money orders issued at Shipston-on-Stour: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living (St. Martin), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £193: patron, Rev. G. D. Wheeler: pres. incumbent, G. D. Wheeler, 1846: contains 1,620 acres: 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 193: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 222: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,198: poor rates in 1837, £117.

BARCOMB, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Barcomb, rape of Lewes, union of Chailley, on the river Ouse: 53 miles from London (coach road 48), 3 from Lewes, 11 from Brighton. — Sou. East. Rail. to Lewes, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, to Lewes, &c., 185 miles. — Money orders issued at Lewes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The late Thomas Richman, Esq., bequeathed £20 a year for the endowment of a school here. — The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £18. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £719: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Robert Allen, 1826: contains 5,280 acres: 145 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,028: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,182: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,353: poor rates in 1837, £806.

BARDEN-IN-WHARFDALE (or BARDEN-FOR-EST), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township and chapelry in the parish of Skipton: 244 miles from London (coach road 218), 8 from Skipton, 13 from Otley. — Nor. West. Rail. through Leeds to Skipton, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 119 miles. — Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — There are here the ruins of an old tower, at one time one of the lodges in the forest of Barden. — The living, a curacy not in charge: patron, Duke of Devonshire: contains 10,110 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 246: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 283: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £863: poor rates in 1837, £108.

BARDFIELD (GREAT), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Freshwell, union of Dunmow: 53½ miles from London (coach road 48), 9 from Braintree, 5 from Thaxted. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Braintree, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 185½ miles. — Money orders issued at Braintree: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — There was formerly a market here, but it has for many years been discontinued. There is a free school here, which enjoys part of a bequest of £40 a year, left in 1584 by Lord William Bendlowe. There are also other bequests, amounting in the aggregate to about £51 a year, which support educational and other charitable institutions in the parish. The petty sessions for the division of Freshwell are held at Bardfield. — The living (Virgin Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, is valued at £11: pres. net income, £179: patron, Devises of W. C. Key, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. B. Lampet, 1840: contains 3,400 acres: 207 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,120: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,288: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,534: poor rates in 1837, £699. — Fair, June 22, for cattle and toys.

BARDFIELD (LITTLE), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Freshwell, union of Dunmow—(for access and postal arrangements, see above.) — There is a school here for eighteen poor children, endowed by Mrs. Sarah Barnard in 1774, and there is also an almshouse for poor women. — The living (St. Katherine), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, and diocese of London, is valued at £11: pres. net income, £590: patron, Rev. M. Barnard: pres. incumbent, M. Barnard, 1845: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 375: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 431: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,652: poor rates in 1837, £252.

BARDFIELD-SALING (or LITTLE SALING), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Freshwell, union of Dunmow—(for access, &c., see above.) — There is a charitable bequest of £7 per annum for the benefit of the parish. — The living (St. Margaret), a donative curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, diocese of London, not in charge: contains 1,510 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 381: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 438: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,094: poor rates in 1837, £205.

BARDNEY, LINCOLN, a parish in the west division of the wapentake of Wraggöe, parts of Lindsey, union and county of Lincoln: 157 miles from London (coach road 136), 12 from Lincoln, 9 from Horncastle. — East. Co. Rail. through Peterboro' to Bardney station: from Derby, through Lincoln to Bardney station, 59 miles. — Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — According to Tanner— There was here a noble monastery before the year 697, to which Ethelred, king of Mercia, was a great benefactor, if not the original founder, who, upon his resignation of the crown, retired hither, and became first monk, and afterwards abbot of this house till his death. It is said to have had three hundred monks, but was destroyed by the Danes in 870, and continued in ruins above two hundred years, till Remigius, bishop of Lincoln, or rather Gislebert de Gaunt, in the time of William the Conqueror, re-edified the church and buildings, and replenished the same with Benedictine monks, to the honour of St. Peter, St. Paul, and St. Oswald, the king and martyr, whose relics were first enshrined here, but, in 909, translated to Gloucester. The revenues of this abbey were valued, according to Leland, at £432, in the 26th year of Henry VIII. After the dissolution the site came into the hands of Sir Robert Tyrrohit. That site is about half a mile to the north-west of the village. No traces of the abbey now remain, but there is a large barrow in its neighbourhood, generally supposed to have been the tomb of King Ethelred, and a fine cross has been erected on its summit to his memory. There is an almshouse at Bardney for seven poor men and seven poor women, which was endowed, in 1708, by Peter Handcock, a resident in the parish; and there is also a free school which was endowed, in 1701, by Mr. Thomas Kitchen, with lands, which now produce £160 a year. — The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 10s.: pres. net income, £60: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, John Wray, 1806: contains 5,490 acres: 193 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,192: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,371: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,295: poor rates in 1837, £889.

BARDON-PARK, LEICESTER, an extra-parochial liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Sparkenhoe: 116 miles from London (coach road 107), 9 from Leicester, 5 from Loughborough. — Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester to Ibstock, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Ibstock, &c., 43 miles. — Money orders issued at Loughborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — There is an Independent chapel here. — Contains 1,710 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 74: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 85: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £671: poor rates in 1837, £59.

BARDSEA, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Urswick—(which see for returns): 276 miles from London, 3 from Ulverston, 5 from Dalton. — There was once a hospital here belonging to the association of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem. There is now a school here, endowed, in 1781, by Mr. Wilson Braddyll, with a rent charge of £8 a year.

BARDSEY (ISLE OF), CARNARVON, an island, extra-parochial, in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Commitmaen, North Wales: 280 miles from London (coach road 256), 4 from Aberdaron, 20 from Pwllheli. — Nor. West. Rail. to Chester and Ruabon, thence 85 miles: from Derby, through Chester and Ruabon, 181 miles. — Money orders issued at Pwllheli. There is no regular postal communication between the isle and the mainland, so that letters have to be sent across the strait by private opportunities. — It lies on the Irish Sea, on the northern point of Cardigan Bay, and is called, in Welsh, "Ynys Enlli," that is, "the island of the current," from the strong set in, through Bardsey Sound, of that tidal arm of the gulf stream which runs down by the western coast of Britain. It is the property of Lord Newborough, and is in extent about two miles long and one wide, having one rugged conspicuous elevation, but consisting chiefly of an undulating plain at a low elevation above the water. Dubritius, the primate of the primitive church of Wales, died here in 612; and there was, some centuries afterwards, an abbey here, which is believed to have been one of the first religious establishments in the principality. Its revenues at the general dissolution, in the time of Henry VIII., were valued at £46. 1s. 4d. Lambard, in speaking of Bardsey Abbey, says— Daniel, bishop of Bangor, and divers other religious, lie buried here; among whiche Boyle reckoneth Merlin of Calidon to be one whiche dyed in the year 570. It is manifest that the ile was named of Bardes, whiche name hath in process of tyme degenerated from the first meaning no less than Tyrannus or Sophista with the Grecians, being of themselves good woordes, but drawne to evel acceptance by deserts of evel menes doinges, whoe, enjoyinge the names, have not practised the thinges, and, embracing the place, have rejected the office; for, in the begynninge, these bards were such, as receyvinge religion from the Samothites, did, by lyttle and lyttle, lose the puritie of the same; and in the tyme of the Romaynes felle in manner to mere gentylitie, butte nowe lately to playne mynstralye, as to singe at the table genealogies, and the gestes of noble-men, wherewith the Welchmen of later age have been so much deliyted, as it grew in manor to a custome amongst them, to gyve franklye their horse, or other apparell aboute them, to anie of theise that would in Welch meter commend them. There is but one safe landing-place on the seaboard, which is a little harbour on the south-east side, capable of admitting vessels of 40 tons burden. There is a daily and Sunday school on the island, but the parish church is at Aberdaron on the mainland. — Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 96: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 110.

BARDSEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Skyrack. It comprises the townships of Bardsey, with Rigton, Wothersome, and part of Wike: 214 miles from London (coach road 193), 5 from Wetherby, 9 from Leeds. — Nor. West. Rail. to Leeds, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 82 miles. — Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There is a free school here, endowed by Lord Bingley in 1726, with £19. 19s. per annum. The other parochial charities produce about £4 a year. Bardsey was, in all probability, the native place of the celebrated dramatist, William Congreve, who was born in 1670, and baptized here in the February of that year. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and afterwards entered himself as a student of the Middle Temple, but quitted the study of the law for literature, having most probably been induced to do so by the notice of a romance, entitled "Incognita, or Love and Duty Reconciled," which he wrote at the age of seventeen. When four years older, he brought out his first play, which was called "The Old Bachelor," which was so successful as to procure for him immediate and extensive celebrity, and the more solid remuneration of a commissionership in the hackney coach-office, given to him by the Earl of Halifax. He afterwards wrote several other plays, all very popular in their time, but so licentious as to partly cause their banishment from the stage. On the north of the village, there are the remains of an ancient fort and encampment.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of York, is valued at £4. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £270: patron, G. L. Fox, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. Wilkinson, 1825: contains 3,380 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 463: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 532: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,629: poor rates in 1837, £95.

BARDWELL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Blackbourn, union of Thingoe: 10½ miles from London (coach road 80), 10 from Bury, 3 from Ixworth.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Bury St. Edmund's, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London to Bury St. Edmund's, &c., 236½ miles.---Money orders issued at Bury St. Edmund's: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There is a free school here, endowed with £17. 10s. a year. The rentals of the town estate amount to £87 a year, of which £13 are appropriated to the support of the charity school. The other parochial charities produce about £9 a year. There is a Baptist chapel here.---The living (St. Peter), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 17s. 1d.: pres. net income, £597: patron, St. John's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Henry Adams, 1815: contains 3,320 acres: 85 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 826: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 950: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,972: poor rates in 1837, £570.---Bardwell Hall.

BARE, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Lancaster: 241½ miles from London (coach road 243), 3 from Lancaster, 10 from Burton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Lancaster, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton on Trent, to Lancaster, 119½ miles.---Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---Contains 180 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 126: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 145: poor rates in 1837, £41.---The Elms.

BAREHAM (or BERGHAM), CAMBRIDGE, in the parish of Linton.---Tanner, in his Notitia, says—A priory here of Crouchid or Crossed Friars, cell immediately subordinate to Welnetham in Suffolk, which house also was subordinate to the great house of that order in London, is met with as early as the 21st of Edward I., and was granted as parcel of the above-mentioned London friary in the 32d year of Henry VIII. to Philip Paris, and afterwards to John Mill-cent, Esq.

BARESBY (or BARNESSY), LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Ashby-Folville: 112½ miles from London (coach road 105), 10 from Leicester, 8 from Melton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester to Syston, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Syston, &c., 33 miles.---Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>.

9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 265: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 304: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,620: poor rates in 1837, £106. The tithes of the lordship or liberties of Baresby and South Croxton, the property of the clerical rector, the lay impropriator, and vicar, were commuted in 1794.

BARFORD, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Forehoe: 120½ miles from London (coach road 105), 5 from Wymondham, 10 from Norwich.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Wymondham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, to Wymondham, &c., 154 miles.---Money orders issued at Wymondham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The living (St. Botolph), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 8s. 4d.: pres. net income, £288: patron, Rev. H. Francklin: pres. incumbent, H. Francklin, 1806: contains 940 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 417: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 480: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,442: poor rates in 1837, £215.

BARFORD, WARWICK, a parish in the Warwick division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kington, union of Warwick, situated on the banks of the Avon: 109 miles from London (coach road 92), 3 from Warwick, 7 from Stratford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Coventry to Basington, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth and Coventry, to Basington, &c., 62 miles.---Money orders issued at Warwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The church lands produce about £11. 10s. annually. There is a free school here, with an endowment of £48 a year, arising from the joint bequests in 1677, of the Rev. Thomas Dugard, and Mr. John Beale.---The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £11. 11s.: pres. net income, £869: patron, John Mills, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Hon. W. Somerville, 1841: contains 1,490 acres: 165 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 849: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 976: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,451: poor rates in 1837, £300. The great tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1760.

BARFORD (GREAT), BEDFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Barford, union of Bedford: 70 miles from London (coach road 53), 6 from Bedford, 7 from St. Neot's.---Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Bletchley and Bedford, &c., 108 miles.---Money orders issued at Bedford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There is a bridge here, built about the end of the 15th century, over the Ouse, which river is navigable along the south-eastern borders of the parish.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage united with that of Boxton, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9: patron, Trinity College, Cambridge: contains 2,830 acres: 150 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 814: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 936: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,545: poor rates in 1837, £428. The great and small tithes, the property of Trinity College, Cambridge, and the vicar, were commuted in 1820.

BARFORD (GREAT), OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Woolton, union of Banbury: 92½ miles from London (coach road 71), 2 from Deddington, 6 from Banbury.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Shorthampton, thence 12½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, to Shorthampton, 122 miles.

Money orders issued at Deddington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The church presents some curious instances of Saxon and Norman architecture. The parochial charities produce about £30 a year, the greater portion of which is appropriated to the purposes of education.—The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £6. 5s.: pres. net income, £67: patron, John Hall, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Hall: contains 1,180 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 370: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 425: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,841: poor rates in 1837, £175. (For commutation of tithes, see DEDDINGTON.)

BARFORD (LITTLE), BEDFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Biggleswade, union of St. Neot's: 75 miles from London (coach road 54), 3 from St. Neot's, 9 from Biggleswade.—Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Bletchley and Bedford, &c., 102 miles.—Money orders issued at St. Neot's: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The parochial charities produce about £6. 15s. a year.—The living (Virgin Mary), in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 16s. 3d.: pres. net income, £254: patron, Rev. J. Alington: pres. incumbent, J. Alington, 1822: contains 1,190 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 190: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 218: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,260: poor rates in 1837, £47. The tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1778.

BARFORD, OXFORD, a chapelry in the parish of East Adderbury—(which see for access, postal arrangements, &c.)—The living (St. John's), a curacy not in charge, in connection with the vicarage of East Adderbury: contains 480 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 126: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 145: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,517: poor rates in 1837, £108. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1793.

BARFORD, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Cawden and Cadworth, union of Wilton: 102 miles from London (coach road 87), 6 from Salisbury, 3 from Wilton.—Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Oxford, and Reading, to Salisbury, &c., 222 miles.—Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The living (St. Martin), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £24. 2s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £577: patron, All Souls College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Hon. S. Waldegrave, 1844: contains 2,290 acres: 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 599: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 689: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,983: poor rates in 1837, £443. The tithe of Hay in Barford and South Newton, the property of the clerical rector, was commuted in 1809.—Hurcotte House.

BARFORTH, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township, formerly called Old Richmond, in the parish of Forcett: 274 miles from London (coach road 243), 12 from Richmond, 9 from Darlington.—Nor. West. Rail. to Darlington, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Darlington, &c., 142 miles.—Money orders issued at Richmond: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—Contains 1,750 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 147: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 169: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,438: poor rates in 1837, £89.

BARFREESTON (or BARSTON), KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Eastry, lathe of St. Augustine: 91 miles from London (coach road 65), 6 from Wingham, 8 from Dover.—Sou. East. Co<sup>n</sup>. Rail. to Canterbury, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through London, 223 miles.—Money orders issued at Dover: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The church is a small building, but is considered to be one of the most curious specimens of Saxon and Norman architecture in the kingdom; it is abundantly adorned with grotesque ornaments, and the southern porch is especially rich in its mouldings.—The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £7. 14s.: pres. net income, £182: patron, St. John's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. L. Spencer, 1847: contains 360 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 125: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 144: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £523: poor rates in 1837, £22.

BARHAM, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Leightonstone, union of Huntingdon: 97 miles from London (coach road 68), 6 from Kimbolton, 10 from Huntingdon.—Nor. West. Rail. through Roade to Thrapston, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Weedon to Thrapston, &c., 91 miles.—Money orders issued at Kimbolton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The parochial charities produce about £7. 10s. a year.—The living, a perpetual curacy not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Spaldwick, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln: pres. net income, £58: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent, J. Bligh, 1826: contains 700 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 107: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 123: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £798: poor rates in 1837, £45. The tithes, the property of the prebends of Long-Stow and Spaldwick, and the vicar, were commuted in 1780.

BARHAM, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kinghamford, lathe of St. Augustine, union of Bridge: 88 miles from London (coach road 63), 7 from Canterbury, 9 from Dover.—Sou. East. Rail. to Canterbury, thence 7 miles: from Derby through London, 220 miles.—Money orders issued at Canterbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The Barham Downs have long been celebrated, not only for their natural beauty, but also for the very numerous traces upon them of ancient encampments, and an immense number of tumuli is everywhere met with.—The living (St. John the Baptist), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Canterbury: pres. net income, £700: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, C. Oxenden, 1846: contains 4,646 acres: 299 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,151: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,220: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,286: poor rates in 1837, £383.—The Canterbury races are held on the Downs in August every year. The course, which is about two miles out and two miles in, is shaped something in the form of a cricket bat, having a severe hill from the distance home.—Broome Park.

BARHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Bosmere and Claydon: 74½ miles from London (coach road 74), 5 from Ipswich, 5 from Needham. — East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Ipswich to Claydon station, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through London to Claydon, &c., 206½ miles. — Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The house of industry for the hundred of Bosmere and Claydon, is included in the return of the parish of Barkham. Its average number of inmates is 450. — The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £12 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £342: patron, J. Longe, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Wm. Kirby, 1797: contains 2,520 acres: 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 576: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 662: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,251: poor rates in 1837, £167.

BARHOLME, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Ness, parts of Kesteven, union of Stamford: 112 miles from London (coach road 94), 4 from Market-Deeping, 6 from Stamford. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Helpstone, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Stamford to Helpstone, &c., 79 miles. — Money orders issued at Market-Deeping: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living (St. Martin), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, with the curacy of Stow annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £147: patron, Oakham and Uppingham Schools: contains 1,230 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 165: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 189: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,352: poor rates in 1837, £43: all the tithes, moduses, and other ecclesiastical incomes from the lordship, the property of the trustees of certain charities, and the vicar, were commuted between the years 1799—1801.

BARKBY, LEICESTER, a parish in the eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Goscote, union of Barrow-upon-Soar: it contains the chapelry of Barkby-Thorpe and the township of North Thurmarston: 107 miles from London (coach road 100), 5 from Leicester, 11 from Melton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Leicester, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 34½ miles. — Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Parochial charities produce about £30 a year. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £250: patron, W. A. Pochin, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. H. Hoare, 1828: contains 2,290 acres: 159 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 849: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 976: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £10,921: poor rates in 1837, £221. — Barkby Hall, the seat of William Pochin, Esq., whose family has for many centuries held a distinguished position in the county of Leicester. His father, whom he succeeded in the family estates in 1831, was high sheriff of the county in 1828. The family are intimately connected, through matrimonial alliance, with the ducal house of Rutland.

BARKBY, LEICESTER, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.): contains 1,020 acres: 106 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 632: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 727: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,681.

BARKBY-THORPE, LEICESTER, a chapelry in the above parish: (which see for access, postal arrangements, &c.): contains 790 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 82: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 94: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,641: poor rates in 1837, £73.

BARKHAM, BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Charlton, union of Wokingham: 38 miles from London (coach road 35), 2½ from Wokingham, 7 from Reading. — Gt. West. Rail. to Twyford station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Oxford, and Reading, to Twyford, &c., 166 miles. — Money orders issued at Wokingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — This is one of those parishes which are entitled to present, in rotation, an inmate to Lucas' Hospital at Wokingham. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Oxford, is valued at £5. 15s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £350: patron, J. St. John, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. St. John: contains 1,450 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 248: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 278: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,423: poor rates in 1837, £98.

BARKING, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Becontree, union of Romford: it comprises the market town and ward of Barking, and the wards of Chadwell, Ilford, and Ripple, and is within the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal Court: 8½ miles from London (coach road 7), 5 from Romford. — East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. to Ilford, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through London, Ilford, &c., 139½ miles. — Money orders issued at Barking: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The town stands on the banks of the river Roding, about two miles above its junction with the Thames, and is supposed to derive its name from the ancient Saxon appellation of barg-ing, 'the fortification in the meadow,' a term which indicates its nearness to some old fortress, the foundation of which may still be traced in the neighbourhood. It first rose into importance about the year 670, at which time a convent was founded here by Erkenwald, bishop of London, for Benedictine nuns, which, for many generations, was presided over by a succession of royal and noble ladies; but in 870, during an irruption of the Danes, the abbey was destroyed, many of the inmates massacred, and the rest dispersed. It remained in ruins for about a century, when it was re-edified, and the revenues returned to it by King Edgar, whose queen, after his decease, became its abbess. The abbess was lady-paramount in all the manors in the half hundred, and held of the king, by an entire barony, an honour which was enjoyed by the superiors of three other convents in the kingdom, viz., those of Wilton, Winchester, and Shaftesbury. Of all the buildings of this one-while stately pile, a square-embattled gateway alone remains, over which is the chapel of the Holy Rood. The arch is pointed, and above it there is a canopied niche with pinnacles. At the general dissolution of the monasteries, the revenues of the abbey were valued at £1,084. 6s. 2d., and the site was afterwards granted by Edward VI. to Lord Clinton. William the Conqueror retired to Barking during the building of the Tower of London, and there received the oaths of fealty from Morcar, Earl of Northumberland, and Edwyn, Earl of Mercia. The market-house, which is chiefly of wood, was erected in the reign of Elizabeth, and the town-hall is over it. In 1641, Sir James Campbell left a donation (for a free school) of £666. 13s. 4d., which was laid out in a rent charge on a manor in Yorkshire; the annual return is about £20 a year. The school was afterwards converted into a workhouse, and the money is now appropriated to the master and mistress. In 1686, certain manies were bequeathed by John Fowke, Esq., for the sustenance of eight boys at Christ's Hospital, two of whom were to be from this parish. Two National schools are supported by voluntary subscriptions, and a few of the children of each sex are clothed as well as taught. There are also two endowed almshouses, one of which contains six tenements and the other four. An Independent church was founded here as early as 1706. The town is lighted with gas. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in fishing, and send vessels of considerable burden to the Dutch and Scotch coasts. On their return the cargo is transhipped into smaller boats, and sent to Billingsgate. There is a wharf at Barking Creek, at which vessels of 80 tons burden can unload, and by the revenue from that the town and neighbourhood are supplied with coal and timber, and other weighty merchandise. Many hundred acres in the neighbourhood of Barking are devoted to the cultivation of potatoes for the London market.---The living (St. Margaret), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, diocese of London. Two chapelries at Ilford and Epping Forest are annexed to the living, which is valued at £19. 18s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £767: patron, All Souls College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Hon. R. Liddell, 1836: contains 10,170 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 8,718: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,023: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £20,366.---Byrons.

BARKING, Essex, a market town in the above parish---(which see for access, &c.): pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,379: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,862: poor rates in 1837, £4,792.---Market day, Saturday. Fairs, Sept. 14, for toys; Oct. 22, for horses.

BARKING, Suffolk, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bosmere and Claydon: this parish contains the town of Needham-Market and the hamlet of Barking: 77½ miles from London (coach road 70), 1 from Needham-Market, 10 from Ipswich.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Needham-Market, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Leicester, Ely, Newmarket, Bury St. Edmunds, to Needham, &c., 179 miles.---Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---A free school here was endowed with £30 a year in 1650.---The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory with the chapelry of Darnsden annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £27. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £840: patron, Earl of Ashburnham: pres. incumbent, F. Steward, 1836: contains 3,010 acres: 386 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,879: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,160: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,709: poor rates in 1837, £321.

BARKISLAND, West Riding, York, a township in the parish of Halifax: 229½ miles from London (coach road 196), 4 from Halifax, 8 from Huddersfield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester and Rochdale to Sowerby Bridge station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Manchester, &c., 97½ miles.---Money orders issued at Halifax: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---A free school was endowed, in 1657, with property, which now produces £40 a year. The inhabitants of Barkisland are chiefly employed in some neighbouring woollen and cotton manufactories.---Contains 2,420 acres: 422 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,633: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,028: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,819: poor rates in 1837, £397: the vicarial tithes of the manor were commuted in 1814.

BARKSTON, Leicestershire, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Framland: 130½ miles from London (coach road 115), 12 from Melton-Mowbray, 4 from Belvoir Castle.---Nor. West. Rail. through Syston to Melton-Mowbray, thence 12½ miles: from Derby to Nottingham, 15½ miles, thence 16 miles.---Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The Grantham and Nottingham Canal passes through the parish.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £7. 5s. 5d.: pres. net income, £114: patron, Duke of Rutland: pres. incumbent, F. G. Burnaby, 1831: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 403: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 463: the tithes, moduses, &c., of this parish and Plungar, were commuted in 1791.

BARKSTONE, Lincoln, a parish in the soke of Grantham, parts of Kesteven: 161 miles from London (coach road 114), 4 from Grantham, 9 from Sleaford.---Nor. West. Rail. to Newark, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Newark, &c., 46 miles.---Money orders issued at Grantham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---There is a small endowed school here, and an almshouse for six persons, with an income of £43 a year.---The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £590: patron, Prebendary of North Grantham: pres. incumbent, H. Cleveland, 1829: contains 2,080 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 413: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 450: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,355: poor rates in 1848, £150.

BARKSTONE-ASH, West Riding, York, a township in the parish of Sherbourne, in the wapentake of the same name: 206 miles from London (coach road 185), 6 from Tadcaster, 5 from Aberford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Chesterfield, and Normanton, to Sherbourne, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 74 miles.---Money orders issued at Tadcaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 304: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 350: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,228.

BARKWAY, Hertford, a parish and formerly a market town in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Edwinstree, a charter for the market having been granted by Henry III.; its use has been discontinued in consequence of the contiguity of Royston, but a fair for pedlery is still held on the 20th July: 52 miles from London (coach road 35), 15 from Hertford, 17 from Cambridge.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Newport, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Bedford, &c., 102 miles, thence 25 miles.---Money orders issued at Hertford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The town is well built and pleasantly situated; it consists principally of one long street. The church is interesting, and contains some curious remains of stained glass. The town is regulated by constables appointed at an annual court-leet. The Independents have had a congregation here since 1783.---The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a vicarage annexed to the rectory of Reed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of Rochester, is valued at £14: having jointly a pres. net income of £512: patrons, Rev. L. V. Harcourt, and Hon. Mrs. V. Harcourt: pres. incumbent, R. S. Batiscombe, 1840: contains 5,060 acres: 172 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,295: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,487: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,886. The tithes, both great and small, were commuted in 1801.

BARKWAY, HERTFORD, a town in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 172 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 986: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,133: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,871.—Fair, 20th July, for pedlery.

BARKWITH, LINCOLN, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Wraggoc, parts of Lindsey: 167 miles from London (coach road 147), 3 from Wragby, 12 from Louth.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Fiskerton station, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln to Fiskerton, &c., 66 miles.—Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £11. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £195: patron, G. F. Heneage, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Robert Ainslie, 1842: contains 990 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 250: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 287: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,155: poor rates in 1837, £39. The tithes, great and small, Easter offerings, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1767.

BARKWITH (WEST), LINCOLN, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Wraggoc, parts of Lindsey: 146 miles from London—(for access and postal arrangements, see preceding article.)—The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 5s.: pres. net income, £144: patron, C. D. Holland, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. H. Wynn: contains 500 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 131: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 151: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £876: poor rates in 1837, £51.

BARLASTON, STAFFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill: 159 miles from London (coach road 145), 4 from Stope, 6 from Newcastle.—Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester and Burton, to Caverswell, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton, &c., 39 miles.—Money orders issued at Stone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The petty sessions for the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill are held here. The Grand Trunk Canal passes through the parish. There is a small endowed school here.—The living (St. John the Baptist), a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £150: patron, Duke of Sutherland: pres. incumbent, Wm. Oliver, 1834: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 591: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 680: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,963: poor rates in 1837, £159.—Barlaston Hall, the seat of Ralph Adderley, Esq., uncle of Charles Bowyer Adderley, Esq., of Hams Hall, in the county of Warwick, who married Julia, eldest daughter of Lord Leigh of Stoneleigh.

BARLAVINGTON (or BARLTON), SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Rotherbridge, rape of Arundel: 78 miles from London (coach road 54), 4½ from Pet-

worth, 12 from Chichester.—Lon. and Brighton Rail. to Arundel station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London to Arundel, &c., 210 miles.—Money orders issued at Petworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £5. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, T. Biddulph, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Ayling, 1832: contains 1,710 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 113: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £767: poor rates in 1837, £136.—Burton Park.

BARLBOROUGH, DERBYSHIRE, a parish and village in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Scarsdale: 161 miles from London (coach road 150), 8 from Chesterfield, 7 from Worksop.—Nor. West. Rail. to Chesterfield, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 32 miles.—Money orders issued at Chesterfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—There is a well-endowed hospital here for six poor persons, and the educational establishments of the village are abundant.—The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £10. 1s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £750: patron, W. H. de Rodes, Esq.: pres. incumbent, M. Stappilton, 1827: contains 2,229 acres: 136 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 804: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 9,215: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,981: poor rates in 1837, £398.

BARLEBY (or BARLEY), EAST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Hemingbrough: 238 miles from London (coach road 183), 2 from Selby, 13 from York.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Hull to Selby, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton to Selby, &c., 84 miles.—Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—The living (Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy not in charge, united to the rectory of Hemingbrough: pres. net income, £65: patron, Vicar of Hemingbrough: pres. incumbent, Edward Dean, 1848: contains 1,310 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 387: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 445: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,718: poor rates in 1837, £140.

BARLESTON (or BARLSTON), LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Market-Bosworth: 111 miles from London (coach road 109), 3 from Market-Bosworth, 12 from Leicester.—Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester to Desford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 38 miles.—Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The living (St. Peter), a curacy not in charge, attached to the rectory of Market-Bosworth: contains 810 acres: 128 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 580: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 666: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,746: poor rates in 1837, £302.

BARLEY, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Edwinstree: 58½ miles from London (coach road 37), 3½ from Royston, 14 from Cambridge.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Chesterford, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Bletchley to Bedford, 102 miles, thence 23 miles.—Money orders issued at Royston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The living (St. Margaret), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of London, is valued at £26. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £631: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent,

Samuel Lee, 1838: contains 2,700 acres: 137 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 792: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 900: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,312: poor rates in 1837, £449.

BARLEY, LANCASTER, a joint township with Whitley-Booths, in Pendle forest, parish of Whalley, Blackburn: 228 miles from London (coach road 217), 5 from Colne, 5 from Clitheroe. Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester to Colne, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Manchester, &c., 119 miles. Money orders issued at Colne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. Contains 2,370 acres: 125 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,252: poor rates in 1837, £261.

BARLEY, YORKSHIRE. See BARLOW.

BARLEYTHORPE, RUTLAND, a chapelry in the parish of Oakham-Deansfield: 117 miles from London (coach road 96), 2 from Oakham, 9 from Melton. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Oakham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Lyston to Oakham, 53 miles. Money orders issued at Oakham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The manor was the property of the abbot and convent of Westminster, from the time of Edward the Confessor till the dissolution; and, in 1559, was granted to the Dean and Chapter of St. Peter's, Westminster, to whom it now belongs. The living, a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Oakham. The tithes were commuted in 1772.

BARLINCH (OR BARLINK), SOMERSET, in the parish of Brompton-Regis, hun<sup>d</sup> of Williton and Freemanners. Bishop Tanner says that William de Say, in the time of Henry II., founded a priory of Black canons here. At the time of the dissolution, it had eight religious, who were endowed with £98. 18s. 4d. per annum. The house was granted, in the 30th year of Henry VIII., to Sir J. Wallop.

BARLING, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Rochford: 49½ miles from London (coach road 45), 5 from Prittlewell, 6 from Southend. East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Chelmsford, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through London to Chelmsford, &c., 181½ miles. Money orders issued at Rochford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living (All Saints), a vicarage, a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £18: pres. net income, £230: pres. incumbent, J. T. Bennett, 1834: contains 1,240 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 326: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 375: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,302: poor rates in 1837, £251.

BARLINGS, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Lawress, parts of Lindsey, union and county of Lincoln, on the road to Wragby, and near a small stream, to which it gives name: it includes part of the hamlet of Langworth, which lies about a mile to the north: 161 miles from London (coach road 140), 7 from Lincoln, 4 from Wragby. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Fiskerton station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln to Fiskerton, &c., 60 miles. Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. In speaking of this place, Tanner says—There was an abbey of Premonstratensian canons, dedicated to St. Mary, founded A.D. 1154. It was situated at the place called Barling-Grange, but Ralph de Haya, having given these religious a place called Oxeney, in another part of this town, the abbey was removed thither. Hence it was sometimes called the Abbey of Oxeney, or de Oxeniaco, but generally Barlings. The revenue of this house was rated, in the 26th of Henry VIII., at £307. 16s. 6d. The site was granted to Charles, Duke of Suffolk. Dr. Mackerel was the last prior of this house, who, with the vicar of Louth and others, having headed an insurrection against the royal authority, in 1537, was taken and executed at Tyburn. A few mutilated pillars are all that remain of the building: but the chartulary of the abbey is preserved in the Cottonian library. The living (St. Edward), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £55: patron, T. T. Drake, and C. Turner, Esqs.: pres. incumbent, T. Sandon, 1844: contains 2,630 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 352: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 404: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,926: poor rates in 1837, £92.

BARLOW (OF BARLEY), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Brayton: 220 miles from London (coach road 179), 3 from Selby, 6 from Snaith. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Normanton to Selby, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, &c., 88 miles. Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Pres. net income, £30: patron, G. H. Thompson: pres. incumbent, R. Thompson, 1826: contains 2,150 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 284: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 326: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,807: poor rates in 1837, £82.

BARLOW (GREAT), DERBY, a township in the parish of Staveley, hun<sup>d</sup> of Scarsdale: 157 miles from London (coach road 154), 4 from Chesterfield, 10 from Sheffield. Nor. West. Rail. to Chesterfield, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 29 miles. Money orders issued at Chesterfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. There are several small endowments, and a library for the poor here. The parish also partakes in the charity of the Rev. Francis Gisborne at Bakewell. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £95: patron, Rector of Staveley: pres. incumbent, C. Smith, 1833: contains 1,440 acres: 107 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 627: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 721: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,206: poor rates in 1837, £195. The great and small tithes of Great and Little Barlow were commuted in 1817.

BARLOW (LITTLE), DERBYSHIRE.—(For access, &c., see above.) Contains 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 66: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 76: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £328: poor rates in 1837, £27.

BARMBY-ON-THE-MARSH, EAST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Howden, near the junction of the rivers Ouse and Derwent: 237 miles from London (coach road 180), 5 from Howden, 6 from Selby. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Hull, thence by rail. to Cliff station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and Selby to Cliff, &c., 97 miles. Money orders issued at Howden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of sacking. There are two mineral springs here—one sulphurous, the other living (St. Mary Magdalen), a vicarage annexed to the rectory of Reed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of Rochester, is valued at £14: having jointly a pres. net income of £512: patrons, Rev. L. V. Harcourt, and Hon. Mrs. V. Harcourt: pres. incumbent, R. S. Batiscombe, 1840: contains 5,060 acres: 172 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,295: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,487: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,886. The tithes, both great and small, were commuted in 1801.

BARKWAY, HERTFORD, a town in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 172 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 986: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,133: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,871.—Fair, 20th July, for pedlery.

BARKWITH, LINCOLN, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Wraggöe, parts of Lindsey: 167 miles from London (coach road 147), 3 from Wragby, 12 from Louth.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Fiskerton station, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln to Fiskerton, &c., 66 miles.—Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £11. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £195: patron, G. F. Heneage, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Robert Ainslie, 1842: contains 990 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 250: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 287: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,155: poor rates in 1837, £39. The tithes, great and small, Easter offerings, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1767.

BARKWITH (WEST), LINCOLN, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Wraggöe, parts of Lindsey: 146 miles from London—(for access and postal arrangements, see preceding article.)—The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 5s.: pres. net income, £144: patron, C. D. Holland, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. H. Wynn: contains 500 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 131: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 151: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £876: poor rates in 1837, £51.

BARLASTON, STAFFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Firehill: 159 miles from London (coach road 145), 4 from Stope, 6 from Newcastle.—Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester and Burton, to Caverswell, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton, &c., 39 miles.—Money orders issued at Stone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The petty sessions for the hun<sup>d</sup> of Firehill are held here. The Grand Trunk Canal passes through the parish. There is a small endowed school here.—The living (St. John the Baptist), a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £150: patron, Duke of Sutherland: pres. incumbent, Wm. Oliver, 1834: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 591: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 680: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,963: poor rates in 1837, £159.—Barlaston Hall, the seat of Ralph Adderley, Esq., uncle of Charles Bowyer Adderley, Esq., of Hams Hall, in the county of Warwick, who married Julia, eldest daughter of Lord Leigh of Stoneleigh.

BARLAVINGTON (or BARLTON), SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Rotherbridge, rape of Arundel: 78 miles from London (coach road 54), 4½ from Pet-

worth, 12 from Chichester.—Lon. and Brighton Rail. to Arundel station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London to Arundel, &c., 210 miles.—Money orders issued at Petworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £5. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, T. Biddulph, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Ayling, 1832: contains 1,710 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 113: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £767: poor rates in 1837, £136.—Burton Park.

BARLBOROUGH, DERBYSHIRE, a parish and village in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Scarsdale: 161 miles from London (coach road 150), 8 from Chesterfield, 7 from Worksop.—Nor. West. Rail. to Chesterfield, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 32 miles.—Money orders issued at Chesterfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—There is a well-endowed hospital here for six poor persons, and the educational establishments of the village are abundant.—The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £10. 1s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £750: patron, W. H. de Rodes, Esq.: pres. incumbent, M. Stappylton, 1827: contains 2,229 acres: 136 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 804: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 9,215: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,981: poor rates in 1837, £398.

BARLEBY (or BARLEY), EAST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Hemingbrough: 238 miles from London (coach road 183), 2 from Selby, 13 from York.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Hull to Selby, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton to Selby, &c., 84 miles.—Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—The living (Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy not in charge, united to the rectory of Hemingbrough: pres. net income, £65: patron, Vicar of Hemingbrough: pres. incumbent, Edward Dean, 1848: contains 1,310 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 387: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 445: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,718: poor rates in 1837, £140.

BARLESTON (or BARLSTON), LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Market-Bosworth: 111 miles from London (coach road 109), 3 from Market-Bosworth, 12 from Leicester.—Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester to Desford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 38 miles.—Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The living (St. Peter), a curacy not in charge, attached to the rectory of Market-Bosworth: contains 810 acres: 128 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 580: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 666: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,746: poor rates in 1837, £302.

BARLEY, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Edwinstree: 58½ miles from London (coach road 37), 3½ from Royston, 14 from Cambridge.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Chesterford, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Bletchley to Bedford, 102 miles, thence 23 miles.—Money orders issued at Royston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The living (St. Margaret), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of London, is valued at £26. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £631: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent,

Samuel Lee, 1838: contains 2,700 acres: 137 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 792: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 900: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,312: poor rates in 1837, £449.

BARLEY, LANCASTER, a joint township with Whitley-Booths, in Pendle forest, parish of Whalley, Blackburn: 228 miles from London (coach road 217), 5 from Colne, 5 from Clitheroe.---Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester to Colne, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crews, Manchester, &c., 119 miles.---Money orders issued at Colne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---Contains 2,370 acres: 125 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,252: poor rates in 1837, £261.

BARLEY, YORKSHIRE. See BARLOW.

BARLEYTHORPE, RUTLAND, a chapelry in the parish of Oakham-Deansfield: 117 miles from London (coach road 96), 2 from Oakham, 9 from Melton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Oakham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Lyston to Oakham, 53 miles.---Money orders issued at Oakham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The manor was the property of the abbot and convent of Westminster, from the time of Edward the Confessor till the dissolution; and, in 1559, was granted to the Dean and Chapter of St. Peter's, Westminster, to whom it now belongs.---The living, a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Oakham. The tithes were commuted in 1772.

BARLINC (or BARLINK), SOMERSET, in the parish of Brompton-Regis, hun<sup>d</sup> of Williton and Freemanners.---Bishop Tanner says that William de Say, in the time of Henry II., founded a priory of Black canons here. At the time of the dissolution, it had eight religious, who were endowed with £98. 18s. 4d. per annum. The house was granted, in the 30th year of Henry VIII., to Sir J. Wallop.

BARLING, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Rochford: 49½ miles from London (coach road 45), 5 from Prittlewell, 6 from Southend.---East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Chelmsford, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through London to Chelmsford, &c., 181½ miles.---Money orders issued at Rochford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (All Saints), a vicarage, a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £18: pres. net income, £230: pres. incumbent, J. T. Bennett, 1834: contains 1,240 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 326: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 375: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,302: poor rates in 1837, £251.

BARLINGS, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Lawress, parts of Lindsey, union and county of Lincoln, on the road to Wragby, and near a small stream, to which it gives name: it includes part of the hamlet of Langworth, which lies about a mile to the north: 161 miles from London (coach road 140), 7 from Lincoln, 4 from Wragby.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Fiskerton station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln to Fiskerton, &c., 60 miles.---Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---In speaking of this place, Tanner says—There was an abbey of Premontastensian canons, dedicated to St. Mary, founded A.D. 1154. It was situated at the place called Barling-Grange, but Ralph de Haya, having given these religious a place called Oxenev, in another part of this town, the abbey was removed thither. Hence it was sometimes called the Abbey of Oxenev, or de Oxeniaco, but generally Barlings. The revenue of this house was rated, in the 26th of Henry VIII., at £307. 16s. 6d. The site was granted to Charles, Duke of Suffolk. Dr. Mackerel was the last prior of this house, who, with the vicar of Louth and others, having headed an insurrection against the royal authority, in 1537, was taken and executed at Tyburn. A few mutilated pillars are all that remain of the building; but the chartulary of the abbey is preserved in the Cottonian library.---The living (St. Edward), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £55: patron, T. T. Drake, and C. Turnor, Esqs.: pres. incumbent, T. Sandon, 1844: contains 2,630 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 352: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 404: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,926: poor rates in 1837, £92.

BARLOW (or BARLEY), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Brayton: 220 miles from London (coach road 179), 3 from Selby, 6 from Snaith.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Normanton to Selby, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, &c., 88 miles.---Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Pres. net income, £30: patron, G. H. Thompson: pres. incumbent, R. Thompson, 1826: contains 2,150 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 284: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 326: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,807: poor rates in 1837, £82.

BARLOW (GREAT), DERBY, a township in the parish of Staveley, hun<sup>d</sup> of Scarsdale: 157 miles from London (coach road 154), 4 from Chesterfield, 10 from Sheffield.---Nor. West. Rail. to Chesterfield, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 29 miles.---Money orders issued at Chesterfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There are several small endowments, and a library for the poor here. The parish also partakes in the charity of the Rev. Francis Gisborne at Bakewell.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £95: patron, Rector of Staveley: pres. incumbent, C. Smith, 1833: contains 1,440 acres: 107 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 627: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 721: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,206: poor rates in 1837, £195. The great and small tithes of Great and Little Barlow were commuted in 1817.

BARLOW (LITTLE), DERBYSHIRE.—(For access, &c., see above.)---Contains 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 66: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 76: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £328: poor rates in 1837, £27.

BARMBY-ON-THE-MARSH, EAST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Howden, near the junction of the rivers Ouse and Derwent: 237 miles from London (coach road 180), 5 from Howden, 6 from Selby.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Hull, thence by rail. to Cliff station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and Selby to Cliff, &c., 97 miles.---Money orders issued at Howden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of sacking. There are two mineral springs here—one sulphurous, the other chalybeate.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the East Riding, diocese of York, in the jurisdiction of the peculiar court of Howdenshire, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £30: patron, Vicar of Howden: contains 1,440 acres: 107 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 506: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 582: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,206: poor rates in 1837, £195.

BARMBY-UPON-DON (or BARNBY-DUN), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish and township in the southern division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill: this parish contains the townships of Thorpe-in-Balne, on the western bank of the Don, and Barmby-upon-Don, on the eastern bank, also part of the township of Bramwith: 193 miles from London (coach road 168), 5 from Doncaster, 5 from Thorne.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Chesterfield to Swindon, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 61 miles.---Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The produce of certain allotments made on the enclosure of the common lands of the parish, is distributed among the poor. In 1731, Frances, countess of Sutherland, bequeathed property which brings in about £26 a year, for the sustenance of four poor women.---The living (St. Peter), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £9. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £105: patron, Lord Rendlesham: pres. incumbent, P. Watman, 1841: contains 3,670 acres: 119 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 629: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 723: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,196: poor rates in 1837, £337. The tithes were commuted in 1803.

BARMBY-UPON-DON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish---(which see for access, &c.)---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 506: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 582.

BARMBY-ON-THE-MOOR, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish and township within the liberty of St. Peter, York, union of Pocklington, in the Wilton-beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill: 234 miles from London (coach road 210), 2 from Pocklington, 11 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. to York, thence by rail to Pocklington station: from Derby, through York, &c., 102 miles.---Money orders issued at Pocklington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The church is about to be rebuilt. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists each have a chapel here.---The living (St. Katherine), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, a peculiar of the Dean of York, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £50: patron, Dean of York: pres. incumbent, R. Taylor, 1840: contains 2,290 acres: 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 475: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 546: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,517: poor rates in 1837, £204. The tithes, the property of the dean of York and the curate, were commuted in 1777.---Fair, Thursday preceding St. Peter's day.

BARMELE, FLINT, a township in the parish of Hawarden, North Wales: 186 miles from London (coach road 196), 7 from Chester, 8 from Flint.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Queen's Ferry, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 89½ miles.---Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 152.

BARMERE (or BARMER), NORFOLK, an extra-parochial liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gallow: 147 miles from London (coach road 115), 6 from Burnham, 7 from Fakenham.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Swaffham, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough and Lynn, to Swaffham, &c., 154 miles.---Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £5: patron, T. Kearslake, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. J. Senkler, 1829: contains 890 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 61: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 70: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,278: poor rates in 1837, £108.---Barmer House.

BARMING (EAST), KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Maidstone, lathe of Aylesford: 59 miles from London (coach road 33), 3 from Maidstone, 11 from Tonbridge.---Sou. East. Rail. to Maidstone, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, 191 miles.---Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The church is a neat edifice, and the churchyard is a delightfully tranquil spot, surrounded by noble elms. The parish is celebrated for its hop and fruit plantations.---The living (St. Margaret), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £12. 17s. 1d.: pres. net income, £598: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. Browne, 1847: contains 1,210 acres: 102 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 584: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 671: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,117: poor rates in 1837, £134.

BARMING (WEST), KENT. See NETTELESTED.

BARMOOR, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Lowick---(which see for returns, access, &c.)---The English general lodged at Bar Moor wood the night before the battle of Flodden. There is an annual meeting held here by the leading agriculturists of the neighbourhood.---Bar Moor Castle, the seat of Frank Sitwell, Esq., is a noble structure, erected, or rather re-erected, at the beginning of the present century, on the site of an ancient stronghold belonging to the Muschampes. The family of the Sitwells is one of the most ancient in the northern counties, deriving their descent through Seawald or Seadwald, from Ida, Saxon king of Northumberland. The eventual heiress of the Sitwells, Catherine, daughter of William Sitwell, married, early in the last century, Francis Hurt, Esq. of Sheffield, whose son assumed the surname and arms of Sitwell. The present proprietor, who succeeded to the property in 1813, is the grandson of that gentleman.

BARMOUTH (or ABERMAW), MERIONETH, a town in the parish of Llanaber, North Wales, belonging to the parish of Corwen, hun<sup>d</sup> of Edernion---(for access, &c., see CORWEN): 253 miles from London (coach road 222), 10 from Dolgelly.---Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Chick, thence 50 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, Chester, &c., 153 miles.---By the natives the place is most generally called Barmaw. Its true name of Abermaw has been adopted from its situation at the mouth of the river Maw, or Mawddach, more generally known by the name of Afon, or Afon-Vawr, which is navigable by small boats nearly as far as Dolgelly. The town stands on the side of a steep bank, under a lofty rock, so that all the houses are built in rows or terraces one above another, approached by steps cut in the side of the cliff, and in such ranges that, according to Bingby, an inhabitant of one of the upper tiers, while standing at his door, can look down the chimney of his neighbour below. The distant view of the place is therefore, in the extreme, picturesque. Barmouth is much frequented in the summer for sea-bathing; the sands, beside, of the Maw forming, at low water, a delightful promenade, from which there are beautiful views of the distant mountains. This is the only seaport in the county; and though the entrance to the harbour is bad, owing to the accumulation of sand, there is a considerable trade carried on in flannels and hosiery, more than a hundred sloops belonging to the port. There are Calvinistic-Methodist and Independent chapels here.---Market day, Friday. Fairs, October 7, November 21.

BARMPTON, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Haughton-le-Skerne: 267 miles from London (coach road 244), 3 from Darlington, 9 from Stockton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and York to Darlington, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 135 miles.---Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Contains 1,090 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 103: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 118: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,901: poor rates in 1837, £93.

BARMSTON, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Washington: 292 miles from London (coach road 269), 5 from Sunderland, 10 from Durham.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, York, and Darlington, to Barmston station: from Derby, through York, &c., 160 miles.---Money orders issued at Sunderland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 960 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 83: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 95: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £828: poor rates in 1837, £44.

BARMSTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Holderness, union of Bridlington: 226 miles from London (coach road 200), 6 from Bridlington, 12 from Driffield.---Nor. and East. Rail. through New Holland and Hull, to Driffield, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Normanton to Driffield, &c., 127 miles.---Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 12 noon.---The church is an interesting specimen of the style of the fourteenth century, and contains a fine monument of Sir Martin le Mare. Sir Griffith Boynton, in 1726, founded an hospital for four poor men.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of the East Riding, diocese of York, is valued at £13. 11s. 10d.: pres. net income, £822: patron, Sir H. Boynton, Bart.: pres. incumbent, J. W. Bower, 1829: contains 2,180 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 254: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 292: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,662: poor rates in 1837, £160. The tithes were commuted in 1819.

BARNACLE, WARWICK, a hamlet in the parish of Bulkington---(which see for returns, access, &c.): 104 miles from London (coach road 95), 7 from Coventry, 12 from Rugby.---Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby, thence 12 miles: from Derby to Rugby, &c., 62 miles.

BARNACK, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, a parish in the liberty of Peterborough: 112½ miles from London (coach road 88), 4 from Stamford, 11 from Peterborough.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Eaton station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Stamford, to Eaton, &c., 74 miles.---Money orders issued at Stamford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---There are large stone quarries in the parish.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £28 10s.: pres. net income, £1,025: patron, Bishop of Peterborough: pres. incumbent, H. C. Marsh, 1832: contains 4,440 acres: 103 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 860: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 988: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,692: poor rates in 1837, £113. The great and small tithes of Barnack, with Pilsgate, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1800.

BARNACRE-WITH-BONDS, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Garstang: 230½ miles from London (coach road 232), 2 from Garstang, 12 from Lancaster.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Preston to Garstang, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Newton, &c., 122 miles.---Money orders issued at Garstang: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Contains 3,880 acres: 100 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 597: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 687: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,484: poor rates in 1837, £244.

BARNARD-CASTLE, DURHAM, (called as frequently CASTLE-BARNARD), a market town and chapelry in the parish of Gainford, south-western division of the ward of Darlington, union of Teesdale: 283 miles from London (coach road 246), 17 from Darlington.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and York to Richmond, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 151 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---The town derives its name from Bernard, grandfather of John Baliol, King of Scotland, who erected a large castle here, which was for some time the residence of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, before his usurpation of the throne. Lambard, in his quaint but pleasing style, in speaking of the place, says---Towards the ende of Kinge Jhon's reign, what tyme Lewes of France molested this realme, Alexander Kinge of Scotlande came to Dover, and did to Lewes the homage that of right he ought to Jhon, and as he passed by the Castle-Barnard with his compunie (which castle then stood in the precinct of Halynwerkfolk, in the custodie of Hugh Baliol), he surveid it about, to espie whether it were assailable on anie side, and while he was thus occupied, one within discharged a cross-bowce, and strake Eustace Vessey (which had married his syster) on the forehead with such myghte, that he felle dead on the ground. Whereof the kinge and all his nobles conceived great sorrowe, but wear not able to mend it. On Baliol breaking off his connection with Edward I., the estates of the castle and manor were importunately claimed by Beke, then bishop of Durham, but the king bestowed them upon the Earl of Warwick. During the time of Elizabeth they belonged to the Earl of Westmoreland; on the breaking out of whose rebellion, the castle was garrisoned for the Queen by Sir George Bowes, and the property consequently reverted to the crown, but was subsequently purchased, together with the houses and parish lands, by an ancestor of the Duke of Cleveland, and they are now the property of the head of that noble house. The town, which consists of one long street nearly a mile in length, intersected by smaller streets, is situated on the south side of an abrupt eminence on the banks of the river Tees, over which there is a bridge with two pointed arches, built about 1596. The streets are well paved and lighted with gas, and the neighbourhood of the town is particularly agreeable, from the various and romantic beauty of the scenery, especially along the course of the Tees. The chapel is an ancient cruciform structure, with a detached tower. Bishop Tanner says that—Richard Duke of Gloucester obtained license in the 17th of Edward IV. to found a college in the castle here, for a dean and twelve secular priests, two clerks and six choristers, to the honour of Christ Jesus, the Virgin Mary, St. Margaret and St. Ninian, and to purchase lands, &c., not exceeding the value of four hundred marks, but I met with no further account of it. Here certainly was an hospital of St. John, valued, in the 26th of Henry VIII., at £5. 15s. 4d. It seems to be yet in being, and the mastership to be in the gift of the lord chancellor of Britain. In Hutchinson's History of Durham, it is asserted that St. John's Hospital was founded in 1229, by John Baliol of Scotland, who was born at Barnard-Castle. The keeper of it is still appointed by the lord chancellor, who derives his emolument from fines in granting leases for lives; but the charity is a comparative trifle, being, beside the support of two old women who both live in one room, an annual sum of £75. 8s. 6d., arising out of the sale of waste lands, which is divided among seventeen poor men. There are, besides, several minor charities in the town. Hats, carpets, and white leather breeches are made here, and there are several mills on the banks of the Tees for spinning thread. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham, is valued at £30. 9s.: pres. net income, £224: patron, Vicar of Gainford: pres. incumbent, G. Dugard, 1847: contains 3,810 acres: 513 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,452: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,119: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,310: poor rates in 1837, £1,300. Market day, Wednesday. Fairs, Easter-Monday, Wednesday in Whitsun-week, and St. Magdalen's day. Bankers, National Provincial Bank of England—draw on London and Westminster Bank; Backhouse & Co.—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.—Inns: King's Head, Rose and Crown, and Waterloo.

BARNARDISTON, (corruptedly BANSON), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Risbridge: 77½ miles from London (coach road 59), 4 from Clare, 12 from Newmarket. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Newmarket, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Ely, and Cambridge, to Newmarket, &c., 168 miles. Money orders issued at Clare: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £191: patron, Rev. Valentine Ellis: pres. incumbent, Valentine Ellis, 1801: contains 1,520 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 207: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 238: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,094: poor rates in 1837, £118.

BARNBOW, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Barwick-in-Elmet—(which see for returns, access, &c.): 190 miles from London, 6 from Leeds, 9 from Tadcaster.

BARNBROUGH, (BARNBURGH, or BARNBOROUGH), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill, union of Doncaster: 186 miles from London (coach road 167), 8 from Rotherham, 7 from Doncaster. Nor. West. Rail. to Rotherham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, Rotherham, &c., 54 miles. Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The church, a structure of the 14th century, contains some ancient monuments. Mr. Allen, in speaking of this village, says—It is remarkable for a tradition relative to a singular and fatal contest between a man and a wild cat. The inhabitants say that the contest began in a neighbouring wood, and that it was continued from thence into the porch of the church, where it ended fatally to both the combatants, as each there expired of the wounds received in the conflict. A rude representation in the church commemorates the event, and, as in similar traditions, the accidentally natural red tinge of some of the stones has been construed into bloody stains, which all the properties of soap and water have not been able to efface. The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £23: patron, Southwell College Church: pres. incumbent, T. C. Percival, 1848: contains 1,770 acres: 108 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 508: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 584: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,423: poor rates in 1837, £175.

BARNBY, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Mutford and Lothingland: 152 miles from London (coach road 111), 4 from Beccles, 3 from Lowestoft. Nor. and East Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Lowestoft, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, to Norwich, &c., 181 miles. Money orders issued at Beccles: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, united to the rectory of Wheatacre, and vicarage of Mutford, having jointly a pres. net income of £460: patron, Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, W. Okes, 1832: contains 1,390 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 296: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 341: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,177: poor rates in 1837, £57.

BARNBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Lythe: 280 miles from London (coach road 238), 5 from Whitby, 23 from Scarborough: Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and York, to Whitby, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 148 miles. Money orders issued at Whitby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 1½ p.m. Contains 1,400 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 262: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 301: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,772: poor rates in 1837, £153.

BARNBY-UPON-DON. See BARNBY, YORK.

BARNBY-MOOR (anciently BARNBY-ON-THE-MOOR), NORFOLK, a township in the parish of Blyth—(which see for access, &c.): 148 miles from London, 3 from East Retford, 5 from Bawtry. Money orders issued at Retford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Contains 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 236: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 271: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,189. Tithes commuted in 1807.

BARNBY-IN-THE-WILLOWS, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the southern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Newark: 151 miles from London (coach road 124), 4 from Newark, 16 from Lincoln.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham, to Newark, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Newark, &c., 37 miles.---Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The village derives its name (according to the old topographers) from the circumstance of its standing on the banks of the river Feedick, where the marshy ground abounds with willows.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Nottingham, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 9s. 9d.: pres. net income, £184; patron, Southwell College Church: pres. incumbent, J. Footitt, 1822: contains 1,690 acres: 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 266: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 305: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,980: poor rates in 1837, £141.

BARNES, SURREY, a parish and village in the western division of Brixton, union of Richmond: 5 miles from London, 6 from Kingston.---Money orders issued at Hammersmith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The church is an ancient building, remarkable now for a tablet to the memory of Edward Rose, a London merchant, who died in 1653, and left £20 a year to the poor of the parish, on condition that his monument should be kept in repair, and have rose bushes trained around. Barnes Common comprises about 500 acres, which are generally covered by the Thames at spring tides.---The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Canterbury, is valued at £9. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £375: patron, Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's: pres. incumbent, R. E. Copleston, 1840: contains 820 acres: 217 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,461: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,680: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £8,433: poor rates in 1837, £649.

BARN-ELMS (or BARNES-ELMS), SURREY, a hamlet in the above parish—(which see for returns, &c.)---The hamlet consists of only two houses, and derives its name from being surrounded by majestic elms. One of the houses, called Queen Elizabeth's Dairy, was formerly the property of Sir Francis Walsingham, who, in 1589, entertained his royal mistress and her court here. The house afterwards became the property of the celebrated bookseller, Jacob Tonson, who erected a large room for the entertainment of the Kit-Kat Club; portraits of the several members of which, painted by Sir Godfrey Kneller, adorned its walls.

BARNESLEY (or BARNSELEY), WEST RIDING, YORK, a market town and chapelry in the parish of Silkstone: 185½ miles from London (coach road 172), 39 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. to station: from Derby, 53½ miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.---The town of Barnesley presents one of those examples of which the instances have of late years been advantageously numerous for the country, of a small place growing, from few inhabitants and an insignificant position, to one of importance with a numerous population. About 1800, the number of the inhabitants was 4,000, now it is more than 14,000; and yet Barnesley is no new place, for we find it mentioned in Domesday-book under the Saxon appellation of Barnesleye, some time after that called Bleak-Barnesley, and otherwise and later, Black-Barnesley; the former epithet having been applied to it, no doubt, from the circumstance of its being situated on the side of a rather steep and extensive hill; and the latter from the number of manufacturing chimneys which pour out their smoke upon the town and its neighbourhood. Barnesley is well built, and though there are a number of narrow streets, it is a respectable and cheerful place. There have been a variety of manufactories carried on in the place, comprising glass and wire-drawing; but both, especially the latter, have declined, and the principal business now consists of yarn-spinning, and the weaving of linen, damasks, and drills, for which it is becoming somewhat famous. The Dearne and Dove Canal passes close by the town, and the Calder Canal gives an easy goods access to Wakefield. There are several important iron forges in the town, which find a ready supply of fuel in the coal mines in the neighbourhood, and has, moreover, access to the Silkstone bed, one of the best and most extensive in the country. The church, which is a chapel-of-ease to Silkstone, is a spacious and convenient structure; and, in 1822, an additional chapel was erected in the Gothic style, under the authority of the parliamentary commissioners, for the accommodation of 1,250 hearers, at an expense of about £6,000. The Independents, the Wesleyan, Primitive, and New Connexion Methodists, and the Society of Friends, all have chapels here; and there is also a Roman Catholic chapel. There are two schools with endowments, one of £45 a year, and the other of £18 a year: the other educational institutions are in accordance with the requisition of a busy and enlightened community. The houses of the town are generally built of stone supplied from the quarries of the hill on which it stands, or from those close at hand. There is a spacious market-place, and the streets are well paved and lighted with gas. The petty sessions for the wapentake of Staincross are held here; and there is a county court for the recovery of small debts. The Duke of Leeds is lord of the manor, and the constables and other petty officers are appointed at his annual court-leet. About a mile from the town there are the remains of the Cluniac priory of Monk-Breton, founded by Adam Fitz-Swain early in the reign of Henry II., the revenues of which, at the dissolution, amounted to £323. 8s. 2d.---The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of York, is valued at £18. 18s.: pres. net income, £225: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, R. Willan, 1847: contains 4,000 acres: 2,031 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 12,310: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 14,156: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £15,029: poor rates in 1837, £1,430: tithes commuted in 1777.---Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs, last Wednesday in February, May 13, Oct. 11 and 19.---Bankers, Barnesley Banking Company—draw on Barnett, Hoares, and Co.; Wakefield and Barnesley Union—draw on Glyn, Halifax, and Co.---Inns: Royal Hotel, Coach and Horses, and King's Head.

BARNESLEY, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Brightwell's Barrow, union of Cirencester: 99

miles from London (coach road 86), 4 from Cirencester, 13 from Burford. — Gt. West. Rail. to Cirencester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Stonehouse to Cirencester, &c., 116 miles. — Money orders issued at Cirencester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Several small charities in this parish produce about £18 a year. — The living, a rectory in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £13. 15s. 5d.: pres. net income, £310: patron, Sir J. Musgrave: pres. incumbent, G. E. Howman, 1841: contains 2,050 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 305: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 320: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,578: poor rates in 1837, £169. — Barnesley Park, the residence of Sir James Musgrave, Bart., of Hayton, the head of a branch of the ancient family of Musgraves of Edenhall, who trace their direct descent from Nicholas Musgrave, Esq., who, about the time of Henry VI., married Margaret, daughter and heiress of William Covill, Esq. of Hayton Castle, in Cumberland, and thereby acquired that estate. The fifth in descent from Nicholas Musgrave, Edward Musgrave, Esq., was created a baronet of Nova Scotia in 1638, and married a daughter of Sir Richard Graham of Netherby. He was an ardent supporter of Charles I. during the civil war, going to the extent of alienating estates worth £2,000 a year, in order to raise a regiment for the king. He was present also at the battle of Worcester; and when the prince, in that abortive attempt to gain the crown, had his horse killed under him, Sir Edward Musgrave dismounted, and gave his own for the prince to flee upon. He himself escaped into Scotland, where he was for some time protected by the Duke of Gordon; but Cromwell instituting a special pursuit, he fled to the Isle of Man, where he shortly afterwards died. Sir James, the present baronet, succeeded to the title and estates in 1814.

BARNET-CHIPPING (or BERGNET-CHIPPING, or HIGH-BARNET, but most commonly CHIPPING-BARNET), HERTS, a market town and parish, East Barnet, union of Barnet, liberty of St. Albans: 25½ miles from London (coach road 11), 10 from St. Albans. — Nor. West. Rail. to Watford, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nor. West. Rail. to Watford, &c., 125½ miles. — Money orders issued at Barnet: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The town received its appellation of "Chipping," or market, from the circumstance of Henry II. having granted a charter to the monks of St. Albans for a market. It is also called High-Barnet, from its situation upon a hill, and consists chiefly of one principal street, of almost a mile in length, with short thoroughfares opening from it. Barnet, though a small town, has long been celebrated from its being about the last market town on the great north road to London; but it is also celebrated for the large market held here for cattle and pigs, and for its annual horse fair, at which it not unfrequently happens, that upwards of 40,000 cattle, and more than 1,000 horses change owners. The church is a square-embattled structure, erected about 1400 by John Moot, then abbot of St. Albans. A grammar-school was founded here in 1753 by Queen Elizabeth, which has since been enriched by the benefactions of various individuals. There are almshouses, generally called

Jesus Hospital, and other almshouses richly endowed. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a curacy not in charge, annexed to the rectory of East Barnet, is valued at £22. 2s. 8½d., having jointly a pres. net income of £1,042: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, T. H. Elwyn, 1827: contains 1,440 acres: 364 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,485: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,857: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,727: poor rates in 1837, £637. — Market day, Monday. Fairs, 8th, 9th, and 19th of April, cattle; 4th, 5th, and 6th of September, cattle. — Inns: Red Lion, New Commercial, Salisbury Arms. — Durham Park; Arckley Hall.

BARNET-EAST, HERTFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Cashio, liberty of St. Albans, union of Barnet—(which see for access, &c.): 10 miles from London, 5 from Enfield. — Money orders issued at Barnet: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The church is an ancient structure, and formerly belonged to the monastery of St. Albans. — The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of St. Albans, diocese of Rochester, is valued at £22. 2s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £1,042: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, T. H. Elwyn, 1827: contains 1,630 acres: 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 598: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 688: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,321: poor rates in 1837, £367. — Belmont Lodge, the seat of David Bevan, Esq.—Oak Hill, the seat of Sir Simon H. Clarke, Bart. This gentleman is the representative of one of the oldest Anglo-Saxon families in the country. The original name was Woodchurch, derived from their residence at Woodchurch, in Kent, where they had been settled for some centuries before the Conquest. The earliest member of the family, of which there is any historical note, was Sir Simon Woodchurch, Knt., who married a daughter of Peter Clarke, Esq., and whose son inherited the estates and adopted the name of his mother. From him the descent came down lineally to Sir John Clarke, one of the heroes of Poitiers. In the course of time the property devolved to Walter Clarke, Esq., whose son, Simon, was created a baronet in the year 1617, and who, with his whole family, steadfastly adhered to the cause of the king during the great civil war, and suffered severely in consequence. John, the next brother to Sir Simon, especially distinguished himself by his bearing and courage. He commanded a detachment under Lord Brooke, the governor of Newark in Nottinghamshire, the key of the north, and the last place to surrender to the parliamentary troops. During the long and close siege of that place, Colonel Clarke, on a number of desperate forays, so annoyed the besiegers, that when at last he was in the course of a sally taken prisoner, Lord Fairfax had made up his mind to put him to death, and preparations were made for that purpose; but this reaching the ears of Lord Brooke, he sent word that if a hair of John Clarke's head were injured, he would, without ceremony, hang every prisoner he had in his hands. The parliamentary general knew that he had to deal with a man very likely to keep his word; a negotiation was opened, and ultimately the colonel was exchanged for a heavy number of prisoners; and his descendants during the succeeding centuries have been residents in the town and neighbourhood; and to show how the patriotic spirit may be continued, they and their immediate connections gave no less than eleven officers to the army and navy together, for the defence of their country during the last war. From Sir Simon Clarke, the baronetcy and property descended in almost a direct line to the present, the tenth baronet, who succeeded his father in the title and estates in 1832. It is strange that, in the mutations of ages, the eldest lineal descendant of the John Clarke spoken of above, is now the rector of the very next parish to Woodchurch, whence his ancestors so many centuries ago originally sprang. Beach Hill Park: Usage House: Lion's Down: Bourn Hill: South Lodge: Bohun Lodge.

BARNET-FRIARN (or FRYERN-BARNET), MIDDLESEX, a parish in the Finsbury division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Ossulstone: 8 miles from London, 2 from Finchley.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Tottenham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, Nor. West. Rail. to Watford, 114½ miles, thence 10 miles.---Money orders issued at Barnet: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---There are almshouses for twelve persons, endowed by Lawrence Camp, Esq., of London, in 1612. Friarn-Barnet was the birth-place of John Walker, the lexicographer, whose "Pronouncing Dictionary" was, until the appearance of the Technological Dictionary, the authority for the spelling and pronunciation of all English terms. Walker was for some time master of a school at Kensington, and, beside the great work just named, author of the "Rhyming Dictionary," "Elements of Elocution," and a "Rhetorical Grammar." He gave up his school, and afterwards became a lecturer on elocution. He died in 1807.---The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of London: pres. net income, £255: patron, Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's: pres. incumbent, G. H. Thompson, 1846: contains 1,330 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 849: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 976: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,140: poor rates in 1837, £320.---The Manor House, Edmund Walker, Esq.: Colney Hatch, George Crawshaye, Esq.: Colney Hatch, Mrs. Smith: Colney Hatch, the Rev. Geo. Thompson: Friern Watch, Job Wright, Esq.

BARNET-BY-THE-WOLD (or BARNETBY-LE-WOLD), LINCOLN, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Yarborough, union of Glandford-Brigg, parts of Lindsey: 206 miles from London (coach road 162), 6 from Glandford-Brigg, 7 from Caistor.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Lincoln, to Barnetby station: from Derby, through Masbro, Retford, and Glandford-Brigg to station, 90 miles.---Money orders issued at Brigg: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12½ noon.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £305: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, John White, 1839: contains 1,630 acres: 107 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 679: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 780: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,558: poor rates in 1837, £235. The tithes were commuted in 1766.

BARNEY, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of North Greenhoe, union of Walsingham: 143 miles from London (coach road 115), 6 from Fakenham,

5 from Walsingham.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Ryburgh, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to Ryburgh, &c., 177 miles.---Money orders issued at Fakenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £129: patron, Lord Hastings: pres. incumbent, S. F. W. Homfray, 1846: contains 1,390 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 276: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 317: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,442: poor rates in 1848, £193.

BARNHAM, SUFFOLK, a village in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Blackbourn, union of Thetford: 98½ miles from London (coach road 81), 3 from Thetford, 10 from Bury.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Thetford, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Ely, to Thetford, &c., 136 miles. Money orders issued at Thetford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---There are some tumuli between the village and Thetford, which are supposed to mark the scene of a conflict between the Danes and Edward the Elder.---The living (St. Gregory), comprises two parishes in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Ely, now consolidated into one rectory, and united with that of Euston, having a pres. net income of £645: patron, Duke of Grafton: pres. incumbent, J. D. Hustler, 1829: contains 5,420 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 412: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 474: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,254: poor rates in 1837, £89.

BARNHAM, SUSSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Avisford, union of West Hampnett, rape of Arundel: 72 miles from London (coach road 60), 5 from Arundel, 7 from Chichester.---London and Brighton Rail. to Yapton station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through London to Yapton, 202 miles.---Money orders issued at Arundel: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £7. 15s.: pres. net income, £67: patron, Bishop of Chichester: pres. incumbent, W. L. Pownall, 1844: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 125: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 144: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,579: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BARNHAM-BROOM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Forehoe: 120½ miles from London (coach road 105), 5 from Wymondham, 9 from Norwich.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Wymondham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough, to Wymondham, &c., 162 miles.---Money orders issued at Wymondham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £12. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £524: patron, Lord Wodehouse: pres. incumbent, Edward Gurdon, 1848: contains 1,870 acres: 89 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 494: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 568: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,533: poor rates in 1837, £242.

BARNHILL, CHESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Malpas: 175½ miles from London (coach road 172), 10 from Chester: 8 from Tarporley.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Tattenhall, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 75 miles.---Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.

BARNINGHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>.

Token: pres. incumbent, R. R. Token: contains 2,770 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 197: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 227: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,697: poor rates in 1837, £284.

BARNTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Great Budworth: 174½ miles from London (coach road 175), 2 from Northwich, 8 from Knutsford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Acton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe to Acton, &c., 75 miles.---Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £120: patron, Bishop of Chester: pres. incumbent, E. W. Burton, 1842: contains 630 acres: 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 859: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 987: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,505: poor rates in 1837, £254.

BARNWELL-ALL-SAINTS (or KING'S BARNWELL), NORTHAMPTON, a parish belonging to the hun<sup>d</sup> of Huxloe, but situated in that of Polebrook, union of Oundle: 95½ miles from London (coach road 78), 3 from Oundle, 5 from Thrapston.---Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Barnwell station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Weedon and Northampton, &c., 98½ miles.---Money orders issued at Oundle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---There was formerly an abbey here, built by Sir Payne Peverill, who was standard-bearer to Robert, Duke of Normandy. The chapel, which still remains entire, is used as the parochial church; and an additional church was erected here in 1837-9, in the Gothic style, by the Parliamentary Commissioners. It holds about 1400, and was built at an expense of about £7000. There is a great annual fair held here for fourteen days, called Sturbridge fair, originally granted by King John, for the benefit of an hospital for lepers. It is proclaimed on the 18th September, first by the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, and afterwards by the Mayor or Town-Clerk. Lysons and his coadjutors, in the 'Magna Britannia,' say, in speaking of this noted fair---The original is thought to be casual. A clothier of Kendal having wetted his cloth in this brook (the Sture), exposed it to sale, as not fit for his London market, whether he was going, and found he got so well by it, that he and some other of his tradesmen came the next year with more clothes, for which they had so good a market, that they kept coming annually, and brought other trades to accompany them, till it became such a fair as it now is. It lasts fourteen days, and vast quantities of goods are there sold. Bury fair is thought to excel it in fineness of company, and Bristol and Weyhill fairs equal, if they do not surpass it in merchandise and goods; but take it altogether, as it affords both pleasure and profit, no fair is to be equalled to it in England, nor perhaps in Europe, though it were to be wished that the many incentives to vice which are there found, were more carefully banished, though the fair were lessened. The village suffered from a large conflagration in 1731, but it obtained an unhappy fame from a tragic event which occurred some four years before that, on the 8th of September, 1727: 120 persons were assembled in a barn to see some puppet-show exhibition, when a villain, who had been refused admittance, fastened the doors on the outside, and then set fire to the place. A tremendous rush was made to the doors, but they opened inwards, and before any means of exit could be made, the roof fell in, by which all except four were burned to death. The bodies were buried indiscriminately together in one huge hole, dug for their reception in the churchyard. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Baptists have places of worship here.---The living is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, but, by an act passed in 1821, was consolidated with Barnwell-St.-Andrews---(which see for ecclesiastical returns): contains 1,680 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 140: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 161: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,598: poor rates in 1837, £89.

BARNWELL-ST.-ANDREWS, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Polebrooke, union of Oundle: 94½ miles from London (coach road 79), 2 from Oundle, 17 from Stamford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Barnwell station: from Derby, through Weedon and Northampton, &c., 97½ miles.---Money orders issued at Oundle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The name of this place is said to be a corruption of Berne's-well, it having been the practice, in the days of superstition, to dip sickly children, or bernes, in the waters of the seven wells near the village. There are the ruins of a castle built in the time of Henry I., which Leland describes as Berenjarius Moyn's castle; it was at one time the baronial residence of the Montagues, and subsequently of the Montagues. The charities of the place consist of two almshouses and two endowed schools.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £17. 2s.: contains 1,740 acres: 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 282: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 322: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,979: poor rates in 1837, £78. Tithes commuted 11th George IV.

BARNWOOD, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dudstone and King's Barton, union of Gloucester: 116 miles from London (coach road 104), 2 from Gloucester, 8 from Cheltenham.---Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, &c., 95 miles.---Money orders issued at Gloucester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---This parish is intersected by the Roman foss road.---The living (St. Lawrence), an endowed vicarage, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol: pres. net income, £195: patron, Dean and Chapter of Gloucester: pres. incumbent, G. S. Escott, 1844: contains 1,150 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 383: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 440: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,699: poor rates in 1837, £193.---S. lies Saintbridge House.

BARON'S PARK. See DESFORD, LEICESTER.

BARONY, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Auckland-St.-Andrew---(which see for returns, &c.)

BARR (GREAT), STAFFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Aldridge: 119 miles from London (coach road 114), 4 from Walsall, 5 from Birmingham.---Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Perry-Bar, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 48½ miles.---Money orders issued at Walsall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---There is a school here with a small endowment.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £20: contains 4,960 acres: 146 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,087: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,250: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,645: poor rates in 1837, £273.---Great Barr Hall has long been the family seat of the Scotts. It is beautifully situated, facing a charming sheet of water, and encompassed with noble ornamental timber. The hills behind are clothed with woods, intersected by numerous walks, which command fine views of the scenery below. A short distance from the flower-garden stands a beautiful funeral urn, bearing on the pedestal an epitaph from the pen of Shenstone:

"Ah, Maria, puellarum elegantissima,
Ah flore, venustate abrepta: Vale,
Huc quanto minus est
Cum reliquis versari quam tui meminisse."

The present owner is Sir Edward Dolman Scott, Bart.

BARR-PERRY. See HANDSWORTH.

BARRASFORD, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Chollerton: 332 miles from London (coach road 284), 7 from Hexham, 10 from Bellingham.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, York, and Newcastle, to Hexham, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 200 miles.---Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---A license for a market here was obtained by Robert de Umfraville from Edward I., but it has not been used for centuries.---Contains 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 267: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 307.

BARRAWAY, CAMBRIDGE, a hamlet in the parish of Soham---(which see for access, &c.)---The living, a chapelry to the vicarage of Soham.

BARRINGTON, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wetherley, union of Royston: 58 miles from London (coach road 46), 6 from Cambridge, 8 from Royston.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Shelford station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, 190 miles.---The town and church estates bring in, on an average, about £33 a year. There is a school in connection with the National Society, supported by voluntary contributions from Trinity College, the vicar, and J. Bendyshe, Esq. There is an Independent chapel here.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 14s. 4d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Master and Fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, J. M. Robinson, 1837: contains 2,129 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 533: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 613: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,087: poor rates in 1837, £430. The tithes were commuted in 1796.

BARRINGTON, SOMERSETSHIRE, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Petherton, union of Langport: 176 miles from London (coach road 134), 4 from Ilminster, 10 from Ilchester.---Gt. West. Rail. to Taunton, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., to Taunton, &c., 189½ miles.---Money orders issued at Ilminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Hemp and flax are extensively cultivated in the parish.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £84: patron, Dean and Chapter of Bristol: pres. incumbent, J. Stratton Coles, 1848: contains 1,520 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 531: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 611: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,854: poor rates in 1837, £177.

BARRINGTON (GREAT), GLOUCESTER, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Farringdon, union of Stow-on-the-Wold, Berks, and partly in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Slaughter, Gloucestershire: 87 miles from London (coach road 76), 4 from Burford, 7 from Northleach.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Ascott station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Ascott, &c., 114 miles.---Money orders issued at Burford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The church is a handsome structure of the time of Henry VII., and stands in the county of Gloucester. In 1783, the Countess of Talbot bequeathed £400 to the parish, and there are several minor charities. In the church, among other monuments are one to Captain Bray, whose effigy is in the Elizabethan fashion, and is remarkable from having the sword on the right thigh. Tradition says he so wore it, having in sorrow, for killing a man at Tilbury camp, vowed never again to use his right hand. Another, by Nollekins, to Mary Countess Talbot. The chancellor lies here, but there is no monument to him. There are quarries of admirable freestone, much of which was used in the reparation of Westminster Abbey, and in the erection of Blenheim House.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £7. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £221: patron, Lord Dynevor: pres. incumbent, Thomas Lewes, 1820: contains 2,580 acres: 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 553: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 635: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,297: poor rates in 1837, £252. Tithes commuted in 1759.---The manorial hall was built by the Lord Chancellor Talbot, in 1734, on his buying the property from the Brays, who had held it for nearly two centuries. From him it has descended to Lord Dynevor, the present lord of the manor. It is situated in a spacious well-timbered park, on rising ground above the river Winrush.

BARRINGTON (LITTLE), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Slaughter: 88 miles from London, 3 from Burford.---By rail. as above, 115 miles.---There are some small bequests to the poor, and for repairing the church.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £4. 19s. 3d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, the Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Richard Hodges, 1841: contains 1,179 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 170: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 156: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,274: poor rates in 1837, £164.

BARROW-ON-TRENT, DERBY, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Appletree, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Morleston and Litchurch, union of Shardlow: 138 miles from London (coach road 125), 6 from Derby, 10 from Burton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, thence 6 miles.---Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The Grand Trunk Canal intersects the parish. — The living (St. Wilfrid), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, to which is annexed the chapelry of Twyford, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £5. 6s. 5d.: pres. net income, £105: patron, Rev. J. Latham: pres. incumbent, W. Heacock, 1825: contains 1,190 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 641: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 737: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,949: poor rates in 1837, £163. Tithes commuted in 1787.

BARROW, GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Boddington—(which see for access, &c.): 98 miles from London, 4 from Cheltenham, 5 from Tewkesbury. — Money orders issued at Cheltenham: London letters delivered 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Piffs Elm.

BARROW, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Hallstone: 314 miles from London, 5 from Allenton, 16 from Wooler. — Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3½ p.m.: post closes 10 a.m. — Contains 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 16: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 18: poor rates in 1837, £10.

BARROW (or BERE), RUTLAND, a hamlet in the parish of Cottesmore: 120 miles from London (coach road 101), 5 from Oakham, 12 from Stamford: — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Oakham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Oakham, &c., 56 miles. — Money orders issued at Oakham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 165: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 189: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,380: poor rates in 1837, £27.

BARROW, SALOP, a parochial chapelry in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wenlock: 145 miles from London (coach road 146), 3 from Much-Wenlock, 9 from Bridgenorth. — Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 74 miles. — Money orders issued at Much-Wenlock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — There is an endowed school here for twenty boys, and an almshouse of six poor persons. — The living (St. Giles), a curacy annexed to the rectory of Willey, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford, having jointly a pres. net income of £329, is valued at £3. 13s.: patron, Lord Forrester: pres. incumbent, W. Bates, 1823: contains 2,290 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 383: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 440: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,106: poor rates in 1837, £475.

BARROW, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Thingoe: 101 miles from London (coach road 69), 6 from Bury, 9 from Newmarket. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Bury St. Edmund's, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Cambridge, and Newmarket, &c., 153 miles. — Money orders issued at Bury St. Edmund's: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — In the time of Edward I., Barrow was the property of the Countess of Gloucester, but afterwards became the property of Lord Badlesmere, who, being engaged in the insurrection of the discontented barons against Edward II., was taken prisoner at Boroughbridge, in Yorkshire, and hanged at Blean, near Canterbury, in 1322. His estate was given to the king's favourite, Hugh de Spencer, but, on the accession of Edward III., it was restored to the son of the late lord, and ultimately descended to Margaret, wife of John de Tibetot, through whose heiresses the property demised. The remains of the family seat to the southward of the church, bespeak it to have been an imposing structure. Here too, Mr. Gough observes, the turnpike road from Bury to Newmarket is, unfortunately for the repose of some brave warriors, carried through a tumulus or barrow, in which human bones may at any time be very easily discovered. The parochial charities produce about £12 a year. The educational institutions are abundant. — The living (All Saints), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £23. 9s. 9d.: pres. net income, £690: patron, Master and Fellows of St. Jude's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, Wm. Keeling, 1845: contains 2,810 acres: 94 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 995: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,144: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,726: poor rates in 1837, £499. — Fair, May 1.

BARROW (GREAT), CHESTER, a parish and township in the second division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eddisbury, union of Great Broughton: 182½ miles from London (coach road 183), 6 from Chester, 13 from Northwich. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Chester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Chester, &c., 84 miles. — Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — In speaking of this place, Tanner says—Robert de Bacheping having given in the reign of Henry II. the church of this place to the Knights-Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem, here was settled a preceptory of that order, which, with Iweley in Derbyshire, was valued, 26th Henry VIII., at £107. 3s. 8d. — The living (St. Bartholomew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £19. 6s. 5d.: pres. net income, £263: patron, Lord H. Cholmondeley: pres. incumbent, John Clark, 1816: contains 1,210 acres: 77 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 668: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 768: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,504: poor rates in 1837, £449.

BARROW-GURNEY, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hartcliffe with Bedminster, union of Bedminster: 120 miles from London, 5 from Bristol, 12 from Axbridge. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 136½ miles. — Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living, a donative curacy in the diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £36: pres. net income, £71: patron, Montague Gore, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. M. Bullock, 1842: contains 2,130 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 303: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 348: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,131: poor rates in 1837, £73. — Barrow-Gurney Court, a fine old building.

BARROW-UPON-HUMBER, LINCOLN, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Yarnborough, parts of Lindsey, union of Glandford-Brigg: 204 miles from London (coach road 167), 3 from Barton, 17 from Grimsby. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Barton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Masbro and Barton, &c., 109 miles. — Money orders issued at Barton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — North-west of the village there are the remains of an extensive entrenchment, commonly called the Castle, and which is believed to have been the site of an ancient British camp. Tanner, in speaking of it, says—Wulpher, king of the Mercians, gave to that pious man, Ceadd or Chad, about the middle of the seventh century, the land of fifty families, as Bede tells us, to build a monastery at a place called Al Barwe, i. e. 'at the wood,' in the province of Lindsey; some appearance of which, Bede saith, remained in his time.—The living (Holy Trinity), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9. 16s.: pres. net income, £348: patron, Lord Chancellor: contains 4,620 acres: 221 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,662: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,911: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,742: poor rates in 1837, £726. The tithes were commuted in 1797.

BARROW-MINCHIN, SOMERSETSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Barrow-Gurney—(which see for access, &c.)—Tanner, in his Notitia, says—A Benedictine nunnery, dedicated to St. Mary and St. Edwin, founded by Gurney, lord of Stoke-Hampden, before A.D. 1200. The revenues of this small priory were valued at £29. 6s. 8d. The site was granted in the 36th of Henry VIII. to William Clerk, and made a fair dwelling-place by Drewe of Brightston.

BARROW (NORTH), SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Catsash, union of Wincanton: 132 miles from London (coach road 116), 3 from Castle-Carey, 8 from Ilchester.—Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 193 miles.—Money orders issued at Castle-Carey: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m. post closes 4 p.m.—The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7. 17s. 8d.: pres. net income, £148: patron, Lord Portman: pres. incumbent, George Goodden, 1831: contains 970 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 140: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 161: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,342: poor rates in 1837, £61.

BARROW (SOUTH), SOMERSET, a parochial chapelry in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Catsash, union of Wincanton: 133 miles from London (coach road 117), 4 from Castle-Carey.—Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 24 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 194 miles.—Money orders issued at Castle-Carey: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m. post closes 4 p.m.—The living (St. Peter), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £80: patron, Mrs. Toogood: pres. incumbent, George Goodden, 1836: contains 580 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 140: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 161: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,179: poor rates in 1837, £45.—8. Hazelgrove Hall.

BARROW-UPON-SOAR, LEICESTER, a parish in the east hund<sup>d</sup> of Goscoote, union of Barrow-upon-Soar: it contains the townships of Barrow-upon-Soar, and the chapelries of Quorndon, Mount-Sorrel, and Woodhouse: 107 miles from London, 3 from Loughborough, 2 from Mount-Sorrel.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Barrow, 112 miles: from Derby, through Loughborough, 16½ miles.—Money orders issued at Loughborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—There is a grammar-school here, endowed with about £100 a year. The union prison, one of the eyesores of England, cost about £6,500. Babington's almshouse, founded in 1686, has an income of about £200 a year; and besides other minor charities, a rent charge of £2 a year was bequeathed by Dr. William Beveridge, bishop of St. Asaph, who was born here in 1638. He was one of the most distinguished scholars that ever adorned the prelacy of Britain, being eminent as an orientalist, critic, and theologian. He wrote several works: among others, twelve volumes of "Sermons," "Private Thoughts on Religion," &c.; and for piety, and simplicity of character, was always revered by his contemporaries. The name of Barrow-upon-Soar was originally written Baro, Baroo, Barhoo, Barwe, &c., and is no doubt derived from the number of barrows or tumuli, the remains of which still exist, in the neighbourhood. Barrow has long been celebrated for a fine hard blue stone, which, when burnt, forms a lime which is the foundation of one of the finest cements in the world, and was effectively used, to cite an instance, in the erection of Ramsgate pier, when all other cements had failed.—The living (Holy Trinity), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £15. 2s. 8d.: pres. net income, £326: patron, Master and Fellows of St. John's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, R. Gwatkin, 1832: contains 7,950 acres: 1,271 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,784: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,649: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,145: poor rates in 1837, £931. The great and small tithes of the liberty were commuted in 1760.

BARROWBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Winibriggs and Threo, parts of Kesteven, union of Grantham: 181 miles from London (coach road 112), 2 from Grantham, 12 from Newark.—Nor. West. Rail. to Newark, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Newark, &c., 45 miles.—The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £31. 1s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £1,084: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, J. Kendall, 1802: contains 4,010 acres: 125 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 799: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 919: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,936: poor rates in 1837, £271. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1762.

BARROWBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Leak: 248 miles from London: 5 from Thirsk.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leeds to Thirsk, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leeds and Thirsk, 116 miles.—Money orders issued at Thirsk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 1,280 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 402: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 462: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,405: poor rates in 1837, £98.

BARROWDEN, RUTLAND, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wrangdike, union of Uppingham, on the banks of the Welland: 114 miles from London (coach road 92), 6 from Uppingham, 8 from Stamford.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Uppingham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Luffenham, 59½, thence 2 miles.—Money orders issued at Uppingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—There was formerly an annual fair and weekly market here, but both have long since fallen into disuse. There was also a chantry founded in the time of Edward II. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £14. 13s. 1d.: pres. net income, £483: patron, Marquis of Exeter: pres. incumbent, C. Atlay, 1840: contains 1,997 acres: 113 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 658: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 756: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,070: poor rates in 1837, £235.

BARROWFORD, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Whalley: 225 miles from London (coach road 216), 2 from Colne, 6 from Burnley. — Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester to Colne, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Manchester, &c., 116 miles. — Money orders issued at Colne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The inhabitants are chiefly employed in cotton-spinning. There is a Wesleyan Methodist congregation here. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Holme's Trustees: pres. incumbent, Samuel Smith, 1842: contains 1,540 acres: 479 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,630: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,024: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,687: poor rates in 1837, £595.

BARRY, GLAMORGAN, a parish, with a village of the same name, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dinas-Powis, union of Cardiff, South Wales: 155 miles from London (coach road 169), 9 from Cardiff, 9 from Llandaff. — Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, across the channel to Penarth, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 167 miles. — Money orders issued at Cardiff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — The living, a rectory not in charge, in the diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £26: contains 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 104: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 120: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £645: poor rates in 1837, £16. — Adjacent is the Isle of Barry, separated from the main land by a passage of about 400 yards in width. The Isle will be described in its proper place.

BARSBY, LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Ashby-Folville — (which see for postal arrangements, access, &c.) — Contains 1,030 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 264: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 803: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,629: poor rates in 1837, £106.

BARSHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wangford: 116 miles from London (coach road 109), 2 from Beccles, 4 from Bungay. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Gissing, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Norwich, thence to Gissing, &c., 186 miles. — Money orders issued at Beccles: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Dr. Echard, the divine and historian, was a native of this village. He was born in 1671, received his education at Cambridge, and became archdeacon of Stowe. He was a very voluminous writer, being the author of a 'Roman History,' a 'General Ecclesiastical History,' a 'History of England,' and other works. He was presented to the livings of Rendlesham, Sudborne, and Alford. He died in his carriage when proceeding to Scarborough in 1730. — The living (the Holy Trinity), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £15. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £600: patron, Rev. A. I. Suckling: pres. incumbent, A. I. Suckling, 1839: contains 1,871 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 250: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 287: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,796: poor rates in 1837, £219.

BARSHAM (EAST), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gallow, union of Walsingham: 143 miles from London (coach road 102), 3 from Fakenham, 3 from Walsingham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to East Dereham, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, Dereham, &c., 167 miles. — Money orders issued at Fakenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, united with the rectory of Little Snoring, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £645: patron, Lord Hastings: pres. incumbent, H. N. Astley, 1791: contains 1,230 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 240: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 276: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,482: poor rates in 1837, £133.

BARSHAM (NORTH), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gallow, union of Walsingham: 144 miles from London (coach road 113), 2 from Great Walsingham, 6 from Wells. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to East Dereham, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, Dereham, &c., 168 miles. — Money orders issued at Fakenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £244: patron, Earl of Orford: pres. incumbent, J. C. Platten, 1843: contains 710 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 89: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 102: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,299: poor rates in 1837, £69.

BARSHAM (WEST), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gallow, union of Walsingham: 146½ miles from London (coach road 112), 3 from Fakenham, 3 from Walsingham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Swaffham, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, to Swaffham, &c., 164 miles. — Money orders issued at Fakenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 12s. 1d.: pres. net income, £155: patron, Captain Balders: pres. incumbent, R. Leeder, 1842: contains 1,380 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 86: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 99: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,245: poor rates in 1837, £75.

BARSTON, KENT. See BARFRESTON.

BARSTON, WARWICK, a parish in the Solihull division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, union of Solihull: 102 miles from London (coach road 100), 2 from Knowle, 12 from Warwick. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Docker's Lane station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Hampton station, 41, thence 3 miles. — Money orders issued at Birmingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £8 a year. — The living (St. Swithin), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, annexed to the rectory of Barkswell, and in the peculiar jurisdiction of the lord of the manor: pres. net income, £180: patron, Rev. S. B. Shirreff: pres. incumbent, S. B. Shirreff: contains 1,990 acres: 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 392:

probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 451: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,287: poor rates in 1837, £124.

BARTESTREE, HEREFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Dormington, hun<sup>d</sup> of Greytree—(which see for access, &c.): 132 miles from London, 5 from Hereford, 12 from Ledbury. Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 5 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, united with the vicarage of Dormington, in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4. 9s.: pres. net joint income, £284: patron, E. F. Foley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, L. E. Browne, 1844: contains 410 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 44: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 56: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £280: poor rates in 1837, £52.

BARTHERTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Wybunbury: 163 miles from London (coach road 162), 2 from Nantwich, 10 from Whitchurch. Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Basford, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, Basford, &c., 68 miles. Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. Contains 270 acres: 3 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 39: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 45: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £711: poor rates in 1837, £46.

BARTHOLOMEW-HOSPITAL (St.), KENT, an extra-parochial liberty in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eastry, lathe of St. Augustine: 68 miles from London, 13 from Canterbury, 7 from Deal. Money orders issued at Deal: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. In speaking of this place, Tanner says—Here is an hospital dedicated to St. Bartholomew, which was founded by Thomas Crompthon, Esq., and Maud his wife, who was of the family of Sandwich, about A.D. 1190, for a master, brethren, and sisters, and three priests, whereof one was to be prior. Sir Henry Sandwich, lord warden of the Cinque ports, increased the revenues, that here might be maintained twelve brethren and four sisters. It was returned, A.D. 1562, to be endowed with £40 per annum. It is yet in being for six poor men and as many women, who have each a house and garden, and a handsome allowance, and is under the care and government of the mayor and jurates of Sandwich. Contains 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 59: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 67.

BARTHOLOMEW (St.) HYDE, HANTS, a parish partly in the city of Winchester, and partly in the liberty of Soke, union of New Winchester, county of Southampton, adjacent to the north side of the city of Winchester—(which see for postal arrangements, access, &c.)—There was formerly one of the mitred parliamentary abbeys here, but little of the old structure remains. In Tanner's Notitia the place is thus spoken of—King Alfred founded here first only a house and chapel for the learned monk Grimbald, whom he had brought out of Flanders, but afterwards projected, and by his will ordered, a noble church, or religious house, to be built in the cemetery, on the north side of the old minster, or cathedral, and designed that Grimbald should preside over it. This was begun in 901, and finished to the honour of the Holy Trinity, Virgin Mary, and St. Peter, by his son, King Edward, who placed therein secular canons; but in 963 they were expelled, and an abbot and monks put into possession by Bishop Ethel- wold. Now the churches and habitations of these two societies being so very near together, the differences which were occasioned by their singing, bells, and other matters, arose to so great a height, that the religious of the new monastery thought fit, about 1110, to remove to a better and more quiet situation without the walls, on the north part of the city, called Hyde, where Henry I., at the instance of William Gifford, Bishop of Winchester, founded a stately abbey for them. St. Peter was generally accounted patron, though it is sometimes called the monastery of St. Grimbald, and sometimes of St. Barnabas. It was valued before the dissolution at £865. 1s. 3d., and the site was granted in the 37th year of Henry VIII., to Richard Bethell. The parochial charities produce about £23 a year. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £100: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, W. Williams, 1833: contains 108 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 628: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 718: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £542: poor rates in 1837, £359.

VOL. I.

BARTHOMLEY, CHESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Nantwich, union of Congleton, extending into the northern division of the hundred of Pirehill, county of Stafford: in the county of Chester it comprises the chapelries of Alsager and Haslington, and the townships of Barthomley and Crewe, and in the county of Stafford the township of Batteredley: 157½ miles from London (coach road 157), 7 from Sandbach, 7 from Newcastle. Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Basford, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Crewe, 57, thence 3 miles. Money orders issued at Newcastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The church is remarkable for a fine wooden roof put up in 1589. The parochial charities produce about £30 a year. The living (St. Bertoline), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £25. 7s. 1d.: pres. net income, £824: patron, Trustees of the late Lord Crewe: pres. incumbent, Edward Hinchliffe, 1836: contains 11,600 acres: 462 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,725: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,134: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £13,132.

BARTHOMLEY, CHESTER, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 2,240 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 516: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 593: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,745: poor rates in 1837, £203.

BARTHORPE, YORK, a township with Acklam, partly in the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the parish of Acklam, wapentake of Buckrose, east riding of York.—(For access, &c., see ACKLAM.)

BARTINGTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Great Budworth, western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bucklow: 176½ miles from London (coach road 177), 4 from Northwich, 8 from Warrington. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Acton, thence 5 miles; from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 77 miles. Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. Contains 210 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 87: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 100: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £608: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BARTLEY-REGIS, HANTS, a hamlet in the parish of Minstead, county of Southampton—(which see for access, &c.)

BARTLOW, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Chilford, union of Linton: 53½ miles from London (coach road 48), 2 from Linton, 6 from Saffron-Walden. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Chesterford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 185 miles. —Money orders issued at Linton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Ely, is valued at £19. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £259: patron, Rev. John Bullen: pres. incumbent, John Bullen, 1828: contains 320 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 89: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 102: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £675: poor rates in 1837, £50.

BARTLOW-END (or STEVINGTON-END), ESSEX, a hamlet in the parish of Ashdon—(which see for postal arrangements): 53½ miles from London (coach road 47), 3 from Linton, 6 from Haverhill. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Chesterford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London to Chesterford, &c., 185½ miles. —Contains 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 236: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 271: poor rates in 1837, £159.

BARTON, BERKS, a hamlet contiguous to Abingdon, in the parish of St. Helens—(which see for access, &c.): 56 miles from London, 6 from Oxford, 7 from Dorchester. —Contains 1 house: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 16: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 18.

BARTON, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wetherley, union of Chesterton: 61½ miles from London (coach road 49), 4 from Cambridge, 8 from Caxton. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Cambridge, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough, to Cambridge, &c., 129 miles. —Money orders issued at Cambridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —There was formerly a rectory here, but Blomesfield says—The rectory was appropriated to Merton priory, the collation of the vicars being reserved to the see for the license of appropriation. The rectory was valued at £26. 13s. 4d. —The living (St. Peter) a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £8. 11s. 3d.: pres. net income, £156: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent, Dr. Harding, 1835: contains 1,500 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 319: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 367: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,107: poor rates in 1837, £281.

BARTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Farndon: 174½ miles from London (coach road 175), 10 from Chester, 7 from Malpas. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Beeston station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 76 miles. —Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —Contains 490 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 193: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 222: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £756: poor rates in 1837, £61.

BARTON, HEREFORD, a township in the parish of Kington—(which see for returns, access, &c.): 156 miles from London, 1 from Kington, 21 from Hereford. —Money orders issued at Kington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. —Gervase of Canterbury, the monkish historian, who wrote in the time of Richard I., states that a Benedictine monastery existed in this neighbourhood.

BARTON, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Preston: 224½ miles from London (coach road 223), 6 from Preston, 8 from Kirkham. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Preston to Barton station: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, and Preston, 114 miles. —Money orders issued at Preston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —Contains 1,510 acres: 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 485: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 557: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,795: poor rates in 1837, £204.

BARTON-IN-FABIS, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Rushcliffe, on the river Trent: 130½ miles from London (coach road 121), 6 from Nottingham, 13 from Derby. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Beeston, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Long Eaton, &c., 13 miles. —Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —There are some remains of a British encampment in the neighbourhood. —The living (St. George), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £19. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £360: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, F. G. Wintour, 1829: contains 1,620 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 333: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 383: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,047: poor rates in 1837, £92. All the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1759.

BARTON (or HIGH BARTON), WESTMORELAND, a parish in West ward, union of Basford: it includes the chapelries of Hartsop with Patterdale and Martindale, and the townships of High Barton, Low Winder, Sockbridge, and Yanwath with Eamont Bridge: 280½ miles from London (coach road 272), 2 from Penrith, 13 from Appleby. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Preston, &c., to Clifton station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Lancaster, &c., 201 miles. —Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —A free grammar-school was founded here, and endowed, in 1649, by Dr. Lancelot Dawes and Dr. Gerard Langbaine, both natives of the parish: the former a prebendary of Carlisle, and the latter, who was noted in his day for his writings on history and antiquities, was for some time provost of Queen's College, Oxford. It subsequently received some additional endowment. The church is a large low edifice, with heavy Gothic arches, and is remarkable for having, over the communion-table, five rows of escutcheons, seven in a row, charged with the arms of several noble families. In the chancel, on a brass-plate, there is an inscription to the memory of the wife of Dr. Dawes, one of the founders of the school, daughter of Sir Thomas Fletcher of Strickland, who died in 1673. It is full of the true spirit of affection, and rife with the quaint elegance of the period:

"Under this stone, reader, Inter'd doth lye,
Beauty and virtue's true epitomy;
At her appearance, the noon sun
Blushed and shrunk in 'cause quite outdone.
In her concealer'd did all graces dwell,
God plucked my rose that he might take a smel—
I'll say no more; but, weeping, wish I may Soone with thy dear ashes come to lay."
"Sic efflevis maritus."

Dr. Langbaine was a man of eminent learning, and the bosom friend of Archbishop Ussher. That part of Ullswater lake, out of which the river Eamont flows, is within the boundaries of the parish. Spar, petrifications, and other minerals, are found in the neighbouring hills. — The living (St. Michael), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £11. 1s.: pres. net income, £168: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, T. U. Gibson, 1847: contains 33,690 acres: 268 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,668: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,918: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £10,565: poor rates in 1837, £469.

BARTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Hawkswell—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 1,330 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 120: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 138: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £995.

BARTON-IN-THE-BEANS, LEICESTER, a hamlet chiefly in the parish of Market-Bosworth, but extending into those of Nailstone and Shakerstone: 117 miles from London (coach road 108), 2 from Market-Bosworth, 14 from Leicester. — Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester to Bagworth, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Bagworth, &c., 33 miles. — Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Contains 820 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 187: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 215: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,164: poor rates in 1837, £65.

BARTON-BENDISH, NORFOLK, a village and parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Clackclose, with the hamlet of Eastmore, union of Downham: 95½ miles from London (coach road 92), 4 from Stokeferry, 8 from Swaffham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Downham-Market, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Downham, &c., 131 miles. — Money orders issued at Brandon. — The name of the place is derived from a dyke called Bendish, after the family of that name, which the Saxons erected to mark the boundary of the hundred. The interest of £200, a bequest of the Rev. Richard Jones, in 1783, is appropriated to the support of six poor children. — The living (St. Mary), united to the rectory of All Saints, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £306: patron, Sir H. Berny, Bart.: pres. incumbent, George Day, 1826: contains 4,390 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 455: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 523: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,821: poor rates in 1837, £304. The rectory of St. Andrew, in the same parish, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £263: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Rev. H. Howes, 1841. The tithes of both rectories, great and small, at the enclosure by act of parliament, were commuted for land in 1774.

BARTON-BLOUNT, DERBY, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Appletree: 142 miles from London (coach road 136), 10 from Derby, 8 from Uttoxeter. — Nor. West. Rail. to Derby, thence 10 miles: from Derby, 10 miles. — Money orders issued at Uttoxeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £4. 19s. 1d.: pres. net income, £80: patron, F. Bradshaw, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. P. Lowther, 1822: contains 1,230 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 68: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 78: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,218: poor rates in 1837, £47. — Barton Hall, the seat of Francis Bradshaw, Esq. The family of Bradshaw is of very ancient standing in the county of Derby, having been people of consideration as early as the year 1483. The then representative of the family, Henry Bradshaw, Esq., was a man of considerable property, and from him it descended in a direct line to the Rev. Samuel Bradshaw, who, dying without issue, left it to his cousin, Joseph Baggeley, Esq. of Holbrook, grandfather of the present proprietor, who assumed the name and arms of Bradshaw. Mr. Bradshaw served the office of high sheriff of Derbyshire in 1806.

BARTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Gilling: 269 miles from London (coach road 238), 5 from Darlington, 14 from Barnard-Castle. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and York to Darlington, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 137 miles. — Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Valuable limestone is quarried in the neighbourhood. — The living (St. Cuthbert), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £11.: pres. net income, £110: patrons, Vicar of Stanwick, and Vicar of Gilling, alternately: pres. incumbent, W. R. Atkinson, 1835: contains 2,790 acres: 107 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 631: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 726: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £3,667: poor rates in 1837, £195.

BARTON-IN-THE-CLAY, BEDFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Flitt, union of Luton: 53½ miles from London (coach road 38), 8 from Silsoe, 7 from Luton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Leighton, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Leighton, &c., 104½ miles. — Money orders issued at Ampthill: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — There is a Baptist chapel here. — The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £26. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £317: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, T. F. F. Bowes, 1820: contains 2,270 acres: 146 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 855: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 983: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,790: poor rates in 1837, £294. Tithes commuted in 1809.

BARTON (St. David's), SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Catsash: 166 miles from London (coach road 120), 4 from Somerton, 7 from Glastonbury. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, &c., 181 miles. — Money orders issued at Somerton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — There is an Independent chapel here. — The living (St. David's), a discharged vicarage in the peculiar jurisdiction and patronage of the prebendary of Barton-St.-David's, in the cathedral of Wells, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £60: patron, Rev. Wm. Garratt: pres. incumbent, Wm. Tyn-ton, 1845: contains 1,090 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 455: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 523: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £940: poor rates in 1837, £54.

BARTON (EARL'S), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hamfordshoe, union of Wellingborough: 73 miles from London, 4 from Wellingborough. — Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Billing Road, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through Weedon and Northampton to Billing Road, &c., 74½ miles. — Money orders issued at Wellingborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The church is one of the most ancient and interesting structures in the kingdom. The tower is Saxon; and in the nave, aisles, and chancel, occur all the different styles of ecclesiastical architecture, from the Conquest to the Reformation. On the north side of the church is a Roman tumulus, supposed to have been used as a link of military communication with Clifford's Hill, on the opposite side of the valley of the Nen. There is a Baptist chapel here. The parish is crossed by the river Nen, and through it the Northampton Canal communicates with the German Ocean.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £195: patron, the Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, D. T. Knight, 1842: contains 2,210 acres: 245 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,079: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,240: poor rates in 1837, £393.

BARTON (GREAT), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Thedwestry: 96½ miles from London, (coach road 74), 2 from Bury, 4 from Ixworth.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Bury, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough, to Thetford, 125, thence 14 miles.---Money orders issued at Bury St. Edmund's: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Howard's donation affords £10 a year to the poor.---The living (Holy Innocents), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £10. 15s. 7½d.: patron, Sir H. E. Bunbury: pres. incumbent, W. R. Blake, 1826: contains 4,030 acres: 146 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 774: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 890: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,128: poor rates in 1837, £463. The great and small tithes were commuted in 1802.

BARTON-HARTSHORNE, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Buckingham: 64½ miles from London (coach road 59), 5 from Buckingham, 8 from Bicester.---Nor. West. Rail. to Bletchley, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, to Bletchley, &c., 103 miles.---Money orders issued at Buckingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. James), a perpetual curacy with Chetwood, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £102: patron, W. H. Bracebridge, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. L. Smith, 1839: contains 870 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 165: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 189: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £919: poor rates in 1837, £54.

BARTON-UPON-THE-HEATH, WARWICK, a parish in the Brails division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kingston: 93 miles from London (coach road 79), 5 from Shipton-on-Stour, 7 from Chipping-Norton.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Evenlode, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester, to Evenlode, &c., 104½ miles.---Money orders issued at Moreton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---About two miles to the westward stands the Fourshire-stone, stated by Leland to mark the boundaries of the four counties of Warwick, Worcester, Oxford, and Gloucester. The village is remarkable for having been the residence of Mr. Robert Dover, an attorney of so disinterested and amiable a character, that he is said to have had only two causes litigated in the whole course of his life, all the other disputes submitted to his professional guidance being settled by arbitration. He was, about the year 1600, the founder of the celebrated Cotswold Games, in imitation of the athletic contests of the ancients, which were celebrated by the verses of Ben Jonson, Drayton, and other poets, subsequently collected and published in one volume, under the title of 'Annalia Debreasia.' The meetings were held annually on Whit-Tuesday, and the victors were rewarded with prizes distributed by Dover himself, arrayed in a discarded garb of James I. The festivities were celebrated in the vicinity of Campden, in Gloucestershire, but were at length put an end to by the breaking out of the civil war between Charles I. and the Parliament.---The living (St. Lawrence), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £12. 7s. 11d.: pres. net income, £364: patron, Trinity College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, H. P. Guillemard, 1846: contains 1,540 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 212: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 244: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,975: poor rates in 1837, £94.

BARTON-UPON-HUMBER, LINCOLN, a parish and market town in the northern division of the wapentake of Yarbrough, parts of Lindsey: 201 miles from London (coach road 167), 7 from Hull.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Barton station, 106 miles.---Money orders issued at Barton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m.---The town is pleasantly situated on the extremity of the Lincolnshire wolds, about three-quarters of a mile from the banks of the Humber, from which circumstance it derives its name. It was a place of considerable importance at the time of the Conquest, being the chief port on the great eastern estuary; but, on the erection of Kingston-upon-Hull into a borough, it lost much of its commercial standing, and derives its position now chiefly from being the means of access across the ferry to that town. There are two churches; that of St. Peter, the mother church as it is called, is a handsome and spacious structure, and very ancient, the lower part of the tower being evidently Saxon, and the upper early Norman. St. Mary's is a more modern building, ascribed, with apparent justice, to the 14th century. The town, which is a polling-place for the parts of Lindsey, and the manor of which belongs to the Crown, consists chiefly of two good but irregular streets, with several modern highly-respectable houses in them. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the trade in corn and flour, though ropes, tiles, and bricks are to some extent made here. Barton is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who here hold the petty sessions for a part of the division. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, and the Independents, have each chapels here. There are almshouses for four poor women, and some small endowments for schools. Thornton Abbey, the remains of which stand about three miles from the town, was founded, in 1139, by William le Gros, Earl of Albemarle, and Lord of Holderness, for Black canons. Its revenues, at the dissolution, were valued at £703. 17s. 2d. Henry VIII. and his queen were entertained here in 1540, on their return from Hull.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £19. 4s. 8d.: pres. net income, £390: patron, Uppleby Family: pres. incumbent, G. Uppleby, 1834: contains 4,620 acres: 221 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,475: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,996: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £12,354: poor rates in 1837, £726. The impropriate and vicarial tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1793.---Market day, Monday. Fair, Trinity-Thursaday, for cattle.---Bankers, Hull Banking Company---draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co. Inns: Ferry House, and George Inn.

BARTON-UPON-IRWELL, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Eccles: 185 miles from London, 6 from Manchester, 14 from Warrington.---Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester to Eccles, 202, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 101 miles.---Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.---The first aqueduct bridge ever constructed in England was erected here, to carry the Bridgewater Canal over the river Irwell. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Roman Catholics have each a chapel here.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £150: patrons, the Bishop, Vicar of Eccles, and others: pres. incumbent, Richard Hill, 1843: contains 10,530 acres: 1,567 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 10,322: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 11,270: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £20,624: poor rates in 1837, £1,896.

BARTON (LITTLE), or BARTON-MILLS, SUFFOLK, a small village and parish in the hund<sup>of</sup> of Lackford, union of Mildenhall: 88½ miles from London (coach road 70), 1 from Mildenhall, 9 from Newmarket.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Mildenhall Road, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Ely, to Mildenhall Road, &c., 128 miles.---Money orders issued at Mildenhall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £14 a year. There is a National school for 100 girls and boys, and a Baptist chapel here.---The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, valued at £14. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £500: patron, the Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, C. Chichester, 1845: contains 2,050 acres: 104 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 640: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 736: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,995: poor rates in 1837, £354. All the tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1796.

BARTON (ST. MARY), GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of St. Mary-de-Lode---(which see for access, &c.)---Contains 1,470 acres: 165 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 904: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,040: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,555: poor rates in 1837, £254.

BARTON (ST. MARY), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a chapelry and township in the parish of Barton St. Cuthbert, eastern division of the wapentake of Gilling: 263 miles from London (coach road 238), 5 from Darlington, 7 from Richmond.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and York, to Croft station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 131 miles.---Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Ripon, is valued at £10: patron, Vicar of Gilling: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 904: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,040: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,555.

BARTON (ST. MICHAEL'S), GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of St. Michael---(which see for access, &c.)---Contains 500 acres: 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 777: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 893: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £846: poor rates in 1837, £162.

BARTON-MIDDLE, OXFORD, a township in the parish of Steeple-Barton---(which see for access, &c.)

BARTON-MILLS. See BARTON (LITTLE), SUFFOLK.

BARTON-UNDER-NEEDWOOD, STAFFORD, a parochial chapelry in the parish of Tatenhill, union of Burton-upon-Trent: 136 miles from London (coach road 130), 5 from Burton-on-Trent, 9 from Lichfield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester to Burton-on-Trent, thence 5 miles: from Derby to Burton, &c., 15 miles.---Money orders issued at Burton-on-Trent: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The chapel was erected in the time of Henry VIII. by Dr. John Taylor, a native of the village. The Drapers' Company have a school here, endowed from their own sources, and from land, with £40 a year; another school has an endowment of £20 a year. Courts-leet and courts-baron are regularly held here.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £135: patron, Dean of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, H. G. Cooper, 1838: contains 3,520 acres: 270 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,459: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £1,679: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,263: poor rates in 1837, £434.---Fairs, 3d May, 28th November, for cattle.---Needwood House, the residence of L. K. Hall, Esq. The forest of Needwood will be described in its proper section; but it may here be observed, that within its precincts, which are twenty miles in circumference, stands Tutbury Castle, for some time the place of confinement of the unfortunate Mary, Queen of Scots. As to how far this princess was injured, or whether she was rightly condemned, is a vexed question not likely to be speedily answered; but the following lines written, it is stated, by Queen Elizabeth herself, in justification of her conduct, shortly before Mary's execution, are not a little curious:

"The doubt of future foes exiles my present joy,
And Wit me learns to shun such snares as threaten my annoy;
For Falschood now doth flow, and subject Faith doth ebb,
Which would not be if Reason ruled, or Wisdom weaved the web.
But clouds of joy untried do cloak aspiring minds,
Which turn to rain of late repent by course of changed winds.
The top of Hope supposed the root of Rule will be,
And fruitless all their grafted, as shortly ye shall see;
Then dazzled eyes with pride which great ambition blinds,
Shall be unsealed by worthy wights whose falsehoo<sup>d</sup> Foresight finds.
The daughter of Debate that eke doth Discord sow, Shall reap no gain where former rule hath taught Peace still to grow:
No foreign banished wight shall anchor in this port---
Our realm it brooks no stranger's voice---let them elsewhere resort;
Our sword with rack shall first his edge employ,
To poll their tops that seek such change and gape from lawless joy."

The scrap is transposed from the Harleian MSS., and bears sufficient evidence of forcible resolution to justify the ascription of it to the Maiden Queen.

BARTON (PEVERELL), SOUTHAMPTON, a tithing in the parish of South Stoneham—(which see for access, &c.)

BARTON-SEGRAVE, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Huxloe, union of Kettering: 92½ miles from London (coach road 75), 2 from Kettering, 8 from Thrapston.—Nor. West. Rail. to Ringstead, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Weedon, Northampton, to Road, &c., 96 miles.—Money orders issued at Kettering: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The village derived its name from the family of Segrave, whose most eminent member was Nicholas de Segrave, marshal of England, during the reign of Edward IV. The village was the native place of John Bridges, Esq., who accumulated many materials for the history of the county. One of the most celebrated natives of the parish was Humphrey Henchman, who, from an obscure origin, became a prebendary of Salisbury, and, as a royalist, distinguished himself greatly in aiding the escape of Charles II. after the battle of Worcester. After the Restoration, he was made Bishop of Salisbury, and, in 1675, was translated to the see of London. There is a small parochial charity here.—The living (St. Botolph), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £10. 17s. 1d.: pres. net income, £492: patron, Duke of Buccleugh: pres. incumbent, Charles Stopford, 1845: contains 2,030 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 219: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 252: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,118: poor rates in 1837, £139.—Barton-Segrave Hall, the residence of Viscount Hood. His lordship's ancestors possessed considerable property in Dorsetshire, as long as two centuries ago, but the first member of the family of whom we have any particular mention, is the Rev. Samuel Hood, vicar of Thorncombe, who married Mary, daughter of Richard Hoskyns, Esq. of Beaminster, and with other children had Samuel, the eldest, the direct progenitor of the present Viscount: and Alexander, Admiral of the Red, and afterwards created Lord Bridport. The eldest son, Samuel, was created a baronet in 1778, for his previous services as a naval commander, and was, in 1782, elevated to the peerage of Ireland, as Lord Hood of Catherington, for the decisive victory which he gained over the Count De Grasse in the West Indies, and was subsequently, in 1796, elevated to the peerage of Great Britain, by the title of Viscount Hood of Whitley, in the county of Warwick, his lady having, in the previous year, had granted to her, in her own right, the title of Baroness Hood of Catherington. Francis Wheler, eldest son of Henry, second Viscount, was a colonel in the army, and was killed in action on the heights of Aird, during the Duke of Wellington's advance into France, in March, 1814. Of that gentleman, the present peer is the grandson. His father had married Mary Isabella, daughter and heiress of Richard John Tibbits, Esq., through whom he derived the Barton-Segrave property.

BARTON-STACEY, SOUTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of the same name, Basingstoke division, union of Andover: it comprises the tithings of Barton-Stacey, Bransbury, Drayton, and Newton-Stacey: 62 miles from London, 8 from Stockbridge, 6 from Andover.—Sou. West. Rail. to Andover Road, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London to Andover Road, &c., 194 miles.—Money orders issued at Stockbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 4½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—A Roman road passes through the parish. There are parochial charities to the amount of £45 a year.—The living (All Saints), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £8. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £266: patron, Dean and Chapter of Winchester: pres. incumbent, F. Swanton, 1845: contains 4,520 acres: 120 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 561: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,227: poor rates in 1837, £232.—Fair, 31st July.

BARTON-STEEPLE, OXFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wooton, comprising the hamlets of Middle-Barton, and Sesswells-Barton: 78 miles from London (coach road 63), 5 from Doddington, 7 from Woodstock.—Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester, to Oxford, &c., 141 miles.—Money orders issued at Doddington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £7. 9s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £78: patron, W. and Mary Mister: pres. incumbent, R. Wright, 1808: contains 2,710 acres: 126 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 640: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 736: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,130: poor rates in 1837, £316.

BARTON-STREET, GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of St. Mary-de-Lode and St. Michael: 115 miles from London (coach road 103), 1 from Gloucester, 9 from Cheltenham.—Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester, to Gloucester, 94 miles.—Money orders issued at Gloucester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 904: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,040.

BARTON-IN-THE-STREET, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentakes of Bulmer and Ryedale, union of Malton, comprising the townships of Coneysthorpe, Barton-le-Street, and Butterwick: 246 miles from London (coach road 222), 5 from New Malton, 5 from Pickering.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and York to New Malton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 114 miles.—Money orders issued at Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—The church contains some curious sculptures.—The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, and diocese of York, is valued at £14. 18s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £450: patron, Lady W. Gordon: pres. incumbent, C. Hodgson, 1833: contains 3,180 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 419: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 482: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,856: poor rates in 1837, £184.

BARTON-IN-THE-STREET, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 218: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 251.

BARTON-TURFF, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Tunstead: 139 miles from London (coach road 121), 5 from Coltishall, 12 from Norwich.—East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough, to Norwich, &c., 177 miles.—Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, united with the rectory of Irstead, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £3. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £410: patron, Bishop of Norwich: pres. incumbent, John Gunn, 1829: contains 1,750 acres: 89 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 408: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,593: poor rates in 1837, £151.

BARTON-WESTCOTT, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wooton, union of Woodstock: 78 miles from London (coach road 64), 4 from Enstone, 7 from Woodstock. — Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Rugby, thence to Barton, 90 miles. — Money orders issued at Woodstock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £179: patron, Rev. S. Y. Seagrave: pres. incumbent, S. Y. Seagrave, 1836: contains 920 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 290: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 256: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,197: poor rates in 1837, £122.

BARTON-IN-THE-WILLOWS, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Cranh, wapentake of Balmer: 232 miles from London (coach road 206), 10 from York, 8 from New Malton. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and York to Barton station: from Derby, through York, &c., 100 miles. — Money orders issued at Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 980 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 232: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 267: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,568: poor rates in 1837, £77.

BARUGH (or BARGE), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Darton: 191 miles from London (coach road 175), 5 from Barnsley, 9 from Wakefield. — Nor. West. Rail. to Barnsley station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Barnsley station, &c., 59 miles. — Money orders issued at Barnsley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — Contains 1,660 acres: 197 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,088: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,251: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,584: poor rates in 1837, £123.

BARUGH-AMBO, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kirkby-Misperton, wapentake of Pickering lythe: 252 miles from London (coach road 223), 3 from Pickering, 18 from Scarborough. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and York to Pickering, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 120 miles. — Money orders issued at Pickering: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — Contains 2,150 acres: 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 338: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 389: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,816: poor rates in 1837, £142.

BARWELL, LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Sparkenhoe, union of Hinckley, comprising the chapelries of Potters-Marston and Stapleton: 104½ miles from London (coach road 101), 2 from Hinckley, 11 from Leicester. — Nor. West. Rail. to Nuneaton, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, Nuneaton, &c., 46 miles. — Money orders issued at Hinckley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — There is a school here, with an endowment, left by Mr. Gabriel Newton of Leicester, of £20. 16s. a year. — The living (St.

Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £20. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £865: patron, Rev. G. Mettam: pres. incumbent, George Mettam, 1803: contains 3,950 acres: 303 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,607: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,848: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,683: poor rates in 1837, £629.

BARWICK (or BERWICK), ESSEX, a hamlet in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ongar, parish of Rothing-Abbots— (which see for access, &c.)

BARWICK-WITH-STAFFORD, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Houndsborough, Berwick, and Coker, Yeovil division: 159 miles from London (coach road 123), 2 from Yeovil, 6 from Sherborne. — Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, 164½, thence 23 miles. — Money orders issued at Yeovil: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7. 14s. 7d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, J. Newman, Esq.: pres. incumbent, William Michell, 1822: contains 920 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 446: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 513: poor rates in 1837, £135. — Barwick House, the seat of John Newman, Esq., a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for the county.

BARWICK-BASSET, WILTS. See CALNE.

BARWICK (or BERWICK-IN-THE-BRAKES), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Smithdon, union of Docking: 117 miles from London, 4 from Burnham Westgate, 11 from Wells. — (For access, &c., see Burnham Westgate.) — Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 2 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £40: patron, D. Hoste, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. C. Hoste, 1843: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 32: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 37: poor rates in 1837, £76.

BARWICK (or BERWICK) -IN-ELMET, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Skyrack: it includes the townships of Barwick-in-Elmet and Roundhay, and the hamlets of Barnbow, Kiddal with Potterton, and Norwick with Scoles: 205 miles from London (coach road 188), 7 from Tadcaster, 2 from Aberford. — Nor. West. Rail. through Leeds to Parlington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 73 miles. — Money orders issued at Tadcaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 2 p.m. — On a neighbouring height, called Hall-Tower-Hill, there are the remains of an ancient fortress, said to have been the residence of Edwin, one of the most distinguished of the Northumbrian kings. In speaking of the ecclesiastical endowments, Tanner says of Barwick—Some where in the wood of Elmete, at Barwick-in-Elmete, as some think, was a monastery under the government of Abbot Thrydwulf, about A.D. 730. — The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Craven, and diocese of Ripon, is valued at £32. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £1,022: patron, Duchy of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, W. H. Bathurst, 1820: contains 8,030 acres: 397 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,275: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,616: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £9,658: poor rates in 1837, £240. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector and the lay impropriator, were commuted in 1796.

BASCHURCH, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Pimhill: 167½ miles from London (coach road 161), 8 from Shrewsbury, 10 from Oswestry. — Nor. West. Rail. to Stafford, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 96½ miles. — Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.; post closes 4 p.m. — There is a school here, endowed with about £400 a year, out of which, besides being educated, many of the scholars are clothed and apprenticed. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £10. 16s.: pres. net income, £203: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, William Jones, 1837: contains 8,490 acres: 214 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,491: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,714: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £9,461: poor rates in 1837, £635. Tithes commuted in 1777.

BASFORD, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Wyburnbury, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Nantwich: 160 miles from London, 5 from Nantwich, 8 from Sandbach. — Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Basford station, 154½ miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 61 miles. — Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Contains 490 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 97: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 112: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £785: poor rates in 1837, £54.

BASFORD, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Broxtow, union of Basford: 132½ miles from London (coach road 127), 3 from Nottingham, 12 from Mansfield. — Nor. West. Rail. to Nottingham, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 18½ miles. — Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The population has greatly increased, in consequence of the extension of the manufacture of lace, and the removal of the Court of Peveril to the neighbourhood has been another addition to its importance. — The living (St. Leodegarius), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8. 17s. 7d.: pres. net income, £260: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, H. R. Pitman, 1848: contains 2,270 acres: 1,261 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 8,688: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,000: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,239: poor rates in 1843, £4,000. The parish of Basford comprises three villages—Basford, where the parish church is; Carrington, a perpetual curacy, with a population of 2,400; and New Basford, with a similar population, and also a perpetual curacy; patron, the Crown; incumbent, T. A. Bolton. There are nine Methodist and three Baptist chapels in the parish. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1792.

BASFORD, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Chedleton, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Totmonlow: 170 miles from London (coach road 151), 3 from Leek, 7 from Cheadle. — Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester and Burton-on-Trent, to Newcastle-under-Lyne, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton, to Newcastle, &c., 48 miles. — Money orders issued at Leek: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Contains 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 345: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 396: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,443. — Basford Hall, the seat of the Rev. John Sneyd, incumbent of Ipstones, a magistrate of the county, and second son of William Sneyd, Esq. of Ashcombe Hall—(which see for an account of this ancient family.)

BASHALL (BASHALL-EAVES, or BECKSHALGH), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Mitton, western division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross: 233½ miles from London (coach road 222), 5 from Clitheroe, 16 from Lancaster. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Preston to Thornley, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Preston, &c., 135 miles. — Money orders issued at Clitheroe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — Contains 3,640 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 356: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 409: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,777: poor rates in 1837, £246.

BASILDEN (or BASILDON), BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Moreton, union of Bradfield: 45½ miles from London (coach road 47), 8 from Reading, 8 from Wallingford. — Gt. West. Rail. to Goring station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, Goring, &c., 162 miles. — Money orders issued at Reading: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — It is a long village, remarkable for the fertility of the soil and the high cultivation of the farms in the neighbourhood. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £7. 14s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Rev. W. Sykes and Simeon's Trust: pres. incumbent, R. B. Fisher, 1814: contains 3,120 acres: 159 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 812: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 934: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,142: poor rates in 1837, £362. — Fair, September 14, for toys. — Basildon Park, the seat of Sir Francis W. Sykes, Bart., is an imposing structure, built by Carr, after the design of Wentworth House, Earl Fitzwilliam's residence in Yorkshire. The mansion is superbly furnished, and commands many delightful views of the park in which it is placed, and which is finely undulated, and well stocked with deer. Sir Francis W. Sykes, the fourth baronet, is great-grandson of Francis Sykes, Esq., the descendant of an old family in Cumberland and Yorkshire, and who, having made a large fortune in India, and having been governor of Cosimbussar in that peninsula, was, in 1781, created a baronet. He bought the manor of Basildon of the Countess of Sandwich and the Countess de Salis, and greatly enlarged and improved the mansion. The present baronet succeeded to the titles and estates in 1843. — Basildon is now occupied by James Morrison, Esq., late M.P. for Inverness, and who is also the owner of the celebrated Fonthill Abbey.

BASILDON, ESSEX, a chapelry in the parish of Laindon, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Barstable: 25½ miles from London (coach road 27), 4 from Billericay, 12 from Gravesend. — East Co<sup>o</sup>. Rail. to Brentwood, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 157½ miles. — Money orders issued at Billericay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post

closes 6 p.m. — The living, a curacy annexed to the rectory of Laindon: contains 1,850 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 157: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 280: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,044: poor rates in 1837, £99.

BASING (OLD), HANTS, a township and chapelry in the parish and hund<sup>l</sup> of Basingstoke division: 50 miles from London (coach road 44), 2 from Basingstoke, 5 from Odiham. — Sou. West. Rail. to Basingstoke, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 182 miles. — Money orders issued at Basingstoke: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Old Basing is famous as having been the place where Ethelred I. was defeated by the Danes in 871. After the Conquest, the manor was assigned to Hugh de Porter, who also held not less than fifty-five lordships in this county. He erected a large castle, which was rebuilt on a magnificent scale by his lineal descendant, Sir William Paulet, who was created Marquis of Winchester by Edward VI., and who afterwards was made lord chamberlain to Queen Elizabeth. John, the fifth Marquis, was distinguished as a faithful and able adherent of Charles I., and defended the castle successfully during a siege of two years, until at last it was finally taken by Cromwell himself, on 14th October, 1645. Hugh Peters, who was at the end of the siege, in making his report to parliament, said, that "it was a house fit for an emperor to dwell in, it was so spacious and beautiful." The Marquis, from this defence, called the castle "Love-Loyalty," and caused the name, with a diamond, to be written on each of the windows, which so provoked the parliamentary troopers, that they burned the castle to the ground. There was a bed here, said to be worth £1,400, and the plunder was so great, that a private soldier got as much as £300 in money. The loyalty of the Marquis was the more remarkable, as it came from a Roman Catholic subject to a Protestant sovereign. The personal property destroyed with the castle was estimated at, at least, £200,000 — an immense sum at any time, but enormous in these days. The noble Marquis lived till the Restoration, but received no recompense for his losses. During the latter part of his life he lived at Englefield, in Berkshire, and was buried in the parish church, the following epitaph from the pen of Dryden being inscribed to his memory:—

"He who in impious times undaunted stood,
And 'midst rebellion durst be just and good—
Whose arms asserted, and whose sufferings more
Confirmed the cause for which he fought before—Rests here:—rewarded by a heavenly Prince
For what his earthly could not recompense.
Pray, reader, that such times no more appear—
Or, if they happen, learn true honour here.
Ark of this age's faith and loyalty,
Which, to preserve them, Heaven confined in thee.
Few subjects could a king like thine deserve,
And fewer such a king so well could serve.
Blest king, blest subject, whose exalted state
By sufferings rose, and gave the law to fate.
Such souls are rare; but mighty patterns given
To earth, and meant for ornaments to heaven."

Nor, though the extract be inconveniently long, can we refrain from contrasting, or rather conjoining, the spirits of the two greatest geniuses of their time. If Dryden, in his loyalty, sung in praise of loyalty and truth, the first of epic poets, and the secretary of Cromwell, was no less eloquent in praise of home virtue and loveliness. He wrote the epitaph of the Marquis's second wife, Jane, the accomplished daughter of Lord Savage, mother of Charles first Duke of Bolton, whose eccentric but able career will be described in the account of the noble Duke's family. Milton's epitaph is as follows. The Marchioness died in confinement:—

"Summers three times eight, save one,
She had told; alas! too soon,
After so short a time of breath,
To house with darkness and with death.

Once had the early matrons run
To greet her with a lovely son,
And now with second hope she goes,
And calls Lucina to her throes;
But, whether by mischance or blame
Atropos for Lucina came,
And with remorseless cruelty,
Spoiled at once both fruit and tree.

Gentle lady, may thy grave
Peace and quietness ever have."

The family are, by some, said to derive their name from Paulet, in Somersetshire, where they had been seated for some centuries in the early ages of English history, but with more probability from the ancestor whose name is given above. The first Marquis, in addition to his title, was made lord treasurer of England, and held that post through all the fitful changes of the reigns of Edward VI., Mary, and Elizabeth. To one who inquired how he contrived to retain his post through such a variety of circumstances, he replied, "by being a willow, not an oak." Charles, the sixth Marquis, was created Duke of Bolton by William III., which title continued in the family till the death of Harry, the sixth Duke, in 1794, when the dukedom lapsed; but the marquisate and the minor honours devolved upon George Paulet, Esq. of Ampot, in Hants, a lineal descendant of Lord Henry Paulet, second surviving son of William the fourth Marquis. The present, who is the fourteenth Marquis, succeeded his father in 1843. His lordship is premier marquis of England. — The living (Virgin Mary), is a curacy not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Basingstoke: contains 4,970 acres: 207 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,172: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,347: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,652: poor rates in 1837, £903.

BASINGSTOKE, HANTS, a market town and parish in the Basingstoke division of the county, situated in the hund<sup>l</sup> and union of Basingstoke, but having separate jurisdiction: 48 miles from London (coach road 46), 18 from Andover. — Sou. West. Rail. to station: from Derby, through London, and as above, 180 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — Basingstoke is situated in a fertile district, near a branch of the river Loddon. It consists of several streets, having many highly-respectable and well-built houses, and is well paved and lighted with gas. The place is mentioned in Domesday-book as being a royal manor, and as having a market. From the 23d year of Edward I. to the 4th of Edward II., it had the right of returning members to parliament; but that privilege was, at the latter of those two periods, withdrawn, in consequence of a petition to that effect from the inhabitants. A charter for incorporation was granted by James I., which was subsequently confirmed in the 17th year of his son's reign; but, under the Municipal Reform Act, the town is now governed by a mayor, four aldermen, and twelve councillors; and a commission of the peace has been granted to it. An annual court-leet is held here for the hundred, which extends over nineteen tithings. The church was erected in the reign of Henry VIII.: it is a spacious structure, and remarkable for having the north side built of stone, and the south side of stone and flint in alternate squares. A free school was established here by Queen Mary, and it now enjoys an income of £200 a year. The school itself is an ancient building, and is supposed to have originally been the parish church, especially as it adjoins the ruins of a chapel of the Holy Ghost; the master is appointed by the Crown, and the usher by the corporation. The educational institutions are numerous, and some of them are handsomely endowed. There are two almshouses, one founded in 1607, by Sir James Deane, for eight aged persons, and another by Mr. Joseph Page, for aged widows connected with the Independent congregation. The Rev. Thomas Warton, professor of poetry in the University of Oxford, was for some time master of the free school, and there his celebrated sons, Drs. Joseph and Thomas Warton, received their early education. The minor charities of the town are numerous. According to Tanner—King Henry III. founded an hospital here in the year 1261, at the instance and on the estate of Walter de Merton, who gave by his will 450 marks to purchase land for the better endowment of it, for the maintenance of aged and impotent priests; and after the foundation of Merton College in Oxford, the incurable scholars or fellows of that college were particularly to be sent thither. It was dedicated to St. Mary and St. John the Baptist. The mastership was very early attached to the wardenship of Merton College, Oxford. On an elevation, on the north-west of the town, are the remains of a chapel of the fraternity of the Holy Ghost, first erected by Lord Sandys, and Fox, Bishop of Winchester, which was dissolved by Edward VI., but restored by his sister Queen Mary. Cromwell made over the estates to parliament, but they have since been restored to the town, and are now appropriated to the support of the free school. In the burial-ground adjoining, which is called the Liten, there is a number of ancient monuments well worthy of notice, especially those to the memory of the Cufand family, who were an offset of the royal house of Plantagenet, who were settled at Cufand, in the neighbourhood, from the early Norman times. There are some inscriptions also to the memories of the Blunden family, also exceedingly interesting from their connection with the town, and one is well worthy of transcription from the elegance of its Latinity:—

H. S. E.

Gulielmus Blunden, Gen.
Gulielmi Blunden de Basingstoke generosus filius unicus
Novi Collegii Oxon. superioris ordinis Commensalis
Florentissimae Societatis grande ornamentum,
Totius etiam Academiae delicias,
Honorabilis Societatis Hospitalis Gralensis Studens,
Egregio aemulorum Ingenio, Moribus, Prudentia;
Et, quod raro alias reperitur est, inter ceteras
Animi dotes Modestia singulari,
ERRA Patrem pius, omnium amans, ab omnibus amatus;
Sed vitam ejus diuturnam facere non poterant
Quia fecerunt desideratum,

Ut qui occidit immaturam, Variolum spoliū,
Et triumphus Mortis nulli bono Nimium dolendus.
Obiit 10 Jan., 1706.
Ætat. suæ 25.

Several eminent men have been natives of Basingstoke, and among them John Basing or de Basingstoke, one of the most celebrated Greek scholars of the 13th century. — The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, to which are attached the chapelries of Basing and Upper Natley, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £30. 6s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £572: patron, Magdalen College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, James Blatch, 1814: contains 3,970 acres: 701 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,066: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,676: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £11,328: poor rates in 1837, £1,845. All the tithes, moduses, &c., were commuted in 1786. — Market day, Wednesday. Fairs, Easter-Tuesday and Whitsun-Wednesday, for pedlery; Sept. 23 and Oct. 11, for cattle and hiring servants. — Bankers, Seymour, Lamb, & Co.—draw on Masterman & Co. — Inns: Angel, the George, and Red Lion. — S. 1 m. is Hackwood House, the mansion of Lord Bolton, for account of whose family and residence, see CLIDDESDEN. — S. W. 1½ m Down Grange.

BASINGTHORPE-WITH-WESTBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven, union of Grantham: 138 miles from London (coach road 105), 3 from Corby, 8 from Grantham. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Syston, to Saxby station, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Syston, &c., 44 miles. — Money orders issued at Grantham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (St. Thomas à Becket), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, and annexed to the rectory of Westby, is valued at £8. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £191: patron, Earl Dysart: pres. incumbent, J. W. Evans, 1818: contains 920 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 137: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 157: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,699: poor rates in 1837, £122.

BASINGWICK, FLINT, a village in the parish of Holywell, and hun<sup>d</sup> of Coleshill, North Wales: 192 miles from London (coach road 204), 1 from Holywell, 5 from Flint. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Holywell, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Burton and Chester, &c., 91½ miles. — Money orders issued at Holywell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — There are the remains of an ancient abbey here, and a chapel which Henry II. erected for the Knights-Templars is still standing. Of the church nothing remains, but the Grange-house still retains its form and destination. It was founded by Ranulph, Earl of Chester, in 1131, and granted by Henry II. in 1159, to a community of Cistercian monks.

BASLOW, DERBY, a chapelry in the parish of Bakewell: 166½ miles from London (coach road 158), 3 from Stoney-Middleton, 10 from Chesterfield. — Nor. West. Rail. to Chesterfield, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 34½ miles. — Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy annexed to the vicarage of Bakewell, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield, is valued at £27. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £115: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, A. A. Barker, 1824: contains 2,360 acres: 165 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 962: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,102: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,088: poor rates in 1837, £318. The vicarial tithes of Baslow, and of Bubnell, Curbar, and Froggatt, the property of the vicar, were commuted in 1823. Baslow is in itself a very interesting village, but is much more so from its contiguity to the noble park of Chatsworth, the residence of the affluent and celebrated Duke of Devonshire. Derbyshire is noted for its picturesque and landscape beauty, and in no part of the country is there a greater combination of these two features of interest, than are to be met with in Chatsworth Park. Situated in the centre of a district excelled by none in its natural attractions, art seems to have been combined with nature to set out her advantages in the most delightful way. Sweeping sometimes with gentle undulations, and sometimes with precipitate falls, diversified with dells, underwood, burns, and noble forest trees, the land deepens to the banks of the silver Derwent, which, with its sparkling waters, meanders in quiet course through the grounds. Under the bluff of a lofty height, stands the chief mansion of the family, originally a large square-built house of imposing appearance, but undistinguished by any striking architectural embellishments; but of late years a wing has been added of fine proportions, which gives to the place an air of truly ducal magnificence. The apartments are of fine dimensions, and the grand hall, especially, is replete with sculpture of the finest order. In the grounds there are a number of curious and interesting artificial water-works, well deserving the attention of the visitor; but still the chief attraction of Chatsworth is to be found in the many and varied natural beauties by which it is surrounded. The noble house of Devonshire dates its English origin from Robert de Gernon, who came over from Normandy with William the Conqueror, and who, by his prowess and wisdom, contributed largely to the success of the expedition. Roger, the son of Geoffrey de Gernon, who resided in this county in the reign of Edward I., had a son named Roger, who married the heiress of John Potton of Cavendish, in Suffolk, and his children, out of respect to their mother, assumed the name of Cavendish. Roger, the eldest, was appointed Lord Chief Justice in 1366, but was seized and beheaded by the insurgents in Suffolk, in revenge of the death of Wat Tyler, whom it was reported his son had slain. On that son, named John, an annuity of £40 a year was, with other advantages, settled, for his activity in suppressing the rebellion. His great-grandson, Thomas Cavendish, was made Clerk of the Pipe, in the Exchequer, in the reign of Henry VIII. He had four sons, of whom the second, Sir William Cavendish, married the celebrated Countess of Shrewsbury. After the dissolution of the monasteries, he obtained large grants of church lands, and his son, Sir W. Cavendish, K.B., was elected to the peerage by the title of Baron Cavendish of Hardwicke, and afterwards Earl of Devonshire, in 1618. His great-grandson, William, the fourth Earl, was, in 1694, created Marquis of Huntington and Duke of Devonshire, and installed a Knight of the Garter. His Grace, who married Mary, a daughter of the Duke of Ormonde, was also Lord Steward of the Household. From that nobleman, the present Duke, who, like his ancestors, has always enjoyed a high position among the peerage of the realm, is a direct descendant. The noble Duke is also a great patron of literature and the fine arts, and has ever shown, towards those who are engaged in promoting the intellectual progress of the country, the countenance of a kindly, powerful, and affable friend. He was appointed grand ambassador to Russia in 1826, on the occasion of the coronation of the Emperor Nicholas, and is distinguished, in the fashionable world, not less for the hospitality of his entertainments, than the munificence of his household. E. J. m. Bubnall Hall, the seat of Captain Barker; it is an imposing mansion, built in the seventeenth century.

BASSALEG (or BASSALLEG), MONMOUTH, a parish partly in the upper and partly in the lower divisions of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wentloog, union of Newport: it includes the hamlets of Duffrin, Rogerston, and Graig: 139 miles from London (coach road 151), 3 from Newport, 20 from Bristol. Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence to Shireham, across the Severn to Gold Cliff, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Bristol, &c., 151 miles. Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. The special petty sessions for the division of Newport are held here once a year. Here, says Tanner, was a priory of Black monks, a cell to the Abbey of Glastonbury, to which the church of this place was given, by Robert de Haya and Gundreda his wife, some time between 1101 and 1120. This cell, which was dedicated to St. Basilus, seems to have gone into decay long before the general dissolution of religious houses. The educational institutions are numerous, one of which enjoys an endowment of £20 a year. There is also a small endowment for the select poor. On the brow of a neighbouring hill, there are the remains of two encampments, one supposed to be Saxon, and the other British, from which latter the Welsh name of the parish, Macsaaleg—in Latin, Campus Allecti—the battle-field of Allectus-Aleg, a Welsh prince. The living (St. Basil), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Monmouth, diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £14. 13s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £380: patron, Bishop of Llandaff: was endowed with the small tithes of Henllys and Risca (P. C.'s augmented with Q. A.'s bounty, and therefore now presentable benefices, in gift of the vicar of Bassaleg, but the present vicar (1838) has endowed Risca with its small tithes for ever): contains 6,290 acres: 234 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,731: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,991: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,829.

BASSENTHWAITE, CUMBERLAND, a parish in Allerdale ward, below Derwent: 311 miles from London (coach road 296), 5 from Keswick, 10 from Cockermouth. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Penrith, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 192 miles. Money orders issued at Keswick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 12 noon. This parish is divided into two constable-wicks, that in which the church stands being called the High-side, and that where the chapel stands called the Low-side. There is a mine of antimony wrought in the neighbourhood, and lead ore is found in the district. The river Derwent runs through the parish. The village is situated in a highly-beautiful district on the banks of the lake of Bassenthwaite, or Broadwater. On the east, Skiddaw, which is within the parish, rears its lofty head; and on the west, the cliffs called Winthroe Brows terminate abruptly in the lake. The neighbourhood of Bassenthwaite teems with lakelike and picturesque beauty: here turfy lawns, descending from some ridge of bare rock, fill the space between and the margin of the water; while oak trees, old as the Conquest, throw their gigantic arms about in the breeze, chequering the greensward with their shade; there rocks piled upon rocks seem to make a battlement against heaven; whilst further off, in the opening prospect, ranges of hills appear as if they were denizens of scenes of equally varied though of softer beauty. The living (St. Bridget), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £22. 4s. 8d.: pres. net income, £123: patron, Dean and Chapter of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, John Barnes, 1835: contains 6,930 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 536: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 616: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,453: poor rates in 1837, £261: the great and small tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the vicar, were commuted in 1770.

BASSET-HOUSE, LEICESTER, an extra-parochial liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Sparkenhoe: 130 miles from London (coach road 100), 13 from Leicester, 8 from Atherstone. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Atherstone, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Lichfield, and Atherstone, &c., 42 miles. Money orders issued at Atherstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. Contains 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 26: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 30: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £427.

BASILDON. See BASILDON, ESSEX.

BASSINGBOURN, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Armingford, union of Royston: 49½ miles from London (coach road 42), 5 from Royston, 9 from Petton. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Chesterford; thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Bletchley to Bedford, 102, thence 20 miles. Money orders issued at Royston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. Bassingbourn was constituted a market town by Henry III., but the privilege has long been disused. An Independent congregation was established here in 1791. The living (St. Peter), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 0s. 10d.: pres. net income, £224: patron, Dean and Chapter of Westminster: pres. incumbent, W. H. Chapman, 1833: contains 4,235 acres: 276 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,774: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,040: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,311: poor rates in 1837, £781: the great and small tithes, the property of the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, and of the clerical vicar, were commuted in 1801. Fair, on the festival of St. Peter and St. Paul.

BASSINGHAM, LINCOLN, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Boothby-Graffo, parts of Kesteven: 180 miles from London (coach road 133), 9 from Newark, 9 from Linseln. Nor.

West. Rail. through Nottingham and Newark, to Swinderby, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Newark, &c., 44 miles. Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £26. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £483: patron, Corpus Christi College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. W. King, 1832: contains 1,940 acres: 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 792: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 911: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,946: poor rates in 1837, £156.

BASSINGHAM. See BESSINGHAM, NORFOLK.

BASSINGTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Eglingham: 340 miles from London (coach road 312), 4 from Alnwick, 4 from Eglingham. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, York, and Newcastle, to Lesbury station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 208 miles. Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 7 p.m. Poor rates in 1837, £54.

BASTON, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Ness, parts of Kesteven, union of Bourn: 116½ miles from London (coach road 93), 4 from Market-Deeping, 9 from Stamford. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Helpstone station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Stamford, to Helpstone, &c., 78 miles. Money orders issued at Market-Deeping: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 1s. 3d.: pres. net income, £231: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. C. Cotton, 1836: contains 3,520 acres: 144 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 765: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 879: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,401: poor rates in 1837, £273.

BASTWICK, NORFOLK, a hamlet and parochial chapelry in the parish of Reppe—(which see for access, &c.): 117 miles from London, 5 from Acle, 9 from Norwich. Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.

BASWICK (or BERKSWICK), STAFFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cuttlestone, union of Stafford: the parish includes the chapelry of Acton-Trussell, with the townships of Baswick, Bednall, Brockton, Milford, and Walton: 134½ miles from London (coach road 139), 2 from Stafford, 8 from Rugeley. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Stafford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Stafford, 49 miles. Money orders issued at Stafford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. The parochial charities produce about £15 a year. The living (Holy Trinity), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the prebendary of Whittington and Baswick, in the cathedral of Lichfield, is valued at £30: pres. net income, £238: patrons, J. N. Lane, Esq., and Rev. C. Inge: pres. incumbent, T. L. Lane, 1836: contains 6,410 acres: 269 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,438: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,653: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,700: poor rates in 1837, £247.

BATCOMBE, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Yetminster, union of Cerna, Sherborne division of the county: 153 miles from London (coach road 127), 10 from Sherborne, 12 from Dorchester. — Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, 176, thence 30 miles. — Money orders issued at Sherborne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, united to that of Frome-Vaughan, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum: is valued at £9. 9s. 2d.; contains 1,790 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 171: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 196: poor rates in 1837, £48: the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1782.

AQUEDUCT OVER THE AVON NEAR BATH.

Drawn & Engraved for the English Architect.

Published for the Proprietors by H. G. COLEMAN, 25, Abchurch Lane, London.

BATCOMBE, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Whitestone, Shepton-Mallet division and union: 124 miles from London (coach road 112), 3 from Bruton, 6 from Shepton. — Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Westbury, 185 miles. — Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m. — The educational institutions are numerous. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory, united with the perpetual curacy of Upton Noble, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £26. 14s. 4d.: pres. net income, £690: patron, Rev. J. Brown: pres. incumbent, J. Brown, 1841: contains 3,150 acres: 171 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 780: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 896: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,597: poor rates in 1837, £534.

BATH, SOMERSETSHIRE: 106½ miles from London (coach road 106), 14 from Bristol. — Gt. West. Rail. to station: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, and Bristol, 142½ miles. — Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m. — Bath is unquestionably the site of one of the earliest settlements that was made in the British isles; its contiguity to the Atlantic, its easy distance from the coast, and the beauty of its situation, would all combine to render it attractive as a spot to rest in for the first wanderers in the great migration of nations; and when, in addition to these, is added the advantage of its medicinal springs, there is every reason to believe, that in very early ages it became the centre of an important district. The traditional account of its foundation is, that Bladud, king of Britain, who lived about 890 B.C., was troubled with leprosy, a misfortune which caused him to be banished from the court. In wandering in search of an alleviation for his malady, he was led to try the medicinal springs of Somerset, and was, by the use of them, restored to the fulness of corporeal health. In grateful commemoration of the benefit, he founded a town, and erected a palace upon the spot. Such was the origin of Bath. Beside this tradition, there is some incidental proof of the fact, that the value of these mineral springs was known to the neighbouring residents before the invasion of the Romans, from the circumstance that there was a British town here called Caer-Badon, or 'the place of Baths,' a name not at all dissimilar from that of Baden-Baden, the celebrated mineral bathing-place of Germany. At any rate, there is no doubt that bath-houses of considerable pretensions were erected here in the reign of Claudius, the Roman emperor; the foundations of which were discovered, in 1755, about fifteen feet below the surface of the ground. The Romans gave it the name of Aquæ Solis, or 'the waters of the sun.' On the retrenchment of their empire in the fifth century, Bath again became a possession of the ancient inhabitants of the isle, who retained it until the Saxons obtained it after the battle of Deorham, which was fought about eight miles from the walls of the city. The Saxons called it Hat-Baden, or 'hot baths,' and Acemannes-ceaster, or 'the city of sick men.' It was the site of one of the earliest monastic institutions in Britain. In speaking of it, Tanner says—King Osric built, in the year 676, a nunnery here, which being destroyed by the Danes during the wars of the heptarchy, King Offa, about the year 775, is said to have rebuilt the church of St. Peter, and to have placed secular canons therein, who soon became famous. But King Edgar removed them, and in their room fixed here, about 970, an abbot and convent of Benedictine monks. These continued here till the general dissolution of monasteries; but John, Bishop of Wells, having obtained a grant of this city and monastery from William the Conqueror, and finely new built the church of St. Peter, made it his cathedral, and assumed the title of Bishop of Wells, in the time of Henry I., and henceforth the monks were governed by a prior. The yearly revenues of this monastery were valued, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., at £695. 6s. 1d., and the site of it was granted in the 34th year of the same reign to Humphrey Collins. Some time after the Restoration, Charles II. was induced by the advice of his physicians to try the internal application of the Bath waters, and the king's example soon rendered the resort to them general. Bath is now one of the handsomest cities in the world. The baths, to which the city chiefly owes its celebrity and wealth, are five in number—the King's bath, the Queen's bath, the Hot bath, the Cross bath, and the Kingston bath, the last of which is the property of Earl Manvers. The others are the exclusive property of the corporation, who retain the management of them; and from them, and the profits of the Pump-room, obtain an income of about £1,500 a year. The revenue from the Pump-room is derived from subscriptions for drinking the waters. The Pump-room is an elegant and spacious hall, built in 1797, for a promenade for the company, and for drinking the waters; it is 85 feet long, 48 wide, and 34 high; the ceiling being supported by elegant Ionic pillars, having at the east end a statue of the celebrated Beau Nash, who first officiated as master of the ceremonies. The baths are, of course, provided with all the appliances which luxury or sensitiveness can desire. The Hot bath derives its name from the superior heat of its waters, which average about 117° of Fahrenheit. By chemical analysis, these waters have been found to contain carbonic acid and nitrogen gas in small quantity, some sulphate and muriate of soda, sulphate and carbonate of lime, silicious earth, and oxide of iron. The taste of them is not disagreeable, and their use is recommended in biliary derangements, cutaneous eruptions, and indeed in all chronic cases wherein gentle stimulus is required. Beside the Pump-room, the public buildings are numerous and ele- gant. The city is built on a rising ground, so that terrace rises above terrace, and villa above villa, in so rich a combination as to produce the effect of a fairy scene; and, indeed, the whole place has an air of aristocratic elegance and social comfort not to be surpassed. Bath with Wells forms a bishopric, which will be minutely described in its appropriate place in a subsequent part. The city of Bath was formerly divided into four parishes, viz.: the Abbey of St. Peter and St. Paul, a vicarage; St. Swithin's, or Walcot, a rectory; and St. Michael and St. James, curacies not in charge. By a charter of Queen Elizabeth, all these parishes, with the exception of Walcot, were consolidated under one rectory, with the annexed chapelries of Lyncombe and Widcombe; the gross income being about £750 a year, and, until recently, it was under the patronage of the corporation. The abbey church is a fine old building, cotemporary with those glories of their period—King's College, Cambridge, St. George's, Windsor, and the chapel of Henry VII. at Westminster; but though possessing the general features of these celebrated edifices, in elegance of proportion and similarity of aspect, it is simple even to plainness. It is cruciform, with a tower at the intersection, which rises to the height of 170 feet. In 1840, the rectory of Walcot was again resolved into three livings—Walcot, Trinity, and St. Saviour's, each of which has its appropriate place of worship. The other places in connection with the Establishment for divine service are numerous and convenient; and there are also places of worship for almost every denomination. The places of amusement, as might be expected, are numerous; the chief of them being the Grand Ball-room, one of the noblest rooms in the country. It is 105 feet long, 43 wide, and 42 high; the expense of its erection, with the necessary adjacent offices, being upwards of £20,000. Here the subscription assemblies and concerts are, as at Brighton, under the management of a master of the ceremonies, whose office first originated with the celebrated Beau Nash. He was a singular exemplar of that truth, that eminence is restrained from no course or position in life. He was born at Swansea, in Glamorganshire, in 1674, and was at first intended for the law, but entered the army. That he soon quitted, and took chambers in the Temple, where he devoted himself entirely to the pursuits of pleasure; and being distinguished for his address, was made master of the pageants, when William III. visited the Benchers. The king was so much pleased with his courtly manner, that he offered to knight Nash, who, from the narrowness of his circumstances, very wisely refused the dangerous honour. In 1704, he was appointed master of the ceremonies at Bath, an office for which he was admirably qualified; and, by a happy union of wit, vivacity, good sense, gentlemanly manner, and perseverance, soon drew the whole of the beau monde to this capital of the west. His success at the gaming-table enabled him to live in splendid style. His dress was at all times superb; and during more than fifty years, he was called the King of Bath. But a blight came, as it will come on all earthly things; and the master of the revels died in obscurity and indigence. The benefits which he had been the means of bestowing upon Bath, were too prominent not to secure some acknowledgment. His remains were honoured with a public funeral, and Dr. Harrington wrote a poetic record to his memory, which has been placed in the abbey church, and is as follows:—

"If social virtues make remembrance dear,
Or manners pure on decent rule depend;
To his remains consign one grateful tear,
Of youth the guardian, and of all the friend.
Now sleeps dominion; here no bounty flows,
Nor more avails the festive scene to grace;
Beneath that hand which no discernment shows,
Untaught to honour or distinguish place."

Bath seems at all times to have been the locale for refined recreation and refined enjoyment. Not far from those of Nash lie the remains of a congenial genius, James Quin, distinguished alike for his naiveté as a man, his ability as an actor, and his readiness as a wit. He was born in London in 1693, and for a number of years performed at Drury Lane Theatre, without a rival in reputation till Garrick appeared. He retired from the stage in the character of Sir John Falstaff, a part in which it is believed, he never was excelled. He spent the latter part of his life at Bath, and was buried in the abbey church. In ordinary intercourse he was gentlemanly and sensible, but was unfortunately somewhat addicted to the bottle, and when excited was apt to be coarse and quarrelsome, a disposition which led him into no less than three hostile encounters. He died in 1766, and the following epitaph, from the pen of Garrick, was inscribed to his memory:—

"That tongue which set the table on a roar,
And charm'd the public ear, is heard no more;
Closed are those eyes, the harbingers of wit,
Which spake before the tongue what Shakespeare writ:
Closed is that hand, which living was stretched forth,
At friendship's call, to succour modest worth.
Here lies James Quin:—Dign, reader, to be taught,
Whate'er thy strength of body, force of thought,
In nature's happiest mould however cast,
To this complexion thou must come at last."

As, in other places, all the old royal charters for the government of the city were abrogated by the Municipal Reform Act, and the corporation now consists of a mayor, 14 aldermen, and 42 common councillors, the city being divided into seven wards. Petty sessions for the division are held at the Guildhall and at Chandos House; and a court of requests for debts under £10 is held here every Wednesday, the jurisdiction of which extends over the city of Bath, the parish of Walcot, the hundreds of Wellow and Bath-Forum, with the liberties of Claverton, Easton, Hampton, and Amrill, in Somersetshire. In addition, Bath has had a commission of the peace granted, and a recorder appointed. The average income of the corporation is about £12,500 a year. The elective franchise has been enjoyed by the city ever since the time of Edward I., by whom it was first conferred. The trade of Bath depends greatly upon its visitors; the influx of whom brings, during the summer season, an increase of 14,000 or 15,000 to its population. The city communicates with the sea by means of the river Avon, which flows through it, and with London for merchandise, by means of the Kennet and Avon Canal, which falls into the river Thames, to say nothing of the railway. On the rising grounds in the neighbourhood of the city, there is an extensive Roman Catholic monas-

J. F. Burrell del.

A. Ashby sculp.

BECKFORD'S TOWER & TOMB, WALCOT CEMETERY, N<sup>W</sup> BATH.

Drawn & Engraved for the English Gardens

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S HOSPITAL, BRANDON HILL, CLIFTON

Drawn & Engraved for the Bristol & Gloucester Railway

Published (for the Proprietors) by H.G. COLLINS 22, Paternoster Row.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S HOSPITAL, BRANDON HILL, CLIFTON

Drawn & Engraved for the Bristol & Gloucester

Published (for the Proprietors) by H.G. COLLINS 22, Paternoster Row.

tic institution; and a Protestant college, called Queen's College, is in course of foundation. A free grammar-school was founded in Bath in the time of Edward VI., which is under the management of the corporation. The other educational institutions are as numerous as might be desired, and several of them have endowments. The charitable institutions are various, and in extent, principle, and support, commensurate with the wants of so extensive and important a locality. In the neighbourhood of such a place, the number of gentlemen's residences are such as to defy enumeration; but it may be observed, that they generally wear the air of the locality in which they are placed. Market-days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs, 14th February, 10th July, for cattle and cheese. Bankers, Moger & Son—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.; Tugwell, Mackenzie, & Co.—draw on Barnard and Dimdales; West of England and South Wales—draw on Glyn, Halifax, & Co.; Stuckey's Banking Co.—draw on Jones, Loyd, & Co., and on Roberts, Curtis, & Co.; National Provincial Bank of England—draw on London Joint Stock Bank. Newspapers, Bath and Cheltenham Gazette, published on Wednesday; Bath Chronicle on Thursday; Bath Herald on Saturday, and Bath Journal on Saturday. Inns: York House, White Hart, White Lion, Castle and Bull, Angel.

BATHAMPTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund of Hampton and Claverton, union of Bath, connected with Bath by a number of suburban villas: 108½ miles from London (coach road 104), 2 from Bath, 11 from Chippenham. Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 144½ miles. Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.; post closes 9 p.m. The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bath, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7. 17s. 1d.: contains 860 acres: 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 354: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 406: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,560: poor rates in 1837, £54.

BATHEALTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund of Milverton, Wellington division: 175 miles from London (coach road 153), 3 from Wiveliscombe, 5 from Wellington. Gt. West. Rail. to Wellington, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Wellington, &c., 189 miles. Money orders issued at Wiveliscombe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The living (St. Bartholomew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bath, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7. 2s. 6d.: pres. net income, £226: patron, Rev. E. Webber: pres. incumbent, E. A. Webber, 1842: contains 740 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 135: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 155: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,789: poor rates in 1837, £82.

BATH-EASTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the liberty and union of Bath, hund of Bath-Forum: 109½ miles from London (coach road 103), 3 from Bath, 10 from Chippenham. Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 145 miles. Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The line of buildings being now pretty well uninterrupted, Bath-Easton may fairly be considered a portion of the city of Bath. The church is an elegant Gothic structure, with an embattled tower, and a peal of twelve bells. On Salisbury Hill, in the neighbourhood, are the remains of an entrenched camp of the Saxons, formed during the siege of Bath in 577. The educational institutions are numerous, one of which has an endowment for the education of ten boys. The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, with the curacy of St. Catherine annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bath, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £9. 6s. 5d.: pres. net income, £298: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, S. Madan, 1824: contains 1,900 acres: 341 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 2,191: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 2,520: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,094: poor rates in 1837, £491. Spring Grove, Bindon House.

BATHELE. See BALE, NORFOLK.

BATHFORD, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund of Bath-Forum, union of Bath: 110½ miles from London (coach road 102), 4 from Bath, 13 from Devizes. Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 146½ miles. Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. There is a picturesque eminence in the neighbourhood, called Hampton Cliff, from which the prospects on every side are beautiful. The living (St. Swithin), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bath, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £8. 18s.: pres. net income, £395: patron, Dean and Chapter of Bristol: pres. incumbent, James Carter, 1824: contains 2,030 acres: 166 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,099: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,264: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,957: poor rates in 1837, £242: tithes commuted in 1839.

BATH-HAMPTON, DEVON. See HAMPTON.

BATHLEY (or BATHELEY), NOTTINGHAM, a township in the parish of North Muskham: 161 miles from London (coach road 128), 4 from Newark, 1 from Muskham. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Newark, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, to Newark, &c., 37 miles. Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Contains 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 227: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 261: poor rates in 1837, £63.

BATHWICK, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund of Bath-Forum, union of Bath—(which see for access): 107½ miles from London (coach road 105), 1 from Bath, 12 from Chippenham. Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. This is one of the most important suburbs of Bath, with which it is joined by two admirable bridges over the Avon, and includes within its precincts some of the finest streets of Bath, and, among others, Severn Street, Sidney Place, Great Pulteney Street, and, in addition to them, Sidney Gardens. Not long ago, the site was simply a marshy district, occasionally overflowed by the river. Bathwick is within the jurisdiction of the city. The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory and vicarage, with Wolley, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bath, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £3. 6s. 3d.: pres. net income, £209: patron, Lord W. Poulett: pres. incumbent, H. M. Scarth, 1841: contains 630 acres: 693 houses:

pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,972: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 7,717: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £35,242: poor rates in 1837, £1,456.

BATLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish partly in the lower division of the wapentake of Agbrigg, and partly in the wapentake of Morley, union of Dewsbury: this parish is within the jurisdiction of the new court of requests for the parishes of Halifax, Bradford, &c., and contains the townships of Batley, Morley, and Churwell, with the chapelry of Gildersome: 204 miles from London (coach road 189), 4 from Dewsbury, 8 from Leeds. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Sheffield, and Oakenshaw, to Dewsbury, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 72 miles. — Money orders issued at Dewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of woollen cloths. The parish church was erected in the reign of Henry VIII.; but a new church has lately been built, in the Gothic style, at the expense of about £3,000. A free school was erected and endowed here about 1612, for about sixty children, with property producing now about £120 a year; and the other educational institutions are numerous. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Ripon, is valued at £16. 11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £300: patrons, Earl of Cardigan, and Earl of Wilton, alternately: pres. incumbent, Andrew Cassels, 1839: contains 6,390 acres: 2,309 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 14,278: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 16,419: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £14,977: poor rates in 1837, £927.

BATSFORD (or BATTESFORD), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kiftsgate: 95 miles from London (coach road 88), 2 from Moreton, 7 from Stow. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Moreton-in-the-Marsh, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester, to Moreton, &c., 98 miles. — Money orders issued at Moreton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The Great Roman Road to Cirencester passes through the parish, and there are traces of a Roman entrenchment within its precincts. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the diocese of Gloucester, now in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £13. 3s. 9d.: pres. net income, £370: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, C. G. Hutchinson, 1841: contains 980 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 79: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 90: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,004: poor rates in 1837, £128.

BATTEL, SUSSEX. See BATTLE.

BATTERLEY, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Barthomley, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill: 170 miles from London (coach road 158), 8 from Sandbach, 8 from Newcastle. — Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and Burton, to Newcastle-under-Lyne, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Newcastle, &c., 49 miles. — Money orders issued at Newcastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Contains 1,020 acres: 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 351: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 403: poor rates in 1837, £169.

BATTERSBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Ingleby-Greenhoe, western division of the liberty of Langbaurgh: 292 miles from London (coach road 242), 5 from Stokesley, 7 from Gisborough. — Nor. West. Rail. through York and Darlington to Stockton, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 160 miles. — Money orders issued at Stokesley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — Contains 740 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 88: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 101.

BATTERSEA, SURREY, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brixton, union of Wandsworth and Clapham: 2 miles from London, 2 from Clapham. — Money orders issued in London: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — In consequence of the manner in which the ground is laid out, the living is one of the best in the neighbourhood of London. The church, which was rebuilt in 1777, is a neat brick structure, but a new church has lately been erected here, at the cost of about £3,000, the living of which is a curacy subordinate to the vicarage. The Baptists and the Wesleyans have each a chapel here, and the educational institutions are numerous. A training school was established here a few years ago, under the auspices of Dr. Kay, secretary to the Council of Education. Battersea anciently belonged to the Abbey of St. Peter at Westminster, and its inhabitants now raise a large quantity of vegetables for the London markets. The parish is within the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal Court, and a court-leet of the lord of the manor of Wandsworth is held, where a headborough and constables for the parish are appointed. On the site afterwards occupied by Hodges' distillery was the mansion of the St. John family, often visited by Pope, who is reported to have written some of his best works here, in a little wainscotted parlour overlooking the Thames. Battersea gives the title of Bolingbroke to the family, and here Henry St. John, first Lord Bolingbroke, the celebrated statesman and writer, was born and died; and in the church there is a monument to his memory, sculptured by Roubilliac, which has a long inscription, describing him as the "enemy of no national party, the friend of no faction"—as "distinguished by zeal to maintain the liberty and to restore the ancient prosperity of Britain." On each side of the inscription there are profile medallions of Lord Bolingbroke and his second wife, who was a niece of Madame de Maintenon, the celebrated mistress of Louis XIV. But the most singular monument in the church is one on the south wall, to the memory of Sir Edward Wynter, with a basso-relievo, representing him performing two most extraordinary exploits. Respecting the first, it is related that, while residing in India, he was once, when unarmed, attacked by a tiger in the woods, when he placed himself by the side of a pond, and when the ferocious animal sprang at him, he caught him in his arms, fell back with him into the water, got upon him, and then held him down until he was drowned. The other achievement for which he is celebrated is still more wonderful, and is noticed in the following lines, which form part of the epitaph:—

"Alone, unarmed, a tiger he oppressed,
And crushed to death the monster of a beast.
Twice twenty mounted Moors he overthrew,
Singly, on foot; some wounded, some he slew;
Dispersed the rest—what more could Samson do?"

— The living (Virgin Mary), a vicarage in the

archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, diocese of Winchester, is valued at £13.15s.2½d.: pres. net income, £982: patron, Earl Spencer: pres. incumbent, J. S. Jenkinson, 1847: contains 3,020 acres: 957 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,887: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 7,920: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £33,060: poor rates in 1837, £3,701.

BATTISFORD, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>red</sup> and union of Bosmere and Claydon: 80 miles from London (coach road 71), 3 from Needham, 11 from Ipswich. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Needham, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London to Needham, &c., 209 miles. — Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — Tanner says of this place, that—An hospital of Knights of St. John of Jerusalem was erected here so early as the reign of Henry II., and was valued in the 26th of Henry VIII. at £53. 10s. per annum, and was granted in the 35th of the same reign to Sir Richard Gresham. — The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8. 0s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, Rev. E. Paske: pres. incumbent, Edward Paske, 1821: contains 1,542 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 520: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 598: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,680: poor rates in 1837, £152.

BATTLE (or BATTEL), SUSSEX, a parish and market town in the hund<sup>red</sup> and union of Battle, rape of Hastings: 82½ miles from London (coach road 56), 8 from Hastings. — London and Brighton Rail. to Hastings, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 214½ miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. — This place is famous as having been the site, or near the site, of the celebrated battle between the host of Harold and that of William Duke of Normandy, which consigned one to the tomb, and gave to the other the fair realm of England. All authorities agree in declaring the murderous obstinacy with which the fight was contested, and that it ended at last in favour of the invaders, only in consequence of the superior numbers which they had brought into the field. After the fight, which lasted from nine in the morning till long after the dusk of an October day, William pitched his tent on the spot ever which, in the morning, the English flag had waved, and there vowed to erect an abbey in honour of God, and in commemoration of his victory. Upon that very spot subsequently arose the altar of Battle Abbey, the superior and monks of which were not only richly endowed, but invested with extraordinary privileges—a league of land all round it being given for their support, an exemption from any control from the metropolitan see of Canterbury being also added. The town, which, according to Burrell, was formerly called St. Mary-in-the-Wood, stands in a beautiful valley, surrounded by eminences crowned with trees, and is now famous for the manufacture of gunpowder. The church is a handsome structure in the early English style. The village consists principally of one street, which runs up the side of an eminence, and at the top of which stand the remains of the famous abbey. Battle is within the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who here hold the petty sessions for the division. The revenues of the abbey, according to Speed, amounted, in the 26th of Henry VIII., to £987.

VOL. I.

0s. 10½d., and the site was granted, in the 30th year of the same monarch's reign, to Sir Anthony Browne. The ruins of the abbey are still considerable, and the materials of the conventual buildings have been made available in erecting a mansion for the lord of the manor. The site of the monastery was granted to a person named Gilmer, who pulled down a great part of the buildings in order to dispose of the materials, and who subsequently disposed of the estate to Sir Anthony Browne. Some generations afterwards, the descendants of the knight began to convert the remains into a mansion, which after a time was sold by Lord Montague to Sir Thomas Webster, who made the place his residence. The mansion, which has all the air of a conventual abode, stands on a gentle rise, with a beautiful declivity sweeping gently before it for miles, varied by meadows and woods, and confined by timbered heights, till it meets the sea at Hastings. The remains of the old abbey occupy three sides of a square, the fourth having been levelled to admit a view of the country when the modern mansion was completed. Battle Abbey is now the residence of Sir Godfrey Webster, the sixth baronet of his line, who succeeded his father, the late Sir Godfrey, in the title and estates in 1836. The family date their immediate origin from John Webster, who was a person of high consideration in the time of Henry VI., at Bolsover, in Derbyshire, and whose direct descendant, Thomas Webster, Esq., was created a baronet in 1703. The present baronet is a lieutenant in the navy. — The living (Virgin Mary), a vicarage, with the name and jurisdiction of a deanery, and exempt from episcopal jurisdiction, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £24. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £396: patron, Sir G. V. Webster: pres. incumbent, J. Littler: contains 7,880 acres: 497 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,039: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,495: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £10,122: poor rates in 1837, £1,235. — Market day, Thursday. Fairs, Whit-Monday, and Nov. 22. — Bankers, Smith, Hilder, & Co. — draw on Masterman & Co. — Star Inn, George Hotel.

BATTLE, BRECON, a parish and village in the hund<sup>red</sup> of Merthyr, union of Brecknock, South Wales: 189 miles from London (coach road 174), 3 from Brecon, 9 from Treacastle. — Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, across the Channel to Penarth, thence to Merthyr-Tydvil by railway, and thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 202 miles. — Money orders issued at Brecknock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3 p.m.: post closes 9 a.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Brecon, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £5. 5s.: pres. net income, £73: patron, Trustees of J. Browne, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Williams, 1846: contains 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 176: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 202: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £975: poor rates in 1837, £61. — Pennoyne House, the seat of Colonel J. L. V. Watkins, lord-lieutenant of the county.

BATTLE-BRIDGE, MIDDLESEX, a hamlet in the parish of St. Pancras: 1 mile from London, 1 from Holborn-bars, 2 from Paddington.

BATTLE-FIELD, SALOP, a parish in the union of Atcham: 162½ miles from London (coach road 155), 3 from Shrewsbury, 9 from Wem.

2 D

—Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Stafford, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 92 miles. —Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —The place is principally famous as the site of the great battle fought between Henry IV. and Percy Earl of Northumberland, in which the Earl and Harry Hotspur, his gallant son, were slain, and Henry was secured in possession of the throne. No character in English history stands forth more strikingly for nobility of character, according to the age he lived in, than that of Hotspur. This is the acknowledgment of Henry V., one of his warmest foes, and who subsequently became distinguished for true manliness of character, while sending a challenge to his antagonist:—

"Tell your nephew—
The Prince of Wales doth join with all the world
In praise of Henry Percy: by my hopes,
This present enterprise set off his head,
I do not think a braver gentleman—
More active-vallant, or more vallant-young—
More daring or more bold—is now alive,
To grace this latter age with noble deeds."

—The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, now in the diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £3: pres. net income, £233: patron, A. W. Corbet, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. O. Hopkins, 1836: contains 850 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 64: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 73: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £740: poor rates in 1837, £56. —Fairs, August 2, for horned cattle and sheep.

BATTLES DEN, BEDFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Manshead, union of Woburn: 44½ miles from London (coach road 39), 3 from Woburn, 4 from Leighton. —Nor. West. Rail. to Leighton-Buzard, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Leighton, &c., 96½ miles. —Money orders issued at Beaconsfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —The living (St. Peter), a rectory united with that of Potsgrove, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £12. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £306: patron, Sir G. P. Turner, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. W. Whinfield, 1822: contains 1,140 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 179: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 205: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,420: poor rates in 1837, £167. —Battlesden Park.

BAUGHURST, SOUTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Evingar, division and union of Kingsclere: 55 miles from London (coach road 54), 7 from Basingstoke, 11 from Newbury. —Sou. West. Rail. to Basingstoke, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 187 miles. —Money orders issued at Basingstoke: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £7. 12s. 1d.: pres. net income, £188: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, D. Williams, 1846: contains 1,020 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 528: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 607: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £972: poor rates in 1837, £163.

BAULKING (anciently BATHELKING), BERKS, a hamlet and chapelry, formerly a market town, in the parish of Uffington, hund<sup>d</sup> of Shrivenham: 66

miles from London (coach road 66), 4 from Farringdon, 6 from Wantage. —Gt. West. Rail. to Farringdon Road station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse, to Farringdon Road, &c., 129 miles. —Money orders issued at Farringdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —The living is a curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Uppingham: pres. net income, £65: patron, C. Eyre, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Frederick Tufnell, 1848: contains 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 193: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 222: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,798: poor rates in 1837, £151. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1777.

BAUMBER (or BAMBURGH), LINCOLN, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Gartree, parts of Lindsey: 153 miles from London (coach road 141), 4 from Horncastle, 12 from Louth. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Southey station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Southey, &c., 62 miles. —Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —The living (St. Swithin), a curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £30: pres. net income, £57: patron, Duke of Newcastle: pres. incumbent, J. B. Smith, D.D., 1824: contains 3,200 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 371: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 426: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,927: poor rates in 1837, £173.

BAUNTON, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Crowthorne and Minety, union of Cirencester: 97 miles from London (coach road 91), 2 from Cirencester, 17 from Gloucester. —Gt. West. Rail. to Cirencester, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse, to Cirencester, &c. 122 miles. —Money orders issued at Cirencester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —The living, a curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £67: patron, Miss Masters: pres. incumbent, G. F. Masters, 1843: contains 1,310 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 184: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 211: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,251: poor rates in 1837, £82.

BAUSELEY, MONTGOMERY, a township in the parish of Alberbury, hund<sup>d</sup> of Deythur, North Wales: 175½ miles from London (coach road 165), 10 from Welchpool, 12 from Shrewsbury. —Nor. West. Rail. to Stafford, thence 43 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stafford, &c., 105 miles. —Money orders issued at Welchpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 12 noon. —Contains 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 419: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 482: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,069: poor rates in 1837, £106: tithes commuted 2d William IV.

BAVANT-FIFIELD. See FIFIELD-BAVANT.

BAVERSTOCK, WILTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Cawden, and Cawdworth, Salisbury, and Amesbury division, union of Wilton: 103 miles from London (coach road 88), 7 from Salisbury, 13 from Shaftesbury. —Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Chippenham, to Westbury, 171, thence 18 miles. —Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £11. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £296: patron, Exeter College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, W. E. Hony, 1827: contains 710 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 197: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 227: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,502: poor rates in 1837, £74.

BAVINGTON (GREAT), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Kirk-Whelpington: 328 miles from London (coach road 292), 12 from Hexham, 20 from Newcastle. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, York, and Newcastle, to Hexham, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 196 miles. — Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Contains 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 80: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 92: poor rates in 1837, £33.

BAVINGTON (LITTLE), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Thockrington—(which see for access, &c.) — Contains 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 82: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 94.

BAWBURGH, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Forehoe: 120½ miles from London (coach road 105), 5 from Norwich, 5 from Wymondham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Wymondham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, &c., 159 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The living (St. Walstan), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £13. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Dean and Chapter of Norwich: pres. incumbent, George Carter, 1828: contains 2,070 acres: 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 465: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,940: poor rates in 1837, £35.

BAWDESWELL (or BALDESWELL), NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Eynesford, union of Mitford and Launditch: 133½ miles from London (coach road 107), 4 from Reepham, 3 from Swanton. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Wymondham, to East Dereham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough and Lynn, to Dereham, &c., 129 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £208: patron, E. Lombe, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. G. Webster, 1848: contains 1,310 acres: 131 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 582: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 669: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £965: poor rates in 1837, £227.

BAWDRIPE, SOMERSET, a parish in the northern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Petherton, union of Bridgewater: 153 miles from London (coach road 136), 3 from Bridgewater, 11 from Glastonbury. — Gt. West Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Bridgewater, &c., 167 miles. — Money orders issued at Bridgewater: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £15. 19s. 7d.: pres. net income, £360: patron, Rev. John Warren: pres. incumbent, Edward Page, 1844: contains 1,780 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 425: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 420: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £4,350: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BAWDSEY, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wilford, union of Woodbridge, bounded by the German Ocean: 81 miles from London (coach road 80), 8 from Woodbridge, 13 from Ipswich. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Ipswich, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through London to Ipswich, &c., 213 miles. — Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — A market was formerly held here, under a grant of Edward I., but it has fallen into disuse. — The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £193: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, A. Tighe Gregory, 1848: contains 2,640 acres: 89 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 468: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 538: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,014: poor rates in 1837, £222. — Fair, September 8.

BAWSEY, NORFOLK, a parish in the Lynn division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Freebridge, union of Freebridge Lynn: 118½ miles from London (coach road 99), 3 from Lynn, 4 from Castle-Rising. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Lynn, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, &c., 124½ miles. — Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £55: patron, A. Hammond: pres. incumbent, W. B. Coulcher, 1822: contains 1,090 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 28: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 32: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £631: poor rates in 1837, £18.

BAWTRY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry and market town, partly in the parish of Blyth, southern division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill, and partly in the Hatfield division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bassetlaw, county of Nottingham, though generally regarded as wholly in the former: 190 miles from London (coach road 153), 9 from Doncaster. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough, Lincoln, and Retford, to Bawtry: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 35 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The chapel was first erected in the reign of Henry II., but was rebuilt in 1686; a tower being added in 1712. The river Idle, or Iredale, on which Bawtry stands, and which is navigable for small craft, is the boundary between Nottinghamshire and Yorkshire. — The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a chapelry to the parish of Blyth, is a curacy not in charge: pres. incumbent, G. H. Eyre, 1847: contains 270 acres: 218 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,083: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,245: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,857: poor rates in 1837, £401. — Market day, Thursday. — Fairs, Thursday in Whitsun-week, and Old Martinmas-day. — Bankers, Yorkshire Banking Company—draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co. — Inns, the Crown, and the Angel.

BAXTERLEY, WARWICK, a parish in the Atherstone division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, union of Atherstone: 104½ miles from London (coach road 111), 5 from Atherstone, 7 from Tamworth. — Nor. West. Rail. to Atherstone, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Atherstone, &c., 27½ miles. — Money orders issued at Atherstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £262: patrons, Lord Chancellor and another, alternately: pres. incumbent, F. Morse, 1834: contains 850 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 228: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 262: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,406: poor rates in 1837, £118. — Baxterley Hall, a seat of the Marquis of Downshire, the details of whose family history will be given with the account of East Hampstead Park, Berks, his lordship's principal residence.

BAYDON, WILTS., a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Ramsbury, union of Hungerford, Marlborough and Ramsbury division: 79 miles from London (coach road 69), 2 from Aldbourne, 10 from Swindon. — Gt. West. Rail. to Shrivenham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse, to Shriventon, &c., 142 miles. — Money orders issued at Hungerford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Nicholas), a perpetual curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wilts, diocese of Sarum, subordinate to the vicarage of Ramsbury: pres. net income, £110: patron, Rev. A. Meyrick: pres. incumbent, Thomas Meyler, 1834: contains 3,060 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 335: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 385: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,243: poor rates in 1837, £246.

BAYESDALE, NORTH RIDING, YORK., in the parish of Stokesley, eastern division of the liberty of Langbaugh. — Formerly a small Cistercian nunnery, founded first at Hoton, by Ralph de Nevil, about 1162, after which the nuns were at Thorpe; and, in the time of Henry II., by the benefaction of Guido de Bovingcourt, they settled here.

BAYFIELD, NORFOLK., a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Holt: 147 miles from London (coach road 122), 2 from Holt, 10 from Wells. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>o</sup>. Rail. to East Dereham, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough, to East Dereham, &c., 166 miles. — Money orders issued at Holt: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. sinecure rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £39: patron, Mrs. E. J. Best: pres. incumbent, Caleb Elwin, 1800: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 21: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 24.

BAYFORD, HERTFORD., a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Hertford: 30 miles from London (coach road 21), 4 from Hertford, 6 from Hatfield. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>o</sup>. Rail. to Hertford, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 162 miles. — Money orders issued at Hertford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The chapel contains some ancient monuments of the Baker family. — The living, a curacy not in charge, attached to the rectory of Essendon, and having jointly a pres. net income of £550: patron, Marquis of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, R. H. Webb, 1844: contains 1,450 acres: 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 357: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 410: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,346: poor rates in 1837, £135. — Bayfordbury is the seat of William R. Baker, Esq., who married a lady descended from Sir H. Fynes Clinton, third son of the second Earl of Lincoln, who is at present a magistrate for Hertfordshire, and who served the office of high sheriff of the county in 1836. Though of ancient origin, the family derive their immediate descent from Sir William Baker, who, in 1757, purchased the manor of Bayford, built the mansion-house, and surrounded it by a park taken in from the surrounding domain. The son of Sir William Baker, William Baker, Esq., represented the county in five successive parliaments. The grandson of that gentleman is the present proprietor of the estates. The mansion is imposing, and stands in a commanding situation; the park is extensive, and has many beautiful landscape effects. Bayford Hall; Brickendon Hall.

BAYHAM, SUSSEX. a hamlet in the parish of Frant, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Rotherfield, rape of Pevensey — (which see for access, &c.)

BAYLEHAM, SUFFOLK., a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bosmere and Claydon: 75 miles from London (coach road 72), 3 from Needham, 7 from Ipswich. — East. Co<sup>o</sup>. Rail. to Claydon station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 207 miles. — Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £12. 4s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £256: pres. incumbent, Wm. Celville, 1828: contains 830 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 275: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 318: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,983: poor rates in 1837, £240.

BAYSWATER, MIDDLESEX., a hamlet in the parish of Paddington: 1 mile from London, 1 from Tyburn.

BAYTON, WORCESTER., a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Doddingtree: 143 miles from London (coach road 130), 6 from Bewdley, 8 from Tenbury. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Stourport, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stourport, &c., 82 miles. — Money orders issued at Bewdley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Bartholomew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage united with that of Mable, is valued at £5. 0s. 2d.: having jointly a pres. net income of £328: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, D. Davies, 1845: contains 1,960 acres: 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 468: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 538: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,904: poor rates in 1837, £121. The tithes, moduses, &c., were commuted in 1814.

BAYVILL, PEMBROKE., a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kemeess, South Wales: 260 miles from London (coach road 248), 3 from Newport, 9 from Cardigan. — Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the channel to Penarth, thence by railway to Merthyr-Tydvil, whence 85 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Stonehouse, &c., 274 miles. — Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in connection with the perpetual curacy of Moylgrove, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Cardigan, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £224: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, D. E. Morgan, 1846: contains 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 130: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 149: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £284: poor rates in 1837, £58.

BAYWORTH, BERKS., a hamlet in the parish of Stunningwell—(which see for access, &c.): 58 miles from London, 2 from Abingdon, 4 from Oxford.—There is a chapel here, which, if we may believe Syson, was much resorted to for private marriages before the marriage act was passed.

BEACHAMPTON, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Buckingham: 58½ miles from London (coach road 53), 6 from Buckingham, 3 from Stratford.—Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Wolverton, &c., 86½ miles.—Money orders issued at Buckingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—There is a school here endowed with £48 a year, and the other parochial charities produce about £15 per annum.—The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Oxford, is valued at £14. 16s. 6d.: pres. net income, £379: patron, Caius College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, R. N. Russell, 1835: contains 2,110 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 248: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 285: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,271: poor rates in 1837, £137.

BEACHAMWELL, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Clackclose, union of Swaffham: 98 miles from London (coach road 94), 6 from Swaffham, 6 from Stokeferry.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Downham-Market, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough and Wisbeach, to Downham, &c., 131 miles.—Money orders issued at Swaffham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, formed of the consolidated and discharged rectories of All Saints with Shingham, and St. John's and St. Mary's: contains 3,730 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 292: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 336: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,076: poor rates in 1837, £124.

BEACHINGSTOKE (or BIRCHAM-STOKE), WILTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Swanborough, union of Devizes: 77 miles from London, 5½ from Devizes.—Gt. West. Rail. to Hungerford, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse, to Swindon, 129, thence 22 miles.—Money orders issued at Devizes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £7. 2s. 11d.: patron, G. Heneage, Esq.: contains 740 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 215: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 247: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,529: poor rates in 1837, £140.

BEACHLEY, GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Tidenham, at the confluence of the Wye with the Severn—(which see for access, &c.): 131 miles from London, 3 from Chepstow, 13 from Bristol.—There is a ferry here across the Severn, to which tradition refers as the scene of a conference between Edward the Elder, and Leolin, Prince of Wales.

BEACHWOOD, HERTFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Flamstead—(which see for access, &c.)—Bishop Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—In this parish, at a place formerly called Wodechurch, after St. Giles-in-the-Wood, and lately Beachwood, Roger de Toney, in the time of Stephen, founded a small priory for nuns of the order of St. Benedict, dedicated to St. Giles, valued, in the 26th year of Henry VIII, at £46. 16s. 1d.; and granted, in the 31st of the same reign, to Sir Richard Pagr.

BEACONSFIELD, BUCKINGHAM, a market town and parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Burnham, union of Amersham: 31 miles from London (coach road 23), 8 from Uxbridge.—Gt. West. Rail. through Maidenhead to Beaconsfield station: from Derby, through London, 163 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—The town stands on an eminence on which beacon-fires were formerly lighted, and from which circumstance, of course, the name is derived. The church at one time belonged to a monastery of Augustine friars, founded at Burnham, in 1165, by Richard, Earl of Cornwall; the revenues of which were valued, at the dissolution, at £94. 5s. 11d. Within the church there is a monument to Edmund Burke, who lived at a seat in the neighbourhood called Gregories, and the memory of whose genius and character will remain to the last day of English history. Of all British statesmen, Edmund Burke is, in some respects, the most remarkable. Distinguished as a writer, an orator, and a statesman, there is in his character the far higher distinction of the moral courage and the moral elevation of acknowledging the mistaken conception of a noble genius—of renouncing associations by which evil had been made to appear good—and of declaring his adherence to those rules of right which are based on the Scriptures. He was the son of a highly-respectable attorney in Dublin, where he was born in 1730. After completing his collegiate course at Trinity, Dublin, he entered as a student of the Temple; but in his case, as in many others, literature soon displaced law; and the exertions he made for a subsistence, in the course of time induced a severe illness, during which he became acquainted with Dr. Nugent, whose daughter he married. In the simplicity of an ardent imagination, the wild woodcraft of primeval society seemed the very sphere in which innocence of heart and the sober dignity of human nature were most excellently developed; and in his 'Vindication of Natural Society,' he portrayed his views in a most powerful and effective manner. The atrocities of the French Revolution dispelled a day-dream, which was too little consistent with human nature and human life, as they really are, and he awoke to wiser, though, it may be, cooler impressions of both. This work introduced him to the political world, and he became a member of the House of Commons. There, after the first efforts of immaturity had passed, he speedily became distinguished as an orator of the highest order of eloquence, remarkable alike for the fulness and classic purity of his diction, and for the comprehensiveness and the deep philosophy of the principles which he evolved; and his speeches are still, and ever will be, quoted as depositories of sound thought and enlarged conception. After having been long esteemed both for his public and private life, he died in 1797. There is a monument also to the memory of Edmund Waller, the poet, whose property principally laid in the vicinity of Beaconsfield. The town consists of four streets, which meet in a centre, where there is a good market-place; but the High-street, which is about three-quarters of a mile in length, forms a part of the road from Uxbridge to High Wycombe. Petty sessions for the second division of Burnham are held here; and there are two Independent chapels. The educational institutions are numerous, and there are several small charities chiefly arising from the bestowment of the Waller family. — The living (All Saints), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £26. 2s. 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £545: patron, Magdalen College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, John Gould. 1819: contains 3,710 acres: 325 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,732: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,992: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,924: poor rates in 1837, £580. — Market day, Wednesday. Fairs, Feb. 13, and Holy Thursday. — Saracen's Head, and White Hart Inns.

BEADLAM (or BEWDLAM), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kirkdale: 247<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 225), 3 from Helmsley, 2 from Kirkby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leeds to Thirsk, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 115<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles. — Money orders issued at Kirkby-Lonsdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 3<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. — Contains 620 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 173: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 198: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,032: poor rates in 1837, £85: tithes commuted in 1817.

BEADNELL, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township and chapelry in the parish and ward of Bambrough: 352<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 321), 9 from Belford, 13 from Alnwick—(which see.) — The chapel is an elegant Gothic structure. The village stands on the sea-shore, where there is a small harbour. Besides a small endowment of a school by Lord Crew, there is a Sunday school supported by Shafto Craster, Esq. — The living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £79: patron, Perpetual Curate of Bambrough: pres. incumbent, John A. Wood, 1830: contains 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 323: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 371: poor rates in 1837, £141.

BEAFORD, DEVON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Shebbear, division of Black Torrington and Shebbear, union of Torrington: 225 miles from London (coach road 200), 9 from Hatherleigh, 5 from Torrington. — Gt. West. Rail. to Crediton, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Crediton, &c., 239 miles. — Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £11. 15s. 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £315: patron, Rev. C. Wood: pres. incumbent, Charles Wood, 1848: contains 3,760 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 713: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 820: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,736: poor rates in 1837, £265.

BEAGHALL, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kittington: 207 miles from London (coach road 178), 6 from Pontefract, 6 from Selby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Pontefract, to Hensall station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Pontefract, &c., 75 miles. — There is a small school endowment here. — Money orders issued at Pontefract: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Contains 1,570 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 647: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 744: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,775: poor rates in 1837, £252.

BEAKESBOURNE (or LEVINGSBOURNE), KENT, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bridge and Petham, lathe of St. Augustine, union of Bridge: 85 miles from London (coach road 59), 4 from Canterbury, 12 from Dover. — Sou. East. Rail. to Canterbury, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 217 miles. — Money orders issued at Canterbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £211: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, J. C. Robertson, 1846: contains 1,200 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 332: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 382: poor rates in 1837, £190.

BEAL, DURHAM, a hamlet in the parish of Kyloe, district of Islandshire, which belongs to the county-palatine of Durham, though situated in the north of Northumberland: 330 miles from London, 8 from Belford, 8 from Berwick. — (See KYLOE for access, &c.) — The place is remarkable as having been the residence of the Irish female saint Begogh. In 1334 there were lands at Beal ad curagium, that is, devoted to pay fees to the hangman.

BEALINGS (GREAT), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Carleford, union of Woodbridge: 74 miles from London (coach road 76), 3 from Woodbridge, 7 from Ipswich. — East Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 206 miles. — Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £250: patron, Edward Moor, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Edward J. Moor, 1844: contains 830 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 377: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 433: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,658: poor rates in 1837, £105. — Bealings House, the residence of Major Moor. — Beacon Hill House.

BEALINGS (LITTLE), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Carleford, union of Woodbridge: 75 miles from London, 4 from Woodbridge, 9 from Wickham. — (For access, &c., see preceding article.) — The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 7s. 3<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £140: patron, F. Smythies, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Robert Smith, 1848: contains 410 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 322: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 370: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £842: poor rates in 1837, £120.

BEAMINSTER, DORSET, a market town and chapelry in the parish of Netherbury, hund<sup>d</sup> of Beaminster-Forum and Redhone, Bridport division and union of Beaminster: the chapelry contains the hamlets of Axknoll, Langham, Marsh, Meerhay, North Maperton, Parnham, and Wansley; and is divided into two manors, which form the prebends of Beaminster Prima and Secunda in the cathedral church of Salisbury: 159 miles from London (coach road 141), 18 from Dorchester. — Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Taunton, 176, thence 25 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>

7½ a.m. post closes 5¼ p.m.---Beaminster is a pleasing-looking town, on the river Birt, a stream here of sufficient width to be interesting, though formed only by the confluence of several rivulets rising in the immediate neighbourhood. The place is of considerable antiquity, although, from having suffered severely, not less than three times, from fire, the houses are of modern appearance. The first of these calamities occurred during the civil war, whilst the town was occupied for the king by Prince Maurice. During the second conflagration, which occurred in 1684, the town was burned to the ground; and again, in 1781, an extensive fire occurred, which destroyed more than fifty houses. The chapel, which stands on an eminence on the south side of the town, is a remarkably fine edifice, with a tower 100 feet high. Beaminster is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, and the petty sessions were formerly held here, but they have lately been removed to Bridport: the place is now one of the polling-places for the county. Alms-houses for six poor persons were founded here in 1627, by Sir John Strode of Parkham, and the other parochial charities are numerous, and, for the size of the town, extensive. Among them there is a school, endowed, in 1684, by Mrs. Frances Tucker, with lands, which now produce £160 a year. One, at least, of the scholars must be sent to sea every year. The other schools are numerous. The Rev. Samuel Hood, father of the two celebrated admirals, Lords Hood and Bridport, was master of this school in the early part of the last century. Many of the inhabitants are employed in the manufacture of sail-cloth, and flax has been dressed here to some extent. An Independent church was formed here in 1688.---The living (Virgin Mary), a curacy not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Netherby and curacy of Ash, having jointly a pres. net income of £700: patron, Prebend thereof: pres. incumbent, Hon. S. Hay. 1844: contains 4,350 acres: 566 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,270: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,760: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £11,659: poor rates in 1837, £1,273.---Market day, Thursday. Fairs, April 4, Sept. 19, and Oct. 9.---Bankers, R. & H. Williams---draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co.---White Hart, and Red Lion Inns.

BEAMISH, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Chester-le-Street: 300 miles from London (coach road 265), 6 from Durham, 10 from Sunderland.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Durham, to Washington station, thence to Beamish: from Derby, through York, &c., 168 miles.---Money orders issued at Durham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 4,120 acres: 322 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,125: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,444.---Beamish Hall.

BEAMSLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township partly in the parish of Addingham, and partly in that of Skipton, upper division of the wapentake of Claro: 215 miles from London, 6 from Skipton, 2 from Addingham.---(For access, &c., see ADDINGHAM).---Money orders issued at Otley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---An hospital was founded here, by Margaret Countess of Cumberland, in the reign of Elizabeth, the revenues of which produce about £360 a year; out of which annuities of £16 a year each are paid to twelve of the almswomen, and one of £18 a year to the thirteenth.---Contains 1,820 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 279: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,409: poor rates in 1837, £66.

BEANLEY, NORTHUMBRLAND, a township in the parish of Eglington: 353 miles from London (coach road 314), 8 from Alawick, 9 from Wooler.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Long Houghton station, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through York, Newcastle, &c., 222 miles.---Money orders issued at Alawick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---The cross on Hedgeley Moor, at a small distance from the village, was erected to the memory of Sir Ralph Percy, an officer in the Lancastrian army, who fell, in 1464, in a battle with the Yorkists.---Contains 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 194: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 223: poor rates in 1837, £120.

BEARD, DERBY, a township in the parish of Glossop, hun<sup>d</sup> of High Peak: 178 miles from London (coach road 177), 15 from Manchester, 23 from Sheffield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Shaley Bar, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Ambergate, to Shaley Bar, &c., 46 miles.---Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Contains 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 325: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 374: poor rates in 1837, £756.---Beard Hall.

BEARL, NORTHUMBRLAND, a hamlet in the parish of Bywell St. Andrew---(which see for access, &c.): 2 miles from Bywell.---Contains 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 80: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 92: poor rates in 1837, £20.

BEARLEY, WARWICK, a parochial chapelry in the Snitterfield division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barlichway: 118 miles from London (coach road 97), 4 from Stratford, 8 from Warwick.---Nor. West. Rail. through Coventry and Leamington, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, Coventry, and Leamington, &c., 72 miles.---Money orders issued at Stratford-on-Avon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8¼ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, subject to the vicarage of Wootton-Wawen: pres. net income, £62: patron, Provost and Fellows of King's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, Thomas Jones, 1846: contains 810 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 231: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 266: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,135: poor rates in 1837, £101.

BEARSTEAD (or BERSTAD), KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eyehorne, lathe of Aylesford, union of Maidstone: 59 miles from London (coach road 37), 3 from Maidstone, 9 from Chatham.---Sou. East. Rail. to Maidstone, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 135 miles.---Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Petty sessions are held here for the eastern division of the lathe.---The living (Holy Cross), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £6. 7s. 4d.: pres. net income, £191: patron, Dean and Chapter of Rochester: pres. incumbent, Charles Cage, 1795: contains 640 acres: 116 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 605: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 696: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,967: poor rates in 1837, £236. — Fair, 25th September. — Mill Gate.

BEARSTON, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Muckleston, northern division of Firehill: 163 miles from London (coach road 157), 4 from Drayton, 12 from Nantwich. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Whitmore station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Lichfield, to Whitmore, &c., 56 miles. — Money orders issued at Fenny-Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 109: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 125.

BEARWARDCOTE, DERBY, a township in the parish of Etwell, hund<sup>d</sup> of Appletree: 138 miles from London (coach road 130), 6 from Derby, 8 from Sudbury. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Derby, thence 6 miles. — Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Contains 89 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 541: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 622: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,334: poor rates in 1837, £38.

BEATHWAITE-GREEN, WESTMORELAND, a hamlet in the parish of Haversham, Kendal ward — (which see for access, &c.): 258 miles from London, 6 from Kendal, 7 from Burton. — There is a Wesleyan chapel here.

BEAUCHIEF ABBEY, DERBY, an extra-parochial liberty in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Scarsdale: 160 miles from London, 4 from Sheffield, 10 from Chesterfield. — (For access, &c., see SHEFFIELD.) — At Beauchief was one of the lesser monasteries, though richly endowed. It had lands at Dore, Sheffield, Dronfield, and Norton, as well as more remote estates in the counties of Leicester and Nottingham, besides interest in several neighbouring towns and villages. The abbey was originally founded by Robert Fitz-Ranulph, lord of Alfreton, in expiation, it is believed, of the share he took in the murder of Thomas à Becket at Canterbury; and Dugdale, in speaking upon the subject, says—Robert Fitz-Ranulph, lord of Alfreton, Norton, and Marnham, was one of the four knights who martyred the blessed Thomas à Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, and afterwards founded the monastery of Beauchief, by way of expiating his crime, in the reign of Henry II. Dr. Pegge of Whittington, whose authority is certainly to be respected, demurs to this assertion, but Fuller, Tanner, and others who have written upon the subject, all concur in confirming Dugdale; and it does certainly seem to be a strange argument for the Doctor to cite, when he says, as a proof of his disbelief in the report of Fitz-Ranulph's part in the tragedy, that his brother shortly afterwards stood high in the favour of the king. Most people would have thought that the king, who, for many public reasons, would be precluded from openly countenancing the assassins, would be too ready to show a regard for the near relatives of those who had rid him of a dangerous subject and a domineering tyrant. When Becket had attained the canonization of the Romish Church, the abbey was dedicated to him. By a deed, executed at Richmond, the liberty of Beauchief is freed from all assessed taxes. The chapel is a small building, with an ancient tower, which formerly belonged to the abbey. — The living is a denotive in the diocese of Lichfield: patron, P. P. Burnall, Esq.: contains 780 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 74: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 85: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £847.

BEAUDESERT, WARWICK, a parish in the Henley division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Barlichway, union of Stratford-on-Avon: 118 miles from London (coach road 102), 1 from Henley-in-Arden, 16 from Birmingham. — Nor. West. Rail. through Coventry to Leamington, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, to Coventry and Leamington, &c., 71 miles. — Money orders issued at Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — A fair and market were formerly held here under a charter granted by Stephen, and there was a castle erected here soon after the Conquest, the site of which can still be traced. The church is an excellent specimen of early English architecture. The parochial charities produce about £4 a year. — The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7. 6s. 4d.: pres. net income, £292: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, S. Holland, 1805: contains 840 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 205: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 236: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,504: poor rates in 1837, £145.

BEAULIEU, HANTS, a parochial chapelry in the liberty of the same name, eastern division and union of New Forest: 84 miles from London (coach road 82), 7 from Southampton, 7 from Lymington. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Beaulieu Road station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 216 miles. — Money orders issued at Southampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m. — The village is situated on a river of the same name, which is navigable from here to the open sea. Just opposite to the village, on the other side of the river, are the remains of the ancient abbey of Beaulieu, a part of the outer wall of which, the only remains, encompass an area of a mile and a quarter in circumference. The abbey was founded for thirty Cistercian monks by King John in 1204, and its revenues at the dissolution were valued at £428. 6s. 8d. The site was granted in the 30th year of Henry VIII. to Thomas Wriothesley, Esq., and the manor still retains one of the privileges of the ancient institution, an exemption of arrest from debt. The abbey was also a sanctuary, and afforded an asylum to Margaret of Anjou, Queen of Henry VI., after the battle of Barnet; and also to Perkin Warbeck, after his advance from Cornwall, during the reign of Henry VII. The name of the place, however, is derived from an hospital of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, who were induced to give it the name of Boileau from the beauty of its situation. From the spot on which it stood there is a fine view, commanding, to the eastward, Spithead and the entrance to Portsmouth harbour, and on the west, Hurst Castle and the Rudles. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in making sacking. There are several schools, and a Baptist congregation was formed here in 1833. — The living (St. Bartholomew), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester: pres. net income, £140: patron, Duke of Buccleuch: pres. incumbent, F. W. Baker, 1847:

contains 9,480 acres: 240 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,339: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,540: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,229: poor rates in 1837, £805. — Fairs, April 15, and September 4, for horses and horned cattle.

BEAUMANOR, LEICESTER, an extra-parochial liberty in the western division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Goscote: 116 miles from London (coach road 106), 3 from Loughborough, 8 from Leicester. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Barrow station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, 19½ miles. — Money orders issued at Loughborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — Contains 1,210 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 113: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 130. — Beaumanor Park, the seat of William Herrick, Esq., who is descended from a long line of ancestry. Dean Swift, in speaking of them, says—There is a tradition that the most ancient family of the Ericks derived their lineage from Erick the Forester, a great commander, who raised an army to oppose the invasion of William the Conqueror, by whom he was vanquished, but was afterwards employed in a command in that prince's forces, and in his old age retired to his house in Leicestershire, where his family have continued ever since. And it is certain, that long before the Conquest the family were settled upon their own lands at Great Stretton, in the same county. In the 15th and 16th centuries, several of them were members of the corporation of Leicester. William, the youngest son of John Eyrick or Heyrick, was largely engaged by Queen Elizabeth and King James I. in the public service, and was sent in the course of his service as ambassador to the Ottoman Porte. On his return he was rewarded with an appointment in the Exchequer, and having acquired a considerable fortune, bought the interest of the Earl of Essex in the park and other estates of Beaumanor. During the civil wars, his property suffered severely, and he at last died at Leicester in 1652-3, having for some years been the representative of that place in the House of Commons. From Sir William Heyrick, the present proprietor, who is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant, and who served the office of high sheriff of Leicestershire in 1835, is the seventh in descent. The mansion is large, commodious, contains some good pictures, and is beautifully situated.

BEAUMARIS, ANGLESEA, a parish, borough, and market town in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Tyndaethway, union of Bangor and Beaumaris, island of Anglesea, North Wales: 246 miles from London (coach road 251), 7 from Bangor. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Bangor, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Chester, &c., 146 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The town is situated on a picturesque bay of the same name, at the entrance of the Menai Strait, and consists almost entirely of one street, in which there are many handsome houses, the principal buildings being the church, the town-hall, the county-hall, the free school, and the custom-house. The basement of the town-hall is occupied as a market-house, and above it are ample accommodation for the business of the corporation, and a spacious and elegant assembly-room. A castle was erected at the top of the principal street, about 1295, by Edward I., but it is now in ruins, and its remains form a very picturesque object. During the civil war it was garrisoned for the king, and gallantly defended for a long time by Lord Bulkeley, who was, however, at last obliged to surrender, though on honourable terms, to General Mytton. It still forms a property of the Crown. About the beginning of the present century, a handsome tennis-court, fives-court, and bowling-green, were formed within its precincts; and, instead of dwelling upon the barbarous warfare of former days, as Lloyd says,—

"The mase delighted owns a happier fate,
When no portcullis shuts the guarded gate,
When walls that echoed to the plaints of woe,
Repeat the milk-maid's song, the cattle's low;
And where the embattled legion erst was drawn,
Exulting reason feasts upon the lawn."

The corporation was first instituted, and derived their revenues, under a charter of Edward I., and it has returned one member to parliament since the time of Edward VI.; by the Reform Bill the borough boundaries have been extended to Holyhead, Llangefni, and Amlwch with the suburbs. It is the nomination place for electing the county member; but its commercial importance, if it ever had any, has declined, and a few sloops are now the only vessels which frequent the port. The bay, which is small and sheltered, and often a place of refuge for vessels in distress, may be entered at any time of the tide. As a bathing-place, however, Beaumaris enjoys much distinction, and a steam-boat plies nine months in the best time of the year between this port and Liverpool. The view from the Green possesses all the characteristics of Welsh scenery—picturesque from the variety of its objects, but yet extensive, commanding a noble prospect of the strait, enclosed by the promontory called Orme's Head, and bounded in the distance by the mountains of Carnarvon, which rise, height beyond height, till they terminate in the lofty summit of Snowdon. The church, which stands in the middle of the town, is an imposing structure. A free school was founded here by Mr. David Hughes, a native of the town, in 1603, and the other educational institutions are numerous. The same charitable gentleman also erected six almshouses, endowed with an annuity for each of the inmates, to which Lord Bulkeley made an addition. This nobleman also bequeathed £2,000 to the corporation, the interest of which is applied to charitable uses, and the general well-being of the town. The Independents, and the Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodists, all have chapels here. Adjoining the town there is a ferry, passable at low water, which was first granted to the corporation for the purposes of revenue in the reign of Elizabeth, and near to it was the ancient friary of Llanffaes, founded about 1240 by Llewellyn, Prince of Wales. Part of its remains may now be seen incorporated in the walls of a barn; but on the site of the monastery a mansion has been erected, which is the residence of Sir R. Williams Bulkeley, Bart., the tenth possessor of the title, who married, firstly, Charlotte Mary, a daughter of Lord Dinorben, and, secondly, Maria Frances, only daughter of Sir Thomas Massey Stanley, Bart., of Hooton. Sir R. Williams Bulkeley is the present representative of one of the most ancient and distinguished families in the country, which, in common with those of the royal house of Tudor, that of Lord Mostyn, and those of the Lloyds of Plymog, and other distinguished families, deduce their origin from Marchudd ap Cynan, Lord of Abergelen, in Carnarvonshire, who was founder of the eighth noble tribe of North Wales and Powys, and who was contemporary with Rhodri Mawr, King of Wales, who succeeded to the throne in 843. From him was descended Ednyfed Vychan, Lord of Brynffennig, in Denbighshire, who was the founder of the second noble tribe of North Wales and Powys. His son, Sir Tudor ap Ednyfed Vychan, was one of the commissioners for the conclusion of the peace between Edward I. and Llewellyn ap Iorwerth, King of North Wales. From him descended, through a line of ancestry, every member of which held a distinguished position in his country, William ap Griffith, who led as his own retinue a troop of horse to Bosworth field, in support of the claim of Henry Earl of Richmond to the throne of England, and whose eldest son, William, first assumed the name of Williams. A great-grandson of his, John Williams, attained to high honours in the church, being created Bishop of Lincoln, Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, and Archbishop of York. He also accumulated great wealth, and purchased several of the estates which the family now enjoy. A nephew of this distinguished prelate, Griffith Williams, who inherited his uncle's property, was raised to the baronetcy in 1661, and from that gentleman, through his third son, Edmund, the present baronet is descended. He succeeded to the title and estates in 1830. The living, a curacy with the rectory of Llandegvan, having jointly a pres. net income of £366: patron, Sir R. B. W. Bulkeley, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Hugh Jones, 1843: contains 410 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,299: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,644: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,077: poor rates in 1837, £920. Market day, Saturday. Fairs, February 13, Holy Thursday, September 19, December 19. Inns: Bulkeley Arms, and Liverpool Arms.

BEAUMONT, CUMBERLAND, a parish in the ward of Cumberland: 316 miles from London (coach road 306), 5 from Carlisle, 7 from Gretna. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Carlisle to Winch Hill, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe and Carlisle, &c., 208 miles. Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The children belonging to the parish are entitled to attend at the school of Kirk-Andrew's-upon-Eden. In the year 1323, Robert Bruce encamped in the village with his army, and sent a detachment to ravage the neighbourhood for five days. The river Eden and the Carlisle canal run through the parish. The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, which was united in 1692 with that of Kirk-Andrew's-upon-Eden, in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Carlisle, and diocese of Carlisle and Man, is valued at £8.1s.8d.: having jointly a pres. net income of £249: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, W. Benn, 1846: contains 1,470 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 288: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 331: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,816: poor rates in 1837, £16. Tithes commuted in 7th and 8th Geo. IV.

BEAUMONT-WITH-MOZE, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Tendring: 67 miles from London (coach road 66½), 16 from Colchester, 9 from Harwich. East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Colchester, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 199 miles. Money orders issued at Harwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The village lies near the extremity of an inlet of the North Sea, between the Naze and Harwich. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel, and there is a National school here. The living (St. Leonard), a rectory consolidated with that of Moze, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Colchester, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £18: pres. net income, £652: patrons, Governors of Guy's Hospital: pres. incumbent, W. R. Browell, 1839: contains 2,890 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 451: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 518: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,462: poor rates in 1837, £283.

BEAUMONT-LEYS, LEICESTER, an extra-parochial liberty in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Goscote: 104 miles from London (coach road 100), 2 from Leicester, 1 from Belgrave. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Leicester, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 31½ miles. Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. Contains 1,210 acres: 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 32: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 37.

BEAUSALL, WARWICK, a hamlet in the parish of Hatton—(which see for access, &c.): 96 miles from London, 6 from Warwick, 4 from Kenilworth. Money orders issued at Kenilworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Contains 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 286: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 329: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,087: poor rates in 1837, £174.

BEAUVALE, NOTTINGHAM, in the parish of Greasley, southern division of the wapentake of Broxtow—(which see for access, &c.)—Nicholas de Cantilupe, in the 17th of Edward III., founded here a monastery for Carthusian monks, to the honour of the Holy Trinity. There were at first a prior and only twelve monks, but they increased to nineteen before the dissolution, when their possessions were valued at £227. 8s. per annum, the greater part of which was granted, in the 33d of Henry VIII., to Sir William Hussey and his heirs male; and in the 4th of Edward VI., in reversion, to Richard Morrison,—so says Tanner; but nothing but a few tottering walls now remain, and they are only staid from falling by being incorporated in the boundaries of a farm yard.

BEAWORTH, HANTS, a tithing in the parish of Cheriton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Fawley, Droxford division of the county of Southampton: 62 miles from London, 5 from Abresford, 5 from Winchester. (For access, &c., see CHERITON.) Money orders issued at Winchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. There was a leaden box found here in 1833, which contained upwards of 7,000 coins of the reigns of William the Conqueror and William Rufus. Contains 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 179: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 206: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £757: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BEAWORTHY, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Black-Torrington: 227 miles from London (coach road 204), 7 from Hatherleigh, 9 from Oakhampton. Gt. West. Rail. to Crediton, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Crediton, &c., 241 miles. Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 2 p.m.---The living (St. Alban), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £6. 6s.: pres. net income, £143: patron, Sir W. Molesworth: pres. incumbent, W. Molesworth, 1816: contains 6,270 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 405: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 466: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £878: poor rates in 1837, £319.

BEBBINGTON, CHESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wirrall: it comprises the townships of Higher and Lower Bebbington, Poulton with Spittle, Storeton, and Tranmore: 200 miles from London (coach road 201), 7 from Great Neston, 6 from Liverpool.---Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Bebbington station: from Derby, through Crewe and Chester, &c., 91 miles.---Money orders issued at Liverpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---According to Tanner---There was an hospital here for poor leprous persons, early in the reign of King Edward I. The church is a noticeable structure of mixed Norman and English architecture.---The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £30. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £670: patron, Rev. R. M. Feilden: pres. incumbent, R. M. Feilden, 1826: contains 5,250 acres: 414 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,008: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,759: poor rates in 1837, £542.

BEBBINGTON (LOWER), CHESTER, a township in the above parish---(which see for access, &c.)---Contains 910 acres: 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 506: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 582: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,283: poor rates in 1837, £103.

BEBBINGTON (HIGHER), CHESTER, a township in the parish of Bebbington---(which see for access, &c.)---There is a daily school here, endowed with £30 per annum.---Contains 1,050 acres: 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 314: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 361: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,085: poor rates in 1837, £76.

BEBBESIDE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Horton, eastern division of Castle ward: 320 miles from London (coach road 287), 8 from Morpeth, 4 from Blyth.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Newcastle, to Nether-ton station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 188 miles.---Money orders issued at North Shields: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1½ p.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---There is an extensive manufactory of wrought-iron in the township.---Contains 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 115: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 132: poor rates in 1837, £67.

BECCELES, SUFFOLK, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wangford: 158 miles from London (coach road 112), 16 from Yarmouth.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Lowestoft, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough and Norwich, &c., 196 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Beccles is a large and well-built town, situated in an agreeable country, on the river Waveney, which is navigable from there to Yarmouth. According to Tanner---There was, in the time of Edward III., an almshouse or hospital for lepers, with a chapel dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene, which continued all the time of Queen Elizabeth, but was granted by Charles II. to William Chapman for life, and A. D. 1676, to the portreeve, surveyors, and commonalty of Beccles, towards the maintenance of the poor for ever. The church, which was founded in 1369, is a Gothic structure, highly embellished with sculpture. A free grammar-school was founded here, in 1774, by Dr. Falconberg, which has an income of £200 per annum, arising from an estate in Corton. The school, which is under the trusteeship of the Bishop of Norwich, the Archdeacon of Suffolk, and the Rector of Beccles, has four exhibitions of £4 each at Emmanuel College, Cambridge. In 1631, Sir John Leman founded a school for writing and accounts, and endowed it with 100 acres of land. The other educational institutions are numerous. The borough, which has an average yearly income of £1,400 a year, was incorporated by Queen Elizabeth; the officers, under the Municipal Reform Act, consist of a mayor, four aldermen, and twelve councillors; but the town is under the jurisdiction of the mayor and county magistrates, who hold the petty sessions for the division at the town-hall. The prison, which contains a treadmill, is extensive. The principal trade of the town is in corn, coal, and malt; it has, within the last few years, been greatly facilitated by the effect of an act of parliament, obtained in 1832, for deepening the river Waveney, and, through the instrumentality of which, Beccles can now export goods without transshipment before getting to sea. One of the most remarkable incidents in the history of the town, was a great fire which, in 1586, destroyed more than eighty houses, and consumed more than £20,000 worth of property.---The living (St. Michael) is in the diocese of Norwich. The town is divided into two parishes, formerly bearing the respective names of St. Mary Endgate, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, valued at £7. 6s. 9d., and St. Mary, valued at £21. 12s. 1½d., but which were consolidated in 1419, and now have jointly a pres. net income of £280: patron, Earl of Gosford: pres. incumbent, Hugh Owen, 1823: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,086: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,699: poor rates in 1842, £1,646. 10s. Tithes commuted at £350.---Polling-place for East Suffolk.---Market day, Saturday. Fairs, Whit-Monday, and June 29, for cattle, horses, and pedlery. Races, September, on a circular course of a mile and a quarter, the last quarter is flat.---Bankers, Gurneys & Co.---draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.; Sir E. K. Lacon, Bart., & Co.---draw on Glynn, Halifax, & Co.---Inns: King's Head, and White Lion.

BECCONSALL (or HESKETH-CUM-BECCONSALL), LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Croston, hun<sup>d</sup> of Leyland: 226 miles from London (coach road 216), 11 from Ormskirk, 8 from Preston.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Preston, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 108 miles.---Money orders issued at Preston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £2. 7s. 11d., having jointly a pres. net income of £275: patron, Sir T. D. Hesketh, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Strey Master, 1834: contains 1,580 acres: 110 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 553: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 635: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,675: poor rates in 1837, £137.

pres. net income, £540: patron, S. L. Sainsbury, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. L. Sainsbury, 1843: contains 1,840 acres: 264 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,190: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,368: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,387: poor rates in 1837, £734.

BECKLEY, OXFORD, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ashendon, county of Buckingham, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bullington, union of Headington, county of Oxford: 68 miles from London (coach road 53), 5 from Oxford, 3 from Forest-hill.---Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Oxford, &c., 131 miles.---Money orders issued at Oxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---An almshouse for eight poor people was founded and endowed by Sir G. Croke, in the time of Charles I. Fragments of Roman pottery have been found in the parish.---The living (St. Mary), a vicarage, with the chapelries of Horton and Studley annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £112: patron, Rev. T. L. Cooke: pres. incumbent, G. T. Cooke: contains 4,370 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 763: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 877: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,684: poor rates in 1837, £157. The great and small tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the Dean of Oxford, were commuted in the 7th and 8th George IV.

BECKLEY, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Goldspur, rape of Hastings, union of Rye: 88 miles from London (coach road 56), 7 from Rye, 3 from Newenden.---Sou. East. Rail. through Lewes to Hastings, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 220 miles.---Money orders issued at Staplehurst: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There were formerly several extensive iron forges here. The parish is bounded on the north by the river Rother, which separates the counties of Kent and Sussex.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £11. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £851: patron, University College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, William Glaister, 1837: contains 5,540 acres: 159 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,412: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,624: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,193: poor rates in 1837, £1,126.---Fairs, Easter-Thursdays, and Dec. 26, for cattle and pedlery.

BECKURMONDS, WEST RIDING, YORK, a hamlet in the parish of Arncliffe—(which see for access, &c.)

BECKWITH-GREEN, YORK, a hamlet in the parish of Pannal—(which see for access, &c.)

BEDALE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish partly in the wapentake of Hallikeld, and partly in the eastern division of the wapentake of Hang East, union of Bedall, or Bedale: it comprises the townships of Langthorne, Aiskew, Burrel with Cowling, Crakehall, and Firby, the market town of Bedale, and the hamlet of Randsgrange: 249½ miles from London (coach road 223), 8 from Northallerton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leeds, and Thirsk, to Northallerton and Bedale: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 117½ miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The town, which consists chiefly of one long street, is agreeably situated on the banks of a small stream, which falls into the Swale near Gatenby, and is surrounded by a highly cultivated country, much celebrated for its breed of hunters and ordinary riding-horses. The church, which was erected during the reign of Edward I., is a spacious structure, with an embattled tower, so strongly built, that on one occasion the inhabitants were enabled to fortify themselves in it, and hold out successfully, during an inroad of the Scots. There are Wesleyan, Baptist, and Roman Catholic chapels here. The schools are numerous, and two of them, the grammar-school and another, have each small endowments. There are three hospitals for the poor—one founded by Dr. Samwaies, in 1691, with an endowment of £55 a year; another has an endowment of £30; and the third has lands for the sustenance of three poor women. The other parochial charities have an aggregate income of about £50 a year. Sir Christopher Wray, Lord Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, was a native of Bedale.---The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £89. 4s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £1,936: patron, Miss Peirse: pres. incumbent, J. J. T. Monson, 1843: contains 7,070 acres: 539 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,803: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,223: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,666: poor rates in 1837, £432.---Market day, Tuesday. Fairs: Easter-Tuesday; Whit-Tuesday; June 6 and 7; July 5 and 6, cattle; October 11 and 12; and Monday week before Christmas.---Bankers, Swaledale and Wensbydale Banking Co.—draw on Hankeys & Co.—Royal Oak, and Black Swah Inns.

BEDBURN (NORTH), DURHAM, a township in the parish of St. Andrew-Auckland, north-western division of the ward of Darlington: 282 miles from London (coach road 254), 6 from Bishop-Auckland, 12 from Durham.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Darlington, and Bishop-Auckland, to Bedburn station: from Derby, through Darlington, &c., 150 miles.---Money orders issued at Bishop-Auckland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Contains 1,890 acres: 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 445: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 511: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,324: poor rates in 1837, £213.

BEDBURN (SOUTH), DURHAM, a township in the parish of St. Andrew-Auckland, north-western division of the ward of Darlington.---(For access, &c., see preceding article.)---Contains 7,700 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 340: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 391: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,123: poor rates in 1837, £125.

BEDCESTER, DORSET, a hamlet in the parish of Fontmell-Magna—(which see for access): 3 miles from Shaftesbury.---Money orders issued at Shaftesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.

BEDDGELART (OR BETHGELENT), CARNARVON, a parish, including a village of the same name, situated partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Evionynd and Uwch-Gorfai, union of Festiniog, county of Carnarvon, and partly in that of Arudwy, Merionethshire: 254 miles from London (coach road 223), 16 from Carnarvon, 7 from Bettws.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Chester, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Crewe and Chester to Bangor, &c., 155 miles.---Money orders issued at Carnarvon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.

—The village stands just upon the junction of the rivers Glaslyn and Colwyn, in one of those retired and romantic valleys so frequently met with in Wales, where the winding courses of the streams are shut in by precipitous mountains. Some of the inhabitants act as guides up the acclivities of Snowdon, and considerable emolument accrues to the town from that source. The principal inn of the place, indeed the only one deserving of the name, is almost entirely supported by tourists, but there are likewise several small public-houses, which present all the characteristic comforts of Welsh hospitality. The name of the place is derived from an old tradition; literally translated, it means the 'Grave of Gelert.' According to the legend, a dog, named Gelert, preserved the infant child of his master, Llewellyn, last prince of Wales, from the attacks of a wolf. The father of the child was absent at the time, and on his return, seeing his bed sprinkled with blood, and the dog lying beside it, he instantly conceived the idea that Gelert had killed the infant, and slew him. Immediately afterwards, he found his boy alive and well, and the mangled body of the ferocious animal, which his faithful servant had killed in the defence of his young master. Llewellyn, on discovering his mistake, was affected in the extreme, and caused his dog to be buried with peculiar honours in the middle of the valley; the stone is still shown which covers the grave of Gelert. There was once a priory of Augustine monks at Beddgelart, dedicated to St. Mary, which, with the exception of that at Bardsey, was the largest in Wales. The property now belongs to the Earl of Radnor. The Calvinistic Methodists have two places of worship here. —The living, a perpetual curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Merioneth, and diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor: pres. net income, £90: patron, Mrs. Priestley: pres. incumbent, Edward Jones, 1845: contains 196 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,397: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,607: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £487: poor rates in 1837, £470.

BEDDINGHAM, SUSSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Totnore, rape of Pevensey, union of West Firle, within the liberty of the duchy of Lancaster: 53 miles from London (coach road 52), 3 from Lewes, 9 from Brighton. —Sou. East. Rail. through Lewes to Beddingham: from Derby, through London, and as above, 185 miles. —Money orders issued at Lewes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —There was a monastery here in the beginning of the ninth century. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, united with the vicarage of West Firle, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £35. 12s: pres. net income, £345: patron, the Bishop, and Dean and Chapter of Winchester, alternately: pres. incumbent, C. Hutchinson, 1824: contains 2,250 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 268: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 308: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,561: poor rates in 1837, £356.

BEDDINGTON, SURREY, a parish and township in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wallington, union of Croydon: the former includes also the hamlet of Wallington: 10 miles from London (coach road 11), 2 from Croydon, 6 from Ewell. —Sou. East. Rail. through Forest Hill to Beddington: from Derby, through London, &c., 142 miles. —Money orders issued at Croydon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The church, which is a fine structure, formerly belonged to Merton Abbey. It contains several monuments to the Carew family. A small woollen manufacture has been carried on in the parish. —The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, diocese of Winchester, is valued at £13. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £1,212: patron, Representatives of Admiral Sir H. B. Carew: pres. incumbent, James Hamilton, 1841: contains 3,830 acres: 271 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,453: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,670: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £6,423: poor rates in 1842, £651. —Close to the village is Beddington Park, the seat of Charles H. Carew, Esq., son of the late Admiral Sir Benjamin H. Carew, whom he succeeded in the property in 1836. The family of Carew have been seated at Beddington for many centuries, and are fine examples of that peculiarly old English character of country gentry, in which we find energy and ability, conjoined with respectability, to give weight to position in society. Sir Nicholas Carew of Beddington, a descendant of Sir Nicholas Carew, K.G., whose heiress he married, sat as the representative of Surrey in 1715, and was in that year created a baronet. His son, Sir Nicholas, died unmarried, and his estates, after several mutations, ultimately devolved to Richard Gee, Esq., of Beddington, who was maternally descended from the Carews. Mr. Gee assumed the name and arms of Carew, but he died unmarried, and bequeathed his property, in 1816, to the widow of his brother William, Mrs. Paston Gee, who left it to the late admiral. The present mansion was erected in 1709, on the site of the former manor-house; and is remarkable as being the place where the first orange tree was raised in England. According to tradition, the trees grown here were formed from seeds sown by Sir Nicholas Carew in the 16th century, from the first oranges brought here by Sir Walter Raleigh, who was his brother-in-law, and who lived in the parish. Sir Nicholas had the honour of twice entertaining Queen Elizabeth at Beddington.

BEDFIELD, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hoxon: 96½ miles from London (coach road 88), 5 from Framlingham, 5 from Debenham. —East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Haughley Road station, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 228½ miles. —Money orders issued at Stoneham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £286: patron, Earl Stradbroke: pres. incumbent, H. W. R. Birch, 1829: contains 1,780 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 358: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 411: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,279: poor rates in 1842, £220.

BEDFONT (EAST) WITH HATTON, MIDDLESEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Spelthorne, union of Staines: 16 miles from London (coach road 13), 3 from Staines, 4 from Hounslow. —Sou. West. Rail. to Feltham, by the Windsor branch, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through London, &c., 148 miles. —Money orders issued at Staines: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —The church is old and interesting. —The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>

of Middlesex, diocese of London, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £288: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, H. T. Liveing, 1844: contains 203 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 982: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,129: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,984: poor rates in 1842, £639.

BEDFONT (WEST), MIDDLESEX, a hamlet in the parish of Stanwell—(which see for access, &c.)

BEDFORD, BEDFORDSHIRE, a borough and market town, and capital of Bedfordshire: 63 miles from London (coach road 51), 30 from St. Albans.

—Nor. West. Rail. 63 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Bletchley, 102½ miles. —Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8. am.: post closes 9½ p.m. —The name of the town is formed from the Saxon Bedanford or Bedicanford, that is, 'the lodging at the ford,' descriptive of its situation at an ancient ford over the Ouse, its British name being Lettwydur Lifwidur, signifying the same thing; indeed, from its peculiar position, it appears always to have been a place of note, from the time the country was first peopled. In 572, a battle was fought here between the Britons and the Saxons, under the command of Cuthwulph, brother of Cealwyn, third king of Wessex; and this was selected as the burial-place of Offa, king of Mercia, one of the most celebrated monarchs in the early history of Britain, but whose tomb, and the chapel which contained it, were swept away by an inundation of the river. Being the central key of a wide position, the old town was attacked, and nearly destroyed by the Danes, but was renovated, and a strong fortress built on the south bank of the Ouse, by Edward the Elder. A castle was built here by Payne de Beauchamp, third Earl of Bedford, shortly after the Conquest, which was afterwards besieged and taken by Stephen, during his contest with the Empress Maud; and when the barons took up arms against King John, it was garrisoned for them by William de Beauchamp, who was, however, compelled to surrender to Falco de Breat, who received the gift of the castle and the barony as the reward of his services. But, it is said by the editors of the Magna Britannia, this ungrateful man having raised a new war against Henry III., pulled down all the religious houses near him to fortify his castle, and harassed the country all around, till the king laid siege to it, and after sixty days, notwithstanding the obstinacy of the rebels, reduced it. After all this, the king, in consideration of his former services, granted Breat his life, but banished both him and his company. But after he had caused the ditches to be filled, and the works to be thrown down, as also the outer wall to be demolished, he left the inner part of the castle standing for William de Beauchamp to live in. There was nothing left of this castle in Leland's time, who says it was then clean down. There is now, on a rising ground near the Ouse, the ancient site of Bedford castle, a very fine bowling-green, shown sometimes to travellers as a curiosity. The town is situated about the middle of the tract known under the name of the Bedford Level, described in a subsequent section of this work, and celebrated as being the district brought into a state of high agricultural fertility, from a state of almost salt sea-marsh. The town consists chiefly of one principal street, of fine elevation, nearly a mile in length, which is intersected by other streets; and the general aspect, presenting many well-built houses, interspersed with others of ancient erection, is highly pleasing. There is a good supply of water, and the streets are paved and well lighted with gas. A new bridge of five arches was erected over the Ouse in 1811, at an expense of about £15,000, replacing the old one, which formed the communication between two parts of the town; Bedford being unequally intersected by the river, there being three parishes containing about 8,000 inhabitants on the north side of the stream, and two parishes containing 1,500 inhabitants on the south side. There were formerly six parishes here, but the living of St. Peter's Dunstable has been added to St. Mary's, and there are now therefore only five, viz., those of St. Cuthbert, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, valued at £5. 9s. 4½d., the present income being £129, in the patronage of the Crown; St. John's, a rectory not in charge, annexed to the hospital of St. John, present income £171, in the patronage of the corporation; St. Mary's, a rectory valued at £11. 4s. 9½d., present income £173, in the patronage of the Bishop of Ely; St. Paul's, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, valued at £10, with a present income of £220; and St. Peter's Martin, a rectory valued at £11. 13s. 1½d., the present income being £205, in the patronage of the Crown. The church of St. Paul is a fine structure, having a noble tower, surmounted by a lofty octagonal spire; and a new church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, has lately been erected within the parish as a chapel of ease, endowed by Lord Carteret with £75 a year. Besides the churches and the bridge, the public buildings comprise the erection for a well-stocked public library; the town-hall, in which the assizes and the sessions are held; the county gaol, standing in a small plot of ground, and surrounded by a wall twenty feet high. The last was erected on the plan of the philanthropist Howard, with three stories, and can contain about 250 prisoners. Not far from it is the county house of correction, a neat brick building, comprising four wards and fifty cells; and a new county gaol is now being built on the plan of the model prison at Pentonville, which is intended to hold 200 prisoners; the expense being estimated at something short of £20,000. The house of industry, under the direction of thirteen residents in the town, was erected in 1796, at an expense of about £5,000. Another object worthy of note is the county lunatic asylum, a handsome brick building on the road to Ampt-hill, erected in 1812, at an expense of £13,000. The county infirmary stands on the same road; it is a substantial brick structure, with a stone front, containing ninety beds, and has a considerable library. The late Mr. Samuel Whitbread gave £10,000 towards its support; and when the Marquis of Tavistock stood as a candidate for the county, he gave £2,000 towards its funds, instead of applying the money to treating the freeholders. The poor-law union, of which Bedford is the centre, comprises 44 parishes, with an aggregate area of 152 square miles, and a union workhouse has been erected here under the act of parliament, at an expense of £1,800; the population assessed being returned about 30,000, and the annual expenditure about £10,000 a year. For charitable purposes, there is perhaps no town in the kingdom, in proportion to its extent, so largely endowed as Bedford. The principal of the bequests by which it has been enriched, is that of Sir W. Harpur, a native of the town, and who was made lord mayor of London in 1561. In 1566 he obtained from Queen Elizabeth letters patent for the foundation of a free grammar-school, and endowed it with certain property in Bedford, and also in the parishes of St. George the Martyr, Queen Square, and St. Andrew-above-the-Bars, Holborn, the whole income, at that time, not exceeding £180 a year; but such has been the increase in the value of property, especially in the two latter localities, that it now produces upwards of £13,000 a year. This amount secured an ample fund for the school, and every inhabitant of Bedford, who inhabits a house of £10 a year, has a right to have his sons classically educated; but the income was manifestly far too large for its object, and the authorities very wisely procured an act of parliament, which enabled them to appropriate a large portion to other purposes for the benefit of the borough. The act requires eighteen resident trustees, six of whom retire annually, and the school is under the inspection of the warden and fellows of New College, Oxford, who appoint the master and usher. Part of the funds are appropriated to the payment of eight scholarships of £80 a year each, at the universities of Cambridge, Oxford, or Dublin, six being restricted to those youths whose parents are residents in Bedford, and the two others being open to all the scholars on the foundation. A large National school for both sexes, a commercial school, an English school for boys, an infant school, and an hospital for the support and education of fifty children, are sustained from the same fund. Besides all this, £800 are annually distributed in marriage portions to young women of good character, who are residents in the town, and £500 are every year applied to the relief of decayed housekeepers; but a bill is now before the legislature to increase the number of collegiate exhibitions, and reduce their amounts; and also to abolish this allowance to decayed housekeepers. In addition to all this, there are fifty-eight almshouses for aged men and women, the inmates of which receive from seven to ten shillings a week each, and from £2 to £3 a year for clothing. Mr. Alexander Leith, in 1727, founded a school for ten boys and ten girls, and endowed it with lands which produce about £47 a year. There is besides a green-coat school for twenty-five boys, founded, in 1760, by Mr. Alderman Newton of Leicester, now combined with a preparatory school for the poor, in which there are nearly 300 pupils. Further, there are nearly twenty daily and Sunday schools. In 1679, almshouses for eight poor persons were founded and endowed by Mr. Thomas Christie. The other parochial charities produce about £300 a year. About a mile west of the town, there are the remains of what was called Cadwell Priory, which was founded in the reign of John, by Robert de Houghton, for the order of the Holy Trinity, and which, at the dissolution, had funds to the amount of £145. 15s. 10d. The chapel of King Offa is supposed to have been connected with this monastery, and Bishop Tanner, in speaking of it, says—It seems to have been a monastery pretty early in the Saxon times, but who was founder, to what saint it was dedicated, or when or by whom it was destroyed, I have not met with any account. In the south part of the town is a priory or hospital, which was built and endowed by some townsman as early as King Edward II.'s reign, to the honour of John the Baptist. It had, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., an income of £21. 0s. 8d., and still continues, consisting of a master, who is rector of the parish church of St. John adjoining, and ten poor men; the patronage is in the mayor, aldermen, bailiffs, and common council of Bedford. There were also an hospital dedicated to St. Leonard, and a house of Franciscan friars. Bedford was incorporated as early as 1166, in the reign of Henry II., and the charter was confirmed by Charles II., but that was abrogated under the general act of 1835, and the government of the town is now vested in a mayor, six aldermen, and eighteen councillors. By the same act, a commission for the peace is granted to the town, which has returned two members to parliament since the time of Edward I., the right of voting being vested in the freemen and burgesses, and householders, not paupers, paying scot and lot. (For account of the family, see WOBURN, the seat of the Duke of Bedford.)—Among those celebrated men who have been connected with Bedford, one of the most remarkable is John Bunyan, the author of the celebrated allegory, 'The Pilgrim's Progress.' He was the son of a travelling tinker, and for a long time followed his father's business, with the usual characteristics of dissipated habits and vulgar manners. But his heart and mind, through God's inspiration, were opened to better things. He forsook his depraved courses, attached himself to the Anabaptists, and speedily became a distinguished minister among them. Having contravened the arbitrary laws respecting Dissenters, he was prosecuted, and remained a prisoner in Bedford gaol for twelve years, during which he wrote his chief work. He was at length released, and resumed his ministry in the town, where he died at the age of sixty.—Contains 2,200 acres: 1,880 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £91,188: poor rates in 8371, £1,496.—Market days, Monday and Saturday. Fairs, first Tuesday in Lent, April 21, July 6, Aug. 21, Oct. 12, Nov. 17, Dec. 19, cattle; July 6, wool. Races held in March—a flat circle of a mile, 4 furlongs, and 44 yards.—Bankers, Thomas Barnard—draw on Price & Co.; Trapp, Halfhead, & Co.—draw on Barnards & Dimsdales.—Newspapers: Bedford Mercury (Saturday), Bedford Times (Saturday).—Swan Hotel, and George Inn.

VOL. I.

BEDFORD, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Leigh, hun<sup>d</sup>. of West Derby: 215 miles from London (coach road 199), 10 from Manchester, 7 from Bolton.—Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester to Leigh, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Newcastle, Stockport, and Manchester, &c., 122 miles.—Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Leigh: pres. incumbent, Moorh James, 1843: contains 1,750 acres: 538

27

houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,187: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,815: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,094: poor rates in 1837, £562.

BEDHAMPTON, HANTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Portsdown, Fareham division: 90 miles from London (coach road 66), 1 from Havant, 10 from Chichester. —Sou. East. Rail. by Brighton, through Chichester to Havant, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 222 miles. —Money orders issued at Havant: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. —The village is delightfully situated, adjoining to Langstone harbour, and commands most delightful views both by land and water, embracing, by the latter, Spithead, the Isle of Wight, the mouth of Portsmouth harbour, the naval arsenal, and numerous other objects of interest, with the branches of the sea leading to Porchester, Fareham, and Southampton. On the estate of Sir Theophilus Lee, who resides in the village, there are the finest rows of elm-trees to be found in the whole of this well-wooded county. There are also some admirable springs here. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £10. 3s. 9d.: pres. net income, £328: patron, Rev. St. J. Alder: pres. incumbent, St. John Alder, 1823: contains 3,260 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 533: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 613: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,317: poor rates in 1837, £527. —Bedhampton Park, and Lauriston Hall, near Torquay, are the seats of Sir John Theophilus Lee, one of those gallant heroes through whose judgment, intrepidity, and skill, this country was carried through a series of the most arduous conflicts to be found in the history of the world. Sir Theophilus's immediate descent is derived from John Lee, Esq., an officer in the Royal Navy, a branch of the ancient family of the Lees of Darnhall, in Cheshire, (which see for the family pedigree.) Mr. John Lee, besides one daughter, had two sons—Richard, the younger, who became a colonel in the army, and John, the elder, who married Margaret, daughter of Dr. John Hay, physician to King George I., and who became a captain in the navy. Sir John Theophilus Lee is their only son. He entered young into the navy under Lord St. Vincent, in 1795, was present at the battles of Cape St. Vincent and the Nile, besides eighteen other actions with frigates, forts, and boats. He has been made a knight of the several orders of St. Louis, St. Andrew, Christ, and Wladimir, and was presented by the Sultan of Turkey with the Grand Cross of the Order of Honour in diamonds. He is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of the counties of Middlesex and Southampton.

BEDHURST. See COMPTON-AREBAS.

BEDINGFIELD, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hoxon: 92 miles from London (coach road 87), 4 from Eye, 4 from Debenham. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Stowmarket to Elmswell station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London to Stowmarket, &c., 234 miles. —Money orders issued at Stoneham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The living (the Virgin Mary), a discharged vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £400: patron, J. J. Bedingfield: pres. incumbent, James Bedingfield, 1833: contains 1,680 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 336: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 386: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,062: poor rates in 1837, £201. —Bedingfield Hall.

BEDINGHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Loddon, union of Hoxne: 134 miles from London (coach road 106), 4 from Bungay, 10 from Norwich. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Stowmarket to Thorston, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough and Newmarket to Thorston, &c., 180 miles. —Money orders issued at Bungay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The parish was formerly divided, but the other church has long since been demolished. The parochial charities produce about £44 a year. —The living (St. Andrew), a discharged vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £150: patrons, Improprators: pres. incumbent, C. W. Lohr, 1846: contains 1,140 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 316: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 363: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,949: poor rates in 1837, £244. —Bedingham Hall.

BEDLINGTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish in the eastern division of Chester ward, union of Morpeth: it comprises the townships of Bedlington, Chambois with North Blyth, Choppington, Nether-ton or Nedirton, and East and West Sleekburn: 319 miles from London (coach road 286), 4 from Morpeth, 12 from Newcastle. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Newcastle, to Nether-ton station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 187. —Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1½ p.m. —Bedlington was formerly called Bedlingtonshire. It was a patrimony of St. Cuthbert, and had its own courts and privileges, but was deprived of them by an act of Henry VIII., and was made in all respects a portion of the palatinate; but petty sessions for the district are still held monthly in the village. The church was enlarged and repaired in 1818. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, and the Presbyterians, all have chapels here. —The living (St. Cuthbert), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £454: patrons, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, E. C. Ogle, 1835: contains 8,910 acres: 368 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,155: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,628: poor rates in 1837, £662.

BEDMINSTER, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hartcliffe with Bedminster, union of Bedminster: it comprises six tithings—East, West, and North Tithings, Knolle, Bishopworth-Arthur, and Bishopworth-Lions: 119 miles from London (coach road 118), 1 from Bristol, 3 from Dundry. —Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Stonehouse, Bristol, &c., 132 miles. —Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —The old church is of the mixed style of Gothic architecture, but a new church has lately been erected by the parliamentary commissioners at an expense of about £9,000, with sittings for about 1,600 persons. The Independents, the Baptists, and the Methodists, all have chapels here. Bedminster was formerly a small village, but it has so grown that it now forms an extensive suburb to Bristol.

Petty sessions for the division of Bedminster are held here and at Long Ashton, and there is a court-baron also for the prebend. The parochial charities produce about £40 a year. The Bedminster union comprises twenty-three parishes, and extends over an area of eighty-five square miles.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the chapelries of St. Thomas Radcliffe and Abbot's-Leigh annexed, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bath, and diocese of Bath and Wells, now in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £10. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, Prebendary of Bedminster and Radcliffe: pres. incumbent, M. R. Whish, 1806: contains 4,180 acres: 2,342 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 17,862: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 20,541: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £19,014.

BEDNALL, STAFFORD, a liberty and joint township with Acton-Trussell, in the parish of Baswich, eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cuttlestone: 134½ miles from London (coach road 134), 3 from Penkridge, 4 from Stafford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Colwich station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Lichfield to Colwich, &c., 34 miles.---Money orders issued at Stafford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, a peculiar of the prebendary of Whittington, in the cathedral church of Lichfield, is valued at £12. 10s.: pres. net income, £234: patron, Hulme's Trustees: pres. incumbent, M. Davies, 1841: contains 2,370 acres: 108 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 574: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 660: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,698: poor rates in 1837, £155.

BEDSTONE, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Puralow: 156 miles from London (coach road 152), 4 from Knighton, 11 from Ludlow.---Gt. West. Rail. to Worcester, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 106½ miles.---Money orders issued at Presteign: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 12 noon.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, E. Rogers, Esq.: pres. incumbent, James R. Browne, 1841: contains 1,200 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 139: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 160: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,718: poor rates in 1837, £65.

BEDWARDINE (St. John), WORCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Oswaldslow: 119 miles from London, 1 from Worcester.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 73 miles.---Money orders issued at Worcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The living (St. John), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £635: patron, Dean and Chapter: pres. incumbent, J. R. Wood: contains 3,730 acres: 555 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,663: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,062: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,352: poor rates in 1837, £946.

BEDWAS, MONMOUTH, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Caerphilly, union of Newport, county of Glamorgan, South Wales, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wentlloog, county of Monmouth: the former part contains the hamlet of Van, and the latter those of Upper and Lower Bedwas: 170 miles from London (coach road 158), 10 from Newport, 9 from Cardiff.---Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, across the Channel to Penarth, thence by railway to Llantwitmajor, whence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, to Weston, &c., 188 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---There is an independent chapel here.---The living (St. Barrog), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, annexed to the bishopric: contains 4,340 acres: 151 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 800: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 920: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,712: poor rates in 1837, £368.

BEDWELL-GREEN, BEDS. See HOUGHTON-REGIS.

BEDWELTY (or BYDWELTY), MONMOUTH, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wentlloog: it comprises the hamlets of Ishlawroed, Mamhole, and Ushlawroed: 178 miles from London (coach road 159), 16 from Newport, 10 from Pontypool.---Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the Channel to Penarth, then by railway to Blackbrook, whence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Weston, &c., 191 miles.---Money orders issued at Pontypool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 10 a.m.---The extensive coal and iron works here give employment to upwards of 16,000 persons. The Independents and Calvinistic Methodists have chapels here.---The living (St. Sannan), a perpetual curacy not in charge, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £150: patron, Bishop of Llandaff: pres. incumbent, Edmund Leigh, 1846: contains 15,440 acres: 1,945 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 22,413: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 25,775: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,967: poor rates in 1837, £741.

BEDWORTH, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish in the Kirby division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow: 94 miles from London (coach road 96), 5 from Coventry, 3 from Nuneaton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Bulkington, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Tamworth to Bulkington, &c., 41½ miles.---Money orders issued at Coventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There has been a silk manufactory carried on to considerable extent, and there are coal and ironstone mines in the neighbourhood, from one of which a tramway runs to the Coventry Canal. A very ample bequest was left in 1715, by the Rev. Nicholas Chamberlain, from the proceeds of which a building has lately been erected at an expense of £9,000, for the accommodation of twenty male and twenty female inmates, all of whom have a sufficient provision. There are Independent and Baptist chapels here, and there are new and commodious school-rooms in connection with the church.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, formerly in the diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £10. 3s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £562: patron, Earl of Aylesford: pres. incumbent, H. Bellairs, 1831: contains 2,240 acres: 868 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,253: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,890: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,844: poor rates in 1837, £1,150. Tithes commuted in 1840.---Fairs, April 6, May 22, and August 26.

BEDWYN (Great), WILTS, a borough, market town, and parish, in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kinwardstone, union of Hungerford: it contains the tithings of Crofton, Martin, Wilton, Wixcombe, and Woolf-hall: 67 miles from London (coach road 71), 7 from Marlborough. — Gt. West. Rail. to Hungerford, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse, to Swindon, 149, thence 20 miles. — Money orders issued at Marlborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The church is an ancient cruciform building, with a fine tower rising from the intersection. Bedwyn is generally believed to have been the ancient Leucomagus, and was once of much greater extent and importance than at present. In 674, there was a desperate engagement in the neighbourhood of the town, between Osoin, general of Saxburga, queen of Wessex, and Wulfhere, king of Mercia. Having been deemed a city under the Anglo-Saxon dynasties, Bedwyn retained its privileges after the Norman conquest. Subsequently, it became a borough by prescription, and sent representatives to parliament in the time of Edward I.; and from the time of Henry V. they regularly sat, until the town was disfranchised by the general Reform Act. There is still a market held on Tuesday, but it has long declined, and Marlborough is now the general entrepot for the agricultural produce of the district; but the fairs, as stated, are still continued. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, was, until lately, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Deans of Sarum, and in the archidiaconal jurisdiction of the Lords Warden of Savernake Forest, which comprehended Great and Little Bedwyn, Collingbourne Ducis, and latterly East Grafton. These jurisdictions were abolished by order of her Majesty in Council, dated 27th August, 1846, and the parishes merged into the diocese of Sarum. The vicarage is valued at £8. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £201. 8s. 7d.: patron, Marquis of Ailesbury: pres. vicar, John Ward, 1826. The district church of St. Nicholas, East Grafton, is endowed with £56: patron, the Vicar: pres. incumbent, William Collings Lukis, 1846. The parish contains 9,864 acres: 369 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,171: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,320: rateable value of property, £10,181: poor rates average £1,260 per annum. — Fairs, April 23, and July 26. — Inns: Cross Keys, Three Tuns, White Hart. — W. 1 m. is Tottenham Park, the seat of the Marquis of Ailesbury. The park, properly so called, forms a portion of one of the most interesting districts in the kingdom, an ancient forest, known as Savernake Forest, and the only one, it is believed, at present in the hands of a subject. Including the park, it comprehends a space of ground sixteen miles in circumference, and, unlike most of those which are termed forests, but which, in many instances, are only wild unenclosed tracts of land, it is rich in the most beautiful antique timber trees, chiefly oaks, which are mostly of large size, and with their knarled boughs and picturesque forms, seem to have stood since the time of the Anglo-Saxons. The branches of one of them, called the 'King's Oak,' wave over an area of more than sixty yards in diameter, and no natural scenery, varied as this is by every variety of hill and dale, tangled thicket and open green, could possibly present more picturesque effects. About the centre of the domain there is a neat edifice erected for the residence of the late Earl of Ailesbury when Lord Bruce. At what time the land first became a forest is not now known, but in the reign of Edward III. it was assigned as a jointure to Queen Eleanor, and continued as such to several future queens. About two centuries later it was granted to the Duke of Somerset, and passed to Thomas Earl of Ailesbury in 1676, through his marriage with Elizabeth, sister of William then Duke of Somerset, and who was the direct ancestor of the present noble proprietor. The mansion of Tottenham is placed at the south-eastern extremity of the forest, and is a large brick building, consisting of a square centre and two wings. The centre was built for a hunting seat for the Earl of Burlington, on the site of a palace belonging to the Duke of Seymour, who was famous for his attachment to Charles I., and was consequently ruined during the civil wars. When the mansion was re-edified, two wings were added, in which are the state rooms. The house is rich in family portraits, and has now a truly imposing appearance. The barony of Bruce of Whorlton, in Yorkshire, was conferred, in 1641, by Charles I., on Thomas Earl of Elgin and third Baron Bruce of Kinloss, whose father accompanied King James I. out of Scotland on his accession to the English throne. Robert, second Earl of Elgin, was, for his great services to Charles I., created Viscount Bruce of Amphilhill and Earl of Ailesbury. The grandson of that nobleman having no male issue, obtained a patent of nobility for his nephew, under the title of Lord Bruce of Tottenham, in Wiltshire. On his death, the Scottish titles went to the Earl of Kincardine, and the Hon. Thomas Brudenell, Lord Bruce of Tottenham, assumed the name and arms of Bruce. Lord Bruce was created Earl of Ailesbury in 1776. He was succeeded in 1814 by his son, the present noble Marquis, who was, in 1821, created Viscount Savernake, Earl Bruce, and Marquis of Ailesbury, having, however, been called to the House of Lords by the second of these titles during the life of his father.

BEDWYN (LITTLE), WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kinwardstone, union of Hungerford, formerly part of the parish of Great Bedwyn, but erected into a separate parish, and the vicarage endowed by the then Prebendary of Bedwyn, in the year 1406. — (For access, &c., see preceding article.) — The living (St. Michael), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wilts, diocese of Sarum, is valued at £9. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £280: patron, Marquis of Ailesbury: pres. incumbent, F. H. Buckerfield, 1843: contains 3,170 acres: 100 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 597: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 687: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £968: poor rates in 1837, £236.

BEEBY, LEICESTER, a parish in the eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Goscote: 198 miles from London (coach road 104), 6 from Leicester, 9 from Melton. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Leicester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 35½ miles. — Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £6 a year. — The living (All Saints), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £15. 2s. 3d.: pres. net income, £279: patron, Earl of Shaftesbury: pres. incumbent, G. Calvert, 1818: contains 1,418 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 115: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 106: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,090: poor rates in 1837, £144. The tithes were commuted in 1839.

BEECH, STAFFORD, a liberty in the parish of Stone—(which see for returns, &c.)

BEECHAMWELL, NORFOLK. See BRACHAMWELL.

BEECH-HILL, BERKS, a tithing in the parish of Strathfieldsaye, hun<sup>d</sup> of Reading, but locally situated in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Charlton: 49½ miles from London (coach road 46), 7 from Reading; 5 from Aldermaston. Gt. West. Rail. through Reading to Aldermaston station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Oxford, and Reading, to Aldermaston, &c., 167 miles. Money orders issued at Reading: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Contains 770 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 286: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 328: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £988. poor rates in 1837, £128.

BEECHINGSTOKE, WILTS. See BRACHINGSTOKE.

BEEDING (UPPER and LOWER), SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Burbeach, rape of Bramber, union of Steyning: it comprises the tithings of Upper and Lower Beeding: 62 miles from London (coach road 51), 1 from Steyning, 10 from Brighton. London, Brighton, and East Coast Rail. through Brighton to Shoreham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 194 miles. Money orders issued at Steyning: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Two new chapels have lately been built in Lower Beeding. According to Tanner—There was a convent of Benedictine monks, from the monastery of Solmsur, which was made denizen in the 19th of Richard II., but which was suppressed, and the churches and lands belonging to it (valued at £26. 9s. 9d.) annexed to St. Mary Magdalen College, Oxford. The site of the house of the Whitefriars here was granted, in the 35th year of Henry VIII., to Richard Andrews and Nicholas Temple. The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £12, being a payment from Magdalen College, Oxford: patron, Magdalen College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, T. G. Calhoun, 1841: contains 3,864 acres: 174 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 614: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 706: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,280: poor rates in 1837, £531. Lower Beeding contains from 9,000 to 10,000 acres: it is situated in St. Leonard's Forest, and is separate from Upper Beeding for ecclesiastical purposes.

BEEDON (or BUDON), BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Faircross, union of Wantage: 54½ miles from London (coach road 57), 3 from East Ilsley, 7 from Newbury. Gt. West. Rail. through Reading to Goring station, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Oxford, and Reading, &c., 172 miles. Money orders issued at Newbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, and formerly in the diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £6. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £126: patron,

Sir J. Reade, Bart.: pres. incumbent, D. R. Murray, 1828: contains 1,930 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 334: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 384: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,751: poor rates in 1837, £245.

BEEFORD, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Holderness, union of Driffeld, containing the townships of Dunnington, Lissett, and Beeford: 227 miles from London (coach road 196), 7 from Driffeld, 10 from Bridlington. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, New Holland, and Hull, to Cranswick station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Selby, and Market Weighton, to Cranswick, &c., 120 miles. Money orders issued at Driffeld: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. The village is pleasantly situated on the old high road from Hull to Scarborough. There is an independent chapel here. The living (St. Leonard), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the East Riding, diocese of York, is valued at £22: pres. net income, £779: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, Stephen Creyke, 1845: contains 5,270 acres: 174 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 977: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,123: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,177: poor rates in 1837, £270. The tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1766.

BEELEY, DERBY, a chapelry in the parish of Bakewell, hun<sup>d</sup> of High Peak, on the banks of the river Derwent: 166½ miles from London (coach road 150), 3 from Bakewell, 10 from Chesterfield. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Chesterfield, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 34½ miles. Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The Duke of Devonshire has endowed a school here with £10 per annum. The living (St. Anne), a perpetual curacy, a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield, is valued at £10. 18s.: pres. net income, £98: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, A. A. Barker, 1824: contains 3,250 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 406: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 467: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £882: poor rates in 1837, £97. Certain tithes of the township, the property of the lord of the manor, the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield, and the vicar, were commuted in 1811.

BEELSBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Bradley-Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor: 176 miles from London (coach road 164), 5 from Caistor, 7 from Grimsby. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Louth to Helton-le-Clay station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln and Boston, &c., 125 miles. Money orders issued at Brigg: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £450: patron, Collegiate Church of Southwell: pres. incumbent, George Wilkins, 1843: contains 1,980 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 181: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 208: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,760: poor rates in 1837, £40.

BEENHAM (or BENHAM-VALENCE), BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Reading, union of Bradfield: 47½ miles from London (coach road 47), 8 from Reading, 9 from Newbury. Gt. West. Rail. through Reading to Aldermaston station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Oxford, and Reading, to Aldermaston, &c., 165 miles. Money orders issued at Reading: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Berks. and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £7. 17s.: pres. net income, £250: patron, Mrs. Bushnell: pres. incumbent, William Bushnell, 1842: contains 1,890 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 421: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 484: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,516: poor rates in 1837, £133. The tithes, the property of the lord of the manor and the vicar, were commuted in 1811. Beenham House, the residence of Major-General Dickson. Beenham Lodge, the residence of Alfred Gallini, Esq.

BEER. See SEATON-WITH-BEER.

BEER-ALSTON, DEVON, a borough in the parish of Beer-Ferris, division and hund<sup>d</sup>. of Roborough: 213 miles from London, 6 from Tavistock, 7 from Plymouth. St. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 256 miles. Money orders issued at Plymouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. Beare, Risedon observes, in speaking of this place, was bestowed by William the Conqueror on a branch budded out of the house of Alençon, in France, and corruptly continueth the name to this day in BEER-ALSTON. Henry Ferrers held this honour in Henry the Second's time, and had his castle here, whom many knights of that family followed. Martin Ferrers, the last of this house, and the principal man in the government of this shire, was put in special trust, with others, for the defence of the sea-coast against the invasion of the French in Edward III.'s time. He left three daughters, through one of whom, by marriage, the estate descended to Lord Brook, the Mountjoyes, and ultimately to the Earl of Beverley. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, though nominally governed by the portreeve and other officers chosen at the court-leet of the lord of the manor. It was a borough by prescription, and returned two representatives to parliament, till it was disfranchised by the Reform Act. The right of voting was vested in those who held land in the borough, and paid threepence to the lord of the manor. The Earl of Beverley, the lord, gradually acquired the whole of the land, and availed himself of the circumstance to grant burgage tenures, which were rescinded as soon as the election was over, thus making the borough completely his own. Towards the end of the 13th century, there was a grant for a fair and a market, but both have long been discontinued.

BEER-CROCOMBE, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Abdick and Bulstone, Ilminster division, union of Langport: 170 miles from London (coach-road 135), 5 from Ilminster, 7 from Taunton. Gt. West. Rail. to Taunton, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, &c., 185 miles. Money orders issued at Ilminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £11. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £240: patron, Trustees of the late Earl of Egremont's estate: pres. incumbent, T. A. Voules, 1845: contains 770 acres: 32 houses:

pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 179: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 170: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,331: poor rates in 1837, £72. Hatch Cottage.

BEER-FERRIS (or FERRERS), DEVON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Roborough, division and union of Tavistock: 250 miles from London (coach-road 215), 8 from Tavistock, 6 from Plymouth. (For access, see BEER-ALSTON above.) Money orders issued at Plymouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. The church is a neat little edifice near the Tavey, and contains some interesting monuments of members of the Charpernourne and Ferrers families. The parish is bounded by the rivers Tamar and Tavey, which meet in its southern angle. Beer-Ferris has the honour of being the native place of William Tyndale or Tyndale, the translator of the Scriptures into English. He was born in 1500, and was sent to Oxford to complete his education, but was obliged to leave that university, in consequence of the avowal of his participation in the doctrines of Luther. He migrated to Cambridge, where he took his degree, and then went to reside in the family of Sir J. Welch, near Bristol, as a tutor. While there, he translated the 'Enchiridion Militis Christiani' of Erasmus into English; and, in consequence of his opinions, articles were preferred against him before the chancellor of the diocese, and he was reprimanded. After this, seeing that there was no safety for him, he withdrew to London, and afterwards to Antwerp, where he translated the New Testament into English. The work was published in 1526, and the greater number of copies were sent to England, and were eagerly bought up, for the purpose of suppression, by the Roman Catholic Bishops, Warham and Tunstall. The money obtained from this source enabled Tyndale to print another edition in 1534. He then began, in conjunction with Miles Coverdale, a translation of the Old Testament; but they had proceeded no farther than the end of the Pentateuch, when he was apprehended at the instance of the English Government, brought to trial at Augsburgh, condemned to the stake, and having been first strangled, was accordingly burnt. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £24. 1s.: pres. net income, £700: patron, Earl of Mount Edgcombe: pres. incumbent, Frederick Shelley, 1844: contains 5,850 acres: 330 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 2,142: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 2,463: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £25,559: poor rates in 1837, £730.

BEER-HACKET, DORSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. and union of Sherborne, Sherborne division of the county of Dorset: 158 miles from London (coach-road 121), 4 from Sherborne, 12 from Beaminster. Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, 176, thence 26 miles. Money orders issued at Sherborne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, exempt from visitation, a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury, is valued at £6. 2s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £201: patrons, Sir J. Munden, and W. Helyar, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. W. Helyar, 1825: contains 450 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 103: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 118: poor rates in 1837, £32.

BEER-HALL. See AXMINSTER.

BEER-HEATH. See BEER-REGIS.

BEER-REGIS (or BEERE-REGIS), DORSET, a market town and parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Beer-Regis, Blandford division, union of Wareham: the parish comprises the hamlets of Shitterton and Beer-Heath: 142 miles from London (coach road 113), 9 from Blandford, 12 from Dorchester. —Sou. West. Rail. to Moreton station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London to Moreton, &c., 274 miles. —Money orders issued at Blandford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living, with that of Charmouth, at one time constituted the 'Golden Prebend' of Salisbury. This place was supposed by Dr. Stukeley to be the Ibernum of the Romans. It was made a borough by Edward I., but never sent members to parliament. The place suffered severely by fire in 1634, in 1788, and again in 1817. The church, which is spacious, was completely renovated in 1835; it contains several fine monuments of the Tuberville family, the most distinguished member of which was James Tuberville, who was Bishop of Exeter in 1555, but was deprived by Queen Elizabeth. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Independents have each places of worship here. The schools in the parish are numerous, some of them being termed 'buttoning schools,' from the circumstance of the children in them being taught to make buttons as well as to read. The most distinguished native of Beer-Regis was John Morton, who was partly educated at Cerne Abbey, but afterwards proceeded to Balliol College, Oxford, where he took the degree of LL.D. During the contest between the rival houses of York and Lancaster, he conciliated the favour of all parties, and is believed to have been the main instrument of cementing the union of the two Roses. Henry VII. promoted him to the Archbishopric of Canterbury, and soon afterwards he was made a cardinal by the Pope. He appears to have been a man of high and perhaps repulsive deportment, but of munificent spirit, as he granted liberal benefactions to numerous scholastic and ecclesiastical institutions. He lived to the age of ninety, and died A.D. 1500. By his own desire, he was buried in his own cathedral. —The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage, with the chapelry of Winterborne-Kingston, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, formerly in the diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £25. 5s.: pres. net income, £330: patron, Balliol College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Carrington Ley, 1818: contains 8,150 acres: 286 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,394: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,603: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,993: poor rates in 1837, £537. —Market day, Wednesday. Fair, September 18, and five following days, for horses, cattle, sheep, hops, cheese, and all sorts of goods.

BEES (St.), CUMBERLAND, a parish in the ward of Allerdale above Darwent: it comprises the port and town of Whitehaven, the chapelries of Ennerdale, Eakdale with Wasdale, and Nether-Wasdale, and the townships of St. Bees, Hensingham, Kinney-side, Low-side-Quarter, Preston-Quarter, Rottington, Sandwith, and Whoddicar: the village was formerly known by the name of Begock, Begoth, or Beghes, and the church is styled, in ancient evidences, Kirkby-Begog: 295 miles from London (coach road 296), 4 from Whitehaven. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Preston to Fleetwood, thence across Morecambe Bay to Rampside, whence by railway to St. Bees: from Derby, through Crewe, Preston, &c., 174 miles. —Money orders issued at Whitehaven: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —The church is curious, both from its general arrangement, but especially from the appearance of the western doorway, the mouldings of which are most grotesquely carved. It is cruciform, and was part of the church of an ancient monastery, of which Bishop Tanner says—Bega, an holy woman from Ireland, is said to have founded, about the year 650, a small monastery in Copeland, where afterwards a church was built in memory of her. This religious house, being destroyed by the Danes, was restored by William, son to Ranulph de Meschin, Earl of Cumberland, in the time of Henry I., and made a cell of a prior and six Benedictine monks to the Abbey of St. Mary at York. It was endowed, at the dissolution, with £149. 19s. 6d., and granted, in the 7th of Edward VI., to Sir Thomas Challoner, but in the 4th and 5th of Philip and Mary, to the Bishop of Chester and his successors. In 1817, the eastern part of the abbey, which was built in the thirteenth century, was fitted up as a college, with one large hall and a lecture-room for the students, and the ancient cross aisle was fitted up as another lecture-room. The institution was begun under the auspices of Dr. Law, Bishop of Chester, for the benefit of young men in the dioceses of the north, who are unable, or unwilling, to proceed to Oxford or Cambridge, to take their degrees; and who, after having studied a certain time at St. Bees, are entitled to ordination. One of the lecture-rooms is also used as a library, and there is a very fair collection of theological works on its shelves. The students are expected to have a tolerable knowledge of the classics before their admission, and the course of collegiate study, therefore, does not extend to more than two or three years at the most. There is a free grammar-school in this parish, founded, in 1583, by Dr. Grindall, Archbishop of Canterbury, who was a native of Hensingham, in the neighbourhood, where gratuitous instruction, in the classics alone, is given to about 100 boys. The institution is under the management of a corporation of seven governors, two of whom must always be the Provost of Queen's College, Oxford, and the Rector of Egremont. It has the privilege of sending a scholar to be examined for one of five exhibitions, founded by Lady Hastings, in Queen's College, Oxford; and, failing scholars from Carlisle, those educated at St. Bees school are eligible to two exhibitions, founded by Bishop Thomas, in the same college. The school has also a fellowship and two scholarships at Queen's College, Oxford; a fellowship and three scholarships at Pembroke College; and a scholarship of £4 a year at Magdalene College, Cambridge. The school has long been in repute for the number of eminent men who have been educated in it since its foundation. The parish is very extensive, and the other schools within its precincts are very numerous. Flax-dressing, to some extent, has been carried on in the parish, and it contains, beside lime and stone quarries, coal and lead mines. The whole district constitutes a promontory, and St. Bees' Head, formerly called the Cliff of Baruth, is a conspicuous sea-mark for vessels in the northern parts of the Irish sea. The village is very ancient, and there are remains of Roman entrenchments and embankments to be met with in every portion of its neighbourhood. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richm<sup>d</sup>, diocese of Chester, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £103: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, R. Parkinson, 1846: contains 69,260 acres: 3,724 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 19,687: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 22,640: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £65,479: poor rates in 1837, £3,700.

BEESEBY, LINCOLN, a parish united with that of Hawerby, in the wapentake of Bradley-Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor—(which see for access): 158 miles from London, 9 from Louth, 9 from Grimsby. Money orders issued at Louth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 12½ p.m. The living is a rectory consolidated with that of Hawerby.

BEESEBY-IN-THE-MARSH, LINCOLN, a parish in the Wold division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth: 158 miles from London (coach road 144), 3 from Alford, 9 from Louth. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Claythorpe Hall station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln and Boston, 107 miles. Money orders issued at Alford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £207: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, H. P. Mason, 1839: contains 1,180 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 157: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 180: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,684: poor rates in 1837, £109.

BEESTON, BEDFORD, a hamlet partly in the parish of Northill, partly in that of Sandy, hun<sup>d</sup> of Wixamtree: 71 miles from London (coach road 48), 3 from Biggleswade, 8 from Bedford. Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Bletchley to Bedford, &c., 110½ miles. Money orders issued at Biggleswade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Contains 210 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 296: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 340.

BEESTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Bunbury, first division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eddisbury: 171 miles from London, 7 from Nantwich, 2 from Tarporley. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Crewe to Beeston station, 177 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe to Beeston, 69 miles. Money orders issued at Tarporley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. In the vicinity are the remains of Beeston castle, placed on an eminence 366 feet high. It was built by Ranulph de Blundeville in 1228, and was made a royal garrison during the struggle between Henry III. and his insurgent barons. It was dismantled in 1645 by order of the parliament. Contains 1,720 acres: 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 499: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 574: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,690: poor rates in 1837, £339.

BEESTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Launditch, union of Mitford and Launditch: 136 miles from London (coach road 100), 7 from Swaffham, 6 from East Dereham. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Lynn and Swaffham to Dunham station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough and Lynn to Dunham, &c., 140 miles. Money orders issued at East Dereham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £13: pres. net income, £450: patron, Rev. C. B. Barnwell: pres. incumbent, John Nelson, 1810: contains 3,100 acres: 120 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 661: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 760: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,535: poor rates in 1837, £564.

BEESTON, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brextow, union of Basford: 126½ miles from London (coach road 127), 4 from Nottingham, 1 from Chilwell. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Beeston station: from Derby, through Long Eaton to station, 11 miles. Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The population has been largely increased by the introduction of lace and silk manufactories. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Baptists each have chapels here. The Nottingham Canal forms a junction with the Trent within the confines of the parish. The parochial charities produce about £24 a year. The living (St. John), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and formerly in the diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4. 15s.: pres. net income, £257: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, J. Wolley, 1822: contains 1,440 acres: 504 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,807: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,228: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,139: poor rates in 1837, £512. All the tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1806. Bellevue House, the seat of A. T. Fellowes, Esq.

BEESTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of St. Peter, Leeds, within the liberty of that borough: it comprises the townships of Beeston-Shaw, Cottingley-Hall, New-Hall, Parkside, Royds, and Snickells: 207 miles from London (coach road 190), 2 from Leeds, 9 from Huddersfield. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Leeds, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, Leeds, &c., 75 miles. Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. There are extensive coal mines in the parish, which have been wrought for nearly two centuries. The living, a perpetual curacy annexed to the vicarage of St. Peter, Leeds, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £28: pres. net income, £189: patron, Vicar of Leeds: pres. incumbent, J. Wardle, 1831: contains 1,770 acres: 419 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,175: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,501: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,046: poor rates in 1837, £776. Beeston Park.

BEESTON (ST. ANDREW), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Taverham, union of St. Faith: 130 miles from London (coach road 113), 3½ from Norwich, 9 from Worstead. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 168 miles. Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £3. 6s. 8d.: pres.

net income, £217: patron, F. R. Reynolds, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. T. Worship, 1845: contains 920 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 46: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 52: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £808: poor rates in 1837, £55.—Rackheath Hall.

BEESTON (St. LAWRENCE), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Tunstead: 137 miles from London (coach road 120), 4 from Coltishall, 11 from Norwich.—East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 175 miles.—Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £200: patron, Sir J. H. Preston, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Hulton, 1837: contains 450 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 41: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 55: poor rates in 1837, £41.—Beeston Hall, the seat of Sir J. H. Preston, Bart., whose father was created a baronet in 1815. The family of Preston have been seated here for centuries. The mansion is a noble Gothic structure, surrounded by a park of three hundred acres in extent.

BEESTON-REGIS, NORFOLK, a parish in the northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Erpingham: 146 miles from London (coach road 126), 4 from Cromer, 7 from Holt.—East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 184 miles.—Money orders issued at Cromer: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—In speaking of this place, Tanner says—The lady Margery de Cressy, in the latter part of the reign of John, or in the beginning of that of Henry III., built near the village a small monastery for a prior and about four Augustine monks, to the honour of the blessed Virgin. It was valued in the 26th of Henry VIII. at £50. 6s. 4d., and granted in the 37th of Henry VIII. to Sir Edmund Windham and Giles Seafoule. Some remains of the building still exist. The parochial charities produce about £18 a year.—The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £16: pres. net income, £138: patron, Duchy of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, Cremer Cremer, 1832: contains 740 acres: 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 265: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 304: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £833: poor rates in 1837, £131.

BEETHAM (or BETHOLME), WESTMORELAND, a parish in the ward and union of Kendal: it comprises the chapelry of Witherslack, and the townships of Beetham, Farlton, Haverbrack, and Methop with Ulpha: 251 miles from London (coach road 252), 9 from Kirkby-Lonsdale, 10 from Keudal.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Burton-Kendal, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 143 miles.—Money orders issued at Kirkby-Lonsdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—There is a school here, endowed in 1663 by Dr. Barwick, dean of St. Paul's, with £26 a year. The school-house was rebuilt in 1827. The other parochial charities produce about £62 a year. At a little distance there are the remains of the towers of Helslack and Arnside, which are supposed to have been erected to protect Morecambe Bay.—The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, is valued at £13. 7s. 4d.: pres. net income, £159: patron, Duchy of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, Wm. Hutton, 1844: contains 12,850 acres: 294 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,656: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,904: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,750: poor rates in 1837, £425.

BEELEY, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Launditch, union of Mitford and Launditch: 130 miles from London (coach road 104), 4 from East Dereham, 9 from Fakenham.—East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to East Dereham, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough and Wymondham to Dereham, &c., 168 miles.—Money orders issued at East Dereham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £9. 7s. 11d.: pres. net income, £387: patron, W. Collison, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Collison, 1833: contains 1,770 acres: 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 394: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 453: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,302: poor rates in 1837, £197.

BEGARE, NORTH RIDING, YORK. There are now no inhabitants here, but Bishop Tanner, in speaking of the site, says—The abbey of Begare in Brittany having several estates in England, particularly in Lincolnshire and Yorkshire, there was a cell of alien monks of that abbey fixed near Richmond, in the time of Henry III., which, upon the suppression of these foreign houses, was first granted to the chantry of St. Anne of Thresh, then to Exton College, then to the priory of Mountgrave, and then to Eaton College again.

BEGBROOKE, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wootton, union of Woodstock: 69 miles from London (coach road 60), 6 from Oxford, 3 from Woodstock.—Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Oxford, &c., 132 miles.—Money orders issued at Woodstock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—A small portion of the property here, at the time of Pope Nicholas' taxation, belonged to the abbey of Godestow. The church is very ancient, and evidently of Norman construction, but a great portion of the most ancient building has been replaced by more modern masonry.—The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Oxford, not in charge: pres. net income, £170: patron, Brasen-nose College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Ellis Ashton, 1821: contains 380 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 110: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 126: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,280: poor rates in 1837, £104.

BEGELLY, PEMBROKE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Narberth, South Wales: 259 miles from London (coach road 257), 4 from Tenby, 14 from Pembroke.—Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the Severn to Penarth, whence by railway to Merthyr Tydvil, thence 85 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Weston, whence as above, 273 miles.—Money orders issued at Tenby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—There is a chapel for the Calvinistic Methodists here, and there are several gentlemen's seats in the neighbourhood—Cilgelly, formerly inhabited by the Canon family; Hen Castel, the property of Thomas Stokes, Esq.; Merritton, the seat of Charles Swan, Esq.; Bonville Court, an old mansion of the Bonvilles; Amworth Castle, formerly the residence of the Elliotts; and Begelly Hall, the seat of James Child, Esq. Coals are found within the parish. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, with the curacy of Williamston, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £12. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £216: patron, Lord Milford: pres. incumbent, R. Buckby, 1839: contains 107 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,159: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,332: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,981: poor rates in 1837, £102.

BEGGERIDGE, SOMERSET, a hamlet in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of Wellow—(which see for access, &c.): 110 miles from London, 4 from Bath, 9 from Frome.

BEGUILDY (LOWER AND UPPER), RADNOR, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Knighton, South Wales. 182 miles from London (coach road 171), 6 from Knighton, 12 from New Radnor. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 49 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, to Kidderminster, &c., 120 miles. —Money orders issued at Presteign: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —There is a school here endowed with £10 a year. —The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £7. 15s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £164: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, R. Hamer: contains 186 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,061: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,208: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,124: poor rates in 1837, £451.

BEIGHAM, KENT, a hamlet in the parish of Frant, eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Washlingstone, lathe of Aylesford, in the above county, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Rotherfield, rape of Pevensey, county of Sussex: 38 miles from London, 3 from Lamberhurst, 3 from Tunbridge Wells. —(For access, &c., see FRANT.) —Tanner, in his 'Notitia Monastica,' says of this place—Robert de Turneham, or Thornham, the second, gave his estate here, A.D. 1200, to the Præmonstratensian canons of Brokely, in order to found an abbey in a pleasant part of it called Beaulieu, who soon removed themselves hither, as did those of Ottham shortly after. Beigham was dedicated to the blessed Virgin, and was one of those smaller monasteries which Cardinal Wolsey obtained, 17th Henry VIII., for the endowment of his colleges, though its spiritualities were valued at £27. 6s. 8d., and its temporalities at £125 2d. 8d.

BRIGHTON, DREAR, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Scarsdale, containing the hamlets of Berley, Hackenthorpe, and Southwell: 164½ miles from London (coach road 155), 10 from Chesterfield, 7 from Sheffield. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Eckington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield to Eckington, &c., 32½ miles. —Money orders issued at Sheffield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —The village is pleasantly situated, and there is a school with a small endowment for free scholars. There is also a charity for the apprenticing of children, left in 1666 by William Jessop. The other parochial charities produce about £12 a year. —The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £6. 11s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £312: patron, Earl Manvers: pres. incumbent, Hon. and Rev. T. Erskine, 1821: contains 3,070 acres: 179 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,121: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,289: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,736: poor rates in 1837, £265. The great and small tithes, the property of the lord of the manor, Earl Manvers, and the vicar, were commuted in 1797.

BEIGHTON (or BEGERON), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Walsham, union of Blisfield: 137 miles from London (coach road 118), 2 from Acle, 10 from Norwich. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Norwich, &c., 177 miles. —Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —The poor's allotment lands produce about £20 a year, which are distributed in sums varying from six to twelve shillings each. —The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £13: pres. net income, £395: patron, R. Fellowes, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. L. Fellowes, 1845: contains 910 acres: 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 288: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 331: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,257: poor rates in 1837, £129.

BEIGHTON (or BERRON), SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Thedwestry, union of Stow: 89 miles from London (coach road 71), 6 from Bury, 8 from Stowmarket. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Stowmarket to Elmswell, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 221 miles. —Money orders issued at Bury St. Edmunds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £4. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £175: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, T. L. Clarkson, 1830: contains 550 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 384: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 442: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £940: poor rates in 1837, £142. —Beyton Hall; S. 1. m. Drinkston Park; N. 1½ m. Tostock Park.

BEILBY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township and chapelry in the parish of Hayton, Holme-Beson division of the wapentake of Hartill: 240 miles from London, 4 from Pocklington, 13 from York. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, by Normanton, through Selby, thence through Market Weighton, to Hayton station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, &c., 108 miles. —Money orders issued at Pocklington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —The living is a curacy not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Hayton: contains 1,220 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 285: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 328: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,146: poor rates in 1837, 369: tithes commuted in 1814.

BELAUGH, NORFOLK, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Erpingham, union of Aylham: 134 miles from London (coach road 116), 1½ from Coltishall, 8 from Norwich. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Stamford, and Norwich, &c., 174 miles. —Money orders issued at Aford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, with the vicarage of Scottow, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £411: patron, Bishop of Norwich: pres. incumbent, John Lubbock: contains 810 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 161: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 185: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £986: poor rates in 1837, £106.---Belauigh Hall; N. 1 m. Hoveton Park; N.W. 1 m. Hoveton Hall.

BELBANK, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bewcastle, Eskdale ward: 327 miles from London (coach road 321), 10 from Brampton, 15 from Carlisle.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Carlisle to Milton station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 219 miles.---Money orders issued at Brampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 5 p.m.: post closes 9 a.m.---Contains 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 558: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 641.

BELBANK, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Stapleton, Eskdale ward: 318 miles from London, 7 from Brampton, 12 from Carlisle.---(For access, &c., see preceding article.)---Money orders issued at Brampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4½ p.m.: post closes 9½ a.m.---Contains 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 146: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 168: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,706: poor rates in 1837, £51.

BELBROUGHTON, WORCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Halfshire, union of Bromsgrove: 138 miles from London (coach road 121), 9 from Stourbridge, 5 from Kidderminster.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 76 miles.---Money orders issued at Kidderminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The schools are numerous, and one of them is endowed with £10. 4s. a year. The parochial charities produce about £24 a year.---The living (the Holy Trinity), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £19: pres. net income, £1,244: patron, St. John's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, H. A. Weedgate, 1837: contains 5,350 acres: 319 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,765: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,029: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,535: poor rates in 1837, £782.---Fairs: the last Monday in April, the Monday before St. Luke's-Day, and the 18th of October, for horned cattle, horses, and cheese.

BELBY, LINCOLNSHIRE. See SUNLERT.

BELBY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Howden, wapentake of Howdenshire---(which see for access): 181 miles from London, 1 from Howden, 23 from Hull.---Money orders issued at Howden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Contains 440 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 50: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 57: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,255: poor rates in 1837, £61.

BELCHALWELL, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cranborne, union of Sturminster, Shaston division of the county: 150 miles from London (coach road 110), 7 from Blandford, 10 from Shaftesbury.---Sou. West. Rail. through Wareham to Mureton station, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, 163, thence 28 miles.---Money orders issued at Blandford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united in 1776 to the rectory of Fifehead-Neville, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £7. 15s.: contains 950 acres: 28 houses:

pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 225: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 259: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,913: poor rates in 1837, £108.---8. ½ m. is Turuworth House.

BELCHAMP (ST. PAUL), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hinckford, union of Sudbury: 54 miles from London, 2 from Clare, 6 from Sudbury.---(For access, see BELCHAMP-WALTERS.)---Money orders issued at Halstead: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the peculiar jurisdiction of St. Paul's, London, and in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £240: patron, Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's: pres. incumbent, J. Vander Meulen, 1812: contains 2,270 acres: 97 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 731: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 840: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,722: poor rates in 1837, £365.---Fairs, 11th December, cattle and toys.

BELCHAMP-OTTEN, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hinckford, union of Sudbury: 53 miles from London, 4 from Clare, 5 from Headingham.---(For access, see BELCHAMP-WALTERS.)---Money orders issued at Clare: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living (St. Ethelbert and All Saints), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £446: patron, Rev. E. H. Dawson: pres. incumbent, E. H. Dawson, 1840: contains 1,600 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 389: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 447: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,187: poor rates in 1837, £319.

BELCHAMP (WALTERS), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hinckford, union of Sudbury: 61 miles from London (coach road 53), 3 from Sudbury, 6 from Headingham.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Marks Tey station, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 193 miles.---Money orders issued at Sudbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The living (the Blessed Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, consolidated with that of Bulmer, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £445: patron, S. M. Raymond: pres. incumbent, O. Raymond, 1826: contains 2,110: 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 652: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 749: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,903: poor rates in 1837, £312.---Belcham-Walters Hall, the seat of Raymond S. Millbank, Esq., magistrate for the county.

BELCHFORD, LINCOLN, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Gartree, parts of Lindsey: 162 miles from London (coach road 141), 5 from Horncastle, 8 from Louth.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Boston, to Stixwold, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Stixwold, &c., 75 miles.---Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £18. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £425: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. A. Fitzhugh, 1826: contains 2,390 acres: 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 554: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 687: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,399: poor rates in 1837, £364. Tithes commuted in 1801.---In the neighbourhood is Cowper Hill.

BELFORD, NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish chiefly in the northern division of the ward of Bambrough, union of Belford, in the above county, and partly in Islandshire, an insulated portion of the county-palatine of Durham: it comprises the market town of Belford—(which see for access, &c.)—and the townships of Detchant, Easington, Easington-Grange, Elwick, and Middleton. Some mineral springs have been found in the parish, and the soil around is fertile. There are quarries for limestone and building stone. The union, of which Belford is the centre, comprises 34 townships, and is 58 square miles in area. The living (the Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham, is valued at £2: pres. net income, £147: patron, Rev. J. D. Clark: pres. incumbent, George Walker, 1843: contains 7,720 acres: 341 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,789: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,057: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £16,948: poor rates in 1837, £729.

BELFORD, NORTHUMBERLAND, a market town in the above parish: 35½ miles from London (coach road 322), 15 from Berwick. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, York, and Newcastle, to station: from Derby, through York, &c., 22½ miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The town is pleasantly situated on a gentle eminence, about two miles from the sea. It is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who hold petty-sessions here. The Church of Scotland, and the United Secession Community, all have chapels here. A mile south-west of it is an encampment, nearly square, with a wide foss and double rampire, the entrance on the south. Contains 320 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,557: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,790: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,755: poor rates in 1837, £468. Market day, Tuesday. Fairs, Tuesday before Whit-Sunday, and 23d August, for black cattle, sheep, and horses.

BELGH (or BELLER'S GRANGE). See CUCKNEY, NOTTS.

BELGRAVE (formerly MERDEGRAVE), LEICESTER, a parish partly in the western, and partly in the eastern, division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Goscoat: it includes the chapelries of Birstall and South Thurmaston, with the township of Belgrave: 105 miles from London (coach road 100), 2 from Leicester, 26 from Derby. Nor. West. Rail. to Leicester, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 31½ miles. Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The parochial charities produce about £34 a year. The title of Viscount is derived from this place by the Marquis of Westminster. There are traces of a Roman foss-way within the limits of the parish. The living (St. Peter), a vicarage formerly in the diocese of Lincoln, now in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £146: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, R. Stephens, 1824: contains, 2,480 acres: 240 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,609: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,000: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,022: poor rates in 1837, £428. The rectorial and vicarial tithes of the manor of Birstall, the property of the Bishop of Lichfield, were commuted in 1739.

BELLASIS. See STANNINGTON.

BELLASIZE, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Eastrington, wapentake of Howdenshire—(which see for access, &c.): 185 miles from London, 5 from Howden, 17 from South Cave. Money orders issued at Howden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Contains 1,020 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 217: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 250: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,672: poor rates in 1837, £154.

BELLEAU, LINCOLN, a parish in the marsh division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth: 165 miles from London (coach road 144), 3 from Alford, 8 from Louth. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Claythorpe station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, Boston, &c., 85 miles. Money orders issued at Alford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The name is derived from some peculiarly fine springs of water in the neighbourhood. Close by are the remains of what is called "The Abbey," but which is believed to have been a mansion belonging to the Earls of Lindsey. After the close of the contest between Charles I. and the Parliament, the manor was sequestered to Sir Henry Vane, who amused himself on Sundays by assembling and preaching to the inhabitants. The church of Belleau is of very considerable antiquity, and Gough says that it belonged to the neighbouring monastery of Ailbey, but neither Tanner nor Dugdale mentions any such religious house, and Gough's assertion is consequently somewhat discredited. The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory annexed to the vicarage of Aby, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 3s. 9d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Lord Willoughby d'Eresby: pres. incumbent, W. J. P. Burrell, 1840: contains 430 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 193: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 222: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,156: poor rates in 1837, £145. N. W. 1 m. is Barwell Park, the seat of Henry Lister, Esq., to whom the greater part of the parish belongs. The mansion is a very handsome modern structure, built about 1760, and stands in a noble park, which is finely timbered, and well stocked with deer; its extent is about three hundred acres. Sarah, wife of the celebrated Duke of Marlborough, who obtained so much influence over Queen Anne, was born here. Mr. Lister's family is ancient, and has always stood well in the county. It derives its immediate origin from Christopher Lister of Middop, who, in the time of Edward VI., married the daughter of Sir William Calverley, and was, according to Dugdale, the lineal representative of the Saxon Earls of Mercia. A great-grandson of his, Sir Martin Lister, was celebrated as one of the most eminent physicians of his day. He died about 1657, at the age of ninety-two, leaving the Barwell property to Matthew Lister, Esq., from whom the present proprietor is the fifth in descent. Henry Lister, Esq., the present representative of the family, succeeded to the estates in 1843. E. 1 m. Claythorpe Hall.

BELLERBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Spennithorne, western division of the wapentake of Hang: 269 miles from London (coach road 236), 12 from Bedale, 7 from Richmond. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Bedale, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through York, Bedale, &c., 157 miles.---Money orders issued at Bedale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living, a curacy formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £78: patron, J. C. Chaytor, Esq.: pres. incumbent, William Cumby, 1848: contains 2,540 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 350: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 402: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,815: poor rates in 1837, £130. All the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1770.---W. 1 m. Bellerby Park.

BELLINGHAM, NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish, chiefly composed of moors and sheep-walks, in the north-western division of Tindale ward, union of Bellingham, formerly a chapelry to the extensive parish of Simonburn, which was divided into six parishes by an act of the 51st of George III. cap. 154.---(For access, &c., see following article.)---The union of Bellingham comprises 37 parishes, and extends over an area of 331 miles, comprising a population of between 6,000 and 7,000 persons, and a workhouse was built by voluntary subscription at an expense of £550, which is capable of accommodating about fifty inmates. The educational institutions are numerous. On an eminence called Halffield, the castle of the De Bellinghams is said to have formerly stood. In the time of Richard II., Richard de Bellingham was the proprietor; but the estate subsequently passed to the Derwentwater family, and on the attainder of the last Earl of that title for his share in the rebellion of 1715, it was granted to Greenwich Hospital. There is an extensive common in the parish, called Hareshawe Common, which comprises more than 7,000 acres, and abounds with game. Ironstone and limestone are extensively worked, and coal, to a considerable extent, is also raised within the boundaries.---The living (St. Outhbert), a rectory not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £200: patron, Greenwich Hospital: pres. incumbent, J. Marshall, 1848: contains 18,000 acres: 268 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,730: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,990: poor rates in 1838, £603.

BELLINGHAM, NORTHUMBERLAND, a market town in the above parish and union: 341 miles from London (coach road 294), 16 from Hexham, 4 from Wark.---Nor. West Rail. through Rugby to Newcastle-on-Tyne, thence by rail to Haydon Bridge, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through York, Newcastle, &c., 209 miles.---Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 6 p.m.: post closes 8 a.m.---The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, and is regulated by constables chosen at the court-leet of the lord of the manor. The members of the United Secession Church and the Roman Catholics have places of worship here. There are several schools, one of which is endowed with the interest of £200 left in 1730, by Isabel Reid, for the tuition of fifty poor children.---Contains 20,212 acres, besides the common which is 8,130 acres: the rent charge on the parish is £204: £2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 535: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 613: poor rates in 1837, £177.---Fairs, first Saturday after 15th September, Wednesday before Good Friday, Saturday before May 12, November 12.---Hesleyside is the seat of William R. Charlton, Esq. The family of Mr. Charlton derives its descent from Adam de Charlton, lord of the manor of Charleton in Tynedale, about the year 1303, who had a son, from whom descended William Charlton, Esq., who was living in 1542, whose great-grandson, Sir Edward, was created a baronet in 1645, but dying without male issue, the title became extinct. His brother, William Charlton, Esq. of Longlee, succeeded to the property, and from that gentleman, the present proprietor of Hesleyside is the sixth in descent.

BELLESTER, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Haltwhistle, western division of the ward of Tindale---(which see for access, &c.): 281 miles from London, 16 from Hexham, 12 from Aldstone.---Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---At a short distance from the village, overshadowed by a huge sycamore, stand the remains of Bellester Castle, which was in the sixteenth century the residence of the Blenkinsop family. It is now a crumbling mass of ruins.---Contains 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 138: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 158: poor rates in 1837, £36.

BELMISTHORPE, RUTLAND, a small hamlet in the parish of Ryhall---(which see for access, &c.): 92 miles from London, 3 from Stamford, 1 from Ryhall.---Money orders issued at Stamford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The property once formed part of the estates of the celebrated Lady Godwyn.---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 120: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 138.

BELPER, DERBY, a market town and chapelry in the parish of Duffield, hun<sup>d</sup> of Appletree, union of Belper: 139½ miles from London (coach road 134), 8 from Derby.---Midland Rail. through Rugby and Derby to station: from Derby, to station, 7½ miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.---The site of the town, now a flourishing and populous manufacturing place, was once the property of the celebrated John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, who here had a park and hunting seat. Until the year 1777, Belper remained an inconsiderable village, inhabited chiefly by nailmakers, the produce of whose toil was much esteemed on account of the superiority of the coal for making iron into horse nails. The iron came out of Staffordshire; latterly, a good deal has been made at Alderwasley forge. As a trading place, however, it was unknown until the date above stated, when the Messrs. Strutt erected several cotton mills here, for the manufacture of thread, twist, and yarn. The firm has now five very extensive mills, replete with all the machinery necessary for the most perfect manufactory, and fitted in every way to economise labour, and to expedite the processes required. At Milford, a mile and a half lower down the river, the firm has other mills, and bleaching and dyeing works on the banks of the stream, over which they threw a bridge, with two arches, for their own convenience, which is now given up to the turnpike road, Messrs. Strutt retaining their right of passing toll free. In addition to these works, which are said to be amongst the first of their kind in the country, others have been erected within the last few years by Messrs. Ward & Co., and by Messrs. George Brett & Co., for the manufacture of silk and cotton hose, which have greatly conduced to the prosperity of the town, and to the employment of a large body of artisans. Belper stands very pleasantly situated upon the Derwent, over which there is a handsome bridge of three arches, which was built to replace the ancient structure that had been swept away by a flood in 1795. It consists of several streets, and is lighted with gas and partially paved. The country around is remarkably pleasing. The chapel, which is a fine edifice with a lofty tower, was erected in 1824, at an expense of £1,200, and partly through the instrumentality of a parliamentary grant. Another chapel has also been recently erected at Milford, which is subordinate to the vicarage of Duffield. The Independents, Baptists, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, and the Unitarians, all have places of worship here. Two almshouses were founded and endowed by Henry Smith, Esq., who also left an estate which produces about £30 a year, and the proceeds of which were to be divided between the curate and the poor of the parish. Two other almshouses were endowed by James Sims with £12 a year. A workhouse for the union has been built by the Commissioners of the New Poor Law, at a cost of about £7,600, which is capable of accommodating 300 paupers. Belper is a polling-place for the county. The Cromford Canal runs within two miles of the town. Belper is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, and a petty session is held here every Wednesday. Courts-leet are also held here twice a year, at which constables, &c., are appointed. The living (St. John), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £3: pres. net income, £158: patron, Vicar of Duffield: pres. incumbent, Robert Hey, 1845: contains 2,000 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 9,985: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 11,483: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,906: poor rates in 1837, £861. Market day, Saturday. Fairs, 12th May and 31st October. Bankers, Derbyshire Banking Co.—draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co.—Lion Hotel and George Inn.—Milford House, the residence of George Henry Strutt, Esq., was formerly the residence of Jedediah Strutt, Esq., the original founder of the works at Belper. Jedediah Strutt, Esq., the grandson of that gentleman, and father of Mr. G. H. Strutt, has a mansion in the town of Belper. The Right Hon. Edward Strutt, chief commissioner of railways, who for many years has sat for Derby, son of William Strutt, Esq., F.R.S., is a cousin of the present Mr. Jedediah Strutt. Bridge Hill House is the seat of John Strutt, Esq., who is unconnected with commercial affairs.

BELSAY, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bolam, north-eastern division of the ward of Tindale: 328 miles from London (coach road 289), 15 from Newcastle, 10 from Morpeth. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Newcastle, to York, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through York, Newcastle, &c., 196 miles. Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12 noon.—Contains 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 384: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 441: poor rates in 1837, £76.—E. Belsay Castle, the ancient seat and inheritance of the Middleton family, consists of an old tower, to which additions were made in 1628. In a field to the south is a domestic chapel, and on a height above, is an antique stone cross. The present residence, Belsay Castle, is a magnificent structure in the Grecian style, standing on a rising ground in a park richly varied by undulating land, and timbered with noble forest trees, very beautifully grouped for scenic effect. The family had for centuries been settled here, but in 1817 forfeited the estate; but one of them marrying the sole heiress of the Strivelings, who had obtained possession of Belsay, the Middletons were again infeoffed by Henry V. Sir William Middleton was created a baronet in 1662, and the son of that gentleman married the sole heiress of John Lambert of Calton, in Craven, whose ancestor, William Lambert, married Gundred, a grand-daughter of William the Conqueror. General Lambert, who commanded a body of the parliamentary forces during the civil war, was a member of that family, and his official seal is still kept at Belsay Castle. Sir William Middleton married the heiress of Lawrence Monck, Esq. of Caenby, in Lincolnshire, on whose death, his grandson assumed the name of Monck. The present possessor of Belsay Castle, and sole proprietor of the township of Belsay, is Sir Charles Miles Lambert Monck, Bart., who succeeded as next baronet on the death of his father, Sir W. Middleton, but changed his name in compliance with the will of his maternal grandfather, Lawrence Monck, Esq. of Caenby. Sir Charles traces his descent from Sir Robert de Middleton, who, with Hamo de Alwarthorpe, was returned to parliament as a knight for Yorkshire, in the 2d year of Edward III. Sir John Middleton, knight of Belsay Castle, acquired a large fortune by marriage with Christian, daughter, and eventually heir, of Sir John de Stryvelyn, an eminent commander under Edward III., who was summoned to parliament as a baron of the realm in the 16th year of that monarch. The son of that Sir John, who was also Sir John Middleton, represented Northumberland in parliament in the time of Henry V. From him was lineally descended William Middleton, Esq., who was created a baronet in 1662, and who filled the office of high sheriff of Northumberland in 1666, and from him the present baronet is the fifth in descent.

BELSTEAD, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Safford: 65½ miles from London (coach road 66), 3 from Ipswich, 7 from Stratford.—East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Colchester to Bentley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 199 miles.—Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 6s. 0½d.: pres. net. income, £295: patron, Rev. E. J. Lockwood: pres. incumbent, E. J. Lockwood, 1846: contains 1,090 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 261: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 300: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,198: poor rates in 1837, £121.

BELSTONE, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Black Torrington, union of Oakhampton: 218 miles from London (coach road 194), 2 from Oak-hampton, 21 from Exeter.---Gt. West. Rail. to Crediton, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Crediton, &c., 232 miles.---Money orders issued at Oakhampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Woolen manufactures to some extent are carried on here.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £9. 0s. 1d.: pres. net income, £154: patron, Rev. John Hole: pres. incumbent, H. G. Fethergill, 1836: contains 2,010 acres: 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 208: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 239: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £696: poor rates in 1837, £47.---W. 1 m. Oakhampton Park---(for account of which, see OAKHAMPTON.)

BELTINGHAM, NORTHUMBRLAND, a village in the parish of Haltwhistle, between Ridley Hall and Willimoteswick---(which see for access, &c.)---The living, in the diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £76: patron, Vicar of Haltwhistle: pres. incumbent, James O. Clark, 1845.

BELTON, LEICESTER, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Goscote: 123 miles from London (coach road 116), 7 from Loughborough, 6 from Ashby.---Nor. West Rail. through Leicester to Sturtford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Ashby to Sturtford, &c., 42 miles.---Money orders issued at Loughborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There was formerly a market where the May-pole now stands. The Wesleyan Methodists and general Baptists have each a chapel here.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £8. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £204: patron, Marquis of Hastings: pres. incumbent, R. Blunt, 1840: contains 1,900 acres: 134 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 718: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 826: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,476: poor rates in 1837, £280.---Fair, first Monday after Trinity week, for horses, is largely attended.---Adjoining to Belton is the extra-parochial liberty of Grace-Dieu, which is subject, however, to the poor-rate levy of Belton, but tithe free, and not chargeable with church rates. This liberty contains about 4,000 acres; within it is situated Grace-Dieu Manor, the residence of Ambrose Lisle Philipps, Esq. At a short distance from the manor-house are the ruins of an old religious house, formerly a convent of nuns of the order of St. Augustine, founded, in the reign of Henry III., about the year 1242, in a beautiful and secluded spot near the outskirts of Charnwood Forest. Around these ruins the wall of the convent garden still remains, enclosing an area of about four acres. Grace-Dieu has been in the possession of the Philipps' family since the reign of Charles II., having been purchased by Sir Ambrose Philipps of Garendon, in 1690, from the co-heiresses of Sir John Beaumont. The latter baronet was the lineal descendant of John Beaumont, Esq., to whom Grace-Dieu was conveyed at the period of the suppression of the abbey in 1539 (in pursuance of the act of 1535), by Sir Humphrey Foster, to whom the site and demesne were granted by the king for the fourth part of one knight's fee, and an annual rent of fifty shillings. Beaumont, the celebrated dramatic poet, was born here. Beaumont's name is generally associated with that of his coadjutor Fletcher. Indeed, he seems to have written but little alone; but conjoined, they have produced compositions which were not only popular in their own day, but still retain all their old renown for forcible conception and vigorous writing, and are likely to be held in repute in future ages. Much critical sagacity has been expended in determining the respective portions of the authors in their compositions, and it is now generally allowed, that, while Fletcher was distinguished by his energy of thought and fertility of imagination, Beaumont was remarkable for the accuracy of his judgment, and the correctness of his taste. Thus, what one conceived the other formed and fashioned, with such admirable discrimination, as to entitle the several pieces, on the whole, to the praise of a most fastidious and critical period: Together, they wrote fifty-three plays, the greater part of which, including chiefly the serious scenes, were composed by Beaumont, but, so well are the portions combined, that it is impossible to distinguish where one left off and the other began. Sir John Birkenhead, in his verses on Fletcher, says---

"Some think your wit's of two complexions framed,
That one the Sock, th' other the Buskin claimed;
That, should the stage embattle all its force,
Fletcher would lead the foot, Beaumont the horse
But you were both for both, not semi-wits;---
Each piece is wholly two, but never splits."

Beaumont died in the very prime of life, in 1615, before he had attained his thirtieth year, and was buried at the entrance of St. Benedict's chapel in Westminster Abbey.

BELTON, LINCOLN, a parish in the soke and union of Grantham, parts of Kesteven: 167 miles from London (coach road 113), 3 from Grantham, 20 from Lincoln.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Newark, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Newark, &c., 46 miles.---Money orders issued at Grantham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The church is a neat ancient structure, the tower of which was rebuilt in 1637 by Richard Brownlow, Esq., and the chancel was rebuilt by Mrs. Alicia Brownlow, one of his descendants, in 1721.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £39. 10s.: pres. net income, £430: patron, Earl Brownlow: pres. incumbent, Hon. R. Cust, 1810: contains 1,740 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 176: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 202: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,963: poor rates in 1837, £92.---Belton Park, the seat of Earl Brownlow, a stately and extensive edifice in the form of the letter H, stands on a fine lawn, in a delightfully wooded vale, through the centre of which the river Witham flows. The house is built of stone, and presents four fronts of uniform structure, without any architectural elevation. It was founded in 1685 by Sir John Brownlow, Bart., from designs by Sir Christopher Wren, but was, towards the close of the last century, considerably altered by Mr. James Wyatt, under the instructions of the late Lord Brownlow. The rooms are of noble dimensions, and magnificently furnished; several are ornamented with excellent carvings by Gibbons, and the chapel is wainscotted with cedar. There are a number of fine pictures by the old masters, and the house is particularly rich in portraits by Lely, Kneller, Reynolds, and other masters. The park is five miles in circumference, and the gardens are of great extent and magnificence. The ancestors of Earl Brownlow were originally seated in Yorkshire, but removed to Pinchbeck in Lincolnshire upwards of five centuries ago. One of them, Richard Cust, of Pinchbeck, sat in the House of Commons for the county of Lincoln in 1653, but was expelled by Cromwell. After the Restoration he was created a baronet, and sat as the representative for Stamford. He was succeeded in the baronetcy by his grandson Richard, who married Anne, the sister and sole heir of John Brownlow, Viscount Tyroconnell, through whom he obtained the mansion and domain of Belton. He was succeeded by his son Sir John, who, at the demise of Lord Tyroconnell, succeeded to the estates of his uncle, the viscountcy becoming extinct. This gentleman, who sat for Grantham, was made speaker of the House of Commons in 1761, and his son, Sir Brownlow Cust, for his father's public services, was elevated to the peerage by the title of Baron Brownlow of Belton. He died in 1807, and was succeeded in the title and estates by the present noble proprietor, who was, in 1815, advanced to the Viscounty of Alford, and Earldom of Brownlow. — N. 1 m. is Syston Park, the seat of Sir John Thorold, Bart. (for an account of which, see SYROR.)

BELTON, LINCOLN, a parish in the western division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey: this parish comprises the hamlets of Biltot, Hyrst, Mosswood, Sandtoft, Temple-Bellwood, and part of the levels of Hatfield chase: 204 miles from London (coach road 162), 13 from Gainsborough, 2 from Epworth. — Nor. and East Co<sup>o</sup> Rail. to Gainsborough, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Gainsborough, &c., 90 miles. — Money orders issued at Epworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £12. 3s. 6½d.: patron, John Hood, Esq. pres. incumbent, T. Skipworth, 1814: contains 8,530 acres: 302 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,707: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,963; ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £10,963: poor rates in 1837, £540. — Fair, September 25, for hemp, flax, and other commodities.

BELTON, RUTLAND, a parish in the soke of Oakham, union of Uppingham: 116 miles from London (coach road 92), 4 from Uppingham, 7 from Oakham. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Caldicott, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 96 miles. — Money orders issued at Uppingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The schools are numerous, and one has an endowment of £15. 15s. a year. The parochial charities produce about £90 a year. A fair was granted to the village by Edward III., but it has long been discontinued. — The living (St. Peter), a curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is annexed to the vicarage of Wardley: pres. net income, £287: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, E. R. Earle, 1837: contains 2,390 acres: 85 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 402: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 462: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,208: poor rates in 1837, £195. The great and small tithes of the lordship of Belton, the property of the lay improprator and the vicar, were commuted in 1794.

BELTON, SURREY, a parish in the hund<sup>o</sup> of Lothingland: 151 miles from London (coach road 121), 4 from Yarmouth, 8 Lowestoft. — East. Co<sup>o</sup> Rail. through Cambridge, Ely, and Norwich, to Yarmouth, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, &c., 187 miles. — Money orders issued at Yarmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The allotment of land for the poor produces about £13 a year. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £17. 15s.: commutation rent charge, £440: patron, Bishop of Norwich: pres. incumbent, T. G. F. Howes, 1837: contains 2,120 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 465: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 485: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,941: poor rates in 1837, £103. — Brownston Hall, the seat of John Baker, Esq.; Somerleyton Hall, the seat of S. M. Peto, Esq.

BELVOIR, LEICESTER, an extra-parochial liberty, partly in the soke of Grantham, parts of Kesteven, county of Lincoln, and partly in the hund<sup>o</sup> of Framland, county of Leicester: 129 miles from London (coach road 112), 7 from Grantham, 14 from Newark. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Syston to Melton-Mowbray, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Syston, &c., 47 miles. — Money orders issued at Grantham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The only inhabitants, not servants or otherwise immediately connected in some such capacity with the establishment of the Duke of Rutland, are the occupants of Belvoir Inn, which stands close at the foot of the ascent that leads to the principal entrance to the castle. Petty sessions for the hundred of Framland are held at the inn. Tanner, in speaking of Belvoir, says—Near to the castle was a priory of four black monks, subordinate to the abbey of St. Albans, in Hertfordshire, to which it was annexed by its founder, Robert de Belvedere or de Todenei, in the time of William the Conqueror. It was dedicated to St. Mary, valued at £135 per annum, and was granted, in the 33d year of Henry VIII., to Thomas Earl of Rutland, and Robert Tyrwhet. — Contains 170 acres: 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 121: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same. — Belvoir Castle, the principal residence of the Duke of Rutland, and one of the most magnificent structures in the kingdom, stands on the summit of a lofty knoll, from whence a varied prospect, full of true English characteristics, comprising gentle hills, luxuriant vales, splendid mansions, and noble parks; abbeys, churches, towns, and village spires, may be surveyed in a range of eighty miles in circumference, spread over a country rich in all the affluence of luxuriant vegetation. The original building was a fortress erected by Robert de Todenei, the standard-bearer of William the Conqueror, to whom large grants were made upon the settlement of the kingdom. The present erection is an edifice of imposing grandeur, striking alike from its extent and the nobility of the structure. The east front is as much as 252 feet in length, and the whole building has an air of truly ducal splendour. On the lower grounds towards the east are the stables, the gardens, and the several appendages to a nobleman's residence; while towards the west and south the grounds stretch out for some miles with every beauty of aspect that nature and skill combined could produce. The several apartments on the state floor are of the finest proportions, superbly furnished, and rich in the costliest specimens of the fine arts. At some distance from the castle there is a mausoleum, erected to receive the remains of the late beautiful Duchess, whose memory is treasured by all the surrounding country, and whose death, after three days' illness, left a blank which has never within these five-and-twenty years been filled. The castle has within these few years been renovated and embellished at an immense expense, under the directions of Mr. James Wyatt, and the Duke's former chaplain, the Rev. Sir John Thoroton. It is now truly said very much to resemble Windsor, and is not inaptly spoken of in the following transcription from the Harleian MSS. :—

"Belvoir, art's masterpiece and nature's pride,
High in the regions of ethereal air,
Above the troubled atmosphere,
Above the magazines of hail and snow,
Above the place that meteors breeds,
Above the seat where lie the seeds,
Whence raging storms and tempests grow,
That do infest the troubled world below."

The domain includes upwards of 600 acres of ground, and both from its princely character and beauty of situation, as well as from the high rank of its owner, Belvoir is rightly considered the first seat in the county. Some doubts have existed as to whether the castle stood in Leicester or in Lincoln; and Burton as well as the editors of Lysons' have stated strong opinions upon the subject in favour of the latter of the two shires, for there is some ambiguity as to where the boundary between them just here really runs; but Leland is very explicit upon the subject. He says—Bever Castle of surety standeth in Leicestre, in the vale of Bever; and when subsequently speaking of it, he says—The castelle of Bellevoir standith in the utter part of that woy of Leicestreskir, on the very keepe of an highe hill, stepe up eche way, as it may evidently be perceyved. Whither ther wer ani castelle ther befor the Conquest or no, I am not sure, but surely I think rather no then ye. Totenus was the first enhabiter after the Conquest. Than it cam to Albeneius, and from Albeneius to Ros. Of this descent, and of the foundation of the priory in the village at the castelle fort, I have written a quire separately. By the last public survey, the extra-parochial liberty was decidedly placed within the confines of Leicestershire. The proprietors of the great keep of Belvoir have always stood in the first rank of the British nobility, distinguished alike for their characters, their ability, their station, and their wealth; and during the long process of nearly eight centuries, have never had a public stain upon their name. Robert de Todenei died in 1088, and was buried in the chapter-house of the priory, where the inscription to his memory was discovered by Dr. Stukely in the early part of the last century. He was the owner of no less than fourscore lordships, many of which have come down in uninterrupted succession, and are the property of the Duke of Rutland at the present day. He was succeeded by his son William de Albini, whose grandson was one of the sureties of King John to the French king. Isabel, an opulent heiress of the house of de Albini, married Robert de Ros, lord of Hamlake, whose descendants retained the estates till 1461, when the then owner taking part with the Lancasterians in the wars of the Roses, the whole of his estates were seized by Edward IV., and parcelled out among his partizans. About 1483, however, they were recovered, and half of them, Belvoir included, conveyed by the marriage of Eleanor, daughter and co-heiress of Thomas Lord Ros, to Robert de Manners of Ethal, the representative of an ancient family in the county of Northumberland. His grandson, who filled some of the highest offices of the state during the reign of Henry VIII., was created by that monarch Earl of Rutland, an honour which had never before been conferred on any but those of immediately royal blood, and was in nowise desecrated in this instance, as the first Earl of Rutland was himself a descendant of the Plantagenets. John, the ninth Earl, a direct descendant of that nobleman, was created Marquis of Granby and Duke of Rutland by Queen Anne. His present grace, whose father was for some time lord-lieutenant of Ireland, is the fifth duke, and has spent immense sums in the improvement and embellishment of his noble ancestral residence. His grace succeeded to the title and estates in 1787, when only nine years of age, and is a knight of the garter, lord-lieutenant of Leicestershire, colonel of the Leicestershire Militia, was formerly recorder of Cambridge, Grantham, and Scarborough, and a trustee of the British Museum. His grace's own family are distinguished for their literary and political ability. His grace's other residences are Cheveley Park in Cambridgeshire, Staunton Woodhouse, and a shooting-box on the moors in Derbyshire; beside Haddon Hall, the fine old baronial hall near Matlock, but which is not now inhabited.

BEMBRIDGE, ISLE OF WIGHT, a chapelry and hamlet in the parish of Brading—(which see for access, &c.): 11 miles from Newport.—A commodious chapel was erected here by subscription in 1827; and the village has about it much of natural and artificial beauty, and much esteemed as a place for a summer sea-side sojourn.—The living is a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Brading: pres. net. income, £100: patron, Vicar of Brading: pres. incumbent, F. G. Middleton, 1836.

BEMERTON, WILTS, a parish in the hundred of Branch and Dole, union of Wilton: 83 miles from London, 2 from Salisbury, 2 from Wilton.—(For returns, &c., see FUGGLESSEX).—Bemerton, a small and inconsiderable village in appearance, has been distinguished by the residence of several celebrated men, eminent alike for learning, diligence, and ability. It was the incumbency of Bishop Curle, George Herbert, John Norris, and Archdeacon Cox. There is perhaps no other parish in the country, except it be one of extensive area and large population, that has been directed by such a succession of distinguished persons. The second on the list, George Herbert, frequently styled the Divine Herbert, was eminent both for his poetical talent, and, what is far better, for the soundness of his doctrines, and the purity of his life. He was the brother of the celebrated Lord Herbert of Cherbury, who obtained great distinction as a chevalier in the wars in the Netherlands, and was afterwards British ambassador to France. George Herbert was born in Montgomery Castle, being the fifth son of Richard Herbert, Esq., in 1593. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and was public orator of that university in 1619. He was about to enter political life, but the death of his friends, the Duke of Richmond and the Marquis of Hamilton, precluded his prospects of advancement, and he turned his attention to better things. On the demise of James I. he retired into Kent, where he remained until, upon the special encouragement of Charles I., he took holy orders. In 1626, he was collated to a prebend in Lincoln cathedral, and having married a daughter of the Earl of Danby, was shortly afterwards preferred to the living of Bemerton, where his conduct is reported to have been exemplary. He wrote two volumes of poems, one of which was published in his lifetime, the other after his death; and comparatively trifling as those compositions were to the rolls of literature, their beauty and their sweetness have enshrined their author in the hearts of all who know them. Pope frequently read them; and such was the respect of Lord Bacon for the writer, that he printed none of his own compositions until they had passed his examination. Herbert died in 1633, and was buried at Bemerton. Walter Curle was a person of great talents, and of exemplary virtue. Where and when he was born is uncertain; but in 1628 he was Dean of Lichfield, and prolocutor to the convocation. He afterwards became Bishop of Rochester, Bath and Wells, and Winchester; but on the breaking out of the civil war lost all his preferment, and died in necessitous circumstances in 1647. Archdeacon Coxo was born in 1747; and having accompanied several young noblemen in tours on the continent, on his return, published the results of his travelling observations, and produced several works remarkable for the beauty of their style, and the correctness of their remarks. He obtained considerable preferment in the church, and died archdeacon of Wilts in 1828. The living, a rectory not in charge, is annexed to that of Fugglestone.

BEMPTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Dickering, union of Bridlington: 244 miles from London (coach road 210), 3 from Bridlington, 3 from Flamborough. East. Co. Rail. through Peterborough, Hull, and Bridlington, to Bampton: from Derby, through Normanton and Selby to Bridlington, &c., 132 miles. Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m. The living (St. Michael), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net. income, £51: patron, H. Broadley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Banks, 1820: contains 1,930 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 313: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 360: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,343: poor rates in 1837, £112. The great and small tithes of Bampton township were commuted in 1764.

BENEFIELD, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Polebrooke, union of Oundle: 100 miles from London (coach road 85), 3 from Oundle, 6 from Weldon. Nor. West Rail. through Northampton to Oundle, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Weedon, Northampton, &c., 98 miles. Money orders issued at Oundle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. There is an excellent school here endowed with £10. 10s. a year, to which the lord of the manor adds £70, and the rector £20 yearly. The parochial charities produce about £32 per annum. The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £35. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £531: patron, J. W. Russell, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Fred. Day, 1845: contains 5,100 acres: 100 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 533: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 613: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,422: poor rates in 1837, £317. All the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1820.

BENENDEN, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Rolvenden, lathe of Scray, union of Cranbrook: 64 miles from London (coach road 51), 3 from Cranbrook, 5 from Tenterden. Sou. East. Co. Rail. to Headcorn, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 196 miles. Money orders issued at Cranbrook: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. A school was founded here by Edward Gibbon, Esq., in 1609, the endowments of which now yield £75 a year. The other educational institutions are numerous. The living (St. George), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £17. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £108: patron, T. L. Hodges, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Dan. Boys, 1805: contains 6,780 acres: 269 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,594: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,833: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,778: poor rates in 1837, £961. Fairs, 15th May, for horses and horned cattle. N. Hempstead Park, the residence of Thomas L. Hodges, Esq. Mr. Hodges' family was, for many generations, seated in Gloucestershire and Dorsetshire; but the immediate ancestor from whom that gentleman traces his descent, was Thomas Hodges, Esq. of Breedy, in Dorsetshire, who died while governor of Bombay. His only son, Thomas Hallett Hodges, Esq., was high sheriff of Kent; and the son of that gentleman, the present proprietor, is a magistrate for the counties of Kent and Sussex, and was formerly major of the West Kent Militia. He for five parliaments represented the county in the House of Commons.

BENFIELD-SIDE, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Lanchester, western division of the ward of Chester: 306 miles from London (coach road 270), 12 from Durham, 13 from Newcastle. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Washington, to Leston, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 176 miles. Money orders issued at Durham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Contains 2,150 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 614: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 706: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,792.

BENFLEET (NORTH), or LITTLE BENFLEET, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barstable, union of Billericay: 80 miles from London (coach road 29), 4 from Rayleigh, 6 from Southend. East. Co. Rail. to Brentwood, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 145 miles. Money orders issued at Rochford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.:

post closes 2½ p.m.—The bay and the creek are famous for oysters. The church is spacious, and has a high wooden spire. There was a castle here, built by the celebrated Hastings, a Danish Wyking, but which was destroyed in 894 by King Alfred, who took two of Hastings' children prisoners.—The living (All Saints), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £16: pres. net income, £700: patron, Rev. C. R. Rowlett: pres. incumbent, C. R. Rowlett, 1839: contains 1,730 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 364: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 418: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,446: poor rates in 1837, £113.

BENFLEET (SOUTH), or GREAT BENFLEET, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barstable, union of Billericay: 30 miles from London (coach road 32), 4 from Rayleigh, 9 from Billericay.—(For access, see preceding article, NORTH BENFLEET).—Money orders issued at Billericay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £16. 5s. 5d.: pres. net income, £242: patron, Dean and Chapter of Westminster: pres. incumbent, H. R. Lloyd, 1845: contains 2,160 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 300: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,731: poor rates in 1837, £300.—Fair, 24th August, for toys.

BENGE (BENGHO or BENGES), HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Hertford: 27 miles from London (coach road 22), 1 from Hertford, 2 from Ware.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Hertford, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through London, &c., 158 miles.—Money orders issued at Hertford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—There are two almshouses for four poor widows.—The living (St. Leonard), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £7. 8s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, J. A. Smith, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Charles Deedes, 1847: contains 3,020 acres: 166 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,141: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,312: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,118: poor rates in 1837, £333.—S.W. Panshanger Park, the seat of Earl Cowper. The situation is extremely fine, and the house, which has lately been much enlarged, is now quite worthy of being a nobleman's residence; the grounds are very tastefully laid out, and pleasingly enlivened by the vicinity of the river Maran. Among the forest trees by which they are adorned, is one which has been called the Great Oak for nearly a century and a half. It is still a very healthy and luxuriant tree, and measures more than 17 feet in girth round the trunk. The family of the present noble earl derive their immediate descent from John Cowper, Esq., who was one of the sheriffs of London in 1551, and afterwards alderman of Bridge Ward. His grandson, Sir William Cowper, was the representative for Hertford, in the House of Commons, and his great-grandson, Sir William Cowper, a lawyer of great eminence, was made Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, and elevated to the peerage by the title of Baron Wingham in the county of Kent, in 1706. During the same year, his lordship was appointed one of the commissioners for arranging the treaty of union between England and Scotland, and in May of the following year was declared first Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain. On the demise of Queen Anne, Lord Cowper was constituted one of the justices till the arrival of George I. In 1716, his lordship was appointed Lord High Steward of Great Britain, for the trial of the rebel lords, and in the following year he was elevated to the dignities of Viscount Fordwich and Earl Cowper, soon after which circumstance he resigned the seals. From that nobleman the present earl, who succeeded to the title and estates in 1837, is the fifth in descent.—Bengeo Hall, the seat of Admiral Le Marchant Gosselin. The ancestors of this gentleman were of Norman origin, and early settled in the island of Guernsey, at what particular date cannot now be ascertained; but, in the reign of Edward III., Robert Gosselin, who was previously a distinguished soldier, did eminent service in the capture of Orgueil from the French, for which he was made governor of the castle, and received the armorial ensigns which the family now wear. For several centuries the principal persons of the family held important posts, either municipal or by royal delegation. Joshua Gosselin, Esq., was sworn greffier in 1768, and colonel of the island militia. He married Martha, a daughter of Thomas Le Marchant of Guernsey, and the present gallant owner of Bengeo, Admiral Le Marchant Gosselin, is the third son of that gentleman. The admiral is a magistrate for the county.—W. 1 m. Marden Hall; Ware Park; E. ½ m. Broad Oak.

BENGERS. See IVEX, BUCKS.

BENGRAVE. See BECKFORD, GLOUCESTER.

BENGWORTH (St. PETER), WORCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackenhurst, union of Evesham: 109 miles from London (coach road 100), 1½ from Evesham, 16 from Worcester.—Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Moreton-in-the-Marsh to Evesham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Droitwich to Evesham, &c., 79 miles.—Money orders issued at Evesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—There was formerly a castle as well as an abbey here, but the military and the monks not agreeing, the abbot excommunicated Lord Beauchamp, and afterwards pulled his castle down, turning the site into a cemetery. Bengeworth, for municipal purposes, was united to Evesham, it is said, at the instance of Henry Prince of Wales, the accomplished son of James I., whose early loss was a misfortune alike to the nation and his family. Dr. Nash, in speaking of the circumstance, alludes to the strong affection which existed between the king and this his favourite son, and states from some verses at the head of the charter—

"PRINCEPS
Mi Pater, hoc primum pro Cambria, du mihi votum.
REX
Sols me, Natl, nihil posse regare tibi."

Had Henry lived, Charles, in all probability, would never have seen the block. There is a free school here for 30 boys, the foundation stone of which was laid by the gift of £2,000 by John Deacle, Esq., a native of the place, who afterwards became an alderman of the city of London.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £158: patron, Rev. W. Harker: pres. incumbent, John Shaw, 1803: contains 195 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,082: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,244: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,839: poor rates in 1837, £493. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropiator and the perpetual curate, were commuted in 1775.---N. 1 m. Abbey Manor House.

BENHALL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Plomsgate: 88 miles from London (coach road 89), 2 from Saxmundham, 13 from Woodbridge.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 220 miles.---Money orders issued at Saxmundham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The church has recently undergone a thorough repair, and has had a new transept built entirely at the expense of the Rev. E. Holland, who is lord of the manor and patron of the living.---The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 1s. 3d.: pres. net income, £173: patron, Rev. E. Holland: pres. incumbent, J. Mitford, 1810: contains 2,010 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 749: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 861: poor rates in 1837, £583.---N.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Benhall Lodge, the residence of the Rev. Edmund Holland. The house is situated in a large and finely wooded park. A member of the reverend gentleman's family left the sum of £500 for the endowment of a school in the parish, to which £1,000 was added by Sir Edward Duke.---S.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Williamson's Hall.

BENHAM, BERKS, a tithing in the parish of Speen---(which see for returns, &c.): 59 miles from London, 3 from Newburgh, 6 from Hungerford.---The district is principally remarkable for having been the residence of Dr. Stackhouse, who was vicar of a parish and an author of some distinction during the last century.

BENNET-LAND, EAST RIDING, YORK, a hamlet in the parish of Eastrington---(which see for access, returns, &c.): 5 miles from Howden.

BENNET'S (St.) OF HOLME, NORFOLK, in the parish of Horning, hund<sup>d</sup> of Tunstead, 6 miles north-west of Acle.---Bishop Tanner, in speaking of this place, says---This solitary place among the marshes---then known by the name of Cowholme and Calvescroft---was given by a little prince called Horn, to a society of religious hermits, under the government of one Suneman, about the year 800, who (with the chapel of St. Benedict, by them here built) were all destroyed in the general devastation of this country by the Danes under Ingvar and Hubba, in 870. In the next century, a holy man called Wolfric gathered seven companions hither, and rebuilt the chapel and houses: they had lived here sixty years, when King Canute thought fit to found and endow this place for an abbey of black monks, to the honour of St. Benedict, before A.D. 1020. Its revenues increased so much as to be valued in the 26th year of Henry VIII. at £677. 9s. 8d.; and the next year, by private act of parliament, this abbey was united to the bishopric of Norwich, in exchange for the old estates of the see, and the bishops of Norwich were to be thenceforth abbots of this monastery.

BENNINGBOROUGH (or BENINGBROUGH),

NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Newton-upon-Ouse, wapentake of Bulmer: 227 miles from London (coach road 204), 7 from York, 8 from Boroughbridge.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Shipton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 95 miles.---Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Contains 1,070 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 107: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 123: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,652: poor rates in 1837, £11.---Benningborough Hall.

BENNINGHOLME AND GRANGE, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Swine, wapentake of Holderness---(which see for access, &c.): 182 miles from London, 7 from Beverley, 8 from Hull.---Money orders issued at Hull: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m.---Contains 1,280 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 121: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 139: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,775: poor rates in 1837, £146.

BENNINGTON, HERTFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Broadwater, union of Hertford: 34 miles from London (coach road 29), 5 from Stevenage, 6 from Buntingford.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Hertford, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 166 miles.---Money orders issued at Stevenage: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m.---Bennington was anciently the residence of the kings of Mercia. The place was called Belentone in Domesday-book, and, according to Spelman, a great council of prelates and nobility was assembled here in the year 850, under King Bertulph, who, on a complaint of Ankill, a monk of Croyland, granted a new charter of divers splendid liberties and several extensive manors, on account of the exactions and extensive devastations of the Danes. The church is interesting, from its containing several monuments to several descendants of Sir Julius Cæsar, who was master of the rolls in 1610, and one of the commissioners of the great seal in 1620. At a small distance from it, the rude foundations of the old palace may still be perceived.---The living (St. Peter), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £19: pres. net income, £608: patron, G. Proctor, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Pollard, 1813: contains 2,950 acres: 120 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 605: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 696: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,917: poor rates in 1837, £339.---Bennington Hall, the seat of William Wigram, Esq.; N. 1 m. Clay Hall; E. 1 m. Bennington Place.

BENNINGTON, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Skirbeck, parts of Holland: 143 miles from London (coach road 121), 5 from Boston, 12 from Wainfleet.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Boston, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Boston, &c., 90 miles.---Money orders issued at Boston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.---There is a school here with an endowment of £15 a year.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £33. 8s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: pres. net income, £805: patron, Earl of Ripon: pres. incumbent, Francis Swan, 1833: contains 3,090 acres: 93 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 539: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 620: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,213: poor rates in 1837, £267. The great and small tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1815.

BENNINGTON (Long), LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven, union of Boston: 151 miles from London (coach road 116), 8 from Grantham, 6 from Newark.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Newark, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Newark, &c., 39½ miles.---Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The schools are numerous. Tanner, in his Notitia, speaking of this place, says—The church and four carucates of land in this town being given by Ralph de Fulgeris or Fulgeris to the abbey of Savigney, in Normandy, before 1175, here became an alien priory of Cistercian monks, subordinate to that foreign monastery. During the wars with France, it was seized into the king's hands, and, being then valued at £50 per annum, given by Richard II. to the Carthusians of St. Ann, near Coventry. But after the suppression of these houses, this was given, in the 9th year of Henry V., to the priory of Mountgrace; and as part and parcel of the possessions of this last-named monastery, this manor of Long Bennington was granted to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster in the 34th year of Henry VIII.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £20. 1s. 10d.: pres. net income, £463: patron, the Duchy of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, M. E. Welby, 1808: contains 4,420 acres: 158 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 991: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,139: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,049: poor rates in 1837, £234. All the tithes, moduses, &c., of Long Bennington and Foston, the property of the lay proprietor and the vicar, were commuted in 1794.---W. ¼ m. is Staunton Hall, the seat of the Rev. J. Staunton, LL.D., (for account of whose family and residence, see STAUNTON-CUM-KELVINGTON.)

BENNIWORTH, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Wraggoc, parts of Lindsey: 175 miles from London (coach road 145), 6 from Wragby, 9 from Louth.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Bardney station, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Bardney, &c., 71 miles.---Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---G. F. Heneage, Esq., the patron of the living, supports a school here.---The living (St. Julian), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £23. 8s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £506: patron, G. F. Heneage, Esq.: pres. incumbent, A. Corbett, 1831: contains 2,840 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 488: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 561: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,735: poor rates in 1837, £247. The tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1770.---S. 1 m. is Panton Hall—(for an account of which, see PANTON.)

BENNO'S (St.) CHAPEL See CLYNNOG.

BENRIDGE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Ponteland, western division of Castle ward.---(For returns, &c., see KIRKLEY.)

BENRIDGE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a hamlet in the parish of Mitford, western division of the ward of Morpeth—(which see for access, &c.): 290 miles from London, 2 from Morpeth, 12 from Rothbury.

---Contains 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 61: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 70: poor rates in 1837, £19.

BENSINGTON (or Benson), OXFORD, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dorchester, and partly in that of Ewelme, union of Wallingford, in the above county: it includes the hamlets of Fifield and Crowmarsh-Battle: 52½ miles from London (coach road 46), 2 from Wallingford, 3 from Dorchester.---Gt. West. Rail. to Wallingford Road station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Oxford to Wallingford Road station, &c., 147 miles.---Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.

---There was anciently a strong fortress of the Britons here, but it was taken from them in 572, or, as some say, in 560, by Ceawlin, king of the West Saxons, by whose descendants it was held for more than two hundred years; but having been possessed by Cuthred, at that time king, who revolted from Ethelbald, and defeated him in 752, it was finally surrendered to Offa, king of Mercia, who was so offended by the obstinate resistance he had met with, that he dismantled the fortifications. There is an hospital here, which was founded in the reign of Henry VI. by William de la Pole, Duke of Suffolk, the mastership of which is held by the regius professor of physic in Oxford University. Lands left for sustaining the fabric and service of the church produce about £73 a year. An Independent church was formed here in 1800, and there are several schools in the parish.---The living (St. Helen), a perpetual curacy not in charge, exempt from visitation, and under the jurisdiction of the peculiar court of Dorchester: pres. net income, £180: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Francis Balston, 1848: contains 2,800 acres: 222 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,254: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,442: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,329: poor rates in 1837, £674.

BENTFIELD, ESSEX, a hamlet in the parish of Stansted-Mountfitchet, hun<sup>d</sup> of Clavering—(which see for access, &c.): 34 miles from London, 2 from Stansted, 4 from Bishop's-Stortford.---Contains 740 acres: 105 houses.

BENTHALL, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wenlock, union of Madeley: 145 miles from London (coach road 150), 2 from Wenlock, 6 from Madeley.---Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 73 miles.---Money orders issued at Newcastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ a.m.---The parish lies on the banks of the Severn, which is here navigable. There is a daily school with a small endowment.---The living, a perpetual curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford, annexed to the vicarage of Wenlock: pres. net income £93: patron, Vicar of Wenlock: pres. incumbent, W. H. Wayne, 1842: contains 770 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 587: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 675: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,077: poor rates in 1837, £241.

BENTHAM, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the western division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross, union of Settle: it comprises the chapelry of Ingleton, and the townships of Bentham and Langcliffe: 252 miles from London (coach road 247), 12 from Settle, 13 from Lancaster.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Lancaster, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 86 miles.---Money orders issued at Settle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 4 p.m.: post closes 12 noon.---In 1726, a free school and an hospital for six men and six women were founded, and the estate now produces about £240 a year. The other parochial charities bring in on an average £38. 16s. a year. The schools are adequate for the population. In 1838, there were flax and cotton mills here, employing about 400 hands. A new church has been built in Upper Bentham by --- Roughsedge, Esq.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £35. 7s. 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £452: patron, J. W. Farrer, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. F. Parker, 1825: contains 24,990 acres: 771 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,535: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,998: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £7,286: poor rates in 1837, £618.---Fairs, 25th January, 22d June, the Saturday in Easter week, and 25th October.---S.E. Bentham House.

BENTLEY (or BENTHLEY), MIDDLESEX, in the parish of Harrow-on-the-Hill, hun<sup>d</sup> of Gore. There was formerly a priory called Benethley or Bentley, towards the extremity of Stanmore.

BENTLEY, HANTS, a parish and liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Basingstoke, union of Alton, Basingstoke division of the county: 43 miles from London (coach road 42), 4 from Farnham, 6 from Alton.---Sou. West. Rail. to Bentley Road, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 175 miles.---Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £21 a year.---The living (Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, annexed to the vicarage of Farnham: pres. net income, £106: patron, Archdeacon of Surrey: pres. incumbent, Charles Jackson: contains 2,450 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 766: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 880: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £4,147: poor rates in 1837, £387.---W. 1 m. Northbrook House, the residence of John Frederick Schroder, Esq.; Crock's, the residence of Henry Montague Morrison, Esq.; Maryland House, the residence of Thomas Samuel Seawell, Esq.; S.E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Marsh House.

BENTLEY, STAFFORD, a township and liberty in the parish of Wolverhampton: 124 miles from London (coach road 120), 2 from Walsall, 8 from Lichfield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Bescott, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth and Birmingham, &c., 53 miles.---Money orders issued at Walsall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.---Contains 1,470 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 120: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 138: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,069: poor rates in 1837, £83.---Bentley Hall, the residence of the Rev. Geo. W. Fisher.

BENTLEY, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Samsford: 62 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 69), 6 from Ipswich, 18 from Harwich.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Colchester to Bentley station, 62 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 195 miles.---Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 12s. 11d.: pres. net income, £182: patron, Rev. C. E. Keene: pres. incumbent, W. Brooke, 1840: contains 2,350 acres: 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 419: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 482: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £3,320: poor rates in 1837, £197.

BENTLEY, WARWICK, a hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Shusstock, Atherstone division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford: 106 miles from London, 7 from Coleshill, 16 from Birmingham.---(For access, &c., see SHUSSTOCK).---The living, a curacy not in charge, is annexed to the vicarage of Shusstock, jointly having a pres. net income of £258: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, G. Salmond, 1831: contains 1,230 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 310: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 357: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,735: poor rates in 1837, £84.

BENTLEY. See ARSEBY, YORK.

BENTLEY. See HALIFAX, YORKSHIRE.

BENTLEY. See ROWLEY, YORKSHIRE.

BENTLEY (FERRY), DERBY, a parish in the wapentake of Wirksworth: 149 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from London (coach road 142), 3 from Ashbourne, 16 from Derby.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Belper, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Belper, &c., 17 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles.---Money orders issued at Ashbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.---The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 12s. 10d.: pres. net income, £124: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, G. Howard, 1842: contains 670 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 343: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 394: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,000: poor rates in 1837, £65.---S. 1 m. Sandybrook Hall, the residence of John Goodwin Johnson, Esq.

BENTLEY (GREAT), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Tendring: 60 miles from London (coach road 60), 9 from Colchester, 13 from Harwich.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Colchester, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 192 miles.---Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---During the present year a spacious and substantial building, consisting of two National school-rooms and master's residence, was completed. Bentley Green, which measures about 42 acres of beautiful level common, is a noted place for cricket matches.---The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £327: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, Thomas Jones, 1847: contains 2,850 acres: 192 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,005: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,156: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £5,055: poor rates in 1837, £445.---Fair, 15th July, for toys.

BENTLEY (HUNGRY), DERBY, a liberty and chapelry in the parish of Longford, hun<sup>d</sup> of Apple-tree---(which see for access, &c.): 136 miles from London, 6 from Ashbourne, 10 from Derby.---Money orders issued at Ashbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—There was formerly an hospital here, dedicated to St. Leonard.—Contains 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 106: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 122: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>n</sup>. £1,268: poor rates in 1837, £27.

BENTLEY (LITTLE), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Tendring: 60 miles from London, 9 from Colchester, 10 from Harwich.—(For access, &c., see GREAT BENTLEY.)—The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £13: pres. net income, £650: patron, Emmanuel College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, H. R. S. Smith, 1824: contains 2,750 acres: 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 462: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 531: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>n</sup>. £2,980: poor rates in 1837, £236.

BENTON (LONG), NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish in the eastern division of Castle-ward, union of Tyne-mouth: it comprises the townships of Long Benton, Killingworth, Walker with Little Benton, and Weetslet: 306 miles from London (coach road 278), 3 from Newcastle, 6 from North Shields.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Newcastle, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 174 miles.—Money orders issued at Newcastle-on-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—The town consists of one street, more than a mile in length. It is built upon a rock, and is peculiarly salubrious and agreeable. There are extensive collieries, foundries, quarries, and gunpowder works. Upwards of 1,200 hands are employed in one of the collieries. During the month of May, 1815, a terrible catastrophe happened in Heaton colliery, into which a mass of water suddenly rushed from a worn-out seam whilst the people were at work, by which sixty-five people were drowned. The schools of the parish are particularly numerous.—The living (St. Bartholomew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham, is valued at £3. 1s. 3d.: pres. net income, £353: patron, Balliol College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. Bealy, 1830: contains 8,760 acres: 1,174 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 8,711: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,018: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>n</sup>. £40,176: poor rates in 1837, £1,356.—Benton House. 8. 1 m. Little Benton House.

BENTWORTH, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Odiham, union of Alton, Basingstoke division of the county: 50 miles from London (coach road 52), 5 from Alton, 8 from Basingstoke.—Sou. West. Rail. to Alton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, 182 miles.—Money orders issued at Alton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The Independents have a chapel here. Bentworth was the birthplace of George Willes the poet, whose writings have, within these few years, been brought into much notice by Sir Egerton Bridges. He was born in 1588, and was educated at Magdalen College, Oxford. In 1613, he was imprisoned for some satires, called "Abuses Strip and Whipt." On the breaking out of the civil war, he adopted the cause of the parliament, and rose to the rank of major-general of the republican forces. On the restoration, he published a work called "Vox Vulgi," which caused his being again thrown into prison. He died in 1667.—The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £14. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £760: patron, Rev. — Mathews: pres. incumbent, H. S. Mathews, 1847: contains 3,770 acres: 103 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 609: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 700: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>n</sup>. £3,392: poor rates in 1837, £313.—S. Bentworth House, the seat of Charles Bush, Esq. Binstead Hill, the residence of James B. Coulthart, Esq.

BENWELL, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of St. John, western division of Castle-ward: 305 miles from London (coach road 276), 2 from Newcastle, 18 from Hexham.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 173 miles.—Money orders issued at Newcastle-on-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—A new church has been erected here in the Gothic style by the parliamentary commissioners, at an expense of about £1,600; there are 600 sittings. Benwell is believed to have been the Condernum of the Romans, near the station Ala Astorum, which is situated on an eminence about two miles west of Newcastle; and a stone was discovered here in 1669, which is supposed by Baxter to have been inscribed in the consulship of Senicio and Palma; but Horsley, in his "Britannia Romanorum," says—I take it to have been erected to the honour of the Emperors Marcus Aurelius and Lucius Verus, upon the occasion of some victory they had gained over the Northern Britons, by Calpurnius Agricola, their legate, in which this Felix Senicio had the command of the first wing of the Asti. The inscription is now much defaced. Several other inscriptions have been found here, the most remarkable of which is one upon an altar dedicated to Jupiter Dolichenus, a deity, according to Reinesius, formerly worshipped by miners. A variety of other interesting Roman remains beside these just noticed have also been found here. A coal mine, in the course of last century, accidentally took fire close by Benwell, and a conflagration ensued, which, though small at first, afterwards gained such prodigious strength that it burned for thirty years, bursting out like a volcano, in nearly twenty places. According to Bourne—The old tower, which stood here, was the place where the prior of Tynemouth had made his summer residence, and the chapel which the Shaftoes opened for the good of the people of this village was the prior's domestic chapel; but its very foundations have been razed, and nothing remains to point out its site but grave-stones, "With nettles skirted, and with moss o'ergrown;" and the Shaftoes themselves are gone, and their mansion is in ruins. The village, however, is neat; and the view from it over the island called the King's Meadow, truly delightful.—The living (St. James), a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £150: patron, the Vicar: pres. incumbent, W. Maughan, 1843: contains 1,270 acres: 234 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,000: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,300: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>n</sup>. £11,730: poor rates in 1837, £438.—Benwell House.

BENWICK, CAMBRIDGE, a chapelry in the parish of Doddington, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Witchford, Isle of Ely: 83 miles from London (coach road 81), 6 from March, 6 from Peterborough. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Cambridge to Chatteris, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Chatteris, &c., 101 miles. — Money orders issued at Peterborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living, a curacy exempt from visitation, annexed to the rectory of Doddington: contains 3,060 acres: 103 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 605: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 696: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,753: poor rates in 1837, £362.

BEOLEY (anciently, perhaps, BRULIET), WORCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Pershore: 142 miles from London (coach road 112), 8 from Bromsgrove, 11 from Birmingham. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Droitwich to Blackwell station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Blackwell, &c., 62 miles. — Money orders issued at Birmingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — In the neighbourhood of the village are the traces of an ancient castle, which formerly belonged successively to the Mortimers, the Beauchamps, and the Hollands. — The living (St. Leonard), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7. 16s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £73: patron, W. Holmes, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. F. Sculthorpe, 1839: contains 4,700 acres: 131 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 657: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 755: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,322: poor rates in 1837, £490. — N. Beoley Hall.

BEPTON, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Easebourne, rape of Chichester, union of Midhurst: 64 miles from London (coach road 53), 3 from Midhurst, 10 from Chichester. — Sou. East. Rail. to Godalming, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 196 miles. — Money orders issued at Chichester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £127: patron, Earl of Egmont: pres. incumbent, T. W. Langshaw, 1837: contains 1,260 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 207: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 238: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £877: poor rates in 1837, £74.

BERDON (BERDEN, or BERDIN), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Clavering, union of Bishop Stortford: 42 miles from London (coach road 36), 6 from Bishop Stortford, 9 from Saffron Walden. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Elsenham station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 174 miles. — Money orders issued at Bishop Stortford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Bishop Tanner says of this place — Here was, in the beginning of the reign of Henry III., an hospital or priory of canons and brethren of the order of St. Augustine, dedicated to St. John the Evangelist. William Bohun, Earl of Northampton, and Elizabeth his wife, had license in 17th of Edward III. to give the advowson of this priory to the abbot and convent of Walden. Its yearly revenues were computed, in the 26th of Henry VIII., at £31. 5s. 1d. The site was granted, in the 30th of Henry VIII., to Henry Parker, and in the 5th of Edward VI. to Sir Thomas Wroth, who alienated the same to Thomas Avery and his wife Margaret, by license dated March 17th, in the first year of Mary; and in the 25th of Elizabeth it was settled on the hospitals of Christchurch, Bridewell, and St. Thomas. The Rev. Joseph Mede, a theologian and learned commentator on the Apocalypse of St. John, was born here in 1586. — The living (St. Nicholas), a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Rochester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Christ's Hospital: pres. incumbent, C. F. Cook, 1846: contains 1,570 acres: 68 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 391: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 449: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,287: poor rates in 1837, £256.

BERDWICK. See ANSON, GLOUCESTER.

BERE-ALSTON. See BEER-ALSTON, DEVON.

BERE-CHURCH (or WEST DONILAND), ESSEX, a parish within the liberty of the borough and union of Colchester: 55 miles from London (coach road 52), 3 from Colchester, 10 from Coggeshall. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Colchester, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 188 miles. — Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The living (St. Michael), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Colchester, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester: pres. net income, £110: patron, Sir G. H. Smyth: pres. incumbent, J. H. Dewhurst, 1845: contains 1,450 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 146: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 167: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. 1,429: poor rates in 1837, £142. — Berechurch Hall, the seat of Sir G. H. Smyth, Bart. Sir G. H. Smyth traces his immediate descent from Robert Smyth, Esq., who was created a baronet in 1655, and from whom the title descended in a direct line to Sir Trafford Smyth, who died in 1765, when it devolved upon the father of the present baronet.

BERE-FERRIS. See BEER-FERRIS, DEVON.

BEREFORD. See BARFORD, BEDFORD.

BERE-HACKET. See BEER-HACKET, DORS.

BERE-REGIS. See BEER-REGIS, DORSET.

BERGHAM. See BARHAM, CAMBRIDGE.

BERGHOLT (EAST), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Sampford: 61 miles from London (coach road 63), 6 from Hadleigh, 8 from Ipswich. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Manningtree, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 193 miles. — Money orders issued at Hadley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There is a free school here, built on land given by Mr. Edward Lamb, endowed with £40 a year. The other parochial charities produce about £54 a year. The Independents have a chapel here, and the schools are numerous. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory not in charge, united with that of Brantham: contains 2,380 acres: 186 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,461: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,680: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,846: poor rates in 1837, £366. All the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1815. — Bergholt Hall is the seat of Sir Richard Hughes, Bart. The family trace their descent from Sir Thomas Hughes, who was knighted at Whitehall in 1619. The great-grandson of that gentleman, a naval officer, had two sons, the youngest of whom attained the rank of admiral, and the elder that of captain in the royal navy. Captain Richard Hughes was made a commissioner of Portsmouth dockyard, and had the honour of entertaining his Majesty George III. on his visit there. He was, in consequence, created a baronet in 1775. His elder son, Sir Richard, also entered the navy, and became an admiral of the red. The present baronet, who is the fourth in descent from the admiral, succeeded to the title and estates in 1833, on the death of his father. The Dowager Countess of Morton, C. T. Oakes, Esq., C. Rowley, Esq., and W. H. Travis, Esq., each have handsome residences here. — Fair, 22d July, for toys.

BERGHOLT (WEST), ESSEX, a parish in the Colchester division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Lexden, union of Lexden and Winstree: 55½ miles from London (coach road 51), 4 from Colchester, 10 from Halstead. — East. Co<sup>ty</sup> Rail. to Colchester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 187 miles. — Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — In the neighbourhood there is a circular intrenchment, which Stukeley believes to have been the palace of the British King Canobeline. There are three unendowed almshouses on the Green. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £454: patron, W. Fisher, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Frederick Sims, 1846: contains 2,170 acres: 155 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 822: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 945: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,232: poor rates in 1837, £303. — N. 1 m. Westwood House.

BERK. See BARROW, RUTLAND.

BERKELEY, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Berkeley, union of Thornbury: it comprises the market town of Berkeley, the chapelry of Stone, the tithings of Alkington, Hinton, and Ham, and the hamlets of Bradstone and Hamfallow. — The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £32. 15s. 7½d.: patron, Earl Fitzhardinge: pres. incumbent, J. S. Karr, 1839: contains 14,680 acres: 707 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,405: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,066: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £28,278: poor rates in 1837, £2,021.

BERKELEY, GLOUCESTER, a market town in the above parish: 111½ miles from London (coach road 114), 13 from Chepstow. — Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Berkeley Road station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse, to Berkeley Road station, &c., 111½ miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The town is delightfully situated on an eminence in the beautiful vale of Berkeley, about a mile east of the river Severn. Its origin is very remote, certainly anterior to the Conquest, but it is uncertain, although described in the Domesday-book as a royal demesne and free borough. A religious house existed here in the time of Edward the Confessor, of which Tanner says—Here was an old religious house long before the Conquest, which might be the family at Berkeley mentioned in the acts of a synod at Clovesho, in 1024. It is very doubtful whether it consisted of monks or nuns, who were suppressed by the villany of Earl Godwin, in the time of Edward the Confessor, as related by Camden and others out of Waller Mapes. The hospital of St. James and St. John here is mentioned Cart. 12th Henry III. m. 4., wherein is a confirmation of several parcels of land wherewith it was endowed. Other authorities state, and the traditional account is, that it was a nunnery, and the craft of Earl Godwin to get possession of the property, consisted in contriving to introduce a profligate youth, by whom the nuns were seduced and rendered dissolute. Their conduct coming to the ears of the king, the establishment was dissolved, and its possessions granted to the Earl. The Conqueror afterwards conferred the manor upon Roger de Berkeley, one of the chieftains who accompanied him to England. His grandson Roger, taking part with Stephen against Henry II. he was deprived of his lands, and Berkeley was given to Robert Fitz-Harding, governor of Bristol, in reward for his eminent services. That nobleman was descended from the kings of Denmark, and in his posterity the extensive manor of Berkeley is still vested. The town consists principally of four streets, and there is some trade in timber, coal, malt, and cheese, which is greatly facilitated by the vicinity of the Severn, and the Berkeley and Gloucester Canal, which is navigable for vessels of 600 tons burden. Petty sessions for the hundred of Berkeley are held at the White Hart Inn here, and the electors vote for West Gloucestershire. The town is governed by a mayor and twelve aldermen. There is a school for boys here, endowed in 1696 with lands which produce about £55 a year. The other schools are numerous. The Independents have a place of worship here. Berkeley was the birth-place of the celebrated Dr. Jenner, who introduced the practice of vaccination. Edward Jenner was born in 1749, and settled at his native place as a medical practitioner, where, having discovered, in 1776, that persons who had been affected with the cow-pox, never suffered from that more virulent disorder, the small-pox, he continually pursued his observations for twenty years, and at length, in spite of all the opposition which had been made to him, fully established the practice of inoculating with vaccine. Its value was soon and widely felt, and the custom was speedily introduced into the public hospitals, the army, and the navy. Honours quickly flowed in upon him, and parliament made him a grant of £20,000. He was enrolled as a member of a number of learned societies, and when the allied sovereigns visited England, the Emperor of Russia sought an interview with him, and wished to confer upon him an order of nobility. He died at Berkeley of apoplexy in 1823. — Contains 177 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 874: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,005: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,600: poor rates in 1848, £277. — Market day, Wednesday. Fairs, 14th May, for cattle and pigs, and 1st December. — Inns: Berkeley Arms, White Hart. — Berkeley Castle, the residence of the Earl Fitzhardinge, stands at about three quarters of a mile from the town. It appears to have been founded shortly after the Conquest, by Roger de Berkeley, but appears to have assumed its present form under the direction of Henry II. when Duke of Normandy, though large additions were made to it by the noble proprietors during the reigns of Edwards II. and III. It is a massy structure, approaching to the form of a circle, with an irregular court, surrounded by a moat. Part of it is now in ruins, but the rest has been modernised, and is the mansion of the present earl. During the seven centuries that this structure has existed, it has been the scene of many historical incidents. In a room called the dungeon-room, over the steps leading into the keep, the place is still shown, with all its original furniture, where the weak and unfortunate Edward II. was murdered. His cries, from the horrible nature of his death, are said to have been dreadful in the extreme, and to have been heard far beyond the castle walls. Gray, in speaking of them, says—the circumstance took place in 1327—

VOL. I.

21

"Mark the year and mark the night,
When Severn shall re-echo with adfright,
The shrieks of death through Berkeley's roof that ring—
Shrieks of an agonizing king."

It is fair to say that Thomas, second Earl of Berkeley, had no share in this deed of infamy, having been obliged to give up his castle, by order of the queen, to Sir John Maltravers and Sir Thomas Gourney, by whom it was accomplished. During the civil war, the castle was held for the king, and frequent skirmishes took place in its neighbourhood; but it was obliged to surrender to the parliamentary forces in 1645, after a nine days' siege. The family of Earl Fitzhardinge, through its length of so many centuries, has always been distinguished for its eminent military services in every age. From the grant of Berkeley to the Robert Fitzhardinge spoken of above, the property descended lineally to Maurice de Berkeley, who was first summoned to parliament as a baron in 1295. William, the seventh lord, was, in 1481, elevated to the dignity of viscount, created Earl of Nottingham in 1483, and Marquis of Berkeley in 1489. He died in 1491 without issue, but was so enraged with his brother at having married the daughter of an alderman of Bristol, that he settled the ancient barony with all the estates upon the king, Henry VII., and his heirs male, and for four generations they remained out of the family. They were regained, on the death of Edward VI., by Henry, the twelfth lord, whose grandson, George, was created Baron Mowbray, Segrave, and Braose, Viscount Dursley, and Earl of Berkeley, and the title continued in that line to the fifth earl, Frederick Augustus, whose eldest son sat in the House of Commons at the time of the death of the earl, as Lord Dursley. Some shade of invalidity, however, was thrown on the marriage of the late countess, and his claim to be admitted to the House of Lords, after an investigation by their lordships, was refused. This mischief was, however, remedied in 1831, twenty years afterwards, when his lordship was created Baron Segrave and Earl Fitzhardinge. N.  $\frac{1}{4}$  m. Wicks Elm House; S. 1 m. Whitecliffe Park.

BERKELEY, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund. and union of Frome, Shepton-Mallet division: 112 miles from London (coach road 103), 3 from Frome, 12 from Bath. —Gt. West. Rail. by Chippenham to Westbury, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Chippenham, to Westbury, &c., 172 miles. —Money orders issued at Frome: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. —Wilts, Somerset, and Weymouth Railway, passes through the parish from Westley to Frome, &c. —The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Sir Charles Mordaunt, Bart.: pres.

incumbent, H. T. Wheler, 1834: contains 1,880 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 496: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 485: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,831: poor rates in 1837, £421. —S. E. Berkeley House, Mrs. Churchhill and family. E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  m. Chalcott House. N.E. 1 m. Standerwick House.

BERKESWELL, WARWICK, a parish in the Solihull division of the hund. of Hemlingford, union of Meriden: 101 miles from London (coach road 98), 7 from Coventry, 7 from Solihull. —Nor. West. Rail. through Coventry to Dockers Lane station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth and Hampton to Dockers Lane, &c., 45 miles. —Money orders issued at Coventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —A daily school and several other charitable institutions are supported by lands bequeathed, which now produce about £70 a year. Sir Eardley and Lady Wilmot, beside these, support schools here. The other parochial charities produce about £40 per annum. —The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory united with the curacy of Barston, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £14. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £796: patron, Rev. S. B. Shirreff: pres. incumbent, S. B. Shirreff: contains 6,360 acres: 277 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,504: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £7,489: poor rates in 1837, £562. —Berkeswell Hall is the seat of the Rev. Charles Bickmore. N. 1 m. Murcote Hall.

BERKHAMPSTEAD (GREAT, sometimes written BERKHAMSTED), HERTFORD, a market town and parish in the hund. of Dacorum, union of Berkhamstead: 28 miles from London (coach road 26), 12 from Watford. —Nor. West. Rail. to Berkhamstead station: from Derby, through Rugby to Berkhamstead, 104 miles. —Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —The Saxons of old time called this place Berghampstedt, because it was seated among the hills. Norden says—for berg signified a hill; ham, a town; and stedt, a seat; all of which was very proper for the situation hereof. And Spelman states that Wilthred, King of Kent, assisted at a great council held here in 697. It was at this place that William the Conqueror swore to preserve all the ancient laws of the kingdom, an oath which he very speedily broke in such a manner as to entirely overthrow any credence to his claim to the crown under the will of Edward the Confessor. The Conqueror granted the manor to his half-brother, Robert, whose claim is recognised in the Domesday-book; and, to use the words of the chronicle, who fortified the castle here with a double trench and rampire, under the title of the Earl of Mortaign. In the borough of this vill, says the ancient chronicle, are two and fifty burgesses, who pay four pounds a year for toll, and they have half a hide and two shillings rent by the year; there are two arpends of vineyard; meadow, eight caracutes, common of pasture for the cattle of the vill; wood to feed a thousand hogs; and five shillings rent by the year. The whole value is sixteen pounds; when he (the Earl) received it, its value was twenty pounds; and in the time of King Edcard, twenty-four pounds. Edmar, a thane of Earl Harold, held this manor. What a forcible representation of the customs of the time! William, the son of this earl, envying the greatness of his distant relative, Henry I., raised a rebellion against him in Normandy, upon which the king seized his estates in England, and Berkhamstead became a royal fief. While in possession of the crown, the town obtained many privileges. Among others, Henry II. granted to it all the laws, liberties, and customs which it had enjoyed during the reign of Edward the Confessor, together with the advantages that the inhabitants should be freed from all tollage, postage, passage, and customs, for their merchandise through England, Normandy, Aquitaine, and Anjou; and that no summons, distress, or execution, should be made by any of the king's officers within its limits, but only by its own high-steward, bailiffs, and coroner; that no market should be kept within seven miles of it, nor that any of its men or merchants should be compelled to attend any assize or sessions. Henry held his court, and Richard III. was born here. The possession continued in the crown till the year 1206, when King John granted it, with the knight's fees attached, for a fee-farm rent of £100 a year, to Jeoffrey Fitz-Piers, Earl of Essex; but on the death of that nobleman, in 1215, he again seized it, and the castle and manor, with all their appendages, were afterwards given by Henry III. to his younger brother, Richard, Earl of Cornwall, who, as the market had shortly before been changed from Sunday to Monday, procured a license for a fair of eight days, beginning on May 1, the invention of the Holy Cross. Richard was one of the Crusaders, and a warrior of high renown, of great personal courage, and possessed fine military qualities. He compelled the Sultan of Babylon to a truce very advantageous for the Christians. On his return he repaired to Berkhamstead, where he died, leaving the manor to his son Edmund. On the death of the latter, it reverted to the Crown, in whose possession it still remains as a portion of the Duchy of Cornwall, and is therefore appropriated to the Princes of Wales in succession, and from the castle they derive the title of Baron; but Edward Carey, Esq., holds the castle and manor through a lease granted to his ancestors by Queen Elizabeth. The honour and manor of Berkhamstead is very large, not less than fifty-three towns adjoining paying homage and choosing their constables here. Bishop Tanner, in speaking of Berkhamstead, says—Here were, in the time of King John, two hospitals of poor and infirm persons, one dedicated to St. John the Baptist, and the other, which was both for brothers and sisters, lepers, to St. John the Evangelist: the custody of both which was granted by Jeffrey Fitz-Pearce, earl of Essex, to the house of Acon in London. There was also in this town, in the time of Edward II., an hospital of St. Thomas the Martyr. Upon the dissolution, the hospitals of St. John the Evangelist, and St. Leonard, which was at the south-east end of the High Street, with all the lands belonging to them, were granted in the 36th year of Henry VIII. to Robert Hordun. Sir Henry Chauncey also mentions an old hospital called St. James, from St. James' well, at the further end of the High Street. In the time of Edward III. the town returned two members to parliament. It is beautifully situated on the banks of the Bulbourn, with gentle hills rising around. It consists principally of two streets, one nearly a mile in length, which skirts the high road, and another which runs at right angles with it. In the former especially, there are several highly respectable references. The church is an ancient structure, striking in appearance, and has a number of chapels. It also contains some interesting monuments, among others that of Richard Toryton the founder, and Margaret his wife, who are commemorated on a brass plate, the inscription on which is now almost entirely defaced. The grammar-school is an ancient edifice, but has lately been renovated: it is richly endowed. Beside this, there is another school endowed for the education of 20 boys and 10 girls. There are also several almshouses. At the north end of Castle Street are the ruins of the castle, which sufficiently indicate its former great strength and importance. The North Western Railway runs by the town on a high embankment, and communicates with it by a bridge thrown over the Grand Junction Canal. There is a good deal of straw-plaiting done at Berkhamstead, and some business in making spoons, scoops, shovels, and bowls of beechwood, and much benefit is derived from the great posting which the railway station induces. A charter of incorporation was granted by James I., giving the burgesses power to choose a recorder, town-clerk, and other officers, and to hold a weekly market on Thursday, besides their ancient market on Monday, but the town was so much reduced during the civil war, that they were unable to uphold their privileges. Berkhamstead was the birth-place of Thomas Ken, a learned and pious dignitary of the Church of England, who was born here in 1637. His admirable character excited the respect of even the licentious Charles II. who made him his chaplain, and afterwards elevated him to the bishopric of Bath and Wells. He strongly opposed the endeavours of James II. to introduce popery, and was one of the seven bishops sent to the Tower. His literary works, comprising sermons, poems, &c., were published in 4 vols. 4to, by his nephew. He died in 1711. The poet Cowper was also a native of the place. William Cowper, the moral and social poet of Britain, was born in 1731, and was the son of a clergyman of good family. At an early age he was removed to Westminster school, but being of a slight frame and timid character, the rough usage of his more robust associates rendered his abode there a time of absolute torture. On leaving school he was articled to a solicitor, with whom he remained three years, and afterwards entered himself as a student of the Middle Temple, and through interest of his friends obtained the lucrative and respectable position of a clerk to the House of Lords. But his mauvaise honte was such that he was unable to retain his appointment, and he retired to Huntingdon in a state of almost absolute mental imbecility. There he became acquainted with the family of the Rev. Mr. Unwin, and, on the death of that gentleman, removed with Mrs. Unwin to Olney, in Buckinghamshire, where fits of the deepest despondency continually recurred, during which there was a total alienation of mental power. Between them, however, his faculties evinced themselves to be of the highest order. His poetical compositions were numerous. His translation of Homer was more correct than Pope's, though it did not possess an equal smoothness of diction; but it was in the "Task," a long poem, begun, in the first instance as a trifle, on the suggestion of Lady White sitting upon a sofa with her, but which so swelled that it at last attained its present length, that his fame chiefly rests. He also published several minor poems, all fraught with the most varied imagery, the clearest expression, and the most excellent sentiment. His correspondence, which was published after his death, was extensive, and is remarkable for its lucid and elegant language. The king, George III., granted him a pension of £300; but towards the close of his life, his despondency deepened into despair, and he died in mental darkness in the year 1800.—Petty sessions for the hundred of Dacorum are held here and at Hemel-Hempstead. The gaol is used as a house of correction. Berkhamstead poor-law union extends over ten parishes, and embraces an area of 39 miles.—The living (St. Peter), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £333: patron, the Duchy of Cornwall: pres. incumbent, John Crofts, 1810: contains 4,250 acres: 477 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,979: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,425: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,679: poor rates in 1837, £507.—The notable residences around Berkhamstead are numerous. Ashlyns Hall is the residence of Augustus Smith, Esq., who has another residence called Fresco Abbey, in the Isles of Scilly. Mr. Smith is the head of the senior branch of the family, from which the Baronets Smith (now Bromley), and Lords Carrington descend. He derives his immediate descent from Thomas Smith, Esq. of Nottingham, and of Gaddesby, in the county of Leicester, a banker. Ashlyns was purchased in 1801 by James Smith, Esq., father of the present proprietor, who succeeded to the estate in 1843. Hure's Hall is the seat of Thomas Dorrien, Esq.; Northchurch, of William Duncombe, Esq.—N. Woodcott Hall, Kingshill Hall; N.E. White Hill; E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Little Heath; S.E. 1 m. Westbrook Hay.—Market day, Saturday. Fairs, Shrove-Tuesday, Whit-Monday, 12th October.—Inns: King's Arms, and One Bell.

BERKHAMPSTEAD (LITTLE), HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Hertford: 19 miles from London, 5 from Hertford, 5 from Hatfield.—Money orders issued at Hertford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—In 1730, Mr. Maurice Hunt bequeathed £600 to the parish, the interest of which is annually distributed among those of the poor who are not in the receipt of parochial relief.—The living (St. Andrew), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £7. 8s. 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: pres. net income, £249: patron, Marquis of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, H. W. Seawell, 1834: contains 1,670 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 555: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 638: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,467: poor rates in 1837, £96.

BERKHAMPSTEAD (ST. MARY). See NORTH CHURCH.

BERKING. See BARKING, ESSEX.

BERLINGTON (or BIRLINGTON), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Warkworth, eastern division of Coquetdale ward—(which see for access, &c.): 303 miles from London, 7 from Alnwick, 7 from Felton.—Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—Contains 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 98: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 113: poor rates in 1837, £10.

BERMERSLEY, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Norton-in-the-Moors, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill: 179 miles from London (coach road 153), 6 from Newcastle, 11 from Cheadle.—Nor. West. Rail. through Stafford to Basford station, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Burton on Trent to Wedgewood, 45, thence 6 miles.—Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—Contains 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 280: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 321.

BERMONDSEY, SURREY, a parish in the eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brixton, union of Bermondsey: 1 mile from London, 2 from Westminster Abbey.—Bermondsey forms one portion of the vast mass of human community which, with their dwellings, and all the appliances necessary for social existence, constitutes the metropolis. It borders to the west on the parishes of St. John, St. George, and St. Olave, Southwark; and on the east, on those of Deptford and Rotherhithe. When it was founded, does not exactly appear; but that it was very early, is probable from its contiguity to the river, and at least we know that a priory for the Cluniac order of monks was endowed here in 1082 by Aylwin Child, a resident in London, and that William Rufus gave the manor of Bermondsey for their additional support. It was originally a cell to the monastery of La Charité in France, but was seized, with other alien institutions, in 1387, by Edward III. Richard II. restored its privileges, and it was made an abbey by Pope Boniface IX. in 1399. At the dissolution, its revenues were valued at £474. 14s. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Catherine, queen of Henry V., died here in 1437, and in 1486, Elizabeth, queen of Edward IV., was sentenced, by an order of council, to the forfeiture of all her lands and goods, and to be confined here, where she soon afterwards died. The site of the abbey was granted by Henry VIII. to Sir Thomas Pope, who pulled down the edifice, and built a handsome mansion for himself in its place, which afterwards became the property and residence of the Earls of Sussex. The church mentioned in Domesday-book was doubtless a conventual church, for the monks long afterwards built a parochial church, which they dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen. The present structure was built in 1680: it is of brick. At the west end is a tower. It contains no monument worthy of notice. A new church has, within these few years, been built by the parliamentary commissioners, at an expense of more than £21,000: it contains 2000 sittings. Among the communion plate, there is an ancient silver salver, the construction of which is assigned to the times of Edward II.: it is supposed to have been a portion of the conventual plate, and to have been handed over to the parochial rector on the dissolution of the monasteries. The Independents and Wesleyan Methodists have places of worship here; there are also two Roman Catholic chapels, and an institution of the Sisters of Mercy. There is a school here, endowed in 1718 by Josiah Bacon, Esq., who left £700 for the erection of the building, £80 a year to the master, £50 to the usher, and £20 a year to keep the premises in order. Besides the united charity schools, the educational institutions are very numerous. The business of tanning is carried on to a greater extent in this parish than in any other part of the kingdom, and there are also woolstaplers, fellmongers, curriers, leather-dressers, and parchment-makers. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £15. 8s. 11d.: pres. net income, £460: patron, Hambly Knapp: pres. incumbent, J. E. Gibson, 1827: contains 620 acres: 4,918 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 16,137: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 18,507: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £65,131: poor rates in 1837, £15,951.

BERNOLDSWICK. See BARNOLDWICK, YORK.

BERRICK-SALOME, OXFORD, a chapelry to the parish of Chalgrove, hun<sup>d</sup> of Ewelme—(which see for access): 49 miles from London, 4 from Wallingford, 4 from Dorchester. Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The chapelries of the parish produce £8. 6s. 11d. annually. Contains 1,090 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 164: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 188: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,125: poor rates in 1837, £92.

BERRIER AND MURRAH, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Greystock, Leath ward: 300 miles from London (coach road 291), 8 from Penrith, 20 from Carlisle. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Crewe to Penrith, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 192 miles. Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. There is a school for girls here, endowed with the interest of £238. 8s. 3d. consols. Contains 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 130: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 149: poor rates in 1837, £24. N.E. 1 m. Greystock Park: for description see GREYSTOCK GILT.

BERRIEW (or ASER-RHIW), MONTGOMERY, a parish containing thirteen townships in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newton Lower, North Wales: 177 miles from London (coach road 172), 5 from Welshpool, 4 from Montgomery, 9 from Newton. Nor. West. and Shrewsbury and Birmingham Rail. to Shrewsbury, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Chester and Shrewsbury to Oswestry, &c., 20 miles. Money orders issued at Welshpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. The village stands at the confluence of the Rhiew with the Severn, from which circumstance it takes its name. A school here is well endowed with lands for the education of the poor of the parish, generally boys and girls. Petty sessions for the hundred held here first Saturday in every month. The living, a vicarage in the rural deanery of Cardewen, archd<sup>y</sup> of Montgomery, diocese of St. Asaph, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £356: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbent, J. Luxmoore: contains 12,009 acres: 453 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,259: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: gross estimated rental, £14,241. 7s. 6d.: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £13,200. 17s. 6d.: poor rates in 1847, £1,484. 8s. 7½d. Valnor Park, John Winder Lyon Winder; Glansevern, Mrs. Owen; Pennant, John Buckley Williams, Esq.; Rhiewport, Walter Jones, Esq.; Garthmill Hall, Mrs. Jones; Brothdin Hall, John Robinson Jones, Esq.; Bryncamysir, William Nicholls, Esq.; Bodhilin, Mrs. Humphreys; Rhiewbank, Thomas Morgan, Esq.; Lower Garthregh, Mrs. Johns.

BERRINGTON, DURHAM, a hamlet in the parish of Kyloe, in Islandshire—(which see for access, &c.)

BERRINGTON (anciently BURINGTON), GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Chipping-Campden, upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kiftsgate—(which see for other returns): 94 miles from London, 7 from Stow, 8 from Evesham. Contains 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 148: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 170.

BERRINGTON, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Condover, union of Atcham: 157 miles from London (coach road 152), 5 from Shrewsbury, 10 from Wellington. Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 85 miles. Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The living (All Saints), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, now in the diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £10. 12s. 1d.: pres. net income, £393: patron, Lord Berwick: contains 2,920 acres: 77 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 651: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 748: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,226: poor rates in 1837, £339. N.E. Berrington Parsonage; S.E. 1 m. Condover Park.

BERRINGTON, WORCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Tenbury, upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Doddingtree—(other returns with the parish): 133 miles from London, 3 from Tenbury, 8 from Leominster. Contains 35 houses.

BERROW, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brenton-with-Wrington division, union of Axbridge: 151 miles from London (coach road 139), 12 from Bridgewater, 9 from Axbridge. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to High Bridge station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to High Bridge, &c., 164 miles. Money orders issued at Axbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £13. 11s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £186: patron, Archdeacon of Wells: pres. incumbent, D. Wheeler, 1845: contains 2,310 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 578: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 664: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,060: poor rates in 1837, £298.

BERROW, WORCESTER, a parish in a detached portion of the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Oswaldslow, union of Upton-upon-Severn: 131 miles from London (coach road 110), 8 from Ledbury, 7 from Tewkesbury. Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Tewkesbury, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Tewkesbury, &c., 89 miles. Money orders issued at Ledbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The parochial charities produce £11. 13s. a year. The living (St. Faith), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Dean and Chapter of Worcester: pres. incumbent, D. Campbell, 1845: contains 1,940 acres: 90 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 480: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 551: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,279: poor rates in 1837, £177.

BERRYN-ARBOR, Devon, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and division of Brautony, union of Barnstaple: 222 miles from London (coach road 201), 3 from Ilfracombe, 8 from Barnstaple. — Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 38 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 235 miles. — Money orders issued at Ilfracombe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m. — This parish was the birth-place of the celebrated Bishop Jewell. John Jewell was born in 1522, studied at Oxford, and in 1546 openly professed the tenets of the Reformed religion. Being preferred to the living of Sunningwell, in Berkshire, he distinguished himself by his exemplary conduct as a parish priest. But on the accession of Queen Mary, finding that he was about to be prosecuted as a heretic, he fled to the Continent, where he was made vice-master of a college at Strasbourg. When Elizabeth came to the throne he returned to England, and was shortly afterwards raised to the see of Salisbury. He wrote much against popery, but his chief work is "An Apology for the Church of England." This work was at first written in Latin, but was speedily translated into almost every language in Europe, and is said to have done more towards promoting the Reformation than any other book whatever. The bishop died in 1571. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £34. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £715: patron, Bishop of Exeter and others: pres. incumbent, S. T. Gully, 1825: contains 5,050 acres: 153 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 899: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,034: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,959: poor rates in 1837, £232. All the tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1809.

BERRY-POMEROY, Devon, a parish in the division of Teignbridge, hund<sup>d</sup> of Haytor, union of Totness: 225 miles from London (coach road 197), 2 from Totness, 7 from Torquay. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Totness, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Totness, &c., 239 miles. — Money orders issued at Totness: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The church contains a finely-carved rood-loft, and some interesting monuments to the Seymour family. There is a small parochial charity, left by Mrs. Bound in 1700. A little to the north of the village are the remains of Berry, or, as it is more commonly termed, Berry-Pomeroy Castle. It was originally erected by Ralph de Pomeroy, who came over with William the Conqueror, and from whom he received fifty-eight lordships, including this as his share of the spoil. The property of Berry remained in the hands of his descendants till the time of Edward VI., when it was sold by Sir Thomas Pomeroy to Edward Seymour, Duke of Somerset, from whom it has come down to the present Duke. Nothing can be more beautifully picturesque than these ruins. The remains of the castle, which are very considerable, stand on the summit of a rocky eminence, overlooking a beautiful dell, broken and diversified by every feature of woodland landscape. At the foot of the height there brawls a pellucid brook, which,

"Rushing o'er its pebbled bed, Imposes silence with a stilly sound."

The castle was dismantled during the civil wars, and the edifice as a whole has fallen to decay. But the great gates, with the walls of the south front and several of the turrets, are still standing; and these have been so finely overhung by the branches of the trees and shrubs which grow close to the wall, are so richly wreathed with ivy and adorned with moss, that they constitute an object of singular and most romantic interest; and surrounded as the ruins are on three of their sides by lofty hills, clothed almost to their summits with ancient forest trees, breasted at a little distance by a noble wood, which is again backed by the bold ridges which terminate the view to the south, while a sweet little valley opens to the east, they stand the centre of a scene of natural beauty which is almost incomparable in effect. — The living (Virgin Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £18. 19s. 7d.: pres. net income, £360: patron, Duke of Somerset: pres. incumbent, W. B. Cosens, 1843: contains 4,610 acres: 122 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,149: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,321: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,419: poor rates in 1837, £653.

BERSHAM, Devon, a township in the parish of Wrexham, hund<sup>d</sup> of Bromfield: 202 miles from London (coach road 179), 6 from Holt, 12 from Llangollen. — Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Wrexham Regis, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe and Chester, &c., 94 miles. — Money orders issued at Llangollen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 2 p.m. — There is a school here, supported by the benevolence of Mrs. Fitz-Hugh of Plas Power. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel here. There are some iron-works in the vicinity, in which many of the inhabitants are employed. — The living is a curacy not in charge: contains 282 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,426: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,640: poor rates in 1837, £315. — Bersham Dreilincourt.

BERSTEAD (South), Sussex, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Aldwick, rape of Chichester: this parish contains the town of Bognor, and the tithings of North Berstead and Shripney, and the bathing-place of Bognor: 74 miles from London (coach road 67), ¼ from Bognor, 5 from Chichester. — Brighton and Sou. Coast Rail. to Bognor: from Derby, through London, &c., 206 miles. — Money orders issued at Bognor: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3 p.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — There are several schools here, one of which was instituted by the Princess Charlotte of Wales, but which is now supported by voluntary contributions, and another is entirely sustained by Mrs. Smith of Berstead Lodge. — The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £7. 18s. 9d.: pres. net income, £214: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, Edward Eedle, 1824: contains 2,750 acres: 410 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,490: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,863: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,834: poor rates in 1837, £1,183.---For the chief residences in the neighbourhood, see BOGEXON.

BERSTEAD (NORTH), SUSSEX, a tithing in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.): pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 194: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same.

BERWICK, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Longbridge, rape of Pevensey, union of West Fife: 58 miles from London (coach road 57), 8 from Lewes, 5 from Seaford.---Sou. Coast and Brighton Rail. through Lewes to Berwick station: from Derby, through London, &c., 180 miles.---Money orders issued at Lewes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £362: patron, J. Ellman, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. B. Ellman, 1846: contains 1,097 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 199: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 190: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,477: poor rates in 1837, £101.

BERWICK, WEST RIDING, YORK. See SKIPTON.

BERWICK-HILL, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Ponteland, western division of Castle ward: 317 miles from London (coach road 284), 10 from Newcastle, 10 from Morpeth.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Aumlington, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 185 miles.---Money orders issued at Newcastle-upon-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 121: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 139: poor rates in 1837, £69.

BERWICK (ST. JAMES), WILTS, a parish in the division of Salisbury and Amesbury, hun<sup>d</sup> of Branch and Dole, union of Wilton: 102 miles from London (coach road 83), 6 from Amesbury, 9 from Salisbury.---Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Chippenham, to Westbury, 163, thence 15 miles.---Money orders issued at Amesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £8. 10s.: pres. net income, £54: patron, Lord Ashburton: pres. incumbent, C. Lawford, 1847: contains 2,370 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 247: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 284: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,024: poor rates in 1837, £113.---Berwick Farm, occupied by E. C. Pinckney, Esq.

BERWICK (ST. JOHN), WILTS, a parish in the division of Hindon, hun<sup>d</sup> of Chalk, union of Tisbury: 112 miles from London (coach road 97), 16 from Salisbury, 5 from Shaftesbury.---Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Chippenham, to Westbury, 163, thence 25 miles.---Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The church, built in the reign of Henry VII., is a fine cruciform structure, with a finely ornamented low square tower rising from the intersection. It is in admirable repair, and contains several interesting monuments to the Grove family and other families of distinction, with two ancient effigies in recesses, supposed to be the figures of knight-templars. There is a National school here, built on the glebe land in 1835 by the rector, and almost entirely supported by him. There is a small sum left for charities by the late Lord Rivers. The Baptists have a chapel here.

In the neighbourhood there is a strong earthwork, known as Winklebury, or Vespasian's camp. It is on the top of a lofty ridge, from whence some noble views are commanded over the Dorsetshire downs, and a part of Hampshire, as far as the Needle Rocks, off the Isle of Wight. The foreground is occupied by the rich forest of Cranbourne Chase, and the extensive view over Wiltshire is strikingly and beautifully varied. The river Eble rises here, and flows towards the Avon.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £26. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £562: patron, New College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, R. Downes, 1826: contains 4,230 acres: 90 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 419: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 482: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,881: poor rates in 1837, £280.---Rushmore Lodge is the seat of Lord Rivers. The house consists of a centre and two wings, presenting a handsome appearance, and is situated in a sweetly sequestered vale, embosomed in woods. The family of his lordship, which is extensively spread over the counties of Dorset, Wilts, and Southampton, trace their origin to Nicholas Pitt, who lived in the reign of Henry VI., whose grandson was clerk of the exchequer in the reign of Elizabeth. The son of that gentleman was knighted, and made comptroller of the household. His brother, Thomas Pitt of Blandford, was the ancestor of the Earls of Chatham. The fifth in descent from Sir William Pitt, George Pitt, Esq., was returned for the county of Dorset, and became a diplomatist of the first grade, and was elevated to the peerage by the title of Baron Rivers of Strathfieldsaye, in 1776. His lordship, however, obtained another patent shortly afterwards, and was created Baron Rivers of Sudley Castle, in the county of Gloucester, with remainder to his brother, Sir William Augustus Pitt, K.B., and after him, to the male issue of his daughter Louisa, Mrs. Beckford. His son, the second baron, died unmarried, when the barony of "Rivers of Strathfieldsaye" became extinct, and that of Rivers of Sudley Castle devolved upon his nephew, William Beckford, Esq. His lordship dropped his paternal name of Beckford, and assumed that of Pitt Rivers; but his descendants are to bear that of Pitt only. His lordship, the present baron, succeeded to the title and estates in 1831, on the death of his father.

---W. 1 m. Fern House, the residence of John Grove, Esq., who derives his descent from John de Grove of Chalfont, in Buckinghamshire, and one of whose descendants, John Grove, settled in Wiltshire, and died in the 26th year of Edward III. A collateral branch of the family, Thomas Grove, Esq., was high sheriff of Buckinghamshire in 1434. The grandson of John Grove, Esq., above spoken of, represented Wiltshire in parliament, and from that gentleman the present proprietor of Fern is the eighth in descent, through a line of ancestry who all held distinguished positions in the county.

BERWICK (ST. LEONARD), WILTS, a parish in the division of Hindon, hun<sup>d</sup> of Dunworth, union of Tisbury: 112 miles from London (coach road 93), 1 from Hindon, 10 from Warminster.---Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Chippenham, 167, thence 14 miles.---Money orders issued at Hindon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The Prince of Orange slept here the night after his landing at Torbay. In the neighbourhood are the remains of the old manor-house, which was formerly the seat of the Howe family.---The living, a rectory, to which is annexed the chapelry of Sedghill, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £8. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £374: patron, J. Bennett, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. H. Grove, 1826: contains 970 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 41: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 47: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,025: poor rates in 1837, £19: tithes commuted 1818.---S. 1 m. Fonthill Abbey, lately the seat of William Beckford, Esq., is one of the most remarkable structures in all the west of England. The natural features of the scenery around, are bold and finely diversified. They lie spread over nearly the whole of an eminence which gradually ascends from the open country towards the north, and the fertile enclosed district on the south; it is covered with woods, some of the trees being of very ancient growth. On the summit of a hill, in the midst of this extensive grove, the mansion is placed, and presents a lofty and magnificent object, as its turrets and spires rise from the luxuriant underground which lies at its foot. It consists of a central tower about 270 feet high, a lofty entrance-hall or vestibule, a wing or transept extending from the tower to the east, and two other wings branching off from the centre to the north and south. The exteriors of each of these portions of the edifice are all different from each other, and are so planned as to give to the whole structure the appearance of an ancient monastic building. The abbey was erected after the designs of the celebrated architect, Mr. James Wyatt, and several of the most eminent artists in the country were for some time engaged in its embellishment. The apartments were most sumptuously furnished; all that the fine imagination and a highly cultivated taste could devise, or that immense wealth could procure, being brought to adorn them. Fonthill Abbey was the wonder of the country, but

"Sic transit gloria mundi."

The tower of the abbey, owing to some defect in the structure, fell in, and shortly after the death of its luxurious proprietor, all the costly works of art by which the mansion was enriched were sold off by auction. Of the former house at Fonthill but little remains. It was situated at the distance of about a mile and a half to the north-east of the abbey. It was originally built in 1755 by Mr. Alderman Beckford, who, not long after it was finished, sustained a loss of £30,000 through its destruction by fire. It was a noble mansion, consisting of a centre and two uniform wings attached to it by light elliptical Doric colonnades. In the front, there was a noble Corinthian portico, which was reached by a fine flight of steps. The apartments were fitted up with splendour, and many of them contained paintings, cabinets, and other works of art. The grounds around were also very beautiful. Fonthill, called Fonthill Giffard, to distinguish it from another parish in the neighbourhood, called Fonthill Bishop, was surrendered to King John by Andrew Giffard, its then proprietor. In the time of Edward III. it was the property of John Mandril, who was summoned to parliament among the barons. At his death, he left it to his daughter Maud. It then came through marriage and descent, through the De la Warres, the Moulins, and the Hungerfords, to the Mervins, from whom Mr. Beckford was lineally descended. The father of the late proprietor, William Beckford, Esq., is justly classed among the most distinguished citizens of London. He was born in 1705, bred to commercial pursuits, in which he was highly successful, and was at length, in 1763, elected to the dignity of lord mayor. During Lord North's administration he represented London in parliament, where he was conspicuous for his firm support of the rights and privileges of the people. He was again elected to the civic chair in 1770, and it was his duty to present petitions to the king, George III., praying for the redress of grievances. On the last of these occasions, which was for the purpose of presenting the remonstrance of citizens against the conduct of the government in their interference with the elections for the county of Middlesex, the king expressed himself in an unpropitious and apparently somewhat hasty manner, when the lord mayor immediately replied in the following terms:—

"Most Gracious Sovereign,

"Will your Majesty be pleased so far to condescend, as to permit the Mayor of your loyal city of London to declare, in your royal presence, on behalf of his fellow-citizens, how much the bare apprehension of your Majesty's displeasure would at all times affect their minds. The declaration of that displeasure has already filled them with inexpressible anxiety, and with the deepest affliction. Permit me, Sir, to assure your Majesty, that your Majesty has not in all your dominions any subjects more faithful, more dutiful, or more affectionate to your Majesty's person and family, or more ready to sacrifice their lives and fortunes in the maintenance of the true honour and dignity of your crown. We do, therefore, with the greatest humility and submission, most earnestly supplicate your Majesty, that you will not dismiss us from your presence without expressing a more favourable opinion of your faithful citizens, and without some comfort, without some prospect at least of redress.

"Permit me, Sir, to observe, that whoever has already dared, or shall hereafter endeavour by false insinuations and suggestions, to alienate your Majesty's affections from your loyal subjects in general, and from the city of London in particular, is an enemy to your Majesty's person and family, a violator of the public peace, and a betrayer of our happy Constitution, as it was established at the Glorious Revolution."

The reply drew the exclamation from Lord Chat-ham—"There spoke the spirit of Old England." It elicited the warm approbation of the country at large, and so obtained the esteem of his fellow-citizens, that they erected a monument in the Guildhall, in honour of Mr. Beckford, on one portion of which the words of it are engraved. He died in a few years after this interview, and a noble statue of him was placed in the Ironmongers' Hall, of the guild of which he had for many years been a member. His son, the late proprietor of Fonthill, was the author of "Vathek," an eastern romance of remarkable power, and was eminently distinguished for his great taste, great wealth, and his literary abilities and attainments.---S. E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. Fonthill Park, the seat of James Morrison, Esq.

BERWICK-ON-TWEED, NORTHUMBERLAND, a seaport town and parish on the northern bank of the Tweed, at its confluence with the sea, the centre of the poor-law union of Berwick-on-Tweed: 368 miles from London (coach road 337), 58 from Edinburgh.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, &c., to Berwick station: from Derby, through York, &c., 236 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The name of Berwick is supposed by Leland to have been originally Aberwick, from the British words Aber, the mouth of a river, and wic, a town; but by Camden, and some others who shared his opinions, it was believed to be derived from the ancient word berevic, a term used in old records to designate a hamlet attached to a place of greater consequence. Thus, in Domesday-book, Tothill was called the berewicke of Westminster, and it is supposed that Berwick may have been the berewicke of Coldingham. It is sometimes called South Berwick, to distinguish it most probably from a small seaport and borough in East Lothian. Chalmers suggests that it may have been derived from the Anglo-Saxon bar, bare, and wic, i.e. vicus sinus, the curving reach of a river. Lambard, in speaking of the place, says—*It hath bene of very long tyme under the realme of England; for Hector sayeth, that in Fergus' tyme, the first kinge of Scottes (what tyme he divided that realme into countries), the town of Berwyk was very populous, and was, as he calleth it, a shyredome, which the Scottes and Pictes recovered from the Romaines cominge in aid of the Britons. The tymes and causes of the chaunge of possession of this towne from Ingland to Scotland, and from Scotland to Ingland, are so variably discoursed amongst hystorians, as they are not in myne opinion to be reconciled. I will, therefore, follow those that in myne owne opinion seme to use most probabilitie. Edgar, a kinge of Scottes, gave it to the bishop of Durham about the yere 1120, which byshoprick was then within Scotland, as Hector affirmeth. Henry the Second gate it by composition, or rather compulsion, from William, then kinge of Scottes, anno 1175. Richard I. toward his expedition to Jerusalem, delivered it and Rokesborough to the same William for 10,000 poundes. Kinge Jhon wan it agayne from Alexander of Scotland, and many other holdes that were then in common opinion thought impregnable, whom also he called Red Fox, (bycause he was red-headed,) and said that he would beate him out of al his holdes after the same maner. But Alexander of Scotland recovered it agayne from Henry III. within age, and exchanged it with him for Carleil. After his death, Edward I., who, in his epitaph at Westminster, is named Scotorum Malleus, wan it from Baliol about the yere 1296, and caused al the nobles of Scotland to do him homage; the maner whereof is at large set forth by him that continued the hystorie of Prosper. Aquit. Edward II. his son, whiche incurred the displeasure of his nobles, and dislikinge of the comons for his careles government, lost it again by the treason of one Spaldinge an Englishman, whose posteritie enjoy the comoditie of his reward for that service to this day, as Hector Boetius confesseth. Lastly, Edward III. wan it, as it appeareth manifestly by consent of al writers. Yet Hector Boetius sayth, that the Scottes recovered it duringe the tyme of the imprisonment of David their kinge; but fearinge that they should be constreyned to rendre it, thei set it on fyre, and left it to Kinge Edward III., who walled it about. Sence which tyme it hath not retourned to Scotland." Berwick, however, after this endured frequent sieges, for it was justly considered the key of the two countries,* and frequently changed masters, until it finally became inalienably attached to England in the reign of Edward IV. It is true, that a treaty was executed between Edward VI., by which it was erected into an independent town; but Elizabeth, after her accession, set aside the treaty by very unceremoniously taking possession of the place, and then strengthened it with fortifications. On the accession of James I. it of course lost its importance as a frontier town, and is only known to have been garrisoned once since, when the parliamentarians held it against Charles I. Such may be said to be the public or political history of Berwick. Its anecdotal history is far beyond our limits, and we can only compress one or two circumstances. It was in the hall of Berwick Castle that Edward I. held, in 1291, a convention of the states of England and Scotland, and decided in favour of Baliol's claim to the crown of the latter country, and afterwards, on that prince breaking his oath, sacked the town with fire and sword. In 1297, Wallace took the town, but the castle held out, and the place was ultimately relieved by a large army of horse; eight years afterwards, half the body of the noble and betrayed patriot, to the eternal infamy of Edward, was exposed upon the bridge of Berwick. The Countess of Buchan, for crowning Robert Bruce at Scone, was here shut up in a wooden cage in the shape of a crown, attended by two English women. She lived in it six years, and was then released. During the time of Edward III., and while the king was absent in France, the Scots surprised and took the town, but on the 14th of February, Edward relieved it with a large army. In 1377, seven Scotchmen surprised and took the castle, and held it for eight days against 7000 archers and 3000 cavalry. On the outbreak of the rebellion against Henry IV., the Earl of Northumberland garrisoned Berwick against the king; but a cannon shot, the first that was ever fired in England, so alarmed the soldiery, that they immediately surrendered. Walsingham and Speed say that this shot was of very large size; and in the spring of 1811, a ball of cast-iron, weighing ninety-six pounds, was found in a part which just answers to this supposition. It had penetrated a wall three feet, on a place where it was flanked by a tower, which, from the remains, it appears to have perforated. The governor of Berwick has a salary of about £600 a year; his house forms the north-east side of an imperfect square, called the palace. The barracks are capable of accommodating about a single regiment of infantry. The town of Berwick stretches up pleasantly on the side of an easy acclivity on the northern bank of the river Tweed, having a tolerably fine southern aspect. It includes within its walls an area of little more than two miles in circumference, comprising within that space a number of streets which are narrow and irregular in their form, and which exhibit all the characteristics of an ancient place. The principal buildings are the town-hall, a handsome modern structure, built of freestone, and having a Tuscan portico, its pediment being surmounted by a lofty tower; the governor's house, a stone edifice; the parish church is striking; the barracks, alluded to above, also of stone; and the bridge, consisting of fifteen noble arches, 1,161 feet long, though it is only 17 feet wide. It was begun in the reign of James I., but owing either to the poverty of the period, or the want of energy in the architect, it was 24 years in being finished; the cost amounted to about £15,000, which means a very different sum from what the same term would imply now. The fortifications are chiefly modern, and but few of the old works now remain. On the south and west there are high walls, flanked with cannon, beneath which the river flows, serving the purposes of a moat. The ramparts form a very agreeable promenade. The suburb Castlegate is without the walls, on the north-west of the town, and from it a long line of houses stretches eastward, which is called the Greens. There are good assembly-rooms, in which subscription concerts are held; and a subscription library was established in 1812, which now contains several thousand volumes. Berwick is the centre of an extensive coasting commerce, regular traders, both steamers and sailing vessels, plying between that place and London, Hull, Newcastle, Leith, &c.; iron, timber, flax, hemp, bones, tallow, and blubber, constituting the chief articles of import; and coals, corn, wool, salmon, pork, and eggs, forming the chief exports, and in these a large trade is carried on. Salmon are caught in great numbers in the Tweed above the town, and are sent to London, either alive, in wells in the holds of the vessels, or packed in ice, in which they remain fresh for a long time. There is, besides, a considerable fishery of white fish and lobsters off the coast, and these two branches of business are believed to afford employment to upwards of 800 of the inhabitants. The trade has, however, from a variety of causes, declined a good deal; the fisheries which, some years ago, brought in a rental of £20,000, do not now yield more than £4,000 a year. One reason may be, that the port is only frequented by small vessels, the bar at the entrance preventing the ingress of large ones. By the returns made in 1828, the number of vessels belonging to the port was 54, the average burthen of which was about 90 tons. In 1834, the tonnage inwards, coasting and foreign, amounted to 28,768 tons; outwards, to 40,715 tons. For the protection and convenience of the harbour, a stone pier, half a mile in length, has been erected, at the end of which there is a lighthouse. Berwick has no docks. The market on Saturday is well supplied with corn and provisions, and the smaller market on Wednesday is not badly attended. The tide flows about seven miles above the town, the ordinary spring tides rising about 15 feet; the river is navigable as far as the bridge. The Presbyterians, Baptists, United Secession Church, Scottish Relief, the Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, and the Roman Catholics, have all places of worship here. There is also a week-day lectureship, which was founded in 1625, and which is now in the gift of the Mercers' Company of London. In the corporation school, the sons of the burgesses are instructed in English, Latin, and mathematics, by three separate masters, each of whom has a considerable salary and a house. A free school was founded here in the reign of Elizabeth, the master of which has a salary of £80 a year, and the privilege of charging ten shillings for every scholar who is not the son of a freeman. A blue-coat school was founded here in 1725, at which 40 boys are educated; it is conducted on the National system; and in 1819, the ladies of Berwick established a school of industry, at which about 120 girls on an average are instructed. The corporation, beside this, support six schools, in which about 330 children are taught, and there is another school with 98 scholars, which is supported out of the poor rates. The parochial charities produce about £104 a year. A lunatic asylum was built here in 1813, and a dispensary was instituted during the following year. David I. of Scotland is said to have founded a Benedictine nunnery in or near South Berwick. — The living (the Holy Trinity), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, deanery of Bambrough, custom of York, and diocese of Durham, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £289: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, J. Barnes, 1805: contains 5,120 acres: 1,190 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 8,484: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 9,757: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £30,811. — Market day, Saturday. Fairs, last Friday in May, and first Wednesday in November. High Markets, first Saturday in March, May, August, and November, for horses and cattle. — Bankers, Northumberland and Berwick Banking Co. — draw on Glyn, Halifax, & Co. — Newspapers: Berwick Advertiser, and Berwick and Kelso Warrier. — Inns: Red Lion, King's Arms, and the Salmon. — N. 1 m. is Conundrum Hall.

VOL. I.

2 x

BESFORD, SALOP, a township in the parish of Shawbury, hund<sup>d</sup> of Pimhill—(which see for access, &c.): 158 miles from London, 10 from Shrewsbury, 3 from Weston. — Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — Contains 1,310 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 181: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 208. — S.E. ½ m. is Harcourt Park.

BESFORD, WORCESTER, a parochial chapelry in the upper division of the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Pershore: 133 miles from London (coach road 109), 3 from Pershore, 10 from Worcester. — Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse and Tewkesbury to Defford station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Birmingham and Wadborough to Defford, &c., 74 miles. — Money orders issued at Pershore: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of St. Andrew's, Pershore: contains 1,300 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 179: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 205: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,991: poor rates in 1837, £76. — S.W. 1 mile is Croome Park, the noble residence of the Earl of Coventry, situated in the parish of Croome-D'Abitot, so called from having been formerly a part of the extensive possessions of Urso D'Abitot, Earl of Worcester, but which came to an ancestor of the present earl by purchase in 1653. The site of the grounds of Croome presented little apparent opportunity for ornamental improvement; but when the science of landscape gardening began to be understood in this country, and Brown, one of its most intelligent, as he was one of the earliest, exponents of its mysteries, had exercised his genius on the domain, it at once opened out into new beauties. Here wood and water, hill and dale, the long-drawn vista and the secluded coppice, the lively parterre and the softoning shade, have combined to mingle their attractions, and throw an air of enchantment over the place; while further, within little more than half a century, noble plantations have thriven into luxuriance, and now lend their aid to give a wild and picturesque air to the scene, where formerly there was nothing but an undistinguished flat and a barren heath. Around, the lands have been highly cultivated and liberally stocked, so that now there is every appearance of the richest fertility. The whole of the grounds are interspersed with ornamental buildings, and art and nature seem to have combined to render this favoured spot as rich in attraction as it could be made. The mansion is built on the site, and partly on the walls of the old one, and its style, though plain, bespeaks comfort, if not magnificence. In the interior, however, every supposed deficiency is amply made up. It contains many noble apartments of fine proportions. The drawing-room is particularly remarkable for being hung with the finest Gobelin tapestry in England; the hall is paved with beautiful marble, and the long room, which is a very extensive gallery of fine proportions, commands a beautiful view of the lake and of the surrounding grounds; the niches are filled with models of the most choice antique statuary. Throughout the house the ceilings are richly stuccoed, the mirrors of large dimensions, and the furniture superb. The grounds are peculiarly delightful, affluent in the fine odours of tropical shrubs, and planted in such a way, that the devious paths seem to lead over twice the extent of ground actually occupied. In the midst of a beautiful parterre there is an urn upon a pedestal, inscribed to the memory of the late Earl of Coventry, whose ardent loyalty had long desired to see the restoration of his monarch George III. to mental health. The inscription is dated on the 25th of October, 1809, the day of the national jubilee for the king's restoration to sound reason. The following beautiful lines, said to have been written by one of the younger ladies of the family, are placed under it:—

"Sacred to him, the genius of the place,
Who reared these shades, and formed these sweet retreats,
With every incense breathing shrub adorned,
And flower of fairest hue! His cultured taste
And native fancy, bade the scene around
Rise perfect; and the muse, whom much he loved,
Still joys to haunt it. Crowned with length of days,
He lived—one wish alone unsated—much
His loyal heart had cherished a fond hope
To hail this day of jubilee, and close
His earthly course in Britain's hour of joy."

From here a winding pathway leads to the new church, a chaste Grecian edifice, erected by the late earl, to the chancel and vault of which the monuments and the bodies of his ancestry and family were removed. The mural tablet to his own memory is a pleasing specimen of that portion of the fine arts. The late earl was a skilful agriculturist, and contributed greatly to the improvement of all the land around his residence. The noble family of Coventry is descended from John Coventry, an eminent mercer, who amassed considerable wealth, and served the office of sheriff of the city of London in 1416, and that of lord mayor in 1425. He was one of the executors of the celebrated Sir Richard Whittington. From him was descended Thomas Coventry, a celebrated lawyer, who was chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas in 1606. His son Thomas followed the same profession as his father, and with equal success. He was advanced to the dignity of attorney-general in 1621, was four years afterwards made lord-keeper of the great seal, and ultimately raised to the peerage by the title of Baron Coventry of Aylsborough, in the county of Worcester. He died in 1640. Thomas, the fifth lord, was, in 1697, created by William III. Viscount Deerhurst and Earl of Coventry. On the death of that nobleman's grandson, the third earl, the title reverted to his nephew Gilbert, the fourth earl, from whom the present noble representative of the family is the fifth in descent. The present earl, who is a minor, succeeded to the title and estates in 1843, on the death of his grandfather.

BESSEL'S GREEN, Kent, a hamlet in the parish of Orpington—(which see for access, &c.)

BESSELSLEIGH, Berks, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hormer, union of Abingdon: 62 miles from London (coach road 60), 5 from Abingdon, 6 from Oxford.—Gt. West. Rail. to Abingdon, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Oxford, &c., 126 miles, thence 6.—Money orders issued at Abingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The inhabitants of this parish are entitled to send their children to the school erected and endowed by Sir R. Fettiplace, at Appleton. In the church there is a fine monument to the memory of W. Lenthall, Esq., once governor of Windsor Castle, who was son of W. Lenthall, Esq., who was speaker of the Long Parliament, and resided at the ancient house of Basselsleigh Manor, which he purchased of the Fettiplace family.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £4. 17s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £280: patron, W. J. Lenthall, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Foulkes: contains 980 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 106: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 122: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,153: poor rates in 1837, £62.—Besselsleigh Manor.

BESSINGBY, YORKSHIRE, a parish in the wapentake of Dickerig: 243 miles from London (coach road 238), 2 from Bridlington, 12 from Hornsea.—East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to Bridlington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and Selby, to Bridlington, &c., 131 miles.—Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.—The living (St. Magnus), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £59: patron, H. Hudson, Esq.: pres. incumbent, N. C. Strickland: contains 1,230 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 66: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 75: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,045: poor rates in 1837, £43. Certain great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropiator, were commuted in 1766.

BESSINGHAM (or BASSINGHAM), NORFOLK, a parish in the northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Erpingham: 146 miles from London (coach road 116), 6 from Cromer, 8 from Aylesham.—East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Stamford, &c., to East Dereham, 151 miles, thence 20.—Money orders issued at Cromer: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1½ p.m.: post closes 1 p.m.—The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £131: patron, F. E. Arden, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. C. Arden: contains 410 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 139: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 160: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £586: poor rates in 1837, £62.

BESTHORPE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Shropham, union of Wayland: 111 miles from London (coach road 95), 1 from Attleborough, 6 from Wymondham.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Cambridge and Ely to Attleborough, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Syston and Ely, &c., 151 miles.—Money orders issued at Attleborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—The church is neat, and has a lofty spire.—The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 6s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £250: patron, Earl of Winterton: pres. incumbent, Hon. A. Turnour, 1825: contains 2,440 acres: 99 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 536: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 616: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,745: poor rates in 1837, £462.—E. 1 m. Ellingham Hall.

BESTHORPE, NOTTINGHAM, a chapelry in the parish of South Scarle, hund<sup>d</sup> of Newark: 153 miles from London (coach road 132), 8 from Newark, 8 from Tuxford.—Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester and Newark to Collingham, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Newark, &c., 41 miles.—Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—A school here is endowed with £8. 12s. a year.—Contains 510 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 327: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £376: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,518: poor rates in 1837, £133.—N. ¼ m. Mearing Hall.

BESWICK, LANCASTER: 183 miles from London, 7 from Stockport, 12 from Bolton—(other returns with the parish.)—Money orders issued at Stockport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 60 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 285: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 328.

BESWICK, EAST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Kilnwick, Bainton-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill: 223 miles from London (coach road 190), 7 from Beverley, 13 from Hornsea.—East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Hull, Beverley, to Lockington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and Hull, to Beverley, Lockington, &c., 125 miles.—Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The Baptists have a chapel here.—The living, a perpetual curacy not in charge, annexed to the curacy of Kilnwick: pres. net income, £65: patron, Master of Archbishop Holgate's Greek School: pres. incumbent, J. Rigby, 1819: contains 1,430 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 211: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 220: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,104: poor rates in 1837, £69.

BETCHWORTH (or BEACHWORTH), SURREY, a parish in the first division of the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Reigate: 24 miles from London (coach road 26), 3 from Reigate, 7 from Leatherhead.—Sou. East. Rail. to Reigate, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 156 miles.—Money orders issued at Reigate: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.:

post closes 8 p.m.—The manor once belonged to the celebrated Abraham Tucker, author of the 'Light of Nature Pursued.' There is a Baptist chapel here, and a school with an endowment of £20 a year. The parochial charities produce about £20 a year.—The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £7. 8s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £126: patron, Dean and Canons of Windsor: pres. incumbent, G. R. Kensit, 1835: contains 3,660 acres: 192 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,140: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,311: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,402: poor rates in 1837, £719.—W., Betchworth Hall is the seat of the Right Hon. Henry Goulburn, who for the last thirty years has held a distinguished position in the political party to which he belongs. The right hon. gentleman has twice filled the high office of Chancellor of the Exchequer, and is now member for the University of Cambridge. He is the son of the late Munbee Goulburn, Esq., who married a daughter of the late Viscount Chetwynd.—Broome House is the seat of the eminent surgeon, Sir Benjamin C. Brodie, Bart., to give a sketch of whose career would be to give an account of all the great improvements in surgery for the last thirty years.—Moor House is the seat of J. W. Freshfield, Esq., the eminent solicitor of the Bank of England.—Depe Dene is the residence of H. T. Hope, Esq., who has another seat, called Trenant Park, in Cornwall. Mr. Hope is in the Commission of the Peace for Gloucestershire, and lately represented Gloucester in parliament. Mr. Hope derives his descent from Henry Hope, Esq., second son of Sir Thomas Hope of Kerse, and younger brother of Sir Alexander Hope, who was created a baronet in 1672, and who founded the great and opulent house of the Hopes at Amsterdam. Thomas Hope, the great-grandfather of the present proprietor of Depe Dene, amassed a large amount of wealth there. The father of Mr. Hope, Thomas Hope, Esq., was the author of 'Anastasis,' one of the most striking works of imagination, and was not only eminent as a writer himself, but also a munificent encourager of the works of others.—S., Wonham House is the residence of Viscount Templetown of Templetown, in Antrim. The first of this family who settled in Ireland was Henry Upton, Esq., a captain in the army of the Earl of Essex, in 1598. He married a sister of Viscount Massurcene, and was returned to parliament for the town of Carrickfergus. A great-grandson of his, John Upton, Esq. of Castle Upton, distinguished himself greatly at the siege of the citadel of Liege, and at the battle of Almanza, under Lord Galway, and had a regiment given to him for his spirited conduct. The brother of that gentleman, Clotworthy Upton, Esq., was raised to the peerage by the title of Baron Templetown, in the county of Antrim, and his son, John Henry Upton, was elevated to a viscounty in 1806. The present peer succeeded the late viscount in that year.—Colonel Raikes and Thomas Stone, Esq., have also residences here.

BETHELKING, BERKS. See BAULKING.

BETHERSDEN, KENT, a parish in the upper half-hund<sup>d</sup> of Chart and Longbridge, lathe of Scray, union of West Ashford: 65 miles from London (coach road 54), 7 from Tenterden, 6 from Ash-ford. — Sou. East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. to Pluckley station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 197 miles. — Money orders issued at Ashford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — There is a Baptist chapel here. The inhabitants are entitled to send six children to Snarden school. A species of grey marble is found in the north-eastern part of the parish, which is extensively used for the internal decoration of churches. About ninety-four acres of ground in the parish are devoted to the cultivation of hops. — The living (St. Beatrice), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £165: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, R. Burnett, 1823: contains 6,410 acres: 146 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,011: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,163: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,906: poor rates in 1837, £779. The tithes were commuted in 1839. — Fairs, 3d Monday in April, for pedlery.

BETHNAL-GREEN, MIDDLESEX, a parish in the Tower division of the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Ossulstone, union of Bethnal-Green: 1 mile from the City, 2 from Poplar. — The name of Bethnal-Green is supposed to be derived from Barthon Hall, the residence of a family of that name, who lived here in the reign of Edward I., and from an extensive green, to the east of which was a bishop's palace, where, it is said, Bishop Bonner usually resided. The celebrated legendary tale of the 'Blind Beggar of Bethnal-Green' has reference to an ancient castellated mansion, built in the reign of Elizabeth, by a citizen of London, named John Kirby: it is now converted into a lunatic asylum. As the story goes, Henry de Montford and his father, the Earl of Leicester, were both engaged in the battle of Evesham, where the young nobleman was left for dead upon the field; but he was carefully sought for by a lady who was tenderly attached to him, and ultimately recovered his health and strength. Aware, however, that discovery by his enemies would be death, he counterfeited blindness, and daily sat by the wayside, where Mile-end turnpike now stands, begging for his daily bread. The district, which was formerly a hamlet of Stepney, was erected into a separate parish by act of parliament in 1743. The houses, which seem to have been chiefly erected in the reigns of Queen Anne and George I., are mean in appearance, and mostly built of brick. With few exceptions they are occupied by weavers, who work at their own houses for the silk manufacturers in Spitalfields. The manufacture of silk was first brought into this country by the French refugees, shortly after the revocation of the edict of Nantes, and many of their descendants still remain upon the site. There was, indeed, a French church in existence here till about the year 1815. Bethnal-Green is still the principal seat of the silk manufacture in England. By the last return, there were 7,847 looms employed in the parish, of which 2,144 were engaged upon velvets, 23 on jacquard velvets, 445 on jacquard or figured goods, and 5,235 on plain goods; in addition to these, 776 were unemployed, and 189 had been parted with. The value of a new loom is from 30s. to 40s., the net earnings of the weaver seldom amounting to ten shillings. The whole of the streets are well lighted with gas, and some of them are paved and open, but in others the inhabitants are closely packed together, and the whole air is fetid with impure exhalations. A large tract, however, lying on the outer portion of the parish, is laid out in market gardens, where vegetables are cultivated for Covent Garden and other metropolitan markets. The church, on the east side of Church Row, was erected in 1746, under the authority of the commissioners for building new churches. Another church was erected here in 1828, at an outlay of the parliamentary commissioners of about £17,650. It is a neat edifice, in a Grecian style, after a design of Sir J. Soane, and is capable of accommodating about 2,000 persons. There is also an Episcopal Jews chapel, erected in 1814. The Independents, Baptists, and Wesleyan Methodists, all have numerous chapels here. There is a free school and almshouse, endowed in 1722 by Mr. Thomas Parmiter. Mrs. Elizabeth Carter gave the ground on which the school is erected rent free for 600 years, and £10 a year was subsequently given respectively by Mrs. Carter and Mr. William Lee, and £5 by Mr. Mayhew. The Drapers' and Dyers' Companies both have almshouses here. There is also an hospital here, founded in 1711 by Captain Fisher. Trinity Hospital, at Mile-end, was erected on land given, in 1695, by Captain Henry Mudd, an elder brother of the Trinity House, and was endowed, in 1781, by Captain Robert Sandes. It is for decayed master mariners and their widows, and funds, arising from certain lighthouses, ballast-offices, buoys, &c., are appropriated by Government for its support. The inmates are 28 in number. In 1771 the inhabitants founded St. Matthew's school, for the clothing and education of 45 girls and 45 boys. The other educational institutions are numerous, and such as are adapted for the requirements of the locality. — The living (St. Matthew), a rectory in the diocese of London, not in charge: pres. net income, £614: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, J. King, 1809: contains 760 acres: 12,048 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 74,088: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 85,188: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £69,722: poor rates in 1837, £15,945.

BETLEY, STAFFORD, a parish in the northern division of the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Pirehill: 164 miles from London (coach road 157), 7 from Newcastle, 8 from Nantwich. — Nor. West. Rail. through Stafford to Madeley, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Lichfield to Madeley, &c., 55 miles. — Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £14 a year. The remains of Healey Castle, belonging to Lord Audley, stand upon a rock about a mile to the south-east of the village. — The living (St. Margaret), a perpetual curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £101. 9s. 6d.: pres. net income, £150: patron, G. Tollet, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Turton, 1819: contains 1,480 acres: 163 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 884: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,016: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,804: poor rates in 1837, £192. — N. is Betley Hall, the seat of George Tollet, Esq. About 1720, George Tollet, Esq., who had been a commissioner of the navy during the reigns of William III. and Queen Anne, purchased the property at Betley of a branch of the Egerton family. From him it descended to Charles Tollet, Esq., who was high sheriff of the county in 1782, and at that gentleman's decease it passed to his cousin, the present proprietor.

BETTERTON, BERKS, a tithing in the parish of Lockinge: 3 miles from Wantage.

BETTESHANGER (or BETSHANGER), KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Eastry, lathe of St. Augustin: 102 miles from London (coach road 67), 4 from Sandwich, 4 from Deal. —Sou. East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Sandwich, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 234 miles. —Money orders issued at Sandwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £6. 4s. 4d.: pres. net income, £166: patron, F. E. Morrice, Esq.: pres. incumbent, A. D. Morrice, 1815: contains 370 acres: 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 18: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 21: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,331: poor rates in 1837, £25. —Betshanger Park is the seat of F. E. Morrice, Esq. Mr. Morrice traces his descent from Glodrydd, Prince of Fferles, founder of the fourth royal tribe of Wales. Several of his ancestors have been remarkable for their martial qualities, and one them, Salmon Morrice, Esq., distinguished himself highly in the Royal Navy, ultimately rising to be an admiral of the white. In 1712, he purchased the estate at Betshanger, and from him the present proprietor is the fourth in descent.—Dane Court.

BETTISCOMBE, DORSET, a parish in the liberty of Frampton, locally situated in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Godderthorne, union of Beaminster, Bridport division of the county: 164 miles from London (coach road 146), 6 from Lyme Regis, 5 from Axminster. —Sou. West. Rail. to Dorchester, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Taunton, 176½, thence 24 miles. —Money orders issued at Axminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The living, a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £8. 2s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £180: patron, R. B. Sheridan, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. W. Scott, 1843: contains 1,810 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 53: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 61: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £731: poor rates in 1837, £67.

BETTUS, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Clun: 188 miles from London (coach road 164), 7 from Knighton, 22 from Ludlow. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 55 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Kidderminster, &c., 126 miles. —Money orders issued at Presteign: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £57: patron, Earl of Powis: pres. incumbent, J. R. N. Kinchant: contains 8,500 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 452: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 519: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,159: poor rates in 1837, £203.

BETTWS, CARMARTHEN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Iskennen, union of Llanelly, South Wales: 204 miles from London (coach road 211), 18 from Carmarthen, 7 from Llandillo. —Gt. West. Rail.

to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the Severn to Penarth, by rail to Merthyr Tydvil, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Weston, &c., 219 miles. —Money orders issued at Llandillo: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel here. The parish is about five miles long, and one and a half broad, and is believed to contain some very valuable beds of coal. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Carmarthen, and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £98: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, J. Williams, 1804: contains 182 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,109: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,275: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,593: poor rates in 1837, £178.

BETTWS-YN-RHOS (or BETTWS-ABERGELEY), DENBIGH, a parish with a hamlet of the same name, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Iedulas, union of St. Asaph, North Wales: 226 miles from London (coach road 214), 4 from Abergeley, 11 from Denbigh. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Abergeley, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Chester, &c., 118 miles. —Money orders issued at Rhyl: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —There is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel here, and a National school, partly supported by an endowment of £23 a year. The parish occupies an elevated position, and is partly uncultivated. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of St. Asaph, and diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor, is valued at £12. 15s. 5d.: pres. net income, £333: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbent, R. Phillips, 1826: contains 182 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 911: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,048: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,745: poor rates in 1837, £702.

BETTWS, GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newcastle, union of Bridgend and Cowbridge, South Wales: 181 miles from London (coach road 186), 5 from Bridgend, 13 from Neath. —Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the Severn to Penarth, by rail to Newbridge, and thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 194 miles. —Money orders issued at Neath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3 p.m.: post closes 9 a.m. —The living, a curacy not in charge, subordinate to the vicarage of Newcastle: contains 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 438: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 504: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,506: poor rates in 1837, £116.

BETTWS, MERIONETH, a township in the parish of Llan-fawr, hun<sup>d</sup> of Penllyn, North Wales: 195 miles from London, 2 from Bala, 7 from Llandvillo—(for returns, see LLAN-FAWR). —There is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel here. The village stands in the picturesque vale of Eiderion.

BETTWS, MONMOUTH, a parochial chapelry in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wentloog, union of Newport: 149 miles from London (coach road 151), 3 from Newport, 7 from Pontypool. —Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence across the Severn to Newport, thence 3 miles: from Derby to Bristol, &c., 161 miles. —Money orders issued at Cardigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —The chapelry is intersected by the Crumlin Canal. —The living, a curacy not in charge, subordinate to the vicarage of Newport contains 1,470 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841,

90: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 103: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £932: poor rates in 1837, £97.

BETTWS, MONTGOMERY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newtown, union of Newtown and Llanidloes, North Wales, on the river Bechan, a little above its junction with the Severn: it includes the township of Garthgillin and Glanithan, and of Ucheldre and Dolewovin: 181 miles from London (coach road 175), 4 from Newtown, 7 from Montgomery. — Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 54 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Wolverhampton, &c., 109 miles. — Money orders issued at Newtown: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 11 a.m. — The parish is an upland district, with a very undulating surface. In the township of Dolewovin are the remains of a castle, near which some curiously-wrought earthen and brazen vessels have been found. It is said that from this castle, Leland and Milton took the hint for the tale of the "Maiden Sabrina." — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £211: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbent, H. Butler: contains 7,000 acres: 154 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 821: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 944: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,033: poor rates in 1837, £538.

BETTWS-BLEDDRWS, CARDIGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Moeddyn (Moythen), union of Lampeter, South Wales: 198 miles from London (coach road 211), 2 from Lampeter, 9 from Tregaron. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 95 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, 71 miles, thence 100. — Money orders issued at Lampeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4½ p.m.: post closes 6 a.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cardigan, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £4. 7s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £143: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, C. Lloyd, 1837: contains 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 227: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 261: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £820: poor rates in 1837, £54.

BETTWS-CLYRO, RADNOR, a small parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pains-castle, union of Hay, South Wales: 166 miles from London (coach road 160), 4 from Hay, 7 from Glasbury. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 48 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 119 miles. — Money orders issued at Hay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The village stands on the western bank of the Wye. — The living, a curacy not in charge, subordinate to the vicarage of Clyro: contains 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 785: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 903: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,742: poor rates in 1837, £122.

BETTWS-DISERTH, RADNOR, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Colwyn, union of Builth, South Wales: 178 miles from London (coach road 173), 8 from New Radnor, 6 from Builth. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 60 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 131 miles. — Money orders issued at Builth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3½ p.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The parish lies near the source of the river Eddw. — The living, a curacy not in charge, subordinate to the rectory of Diserth: contains 1,800 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 152: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £468: poor rates in 1837, £79.

BETTWS-GARMON, CARNARVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Is-Gorfa, or Gwyrfa, union of Carnarvon, North Wales, on a small river which flows from Llyn-Llewellyn, and falls into the Menai Straits: 257 miles from London (coach road 230), 5 from Carnarvon, 7 from Beddgelart. — Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Bangor, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Chester, &c., 150 miles. — Money orders issued at Carnarvon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The parish lies at the base of Snowdon. The high road from Carnarvon to Beddgelart and Tany-y-Bwch passes through it; the hamlet of Bettws-Garmon, consisting of a few cottages, a little church dedicated to St. Garmon, and a public-house, stand upon it. — The living, a curacy, to which is annexed the vicarage of Llanfair-is-Gaer, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Bangor: pres. net income, £90: patron, Bishop of Bangor: contains 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 111: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 128: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £580: poor rates in 1837, £57.

BETTWS-GWERFYL-GOCH, MERIONETH, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eidernion, union of Corwen, North Wales: 225 miles from London (coach road 199), 5 from Corwen, 11 from Bala. — Nor. West. Rail. to Chester, thence by rail to Chirk, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe to Chester, &c., 118 miles. — Money orders issued at Corwen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — In this parish is a hamlet of the same name, situated near the river Alwen. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor, is valued at £5. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £124: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbent, J. Edwards, 1822: contains 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 279: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 320: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £960: poor rates in 1837, £146. — Fairs: 16th March, 22d June, 12th August, 16th Sept., and 12th Dec., for sheep, horned cattle, and horses.

BETTWS-JEVAN (or EVAN), CARDIGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Troedyraur, union of Newcastle-in-Emlyn, South Wales: 228 miles from London (coach road 236), 7 from Newcastle-in-Emlyn, 10 from Cardigan. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 125 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, 71 miles, thence 130. — Money orders issued at Newcastle-in-Emlyn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 p.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living, a curacy not in charge, subordinate to the vicarage of Pembryn: contains 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 426: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 490: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,175: poor rates in 1837, £193.

BETTWS-NEWYDD, MONMOUTH, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ragland, union of Abergavenny, near the river Usk: 133 miles from London (coach road 142), 4 from Usk, 12 from Monmouth. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse, &c., 133 miles. — Money orders issued at Usk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — There is a Sunday school here, to which £5 are appropriated from Davies' charity. The village stands near the river Usk, over which there is a suspension bridge.---The living, a curacy not in charge, subordinate to the vicarage of Llanarth: contains 1,200 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 106: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 122: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £611: poor rates in 1837, £38.

BETTWS-Y-CEOD, CARNARVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Nant-Conway, union of Llanrwst, North Wales, on the river Llygwy: 267 miles from London (coach road 217), 5 from Llanrwst, 20 from Bangor.---Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Bangor, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Chester, &c., 160 miles.---Money orders issued at Llanrwst: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3 p.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---In the church there is the tomb of Gryffyd, great-nephew of Llewellyn, the last prince of Wales. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel here. Close by the village is the picturesque bridge of the Cauldron (Pont-y-Pain), beneath which is a celebrated salmon leap. The Holyhead road passes through the parish.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Bangor, and diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor, is valued at £3. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £101: patron, Bishop of Bangor: pres. incumbent, Evan Evans, 1826: contains 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 451: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 518: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £591: poor rates in 1837, £170.

BEVERCOATES, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the South Clay division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, union of East Retford: 158 miles from London (coach road 140), 3 from Tuxford, 7 from East Retford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Mansfield, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Mansfield, &c., 43 miles.---Money orders issued at Tuxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The male children of the parish have a right to attend the daily school of Haughton and Selby, free of expense.---The living is a vicarage united with that of West Markham: pres. net income, £254: patron, Duke of Newcastle: pres. incumbent, E. H. Dawkins, 1828: contains 790 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 44: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 50: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £731: poor rates in 1837, £39.---N.W. 1 m. is Clumber Park, the seat of the Duke of Newcastle (for account of which, see CARBURTON).---W., Thoresby Park, the seat of Earl Manvers (for description of which, see BOTAMSHALL).---S.W. 1 m. Castle William (see CERLETHORPE).---½ m. Whitmoor House.

BEVERLEY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a borough and market town within the union and liberty of Beverley, in the east riding of Yorkshire, in the Hunsley-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill: 216 miles from London (coach road 183), 9 from Hull.---East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to station: from Derby, through Normanton and Selby to Hull and Beverley, 118 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The town of Beverley is pleasantly situate at the foot of the wolds of Holderness, about a mile west of the river Hull, with which it communicates by a canal. The borough consists of three parishes, St. Martin, St. Nicholas, and St. Mary, to which a small portion of the parish of St. John has been recently added. The liberty of Beverley contains the townships of Stockhill with Sandholme, Thearne, Molescroft, Weal, Ticton with Hullbridge, Woodmansey with Beverley Park, and part of the township of Aike, all of which are in the parish of St. John. All the four parishes named are within the deanery of Harthill, archdeaconry of the east riding, and diocese of York. The living of St. John, to which that of St. Martin is annexed, is a perpetual curacy, valued at £31. 6s. 8d.; present value £128; patron, Simeon's trustees: incumbent, J. B. Birtwhistle, 1843. St. Mary, a vicarage, is joined with St. Nicholas, a rectory: present value, £289: patron, the Lord Chancellor: incumbent, W. Sandys, 1833. The place where the town now stands was once covered with wood, and was called Deirwald, or the wood of the Deirians. It afterwards received the name of Beverlac—quasi locus vel lacus castorum, a castoribus quibus Hulla aqua vicina abundabat, a place or lake of beavers, with which animals the neighbouring river Hull abounded. The foundation of the town is, however, involved in the obscurity of remote ages. There is a tradition that it was in existence in the time of the British king Lucius, but little authenticity is ascribed to it, and all we know of the ancient history of Beverley can be traced no farther back than the time of the celebrated prior St. John, who founded the minster, or rather the church which stood in its place, and which was afterwards converted into a monastery. John, Archbishop of York, having filled the archiepiscopal throne for thirty-three years, retired to spend the remainder of his days at Beverley, and after his death was canonized. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—John, archbishop of York, afterwards called St. John of Beverley, is said to have founded, about the year 700, in the choir of the parish church here, a convent of monks, dedicated to St. John the Baptist; in the nave of the church, a college of seven secular canons with seven clerks, to the honour of St. John the Evangelist; and in the chapel of St. Martin, adjoining the church, a society of religious virgins or nuns; but about 160 years after, the religious here were murdered, and the church and buildings plundered and burnt to the ground by the Danes. Not long after, some of the seculars who had fled from and escaped the Danish fury, began to settle here again, and to repair the church, which was completed and endowed with revenues for seven canons, with large privileges (to the honour of St. John of Beverley), by King Athelstan, and the favour and bounty of succeeding kings, and of the archbishops of York, who claimed the immediate patronage. This collegiate society flourished to that degree, that it consisted at the dissolution of a provost, eight prebendaries, a chancellor, preceptor, seven rectors choral, nine vicars choral, with many chantry priests, clerks, choristers, officers, and servants. The provostship was rated in the 26th year of Henry VIII. at £109. 8s. 8d.; the prebend of St. Michael, at £31. 13s. 4d.; of St. Peter, at £46. 6s. 11d.; of St. Martin, at £39. 11s. 1d.; of St. Catherine, at £10. 18s. 4d.; of St. Mary, at £35. 17s.; of St. Stephen, at £44; of St. Andrew, at £48. 16s. 1d.; of St. James, at £41. 1s. 4d.; the chancellorship, at £13. 16s.; the precentorship, at £13. 9s. 4d.; the fabric lands, at £18. 3s. 8d.; the rectors choral had lands in common to the yearly value of £8. 13s. 7d., besides a pension of £6. 13s. 4d. to every one of them. The vicars choral had in common £12 per annum, and a pension of £8 to every one of them. The enrichments of this religious institution by King Athelstane were made as an offering of gratitude to God, for a victory with which he had been blessed over Inguar and Hubba, the leaders of one of the Danish incursions. The town of Beverley dates the origin of its prosperity from this monastic foundation of Archbishop John, who appears, in a variety of ways, to have been a remarkable man. According to Fuller, he was educated under Theodorus the Grecian, and archbishop of Canterbury. Yet was he not so famous for his teacher as for his scholar, venerable Bede, who wrote this John's life, which he hath so spiced with miracles that it is of the hottest for a discreet man to digest into his belief. As stated above, he was canonized by the title of St. John of Beverley, and his memory was held in such veneration, that when William the Conqueror came into the neighbourhood, he would not suffer his marauding soldiery to approach within seven miles of the town, and issued strict orders particularly that the property of the monastery should in no way be injured. The day of his death was appointed to be kept holy, and the anniversary of his then supposed translation, the 25th of October, was ordered, in 1416, to be periodically celebrated for the winning of the battle of Agincourt, the victory having been superstitiously ascribed to his influence. The building, founded by Archbishop John, was almost entirely destroyed by fire in 1188, and the present structure was founded on its site. It is supposed to have been completed in the reign of Henry III., and is a venerable cruciform building, with two lofty towers at the west front, exhibiting the styles of several eras; yet, notwithstanding this evident mixture, it is considered equal, in 'purity of composition, correctness of detail, and elegance in execution,' to any of our English cathedrals. Mr. Rickman, who may be considered as the first of authorities upon English ecclesiastical architecture, says of it—The north porch of Beverley minster is, as a panell'd front, perhaps unequalled. The door has a double canopy, the inner an ogee, and the outer a triangle, with beautiful crochets and tracery, and is flanked by fine buttresses breaking into niches, and the space above the canopy to the cornice is panell'd; the battlement is composed of rich niches, and the buttresses crowned by a group of four pinnacles. When speaking of perpendicular fronts, Mr. Rickman says—Of perpendicular fronts, by far the finest is that of Beverley minster. What the west front of York is to the decorated style, this is to the perpendicular, with this addition, that in this front nothing but one style is seen—all is harmonious. Like York minster, it consists of a very large west window to the nave, and two towers for the end of the aisles. This window is of nine lights, and the tower windows of three lights. The windows of the tower correspond in range nearly with those of the aisles and the clerestory windows of the nave; the upper windows of the tower are belfry windows. Each tower has four large and eight small pinnacles, and a very beautiful battlement. The whole front is panell'd, and the buttresses, which have a very bold projection, are ornamented with various tiers of nichework, of excellent composition, and most delicate execution. The doors are uncommonly rich, and have the hanging feathered ornament; the canopy of the great centre door runs up above the sill of the window, and stands free in the centre light with a very fine effect. The gable has a real tympanum, which is filled with fine tracery. The east front is fine, but mixed with early English. With this detail, short as it is, of the architectural beauties of the minister, we must be content. There are some beautiful monuments in the interior to the Percy and other families. The right of sanctuary was conferred by Athelstane upon Beverley, and its limits were marked by four crosses, set up a mile from the town, towards each point of the compass. Until the period of the dissolution, the collegiate church of Beverley exercised a jurisdiction, not only over its own, but also over several other parishes, including Cherryburton, Brandsburton, Leven, Middleton-on-the-Wolds, Leckonfield, Sigglesworth, Patrington, Ottringham, Welwick, South Dalton, and Scorbrough, and to these Bacon adds Rise and Halsham. The great and small tithes of St. John in Beverley and Skidby, the property of Trinity College, Cambridge, and the lay impropriator, were commuted in 1785. The estates belonging to the minster now produce about £3,000 a year, part of which is appropriated to keeping the edifice in repair. The church of St. Nicholas has long been in ruins, but St. Mary's is an elegant structure, at the west end of which there are two fine pierced and embattled octagonal turrets. The chancel is divided from the aisles by five pointed arches, and has a lofty and beautifully groined roof, with well-proportioned arches and piers. This church also contains some fine monuments; it has a reparation fund, which now produces about £800 a year. There is a grammar-school here, the date of the foundation and the name of the founder of which are unknown; but in 1652 it was endowed with £10 a year by Dr. John Metcalf, and the corporation now make it up to £100 per annum, retaining the management of the institution in their own hands. Scholars from this school are entitled to three scholarships of £6. 13s. 4d. per annum, each founded by Dr. Metcalf; to one of £6 per annum, founded by William Coates, Esq; and to two of £8 per annum each, founded by Dr. William Lacey—all in St. John's College, Cambridge; and to one of £10 per annum, in St. John's or Corpus Christi College, founded by Dr. Green when Bishop of Lincoln. There is a blue-coat school here, founded by the inhabitants in 1709, which has since been enriched by benefactions, until its funds produce upwards of £126 a year. At this school ten boys are educated, each of whom is apprenticed with a fee of £3 on leaving the school. A school for 200 children of both sexes was founded in 1804 by Mr. James Greaves, who endowed it with £84 a year, realised from the interest of Navy four per cents. The other schools, both Sunday and daily, are very numerous. Almshouses for four poor widows, each of whom receives ten shillings a month, were founded in 1636 by Mr. Thwaite Fox. Almshouses for 32 widows, with matron and all the necessary officials, were founded and endowed in 1731 by Mrs. Anne Routh. Each inmate receives five shillings a week. Another hospital of a similar kind was founded by Mr. Charles Walton in 1812; it contains fourteen apartments, each of which is occupied by an inmate. The endowment now yields a revenue of about £404 a year, and each widow receives a weekly allowance of four shillings. Besides these, there are several other charities, and among them 26 unendowed almshouses, whose inmates participate frequently in the benefit of corporation gifts, and several minor charitable bequests. In 1711, an estate, which now produces from £70 to £100 a year, was left by Mr. Robert Stephenson for the support of 'Nonconformist preaching ministers;' and in 1724, Sir Michael Warton bequeathed £4,000, the interest of which is appropriated to keeping the minster in repair. The other parochial charities produce about £200 a year. Beverley is a handsome and well-built town, composed of several streets, the principal of which is nearly a mile in length, and terminates at an old gateway. It is well paved and lighted with gas, and there is a good supply of water. The environs are very agreeable, and command extensive views. The climate is considered as remarkably healthy. There is considerable traffic here in corn, coals, oatmeal, malt, and leather, which is much promoted by the canal before alluded to, called Beverley beck, and which seems to have been open as early as the year 1344. The market-place is spacious, and in the middle there is a cross, supported on eight pillars. For municipal purposes, the town is now divided into two wards, Minster and St. Mary's, each of which returns nine common councilmen. The burgesses have individually a right to depasture twelve head of cattle on the common lands, which are 1,174 acres in extent. The freedom from toll and custom in every town in England is commemorated on a tablet in the south transept of the cathedral, on which there are medallions of Athelstane and the Archbishop St. John of Beverley, and between them this inscription:—

VOL. I.

2 L

"Als free make I thee,
As hert may thynke, or egh see."

Beverley is the capital of the East Riding, and the quarter sessions for its division are held here at the Guildhall, better known as the Hallgarth; the petty sessions for the Hunsley Beacon division are held at the new sessions-house. The Guildhall is a handsome building, and contains apartments where the business of the corporation is transacted, the sessions-hall, and an office for the registration of wills and deeds. The town-hall was newly fronted and the new prison built in 1832, at an expense of £4,000. The gaol consists of three distinct ranges, each having an airing yard, divided by lofty walls, and thirteen sleeping cells; but it is seldom used, except for debtors or persons committed from the borough or county court of the liberty of Beverley. The house of correction for the East Riding, which stands at a little distance from the town, cost £42,000 in the erection. Since the passing of the gaol acts it has been considerably enlarged, and now contains as many as forty tread-wheels, to the labour of which the prisoners, both male and female, are subjected. There are 101 cells, 14 wards, and 14 airing yards. Beverley returned two members to parliament in the reign of Edward I., but its privilege fell into abeyance till the 5th of Elizabeth, since which time it has been regularly continued. By the Reform Act, the several parishes have been expressly consolidated to form the borough, which still sends two members to parliament. Dr. John Alcock, Bishop of Ely, who was the founder of Jesus College, Cambridge, was a native of Beverley; as was also Dr. Fisher, Bishop of Rochester, who suffered from the intolerance of Henry VIII.; and Dr. John Green, Bishop of Lincoln, a fine scholar, and one of the authors of the 'Athenian Letters,' which were published by the Earl of Hardwicke. The Beverley poor-law union comprises 36 parishes, and an area of 118 square miles. The Independents, Methodists, Baptists, Society of Friends, and the Roman Catholics, all have places of worship here. The Independent church was formed here as early as 1801. Contains 9,370 acres: 1,805 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 8,730: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,039: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £33,569: poor rates in 1837, £2,664. Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs, Thursday before Feb. 25, Holy Thursday, July 6, and Nov. 5, for horses and cattle. Principal markets for cattle: April 5, Wednesday before May 12, Sept. 14, and Wednesday after Dec. 25. Bankers: Bower & Co.—draw on Curries & Co.; Yorkshire Banking Co.—draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co.; Hull Banking Co.—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co. Inns: Beverley Arms, and Cross Keys.

BEVERLEY PARK, EAST RIDING, YORK. See WOODMANSEA.

BEVERSTONE, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hundrd of Berkeley, union of Tetbury: 96 miles from London (coach road 102), 3 from Tetbury, 6 from Minchinghampton. Gt. West. Rail. to Tetbury Road station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse to Tetbury Road station, &c., 120 miles. Money orders issued at Stroud: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. There are some remains of a castle here, erected by Lord Berkeley in the time of Edward III. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, united with the curacy of Kingscote, is valued at £30: pres. net income, £590: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, A. G. Cornwall, 1839: contains 2,360 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 178: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 204: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,304: poor rates in 1837, £42. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1803. N. E. ¼ m. Chevenage House; 1 m. Upton House; E. 1 m. Grove House.

BEWALDETH AND SNITTLE GARTH, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Torpenhow, ward of Allerdale below Darwent: 357 miles from London (coach road 299), 7 from Cockermouth, 9 from Keswick. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Carlisle to Cockermouth, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, and Carlisle, &c., 248 miles. Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Contains 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 197: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 227: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £838: poor rates in 1837, £45. Tithes commuted in 1814.

BEWCASTLE, CUMBERLAND, a parish and township in the ward of Eskdale, union of Longtown: it comprises the townships of Bailie, Belbank, and Nixons: 334 miles from London (coach road 300), 10 from Brampton, 14 from Longtown.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Carlisle to Rosehill, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Carlisle, &c., 225 miles.---Money orders issued at Brampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 4½ p.m.: post closes 9 a.m.---There is a curious stone obelisk in the churchyard, with an ancient inscription, supposed to be Danish. The Presbyterians and Independents have places of worship here. A market and fair were formerly held here, under license from Edward I., but both have long since fallen into disuse. This was formerly a Roman station, the Legio Secunda Augusta having been posted here; and many relics of that people are continually met with in the neighbourhood. Some vestiges of the fortress built by Bueth, lord of Gilsland, soon after the Conquest, still remain. The castle was garrisoned as a border-keep during the reign of Elizabeth, but it was demolished, in 1641, by the parliamentarians. Coals and lead are found within the parish, and the rivers Irthing and Levan take their rise within its boundaries.---The living (St. Cuthbert), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £2: pres. net income, £120: patron, Dean and Chapter of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, J. Maughan, 1836: contains 26,640 acres: 251 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,274: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,466: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,288: poor rates in 1837, £876.---Bradshawe Hill.

BEWDLEY, WORCESTER, a borough, market town, and chapelry, having separate jurisdiction in the parish of Ribbesford, lower division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Doddingtree, union of Kidderminster: 138 miles from London (coach road 129), 15 from Worcester.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Droitwich to Kidderminster, &c., 76 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Bewdley is very agreeably situated on the side of a hill, rising from the banks of the river Severn, which was originally called Tun Hill, or Goats' Hill; since then converted into Ticken Hill. In the reign of Edward I. it was a manor belonging to the Beauchamps, but in the time of Edward IV. it went by purchase to the Sheldons, and during that period, the 12th of Edward IV., received its first charter of incorporation. Prince Arthur, eldest son of Henry VII., frequently made it his residence; and the town from that time forward grew in prosperity and extent. Leland, in speaking of it during the succeeding reign, says—From Kidderminster to Beaudley, two myles by a fayre downe, but somewhat barrenne, as the veyne is thereabout, on every syde of Beaudley, for a little compasse. I entered in Beaudley (in Schropshire as some saye) by a goodley fayre brydg, over Severne of arches of stone, being even then in new reparation. This brydg is only on Severne, betwixt Beaudley and Worcester Brydg. To this brydg resort many long flatt vessels, to carry up and down all manner of merchandize to Beaudley, and above Beaudley. The east part of the brydg at Beaudley, and the left ripe of Severne, is in Worcestershire; but many say and hold that the west end of the brydg, and the right ripe of Severne, within the town of Beaudley, be in Schropshire and Wyre Forest, in Schropshire, going to the parke of Tettenhall.—The towne self Beaudley is sett on the syde of a hill, and soe colmely a man need not wish to see a towne better. It riseth from Severne bank by east, upon the hill by west, so that a man standing upon the hill trans hontem by east, may discern almost every house in the towne; and at the ryeing of the sune from the east, the whole towne glittereth (being all of new building) as it were of gould. By the distance of the parish church at (Ribbesford), I gather that Beaudley is a very new towne; and that of ould time there was but one poor hamlett; and that upon building of a bridge there upon the Severne, and resort of people unto it, and on commodity of the pleasant site, men began to inhabit there, and because the plott seemed fayr to the lookers on, it hath a French name, Beaudley, quasi Bellus Socius." Little further mention is made of Bewdley till the time of Charles I., who took up his quarters here after supplying Worcester, in order to put the Severn between himself and the enemy. The plan of the town resembles the letter Y, the chapel being placed just in the gorge where the two branches fork off. It was originally an extra-parochial liberty, but was united to Ribbesford in the reign of Henry IV., and was at one time included within the marches of Wales, but was united to the county of Worcester by an act of parliament in the time of Henry VIII. It has been a royal domain since the time of that monarch's father; and it was here that his elder brother, the Prince Arthur spoken of above, was married by proxy to Catherine of Arragon. Among its numerous privileges was that of sanctuary for persons who had committed homicide or murder. The palace suffered much during the civil war, and it was ultimately taken down, other buildings erected in its place, and the site so far obliterated that no traces of it now remain. The general aspect of the town is respectable, and the streets are neat, clean, and well paved, but they are neither lighted nor watched. There is a plentiful supply of water, and the air is very salubrious; while the gradual elevation of the rows of dwellings, interspersed as they are with trees and gardens, gives to the place a peculiarly cheerful air. The business of Bewdley is chiefly connected with the carrying trade on the Severn, but it has been a good deal affected by the construction of a canal from Stourport to Stourbridge. Tanning is done to a considerable extent, and much malt is made, but the chief business is that of comb-making: a manufactory of carpets has been established in Wribbenhall. The church is a low but interesting building. The town-hall was erected in 1818; it is a handsome building, with three arches in front, under which there is an entrance to the market-place, which has arcades on either side for stalls, and an open area in the centre. The Wesleyan Methodists, Baptists, Society of Friends, and Unitarians, have each places of worship here. The Baptist church was formed as early as 1649; and the Unitarian congregation about fifty years later. There is a free-grammar school here, which was, in the time of James I., made a royal foundation; it was endowed, in 1591, by William Monnox, and afterwards, in 1599, by Humphrey Hill; it is under the trusteeship of the corporation. In the school there is a library kept for the general use of the inhabitants; it was given by the Rev. Thomas Wigan, and is under the charge of the master and the rector, for the time being, of Ribbesford. The daily and charity schools are numerous, and for one of them the Rev. J. Cawood has, within these few years, built a very commodious edifice at the cost of more than £200. There are six almshouses for aged men, endowed with £30 a year by Mr. Sayer of Nettlestead, in Suffolk; they were rebuilt in 1763 by Sir Edward Winnington, the then member for the borough. Burlton's almshouses for fourteen aged women were founded and endowed in 1645; and, in 1693, Mr. Thomas Cook founded eight other almshouses with a small endowment. A property, called the Mill and Meadow, is vested in the corporation as trustees, and the proceeds, about £26 a year, are distributed among the necessitous poor according to the size of their families. By the general municipal corporation act, the old charter of Edward IV. was set aside, and the town is now governed by two bailiffs, four aldermen, and twelve councillors, who are chosen in the usual way. Bowdley, with the parish of Ribbesford, and the hamlets of Blackstone, Hoarstone, Netherton, Wribbenhall, and Lower Mitton with Lickhill, are constituted into a united borough by the Reform Act, and return one member to parliament. The original franchise appended only to the bailiff and twelve burgesses. —The living (St. Andrew), a perpetual curacy to the rectory of Ribbesford, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford: pres. net income, £100: patron, Rector of Ribbesford: pres. incumbent, J. Cawood, 1814: contains 4,330 acres: 867 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,400: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,910: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £4,372: poor rates in 1837, £1,074. —Market day, Saturday. Fairs: April 23, Monday in June before St. Ann's day, and December 11. —Bankers, Nicholls, Baker, and Crane—draw on Barnett, Hoares, & Co. —George Hotel, and Wheatsheaf Inn.

BEWERLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Ripon, lower division of the wapentake of Claro—(which see for access, &c.): 212 miles from London, 8 from Ripley, 8 from Borough-bridge. —Money orders issued at Alfreton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the lead mines in the neighbourhood. —Contains 5,320 acres: 207 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,506: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,732: poor rates in 1837, £540.

BEWICK (NEW), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Eglington, northern division of Coquetdale ward: 355 miles from London (coach road 312), 8 from Wooler, 12 from Alnwick. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Long Houghton station, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 223 miles. —Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4 p.m.: post closes 6 a.m. —Contains 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 122: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 140: poor rates in 1837, £19.

BEWICK (OLD), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Eglington, northern division of Coquetdale ward—(which see for access, &c.) —Contains 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 261: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 300: poor rates in 1837, £156.

BEXHILL, SUSSEX, a parish and hun<sup>d</sup> in the rape of Hastings, union of Battle: 80 miles from London (coach road 63), 6 from Battle, 6 from Hastings. —Sou. East. and Brighton Railway through Brighton to Bexhill station: from Derby, through London, &c., 212 miles. —Money orders issued at Battle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —The parish contains several chalybeate springs, and is considered remarkably healthy. —The living (St. Peter), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £24. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £977: patron, Bishop of Chichester: pres. incumbent, H. W. Simpson, 1840: contains 7,900 acres: 367 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,916: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,203: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £6,439: poor rates in 1837, £1,233.

BEXINGTON, DORSET, a hamlet, formerly a parish, in the liberty of Bindon, parish of Abbotsbury, hun<sup>d</sup> of Uggescombe, Dorchester division of the county—(which see for access, &c.): 131 miles from London, 7 from Bridport, 11 from Dorchester. —The church, dedicated to St. Giles, of which only a wall now remains, stood near the sea-shore. The patron of the rectory was anciently the Abbot of Abbotsbury. Since the dissolution, the lords of Puncknoll, to which it was annexed, have been the patrons. The annexation was made in 1451.

BEXLEY, KENT, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lessness, and partly in that of Ruxley, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone, union of Dartford: this parish contains the hamlets of Blendon, Bridgen, Halfway-Street, Hurst, Upton, and the south of Welling: 13 miles from London, 4 from Dartford, 8 from Bromley. —Sou. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Forest Hill, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 148 miles. —Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 and 10 a.m., and 6½ p.m.: post closes 8½ a.m., and 3½ and 5½ p.m. —The town was given by King Kenulf to the see of Canterbury, and in Doomsday-book it is said to have had a church and three mills. The church is interesting from its containing some monuments to members of the Austin family, and several others. There is a Baptist chapel here, and almshouses for twelve poor persons. Even before the Conquest, this manor belonged to the see of Canterbury, but was alienated, with all the other lands of the see, by Archbishop Cranmer, to Henry VIII. Sir John Spelman, who obtained a grant of it from Elizabeth, sold it to the celebrated antiquary, Camden, who bequeathed it to the University of Oxford, for the foundation of a professorship of history. The enclosure of Bexley Heath has tended largely to increase the population of the parish. The river Cray crosses the centre of the town in its course to Crayford. —The living (Virgin Mary), a vicarage in the deanery of Shoreham, and in the diocese of the Archbishop of Canterbury, is valued at £13. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £592: patron, Viscount Sidney: pres. incumbent, T. Harding, 1833: contains 5,370 acres: 768 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,955: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,548: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £16,823: poor rates in 1847, £2,498. —Marle House is the residence of Mrs. Hanson; Pen Hill, of William King, Esq.; the Hollies, of Thomas Lewin, Esq.; Brigden Place, of Samuel Rawson, Esq.; Parkhurst, of Major Cruikshank; Bourne House, of Mrs. Swaisland: S.E.  $\frac{3}{4}$  m. Baldwins; N.W.  $\frac{3}{4}$  m. Blendon Hall; 1 m. Danson Hill; W. 1 m. Lamienby: S.W.  $\frac{3}{4}$  m. Mount Mascal.

BEXTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Knutsford,  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. of Bucklow: 176 miles from London (coach road 175), 1 from Knutsford, 9 from Northwich. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Chelford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 69 miles. — Money orders issued at Knutsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Contains 540 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 87: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 100: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,224: poor rates in 1837, £66. — E., Bexton Hall.

BEXWELL, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Clackclose, union of Downham: 85 miles from London, 1 from Downham, 12 from Lynn. — (For access, &c., see DOWNHAM-MARKET.) — The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Norfolk, now in the diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £375: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent, E. J. Howman, 1831: contains 1,280 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 70: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 80: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,385: poor rates in 1837, £17. — E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  m. is Crivenham Park; S.W. 1 m. Crow Hall.

BEYTON. See BRIGHTON, SUFFOLK.

BIBURY, GLOUCESTER, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bradley, and partly in that of Brightwell's Barrow, union of Northleach: it contains the chapelry of Winson, the township of Bibury, and the tithings of Abington and Arlington: 102 miles from London (coach road 82), 5 from Fairford, 7 from Cirencester. — Gt. West. Rail. to Cirencester, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse, to Cirencester, &c., 128 miles. — Money orders issued at Fairford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The north and south doors of the church are Norman. There is a school supported by voluntary contributions. Lord Sherborne provides the school accommodation. There is an almshouse for four poor men. The other parochial charities produce about £11 a year. Petty sessions for the division of Bibury are held at the Swan Inn here. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, united with the curacy of Winson, in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £13. 1s. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: pres. net income, £1,023: patron, Lord Sherborne: pres. incumbent, H. Snow, 1843: contains 6,300 acres: 201 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,077: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,238: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,022: poor rates in 1837, £329. All the tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1841. — Races have ceased to be held. — There is a handsome house in this village, in the Elizabethan style, belonging to Lord Sherborne, and occupied by the Hon. James Dutton, his eldest son. — At Abington there is an old manor-house of the date 1590, belonging to the Rev. Charles Coxwell, by whose ancestors it was built.

BICESTER, OXFORD, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Ploughley, union of Bicester: 75 miles from London (coach road 55), 11 from Buckingham. — Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and

Worcester to Oxford, &c., 138 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m. and 6 p.m.: post closes 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. — According to Dr. Kennet, whose parochial antiquities are well worth perusal, St. Birinus, a canonized Saxon prelate, felt a particular regard for the town of Bicester, which from him was called Berini-castum, or Berincestre; but others have asserted that the place takes its name from the Bure, a small rivulet which rises in the neighbourhood. Plot, on the other hand, believes that it took its name from the forest of Bernwood, which stands in the same locality. From whatever source its appellation is derived, it is certain that, as a frontier town of the West Saxons, it was a place of considerable strength in the time of Birinus, and was very possibly built out of the ruins of Alchester in his time. Tanner, in his Notitia, says—Gilbert Basset, baron of Hedingdon, built a monastery here, A.D. 1182, for a prior and eleven black canons, to the honour of St. Mary and St. Edburgh. It was valued in the 26th of Henry VIII. at £167. 2s. 10d., and granted in the 30th year of the same monarch's reign to Charles Brandon, duke of Suffolk. The remains of the conventual buildings were found in 1819 by the workmen while making some alterations. Tanner adds—A royal license was granted in 1355 to Nicholas Jurdan, hermit, warden of the chapel of St. John the Baptist here, to found a new hospital in this town, for aged and infirm people, to the honour of the blessed Virgin and St. John the Baptist, and to purchase lands for the endowment of it to the value of £5 per annum. Richard II. granted to Sir John de North, lord of the neighbouring village of Biggenhull, the right to hold a fair and markets here, but they fell into disuse in the time of Henry VI., who granted a weekly market to Bury End. The township is divided into two parts, the King's End and Market End, each maintaining its own poor; part of the latter is within the parish of Caversfield, and occupies portions both of the counties of Buckingham and Oxford. Bicester suffered much during the civil war, and the partisans of Charles I. were defeated here in 1643 in a sharp skirmish. The town, which occupies a low situation, is neat, and has some handsome houses. The chief business of the inhabitants arises from the well-attended markets and fairs, and they are also celebrated for their ale. The church is a long building, erected in 1400 on the site of a still more ancient edifice: it contains some interesting monuments and sculptures. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Independents have places of worship here. Lands producing £200 a year, and some minor parochial charities, are appropriated to the support of the poor. There is a school here for the teaching and clothing of thirty boys, which is supported partly by endowment and partly by subscription. In 1841, Mr. Walker gave £1,000 stock, the interest of which is partly devoted to the sustenance of this school, and partly to that of two Sunday schools, one of which is connected with the Established Church, and the other is conducted by Dissenters. Bicester is within the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who hold the petty sessions for the division of Ploughley here. — The living (St. Edburgh), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £16: pres. net income, £231: patron, Lady Page Turner: pres. incumbent, J. W. Watts, 1843: contains 2,580 acres: 565 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,022: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,475: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,263: poor rates in 1837, £1,908. —Market day, Friday. Fairs: April, May, first Friday in June, Aug. 5, Dec. 17, for horses, cows, sheep, pigs, wool, &c., and on the Friday after Old Michaelmas and Oct. 10, for hiring servants. Races, September. —Bankers, Messrs. Tubb—draw on Masterman & Co. —King's Arms, and the Crown Inn. —Bicester House, the residence of the ancient family of the Cokers, whose ancestors, for three centuries, have been buried in Bicester church, where there are many monuments to their memory. —Middleton Park, the seat of the Earl of Jersey.

BICKENHALL, SOMERSEX, a parochial chapelry in the division of Ilminster, hun<sup>d</sup> of Abdick and Bulstone: 170 miles from London (coach road 140), 7 from Taunton, 7 from Ilminster. —Gt. West. Rail. to Taunton, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, &c., 183 miles. —Money orders issued at Taunton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy, subordinate to the rectory of Staple-Fitspaine: contains 1,090 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 264: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 303: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,067: poor rates in 1837, £89. The great and small tithes of Bickenhall and Diddington, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1818.

BICKENHILL (CHURCH), WARWICK, a parish in the Solihull division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, union of Meriden, including the quarters of Lyndon and Marston: 106 miles from London (coach road 101), 10 from Birmingham, 4 from Solihull. —Nor. West. Rail. through Coventry to Hampton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Hampton, &c., 30 miles. —Money orders issued at Solihull: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7. 17s. 3d.: pres. net income, £222: patron, Earl of Aylesford: pres. incumbent, C. T. Elers, 1823: contains 3,810 acres: 143 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 774: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 890: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,844: poor rates in 1837, £428. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1818. —N.W. ¼ m. is Hockington Park.

BICKER, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Kirton, parts of Holland, union of Boston: 111 miles from London, 1 from Donnington, 8 from Boston. —(For access, &c., see DONNINGTON.) —A school here has a small endowment. —The living (St. Swithin), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £560: patron, Dean and Chapter of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, F. Apthorp, 1803: contains 3,720 acres: 156 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 820: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 943: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,550: poor rates in 1837, £397. The great and small tithes, the property of the dean and chapter of Lincoln, and the vicar, were commuted in 1766.

BICKERSTAFFE, LANCASHIRE, a township in the parish of Ormskirk, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby: 224 miles from London (coach road 206), 3 from Ormskirk, 9 from Wigan. —East Lancashire Rail. through Liverpool to Town Green station, Aughton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Birkenhead to Liverpool, &c., 114 miles. —Money orders issued at Ormskirk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —Contains 5,860 acres: 214 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,505: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,731: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,776: poor rates in 1837, £457. —N.W. 1 m. is Moor Hall, Aughton, the seat of John Rosson, Esq.

BICKERTON, YORK, a township in the parish of Bilton, ainstey of the city of York: 200 miles from London (coach road 196), 4 from Wetherby, 12 from York. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Wetherby, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Wetherby, &c., 88 miles. Money orders issued at Wetherby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —Contains 1,080 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 172: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 197: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £915: poor rates in 1848, £117 12s. 4d.

BICKERTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Malpas, hun<sup>d</sup> of Broxton: 183 miles from London (coach road 168), 4 from Malpas, 15 from Chester. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Crewe to Beeston station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Crewe, &c., 74 miles. —Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £120: patrons, the Rectors of Malpas: pres. incumbent, Henry Wigfield, 1840: contains 1,780 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 401: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 462: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,702: poor rates in 1837, £140.

BICKERTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Rothbury, western division of Coquetdale ward: 301 miles from London, 16 from Alnwick, 15 from Morpeth. —(For access, &c., see ROTHBURY.) —Contains 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 30: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 35: poor rates in 1837, £13.

BICKINGTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and division of Teignbridge, union of Bickington: 218 miles from London (coach road 189), 4 from Ashburton, 13 from Torquay. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter, to Newton station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Bristol and Exeter, &c., 234 miles. —Money orders issued at Ashburton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy annexed to the vicarage of Ashburton: contains 1,220 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 374: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 430: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,516: poor rates in 1837, £190.

BICKINGTON-ABBOTS. See ABBOTS-BICKINGTON, DEVON.

BICKINGTON (HIGH), DEVON, a parish in the South Molton division, hun<sup>d</sup> of North Tawton with Winkley: 211 miles from London (coach road 201), 7 from Great Torrington, 9 from South Molton. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Tiverton, thence 27 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 224 miles. —Money orders issued at South Molton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — There are two schools here with small endowments. A Baptist congregation was formed here in 1834. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £29. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £475: patron, W. M. Stowell, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. P. Stowell, 1808: contains 390 acres: 142 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 895: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,029: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,854: poor rates in 1837, £285.

BICKLEIGH, DEVON, a parish in the Collumpton division, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hayridge, union of Tiverton, intersected by the river Exe, which is here joined by the Dart, and crossed by a bridge near its confluence: 188 miles from London (coach road 166), 4 from Tiverton, 9 from Crediton. — Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 201 miles. — Money orders issued at Tiverton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The church has, within these few years, been renovated with considerable judgment. The parochial charities produce about £25 a year. The celebrated Bamfylde Moore Carew was the son of a rector of this parish. He was sent to school at Tiverton, but being captivated by the roving life of a gang of gipsies who visited the neighbourhood, he deserted school, joined them, and was ultimately made king of the fraternity. After his many wanderings, he returned to his native parish, and died there in 1758. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £18. 4s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £420: patron, Sir W. P. Carew: pres. incumbent, T. Carew, 1826: contains 1,690 acres: 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 362: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 416: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,487: poor rates in 1837, £123.

BICKLEIGH, DEVON, a parish in the division and hun<sup>d</sup>. of Roborough, union of Plympton St. Mary: 248 miles from London (coach road 219), 6 from Plymouth, 8 from Tavistock. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Plympton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Plympton, &c., 263 miles. — Money orders issued at Plymouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £11. 7s. 4d.: pres. net income, £253: patron, Sir R. Lopez, Bart.: pres. incumbent, J. Duncan Cork, 1848: contains 2,980 acres: 69 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 469: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 539: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,281: poor rates in 1837, £75. — 8, Bickleigh House.

BICKLEY, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Malpas, higher division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Broxton: 185 miles from London (coach road 169), 5 from Whitchurch, 9 from Nantwich. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Calverley, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 76 miles. — Money orders issued at Whitchurch: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — There are three daily schools here, supported by the Marquis of Cholmondeley, to one of which there is a lending library attached. A remarkable circumstance occurred here on the 18th of June, in 1657. A piece of elevated ground, of more than an acre and a quarter in extent, which was covered with full-grown trees, suddenly sank, with a thundering noise, so far below the level of that around it, that not even the tops of the trees could be seen from the surface, being immersed in water. Since then the water has dried up, and in the chasm, called, from the circumstance having occurred on the Burrel farm, the Burrel chasm, no water is visible. — Contains 2,200 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 518: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 596: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,064: poor rates in 1837, £171.

BICKMERSH AND LITTLE DORSINGTON, WARWICK, a hamlet in the parish of Welford, Stratford division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Barlichway— (which see for access, &c.): 102 miles from London, 8 from Stratford, 6 from Alcester. — Money orders issued at Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 1,340 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 74: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 85.

BICKNOLLER, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Williton and Freemanors, Bishop Lydeard division, union of Williton: 165 miles from London (coach road 153), 14 from Taunton, 14 from Bridgewater. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, &c., 179 miles. — Money orders issued at Taunton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Near the church there are the remains known as Trendle's castle, and Turk's castle, but tradition seems to be silent as to their origin. Several Roman coins have been found at intervals in the neighbourhood. — The living, a vicarage in the diocese of Bath and Wells: pres. net income, £124: patron, Dean and Chapter of Wells: pres. incumbent, W. Phelps, 1811: contains 1,360 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 345: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 396: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,081: poor rates in 1837, £94.

BICKNOR (CHURCH), (anciently written BYKNORRE), KENT, a parish in the upper half hun<sup>d</sup>. of Eythorne, lathe of Aylesford, union of Hollingbourn: 47 miles from London (coach road 42), 5 from Sittingbourn, 8 from Maidstone. — Sou. East. Rail. through Gravesend to Rochester, thence 12 miles: from Dorby, through London, &c., 179 miles. — Money orders issued at Sittingbourn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The church is ancient and interesting. The parish formerly belonged to a family of the same name. — The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £5. 10s.: pres. net income, £130: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, E. S. Ireland, 1841: contains 620 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 46: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 53: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £541: poor rates in 1849, £50.

BICKNOR (ENGLISH), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of St. Briavells, union of Monmouth: 121 miles from London (coach road 124), 4 from Coleford, 8 from Ross. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 121 miles. — Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — The church stands within the fosse of an ancient fortification, and beyond it there is a jutting promontory, round which the river winds very beautifully. The neighbourhood of the village is distinguished for its fine orchards, and large quantities of cider are made from their produce. The parochial charities produce between £10 and £11 a year. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocesa<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Queen's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, John Burdon, 1844: contains 2,440 acres: 117 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 576: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 662: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,081: poor rates in 1837, £179.

BICKNOR (WELSH), MONMOUTH, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Skenfreth, union of Monmouth: 123 miles from London, 7 from Ross, 5 from Colford. (For access, &c., see preceding article.) Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. There is a recumbent stone figure in the church, which is reputed to represent the Countess of Salisbury, who nursed Henry V. at Courtfield House, a mansion about half a mile distant. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, now in the diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £169: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, John Seager, 1808: contains 960 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 74: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 85: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £284: poor rates in 1837, £59.

BICKTON, SALOP, a chapelry in the parish of St. Chad, within the liberty of the borough of Shrewsbury—(which see for access, &c.): 156 miles from London, 3 from Shrewsbury, 6 from Great Ness. Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £20. 4s.: pres. net income, £60: patron, Vicar of St. Chad: pres. incumbent, H. Sandford, 1817.

BICTON, DEVON, a parish in the division of Woodbury, hun<sup>d</sup> of East Budleigh, union of St. Thomas, including a portion of the tithing of Rawleigh: 207 miles from London (coach road 163), 4 from Sidmouth, 6 from Exmouth. Gt. West. Rail. to Exeter, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 220 miles. Money orders issued at Sidmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living (Holy Trinity), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £12. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £250: patron, Heirs of Lord Rolle: pres. incumbent, G. H. Kempe, M.A., 1845: contains 1,180 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 198: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 215: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,966: poor rates in 1837, £126. Bicton House is the residence of Lady Rolle, the widow of the late Lord Rolle, the premier baron of England, but whose title, except in her ladyship, is extinct. A pleasing anecdote is told of his lordship, who, in his capacity of premier baron, ascended the steps of the throne to do homage for his order at the coronation of her present majesty, but from age and infirmity fell down; when the queen, with that natural kindness by which she is distinguished, forgetting the sovereign in the woman, immediately advanced to assist him to rise.

BIDBOROUGH, KENT, a parish and small village in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Washington, lathe of Aylesford, union of Tunbridge: 45 miles from London (coach road 33), 4 from Tunbridge Wells, 2 from Penshurst. Sou. East. Rail. to Tunbridge, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 177 miles. Money orders issued at Tunbridge Wells: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The church is a very ancient building. The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, now in the diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £5. 4s. 4d.: pres. net income, £227: patron, J. Deacon, Esq., Mabledon Park: pres. incumbent, Charles Bigsby, A.M., 1847: contains 1,360 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 260: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 299: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £991: poor rates in 1837, £200. N. 1½ m. Penshurst Park; 2 m. Penshurst Place, the residence of Lord de Lisle—(for which see PENSHURST); Bounds Park, the residence of the Rev. Sir Charles Hardinge, Bart.; the Villa, the residence of Henry Chippendale, Esq.; the Rectory.

BIDDENDEN, KENT, a parish forming the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barclay, in the lathe of Scray, union of Tenterden: 60 miles from London (coach road 52), 6 from Cranbrook, 4 from Tenterden. Sou. East. Rail. to Headrow station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 192 miles. Money orders issued at Cranbrook: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. A school here has been endowed with a rent charge of £20. 3s. 4d., by Mr. John Mayne. The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £35: pres. net income, £436: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, James Boys, 1841: contains 7,110 acres: 223 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,486: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,709: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,356: poor rates in 1837, £1,073. Fair, 8th November, for cattle and horses.

BIDDENHAM, BEDFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Willey, union of Bedford: 65 miles from London (coach road 52), 2 from Bedford, 9 from Amptill. Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bedford, &c., 105 miles. Money orders issued at Bedford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The parochial charities produce about £15 a year. The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £100: patron, Hon. G. R. Trevor: pres. incumbent, T. S. Grimshawe, 1808: contains 1,760 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 345: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 397: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,933: poor rates in 1837, £158. N.W. 1 m. Bromham Hall—(for which see BROMHAM).

BIDDESCOTE, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Tamworth, southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Offlow: ½ mile from Tamworth—(which see for access, &c.) Money orders issued at Tamworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Contains 350 acres: 2 houses.

BIDDESHAM, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bempstone, union of Axbridge, intersected by the river Axe: 145 miles from London (coach road 133), 3 from Axbridge, 8 from Weston. Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 159 miles. Money orders issued at Wills Somerset: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.:

post closes 4½ p.m.---The living, a rectory in the diocese of Bath and Wells: pres. net income, £152: patron, Bishop of Bath and Wells: pres. incumbent, Charles Taylor, 1831: contains 510 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 145: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 167: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,756: poor rates in 1837, £88.

BIDDESTONE (St. NICHOLAS and St. PETER), WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Chippenham: 98 miles from London (coach road 97), 4 from Chippenham, 11 from Bath.---Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, and Bristol, to Chippenham, &c., 158 miles.---Money orders issued at Chippenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---There is a monument in the church to Edmund Smith, the translator of Longinus, and the author of the tragedy of Phædra and Hippolytus. Lady James left property, which produces £17 a year, which is spent in clothes and coals, distributed to the poor at Christmas. £8 a year were also left by Mr. W. Little, to be distributed to the most deserving of the poor at the same season.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, composed of the united rectories of St. Nicholas and St. Peter, with the perpetual curacy of Slaughtertford, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £2. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £102: patron, Winchester College: pres. incumbent, A. Quicke, 1832: contains 2,530 acres: 93 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 452: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 519: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,435: poor rates in 1837, £92.---N., Gildes Hall.

BIDDICK (South), DURHAM, a township in the parish of Houghton-le-Spring, Eastington ward: 291 miles from London, 6 from Sunderland.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Pensher station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Sheffield, York, &c., 169 miles.---Money orders issued at Sunderland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 280 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 229: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 263: poor rates in 1837, £241.---S., Biddick Hall.---W. ¼ m. Lambton Castle, the residence of the Earl of Durham. The castle is a modern building of considerable extent, erected by Bononi, but displays much architectural incongruity. The interior is superbly furnished, and there are some good pictures. The grounds are delightfully laid out, and the ride through the hanging wood on the south bank of the Wear is particularly beautiful. There is a tradition in the neighbourhood, which is countenanced by the fact that a conical eminence in the neighbourhood is called Worm Hill, that an enormous worm or serpent infested the river near this spot, destroying many of the inhabitants and their cattle, but which was itself at last put an end to by one of the Lambton family, who wore, in the encounter with it, a coat covered with razor blades, and by their means, in the conflict with it, cut it to pieces. The estate was anciently the property of the D'Arcys, who conveyed it to the Hedworths, the last male representative of whom died in 1688, leaving two daughters, co-heiresses; one of them married Ralph Lambton, Esq., a younger branch of the family of Lambtons of Lambton Hall, by whom the whole of the property was subsequently acquired by purchase, and in whose family it has ever since remained. Surtees, in his history of the county of Durham, in speaking of Lambton, says—No earlier owners of Lambton are on record than the ancient and honourable family which still bears the local name. The regular pedigree can only be traced from the twelfth century, many of the family records being destroyed in the civil wars; but the previous residence of the family is well proved by attestations of charters and incidental evidence, from a period very nearly approaching the Norman Conquest. The earliest member of it of which we have any record, was Robert de Lambton, feudal lord of Lambton Castle in 1360; and from him was lineally descended, in the eighth generation, John Lambton, Esq., who married a niece of Lord Lumley, and great-great-grand-daughter of Edward IV. His son, Robert Lambton, married Frances, a sister of Lord Ewro, and the ninth in descent from Lionel Duke of Clarence, second son of Edward III. The grandson and great-grandchildren of that gentleman distinguished themselves greatly in the royal cause, two if not three of them falling in the field of battle in behalf of Charles I. It was in 1696 that Ralph Lambton, Esq., married Dorothy, daughter and heir-general of John Hedworth, Esq. of Harriton, and sole representative of the families of Harriton and D'Arcy. At his decease in 1717, his estates passed to his brother, John Lambton, a major-general in the army, who represented Durham in six parliaments, and of that gentleman the late earl was the grandson. John George Lambton, Esq., who was only five years old at the time of his father's death, came into the possession of a large property, including some very valuable coal mines. He entered early into life, and by his wealth, abilities, and high standing, soon acquired a position of great distinction among the Whig party. On the 29th of January, 1828, he was elevated to the peerage by the title of Lord Durham, and, in 1833, advanced to the dignity of Viscount Lambton and Earl of Durham. His lordship for some time acted as ambassador at the court of St. Petersburg, and was Lord Privy Seal from 1830 to 1833, when he went as governor-general of the two Canadas. Besides being a G.C.B., his lordship was a knight of several foreign orders, was a privy councillor, and high steward of Hull. His lordship died in 1840, when he was succeeded in the title and estates by the present earl.

BIDDLESDEN (or BITLESDEN), BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the second division of the three hundreds of Buckingham: 65 miles from London (coach road 62), 4 from Brackley, 7 from Buckingham.---Nor. West. Rail. to Bletchley, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bletchley, &c., 103 miles.---Money orders issued at Brackley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Tanner, in speaking of Biddlesden, says—Ernauld de Bosco, steward to Robert Earl of Leicester, gave this village to the Cistercian monks of Gerondon, to the intent that an abbey of the same order might be founded here, which was accordingly begun A.D. 1147. It was dedicated to St. Mary and St. Nicholas, and had, at the dissolution, annual revenues rated at £143. 1s. 3d. There belonged to this house eleven monks and fifty-one servants. The site passed from the crown in the 32d year of Henry VIII., to Thomas Wriothesley. And Willis, in his 'History of Buckinghamshire,' states that—On the destruction of the abbey, the parishioners resorted to a small chapel adjoining to a dwelling-house; this was a little tiled fabric, and had a bell in a turret. I presume it was sometimes made use of in the time of the abbey by the parishioners, especially on common days. It was, as appears by old deeds, dedicated to St. Margaret, on whose festival there was a fair granted to the convent, in 1315, the 8th of Edward II., and also a Monday market. Adjoining Biddlesden House there is a modern chapel.—The living (St. Margaret), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £6. 8s.: pres. net income, £69: patron, G. Morgan, Esq.: contains 1,630 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 169: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 194: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,119: poor rates in 1837, £49.—Biddlesden Park is the seat of George Morgan, Esq. Mr. Morgan is a magistrate for the counties of Buckingham, Oxford, Northampton, and Carmarthen, and a deputy-lieutenant of the counties of Buckingham, Northampton, and Carmarthen; and has another seat, called Abercothy, in Wales. He served the office of high sheriff for Buckinghamshire in 1826.

BIDDLESTONE (or BIDDLESTON), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Allenton, western division of Coquetdale ward: 358 miles from London (coach road 312), 16 from Alnwick, 9 from Rothbury.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Leebury, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through York, Newcastle, &c., 226 miles.—Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 7 p.m.—There is a Roman Catholic chapel here.—Contains 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 179: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 205: poor rates in 1837, £27.—S. is Biddlestone House, the residence of Walter Selby, Esq. Biddlestone has long been the seat of the ancient and honourable Roman Catholic family of Selby. The estate originally belonged to the Vissards; but a grant was made of it to Sir Walter Selby in the time of Edward I., 'pro bono et laudabili servito.' This grant is still in existence, and is the main means of the family for tracing their pedigree, as a fire which occurred at Allenton, the place where they usually resided, destroyed a great number of the family documents; but it is known that they had been seated in Northumberland time out of mind, and at a very early period the barony and manor of Penderleth, on the Scottish border, was possessed by them. One of Sir Walter's successors, also named Walter, was governor of Liddell Castle in the time of Edward III., when it was besieged by David King of Scotland, who was so enraged at the stout resistance which had been made, that, as soon as he got possession of it, he ordered the governor's head to be struck off. In the time of Richard II., Biddlestone was held by James de Selby, whose younger son, Ralph, was a man very distinguished in his time. He was a monk, one of the barons of the exchequer, and very highly esteemed both by Henry IV. and Henry V., to both of whom he was a privy councillor. He was buried in Westminster Abbey, and the following inscription was placed upon his tombstone: it deserves transcription, as well from its expressiveness as from its combination of happy rhythm and Latin quantity:—

"Ece Radulphus ita Selby hic cenobita,
Doctor per merita, prepotens lege perita
Legibus ornatus a regibus et veneratus
Ordo ejusque status per eum fit conciliatus.
M. C. quater X. bis post partum virginis iste, Michaelis festo tibi spiravit bone Christe."

Through the long series of ages which has elapsed since then, the family of Mr. Selby has always held a distinguished position in the county. Mr. Selby succeeded to the property on the death of his father in 1833, by whom the mansion, which is of stone, and large and commodious, was erected.

BIDDULPH, STAFFORD, a parish in the northern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill, union of Congleton: 191 miles from London (coach road 160), 5 from Congleton, 7 from Newcastle.—Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester and Burton to Astbury, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Newcastle-under-Line to Astbury, &c., 54 miles.—Money orders issued at Congleton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—The parochial charities now produce about £5 a year, but several of greater value have been lost. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in collieries, ironworks, potteries, and cotton manufactories. There is a curious relic of antiquity in the parish, called the 'Bredstones;' it consists of eight large upright stones, six of which are placed in a circle enclosing the other two.—The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £4. 9s. 8d.: pres. net income, £122: patron, J. Bateman, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. H. Holt: contains 5,630 acres: 364 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,314: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,661: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,390: poor rates in 1837, £387.

BIDEFORD, DEVON, a seaport, incorporated market town, and parish, in the division of Great Torrington, hund<sup>d</sup> of Shebbear, union of Bideford, but possessing separate jurisdiction: 224 miles from London (coach road 201), 9 from Barnstaple.—Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 40 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, and Bristol, to Tiverton, &c., 237 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2.40 p.m.—The name of Bideford is derived from an ancient ford over the Torridge, By-the-ford being very easily changed into Bideford. From the very earliest times it was called a borough, and in the reigns of Edward I. and II. returned two members to parliament. It was granted, soon after the Conquest, to Sir Richard de Grandavilla, a Norman knight, in the possession of whose posterity it remained for upwards of six centuries; but, on the death of William Henry Granville, third Earl of Bath, who died unmarried, the property was divided among his co-heirs, and the manor of Bideford was purchased by John Cleveland, Esq., with whose family it still remains. In 1271, a grant of a market and fair was obtained for the town, and in 1583 it was made a free borough and an incorporated town, by a charter of Queen Elizabeth, soon after which it began to rise into importance, and to participate largely in the Newfoundland and general American trade. During the civil war between Charles I. and the Parliament, Bideford declared for the latter, and forts were erected on the banks of the Torridge, to command the river and the access to the town on both sides; but the inhabitants having, with those of Barnstaple, marched out to relieve Exeter, which city was then besieged by the royalists, they were met at Torrington by Colonel Digby, by whom they were severely defeated. The colonel then moved forward, and after a brief siege took both the town and the forts, treating the inhabitants with much consideration and forbearance. In 1646, the plague raged here to a terrible extent; the mayor and a great portion of the inhabitants fled, but a noble-minded gentleman, named Strange, remained with the rest of his fellow-townsmen, took upon himself the office of chief magistrate, and, in every way that prudence and skill could devise, contributed to their welfare, until he himself fell a victim to the disorder. There is a monument to his memory in the church, which is said to have been put up by the master of a trading vessel, in gratitude for relief given to him by Mr. Strange, after a disastrous shipwreck. In 1680, Bideford was again visited by the plague, supposed to have been brought by some bales of Spanish wool, which were unloaded on the quay. The weaving of silk was introduced here by some French emigrants, and carried to great perfection, shortly after the revocation of the edict of Nantes; but the trade of the town was chiefly enhanced in value by the opening of its foreign commerce to the south and west, the importations of wool and tobacco into this port for a considerable time being scarcely inferior to those of London itself. The editors of 'Lyson's Magna Britannia,' writing in 1737, say of Bideford—This is now one of the best trading towns in England, sending every year great fleets to Newfoundland and the West Indies, and particularly to Virginia. It has almost drawn away the trade of Barnstaple to itself; and though the merchants here were great losers by the late wars, yet they still keep up a thriving trade, and the customs amount to considerable sums yearly, for the management of which, his majesty keeps here a collector, comptroller, customer, searchers, waiters, and other inferior officers. And there is still a large business done here, the port including within its jurisdiction the harbours of Clovelly, Appledore, and Hartland. The principal part of the town is built on a steep acclivity on the western bank of the Torridge, and the remainder at the bottom of the heights on the opposite side of the river, the two portions being connected by a noble stone bridge of 24 arches, and as much as 677 feet in length. It was built in the 14th century by public subscriptions, aided greatly by the exertions of Sir Theobald Granville, and Grandison, Bishop of Exeter, the latter of whom granted indulgences to such persons as should supply any thing to the fund. The bridge was thoroughly repaired in 1683, and seems still likely to last for centuries. It is endowed with certain lands, which produce on an average about £400 a year. The streets are generally paved, and partly lighted, and a great improvement in the appearance of the town has been made by the building of many handsome houses by the resident West India merchants. The trade of the place now consists chiefly in sails, cordage, and all similar marine stores; fruit, oak-bark, corn, flour, and earthenware, are among the exports; and coal from Bristol and Wales, and American and Baltic timber among the imports. The quay is very conveniently placed, being nearly in the centre of the town, and has water sufficient to admit vessels of 500 tons burthen by its side, except at ebb tide, the Torridge having a tidal wave of nearly eighteen feet in strong water. In full tides, therefore, ships of 300 tons can proceed as far as the bridge, while vessels of smaller burden can sail considerably farther, and enter the Torrington Canal, through a sea-lock, at the distance of two and a half miles. The quay duties are the property of the lord of the manor. The number of vessels belonging to the port is about 120, of, in the aggregate, about 10,000 tons burthen; they chiefly trade to Ireland, Wales, and North America. The dockyards here are numerous and rather extensive, and fitted chiefly for building vessels of moderate size. There is a culm mine east of the river, from which large quantities have been raised from time immemorial. By the Municipal Reform Act, the government of the town is vested in a mayor, four aldermen, and twelve councillors. There was formerly a civil court here for plaints and actions, but it has fallen out of custom. There is still, however, a quarter-sessions held, at which the mayor presides as a justice of the peace; and a court of petty sessions is held weekly, by adjournment from Buckland-Brewer, for the division of Great Torrington. The property of the corporation does not produce more than £50 a year. The town-hall is a substantial structure; it was erected in 1698. The gaol is part of the parish workhouse; it contains six cells. The union workhouse was erected by the poor-law commissioners for 200 inmates, at a cost of £3,645. The Bideford union comprehends eighteen parishes, in an area of nearly 122 square miles, and has a population of about 20,000 persons. The Independents, Baptists, and Wesleyan Methodists have chapels here. A free grammar-school has existed here from remote ages: in 1689 it was endowed with £56 a year by Mrs. Stuckley, and some time afterwards a good house was bought for the master. It was originally intended to have ten boys on the foundation, but of late years only three have been nominated by the corporation. The National School Society, and the British and Foreign School Society, have each large seminaries here, and the trustees for the Bridge estate also support a school, and besides these the educational institutions are numerous. Almshouses for seven poor families were erected, in 1646, by Mr. John Strange, and in 1663, Mr. Amory bequeathed funds for the erection of an hospital for twelve poor families. Besides these, there is a considerable fund, left in 1810 by Mrs. Margaret Newcomen, for the relief of distressed dissenters. The other parochial charities produce about £25 a year. Bideford was the birth-place of Dr. Shebbeare, a political writer, born in 1709, very celebrated in his day, who, after suffering imprisonment and the pillory two or three times for his attacks on the ministry of George II., was pensioned with £200 a year by the government of his grandson, George III. On Northam-Burrows, about a mile and a half above Bideford, there is a beach of pebbles of nearly three miles in length, and of very considerable breadth and depth; it is supposed to have been thrown up by the sea. About two miles down the river, near a point, there is a large stone, called Hubblestone, which covers a cave, supposed to be the burial place of Hubba, a noted Danish leader, who was slain by the British in the time of King Alfred, while attacking Kenwith Castle. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £27. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £633: patron, L. W. Buck, Esq. M.P.: pres. incumbent, R. H. K. Buck, 1844: contains 4,510 acres: 916 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,211: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,993: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £9,312: poor rates in 1837, £2,202. — Market days, Tuesday and Saturday. Fairs, 14th February, 18th July, and 13th November, for cattle. — Moreton, the residence of L. W. Buck, Esq., M.P. Mr. Buck, whose principal seats are Moreton and Hartland Abbey, is the descendant of an ancient Irish family, one of whom settled in Devonshire towards the end of the 17th century. His mother was a sister of Admiral Sir Richard Keats. Mr. Buck has been high sheriff of the county, and is now a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for the northern division. — Ford, the residence of Capt. Pyke, R.N.—N., Rowleigh; S., Doddon Hall.

BIDFORD (or BRIDFORD), WARWICK, a parish in the Stratford division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barlichway, union of Alcester: the parish contains the hamlets of Barton-Broom and Marcliff: 112 miles from London (coach road 102), 4 from Alcester, 4 from Stratford. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Stratford-upon-Avon, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Hampton station, 51½, thence 24 miles. — Money orders issued at Stratford-upon-Avon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £213: patron, Sir G. Skipwith, Bart.: pres. incumbent, T. Boulthée, 1830: contains 3,240 acres: 267 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,567: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,802: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £4,161: poor rates in 1837, £440. The impropriate and vicarial tithes, the property of the lord of the manor and the vicar, were commuted in 1766. — Fairs, 11th April, and 10th September.

BIDSTONE, CHESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirrall, union of Wirrall, on the western bank of the river Mersey: it comprises the chapelry of Birkenhead, and the townships of Bidstone with Ford, Claughton with Grange, Moreton, and Saughall-Massey: 203 miles from London (coach road 202), 10 from Great Neston, 4 from Liverpool. — Nor. West. Rail. through Chester to Birkenhead, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe and Chester, &c., 98 miles. — Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — On an elevation in this parish there is a lighthouse, which belongs to the corporation of Liverpool, having been purchased by them in 1762, under the authority of an act of parliament. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £21: pres. net income, £98: patron, B. Keene, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Gate, 1819: contains 5,160 acres: 523 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,013: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,165: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £7,145: poor rates in 1837, £875.

BIDSTONE, CHESTER, a township in the above parish. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — Contains 1,620 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 288: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 331: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,218: poor rates in 1837, £41.

BIERLEY (NORTH), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Bradford, wapentake of Morley: 221 miles from London (coach road 194), 3 from Bradford, 9 from Leeds. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Bradford, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Leeds, &c., 89 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m. and 8½ a.m.: post closes 5.10 p.m. and 7½ p.m. — Upwards of 800 men are employed in this parish in mines, quarries, and coal pits. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of York, and diocese of Ripon: pres. net income, £130: patron, Miss Currier: pres. incumbent, John Barber, 1839: contains 3,090 acres: 1,849 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 9,512: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,939: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £6,428: poor rates in 1837, £1,557.

BIERTON-WITH-BROUGHTON, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Aylesbury: 45½ miles from London (coach road 40), 2 from Aylesbury, 11 from Leighton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Aylesbury, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Cheddington, &c., 105 miles. — Money orders issued at Aylesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — A gentleman named Hill, in 1723, gave property for a fund for clothing poor men, and educating and apprenticing young persons. The other parochial charities produce about £40 a year. — The living (St. James), a vicarage, to which the curacies of Stoke-Mandeville, Buckland, and Quarendon are annexed, formerly in the diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £20. 10s.: pres. net income, £272: patron, Dean and Chapter of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, W. Apthorp, 1834: contains 2,470 acres: 123 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 605: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 696: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £3,469: poor rates in 1837, £456. The great and small tithes, the property of the dean and chapter of Lincoln, the prebend of Aylesbury, and the vicar, were commuted in 1779.

BIGBURY, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Exmington, union of Kingsbridge, bounded by the river Avon on the east, which here falls into the bay of Bigbury: 240 miles from London (coach road 213), 4 from Modbury, 14 from Plymouth. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Wrangerton, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse to Wrangerton, &c., 256 miles. — Money orders issued at Ermebridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The living (St. Lawrence), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £28. 7s. 11d.: pres. net income, £658: patron, — Livingston: pres. incumbent, T. Livingston, 1822: contains 4,160 acres: 109 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 652: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 749: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £4,147: poor rates in 1837, £402.

BIGBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor: 193 miles from London (coach road 160), 4 from Glandford Bridge, 14 from Market Raisin. --- East Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Lincoln to Glandford Bridge, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Glandford, &c., 77 miles. --- Money orders issued at Brigg: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. --- The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 10s. 10d.: pres. net. income, £708: patron, R. C. Elwea, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. J. Barnard, 1833: contains 1,040 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 245: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 282: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,810: poor rates in 1837, £89.

BIGGES (or CARLISLE'S-QUARTER), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Long-Horley, division of Morpeth ward: 326 miles from London (coach road 297), 6 from Morpeth, 12 from Alnwick. --- Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Morpeth, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, York, Newcastle, &c., 194 miles. --- Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. --- An endowment of about £4 a year has been lost to the school here since 1819, owing to the will of the late trustee, Walter Traveley, Esq. of Netherwitton, never having been proved at Doctors' Commons. --- Contains 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 274: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 315: poor rates in 1837, £155.

BIGGIN, DERBY, a township in the parish of Wirksworth, hun<sup>d</sup> of Appletree: 147½ miles from London (coach road 138), 6 from Ashbourne, 12 from Derby. --- Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Belper, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Belper, &c., 15½ miles. --- Money orders issued at Ashbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. --- The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Lichfield: pres. net income, £40: patron, Vicar of Hartington: pres. incumbent, Thomas Booth, 1847: contains 440 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 475: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 650: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £745: poor rates in 1837, £97.

BIGGIN. See NEWTON-BIGGIN.

BIGGIN, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township partly in the parish of Kirk-Penton, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Barkstone-Ash: 214 miles from London, (coach road 186), 6 from Selby, 6 from Tadcaster. --- Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Sheffield, to Sherburn station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 82 miles. --- Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. --- The teasle plant (Dipsacus fullonum) was first reared here in England for the use of fullers. --- Contains 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 162: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 186: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,727.

BIGGLESWADE, BEDFORD, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Biggleswade: this parish includes the hamlets of Stratton and Holme: 75 miles from London (coach road 45), 8 from Baldock. --- Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 10½ miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bedford, &c., 114 miles. --- Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. --- Biggleswade is pleasantly situated on the river Ivel, which has, within these few years, been made navigable as far as its junction with the Ouse, under the authority of an act of parliament, by which the trade of the town has been very much increased. The houses are generally of comfortable and highly respectable appearance, though, since the system of coach travelling was superseded by railways, the place has not been so cheerful, as it stands on the great north road, and seldom an hour of the day passed without one rattling through its streets. Much of its present aspect is to be ascribed to a fire which occurred in 1785, and which consumed upwards of 150 dwelling-houses, besides malt-kilns, granaries, and other depositories of agricultural produce. The church is a substantial and pleasing structure, erected as early as the year 1230, though the chancel is said to have been rebuilt by John Reeding, archdeacon of Bedford, in 1467. It was formerly collegiate. The pews in it are the equal right of all the inhabitants, who, in return for the privilege, are required to keep the fabric in repair. A considerable portion of the female population derive their subsistence from the manufacture of thread-lace and straw-plait, but the great business of the place is agriculture. At one time the market for all kinds of produce was very largely attended, but it has of late years greatly declined, the farmers having been drawn off to the larger towns of Bedford, Hitchin, and St. Neot's, partly by the improvement of the roads, and partly by the substitution of the plan of selling by sample for that of selling in bulk. The Baptists and Wesleyan Methodists each have chapels here. There is a charity school, endowed with two-ninths of the rental of lands at Flitwick, which were purchased by £1,800, left for that purpose, in 1752, by Sir John Cotton; and there is an additional endowment of £13 per annum, arising from other lands at Holme, left by Edward Peake, Esq. Thirty boys are educated on the foundation, the nomination resting in the Crown, which is the lord of the manor. Two-thirds of the rentals arising from Sir John Cotton's bequest are given to the poor, and one-ninth to the vicar of the parish. There are also a National and British and Foreign school here. The other parochial charities produce about £27 a year. The neighbourhood of Biggleswade is open and salubrious, and though the country is flat, there are several very pleasing if not picturesque views in it. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, and the petty sessions for the division of Biggleswade are held here: by the Reform Bill it was constituted one of the polling-places for the county. The poor-law commissioners erected a workhouse here at a cost of £4,850, which is capable of containing 300 inmates. The union comprehends twenty-six parishes, spread over an area of ninety-six square miles, which contains about 19,000 inhabitants. Large tracts of ground in the neighbourhood are occupied by market gardeners, who grow vegetables in great quantities for the London markets. Some Roman remains have been discovered in the neighbourhood, which is very pleasingly dotted by ornamental villas. --- The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage exempt from visitation, being a prebend in the cathedral church of Lincoln, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £300: patron, Prebend thereof: pres. incumbent, J. Dowton, 1841: contains 4,220 acres: 598 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,807: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,378: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £7,504: poor rates in 1837, £1,281. — Market day, Wednesday. Fairs: February 14, Saturday in Easter week, Whitsun-Monday, August 2, November 8, for all kinds of cattle. — Stratton Park is the seat of Charles Barnett, Esq., a nephew of the eminent banker in Lombard Street, and son of the late General Barnett, whom he succeeded in the property in 1804. Mr. Barnett was high sheriff of the county in 1821.

BIGHTON, HAMPS. a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bishop's-Sutton, union of Alresford, Alton (northern) division of the county: 61 miles from London (coach road 55), 2 from Alresford, 12 from Basingstoke. — Sou. West. Rail. through Guildford to Alton, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 193 miles. — Money orders issued at Alresford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — There is a day and Sunday school here, with a lending library attached, formerly supported by the Duchess of Buckingham, whose family possessed a large estate here; but their property, which at one time was more than nine-tenths of the whole parish, was purchased by the Rev. J. T. Maine, who has erected a handsome residence near the village, which he has named Bighton Wood. The school is supported by him and the rector, with a small payment besides from each child. — The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £19. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £310: patron, Duke of Buckingham: pres. incumbent, G. Deane, 1827: contains 1,580 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 287: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 327: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,395: poor rates in 1847—1848, £880. 13s. 3½d.

BIGLANDS AND GAMELSBY, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Aikton, Cumberland ward—(which see for access, &c.): 309 miles from London, 4 from Wigton, 10 from Carlisle. — Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 12 noon. — Contains 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 221: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 254.

BIGNALL-END, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Audley, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Pirehill—(which see for access, &c.): 154 miles from London, 4 from Newcastle, 10 from Nantwich. — Money orders issued at Newcastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The Grand Trunk Canal passes by the village. — Contains 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 497: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 572.

BIGNOR, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bury, rape of Arundel: 81 miles from London (coach road 55), 6 from Petworth, 12 from Chichester. — Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Arundel station, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 213 miles. — Money orders issued at Petworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The church is of the early English style of architecture, with some mixture of the decorated. The electors in that part of Bignor which is surrounded by Easebourn, vote for the member for Midhurst. Some fine tessellated pavements were found in a field in the parish in 1811, which are ascertained to be the remains of a Roman villa, many of the walls, and several of the statues that adorned it, having been found. Bignor was the birth-place of Mrs. Charlotte Smith, a lady who held a high rank among her literary cotemporaries. She was the daughter of Nicholas Turner, Esq. of Bignor Park, and married, at a very early age, a West Indian merchant, an union which led to the most lamentable consequences, and compelled her to depend upon her own exertions for her support. Her poetical compositions and novels were highly praised. She died in 1806 at Tilford, near Fareham. The Roman road passes near the village. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £8. 3s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £143: patron, Colonel Wyndham: pres. incumbent, Henry Sockett, 1848: contains 1,180 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 210: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 241: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £792: poor rates in 1837, £82.

BIKINACRE (or BITACRE), ESSEX, a hamlet partly in the parish of Danbury, and partly in that of Woodham-Ferrers, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Chelmsford—(which see for access, &c.): 33 miles from London, 5 from Chelmsford, 4 from Maldon. — Money orders issued at Chelmsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, says—In that part of this hamlet, which is in the parish of Woodham-Ferrers, was at first an hermitage, and then a priory of black canons, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, built and endowed by Maurice Fitz-Jeffrey of Tiretai, sheriff of Essex, at the charge, for the most part, of King Henry II., who forgave him on this account several sums of money, which he must otherwise have paid into the exchequer out of his bailiwick. This house being almost forsaken, was, about the latter end of the reign of Henry VII., annexed to the hospital of St. Mary without Bishopsgate, London; and, as part of the possessions of that hospital, was granted, after the general dissolution, in the 31st year of Henry VIII., to Henry Polsted.

BILAND-ABBEY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, near the valley of Rydale. — This was formerly the lordship of Roger de Mowbray, who founded a monastery here, which, from the beauty of its situation, was called La Belle Land.

BILBANK, CUMBERLAND. See BELRANK.

BILBOROUGH, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Broxtow, union of Basford: 134 miles from London (coach road 129), 5 from Nottingham, 13 from Derby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Beeston station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Beeston, &c., 17 miles. — Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The hamlet of Broxtow, in this parish, was once of considerable importance, and gave its name to the hundred. There are some coal works here. — The living (St. Martin), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Nottingham, diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £3. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £273: patron, T. W. Edge, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. T. Hobson, 1842: contains 1,090

acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 267: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 307: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,475: poor rates in 1837, £126.---N. 1 m. Strelley Hall—(for which see STRELLEY).---S. 1 m. Wollaton Hall, the mansion of Lord Middleton—(for which see WOLLATON.)

BILBROUGH, YORK, a parish in the lower division of the ainstey of the city: 215 miles from London (coach road 193), 4 from Tadcaster, 6 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Sheffield, to Tadcaster, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 83 miles.---Money orders issued at Tadcaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---There is a day and Sunday school, partly supported by Lady Hewley's charity of £4, and partly by two annual donations of £5. 5s. from the Rev. B. Edmonson, and of £10 from T. L. Fairfax, Esq., the patron of the living, who owns considerable property in the neighbourhood, and whose principal residence is Gilling Castle, about twenty miles northward. The other parochial charities produce about £8. 10s. a year. The church contains the remains of Thomas Lord Fairfax, the celebrated commander-in-chief of the parliamentary troops during the civil war. Sir Thomas Fairfax—for his military renown was achieved before he attained the peerage—was the eldest son of Lord Fairfax, and, when the troubles broke out between the king and the parliament, prepared with his father to take part heartily with the latter. He was soon intrusted with a high command under the Earl of Essex; and although he suffered some reverses in the earlier part of the contest, in his conflicts with the royalists, he always retained the reputation of a good soldier; and when Essex retired from the army, he was placed at the head of it. He won the battle at Marston Moor, overthrew the king's forces at the fatal battle of Naseby, reduced the whole of the western counties to obedience, and compelled Colchester to surrender. But the object he had in view having been obtained, he strongly opposed the execution of the king, resigned the command of the army, and retired into private life, it is believed an object of very considerable jealousy to Cromwell. When the national voice again called back the sovereign, he went over to Holland to congratulate Charles II. upon his accession to the throne—was well received, and finally reconciled to that monarch. He devoted his leisure to the encouragement and cultivation of literature, and left behind him a volume of poems and miscellanies, including a sketch of his own life. He died in 1671.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £46. 6s. 10d.: pres. net income, £186: patron, T. L. Fairfax, Esq.: pres. incumbent, B. Edmonson, 1821: contains 1,410 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 216: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 248: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,002: poor rates in 1837, £118.

BILDESTONE (or BILSTON), SUFFOLK, a township and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Cosford: 74 miles from London (coach road 63), 5 from Hadleigh, 14 from Ipswich.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Hadleigh, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 206 miles.---Money orders issued at Hadleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.

---The church is a handsome structure, placed on a hill at the west end of the town. A Baptist congregation was formed here in 1794. The schools are numerous. There was formerly a considerable manufacture of blankets and blue woollen cloths. The parochial charities produce about £4 a year. The living (Blessed Virgin Mary), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £12. 16s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £346: patron, Rev. Joseph Gedge: pres. incumbent, ---, ---, contains 1,420 acres: 182 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 857: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 985: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,840: poor rates in 1837, £271.---Market day, Wednesday. Fairs, Ash-Wednesday and Holy-Thursaday, for toys, &c.

BILEIGH, ESSEX, a hamlet in the parish of St. Mary—(which see for access, &c.)---Tanner says, in speaking of Bileigh—There was anciently at Perendune, or Parndon, in this county, an house of Præmonstratensian canons, who removed to Bileigh, when, A.D. 1180, Robert Mantell built a monastery for them to the honour of St. Nicholas. About the time of the dissolution, this abbey was rated at £169. 4s. 5d., and maintained nine canons; it was granted in the 32d year of Henry VIII. to Sir John Gate. Some portions of the monastic buildings still remain, but are adapted to purposes very different from those for which they were designed, constituting now a portion of a farm-house and establishment. The chapel, which was the most perfect relic of the edifice, is now used as a hog-stye. It was a handsome apartment, 36 feet in length, by 18 in breadth. The roof is formed of a very fine grained limestone, having groined arches, supported by three slender Purbeck columns. Henry Bouchier, Earl of Essex, who died in 1483, with Isabel his countess, and the Lady Mary Nevill, were buried here.

BILHAM, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in that part of the parish of Hooton-Pagnel, which is in the northern division of the wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill—(which see for access, &c.): 169 miles from London, 7 from Doncaster, 9 from Pontefract.---Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Lime and coal are found here, as well as a peculiar kind of sand used in the iron foundries at Sheffield and Rotherham.---Contains 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 87: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,026: poor rates in 1837, £36.

BILLERICAY (or BILLERCA), ESSEX, a market town and chapelry in the parish of Great Burstead, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Barstable: 23 miles from London (coach road 24.)---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Brentwood, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 154 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m. and 1 p.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. and 8 a.m.---The town stands on a considerable eminence, overlooking a varied luxuriant vale, beyond which it commands views of the river Thames, the Nore, and the distant coast of Kent. The tower of the (Ed. III.) chapel is of very ancient erection; but the body of it has been rebuilt at a much later date. A market was formerly and is still held here under a charter of Edward I.; but the increasing importance of Romford and Chelmsford have caused it to be very much neglected. The Independents have a place of worship here. Ten poor children are educated on a foundation erected on a bequest of £60 a year, left, in 1654, by the Rev. Mr. Bayley, rector of Benfleet. Billericay is one of the polling-places for the members for South Essex; and petty sessions for the division of Chafford and Barstable are held here and at Brentwood. Billericay is the head of a union, comprising 24 parishes. The living is a perpetual curacy not in charge, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester: pres. net income, £115: patron, Bishop of the diocese: pres. incumbent, J. H. Bailey, 1844: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,284: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,476. Market day, Tuesday. Fairs, Aug. 2, and Oct. 7, for cattle.

BILLESDON, LEICESTER, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gartree, union of Billesdon: the parish comprises the chapelries of Goadby and Rolleston (which see), with the township of Billesdon: 112 miles from London (coach road 96), 9 from Leicester, 10 from Uppingham. Nor. West. Rail. to Leicester, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 38½ miles. Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. A school here has an endowment from various sources of £23 a year, and a school-house, which was built in 1650 by William Sharpe, for the use of the parishioners. There are almshouses for four poor widows here, which were built and endowed by William Ward, Esq. The other parochial charities produce about £53 a year. There are some traces of a Roman camp in the neighbourhood. The Billesdon poor-law union comprehends 36 parishes, with an area of about 82 square miles, and a population of about 7,000 souls. The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage, with the curacies of Rolleston and Goadby annexed, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £14. 10s.: pres. net income, £300: patron, H. Greene, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Joshua Scholesfield, A.M., 1846: contains 4,430 acres: 156 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 878: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,009: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,529: poor rates in 1837, £381. Tithes commuted in 1764. Market day, Friday. Fairs: last Monday in Feb., first Monday in May, last Monday in Aug., first Monday in Oct. N. 1½ m. Coplew House, the seat of Charles Thomas Frier, Esq.—Rollerton Hall, the seat of H. Greene, Esq.

BILLESLEY, WARWICK, a parish in the Stratford division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barlichway, union of Stratford-on-Avon: 112 miles from London (coach road 98), 4 from Stratford-on-Avon, 5 from Alcester. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Stratford, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Hampton station, 51½ miles, thence 20 miles. Money orders issued at Stratford-on-Avon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £5. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £100: patrons, M. Miles, Esq., and Rev. T. Higgins: pres. incumbent, F. F. Knottesford, 1823: contains 750 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 81: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 86: poor rates in 1837, £11.

BILLING (GREAT), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Spelhoe, union of Northampton: 70 miles from London (coach road 69), 4 from Northampton, 6 from Wellingborough. Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Billing: from Derby, through Rugby and Weedon, to Northampton, &c., 83 miles. Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. There is an almshouse for five poor aged widows, and one poor aged widower, founded and endowed, in the reign of James I., by Francis Freeman, Esq. The recipients of the bounty do not reside in the house, which has been given up to the parish, but receive £6 a year each. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £19: pres. net income, £495: patron, Brazenose College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. Walker, 1843: contains 1,290 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 401: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 461: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,319: poor rates in 1837, £136. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1778. Billing Hall is the seat of Robert Carey Elwes, Esq., who derives his descent from Geoffrey Elwes, Esq., an alderman of London in the time of Charles I., and who was a nephew of Sir Gervais Elwais, lieutenant of the Tower at the time Sir Thomas Overbury was murdered there. The Hall is a noble mansion, purchased by its present proprietor from Lord Frederick Cavendish at the close of the last century.

BILLING (LITTLE), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Spelhoe, union of Northampton: 68 miles from London, 3 from Northampton, 13 from Kettering. (For access, &c., see previous article.) The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £10. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £349: patron, Earl Brownlow: pres. incumbent, R. J. Geldart, 1817: contains 890 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 101: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 116: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,763: poor rates in 1837, £49.

BILLINGBOROUGH, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Aveland, parts of Kesteven, union of Bourn: 140 miles from London (coach road 109), 4 from Folkingham, 18 from Boston. East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Algakirk, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, and Boston, to Algakirk, &c., 101 miles. Money orders issued at Folkingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The church is particularly fine, having a tower and spire. There is a free school here, towards the endowment of which Mrs. Mary Toller gave, in 1671, lands, which produce £25 per annum. The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £295: patron, Earl Fortescue: pres. incumbent, Wm. M. Mann, 1846: contains 2,020 acres: 168 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 999: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,149: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,800: poor rates in 1837, £309. The great and small tithes of Billingborough and Bithorpe, the property of the lord of the manor and the vicar, were commuted in 1768.

BILLINGE (CHAPEL END), LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Wigan, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby: it contains the township of Billinge, and part of the township of Winstanley: 201 miles from London, 5 from Wigan, 9 from Prescott. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Warrington to Newton junction, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 92 miles. — Money orders issued at Wigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There is a National school here, which has a stipend of £40 a year attached by the trustees of the Eddleston charity. The Roman Catholics have a chapel at Birchley, within the precincts of the parish. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £34. 0s. 8d.: pres. net income, £165: patron, Rector of Wigan: pres. incumbent, J. Bromilow, 1834: contains 1,340 acres: 222 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,550: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,782: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,105: poor rates in 1837, £254. — Winstanley Hall, the seat of Meyrick Banks, Esq.

BILLINGE (HIGHER END), LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Wigan, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — There was formerly an allowance of £10 a year, to teach eight poor children of the township, but it has for some years been withheld. — Contains 1,410 acres: 110 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 777: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 893: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,317: poor rates in 1837, £213.

BILLINGFORD (or PIRLESTON), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Earsham, union of Depwade: 151 miles from London (coach road 93), 2 from Scole, 14 from Bungay. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Norwich to East Dereham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Dereham, &c., 151 miles. — Money orders issued at Scole: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living (St. Leonard), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £264: patron, G. Wilson, Esq.: pres. incumbent, A. Cooper, 1823: contains 1,100 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 219: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 252: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,679: poor rates in 1837, £134.

BILLINGFORD, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eynesford, union of Mitford and Launditch: 151 miles from London (coach road 106), 5 from East Dereham, 7 from Reepham. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Norwich to East Dereham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Dereham, &c., 151 miles. — Money orders issued at East Dereham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — There was formerly a fair held here, under a grant of the 33d of Edward I.: and there was once an hospital founded in the reign of Henry III., for the relief of poor travellers. This manor is said to have belonged to Sir Simon Burley, the chief favourite of Edward the Black Prince, and tutor to his son, afterwards Richard II., by whom he was advanced to high honours, and had emoluments of every kind heaped upon him. Among his other appointments, he was made a member of the privy council, a knight of the garter, chamberlain of the royal household, governor of Windsor Castle, constable of Dover, and lord warden of the Cinque ports. This accumulation of prosperity seems to have been too much for his equanimity, for from pride he proceeded to oppression, and from oppression to cruelty, till at last he went to such lengths that the whole nation cried out for his attainder. He was at length brought to the block, and beheaded on Tower Hill. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united with that of Thorpe Little, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 10s.: pres. net income, £306: patron, Right Hon. E. Ellice: pres. incumbent, T. A. Anson, 1843: contains 1,650 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 353: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 405: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,680: poor rates in 1837, £126.

VOL. 7.

BILLINGHAM, DURHAM, a parish in the north-eastern division and union of Stockton-ward: it comprises the chapelry of Wolviston, and the townships of Billingham, Cowpen-Bewley, and Newton-Bewley: 281 miles from London (coach road 244), 3 from Stockton, 10 from Hartlepool. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Darlington, to Stockton-on-Tees, thence by Hartlepool and Clarence Railway to Billingham, 3 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, York, &c., 149 miles. — Money orders issued at Stockton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — There is a daily school here, towards the support of which the Dean and Chapter of Durham allow £4. 4s. a year. The other parochial charities produce about £17 a year. — The living (St. Cuthbert), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham, is valued at £11. 3s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £240: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, T. Ebdon, 1831: contains 2,720 acres: 92 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,653: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,900: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,350: poor rates in 1837, £230.

BILLINGHAY, LINCOLN, a parish in the first division of the wapentake of Langoe, parts of Kesteven, union of Sleaford: it comprises the township of Dogdyke, and the hamlet of Walcott: 153 miles from London (coach road 123), 8 from Sleaford, 13 from Horncastle. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Tattershall, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Tattershall, &c., 74 miles. — Money orders issued at Sleaford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Michael), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 14s.: pres. net income, £280: patron, Earl Fitzwilliam: pres. incumbent, E. Jenkins: contains 7,630 acres: 459 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,087: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,400: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,898: poor rates in 1837, £291.

BILLINGLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in that part of the parish of Darfield, which is in the northern division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill: 183 miles from London (coach road 168), 7 from Barnsley, 9 from Doncaster. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Sheffield, to Darfield, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 51 miles. — Money orders issued at Barnsley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The Dearne and Dove Canal passes by the village. — Contains 830 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 250: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 287: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,289: poor rates in 1837, £82.

BILLINGSHURST, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of West Easwirth, rape of Arundel, union of

2 N

Petworth: the parish includes the hamlets of East and West Billingshurst: 41 miles from London (coach road 40), 7 from Horsham, 14 from Arundel. — Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Horsham, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 173 miles. — Money orders issued at Horsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The Independents and the Baptists have places of worship here. The parish is intersected by the Arun and Wye Canal. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £9. 6s. 0<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £139: patron, Sir C. F. Goring, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Henry Beath, 1832: contains 6,830 acres: 265 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,439: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,655: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,199: poor rates in 1837, £792. — Fairs, Whit-Monday, and 8th November, for horses, horned cattle, hogs, and pedlery.

BILLINGSIDE, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Lanchester, west division of Chesterward: 307 miles from London (coach road 268), 9 from Durham, 14 from Newcastle. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Washington, to Leston, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 175 miles. — Money orders issued at Durham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Contains 340 acres: 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 21: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 24: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,917: poor rates in 1837, £15.

BILLINGSLEY, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stottesden, union of Bridgenorth: 145 miles from London (coach road 144), 6 from Bridgenorth, 16 from Tenbury. — Gt. West. Rail. to Kidderminster, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 83 miles. — Money orders issued at Bridgenorth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — There are some large coal mines in the parish. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £195: patron, Duke of Cleveland: pres. incumbent, T. Vaughan, 1823: contains 1,560 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 149: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 171: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,231: poor rates in 1837, £38. — S. 2 m. Kinlet Hall — (for which see KINLET.)

BILLINGTON, BEDFORD, a chapelry in the parish and union of Leighton-Buzzard, hun<sup>d</sup> of Manshead: this chapelry includes the hamlets of Great and Little Billington: 42<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> miles from London (coach road 40), 2 from Leighton-Buzzard, 6 from Dunstable. — Nor. West. Rail. to Leighton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 95 miles. — Money orders issued at Leighton-Buzzard: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £45: patron, Inhabitants: pres. incumbent, J. C. Orleber, 1843: contains 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 335: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 385: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,366: poor rates in 1837, £121.

BILLINGTON (LANGHO), LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish and lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackburn — (which see for access, &c.): 218 miles from London, 6 from Blackburn, 14 from Preston. — Money orders issued at Blackburn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The inhabitants are chiefly cotton weavers. There is a daily school here, endowed with £26 a year. — The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £120: patron, Vicar of Blackburn: pres. incumbent, J. F. Coates, 1845: contains 2,960 acres: 191 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 988: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,136: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,407: poor rates in 1837, £284.

BILLOCKLY (or BILLOCKBY), NORFOLK, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Flegg: 141 miles from London (coach road 123), 3 from Acle, 14 from Norwich. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Norwich to Brundall, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, &c., 181 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £2. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Family of Lucas: pres. incumbent, William Lucas, 1835: contains 260 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 71: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 81: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £497: poor rates in 1837, £52.

BILLSBOROUGH (or BILLSBORROW), LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Garstang, hun<sup>d</sup> of Amounderness: 232 miles from London (coach road 225), 4 from Garstang, 7 from Preston. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Preston to Myerscough, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 121 miles. — Money orders issued at Garstang: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. — There is a daily free school here, endowed in 1718 with £46 per annum, by Mr. John Cross, for the benefit of the poor children of Myerscough and Billsborough. — Contains 750 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 229: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 263: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,462: poor rates in 1837, £50. — W. 1 m. is Myerscough House, the seat of John Cunliffe, Esq. (for which see MYERSCOUGH.) — N.W. 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> m. Myerscough Hall; N. 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> m. Cloughton Hall.

BILNEY (EAST), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Launditch, union of Mitford and Launditch: 135 miles from London (coach road 105), 8 from East Dereham, 7 from Fakenham. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Norwich to East Dereham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to East Dereham, &c., 154 miles. — Money orders issued at East Dereham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — There is a Sunday school, supported entirely by the rector. Thomas Bilney, a learned divine, who was burned at Norwich in 1531, for his opposition to Popery, is said to have been born here. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 14s. 2d.: pres. net income, £112: patron, John Collison, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Collison, 1833: contains 670 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 218: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 251: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £553: poor rates in 1837, £96.

BILNEY (WEST), NORFOLK, a parish in the Lynn division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Freebridge, union of Freebridge Lynn: 130 miles from London (coach road 95), 7 from Lynn Regis, 11 from Downham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Lynn to West Bilney: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Lynn, to West Bilney, 131 miles. — Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Cecilia), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £60: patron, J. Dalton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Samuel Pearson, 1844: contains 2,750 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 298: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 343: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,680: poor rates in 1837, £188.

BILSBY AND THURLBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the Wold division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 157 miles from London (coach road 143), 2 from Alford, 12 from Louth. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Alford, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Lincoln and Boston to Alford, &c., 104 miles. — Money orders issued at Alford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — A school here has a small endowment, arising from lands in the parish. — The living (the Holy Trinity), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £123: patron, J. Mason, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Mason, 1826: contains 2,960 acres: 77 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 584: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 672: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,886: poor rates in 1837, £584.

BILSDALE-MIDCABLE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Helmsley, wapentake of Ryedale: 264 miles from London (coach road 234), 12 from Helmsley, 10 from Gisborough. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Thirsk, to Northallerton, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Thirsk, &c., 132 miles. — Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 11 a.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, and diocese of York, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £91: patron, Vicar of Helmsley: pres. incumbent, George Dixon, 1830: contains 8,380 acres: 132 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 738: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 848: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,412: poor rates in 1837, £219.

BILSDALE (WEST SIDE), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Hawnby, wapentake of Birdforth: 234 miles from London. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — Contains 6,090 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 171: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 196: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,610: poor rates in 1837, £134.

BILSINGTON, KENT, a parish partly within the liberty of Romney-Marsh, and partly in the upper half-hundred of Newchurch, lathe of Shepway, union of East Ashford: 76 miles from London (coach road 61), 8 from Hythe, 6 from Ashford. — Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 208 miles. — Money orders issued at Hythe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There are some remains of a priory of black canons here, which was founded by John Mansell, provost of Beverley, in 1253. The manor of Bilsington Inferior was held in grand serjeantry in the reign of Edward III., by the service of presenting three maple cups at the sovereign's coronation, and, at the coronation of Charles II., by the additional service of carrying the last dish of the second course to the king's table. This estate, with a large portion of the surrounding lands, was given by William the Conqueror to his brother, the Bishop of Bayeux, but was subsequently conveyed by marriage to the Earl of Arundel, who attempted to make the office of cup-bearer hereditary in his family; but the court of claims disallowed his pretensions, and decided that the privilege attached to the actual lords of the manors, of which the representatives of Sir W. R. Cosway are the possessors. The Grand Military Canal, constructed from Rye to Hythe, for the purpose of conveying military stores to the coast during the last great war, and of serving for a line of defensive operations in the event of an invasion, passes through the parish. A mound in the neighbourhood, called the Knoll, commands fine views of Romney-Marsh, the English Channel, and the Sussex hills. — The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £30: pres. net income, £52: patron, Lady Cosway: pres. incumbent, Thomas Clarke, 1844: contains 2,800 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 332: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 380: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,347: poor rates in 1837, £321. — Fair, 5th July.

BILSTHORPE (OR BILDESTHORPE), NOTTS, a parish in the South Clay division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, union of Southwell: 149 miles from London (coach road 140), 9 from Mansfield, 6 from Southwell. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Southwell, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 37 miles. — Money orders issued at Mansfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Margaret), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 4s. 8d.: pres. net income, £360: patron, Earl of Scarborough: pres. incumbent, F. W. S. Lumley, 1847: contains 1,600 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 244: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 280: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,489: poor rates in 1837, £155.

BILSTON, STAFFORDSHIRE, a market town and chapelry in that part of the parish of Wolverhampton, which is in the northern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Seisdon: 130 miles from London (coach road 120), 3 from Wolverhampton, 11 from Birmingham. — Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 56½ miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — Bilston is now a large and thriving market town, which owes its prosperity to the numerous and rich mines of coal and ironstone in the neighbourhood; and being situated in the immediate vicinity of the Birmingham and Stafford Canal, possesses ample means of communication with all parts of the kingdom, through the Mersey, the Dee, the Ribble, the Ouse, the Trent, Derwent, Severn, Humber, the Avon, and the Thames. In addition to these means of water-carriage, the Birmingham and Liverpool Railway passes within a mile of the town. The whole of the neighbourhood around is thickly studded with forges, furnaces, steam-engines, and factories, which are continually pouring forth their volumes of smoke to darken the air by day, and forks of flame to illuminate the country by night, throwing their lurid glare for miles beyond the precincts of the parish. The manufactures consist chiefly of the heavier kind of iron castings, all kinds of machinery, tin ware, japanned and enamelled goods, wire, nails, and screws. Clay, fitted for coarse pottery vessels, and a deep orange-coloured sand, very useful in castings, are found in abundance in the neighbourhood. The exports consist chiefly of coals and ironwork of all kinds. The town is long and irregularly built, though many of its domestic edifices are substantial, and some of them even imposing in appearance. A new church was erected here in the decorated style of English architecture, at an expense of about £7,223, part of which was defrayed by the parliamentary commissioners. It has a fine tower, and contains 1,494 sittings. The Wesleyan and other Methodists, the Independents, and the Baptists, all have chapels here, and there is also a Roman Catholic chapel, to which a large school is attached. There are schools on the British system, in which upwards of 300 children are taught; and an orphan school was opened in 1833, which was attended by 460 orphans, who lost their parents by the cholera, which visited Bilston very severely in the previous year. The edifice cost £400, and the school is endowed with upwards of £2,000. Petty-sessions are held here, at Wolverhampton, and Kingswinford, for the division of Seisdon North. Bilston unites with the township of Wolverhampton in returning two members to parliament. The living (St. Leonard), a perpetual curacy within the jurisdiction of the Dean of Wolverhampton, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry: pres. net income, £635: patron, the Inhabitants: pres. incumbent, H. S. Fletcher, 1836: contains 2,580 acres: 2,744 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 20,180: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 23,206: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £15,634: poor rates in 1837, £2,785. Market days, Monday and Saturday. Fairs, Whit-Monday, and Monday before Michaelmas. Bankers, Bilston District Banking Co.

BILSTONE (or BILSTON), LEICESTER, a township in the parish of Norton-juxta-Twycross, hund<sup>d</sup> of Sparkenhoe: 114 miles from London (coach road 109), 3 from Market-Bosworth, 7 from Atherstone. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Polesworth station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Tamworth to Polesworth, &c., 29 miles. Money orders issued at Market-Bosworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Contains 570 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 156: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 179: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,095: poor rates in 1837, £72.

BILTON, WARWICK, a small parish and village in the division and union of Rugby, hund<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow: 83½ miles from London (coach road 82), 1 from Rugby, 12 from Coventry. Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 50 miles. Money orders issued at Rugby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. In this village Addison resided, after his marriage with the Countess of Warwick, who left £10 a year out of her estate at Bilton for the benefit of the poor. There is a day and Sunday National school here, which has an endowment of £20 a year, left, in 1783, by Mr. Langton Freeman. The other parochial charities produce £61 per annum. The living (St. Mark), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £16. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £678: patron, Rev. J. T. Parker: pres. incumbent, J. T. Parker, 1817: contains 1,820 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 623: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 716: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,320: poor rates in 1837, £261.

BILTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Swine, middle division of the wapentake of Holderness—(which see for access, &c.): 179 miles from London, 5 from Hull, 10 from Beverley. Money orders issued at Hull: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York: pres. net income, £45: patron, Viscount Downe: pres. incumbent, E. Williams, 1836: contains 1,120 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 84: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 97: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,390: poor rates in 1837, £99.

BILTON, YORK, a parish in the union of Skirlough, and within the ainstey of the city: it comprises the townships of Bilton, Bickerton, and Tockwith: 227 miles from London (coach road 196), 5 from Wetherby, 10 from York. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Wetherby, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Leeds, &c., 95 miles. Money orders issued at Wetherby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The living (St. Helen), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £3. 16s.: pres. net income, £131: patron, Prebendary of Bilton: pres. incumbent, G. Mackereith, 1831: contains 4,150 acres: 178 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 881: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,013: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,531: poor rates in 1837, £567. S., Wighill Park, the seat of Edward York, Esq., whose father was high sheriff of the county in 1832; his mother was Lady Mary Anne Lascelles, youngest daughter of Edward, first Earl of Harewood. Mr. York is a magistrate and deputy lieutenant of the West Riding.—N., Bilton Hall, the residence of the Vicar of Wighill.

BILTON, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.): contains 1,460 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 226: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 260: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,448: poor rates in 1837, £249.

BILTON AND HARROWGATE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in that part of the parish of Knaresborough which is in the lower division of the wapentake of Claro: 211½ miles from London (coach road 212), 1 from Harrowgate, 16 from Leeds. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Sheffield, to Starbeck station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Sheffield, Starbeck, &c., 75½ miles. Money orders issued at Harrowgate: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. A school here has an endowment of £20 a year, left by Mr. Richard Taylor. Contains 4,800 acres: 466 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,234: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,719: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,142: poor rates in 1837, £820.

BINACRE (or BENACRE), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. and union of Blything: 157 miles from London (coach road 111), 6 from Southwold, 7 from Beccles. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Lowestoft, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Lowestoft, &c., 199 miles. — Money orders issued at Wangford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — There is a daily and Sunday school here, supported by Sir T. S. Gooch, Bart., and the rector. In 1786, as a labourer was mending the roads in the parish, he struck upon a vessel which contained upwards of 900 silver Roman coins, the most ancient of which was of the reign of Vespasian. About half a mile from the sea-coast here, there is a lake of fresh water, called Binaere Broad, which covers about a hundred acres, and abounds with pike and other excellent fish. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory, to which are united the rectory of Easton-Bavents and the vicarage of North Hales, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £18: pres. net income, £440: patron, Sir T. S. Gooch, Bart.: pres. incumbent, W. Gooch, 1823: contains 1,660 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 194: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 223: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,467: poor rates in 1837, £160.

BINBROOKE, LINCOLN, a village, formerly a market town, comprising the parishes of St. Gabriel and St. Mary, in the southern division of the wapentake of Walshcroft, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth: 181 miles from London (coach road 158), 9 from Market-Raisen, 13 from Grimsby. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Ludborough, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Retford, and Grimsby, to Ludborough, &c., 117 miles. — Money orders issued at Market-Raisen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — This place was formerly of some note, but it has decayed considerably of late years. It stands on the river Aucklam, which is celebrated for the fine eels caught at the foot of the wolds. — Contains 6,070 acres: 183 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,672: poor rates in 1837, £597. — W. is Swinehope House — (for which, see SWINEHOPE.)

BINCHESTER, DURHAM, a township in that part of the parish of St. Andrew-Auckland which is in the north-western division of Darlington ward: 249 miles from London, 1 from Bishop-Auckland, 9 from Durham. — (For access, &c., see BISHOP-AUCKLAND.) — Money orders issued at Bishop-Auckland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The village stands on the banks of the river Wear. It is supposed by antiquarians to have been the site of the Roman station Vinovium or Binovium, and most likely of both, the former being founded by Antoninus, and the other by Ptolemy; and many antiquities have been dug up in the neighbourhood. The famous Watling-street road passed either directly through the village, or immediately to the west of it. The area of the station inclines to the eastward, and commands extensive prospects to the north and south. The washing of the river at the south-west angle of the parish, have laid the foundations of the vallum here, the bank being partly undermined. These foundations consist of large stones, some of them immense blocks, placed transversely. Some remains of stone aqueducts have also been discovered through the sinking of the soil. In the seventh volume of the Archæologia, there is a communication from Mr. John Cade, who states it to be his opinion that it derived its name of Vinovium from having been dedicated to Bacchus, festivals in his honour having been celebrated there; and Mr. Hutchinson, in his history of Durham, says, in speaking of the place, that it was suitable to the Priapian dedication in every degree, as few of the Roman stations lie in a more fertile or abundant soil, and probably in its environs much sheep, cattle, and horses were bred under the auspices of that deity. Mr. Cade calls the place an inexhaustible repository of Roman remains. He says — Mr. Wren, the proprietor of the station, has in his possession a collection of some elegant intaglios, found there, with a variety of silver and copper coins, both of the upper and lower empire, to the time of Valentinian and Theodosius. Perhaps the Roman pottery at Vinovium has been equal, if not superior, to most made in Britain. I have seen some fragments of bowls and vases, enriched with vine leaves and branches, and others entire, which appear to have been used as sacrificing vessels, together with a vast variety of specimens of different compositions, some resembling terra cotta, and others of glass. Two of the altars belonging to this station are inscribed to the Deæ Matres; and a third, though the inscription is now much defaced, was made out by Camden to be as follows:—

TRIB COHOR I.
CARTOV....
MARLI VICTORI, GENIO LOCI,
ET BONO, EVENTVI.

On this, Bishop Horsley observes, that the Romans made an imaginary God of Bonus Eventus is certain; but I have some jealousy that, instead of Cartoviorum, we should read Cornoviorum; the Cohors Cornoviorum is in the Notitia, and was at the Pons Ælii. Bincchester is the seat and manor of the Wren family, in whose possession it has remained since the time of James I. The mansion-house is a most sweetly imposing building, in the neighbourhood of which there are many beautiful views. — Contains 500 acres: 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 42: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 48: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,139: poor rates in 1837, £44.

BINCOMBE, DORSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Goderthorne, union of Weymouth, Bridport division of the county: 147 miles from London (coach road 126), 6 from Dorchester, 4 from Weymouth. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 279 miles. — Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There are quarries of valuable stone, and a mineral spring here. On the downs in the neighbourhood, there are several barrows of the ancient British. — The living (the Holy Trinity), a rectory united with that of Broadway, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £9. 1s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £487: patron, Caius College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, Thomas Dade, 1820: contains 1,220 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 170: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 195: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £778: poor rates in 1837, £108.

BINDERTON, SUSSEX, a township and chapelry in the hund<sup>d</sup> of West-Bourne and Singleton, rape of Chichester: 83 miles from London (coach road 58), 4 from Chichester, 8 from Midhurst. — Brighton and Sou. Coast Rail. to Chichester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 215 miles. — Money orders issued at Chichester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The chapel is not now used. — Contains 1,790 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 102: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 117: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,031: poor rates in 1837, £29.

BINDON (GREAT), DORSET, a hamlet in the liberty of Bindon, chapelry of Wool, Cerne division, on the south side of the river Frome: the liberty to which it gives name contains the following places — Great Bindon, Bexington, East and West Chalton, Creech Grange in the parish of Steeple, Chamberlain's-mills in the parish of Bere-Regis, Fordington East-mills, West-mills, and Mill-street, the priory in Dorchester, Langcotes in the parish of Winfrith, East Pulham, Wool, and Eastworth in the parish of Edmondsham: 131 miles from London (coach road 123), 5 from Wareham, 14 from Weymouth. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Wareham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 263 miles. — Money orders issued at Wareham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Within the precincts of the parish, in a pleasant and retired valley on the banks of the river Frome, are the remains of Bindon Abbey, one of the oldest and most interesting monasteries in the kingdom. Tanner, in his Notitia, says—Robert de Novo Burgo, and Maud, his wife, built here an abbey of the Cistercian order, to the honour of St. Mary, A. D. 1172, which was valued, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., at £229. 2s. 1d. The site of this house, wherein used to be an abbot and nine monks, was granted, in the 32d year of Henry VIII., to Sir Thomas Poyning. Henry III. conferred a charter upon the abbey, confirming to the monks the site where it then stood, and also that of a somewhat earlier foundation, which had been made at Little Bindon; and by a subsequent charter, not only conferred upon them the wood of Stotwood, but also several houses, streets, and garden-grounds in the neighbourhood of Dorchester. In 1271, Henry de Newburgh, the patron of the monastery, resigned his rights into the hands of the brotherhood, on which they elected himself and Queen Eleanor as joint patrons. The abbey was enriched by many subsequent gifts from royal and other personages, but it was finally suppressed in 1541, as noticed by Tanner, from whose heirs it descended to James, Earl of Suffolk, who sold it to Humphrey Weld, Esq., the ancestor of Thomas Weld, Esq. of Lullworth Castle, and the representative of one of the most ancient families in the kingdom. Mr. Weld has made many judicious alterations, and has caused the site of the abbey, with its gardens and grounds, comprising an area of ten acres, to be enclosed with a palisade. Some interesting monuments have been discovered. Below the footstep of the side, the figure of an abbot of the natural size was found, surrounded by the following inscription:—

*Miles Ricardus de Manners hic tumulatur
Ab panas tardus Brus hunc salbam Cubatur.*

The greatest curiosity, however, discovered here, says Hutchinson, in his history of Dorsetshire, was the sepulchral statue of a child, being about two feet in length, habited in the dress and ornaments of an abbot. It was found near where stood the staircase. In order to account for this singularity, we must have recourse to the ancient custom by which one of the children of the choir, on the festival and during the whole of the octave of the Holy Innocents, was, in cathedral churches, permitted to wear the insignia of a bishop; and in abbatial churches, those of an abbot. Hence, if the juvenile bishop or abbot, as we may suppose was the case at Bindon, happened to die in the course of this festivity, there is no doubt but that he would be represented in the ornaments which he was entitled to wear during that period. There is just such a figure in Salisbury cathedral, engraved in the introduction to the second volume of the Sepulchral Monuments of Great Britain. In the neighbourhood of the abbey, there is a building appropriated for the accommodation of some emigrant monks of the order of La Trappe, for whose settlement there Mr. Weld obtained the sanction of government during the last European war. The principal characteristic of the order, as is well known, is the observance of continued silence. — Bindon Abbey.

BINEGAR, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wells-Forum, union of Shepton-Mallet: 122 miles from London (coach road 121), 5 from Shepton-Mallet, 12 from Frome. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bath, &c., 157 miles. — Money orders issued at Shepton-Mallet: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (Holy Trinity), a rectory within the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean of Wells, is valued at £13. 12s. 8½d.: patron, Prebendary of Whitchurch: pres. incumbent, W. B. Bushby, 1846: contains 680 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 338: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 388: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,703: poor rates in 1837, £61. — Fair in Whitsun-week, for horses, which is largely attended. It was formerly held at Wells, but was removed here in consequence of the plague in the seventeenth century. — W. is Grove House.

BINFELD, BERKS, a small village and parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Cookham, union of East-Hamstead: 37 miles from London (coach road 29), 5 from Bracknell, 3 from Wokingham. — Gt. West. Rail. to Twyford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 169 miles. — Money orders issued at Bracknell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — There is a day and National Sunday school here, with an endowment of £37. 15s. 6d. per annum, in which about 200 children are taught. Binfield is a pleasant village, situated in about the centre of the Royal Hunt, called Windsor Forest. On one side of the turnpike road from London is a small neat brick house, once the residence of the father of the celebrated poet Pope, but now the property of a gentleman named Webb; and it was here that the young writer first fledged the wings of his genius. Within half a mile of the house, in a secluded part of the forest, on the edge of a common, is the place which was the favourite resort of the young poet, when ruminating upon his subject, or working out the rough draft of those lines which were afterwards to raise him to the first rank of British authors. On a large tree, beneath which he is said to have composed many of his earlier poems, the words, 'HERE POPE SUXE,' are inscribed in capital letters; and the words are annually revised and renewed by a person from Oakingham, at the expense of a lady who resides at that place. It was in these still retreats that the first portion of the poem of Windsor Forest was written; and the poet appears to have had the scene actually before him when he penned the following lines:—

"There interspersed in lawns and op'ning glades, Thin trees arise that shun each other's shades;
Here in full light the russet plains extend,
There wrapt in clouds the bluish hills ascend.
E'en the wild heath displays her purple dyes,
And midst the desert fruitful fields arise;
That crowned with tufted trees, and springing corn,
Like verdant isle the sable waste adorn."

—The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £18. 17s. 1d.: pres. net income, £628: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. Randall, 1831: contains 3,530 acres: 222 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,242: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,428: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,985: poor rates in 1837, £795.—Billings Park.—Binfield House.

BINGFIELD, NORTHUMBERLAND, a chapelry in the parish of St. John-Lee, southern division of Tindale ward: 328 miles from London (coach road 293), 8 from Hexham, 10 from Newcastle.

—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Gateshead, to Hexham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, York, Gateshead, &c., 196 miles.—Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—There is a school here, endowed with £10 a year by W. H. Clarke, Esq. There is a mineral spring in the neighbourhood.—The living, a perpetual curacy, united with that of St. John-Lee, formerly within the jurisdiction of the peculiar court of Hexham, in the diocese of York, now in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, diocese of Durham, is valued at £8: contains 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 113: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 130: poor rates in 1837, £46.

BINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, a small market town and parish in the northern division of the wapentake and union of Bingham: 139 miles from London (coach road 124), 9 from Nottingham.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Nottingham, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 24½ miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ a.m. and 5½ p.m.—The town, which consists chiefly of two long parallel streets crossed by other streets, which terminate in a spacious market-place, is, though in a low situation, very pleasantly situated in the beautiful and luxuriant vale of Belvoir, of which some very fine views are commanded from the vicinity. The place, which was, before the Conquest, possessed by two Saxon chieftains, appears to have been much more extensive at one time than it is now. The church was once a collegiate or guild, founded in honour of St. Mary, and although heavy in appearance, still has an air of considerable magnificence. It has a square tower elaborately sculptured, and above it there rises a lofty spire. Speed says that its revenues were rated at £40. 11s., but Tanner reduces that amount to £4. 11s., but probably that is a misprint. There was formerly a chantry here, in the chapel of St. Helen. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists have places of worship here. There are several daily schools here, of which one is endowed with £16. 15s. per annum. The other parochial charities produce about £20 a year. Bingham is one of the polling-places for South Nottinghamshire. The poor law union comprises 40 parishes, with an area of 107 square miles, and a population of about 15,000. The living was successively held by Abbot, Archbishop of Canterbury, Wren, Bishop of Ely, and Hanmer, afterwards Bishop of Bangor. Thomas White, the compiler, for many years, of the Almanacks for the Stationers' Company, and author of the "Celestial Atlas," was a schoolmaster here. Though entirely self-taught, his astronomical attainments were such as to induce Dr. Maskeleyne to recommend him to King George III., as an assistant in a very extensive astronomical work, an honour, however, which Mr. White modestly declined. He died in 1783, at the age of 61.—The living (All Saints), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £44. 7s. 11d.: pres. net income, £1,503: patron, Earl of Chesterfield: pres. incumbent, R. W. Miles, 1845: contains 2,930 acres: 352 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,998: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,298: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,493: poor rates in 1837, £379.—Market day, Thursday. Fairs, Tuesday and Wednesday before Feb. 13, horses; Thursday in Whitsun-week; Nov. 8 and 9, pigs; and last Thursday in October.

BINGLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the union of Keighley, upper division of the wapentake of Skyrack: it contains the market town of Bingley, and the townships of Micklethwaite, East Morton, and West Morton: 218 miles from London (coach road 202), 6 from Bradford.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Bingley station: from Derby, through Sheffield, Leeds, &c., 86 miles.—Money orders issued at Bradford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The town stands on a hill on the eastern bank of the river Aire, in a country richly wooded, and consists principally of one long street. Like the whole of the district in which it is placed, the inhabitants are chiefly supported by manufactures. There are several cotton mills and some large worsted works, which have been some years in operation. Paper is also made to a considerable extent, and large quantities of barley are malted here. The Leeds and Liverpool Canal passes through the parish. There is a free grammar-school here, founded and endowed in the reign of Henry VIII., the lands and tenements belonging to which now produce a rental of £480 a year. There are twenty pupils in the school, but the endowment is subject to certain payments to the poor; the master has a free house and garden. The other schools, one of which has an endowment of £10 a year, are numerous. There are five almshouses here, the inmate of each of which receives £3 a year from the bequest of Mrs. Sarah Rhodes.

Petty sessions for Bingley and the neighbourhood are held here, and at Keighley also the petty sessions for the upper division of Skyrack and the east division of Morley. The Baptists, Independents, and Methodists, all have places of worship here. The living (All Saints), a dischd. vicarage, formerly in the archd. and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £7. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £233: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. Cheadle, 1837: contains 13,180 acres: 1,791 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 11,850: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 13,627: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £12,596: poor rates in 1837, £1,350. Market day, Tuesday. Fairs: Jan. 25, for cattle; and 25th, 26th, and 27th, for horses. Bankers, Yorkshire District Bank.

BINHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the northern division of the hund. of Greenhoe: 145 miles from London (coach road 117), 7 from Holt, 5 from Wells. Nor. and East. Co. Rail. to East Dereham, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Dereham, &c., 163 miles. Money orders issued at Holt: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. Henry I. gave this place a charter for a market and fair, which were held on the 26th of July; a part of the market cross still remains. The church formed part of an ancient monastery, and the western front presents a fine specimen of early English architecture. Tanner, in speaking of it, says—Peter de Valois, nephew to William the Conqueror, and Albredda, his wife, in the beginning of the reign of Henry I., gave the church of St. Mary and the manor of Bingham to the abbey of St. Albans, to the intent that here might be settled a priory of Benedictine monks, subordinate to them of St. Albans, in the same manner as Leves in Sussex was to the abbey of Cluny. This cell had, about the time of the dissolution, six monks, and estates to the value of £160. 1s. per annum, and was granted in the 33d year of Henry VIII. to Thomas Paston, Esq. There is a daily school here, supported by Thomas Clarke, Esq., the lord of the manor. The other parochial charities produce about £55 a year. The living (the Holy Cross), a dischd. vicarage in the archd. and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £103: patron, T. T. Clarke, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Upjohn, 1822: contains 2,200 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 502: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 577: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,525: poor rates in 1837, £323.

BINLEY, WARWICK, a parish in the Kirby division of the hund. of Knightlow, union of Poleshill: 99 miles from London (coach road 90), 5 from Coventry, 13 from Lutterworth. Nor. West. Rail. to Coventry, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Coventry, &c., 65 miles. Money orders issued at Coventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The living (St. Bartholomew), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, formerly in the archd. of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester: pres. net income, £52: patron, Earl of Craven: contains 2,470 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 233: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 268: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,894: poor rates in 1837, £149.

BINNINGTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Willerby, wapentake of Dickering — (which see for access, &c.): 211 miles from London, 7 from Scarborough, 14 from Bridlington. Money orders issued at Scarborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12½ p.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. Contains 910 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 66: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 76.

BINSEY, OXFORDSHIRE, a parish within the liberty of the city of Oxford, locally situated in the hund. of Wootton, on the western bank of the Isia, and intersected by the Oxford Canal: 65 miles from London (coach road 56), 2 from Oxford, 7 from Woodstock. Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Oxford, &c., 128 miles. Money orders issued at Oxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. A Sunday school is supported here by the interest of £105, left by the Rev. William Corne, who had once been curate here. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd. and diocese of Oxford: pres. net income, £90: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, R. Hussey, 1845: contains 470 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 61: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 70: poor rates in 1837, £98.

BINSTED, HAMPS, a chapelry in the parish and upper half-hundred of Alton, Alton division of the county: 57 miles from London (coach road 44), 4 from Alton, 6 from Farnham. Sou. West. Rail. through Guildford to Alton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 189 miles. Money orders issued at Alton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. The living (St. Nicholas), a vicarage annexed to Alton: pres. rent charge, £345: patron, Dean and Chapter of Winchester: pres. incumbent, E. James, 1832: contains 7,060 acres: 144 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 278: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 319: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,518: poor rates in 1837, £579.

BINSTED, HAMPS, a parish in the liberty of East Medina, Isle of Wight division of the county: 95 miles from London (coach road 79), 2 from Ryde, 7 from Newport. Sou. West. Rail. to Portsmouth, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 227 miles. Money orders issued at Ryde: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. All the children in the parish have a right to daily instruction in schools in neighbouring parishes, at the expense of Mr. Fleming. There are the remains of an abbey of Cistercian monks here, which was founded in 1312, by Baldwin de Redveris, who was afterwards Earl of Devonshire. Its revenues were estimated at £184. 1s. at the dissolution. The situation, close to the sea, is remarkably fine, having water in front, and thick rising woods behind. Most of the boundary wall, with the remains of the north and south gates, are still standing. Many persons of distinction were buried here, including Earl Baldwin, its founder, and his countess Adeliza. The refectory, the only entire part of the building, is now a barn, and a farm-house has been erected out of the other materials of the place. Much of the stone for building Winchester cathedral was taken from the neighbourhood. The living (the Holy Cross), a dischd. rectory in the archd. and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £1. 7s. 1d.: pres. net income, £80: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, P. Hewett, 1833: contains 1,140 acres:

46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,055: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,213: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,044: poor rates in 1837, £149.

BINSTED, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Aysford, rape of Arundel, union of West Hampnett: 72 miles from London (coach road 57), 2 from Arundel, 10 from Chichester. — Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Arundel, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 204 miles. — Money orders issued at Arundel: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £5. 17s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £150: patron, Earl of Newburgh: pres. incumbent, M. Smelt, 1815: contains 1,010 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 111: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 128: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £796: poor rates in 1837, £93.

BINTON, WARWICK, a parish in the Stratford division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Barlichway, union of Stratford-on-Avon, on the northern bank of the Avon: 109 miles from London (coach road 98), 4 from Stratford, 13 from Warwick. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Stratford-upon-Avon, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Coventry to Leamington, 69, thence 18 miles. — Money orders issued at Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £8. 10s.: pres. net income, £140: patron, the Marquis of Hertford: pres. incumbent, C. S. S. Dupuis: contains 1,260 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 269: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 309: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,330: poor rates in 1837, £172. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1779.

BINTREE (or BINTAY), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eynesford, union of Mitford and Launditch: 136 miles from London (coach road 109), 6 from Reepham, 8 from Fakenham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to East Dereham, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Dereham, &c., 155 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — The sum of £45, derived from the town lands, is annually distributed among the poor. — The living (St. Swithin), a rectory, with that of Themelthorpe annexed, in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £462: patron, Lord Hastings: pres. incumbent, A. Dashwood, 1826: contains 2,120 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 409: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 270: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,564: poor rates in 1837, £160.

BIRBECK-FELLS, WESTMORELAND, a district containing portions of the parishes of Crosby-Ravenworth, Orton, and Shap.

BIRCH, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Middleton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Salford: 185 miles from London, 2 from Middleton, 5 from Manchester. — (Pop<sup>n</sup> and other returns are included in those of Horwood—which see for access, &c.) — Money orders issued at Middleton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There is a new church here, with 1000 sittings, built by the parliamentary commissioners, at the expense of about £1,000. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Rector of Middleton: pres. incumbent, H. P. Thomas, 1841.

BIRCH, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Manchester, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby—(which see for access, &c.): 183 miles from London, 3 from Manchester, 7 from Stockport. — Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £3. 10s.: pres. net income, £160: patron, Sir J. W. Hanson, Bart.: pres. incumbent, G. H. G. Anson, 1846.

BIRCH (GREAT AND LITTLE), ESSEX, a parish in the Colchester division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lexden: 55 miles from London (coach road 48), 4 from Colchester, 7 from Coggeshall. — East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Colchester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 187 miles. — Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — There was formerly a castle here, some of the remains of which may yet be seen. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £11: pres. net income, £469: patrons, Bishop of Rochester, and C. Round, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Wm. Harrison, 1848: contains 2,940 acres: 141 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 794: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 913: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,921: poor rates in 1837, £464.

BIRCH (LITTLE), ESSEX, a parish in the Colchester division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lexden. — (For access, &c., see preceding article.) — The church being desecrated, the inhabitants repair to Great Birch. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, united with the rectory of Great Birch, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.

BIRCH (MUCH), HEREFORD, a parochial chapelry in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wormelow, union of Hereford: 129 miles from London, 7 from Hereford, 16 from Ledbury. — (For access, &c., see following article.) — The living, a perpetual curacy not in charge, united with the vicarage of Much Dewchurch: pres. net income, £106: patron, T. G. Symons, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Wm. Hasall, 1834: contains 1,330 acres: 94 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 484: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 557: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,604: poor rates in 1837, £99. The great and small tithes, the property of the impropiator, the clerical rector, and the vicar, were commuted in 1812.

BIRCH (LITTLE), HEREFORD, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wormelow, union of Hereford: 145 miles from London (coach road 128), 7 from Hereford. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 102 miles. — Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £6. 12s. 11d.: pres. net income, £170: patron, Governors of Guy's Hospital, London: pres. incumbent, H. Hampton: contains 930 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 375: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 431: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,132: poor rates in 1837, £102.

BIRCHAM (GREAT), NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Smithdon, union of Docking: 144 miles from London (coach road 109), 3 from Rougham, 13 from Lynn.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Cambridge and Lynn to Winch Hall, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Lynn, &c., 140 miles.---Money orders issued at Rougham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The Marquis and Marchioness of Cholmondeley support two schools here, and two others are supported by the rector.---The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £22: pres. net income, £514: patron, A. Hamond, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. Faught, 1848: contains 3,530 acres: 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 511: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 588: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,216: poor rates in 1837, £365.

BIRCHAM (NEWTON), NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Smithdon, union of Docking: 110 miles from London, 7 from Burnham-Westgate.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united with that of Bircham-Tofts, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £434: patron, Marquis of Cholmondeley: pres. incumbent, W. Berry, 1835: contains 1,150 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 107: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 123: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £901: poor rates in 1842, £43.

BIRCHAM-TOFTS, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Smithdon, union of Docking.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united with that of Bircham-Newton: contains 1,450 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 142: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 163: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £941: poor rates in 1837, £110.

BIRCHANGER, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Uttlesford, union of Bishop Stortford: 34½ miles from London (coach road 32), 2 from Bishop Stortford, 12 from Saffron-Walden.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Bishop Stortford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Cambridge, to Bishop Stortford, &c., 153 miles.---Money orders issued at Bishop Stortford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---Bishop Tanner says of this place—There was an hospital founded here in the time of King John, by Richard, son of Serlo de Newport, for a master and two chaplains. It was dedicated to St. Mary and Leonard, and under the peculiar jurisdiction of St. Martin's in London. The revenues of it were rated, in the 26th of Henry VIII., at £31. 13s. 11d.; and after the suppression, it was granted by King Henry VIII. to Sir Martin Bowes.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £9. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £218: patron, New College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. C. H. Stokes, 1808: contains 1,150 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 386: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 444: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,780: poor rates in 1837, £276.

BIRCHER. See YARFOLK.

BIRCHES, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Great Budworth, hund<sup>d</sup> of Northwich—(which see for access, &c.): 173 miles from London, 3 from Northwich, 6 from Knutsford.---Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---In 1695, Mrs. Dobson bequeathed an estate here for the education of two boys, one to be the son of a clergyman of the established church, and the other the son of a barrister.---Contains 100 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 10: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 12: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £180.

BIRCHES (THE), SALOP, in the franchise of Wenlock, between the parish of Buildwas and Colebrook dale—(which see for access, &c.): 142 miles from London, 9 from Bridgenorth, 5 from Wellington.---Money orders issued at Bridgenorth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---This place is remarkable for an extraordinary landslip, which occurred on the 27th of May, 1773. An account of the circumstance was published by Mr. Fletcher of Madeley, together with a sermon which he preached to an immense concourse of people on the spot the day after the catastrophe.

BIRCHINGTON, KENT, a parish and seaport, a member of the town, and within the liberty of the cinque port of Dover, locally situated in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Ringelaw, lathe of St. Augustine, union of the Isle of Thanet: it was anciently called Birchington-in-Gorend: 105 miles from London (coach road 67), 4 from Margate, 6 from Ramsgate.---Sou. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Margate, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 237 miles.---Money orders issued at Margate: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The church contains many ancient monuments of the Crispé and Queke families. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Independents have each a chapel here. There is a National school here, also a free school, with an endowment of £65 per annum, arising from the rent of 47 acres of land, left, under trustees, by A. G. Crispé.---The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy, not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Monkton: pres. net income, £672: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, R. P. Whish, 1832: contains 1,760 acres: 138 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 874: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,750: poor rates in 1837, £366.---Queex Park, the seat of H. P. Cotton, Esq.

BIRCHOLT, KENT, a parish in the franchise and barony of Bircholt, lathe of Shepway, union of East Ashford: 71 miles from London (coach road 59), 4 from Ashford, 12 from Canterbury.---Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 208 miles.---Money orders issued at Ashford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The church has been in ruins since the sixteenth century.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £2. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £50: patron, Sir E. Knatchbull, Bart.: pres. incumbent, J. H. Hallett, 1836: contains 310 acres: 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 37: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 42: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £420: poor rates in 1837, £3.---S., Merstham Hutch, the seat of Sir Edward Knatchbull, Bart.—(for which see MERSTHAM.)

BIRCHOVER, DERBY, a chapelry in that part of the parish of Youlgreave, which is in the hund<sup>d</sup> of High Peake—(which see for access, &c.): 151 miles from London, 5 from Matlock, 5 from Bakewell.---Money orders issued at Matlock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---This village is frequently visited by the pleasure-seekers from Matlock and Buxton, for a sight of a famous rocking-stone, which weighs 20 tons, and is about 32 feet in circumference; there were formerly several others in the neighbourhood. At a short distance there is a singular range of rocks, called Router Rocks, from which a species of gritstone is taken for filtering cisterns.---Contains 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 116: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 133: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £719: poor rates in 1837, £77.

BIRCLE (or BIRTLE), LANCASTER. See BAMBURGH.

BIRDBROOK, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hinckford: 41 miles from London (coach road 56), 6 from Haverhill, 7 from Headingham.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Braintree, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 173 miles.---Money orders issued at Halstead: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---A daily and Sunday school are supported here by part of the proceeds of a parochial farm. Martha Blewitt, wife in succession to nine husbands, was buried here, May 7, 1681.---The living (St. Austin), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Middlesex, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £19: pres. net income, £600: patron, Clara Hall, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, Joseph Cape, 1846: contains 2,640 acres: 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 557: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 640: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,582: poor rates in 1837, £355.---Swan Inn.---Burleigh House is the seat of Henry Sharp, Esq.---Baythorn Hall, the seat of Simon Viall, Esq.---S.W., Moyns Park.

BIRDFORTH, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Coxwold, wapentake of Birdforth (which see for access, &c.): 218 miles from London, 5 from Easingwold, 14 from Northallerton.---The living, a perpetual curacy, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Cleveland, diocese of York, is valued at £6. 6s. 2d.: pres. net income, £94: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, John Winter, 1818: contains 540 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 44: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 50.

BIRDHAM, SUSSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Manhood, rape of Chichester, union of West Hammett: 83 miles from London (coach road 66), 4 from Chichester, 15 from Portsmouth.---Brighton and Sou. Coast Rail. to Chichester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 215 miles.---Money orders issued at Chichester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £10. 0s. 10d.: pres. net income, £396: patron, Dean and Chapter of Chichester: pres. incumbent, W. Miller: contains 1,930 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 506: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 582: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,865: poor rates in 1837, £309.

BIRDINBURY (or BIRBURY), WARWICK, a parish in the Southam division of the hundred of Knightlow, union of Rugby: 89 miles from London (coach road 85), 5 from Southam, 7 from Rugby.---Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby, 82, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 56 miles.---Money orders issued at Southam: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The Napton and Warwick Canal passes at a little distance.---The living (St. Leonard), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7. 10s.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Sir T. Biddulph, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. Biddulph, 1826: contains 1,180 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 201: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,527: poor rates in 1837, £87.---Birbury Hall, the seat of Sir Theophilus Biddulph, Bart., is in this parish. The Saxon words 'Bidde' or 'Bida,' signifying prayer or entreaty, and the word 'Ulph,' assistance, protection, &c., which together constitute the name of Biddulph, would seem to indicate that he who first bore it had been employed in some embassy or mission to seek aid, and had thence acquired his designation. The family is undoubtedly of great antiquity; and in his survey of Staffordshire, Eardesweck says—The Biddulphs derive themselves from one Ormus le Guidon, lord of Darlveston, Buckinham, Biddulph, &c., in Staffordshire, who lived in the time of Doomsday. A pedigree extant leads down the line from Ormus to Richard Biddulph of Biddulph, from whom descended Simon Biddulph, Esq. of Elmhurst, whose great-grandson, Sir Theophilus Biddulph, was created a baronet in 1664, and from him the present baronet is the sixth in descent.

BIRDSALL, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Buckrose, union of Malton: 243 miles from London (coach road 215), 6 from New Malton, 19 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Halton's station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, York, &c., 111 miles.---Money orders issued at Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---This parish was the native place of Henry Burton, a celebrated Puritan divine.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £40: patron, Marquis of Hertford: pres. incumbent, Robert Ellis, 1831: contains 3,650 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 267: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 307: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,633: poor rates in 1838, £81. 11s.---Birdsall Hall.

BIRKBY. See CROSS-CANNONBY.

BIRKBY. See MUNCASTER with BIRKBY.

BIRKBY (or BRETBY), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Allertonshire, union of Northallerton: it comprises the townships of Birkby, Hutton-Bonville, and Little Smeaton: 244 miles from London (coach road 231), 6 from Northallerton, 11 from Richmond.---Nor. West. Rail. to Northallerton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Thirsk, &c., 112 miles.---Money orders issued at Northallerton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: present net income, £172: patron, Bishop of Ripon: pres. incumbent, T. W. Morley, 1828: contains 3,400 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 256: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 294: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,069: poor rates in 1838, £168. 15s.

BIRKBY (or BRETBY), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish.---Contains 1,030 acres: 16 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,414: poor rates in 1842, £75.

BIRKDALE, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Ormskirk, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby: 226 miles from London (coach road 227), 8 from Ormskirk, 17 from Liverpool.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Liverpool to Birkdale station: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, Liverpool, &c., 118 miles.---Money orders issued at Ormskirk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---Contains 2,130 acres: 100 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 557: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 640: poor rates in 1842, £73.

BIRKENHEAD, CHESTER, a chapelry and thriving township in the parish of Bidstone, lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirral: 203 miles from London (coach road 201), 5 from Liverpool.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to station: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 95 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---This place presents a striking instance of the expansion of the commercial greatness of Britain. From an obscure and almost insignificant hamlet on a creek of the Mersey, it has risen into the position of an important seaport, supplied with all the necessary accommodations of lofty warehouses, extensive quays, and spacious docks, alive with the business of commercial life; and while, within the space of half a generation, there was only a fishing-boat occasionally seen in the offing, and an idle ferry-boat which plied across once or twice in the day, the river now looks formidable with the masts of our mercantile marine. Birkenhead, indeed, now bids fair to be a rival to Liverpool, which stands just opposite on the other side of the water. The chapel, which forms part of the remains of the ancient priory, stands on a peninsular rock that projects into the Mersey. During the reign of Henry II., or early in that of Richard I., Hamon de Massey, third baron of Dunham-Massey, founded a priory here for sixteen Benedictine monks. Leland says that this monastery was subordinate to the abbey of St. Werburgh; but Tanner was inclined to believe that it was an independent establishment. The revenue, at the dissolution, was £90. 13s.; and the site was granted to Ralph Worseley. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Roman Catholics have each chapels here. Petty sessions for the hundred of Wirral are held here and at Great Neston; and this is one of the polling-places for South Cheshire.---The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £40: pres. net income, £153: patron, William Jackson, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Andrew Knox, 1834: contains 1,388 acres: 1,256 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 8,223: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 9,456: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £64,481: poor rates in 1842, £460.

BIRKENSHAW, WEST RIDING, YORK. See BIRSTALL.

BIRKER (or BERKER), CUMBERLAND, a joint township with Ainstwaite, parish of Millom—(which see for access, &c.): 278 miles from London, 7 from Ravenglass, 13 from Egremont.---Money orders issued at Ravenglass: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---Contains 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 105: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 121: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £603: poor rates in 1842, £18.

BIRKIN, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Barkstone-Ash, in the vicinity of the York and North Midland Railway, and intersected by the Selby Canal and the river Aire: it comprises the townships of Birkin, Chapel-Haddlesey, West-Haddlesey, Harst-Courtney, and Temple-Hurst: 212 miles from London (coach road 180), 3 from Ferrybridge, 7 from Selby.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Normanton, to Burton station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Normanton, &c., 80 miles.---Money orders issued at Ferrybridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory united with the curacy of Haddlesey, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £36: pres. net income, £1,008: patron, Rev. T. Hill: pres. incumbent, Val. Green, 1835: contains 5,890 acres: 191 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 921: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,069: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,935.

BIRKIN, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish.---Contains 2,064 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 169: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 194: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,528: poor rates in 1842, £152.

BIRLEY, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stretford, union of Weobley: 146 miles from London (coach road 142), 4 from Weobley, 5 from Leominster.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 160 miles.---Money orders issued at Weobley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living, a vicarage subordinate to that of King's Pyon: contains 1,260 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 172: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 197: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,253: poor rates in 1842, £56.

BIRLING (or BYRLING), KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Larkfield, lathe of Aylesford, union of Malling: 39 miles from London (coach road 287), 7 from Maidstone, 7 from Rochester.---Gravesend Rail. to Rochester, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 171 miles.---Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The village lies at the foot of a range of chalk hills, called the Birling hills. The inhabitants have the right to send 35 children to two endowed schools in the adjoining parishes of Leybourne and Snodland. Between the church of Birling and the heights is the ancient residence of the Nevilles, now converted into a farm-house. The present Earl of Abergavenny, a few years ago, built a handsome house of Welsh ragstone, between the vicarage and church, where his lordship principally resides. The princely mansion and family seat is Endge Castle, near Tunbridge Wells.---The living (All Saints), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £6. 9s. 4d.: pres. net income, £158: patron, Earl of Abergavenny: pres. incumbent, W. Corfield, 1845: contains 2,240 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 511: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 588: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,351: poor rates in 1838, £241. 14s.---S. is Leybourne House—(for which, see LEYBOURNE.)

BIRLING, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Warkworth, on the northern bank of the river Coquet—(which see for access, &c.)---.

Contains 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 98: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 113: poor rates in 1838, £23. 16s.

BIRLINGHAM, WORCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Pershore: 116 miles from London (coach road 107), 3 from Pershore, 8 from Evesham.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Defford, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Birmingham to Defford, &c., 79 miles.---Money orders issued at Pershore: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The village stands on the northern bank of the river Avon.---The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £9. 17s. 4d.: pres. net income, £215: patron, Rev. R. E. Landor: pres. incumbent, R. E. Landor, 1829: contains 1,450 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 890: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 400: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>t</sup> £2,802: poor rates in 1838, £56. 2s.

BIRMINGHAM, WARWICK, one of the greatest manufacturing towns in England, is situated in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, in the north-western extremity of Warwickshire, and on the borders of the counties of Stafford and Worcester: 112½ miles from London (coach road 110), 63 from Oxford.---Nor. West. Rail. 112½ miles: from Derby, to Birmingham, 41½ miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 10½ p.m.---Birmingham comprises the three market towns of Birmingham, Coleshill, and Sutton-Coldfield, the parishes of Curdworth, Sheldon, Wishaw-cum-Moxhall, and the township of Moxworth. The town of Birmingham, with its suburban parishes of Aston, already noticed, and Edgbaston, possesses a jurisdiction separate from that of the hundred of which they form a part. From olden time, before the clear light of history could open the social progress of Britain, the inhabitants of Birmingham were distinguished for their handicraft skill in the working of iron. Whence its title arose does not very evidently appear; but the vulgar mode of pronouncing the name of the place does not appear to be without foundation. In old writings the name is frequently spelt Brumwycheham and Bromwychem; and a very natural supposition has arisen, that the appellation was derived from the general growth of the shrub broom in the whole of that neighbourhood; and, as a colour to such a supposition, it may be observed, that two other places in that district are called Bromwich. Mr. Hutton, who was himself for many years an inhabitant, and who, by his skill, industry, and carefulness, realized a handsome fortune in the town, goes the length of believing, that the trade in ironware existed here as early as the time of the ancient Britons. His arguments are ingenious; and as they have an historical bearing, we may transcribe them. He says—Upon the borders of the parish stands Aston Furnace, appropriated for melting ironstone, and reducing it into pigs; this has the appearance of great antiquity. From the melted ore in this subterranean region of infernal aspect, is produced a calx or cinder, of which there is an enormous mountain. From an attentive survey, the observer would suppose that so prodigious a heap could not accumulate in one hundred generations; however, it shows no perceptible addition within the age of man. There is also a common of vast extent, called Wednesday Old Field, in which are the vestiges of many hundred coal-pits, long in disuse, which the curious antiquarian would deem as long in sinking as the mountain of cinders in rising. From the situation of the town between Etocetum and Alauna, Birmingham is believed to have been a station in the Roman Icknield or Rycknield Street; but no Roman remains have been discovered in the vicinity or in the town; but it must have been a place of great consideration in the time of the Anglo-Saxons, for, in 1309, the lord of the manor, William de Birmingham, from whom the town derives its proper name, proved that his ancestors had the privilege of a market here before the Conquest. This might be, for it is well known that the towns of the Saxons were very much scattered over the whole of the parish, and yet the account in the Norman survey be quite correct. In that account it is rated for four hides of land, woods of half a mile in length, and four furlongs in width. The family of Birmingham, in whose possession the manor remained for some centuries, seem to have paid a liberal and kindly attention to their tenantry. During the reign of Henry II., Peter de Birmingham obtained a grant for a weekly market on Thursday; and his son William de Birmingham secured charters for two yearly fairs. About the year 1319, Andomore de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, obtained a license to take toll for the term of three years, in order to defray the expense of paving the streets; but it was either evaded, or the people were then in a very depressed condition, as the object for which the toll was imposed remained at a stand-still for eighteen years; but a second license was afterwards obtained, by the aid of which the work was completed. The manor remained in the Birmingham family till the reign of Henry III., and they generally resided in a castellated house, surrounded by a moat; but the castle, if such it might be called, has long since been destroyed: the handsome residence of a manufacturer stands in its place; the moat has been filled up, and the site of the grounds is now occupied by some extensive works. Birmingham appears to have happily escaped the fury of the intestine struggles which ensued in the contest for the crown between the houses of York and Lancaster. On only one occasion do the inhabitants seem to have been in the field, and that was at the battle of Evesham, when the barons contended unsuccessfully against Henry III. So long as the mere feudal feelings existed, all the towns were countrified; and, according to the account of Leland, Birmingham had made but little advance during the five centuries which elapsed from the period of the Conquest to that of Henry VIII. Speaking of the place, which was afterwards to become the emporium of hardware manufactures and articles of elegance, he says—The beauty of Birmingham, a good market town in the extreme parts of Warwickshire, is one street, going up along almost from the left ripe (or bank) of the brooke, up a meane hille by the lengthe of a quarter of a myle. There be manie smythes in the towne that use to make knives and all manner of cutting tools, and many loriners that make bittes, and a great manie naylers, so that a great part of the towne is maintained by smythes, who have their iron and sea-coal out of Staffordshire. During the civil war between

Charles and his parliament, Birmingham took the part of the latter; and on the occasion when the king visited the town in 1642, so strong was their dislike of him that the inhabitants took possession of the carriages which contained the royal plate, and conveyed them to the custody of the governor of Warwick Castle. In the following year Prince Rupert, being ordered to open the communication between Oxford and the north, and being vigorously opposed by a handful of troops, had to go through a series of tumultuary skirmishes before he drove them from the field. On one side, the Earl of Denbigh was slain; and on the other, a clergyman, the governor of the town, who had taken refuge in the Red Lion Inn, was put to death there by the royalists, after having refused quarter at their hands. Shortly after the restoration of Charles II. the feudal principle was abolished; the military spirit, as a predominant spirit, gave way, and that of commercial enterprise arose. It is indeed traditionally said, that the increase of the town in the reign of Charles II. was chiefly owing to what was commonly called the Five-Mile Act, the effect of which was to drive the Nonconformist ministers from the corporate towns; many of whom, finding an asylum in Birmingham, drew their congregations after them, and thus increased the population of the place. But the true reason, no doubt, is that just assigned—viz. the alteration in the spirit of the people. The chief manufactures, up to the time of Charles, had been in the coarser ware of iron manufacture, such as implements of husbandry, and the tools for carpenters. After the relaxation of that severity of manners which was induced by the great polemical contests of the kingdom, the softening arts of life grew with an increasing influence, and works of design, and especially toys for children, became articles of extensive manufacture. The works of genius induced taste, and encouragement stimulated genius; and the two principles, combining in their action, so wrought together, that business has increased to an unparalleled extent, and Birmingham is now the workshop of the world for all articles of elegance, and the repository of toys to an almost incredible extent. With the affluence, rose the intelligence and the spirit of the inhabitants; the energy of political and polemical feeling rose with both, for the inhabitants of Birmingham have been no trimmers. What they thought and felt, was carried out into action. But this spirit led at one time to one of the most formidable riots that has ever been witnessed in any country. The Unitarians, for some years preceding the first dreadful revolution in France—it may be said, more particularly, from the time of the revolt of the American colonies—had gradually attained to a very considerable position in Birmingham. They had warmly approved of the writings of the philosophic school of France, and openly proclaimed their coincidence of feeling with the opponents of Necker and the destroyers of the dynasty of St. Louis. On Thursday, the 14th July, 1791, eighty-one gentlemen of various denominations, but all coinciding in political feeling, met at the hotel to celebrate the anniversary of the French Revolution. The partisan spirit at that time of excitement was equally alive in all classes. Many among the lower classes had been strongly impregnated with a detestation of democratic violence, though about to exhibit it in its fiercest aspect by their own conduct. A mob assembled: those composing it surrounded the hotel; with violent outcries, they threatened all those who had come together to the dinner; and the members of the society very prudently retired. The mob, however, were not satisfied with ascertaining this fact. There was no adequate force at hand to stay them—no authority calculated to use it aright, even had it been available. Impunity gave the multitude courage; plunder increased their ferocity. Every alley and court gave forth its crowd of ignorant but powerful artisans. Those who are ever ready to take advantage of popular tumult for the purpose of private gain, rapidly swelled the ranks of the delinquents, and with this cry of church, king, and order shouted from their lips, they broke through every restraint of law and every right of order. For three days and nights the town and neighbourhood remained at the uncontrolled command of this terrible assembly. Property of every kind was plundered and destroyed. Conflagrations raged on all sides, and many of the rioters perished in their intoxication in the flames which their own hands had kindled. After three days, a detachment of military appeared, and the disorder was at length quelled; but not until more than £100,000 worth of property had been sacrificed. Two of the principal offenders were executed; and, in 1793, an act of parliament was passed to reimburse those who had sustained any loss. Since that time the advance of Birmingham has been peaceable and rapid. By the Reform Act it was empowered to return two members to parliament, and by the Municipal Act it obtained the advantage of a mayor and all the corporate officers. At its first foundation, and for some ages, as Leland says, the town consisted of a small and straggling place, in a low situation, but it has gradually grown, until its precincts have stretched to the neighbouring hills; and it is now approached on every side, except the north-west, by an ascent. The neighbourhood of a district abounding with coal and iron ore provided the materials for manufacture, and as the opportunity of disposing of them increased, the extent of the manufactures increased also. In addition to the branches already noticed, the making of fire-arms was introduced during the reign of William III., and Birmingham has become the great mart for muskets, swords, accoutrements, and artillery gear for the whole world. During the last war it was the chief place for supplying the British and continental armies opposed to Napoleon, and upwards of 14,500 stand of arms were delivered to government weekly by this place alone. Among the smaller articles made here in large numbers are buttons, which are manufactured in immense quantities; also pins, steel pens, and jewellery. Of the quantity of steel pens disposed of, it may be observed that, in one establishment alone, more than forty tons of fine sheet steel are consumed in making that article alone. But perhaps the two most interesting manufactories in the town or neighbourhood are those of Messrs. Boulton and Watt, for the making of steam-engines, and those of Mr. Elkington, at whose show-rooms the most elaborate and costly specimens in gold, silver, bronze, and plated ware, are daily exhibited. For many years, the aggregate of the silver used in the manufacture has been upwards of 120,000 ounces; and of gold, more than 2,000 ounces. The railway and canal accommodation which Birmingham possesses, are numerous and important. By the Worcester and Birmingham Canal, through the Severn, Shrewsbury, Gloucester and Bristol, may be reached; while, through the Trent, there is a union by the east with Gainsborough, Hull, and, by the Grand Junction Canal, with London. The old Birmingham Canal has a conjunction with the great line running through the Potteries, to Manchester and Liverpool; and thus Birmingham, though so inland, has the means of communicating both with the German Ocean and the Irish Sea. The Birmingham and Fens Canal, again, opens a connection with Oxford, and thence onward to London, by the Thames. These advantages have, of course, been vastly increased by the introduction of railroads, of which Birmingham is one of the chief centres; and we abstain from any further notice of them now, as it will be necessary to refer to them in another department of the work, where they will be fully spoken of. For a century and a half, the town has always been one of considerable importance, but at different periods it has made wonderful progress, and the particulars of the increase in the number of the houses and of their inhabitants may not prove uninteresting:—

Year A.D.	Streets.	Houses.	Inhabitants.
1700	28	2,504	15,052
1751	51	3,717	23,296
1791	54	4,114	24,680
1781	125	8,882	50,296
1791	203	12,881	78,653

And now the return is about 43,000 houses, inhabited by about 220,000 persons; of whom 88,572 are males, and 94,350 females. The population is, but very little mixed, and the small number of Irish among them is truly surprising. By an act passed in 1841, the town was divided into parishes and wards, which have each a population as follows:—

Parishes.	Wards.	Population.
Birmingham, .....	Lady Wood, .....	8,787
—	All Saints, .....	13,719
—	Hampton, .....	11,087
—	St. George, .....	19,648
—	St. Mary, .....	14,885
—	St. Paul, .....	8,973
—	Market Hall, .....	13,014
—	St. Peter, .....	16,773
—	St. Martin, .....	13,825
—	St. Thomas, .....	18,254
Edgbaston, .....	Edgbaston, .....	8,809
Aston, .....	Deritend and Bordesley, .....	18,019
—	Duddeston cum Neebells, .....	20,079
		182,922

The area of the parish comprises in Birmingham, 2,660 acres, and in Edgbaston, 2,790 acres. The assessment to income tax in 1842 was £324,126. Birmingham originally consisted of but one parish, that of St. Martin's, but in 1715 a portion of it was separated, and constituted into the parish of St. Philip. The parishes of St. Thomas and St. George were constituted in 1829. All these parishes were formerly within the archdeaconry of Coventry, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, but were transferred by the church commissioners to the diocese of Worcester; for all civil purposes, however, they are considered as being only one parish. The living of St. Martin's is a rectory, valued at £19. 3s. 6d.: gross income, £1,200: patron, trustees of the late Mr. T. Walker. The church was originally built of stone, but has been cased in brick; it stands in the lower part of the town, and contains some ancient monuments. St. Phillip's is a rectory not in charge, in the patronage of the Bishop of Worcester, and attached to Lichfield cathedral. The church is an elegant structure, built in 1725, in the Italian style; it stands in an area of four acres, which are pleasingly planted with trees, and surrounded by handsome modern houses. St. George's is a rectory not in charge: yearly value about £408: patrons, executors of W. Hawkes, Esq. The church, which contains 1,378 sittings, was erected in 1822, at an expense of £12,491, defrayed partly by the parliamentary commissioners, and partly by private subscriptions. The living of St. Thomas is a rectory not in charge, of the annual value of £600: patron, the rector of St. Martin's. The church, which contains 1,423 sittings, is a fine building in the Grecian style, erected in 1829 by the parliamentary commissioners at a cost of £14,712. Besides these, there are several chapels of ease, one of which, Christ Church, has the ground floor devoted exclusively to the use of the poor. About ten years ago, a church was erected in the Gothic style, in memory of the late excellent Bishop Ryder, and called after his name; and means are adopted, year by year, to increase the accommodation for divine worship in the numerous populous localities of this thriving and wealthy town. There is hardly any section of dissenters from the Established Church, which has not several highly respectable congregations here, and all, both churches and chapels, have schools for religious instruction attached to them. There is a free grammar-school here, founded in 1552 by Edward VI., endowed with the rentals from lands, which originally produced less than £100 a year, but the leases are now continually falling in, by which it is rendered the richest merely scholastic institution in the kingdom, its income being upwards of £13,000 per annum. In 1834, the governors erected a new and suitable edifice, on a convenient site in the centre of the town, at an outlay of £50,000. The design, which was supplied by Mr. Barry, presents mixed and happily combined features of the Gothic order. The structure is quadrangular, 174 feet long by 125 feet deep, and has two inner courts. The wings of the fronts and side buildings form elegant mansions for the head and second masters. The head-master has a fixed salary of £400 a year, with additional advantages, which raise that amount to nearly £1,000 a year; he is besides entitled to a capitation fee from each scholar; he is also entitled to take eighteen boarders, and the second master twelve. The management of the school and property is vested in a bailiff and eighteen governors, who appoint the masters; and who have, within these few years, obtained an act to very largely extend the educational advantages of the institution. An annual visitation is held, when the boys are examined by three resident members of the universities. There are ten exhibitions of £50 a year, for four years, open to any college, and which are given by the governors to the boys who evince the highest classical attainments. The blue-coat charity school has an income of £2,700. It was originally founded by subscription, in 1724, for 22 boys and 10 girls; but, in 1794, the plan was extended, and 160 boys and 80 girls are now clothed and maintained in it. On an elevated spot in the suburbs, there is a school for 500 girls, who are all instructed so as to become good domestic servants; it has an income of £675 a year. Springhill College has been instituted lately, for the education of young men who are intended for the ministry of the Independents and Baptists; its income is about £2,500 a year. Queen's College, which was incorporated by royal charter in 1843, is an imposing Gothic structure, situated in Paradise Street, opposite the town-hall, and was founded in 1828 by the exertions of Wm. Sands Cox, Esq., F.R.S. The college will provide for thirty resident students, under the immediate superintendence of a warden, a graduate of Oxford or Cambridge. The college students wear the ordinary under-graduate's costume. The system of study pursued at this college constitutes a complete course of medical and surgical education. The lectures qualify for examination for the diplomas of the University of London, the Royal College of Surgeons, and the Society of Apothecaries, without any residence elsewhere. Connected with the college are museums of human and comparative anatomy, containing upwards of two thousand preparations, to which the students are admitted daily. They have also access to an extensive museum illustrative of zoology, geology, and mineralogy, and the other departments of natural history. The library contains upwards of 1,300 volumes. Four resident scholarships were founded by the Rev. Dr. Warneford, of £10 each, to be held for two years. The prizes are, the Warneford gold medals, the interest of £1,000, to be applied for the institution of two prizes. The Jephson prize: twenty guineas are offered to the student who may pass the best public examination in all the branches of medicine and surgery, and who can produce testimonials of good conduct, with regularity of attendance on divine service, and on the warden's lectures. Two gold medals are offered by the governors of the college for regularity and good conduct, to be certified by the warden and professors. Silver medals are annually given by the professors for proficiency in the respective departments of medical science. The Smith prize: five guineas are offered to the student who may pass the best examination in two French works. The Piercy prize: five guineas are offered to the student who may pass the best examination in two German works. The general hospital was erected in 1779, and is supported in a great measure by the profits derived from the triennial musical festivals; it is now attached to Queen's College. A dispensary was established in 1794, from which upwards of 5,000 patients annually obtain relief. There is also a self-supporting dispensary, sustained by the contributions of the poor. The almshouses are numerous, and have been erected and supported chiefly by the judicious application of property bequeathed, in the reign of

Henry VIII., by William Lench. The infant asylum is a house of industry, at which more than 300 children are maintained, and engaged in occupations suitable to their years. The other charities of the town produce about £233 a year. There was formerly a priory here, of which Tanner says—At the end of the town, towards Wolverhampton, stood the hospital of St. Thomas the Apostle, consisting of a warden or prior, and several brethren. It was in being before the 13th of Edward I., and was valued in the 26th year of Henry VIII. at £8. 5s. 3d. per annum. The ancestors of the Birminghams were accounted founders. There are two streets in the neighbourhood which, after it, are called Upper and Lower Priory Streets. From the low, straggling, and mean looking place of former days, Birmingham has risen into all the appearance, and possesses all the appliances, of a stately city, adorned with noble buildings, its streets displaying the aspect of a busy and thriving population, and its environs studded everywhere with the mansions and villas of wealthy proprietors. The town-hall, erected in 1833, at a cost of more than £30,000, is a splendid building of the Corinthian order, having a front of Anglesea marble; the principal room in the interior is 140 feet long by 65 wide, and 65 feet high. In it the grand triennial musical festivals are held; when properly arranged, upwards of 8,000 persons can be seated in it; and when public meetings are held, and the forms are removed, there is standing-room for 8,000 persons. The organ which it contains cost not less than £7,000, and is the largest in England. The theatre, erected in 1821, on the site of one burned to the ground, is a fine building, with a handsome Ionic front. The amusements are numerous, respectably conducted, and well supported. There is a fine swimming-bath, 110 feet long, said to have a constant influx of water, at the rate of 1,000 hogsheads per hour. A society of arts was instituted here in 1814, revived and improved in 1821, and in 1829 a suitable building was erected for the exhibition and sale of pictures. A public library was established in 1798, which now contains more than 30,000 volumes. The building is a structure of imposing appearance; and beside the large rooms in which the books are chiefly deposited, there is an elegant reading-room, lighted by a dome lantern, which rests on Ionic pillars. A handsome news-room was erected in 1825, which contains all the requisite apartments. The philosophical institution of Birmingham has always been celebrated for the scientific attainments of its members. It was established about sixty years ago, but in 1810 the plan was much extended, and it now possesses all the features of a first-rate philosophical society. There are two mechanics' institutions in the town, which are in a prosperous condition. The gardens of the Birmingham Horticultural Society at Edgbaston are very beautiful, and the conservatories are admirably filled with plants. A savings bank was instituted in 1827, the deposits in which amount to about £150,000. Birmingham was incorporated by the general municipal act in 1838, and a separate court of quarter-sessions was granted by the crown. There is a court of requests for the hamlet of Deritend, which is under the jurisdiction of 112 commissioners and two clerks, who must be lawyers. The parliamentary boundaries of the borough comprise Birmingham, Edgbaston, Nechells, and Deritend, the constituency being about 4,600 in number. The police has been organised after the plan of the metropolitan force, and the prison and the court are both admirably managed.---Market day, Thursday. Fairs, Whitsuntide and Michaelmas, horses and cattle.---Bankers: Attwoods, Spooner, & Co.—draw on Spooner, Attwoods, & Co.; John Lewis Moilliet & Sons—draw on Lubbock & Co.; Taylor & Lloyds—draw on Hanburys, Taylor, & Co.; Birmingham Banking Company—draw on Jones, Lloyd, & Co., and Glyn, Halifax, & Co.; Birmingham and Midland Banking Company—draw on Union Bank; Branch of Bank of England—draw on Bank of England; National Provincial Bank of England—draw on London and Westminster Bank.

BIRSTALL (or BURSTALL), LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Belgrave, on the western bank of the river Soar: 106 miles from London, 4 from Leicester.---Nor. West. Rail. to Leicester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 33½ miles.---Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---Contains 1,260 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 438: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 503: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,888: poor rates in 1838, £171. 5s.

BIRSTALL, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish and village in the wapentake of Morley: it comprises the chapelries of Cleckheaton, Drighlington, Liversedge, and Tong, with the townships of Great and Little Gomersall, Heckmondwike, Hunsworth, and Wike, and the hamlet of Birkenshaw: 207 miles from London (coach road 192), 7 from Leeds, 8 from Huddersfield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Wakefield, to Dewsbury, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield and Wakefield, &c., 75 miles.---Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The church was built in the time of Henry VIII., but it has recently been enlarged; and a new church has been erected at Birkenshaw, in the Gothic style, by the parliamentary commissioners, at an expense of about £3,000. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here, and the schools are very numerous. The parochial charities produce about £57 a year. The inhabitants of this populous district are chiefly employed in woollen manufactures, the number of persons so engaged in this parish being between three and four thousand. Ironstone and coal are abundantly found in the neighbourhood, and the extraction of them gives employment to about 500 of the parishioners. By an act passed in 1839, Birstall was included in the second division of the court of requests, erected for the recovery of debts under £15, in Halifax, Bradford, and other towns in the neighbourhood, and it has also been made a polling-place for West Yorkshire.---The living (St. Peter), a dioc<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £23. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £275: patron, Bishop of Ripon: pres. incumbent, W. M. Heald, 1836: contains 13,180 acres: 5,311 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 29,773: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 34,238: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £33,990: poor rates in 1837, £4,435. 10s.---Tonge Hall, the seat of John Plumbe Tempest, Esq.

BIRSTWITH, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Hampethwaite, on the southern bank of the river Nidd: 219 miles from London (coach road 234), 8 from Knaresborough, 4 from Ripley.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Ripley, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 76 miles.---Money orders issued at Knaresborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. at noon: post closes 2 p.m.---Contains 1,670 acres: 127 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 859: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 987: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,656: poor rates in 1838, £202. 7s.---N., Swartcliffe Hall.

BIRTHORPE, LINCOLN, a chapelry in the parish of Semperingham—(which see for access, &c.): 106 miles from London, 2 from Folkingham, 13 from Boston.---Money orders issued at Folkingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The living, a curacy not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Semperingham: contains 390 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 62: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 71: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £694: poor rates in 1838, £32. 11s.

BIRTLE, LANCASTER, a township, with Bamford, in the parish of Middleton: 209 miles from London, 2½ from Bury.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Manchester and Bury, thence 2½ miles: from Derby, through Crewe and Manchester, &c., 101 miles.---Money orders issued at Bury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 1,480 acres: 262 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,897: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,182: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,025: poor rates in 1838, £232. 5s.

BIRTLES, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Prestbury: 195 miles from London (coach road 170), 3 from Macclesfield, 11 from Stockport.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Crewe to Macclesfield, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 87 miles.---Money orders issued at Macclesfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---Contains 460 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 62: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 71: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,043: poor rates in 1838, £66. 5s.---N., Whorley Hall; W., Monk's Heath—(for which, see TENBURY.)

BIRTLEY, DURHAM, a chapelry in the parish of Chester-le-Street: 295 miles from London (coach road 268), 9 from Durham, 10 from Sunderland.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Durham, to the Washington station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, York, &c., 163 miles.---Money orders issued at Durham: London letters delivered 9½ p.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the coal mines. There is a Roman Catholic chapel here. Salt is made from a brine spring in the neighbourhood.---Contains 1,480 acres: 269 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,759: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,022: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,730: poor rates in 1838, £296. 4s.

BIRTLEY (or BIRKLEY), NORTHUMBERLAND, a parochial chapelry, separated in 1765 from the parish of Chollerton, union of Bellingham: it includes the township of Broomhope with Buteland, and anciently formed part of the barony of Prudhoe: 337 miles from London (coach road 290), 12 from Hexham, 15 from Haltwhistle.---N. & W. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Gateshead, to Four Stones station, on the Newcastle and Carlisle line, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, York, Gateshead, &c., 215 miles.---Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £84: patron, Duke of Northumberland: pres. incumbent, Robert Lowther, 1805: contains 2,290 acres: 100 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 472: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 542: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,398: poor rates in 1838, £28. 4s.

BIRTSMORTON, WORCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pershore, union of Upton-upon-Severn: 132 miles from London (coach road 109), 5½ from Upton-upon-Severn, 7 from Tewkesbury.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Defford to Tewkesbury, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Defford to Tewkesbury, &c., 91 miles.---Money orders issued at Ledbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---This manor was long the property of the Nanfaus, an ancient Cornish family. The manor-house, which has a moat round it, is very ancient, and it is finished quite in the style of the dwellings of the first nobility at the time it was inhabited. A charity school here was endowed in 1703 by the Rev. Samuel Juice, the funds of which were farther increased by the bequest of Lady Judith Coots, with the interest of £300.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £178: patron, Rev. S. Thackwell: pres. incumbent, S. Thackwell, 1800: contains 1,410 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 313: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 360: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,537: poor rates in 1837, £118.

BISBROOKE, RUTLAND, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wrاندike, union of Uppingham: 111 miles from London (coach road 88), 2 from Uppingham, 12 from Stamford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Bisbrooke: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 78 miles.---Money orders issued at Uppingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £6. 0s. 4d.: pres. net income, £252: patron, Duke of Rutland: pres. incumbent, S. Bloomfield, 1814: contains 720 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 211: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 243: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,815: poor rates in 1837, £841.---The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, the lord of the manor, and the vicar, were commuted in 1795.

BISCATHORPE (or BESKERTHORPE), LINCOLN, a parish and small village on the banks of the river Bane, in the eastern division of the wapentake of Wraggöe, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth: 175 miles from London (coach road 151), 8 from Louth, 11 from Horncastle.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Louth, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln and Boston to Louth, &c., 115 miles.---Money orders issued at Louth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 1½ p.m.---The living

(St. Helen), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £180: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. Macleod, 1815: contains 1,050 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 63: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 72: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £964: poor rates in 1837, £22.

BISHAM (or BYSHAM-MONTAGUE), BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Beynhurst, union of Cookham, on the eastern bank of the Thames: 26½ miles from London (coach road 30), 1 from Marlow, 4 from Maidenhead.---Gt. West. Rail. to Maidenhead, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 159 miles.---Money orders issued at Marlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---There was anciently a preceptory here of the Knights Templars, a portion of whose ancient hall now forms part of the manor-house. It was often visited by Henry VIII. and Queen Elizabeth, the latter of whom occasionally staid some time. There was also a large religious house, of which Tanner says—Robert de Ferraris, in the time of Stephen, gave the manor of Bistlesham to the Templars, who thereupon made here a preceptory for the knights of that order. Upon their dissolution, in the time of Edward II., this seems not to have passed with the greater part of their estates to the knights of St. John of Jerusalem, for they had before granted it away in fee to Hugh de Spencer, jun. Afterwards it came to William Montacute, Earl of Salisbury, who, A.D. 1338, built a priory here for canons of the order of St. Augustine, which was endowed in the 26th year of Henry VIII. with £327. 4s. 6d. per annum. The prior and convent having surrendered this monastery 5th July, 1536, King Henry VIII., in the year following, refounded and more amply endowed it with the lands of the late dissolved abbey of Chertsey, and the priories of Cardigan, Bethgylert, Ankerwike, Little Marlow, Medmenham, &c., to the yearly value of £661. 14s. 9d., for the maintenance of an abbot, who was to have the privilege of wearing a mitre, and thirteen Benedictine monks. But this new abbey was of short continuance, being surrendered on the 19th of June, in the 30th year of Henry VIII., and the site was granted in the 7th year of Edward VI. to Sir Edward Hoby. The picturesque old church stands close to the Thames, on the border of the park of G. H. Vansittart, Esq. of Bisham Abbey, who has very extensive property in the vicinity. "The Abbey," a fine residence, of a monastic style suitable to its appellation, and comprising part of the old religious house, is surrounded by a moat, and looks down a bold reach of the Thames. A little higher up the stream is Temple House, the seat of — William, Esq., member for Marlow, whose father made a large fortune in copper mines. A very large quantity of copper was formerly worked at the Temple Mills, which are in this parish, but they are now converted to the manufacture of paper.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, and diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £7. 13s. 1d.: pres. net income, £156: patron, G. Vansittart, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. E. Powell, 1848: contains 2,520 acres: 142 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 659: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 757: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,434: poor rates in 1837, £333.

BISHAMPTON, WORCESTER, a parish in the middle division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Oswaldslow, union of Pershore: 116 miles from London (coach road 107), 5 from Pershore, 6 from Evesham.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Pinvin, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Pinvin, &c., 82 miles.---Money orders issued at Pershore: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £7. 9s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £103: patron, Bishop of Worcester: pres. incumbent, H. Southall, 1820: contains 2,140 acres: 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 410: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 471: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,478: poor rates in 1837, £167. The tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the Bishop of Worcester and the vicar, were commuted in 1795.

BISHOP-AUCKLAND. See AUCKLAND (BISHOP).

BISHOPSBOURNE, KENT, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Kinghamford, lathe of St. Augustine, union of Bridge: 85 miles from London (coach road 59), 4 from Canterbury, 12 from Dover.---Sou. East. Rail. to Canterbury, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 217 miles.---Money orders issued at Canterbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---This place is called, in Domesday-book, Borne, from the bourn or rapid flowing brook, the head of the Lesser Sour, which runs into it; and it has acquired its prefix from having at one time been the property of the archbishops of Canterbury, who exchanged it for other property with Thomas Colepepper, Esq., who had married one of the daughters of Sir William Hant. The pious and celebrated Richard Hooker, author of the "Ecclesiastical Polity," was rector of this parish in 1600, died, and was buried here. There is a monument of him, said to be a likeness, in the church; it is a bust, attired in the square cap and gown of the period.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory with the curacy of Barham, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £39. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £700: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, Hon. W. Eden, 1846: contains 1,860 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 334: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 384: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,913: poor rates in 1837, £354.---S. E., Charlton Park, the seat of Robert Foote, Esq.

BISHOP'S-CANNINGS. See CANNINGS (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S CASTLE, SALOP, a borough, parish, and market town, with separate jurisdiction, in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Purslow, union of Clunn, comprising five several townships: 171 miles from London (coach road 159), 21 from Shrewsbury.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 38 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 109 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The town is built on a hill near the river Clunn. Camden, in speaking of this place, says—The bishops of Hereford had a castle here, the site of which is now the Castle Inn, and the keep, a bowling-green, and part of the walls and vaults remaining; a mile from hence towards the borders of Montgomeryshire, on a high hill, is Bishop's-Mote, an intrenchment of near an acre, with a keep at the west end; this is supposed to be a remain of the Roman wars, but is more probably of much later date. The limits of the borough are very extensive, comprising a circuit of as much as 15 miles. The church has some fine instances of Norman architecture. The Independents and Primitive Methodists have chapels here. There is a free school here for 25 boys and 25 girls, of which the Bishop of Hereford appoints the master; it was endowed with £1,000, 3 per cent. consols, in 1737, by Mrs. Mary Morris. The other parochial charities produce about £17 a year. The town-hall is a fine structure, and the streets are remarkably clean and neat. Water for domestic purposes is chiefly obtained from wells, but there is a supply from the neighbouring hills, brought in chiefly by pipes. The town is governed by a bailiff, a recorder, and 15 capital burgesses, under charters granted by Elizabeth and James I., and a court of quarter-sessions for the borough is held every Wednesday after the termination of the county sessions. The petty sessions for the hundreds of Clunn and Purslow are also held here. By the 26th Elizabeth, the borough returned two members to parliament, but it was disfranchised by the Reform Bill, yet is still one of the polling-places for South Shropshire. A common, called the Moat, or Burgesses' Hill, is the property of the corporation. The fairs here are much attended by the neighbouring inhabitants of the Principality, whose presence is a source of great advantage to the crown. Bishop's Castle was the native place of Jeremy Stephens, a learned and industrious writer and divine, who largely assisted Sir Henry Spelman in the composition of the first volume of his "English Councils." His works were chiefly an examination of the doctrinal principles of church government. He was made prebendary of Biggleswade, and died at Wotton in 1664.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £9. 12s. 11d.: pres. net income, £350: patron, Earl of Powis: pres. incumbent, W. M. Rowland, 1842: contains 6,000 acres: 488 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,781: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,048: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,248: poor rates in 1837, £438.---Market day, Friday. Fairs: Friday before Feb. 13th, Thursday before March 25th, first Friday after May-day, July 5th, Sept. 9th, Nov. 13th, for sheep, cattle, and horses.

BISHOP'S-COURT, ISLE OF MAN. See KIRK-MICHAEL.

BISHOP-DALE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Aysgarth, western division of the wapentake of Hang—(which see for access, &c.): 232 miles from London, 12 from Middleham, 6 from Askrigg.---Money orders issued at Middleham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 11½ p.m.---Contains 5,960 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 124: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 143: poor rates in 1837, £29.

BISHOP'S-FONTHILL. See FONTHILL (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-FROME. See FROME (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-HULL. See HULL (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP-SIDE (HIGH and LOW), WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish and liberty of Ripon, locally situated in the wapentake of Claro: 233 miles from London (coach road 225), 11 from Ripon, 11 from Masham.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Womald Green station, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 96 miles.---Money orders issued at Ripon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---There is a small endowed school here. The lead mines in the vicinity give considerable employment to the inhabitants.---Contains 3,480 acres: 387 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,119: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,437: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,160: poor rates in 1837, £1,008.

BISHOP'S-LYDEARD. See LYDEARD (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-MIDDLEHAM. See MIDDLEHAM (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-MONKTON. See MONKTON (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-NYMPTON. See NYMPTON (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-OFFLOW. See OFFLOW (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-STOKE. See STOKE (BISHOP'S).

BISHOPSTONE, GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Swansea, South Wales: 196 miles from London (coach road 213), 6 from Swansea, 7 from Llochor.---Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, across the Severn, by rail. to Eglwysian, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 210 miles.---Money orders issued at Swansea: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3½ p.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---There is a charity school here with a small endowment.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Carmarthen, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £9. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £248: patron, Bishop of Llandaff: pres. incumbent, David Jones, 1831: contains 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 491: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 564: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,234: poor rates in 1837, £104.

BISHOPSTONE, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Grimesworth: 148 miles from London (coach road 143), 8 from Hereford, 13 from Hay.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 101 miles.---Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---There is an hospital here, called Berrington's, for five poor women.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united with the vicarage of Yazor, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £7. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £429: patron, Sir R. Price, Bart.: pres. incumbent, R. L. Freer, 1838: contains 840 acres: 61 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 304: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 350: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,025: poor rates in 1837, £49.

BISHOPSTONE, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Flexborough, rape of Pevensey, union of Newhaven: 63 miles from London (coach road 60), 2 from Seaford, 11 from Brighton.---Brighton Rail. to Newhaven, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 195 miles.---Money orders issued at Newhaven: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £8. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £88: patron, Bishop of Chichester: pres. incumbent, J. Harison, 1846: contains 1,820 acres: 24 houses:

pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 288: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 300: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,050: poor rates in 1837, £178.

BISHOPSTONE, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Downton: 102 miles from London (coach road 87), 5 from Salisbury, 3 from Wilton.---Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, Reading, and Bishopstoke, 187 miles.---Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Sarum, valued at £12. 1s. 3d., together with a sinecure rectory, valued at £19. 14s. 2d., but having jointly a pres. net income of £806: patron, Earl of Pembroke: pres. incumbent, Francis Lear, 1842: contains 2,750 acres: 127 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 569: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 589: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,987: poor rates in 1837, £637.

BISHOPSTONE, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ramsbury, union of Highworth and Swindon: 74 miles from London (coach road 75), 6 from Swindon, 7 from Highworth.---Gt. West. Rail. to Shrivenham station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse to Shrivenham, &c., 138 miles.---Money orders issued at Swindon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---There is a school here, originally founded by the Rev. Thomas Cocker, the income of which was about £11 per annum, subsequently increased to about £28.---The living (Virgin Mary), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £6. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £208: patron, Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol: pres. incumbent, J. W. R. Landon, 1826: contains 330 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 704: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 810: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,831: poor rates in 1837, £243.

BISHOP'S-STORTFORD. See STORTFORD (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-SUTTON, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bishop's-Sutton, Alton north division: 58 miles from London (coach road 56), 1 from Alresford, 9 from Alton.---Sou. West. Rail. through Guildford to Alton, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 190 miles.---Money orders issued at Alresford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---This parish, with Ropley, has the right of sending children to a charity school in that place.---The living, a vicarage united with that of Ropley, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £19. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £350: patron, J. Deacon, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. Maddock, 1818: contains 3,510 acres: 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 517: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 595: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,370: poor rates in 1837, £344.

BISHOP'S-TACKBROOK. See TACKBROOK (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-TAWTON. See TAWTON (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-TEIGNTON. See TEIGNTON (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-THORNTON. See THORNTON (BISHOP'S).

BISHOPSTROW, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Warminster: 116 miles from London (coach road 95), 2 from Warminster, 3 from Heytesbury.---Gt. West. Rail. to Westbury, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 179 miles.---Money orders issued at Warminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---An immense number of Roman coins was found here about forty years ago; they were contained in three urns, and almost sufficient to fill a Winchester bushel.---The living (St. Adhelm), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Sarum, is valued at £11. 10s.: pres. net income, £220: patron, Sir F. D. Astley: pres. incumbent, J. W. Griffith, 1845: contains 980 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 296: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 340: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,463: poor rates in 1837, £219.---Bishopstrow House, the seat of William Temple, Esq., who was high sheriff in 1833, and is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for the county.

BISHOP'S-WOOD. See BREWOOD.

BISHOP'S-WALTHAM. See WALTHAM (BISHOP'S).

BISHOP'S-WILTON. See WILTON (BISHOP'S).

BISHOPTHORPE (or THORPE-UPON-OUER), YORK, a parish and township in the ainstey of the city and union of York: 22¼ miles from London (coach road 197), 3 from York, 10 from Selby.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, &c., to York, thence 3 miles; the distance will be much shortened on the completion of the London and York Railway: from Derby, through Copemanthorpe to York, &c., 91 miles.---Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The village is pleasantly situated upon the western banks of the Ouse. The parochial charities produced about £11. 12s. per annum, but were increased in 1849 by a legacy of £500 from Archbishop Harcourt, now vested in the 3 per cents. This archbishop built the schools, and expended a considerable sum in the restoration of the church, and filling the windows with painted glass, in 1842. The old name was St. Andrew's-Thorpe, or Thorpe-super-Usam, and the village is principally remarkable for the palatial residence of the Archbishop of York, primate of England. The manor was purchased by Walter de Grey, who was in possession of the primacy from 1216 to 1256, and who granted the mansions appertaining to it to the Chapter of York, on condition that they should grant it to his successors for an annual rent of twenty marks, an agreement which has been legally made perpetual; and, since the destruction of Cawood Castle during the Civil War, it has been the principal residence of the archbishop. Out of the annual Tent, the treasurer of the cathedral, into whose hands the money was paid, was required to pay £6 yearly for the maintenance of a chaplain, presentable by the dean and chapter, who was to celebrate mass in his chapel of Thorpe for the souls of John, late King of England, of Archbishop Walter de Grey, and of all the faithful. The palace of Bishopthorpe was originally built by Archbishop de Grey, and his chantry may still be seen; but the mansion has been much altered and improved by subsequent prelates. The gardens were almost entirely laid out by Archbishop Sharp, and the house was greatly altered by Archbishop Dawes. Archbishop Drummond, in 1763, built the coach-houses, but the greatest alterations were effected between 1766 and 1769, when the porter's lodge and the gateway were added, together with the state-rooms, including the large drawing-room, the vestibule, and the audience-room; the elegant front and portico, and the whole of the department necessary for the cuisine. Most of the stone used in building the front and the gateway came from Cawood Castle. His Grace, the present Archbishop Thomas Musgrave, was born in 1788, and married the youngest daughter of the second Lord Waterpark. He was formerly a fellow and bursar of Trinity College, Cambridge, was consecrated Bishop of Hereford in 1837, and was elevated to the primacy ten years later. His Grace is patron of fifty-three livings. Town residence, Belgrave Square.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £134, exclusive of the vicarage-house, rebuilt in 1825: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, W. H. Dixon, 1824: contains 760 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 465: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,110: poor rates in 1837, £101. Tithes commuted in 1757.

BISHOPTON, DURHAM, a parish and village in the south-western division of Stockton ward, union of Sedgefield: it comprises the townships of Bishopton, East and West Newbiggins, and Little Stainton: 280 miles from London (coach road 247), 6 from Stockton, 7 from Darlington.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Darlington, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 150 miles.---Money orders issued at Stockton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1½ p.m.---There are the vestiges here of an ancient intrenchment surrounding the old mansion of Roger de Conyers, who, according to Lambard—In tyme of Kinge Stephen resisted one William Cumyn, an ambitious prelate, which sought by forcible and warlike means to invade the sea, and to have compelled the monkes of Durham to have elected him after Gaufride (which died about the years 1136), their byshop, which, because they refused to do, he besieged, sacked, and spoiled, not only thabbey, but the towne of Durham also, with such crueltie and exquisite tormortes of deathes against suche as resisted him, as scarcely is the like to be found eyther in the Scottes or Danes themselves, which have after a most barbarous sort often tymes heryed that quarter; howbeit, in the end, he bothe lost his detyre, and was compelled by the nobilitie of the country (armed for that purpose) to submitte himselfe to the lawfully elect, whose name was William also; whatsoever the cause was, it is named of the byshop.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham, is valued at £4. 5s. 10d.: pres. net income, £165: patron, Sherbourn Hospital: pres. incumbent, T. B. Holgate, 1838: contains 5,100 acres: 109 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 473: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 473: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,067: poor rates in 1837, £77. for Bishopton township.

BISHOPTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish and liberty of Ripon—(which see for access, &c.): 215 miles from London, 3 from Ripon, 12 from Thirsk.---Money orders issued at Ripon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---Contains 850 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 136: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 156: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,161: poor rates in 1837, £57.---

S. 1½ m. is Studley Royal—(for which, see STUDLEY ROGER.)

BISHOP-WEARMOUTH. See WEARMOUTH (BISHOP).

BISHTON, MONMOUTH, a parish in the lower division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Caldecott, union of Newport: 142 miles from London (coach road 146), 4 from Caerleon, 12 from Chepstow.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence by railway and New Passage to Bishton: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 154 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---The living (St. Cadwalladar), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff: pres. net income, £51: patron, Archdeacon of Llandaff: pres. incumbent, J. Williams, 1828: contains 1,850 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 187: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 215: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,364: poor rates in 1837, £70.

BISLEY, GLOUCESTER, a market town and extensive parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bisley, union of Stroud, intersected by the Cheltenham branch of the Great Western Railway, and the Stroudwater Canal: the parish includes the chapelry of Chalford: 103 miles from London (coach road 99), 4 from Stroud: 10 from Gloucester.---Gt. West. Rail. to Brimscombe station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse to Brimscombe, &c., 107 miles.---Money orders issued at Stroud: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.: at Bisley, letters are deliv<sup>d</sup> at 10 a.m., post closes at 3 p.m.---The market charter was obtained from Charles II. through the influence of Sir Robert Atkins, then lord of the manor, but there is a difficulty of access to the place, and the market is consequently of little note. In the time of Edward I. the lordship became the property of the Earls of March, who held it for nearly three centuries, when it devolved to Edward Duke of York, afterwards Edward IV., about whose time the church appears to have been rebuilt upon an older foundation. It is an elegant and pleasing structure, and exhibits not only mixed styles in its architectural ornaments, but has also the blazonry of the arms of the houses of York and Stafford, and of those of Mortimer and Clare, which appear on different parts of the building. It was fresh pewed in 1771, when the old font was removed into the churchyard, and placed upon an ancient cross which stood over a well, which appears from some MS. in the Bodleian library to have been the place into which "a man fell, and the churchyard was in consequence excommunicated for three years, and the inhabitants were obliged to carry their dead to Bibury." Lysons supposes this cross to have been erected in the thirteenth century. A common in the neighbourhood was given to the poor of Bisley, by Roger Mortimer, Earl of March, in the reign of Edward III., when it comprised about 1,200 acres; but since then it has been much reduced by enclosures, and the introduction of new comers into the parish, who were induced to come there by the extension of the cloth manufactures, and to squat upon the land in consequence of this privilege. It is somewhat singular that the name of James Slakeper occurs upon the parish register, as having been buried here, and that it does not appear in any subsequent annals of the parish.---The living (All Saints), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £19. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £527: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, T. Keble, 1827: contains 7,980 acres: 1,264 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,339: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same. ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,683: poor rates in 1837, £1,911.---Market day, Thursday. Fairs: May 4th, Nov. 12th, for cattle, sheep, and horses.

BISLEY, SURREY, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Godley, union of Chertsey: 28 miles from London, 4 from Bagshot, 9 from Guildford.---Sou. West. Rail. to Woking, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 160 miles.---Money orders issued at Bagshot: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £24 a year.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, diocese of Winchester, is valued at £7. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £188: patron, J. Thornton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. Robinson, 1845: contains 780 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 321: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 369: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,025: poor rates in 1837, £73.

BISPHAM, LANCASTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Amounderness, union of the Fylde: it comprises the townships of Bispham with Norbreck, and Layton with Warbreck: 236 miles from London (coach road 237), 6 from Blackpool, 20 from Preston.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Crewe, and Preston, to Poulton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 125 miles.---Money orders issued at Blackpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---There is a school here, with an endowment of £24 a year.---The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £275: patron, Sir P. Fleetwood: pres. incumbent, B. Williams, 1837: contains 3,490 acres: 233 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,339: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,690: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,616: poor rates in 1837, £537.

BISPHAM, LANCASTER, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)---Contains 1,490 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 360: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 414: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,177: poor rates in 1837, £195.

BISPHAM, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Croston, hund<sup>d</sup> of Leyland—(which see for access): 208 miles from London, 7 from Ormskirk, 8 from Wigan.---Money orders issued at Ormskirk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---Contains 850 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 294: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 338: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,736: poor rates in 1837, £99.

BISTERN-CLOSES. See BURLEY.

BITCHFIELD, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven, union of Grantham: 129 miles from London (coach road 108), 3 from Corby, 7 from Grantham.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>l</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Stamford, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Syston, to Saxby station, 47, thence 13 miles.---Money orders issued at Corby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Mary Magdalene), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5.

11s. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: pres. net income, £134: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, A. B. Brereton, 1836: contains 1,540 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 160: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 184: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,385: poor rates in 1837, £62.

BITCHFIELD, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Stamfordham, Tindale ward—(which see for access, &c.): 287 miles from London, 13 from Newcastle, 9 from Morpeth. Money orders issued at Newcastle-on-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 6 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. Contains 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 46: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 52: poor rates in 1837, £8.

BITTADON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Braunton, South Molton division of Devon: 222 miles from London (coach road 198), 6 from Barnstaple, 4 from Ilfracombe. Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence through Barnstaple, 38 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 235 miles. Money orders issued at Barnstaple: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £6. 2s. 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: pres. net income, £83: patron, William A. Yeo, Esq.: pres. incumbent, F. Mules, 1842: contains 5,100 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 78: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 89: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £698: poor rates in 1837, £18.

BITTERING (LITTLE). See BREXTON.

BITTERLEY, SALOP, a parish partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Munslow, and partly in that of Overs: 153 miles from London (coach road 145), 5 from Ludlow, 7 from Tenbury. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 91 miles. Money orders issued at Ludlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. The church is a remarkably fine structure, and contains, among other objects of great interest, an ancient stone font. There is an endowment here for a school, arising out of the rent of an estate of the value of about £36 per annum. The other parochial charities produce about £23 per annum. On the summit of Clee hill, a bold object in the immediate neighbourhood, there are the remains of a Roman encampment. The extreme point is called Tipperstone, and seems to be of volcanic origin. From many parts of the height there are varied, extensive, and beautiful prospects, while from the interior, ironstone and coals are raised in abundance, in the extraction of which the inhabitants are of course chiefly occupied. The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford, is valued at £18. 6s. 3d.: pres. net income, £555: patron, Rev. C. Walcot: pres. incumbent, Charles Walcot: contains 5,610 acres: 232 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,098: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,263: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,574: poor rates in 1837, £728.

BITTERN AND POLLOCK, HANTS, a tithing in the parish of South Stoneham, hun<sup>d</sup> of Mansbridge, Fowley division of the county—(which see for access, &c.)—This was the Roman Clansertum, and many relics of its ancient masters have been found here. Contains 139 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 808: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 929.

BITTESBY, LEICESTER, a liberty in the parish of Claybrooke, hun<sup>d</sup> of Guththaxton—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 1 house: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 13: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 15: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,204: poor rates in 1837, £28.

BITTESWELL, LEICESTER, a small parish and village in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Guththaxton: 92 miles from London (coach road 90), 1 from Lutterworth, 13 from Leicester. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Ullesthorpe station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Ullesthorpe, &c., 44 miles. Money orders issued at Lutterworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The church has been renovated within these few years. The living (St. Mary), a vicarage formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £4. 3s. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.: pres. net income, £428: patron, Haberdashers' Company and Christ's Hospital: pres. incumbent, G. Monnington, 1844: contains 2,630 acres: 97 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 495: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 569: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,064. All the tithes, the property of the Haberdashers' Company and the vicar, were commuted in 1787.

BITTON, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Langley and Swinehead, on the northern bank of the river Avon, and in the vicinity of the Great Western Railway: it comprises the civil hamlets of Hanham and Oldland, with the hamlet of Bitton: 117 miles from London (coach road 113), 6 from Bristol, 7 from Bath. Gt. West. Rail. to Keynsham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Keynsham, &c., 141 miles. Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 $\frac{1}{2}$  a.m.: post closes 3 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. The old church is a fine exemplar of the Norman and later style; but a new church (Holy Trinity) has been erected here by the parliamentary commissioners; it contains 1,019 sittings. The schools are numerous, and the parochial charities produce about £27 a year. There are extensive collieries in the neighbourhood, in which a large number of the inhabitants are employed. At Hanham, and at Bitton, there are traces of a Roman station. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the diocese of Worcester, then of Gloucester, now in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bristol and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £18. 15s.: pres. net income, £200: patron, the Prebendary: pres. incumbent, H. T. Ellacombe, 1835: contains 7,520 acres: 1,696 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 9,338: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,738: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £15,373. W. 1 m. Upton Cheyney, the seat of Jos. Parker, Esq.—Hanham Court, the residence of T. White, Esq.—Hanham Hall, the residence of S. Whitterch, Esq.

BITTON, GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the above parish.

BIX (or BIXBRAND), OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Binfield, union of Henley: 46 miles from London (coach road 39), 4 from Henley, 6 from Watlington. Gt. West. Rail. to Reading, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, and Oxford, to Reading, &c., 132 miles. Money orders issued at Henley-on-Thames: letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 $\frac{1}{2}$  p.m. The living (St.

James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £9. 15s.: pres. net income, £487: patron, Earl of Macclesfield: pres. incumbent, H. R. Pechell, 1882: contains 3,130 acres: 77 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 427: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 491: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,957: poor rates in 1837, £375.

BIXLEY, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Henstead: 129 miles from London (coach road 121), 3 from Norwich, 12 from Bungay. —East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Dereham, to Norwich, &c., 171 miles. —Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —Pilgrimages were formerly made here to the shrine of St. Wandegisilus. —The living (St. Wandegisilus), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory with Earl's Framlingham, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £608: patron, Rev. C. D. Brereton: pres. incumbent, C. D. Brereton: contains 760 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, £110: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 126: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,408: poor rates in 1837, £70. —Bixley Hall, the seat of the Hon. Francis Ward Primrose, by an exchange with his brother, the present Earl of Rosebery, was erected by Sir Edward Ward in the middle of the last century. It is a mansion with three fronts, each containing three stories, the attics being in the roofs, and is surrounded by a finely timbered park. The family of the earl derive their name from the lands of Primrose, in the county of Fife; and their immediate descent from Duncan Primrose, Esq., who was seated at Kilross in Perthshire, in the reign of Queen Mary, and whose eldest son was principal surgeon to James I. His son Gilbert attained the degree of D.D., was made a canon of Windsor, and was highly celebrated for his piety, learning, and literary talent. His grandson, James Primrose, was appointed by the king clerk of the privy council, in which capacity he officiated for at least forty years. He had by two marriages no less than nineteen children, the eldest of whom, by the second marriage, was also appointed clerk of the privy council by King Charles I., who created him a baronet of Nova Scotia. During the whole of the civil war this gentleman remained true to his sovereign; and after the restoration of the monarchy, was constituted Lord Registrar, when he assumed the title of Lord Carrington, and was afterwards justice-general. His eldest son William, by his marriage with the daughter and co-heir of Sir James Keith, succeeded him; and his second son Gilbert became a major-general of the British army, and commander of the 24th regiment of foot. His eldest son Archibald, by a subsequent marriage with Agnes, a daughter of Sir William Gray of Pittendrum, was one of the gentlemen of the bedchamber to Prince George of Denmark, member of parliament for the county of Edinburgh in 1695, and was elevated to the peerage in 1700 by the title of Baron Primrose and Dalmeny, and Viscount Rosebery, with remainder to his heirs male and female. He was further created Viscount of Inverkeithing and Earl of Rosebery, and sat as one of the representative peers of Scotland in four parliaments. His nephew Sir James Primrose, who also sat for the county of Edinburgh, was in 1703 elevated to the peerage by the title of Lord Primrose and Castlefield, and Viscount Primrose, with remainder to the heirs of his father, Sir William Primrose. His grandson, the third viscount, a distinguished officer, died without issue. The peerage of that branch of the family then became extinct, but the baronetage passed to the second earl, who married a sister of John, fourth Duke of Argyll. The present noble proprietor of the title and estates succeeded as fourth Earl of Rosebery, with all the honours attached, in 1814, on the death of his father, and, in 1828, obtained the barony of the empire by creation.

BLABY, LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gt. tuxton, union of Blaby, on the line of the Midland Counties Railway, and intersected by the Union Canal: it includes the chapelry of Countess-Thorpe: 98 miles from London (coach road 97), 5 from Leicester, 12 from Hinckley. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Countess-Thorpe station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Leicester to Countess-Thorpe, &c., 35 miles. —Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The Baptists have had a congregation here since 1810. The Primitive Methodists have also a place of worship here. There is a very beautiful National school, built of granite, with Derbyshire stone facings—a most complete building, and does infinite credit to the architect, Mr. S. Fry of Leicester. The expense, including site, amounted to £650, one moiety of which was contributed by the rector, the other by a government grant, and one from the National Society, together with sundry donations. There is also a handsome manor-house, called "the Hall," the property of R. B. Forrester, Esq. The rectory has been considerably added to, and forms an excellent residence. The poor-law commissioners have erected a workhouse here, at an expense of £4,400, which is fitted to accommodate 350 inmates. The Blaby poor-law union extends over 53 square miles, and comprehends 22 parishes. —The living (All Saints), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £15. 5s.: pres. net income, £560: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, H. J. Hoskins, 1845: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,896: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,200. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1766.

BLACKAUTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Coleridge, union of King's Bridge: 229 miles from London (coach road 202), 5 from Dartmouth, 6 from Totness. —Gt. West. Rail. to Totness, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Totness, &c., 243 miles. —Money orders issued at Dartmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —The church has a fine wooden screen, and an interesting Norman font. —The living (St. Michael), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £15. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £122: patron, Sir J. H. Seale, Bart.: pres. incumbent, E. T. Seale, 1841: contains 5,850 acres: 212 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,449: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,666: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £8,332: poor rates in 1837, £386.

BLACKBOROUGH, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hayridge: 185 miles from London (coach road 158), 3 from Collumpton, 8 from Tiverton. —Gt. West. Rail. to Collumpton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Collumpton, &c., 198 miles. —Money orders issued at Collumpton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The church is desecrated, and the inhabitants, therefore, repair to the church of Kentisbere for divine worship and ecclesiastical rites. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £140: patron, Earl of Egremont: pres. incumbent, W. C. Thompson, 1839: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 112: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 129.

BLACKBOROUGH (or BLACKBURGH), NORFOLK, in the parish of Middleton, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Freebridge. —Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Roger de Scales, and Muriel his wife, in the time of Henry II., brought some monks to this place (then also called Shiplade), and built a priory for them to the honour of the blessed Virgin and St. Catherine, wherein were afterwards religious of both sexes, under the government of Hamo Wauter and Maud his mother; but Robert, son to the said Roger Scales, before the year 1200, settled this house upon nuns of the order of St. Benedict, who continued here (about ten in number) till the general suppression, when it was rated at £76. 3s. 9d. per annum. It was granted to the Bishop of Norwich and his successors in the fourth year of Edward VI.

BLACKBURN, LANCASTER, a parish comprising a township or market town of the same name, and 22 other townships, including Balderston, Billington, Lango, Great Harward, Over Darwen, Salisbury, Samlesbury, Tockholes, Walton-le-Dale, Cuerdale, Lower Darwen, Dinkley, Eccleshill, Little Harwood, Livesley, Mellor, Osbaldeston, Pleasington, Ramsgrave, Richton, Wilshire, and Witton, all of which are divided into three chapelries, and under the immediate superintendence of the Vicar of Blackburn: the parish is 14 miles long and 10 broad, and was originally part of the ancient parish of Whalley—(for access and postal arrangements, &c., see following article.) —Contains 3,610 acres: 4,594 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £37,758: poor rates in 1847, £3,840.

BLACKBURN, LANCASTER, a parish and market town in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Blackburn: 221 miles from London (coach road 212), 12 from Preston. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Manchester, and Bolton, to station: from Derby, through Manchester, &c., 128 miles. —Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —Blackburn is one of the most striking of the many instances of places in Britain changing their ancient character of feudal service and quiet rustication, for the busy aspect of a town swimming with active artisans, and adorned with the residences of commercial opulence; it is now considered, for its size, one of the richest towns in Europe. The name of the place is evidently derived from the appellation of a stream that divides it into two parts, which was called the Black bourne, or dark running streamlet. Blackburn remained of little note until the rise of its manufacturing greatness. The inhabitants are now chiefly employed in the weaving and printing of calico, in the produce of which many thousands of hands are employed. The best account of the rise of this manufacture is contained in Mr. Baines' "Lancashire Directory," where he says—The manufactures of Blackburn appear to have arisen in the time of the commonwealth, and may be dated about the year 1650. The first fabrics for which this place was distinguished were called Blackburn checks, a species of cloth consisting of a linen warp and cotton woof, one or both of which being dyed in the thread, gave to the piece, when woven, a striped or chequered appearance. This article was afterwards superseded by the Blackburn greys, so called from their colour, neither the warp nor the woof having been dyed. The component parts of this cloth consisted of a mixture of linen and cotton, and when manufactured, the pieces were generally sent to London to be printed. The great era in the improvement of the cotton business, which opened about 1765, led the manufacturers of this district to turn their attention to the making of calicoes, so called from their resemblance to the Indian manufacture brought from the province of Calicut, in Hindostan; and from that time to the present, Blackburn has enjoyed the advantages of this branch of the cotton business more perhaps than any other place in Lancashire. James Hargrave, a carpenter of Blackburn, was among the first of those persons who endeavoured to overcome the disadvantages under which the cotton weavers laboured, owing to the want of yarn when it was to be produced by the distaff and spindle. This ingenious artisan, in 1767, according to the statement submitted to the House of Commons, by Mr. (afterwards Sir Richard) Arkwright, constructed a machine that would at once spin 20 or 30 threads of cotton into yarn for the fustian manufacture; but because it was likely to answer in some measure the ends proposed, his engines were burnt and destroyed by a mob, and himself driven out of Lancashire. He afterwards removed to Nottingham in 1769, and obtained a patent for his engine; but his patent right was invaded, and his invention being thus cruelly wrested from him, he died in obscurity and great distress. But Hargrave's mechanical contrivances are rather to be deemed improvements upon the cotton spinning machine, than discoveries. The merit of inventing the crank and comb for taking the carding from the cylinder of the carding-engine, is to be ascribed to Hargrave, and he is fairly entitled, in consequence of that discovery, to be inscribed on the roll of British worthies, among that class of men to which, under Providence, Lancashire owes its present wealth and pre-eminence. The trade has of late years very largely increased; and the number of pieces of cotton goods weekly manufactured at Blackburn, is estimated at between 50,000 and 60,000, in the various processes of making which, upwards of 10,000 persons are employed; the annual worth of all the articles made being more than £2,000,000 sterling. Apart from the enterprise and industry of the inhabitants, the trade here is chiefly owing to the abundance of the fuel necessary for working the steam-engines, which is found in the southern portion of the parish. Yet although Blackburn may justly claim the credit of having taken the lead in the promotion of spinning, it is only within the last fourteen years that the spinning and weaving of cotton has been carried on to any great extent. Popular prejudice has ever been averse to the introduction of machinery. Hargrave's spinning jennies were destroyed in 1769, and ten years after that, a factory for carrying out his design on a large scale, established on Wensley Fold, also shared the same fate. The consequence of these and other follies, was to drive the business to Manchester and other places, where the business was not so obnoxious, and where it has flourished to such a remarkable degree. It required nearly half a century to destroy the evil impressions; but after the war with France had been concluded, manufactories began to be erected, and now there are upwards of 100,000 spindles at work in Blackburn and the neighbourhood, which yield 100,000 lbs. weight of yarn per week, consisting chiefly of 40 hanks to the pound. The town is sheltered on the north-east and north-west; and, though pleasingly, is irregularly built, owing to the intermixture of glebe and other lands. But the streets contain many handsome residences; and they are well paved and lighted with gas, and are watched under the provisions of an act of parliament. There is an excellent supply of water. A theatre was erected in 1818, and there are a subscription library, and assembly-rooms. There is also a savings bank here. About 500 families are engaged in agriculture; all the rest are employed in the manufactures of the place. Blackburn was enfranchised by the Reform Act, and now returns two members to parliament, the constituency being about 840 in number. The church, which was very ancient, was almost entirely rebuilt in 1819, and in 1826 a new church was erected by the parliamentary commissioners at an expense of £26,000. Besides these places of worship, there are the chapels of St. Peter, St. Paul, and St. John, all under the patronage of the vicar, but having independent revenues. The incumbent of St. Peter's is the Rev. T. Sharples, inducted in 1841; revenue £170. Incumbent of St. Paul's, Rev. A. G. Edouart, 1841; revenue £150. Incumbent of St. John's, Rev. R. T. Wheeler; revenue £150. There is hardly a section of the dissenting church which has not one or more congregations here. There is a free grammar-school here, founded in 1567, with an endowment of £120 a year. There is also a school founded in 1764 by Mr. William Leyland, in which 90 girls are clothed and taught. The other schools are quite adequate to the wants of the population, some of which are in connection with the National Society, and others are conducted on the British and Foreign School system. The Independents have a college here for the instruction of young men intended for the ministry, but which it is expected will be removed to Manchester. Among the numerous charitable institutions, there is a Stranger's Friend Society, and a society for the relief of poor women during childbirth. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who hold petty sessions here; it is regulated by commissioners appointed according to act of parliament. The living (St. Mary), a vicarage formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £8. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £893: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, J. W. Whitaker, 1822: contains 45,620 acres: 10,041 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 71,711: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £107,639: poor rates in 1837, £10,893. Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs: Easter Monday, May 11, 12; Oct. 17, cattle; fortnight for cattle, from the first Wednesday before Feb. 2, till Michaelmas.

